A Swiss Gretna Green.

Every one has read of Gretna Green, the village just across the Scottish border, where young, wayward couples, whose parents objected to their alliance, went post haste to be united by one of the quondam registrars. It is now long since that institution was stopped. Marriage is a much simpler business now. It is not necessary to "call the banns." The hanging up of the names for three weeks behind the registrar's door is sufficient, or a special license can be obtained at one-twentieth the expense of a journey to Gretna Green. But there has been another form of marriage which could not legally be solemnized in this country, namely, that of a man with his deceased wife's sister. I dare say many of your readers have wondered at the anomaly which permits such marriages in the British Colonies and forbids them in the parent land, but not more so than we do here. The Prince of Wales has spoken and voted in favor of leaglizing these marriages; yet the House of Lords declines to assent. In the happy time when the Irish troubles are over and our Senators get on to other business, we may hope to see this measure of justice carried out.

Meanwhile there are many who defy the law and do marry, even here. Some of tender conscience go where the marriage is legal for the actual ceremony. The chief place for the celebration of such marriages has been the Canton of Neuchatel, in Switzerland. There has existed in London an agency for the mediation of these marriages. The persons wishing to be married arranged the matter beforehand, went to Neuchatel, deposited their papers and took a lodging there, usually, of course, in one of the hotels. For the marriage they paid a fee of 100 francs to the State and 25 francs to the municipality. The approaching marriage was publicly announced, and after the bridal couple had received the license from the State and settled affairs with the agency, the civil marriage took place at the registrar's office. If a religious ceremony was also desired, as was usually the case with English people, it was always celebrated in the Church of Serrieres. About twenty English marriages have usually been celebrated at Neuhatel every year, and this modern Gretna Green has been used for about half a century. Last year the central Swiss authority notified the cantonal Government of Neuchatel that these marriages must cease to enjoy Swiss protection—why, is not stated. Consequently early this year it was stopped, and those who desired to break the iniquitous law must go elsewhere to do so.

Summer Sights on the Atlantic.

The Anchor liner Anchoria, just arrived from New York after a quick run, reports as follows: "About 350 miles east of the American coast and on the borders of the Gulf stream, the vessel passed though a phenomena which, although frequent on a small scale, are extremely rare on such maximum grandeur of scale as that which enrapturd the observers on the Anchoria. After the vessel had been running over twenty-four hours in a dense fog, the water around suddenly became so luminous that the mile-long shoals of small fish darting around the vessel seeking refuge from the sharks and other devouring enemies gave the sea the appearance of a vast cauldron of boiling jewels, while the furrows of foam from the great ship's bows rolled in such blazing masses of light violet flame as rendered the smallest thread in the ship's rigging as clearly visible as in bright sunshine and enveloped the vessel in such a mass of dazzling light violet colored glare that the engines had to be slowed a few hours until a storm of wind bursting out from the north-west cleared off the fog and broke the whole visible surface of the ocean into flying crests of flame-like foam of such brilliancy that the whole ocean seemed ablaze with the fleeting, flashing flame, the whole horizon line having the appearance of an immense belt of light-blue fire. In short, the whole phenomenon was such a one as is rarely seen, the oldest and widest travelled seamen and officers never have seen anything at all to compare with it. This beautiful pyrotechnic display of nature lasted from 11 p. m. to 3:30 a. m., until lost in the eclipsing light of dawn."—N. Y. Graphic.

LAST NIGHT'S DESPATCHES.

ROYAL SPLENDOUR.

KIEL, July 14.—The Emperor William arrived here this morning. He drove through the town to the harbor and was greeted with great enthusiasm. The steamers were gaily decorated. At Barbarossa bridge he alighted from his carriage and entered a man-of-war's boat which took him to the yacht Hohenzollern. As he boarded the vessel the squadron fired salutes and the yards were manned. After the different vessels of the fleet had got under way and sailed past the Imperial yacht that vessel also put to sea, leaving the harbor at 10 o'clock. The manœuvres of the fleet were executed with admirable precision and were watched by thousands of persons from the shore and upon the decks of vessels. Several private vessels accompanied the fleet to sea.

ON TO INDIA.

LONDON, July 14.—The renewed attacks of German newspapers on England, on everything English together with recent events in Germany, clearly indicate that Prince Bismarck has some measure in store for the punishment of England. If Russia were allowed a free hand to her aspirations regarding India it would undoubtedly draw her attention from Constantinople for some years to come. The completion of the trans-Caspian railway to a point a hundred miles from Dauchak brings that line within five hundred miles of the network of Indian railways, and the rapid progress made by the Russians in building the road would soon enable them to reach the desired goal. That Russia has some great military object in view in hurrying forward the work on this railway cannot for a moment be doubted by any military official who has been over it. At convenient points along the road, as the line is being extended, in addition to forts and other means of defence, the Russians have distributed immense numbers of cattle and established pasturages for them to graze in. In fact it has become an immense commissariat and can undoubtedly supply provisions for a large army for several years without drawing much on home resources.

TO-DAY'S DESPATCHES.

BOULANGER RECOVERING.

PARIS, July 16.—General Boulanger is progressing favorably, and unless some unforseen complication arises his complete recovery is looked for within a few weeks.

THROUGH A BRIDGE.

CLARENDEN, Texas, July 16.—In consequence of a washout, the Fort Worth and Denver railway northbound passenger train was last night precipitated through a bridge. Engineer Wm. Smith, and fireman James Wilson were instantly killed.

