NOTES AND COMMENTS.

And now it is Mexico that wheels into line with the civilized nations by increasing her army. We are not told whose coat-tail she means to tramp on, but she is getting "on a war footing", and somebody will have to look out for squalls. Probably the unfortunate King of the Sandwich Islands, who has been forced to reduce his "standing army" to sixty-five men and a brass band.

The Colonist prints a paragraph descriptive of the vile dens in which Chinese prepare for market the oysters and shrimps hawked through the streets of Victoria. It must be very nauseous reading for those who eat oysters; but what can a man who eats oysters in August expect? It would be interesting to know, however, why the paragraph was printed. Is there a little "corner" around anywhere?

The "Town Major" of the Times is a "comical cuss," and no mistake. He manages to keep up a "tempest in a teapot" most of the time. The gallant "Major" has just acknowledged publicly that "he takes a great deal of whisky in