MEXICAN ELECTION.

VERA CRUZ, July 16.—The full election returns show that President Diaz has been re-elected with but two dissenting votes. The government carried the elections everywhere, excepting in one district in the territory of Tepic. The government has no opposition in congress.

CAPT. PEELE'S COLD WAVE.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—The weather has greatly moderated, the thermometer registering 72° this morning, a decline of 21° from yesterday. Despatches from different parts of the state report the weather much cooler.

HEAT KILLED HIM.

LOS ANGELES, July 16.—The body of John Schlitzinger, a drummer from San Francisco, was brought in this morning on the Southern Pacific train. The deceased was overcome by heat while crossing the desert yesterday.

THE DYNAMITE PLOT.

CHICAGO, July 16.—It was reported this morning that Chief Arthur telegraphed Engineer Perry, of the Illinois Central road, chief of the Chicago division, authorizing him to procure the best legal counsel in Chicago for Chairman Hoge, the alleged arch-dynamiter of the Burlington strikers, also saying that the fight in Hoge's interest would be to the bitter end, as the chief felt certain he was innocent. A reporter found Engineer Perry, who said: "Yes, I am in communication with Chief Arthur. You may contradict that rumor, though," added Perry, cautiously; "I have received no such instruction." Then he said: "It is the opinion of the brotherhood that Hoge is innocent. I cannot say as to whether he will be defended by the brotherhood or not. We believe that in spite of detectives hired by the "Q" people that the brotherhood and its officers will be acquitted of any guilty knowledge or complicity in the dynamite conspiracy. The brotherhood is as law-abiding as are any of the railroad officials. Reckless characters may be found hanging on the best organizations, but the great brotherhood will come out of this fight with its mustache unsinged and no smell of fire on its ulster."

TEACHERS' CONVENTION.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—Trains from all directions brought crowds of teachers this morning. Nearly two hundred arrived on the steamer Oregon from Portland. The fifth session of the national council of education was devoted this morning to the reading of reports of the committee on elementary education and the discussion of the subject of "Waste in Education."

SHERIDAN'S CONDITION.

NEW BEDFORD, July 16.—General Sheridan was rather restless during the night, but slept fairly well and this morning took milk and crackers. Pulse, 98; respiration, 28.

FREE WOOL.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The house committee of the whole resumed the debate on the tariff this morning. The free wool clause was discussed until 1 p. m., when, by vote, yeas 93, nays 122, the house refused to strike wool from the free list. The discussion of the woollen schedule continued, and after slight changes in the carpet and carpeting clauses, the woollen schedule was finished. January 1st, 1889, was fixed as the date on which it should go into effect.

DYNAMITERS' TRIAL.

CHICAGO, July 16.—The trial of the "Q" dynamiters was resumed this morning in Judge Gresham's court. Alexander Smith was a witness for the railroad company. His evidence went to implicate the prisoners in the plot, and said he got the dynamite cartridge from Bowles for the purpose of putting it on the "Q" track.

WILL BE CONFIRMED.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Senator Frye says when the time arrives for it, Fuller's nomination for chief justice will be confirmed.

YELLOW JACK.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Surgeon General Hamilton, of the marine hospital service, received a communication to-day from the surgeon in charge of the quarantine station at Ship Island, near New Orleans, stating the Norwegian bark Magnola, from Rio de Janeiro, has arrived with several cases of yellow fever on board. The vessel left Rio de Janeiro with a clean bill of health and during the passage the captain and four seamen died of the scourge.

WANTS DUELLING ABOLISHED.

PARIS, July 16.—Bishop Freppel introduced a bill in the chamber of deputies to-day abolishing duelling, and demanded urgency for the measure. In the course of his remarks in introducing the bill, the bishop referred particularly to the recent encounter between Floquet and General Boulanher. The demand for urgency was rejected by the chamber.

Late Canadian News.

MONTREAL, July 10.—Mrs. Hanrahan, bucket shop proprietor, has opened another bucket shop here and defies the law to reach her. She is said to be making $50,000 to $60,000 a year in this city alone.

TORONTO, July 10.—The body of the young girl found in the bay Saturday turned out to be that of Miss Jennie Irving. The story of the young girl's death involves a tale of domestic infelicity, youthful foolishness and finally despair and suicide. The case is peculiar, involving a wife and mother's unhappiness, a husband's perfidy and a young girl's dishonor and death. The case is being fully investigated.

TORONTO, July 10.—Counterfeit $5 notes of the Bank of British North America have been circulated in this city. Several have been recently presented at the counters of the Bank of British North America and Imperial Banks. Everyone presented so far has been stamped as being counterfeit and not to be reissued.

MONTREAL, July 12.—A severe storm visited many eastern points yesterday. Telegraphic communication was deranged and towns and fences levelled. At St. Crosslant a church was struck by lightning and completely wrecked.

OTTAWA, July 13.—Comptroller White says no disquieting news relative to the doings of the half-breeds in the Northwest has been received here.

General Middleton's friends claim that there is nothing in the contention that he has become ineligible to command the militia because of his retirement from Imperial service. The general says he is a major-general in reserve of the Imperial army, and liable for service up to November 4th, 1889. He also holds a commission as major-general in the Canadian militia, and also a warrant as such to convene and commission court-martials.

TORONTO, July 13.—The 12th was celebrated here as never before. The enthusiasm was altogether greater than it ever has been. The streets were lined with people who watched the procession, which was composed of not less than 55 lodges, or not less than 10,000 persons in all, and took an hour to pass a given point. The city was filled with visitors, and all business was suspended. Addresses were delivered on the exhibition grounds by Mayor Clark, H. E. Clark, M. P.P., Goldwin Smith, Rev. Dr. Wild, Galbraith, Sibbald and others.

Daily British Columbian

Monday Evening, July 16, 1888.

The News says in an article yesterday: "Instead of spending our time worrying over the question of duty, it is, we think, likely to be much more profitable to our own people to urge the prompt development of our fishing for the supplying of our markets here and the demand in the territories east of us." When our cotemporary speaks of "developing," we presume he means the sea fisheries, for the river salmon fisheries are pretty well developed already. It is a very pertinent question whether the "time" which our cotemporary grudges "worrying over the question of duty" would not be the best possible investment as a means to the end—"the prompt development of our fisheries"—provided, of course, the "worrying" resulted in the aforesaid "duty" being placed beyond the possibility of "worrying" anybody again.

Our friend of the News endeavors to return to the subject of the effect of duty or no duty upon British Columbia's fishing industries. Like Mr. Pickwick in his Ipswich adventure with a middle-aged lady in yellow curl papers, he appears to have lost his way slightly, and, instead of dealing with the subject proper—viz, the effect of trade restrictions or the reverse between the United States and Canada upon our fishing industries—he essays to draw us into a fruitless and meaningless discussion as to how far east Pacific coast fish would penetrate in the markets of the United States. By his thus dropping the real question, and switching off in the manner we have noticed, onto a trivial side issue, we infer that our cotemporary is now satisfied that he did "slightly misapprehend the situation" in his strictures on the Toronto Mail, and that he is now prepared to admit (which is the real question) that, so far from there being any advantages to British Columbia from the duty now levied, her fishing industries, as a whole, would be considerably benefitted by the removal of these restrictions altogether. If our cotemporary still has any lurking doubts on this subject, we believe we can dispel the last remnant, but from his article of yesterday we infer that this would be an unnecessary task. Should a relapse occur, however, we shall endeavor to have the specific forthcoming.

Those who tell stories about their neighbors should take warning from the following, if they are at all sensitive about being made to father a tale, started by them, after it has been the rounds. Some experiments were made recently by a curious person in the neighboring republic to test the memories and receptive powers of school children. The result, probably, would not have been any more reassuring if adults had been the subject of the test. The sentence, "Your redemption from the distress into which you have fallen is in your own hands, and in nowise depends on forms of government or modes of election," was carefully read to one out of ten selected pupils, who repeated it as exactly as possible to the next scholar, and this one to the third, and so on to the tenth. The tenth pupil wrote down what he received from the ninth. In one case the sentence emerged from this process as, "The redemption of your distress is in your own hands;" in another it was "the invention which has fallen into your own hand;" and the sentence had already dwindled into this at the sixth pupil. In another case the sentence was whispered, instead of distinctly read, and the process of calling on the imagination when the senses give no clear impression is illustrated in the final result, which was, "The attempts into which we have fallen during the government election are very low." Another mutilation of the unfortunate sentence read, "Redemption is in your own hands, and depends on no formal government nor love," and still another, "Our redemption for our destruction has nothing to do with us." A high school pupil, who bids fair to run a government organ some day, distorted the original sentence into, "Your distress into which you have fallen is by no means the fault of government." With the fear of such harrowing results as the foregoing before their eyes, scandal-mongers who are at all sensitive about their reputation will learn to unload into one of Edison's infallible phonographs, which will repeat faithfully only what is told, no matter how many "cranks" may manipulate it.

The proposed exposition in 1892, in which the "three Americas"—North, South, and Central—will participate (should the stupendous conception be carried out) and commemorate the discovery by Christopher Columbus of the New World, is an idea that does credit to its originator. The chairman of the house committee on foreign affairs in Congress has been authorized to report a bill providing for a permanent exposition of the "three Americas," in honor of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America, under the joint auspices of the forty-six states and territories and the sixteen independent nations of the American continent. The bill provides that space for the exposition be assigned, under the direction of the president, in some unoccupied government reservation in Washington, as follows: 1. Space for a permanent state and territorial building for a permanent exhibit of the representative history, resources, arts, and industries of the forty-six states and territories of the United States, to be available whenever the states aud territories, or a majority thereof, shall make the necessary appropriations for the expenses of the building and exhibit. 2. Space for a permanent "three Americas" building for similar permanent exhibit of the fifteen Spanish-American republics, the empire of Brazil, the dominion of Canada, and the various colonies of North, Central and South America, the space to be available whenever such nations and colonies, or a majority thereof, shall make the necessary appropriations for the expenses of building and exhibit. 3. A suitable site for a statue of Christopher Columbus, to be available whenever the necessary funds are provided for the expenses of the proposed statue. Such an exposition as the one suggested above, and carried out on the lines indicated, could not fail of being of immense benefit to all concerned, as well as to the whole civilized world. It is about time, too, that the new world which Columbus bequeathed to posterity should make some amends for its marked injustice to his memory, and propitiate the insulted shade of the heroic navigator by elevating his effigy upon a pedestal.

A Sluggish Liver

Causes the Stomach and Bowels to become disordered, and the whole system to suffer from debility. In all such cases Ayer's Pills give prompt relief.

After much suffering from Liver and Stomach troubles, I have finally been cured by taking Ayer's Cathartic Pills. I always find them prompt and thorough in their action, and their occasional use keeps me in a perfectly healthy condition.—Ralph Weeman, Annapolis, Md.

Twenty-five years ago I suffered from a torpid liver, which was restored to healthy action by taking Ayer's Pills. Since that time I have never been without them. They regulate the bowels, assist digestion, and increase the appetite, more surely than any other medicine.—Paul Churchill, Haverhill, Mass.

INVIGORATED.

I know of no remedy equal to Ayer's Pills for Stomach and Liver disorders. I suffered from a Torpid Liver, and Dyspepsia, for eighteen months. My skin was yellow, and my tongue coated. I had no appetite, suffered from Headache, was pale and emaciated. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills, taken in moderate doses, restored me to perfect health.—Waldo Miles, Oberlin, Ohio.

Ayer's Pills are a superior family medicine. They strengthen and invigorate the digestive organs, create an appetite, and remove the horrible depression and despondency resulting from Liver Complaint. I have used these Pills in my family, for years, and they never fail to give entire satisfaction.—Otto Montgomery, Oshkosh, Wis. tf

ESTABLISHED 1873

THE WEST SHORE

PORTLAND, OREGON

The West Shore is the only illustrated magazine published on the Pacific coast, and aside from its excellent literary features, its object is to convey information, by both pen and pencil, of the great resources of this region, and the progress of their development.

Special illustrated articles appear in each issue; also, several pages of notes of the progress being made in every section. Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Alaska, Utah, California, British Columbia, and the Pacific Northwest in general, are being illustrated. The subscription price is only $2.50. It is not only the cheapest illustrated magazine in the United States, but contains articles and engravings of great interest to every resident of this region, which can not be found in any other publication.

Subscribers for 1888 receive a large supplement every month. The first one is a beautiful oleograph of the "Entrance to the Columbia River," printed in nine colors, and each of the others represents some feature of our sublime scenery. The supplements are alone worth more than the price of the magazine. Try it for 1888, and after reading, send it to your friends elsewhere. You will find it both entertaining and instructive.

171-173 Second St., Portland, Oregon.

RURAL COURTSHIP.

The conversation's given out;
There is an awful pause;
She sits and hems her handkerchief,
He sits and hems and haws.

He gazes on her blushing face,
He gazes on her feet,
Then in a whisper hoarse he says,
"Your sweet enough to eat!"

She blushes at the compliment,
Although she murmurs "bosh;"
He nearer draws his chair and adds,
"Yes, Jane, you are, by gosh!"

The handkerchief drops from her hand,
She stoops and so does he;
Their heads together come. She laughs.
"How awkward, John, you be!"

Her cheek is brushing his, it is;
She does not draw it back;
He looks around and then bestows
On it a rousing smack.

She draws it back, now flaming red—
A sight to look upon—
And says, "You surely never did
Do that on purpose, John!"

"Well, yes, I did," he answers her,
And with a flash of wit
He adds: "I did, and more than that,
I ain't ashamed a bit."

Their chairs are both together now;
Their eyes with joy are bright;
Joe's handkerchief, I'm much afraid,
Will not be hemmed to-night.

STREET PORTERS IN MEXICO.

Their Powerful Muscles and Other Valuable Qualities.

In Madrid, they call street porters, or messengers, mozos de cordel, the latter word referring to the cord they carry for tying up bundles or lashing packages together. We have the same thing here, only we call them cargadores.

They are a class by themselves, wearing brass numbered badges, and strictly honest. They are trusted to any extent, and are most admirable men. They carry enormous loads on their shoulders, and sometimes literally break their hearts by rupture from carrying too heavy loads.

It is a curious thing that a cargador will carry on his shoulders a load he cannot lift with his arms. The load is, of course, first placed there by other men.

I will put a Mexican cargador against a Parker House porter, the best man my friend Beckman can select, and, after the porter has picked out a big trunk, the biggest he can carry, I will wager that the Mexican cargador will tote trunk and porter too!

This does not look as if Mexican beans and tortillas were a bad diet for making muscle.

Trust the licensed cargador to carry your watch to the jeweler's, to bring a bag of silver dollars from the bank, to lead your horse to the stable, to carry your trunk to the station, to move you from one room to another if you are ill, to take your children to school, and to do a good hour's work for all the way from 12 to 25 cents, and then to thank you with a courtesy no New Englander can command.—Correspondence of Boston Herald.

FOUR CURIOUS WAGERS.

Some Old-Time Expressions of the Betting Folly.

Among the most extravagant and most senseless bets ever made was that laid by a fanatic in England, who undertook for a certain sum and within a preposterously short space of time to eat forty-five beefsteaks and drink forty-five pots of strong beer.

It is not recorded whether his enthusiasm came off victorious or died of apoplexy.

Among the wagers which may be ranked in the harmless but foolish category is that of the country gentleman near Shrewsbury, who betted that he had the handsomest leg in the kingdom, and backed his opinion by the stake of a large estate.

He won his wager, and a picture is still extant in the family mansion representing the measuring of the legs of the different competitors.

There is one exceptional bet the futility of which is revealed by its sly humor. It is that of the individual who staked a considerable sum, not on the credulity, but on the caution of mankind. He betted that he would stand for a whole day on London bridge with a tray full of sovereigns fresh from the mint, and be unable to find a purchaser for them at a penny apiece.

There he stood from morn to dewy eve and he did not dispose of one sovereign.

There was a bet decided in 1806 in the Castle Yard, York, between two gentlemen, as to which should succeed in assuming the most singular and original character.

One competitor appeared with his hat, coat and waistcoat profusely adorned with bank notes of various denominations, and a purse of gold in one hand.

His rival was dressed on one side like a fashionable lady, with a silk stocking and slipper, and one-half of his face painted. On the other side he assumed the guise of a male negro, with top boot and spur.

The wise men of York unanimously decided that the gentleman plastered with money had won the wager.—Chicago News.

An Intelligent Jury.

Several lawyers were discussing the jury system yesterday at the recess.

"I can tell you of an instance," said one of them, "illustrating the utter imbecility—you might call it—of the average juror.

"The case was on a promissory note for $2,000. The point which the defendant made was that there was no consideration. There was one of two things upon which the lawyers agreed—the man who gave the note owed it or he didn't owe it. Those were the two propositions. The arguments were made upon them. The jury retired and brought in a verdict for $750. And that is a sample of your average juror."—Chicago Times.

Worthy of Imitation.

In Denmark it is customary for friends to send to the relatives of a person who has died what is called a "Good Works Card," in place of the usual floral tributes. These cards are of white pasteboard, printed in silver, and are issued by various charitable organizations. On each card is the name of the society which issues it; in the centre is an ivy wreath on which the name of the deceased may be written; and at the foot is a space for the name of the sender.

The cards are sold in bookstores for a moderate sum.

Had Lost Her Quiver.

She wanted to take some lessons in archery, but she was very, very verdant.

"Have you a bow and quiver?" asked the teacher.

"Ye—ye—yes," she hesitated, "I have a beau, but I haven't a quiver any more. He's been coming for about two months now, and I'm used to it."—Washington Critic.

Perhaps Personal.

LITERATURE NEAR THE POLE.

How Sailors of Whaling Ships in the Arctic Ocean Get Their Reading Matter.

"What do we do with so many old papers? Send them up to the Arctic Ocean."

It was the proprietor of an outfitting store on Pacific street, and he was answering the inquiry of the reporter as to what he wanted of 5,000 old pictorial and story papers, for which he had advertised.

"To the Arctic Ocean! And what do you do with them there?"

"We send them up to the sailors on whaling vessels. About 300 sailors engaged through us, are up there over half the year, and to each one of these we send at least fifteen papers every season. They are glad to get most anything in the shape of a paper, but most of the men like magazines better than anything else."

"Do you depend entirely on the answers to your advertisements for your stock of papers?"

"No; we go to each one of the newspapers in this city, both weekly and daily, and get back numbers. And then we send to each of the sailors a few of the current issues of the city papers. These papers came here in answer to our advertisement," and he put his hand on a stack three feet high. Some of the numbers dated back eight or nine years.

"Here is another stack of papers," and he pointed to a heap of paper two feet tall, "that is ready to be assorted and done up in bundles, one for each ship."

"These letters, do they also go?" A long box full of yellow envelopes, each with a superscription to somebody on some whaleship, "Arctic Ocean," lay beside the papers.

"Yes, we send each year one letter to each man. Of course they like to know what is going on here, and we write a general account of matters of interest and personal gossip, and whatever we think the men would like to know."

"You don't write a different individual letter to each man, do you?"

"Oh, no. We bunch them as much as possible and make the same letter in duplicate do for several men. These letters are all ready to be sent up next week on the Bear, but it will be about a month before the papers and letters are all fixed up and started off. The men exchange their papers and letters, so that what we send keeps the entire fleet in reading matter through the season."—San Francisco Examiner.

THE NOTE-TAKER IN HONDURAS.

Where the People Seem To Be Destitute of Energy.

I have observed that the people are, for the most part, honest. One finds little downright stealing. They live in one place generation after generation.

They are lazy, and if they have made money enough the first three days of the week to last them for the next four, you may be sure they will do no more work. They work when they must, never when they feel like it. The latter case is unknown.

When they think it about time to stop work, they stop. Our American way of a day's work for a day's pay is something entirely and absolutely new to them. Clocks are unknown, but they tell the time accurately by the sun; and they do have a great deal of sun, as a rule 94 degrees in the huts at noon.

They do not seem to marry; they believe in the doctrine of free love. There are no priests for miles around.

The maxim of these people, and they live up to it, seems to be "manana" (tomorrow). Everything is manana, or, as we would put it in English, "Do not do to-day what you can put off till to-morrow."—San Francisco Chronicle.

SATAN AND THE BISHOP.

A Good Story of a Popular Superstition.

All over the north of Europe the greatest aversion is felt to be the first to enter a new building or go over a newly built bridge. If to do this is not thought everywhere and in all cases to entail death, it is considered supremely unlucky.

Several German legends are connected with this superstition.

The reader, if he has been to Aix-la-Chapelle, has doubtless had the rift in the great door pointed out to him, and has been told how it came there. The devil and the architect made a compact that the first should supply the plans and the second gain the kudos; and the devil's pay was to be the first who crossed the threshold when the church was built.

When the building was nearly complete the architect's conscience smote him, and he confessed the compact to the bishop.

"We'll do him," said the prelate; that is to say, he said something to this effect in terms more appropriate to the century in which he lived and to his high ecclesiastical office.

When the procession formed to enter the building for the consecration, the devil lurked in ambush behind a pillar, and fixed his wicked eyes on a fine, fat and succulent little chorister as his destined prey. But, alas, for his hopes; this fat little boy had been given his instructions, and, as he neared the great door, loosed the chain of a wolf and sent it through.

The evil one uttered a howl of rage, snatched up the wolf and rushed away, giving the door a kick as he passed it that split the solid oak.

His Off Day.

"Don't you find the life of a tramp very disagreeable?"

"Not generally, but I'm very much downcast to-day."

"Really?"

"Yes, I'm a victim of misplaced confidence."

"How's that?"

"Well, I saw a grocer wrap up a box of sardines and lay it on the counter. I grabbed for it and run. I loped about two miles before I opened it, and then I found a cake of soap. I had struck the wrong package. No, life isn't always a bower of roses."—Lincoln Journal.

Unexpected Gratitude.

"I adopted that boy," he said, with the tears running down his face. "I took him out of the workhouse when he was a lad, and I kept and fed him for nine years, and he's paid me back by running off with my wife.

"Gentlemen," he continued, wiping his face, "I'll stand you a bottle of wine. You don't often meet with gratitude in this world, but a kind act is sure to bring its own reward. I've sent him a check for $500."—Gurney Solid Muldoon.

In Expectation.

"I say, Jones, do you know much about Griggs?"

"No, but I shall this afternoon."

"How's that?"

"I lent him $2 yesterday, and he promised to pay it back at 3 o'clock to-day."—Epoch.

Pimples, Boils,

And Carbuncles result from a debilitated, impoverished, or impure condition of the blood. Ayer's Sarsaparilla prevents and cures these eruptions and painful tumors, by removing their cause; the only effectual way of treating them.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has prevented the usual course of Boils, which have pained and distressed me every season for several years.—G. Scales, Plainville, Mich.

I was badly troubled with Pimples on the face; also with a discoloration of the skin, which showed itself in ugly dark patches. No external treatment did more than temporary good. Ayer's Sarsaparilla effected

I was troubled with Boils, and my health was much impaired. I began using Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, in due time, the eruptions all disappeared, and my health was completely restored.—John R. Elkins, Editor Stanley Observer, Albemarle, N. C.

I was troubled, for a long time, with a humor which appeared on my face in ugly Pimples and Blotches. Ayer's Sarsaparilla cured me. I consider it the best blood purifier in the world.—Charles H. Smith, North Craftsbury, Vt.

A HINT WORTH HEEDING. Life loses half its zest when digestion is permanently impaired. Surely then a speedy means of restoring this essential of bodily comfort is worth trying. Every rank, every profession bears its quota of evidence to the beneficent influence upon the stomach, and also upon the liver, bowels and kidneys, of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, or celebrated Blood Purifier. What is the wise course suggested to the sick by this testimony? We leave them to decide.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

For the Skeena.

(Special to the COLUMBIAN.)

VICTORIA, July 16.—C Battery, seventy strong, marched to Esquimalt this morning with band playing and received an ovation from the people. The battery sailed at 1 o'clock this afternoon for the Skeena on the Caroline. Twelve specials accompany them. The steamer Boscowitz, with Supt. Roycraft, sails to-night with supplies and ammunition.

THE EXPEDITION SAILS.

The Cariboo Fly Held Under Charter by the Government at Victoria.

Special to the Columbian.

VICTORIA, July 16.—All arrangements in connection with the Skeena river expedition being completed, H. M. S. Caroline left Esquimalt at 2 o'clock this p.m. for Port Essington with the troops on board. The officers and men belonging to C battery presented a very fine appearance as they marched the streets headed by band. Supt. Roycraft will leave here at 6 o'clock this evening on the Boscowitz in order to secure Indians and canoes along the coast to take the men up the Skeena River. The steamer Cariboo Fly will remain here awaiting orders under government charter.

The Southern Railway.

The first excitement regarding the Southern Railway has subsided and the subject has now got down to a purely business basis. The voices heard against the project after the plans and propositions were first published in the COLUMBIAN have one by one turned in favor of the road, and to-day it would be hard to find a dozen ratepayers who will vote against it. The feeling seems to be that Westminster must have a railroad line independent of the C. P. R., otherwise our position would not be better than it is now. The solicitors of the road, along with the directors, have been busily engaged during the past week drawing up the agreements, etc. The bonus by-law will be placed before the people in a few days.

Brick Blocks.

The Hon. W. Hamley, of Victoria, has decided to build a fine two-story brick block on his lot on Columbia street, now occupied by Messrs. Z. S. Hall, C. J. Robson and Walker & Shadwell. These gentlemen have made arrangements to move into temporary quarters until the new building is completed when they will once again take their old stands. The block, which is to be two storeys high, will have a frontage of 66 feet and will contain 3 stores 21x63 in size. The upper portion of the block will be fitted up for offices. The total cost of the block will be $16,000. Tenders for the erection of the building will be called for in a few days and the stores are to be ready for occupation by Nov. 1st. Another fine block, to take the place of the row of wooden structures from the Maple Leaf saloon to Mr. Dickinson's meat market, is also expected to be built this summer.

Still Another Railway.

Mr. Van Horne's visit to this city on Saturday was for the purpose of showing that the C. P. R. intended building a line from Vancouver, via Westminster, to the boundary line, there to connect with the Seattle Lake Shore and Southern road. Mr. Van Horne read to Mayor Dickinson the agreement between the two companies whereby these arrangements are to be carried out. It was the intention to make the crossing of the river by ferry. As soon as the arbitration concerning the Onderdonk contract is ended Mr. Cambie will begin a survey of the proposed line. Mayor Dickinson asked for a definite proposition from the company to which he would be willing to stick by, but Mr. VanHorne said it was impossible to propose anything definite at present. Should the C. P. R. build the road to the boundary Mr. VanHorne says the company will expect the same bonus that is given to the Southern road.

Toronto Industrial Exhibition.

The exertions to secure the display of a thorough representation of British Columbia's vast mineral wealth, immense agricultural and horticultural resources, and great facilities for developing industries and manufactures of all descriptions, having met—not only with the most encouraging approval from all parts of our province—but also with the highest appreciation on the part of our Ontario brother-colonists it is requested that one and all should come forward to make our British Columbia Court at Toronto an unprecedented success. The attention of intending British Columbia exhibitors is drawn to the following particulars:—All entries to be communicated to Mayor Oppenheimer by letter on or before Wednesday, 15th August, 1888; entries intended to compete for prizes and medals should be made separately; exhibits to be delivered at Vancouver on or before Saturday, 25th August, 1888, with the exception of such as are of a perishable nature which will be received until Saturday, 1st September, 1888; exhibits should be carefully packed, and if addressed or marked, Mayor D. Oppenheimer, Vancouver, B.C., "Toronto Exhibit," will be conveyed free of charge by the railway, steamboat, express and other transport companies. Exhibitors desirous of further information should communicate their wishes to D. Oppenheimer, Vancouver.

W. W. McLellan, Lyn, N. S., writes: "I was afflicted with rheumatism, and had given up all hopes of a cure. By chance I saw Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil recommended. I immediately sent (fifty miles and purchased four bottles, and with only two applications I was able to get around, and although I have not used one bottle, I am nearly well. The other three bottles I gave around to my neighbors, and I have had so many calls for more, that I feel bound to relieve the afflicted by writing to you for a supply?"

Presbyterian S.S. Pic-nic.

The annual pic-nic of the Sabbath school in connection with the Presbyterian church will be held at Ladners on Tuesday 24th inst. A steamer will be chartered to take pic nickers to the Landing where it is expected a very pleasant day will be spent. Mr. W. H. Ladner, M. P. P., has kindly placed a large field at the disposal of the pic-nickers, and promises to furnish sufficient hay for the youngsters to tumble about in. Enquiries were made by the committee as to whether milk could be purchased at the Landing, but they were rather dismayed to learn that the people of Ladners did not sell milk. However, the sorrow was turned to joy when Mr. Ladner added that milk, in any quantity, would be furnished free and if honey was ripe it would also flow gratis.

The Skeena Trouble.

After some delay on the part of the Dominion authorities, Col. Holmes yesterday received instructions from Sir Aldolphe Caron, minister of militia, to get "C" Battery in readiness for an expedition to Skeena river forks, in order to put down the threatened Indian rising in that district. With the exceptions of Capt. Palmer, quartermaster, two staff-sergeants and several men incapacitated for service, the full strength of the battery will proceed to the north. The local government have secured the warship Caroline, Sir Wm. Wiseman, commander, as a transport, and the officers and men will leave on Monday at one o'clock, together with Supt. Roycraft and ten provincial constables for the scene of the disturbance. Supplies and ammunition will be shipped by the Boscowitz on Monday night, some 20,000 pounds of the former and 18,000 rounds of the latter. As the Coroline anchors during the night, the steamer will reach the mouth of the river first. The expedition will be under command of Lieut.-Col. Holmes, commandent of "C" Battery, Major Peters, Staff-Surgeon Duncan, Capt. Benson, Lieut. Ogilvie and Lieut. Gaudet being the officers. The non-commissioned officers and men will number eighty in all. The expedition will proceed to the mouth of the Skeena in military accoutrements, each man being provided with Snider rifle and full kit; officers and men will encase themselves in brown duck suits, for which orders were only given yesterday morning, and which are to be ready in time to be forwarded north. Lieut-Col. Prior has been secured by Col. Holmes for supply manager and his duty will be to look after the purchasing of supplies and providing of transport. Hon. J. H. Turner will also go up with the expedition to look after supplies. Canoes, manned by Indians, will be secured at Port Essington, and the force will be taken up the river as far as the canon, through which it is impossible at present, to take the men. The force will debark here, and this point will be made the base of operations. Half the men will proceed on under Col. Holmes to investigate matters and clear a trail to Hazelton. If armed resistance is met with the advance will fall back and the whole force will be brought up, and if it is a question of fight, the expedition will endeavor to do their best in the matter. Each man will carry his rifle, ammunition, food, and water-proof coat and blankets, about forty pounds in all, as it is impossible to pack by animals, even if a shot is not fired. It is trusted that there will not be a necessity for bloodshed, but the worst is being prepared for, as the Indians in question have always borne a bad reputation, and recent occurrences prove that they are a revengful lot. Every possible necessity is being provided, and in the event of having to hew a road for themselves to Hazelton a large number of axes are being taken. Angus & Gordon, contractors for grocers' supplies, were busy packing up the food for a two months' campaign. In order to facilitate matters after leaving the steamer, each article for a day's rations is put up in a parcel and will be placed in a sack. All that will be necessary to give out the daily fare will be to open the sack. It will take the firm all to-day and to-night to finish their work.—Colonist.

Delta Notes.

Correspondence of the Columbian.

LADNERS, July 14.—The song of the mowing machine is now heard in the land, and "the patient and industrious agriculturalist" is reaping the fruits of his industry in the shape of a bountiful hay harvest. Some rain has fallen during the past two days, which has retarded operations to some extent, but at present there is every indication of fine weather. The season has been an exceedingly wet one, and consequently crops of all kinds are unusually heavy. Building operations have been extremely brisk in this locality since spring opened, and this hitherto comparatively insignificant shipping point is gradually assuming the proportions and appearance of a thriving town. Among other improvements may be mentioned a large addition to his wharf and an extensive warehouse erected by T. McNeeley, and a new general store by G. Hanck; also a new blacksmith shop, a butcher shop, and several dwelling houses. The Burr sawmill has recently changed hands. Messrs. Grant & Kerr are the new proprietors, and they are evidently determined to "run it for all it is worth," as the hum of industry and circular saws can be heard proceeding from their establishment not only throughout the day but well on into the night. Your correspondent understands that it is the intention of the owners of the land adjacent to the landing to have the same laid out as a town site. The work is now in the hands of Messrs. Woods, Turner & Gamble, of Westminster, who will doubtless soon have a map of the site prepared, when town lots in Ladners will be on the market and an opportunity afforded for safe and profitable investment. The projectors of the late proposed by-law to borrow $3,500, which was defeated, propose now to bring in another for a larger amount—about $8,000. Presumably the extra amount is to be spent in the disaffected localities in order to convince the voters in said localities of the advisability of raising a loan, and thereby enable the promoters to carry out their pet schemes. In order to secure a controlling vote in one of the wards a quarter section of government land in the eastern portion of the municipality was lately purchased and apportioned out among eighteen of the faithful residents in other wards. Assuredly we have in our midst embryo Beaconsfields and infantile Gladstones who only require a wider field and greater interests at stake to develop their strategic ability as political leaders into something wonderful. A new saloon now flourishes in the neighborhood, of which L. Guichon is the proprietor, his license being obtained at a sitting of the licensing court here a short time ago. The Delta Agricultural Association hold their first exhibition here on the 2nd of October next. The run of salmon has been very light up to date and the canneries have not been kept busy. It is thought, however, that next week the sockeyes will make their appearance in greater numbers.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Westminster-Southern.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—As one that is interested in the true welfare of Westminster city and district, I beg leave to say a few words with regard to the Southern Railway scheme. I don't consider it of any use to spend time propounding any other terms than what have been laid down by the parties who have been entrusted with the project. They have been working at it some time and no doubt have done all they could to obtain conditions that would be acceptable to the people of Westminster. It rests with the ratepayers of Westminster to say whether they will indorse the proposition that has been made by the Southern Railway Company. To attempt to tinker the bargain would be an endless job, for no doubt every one in the royal city would have a new and different scheme to propound. It takes two to make a bargain and it is folly for any man to say, you must come to my ideas or no bargain. No doubt every one concerned would like to see the road built and also the bridge, but the man must be a simpleton who can imagine that we can have both for $150,000. No bridge, for all purposes, can be built for less than five or six hundred thousand dollars. If we can get southern connection by railway for $150,000 and a good ferry service for carrying cars over the river in the the meantime, it is all we can expect for the present. We had better secure the road while we can, and no doubt the provincial government will help to build the bridge: it has been very liberal in other less important projects and consistency will direct our public men in this case also. The C. P. R. Co. would no doubt like to control this Southern road, but they have not made any proposition which would indicate business, and we dont want to wait for ever—time is precious in this age of the world. J. KENNEDY.

The Southern Railway.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—I am glad that Mr. Lord has given us his views with respect to the Southern Railway. I believe him to be a gentleman of honest purpose, and a cautious and correct thinker, and especially so on municipal questions. The long persevering "get all" principle of the C.P.R. has caused an experience so painful to the Dominion tax-payers, that it seems impossible for them easily to forget it. And there is generally such an unity of design, intrigue and action in all railroad corporations that we need be doubly on the alert. While I have no doubt that a large majority of our progressive citizens are willing to do, as far as they can, what is proper and equitable, I think they will be specially guarded against rushing hastily into any agreement that does not give them certain present and prospective value received.

It appears to me that there are three parties that are or ought to be equally interested in this Southern Railway question: 1, The farmers; 2, the citizens of this city; and 3, the provincial government. The farmers especially ought to be consulted, as they have not heretofore been treated with that consideration that was due them; but to my certain knowledge they have been much estranged by various causes, and as a consequence much trade has been taken elsewhere. I hope that from this time on, the farmers throughout the district will be made feel that this city means to treat them as brothers of one common family. This is a vital question with respect to our future material and enduring prosperity. In proof of our sincerity give them a weekly market where they may directly sell to the consumer; and a good, convenient, and thoroughly equipped ferry. This would be a practical recognition of the relations we sustain to them, and of the obligations we are under to them, and would have a tendency to bind them to the city they have so much aided in building up.

The contemplated road would also aid materially the provincial government, and as it has aided other roads, it ought in justice and equity to aid the Southern. I think all parties to be benefitted by the road ought to be consulted, and if approved, requested to aid.

I hope other citizens will follow the example so admirably set by Mr. Lord.

I offer the above views as a small contribution additional to Mr. Lord's.

Yours truly, WM. KENT.

Fagged Out.—None but those who have become fagged out, know what a depressed, miserable feeling it is. All strength is gone, and despondency has taken hold of the sufferers. They feel as though there is nothing to live for. There, however, is a cure—one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will do wonders in restoring health and strength. Mandrake and Dandelion are two of the articles entering into the composition of Parmelee's Pills.
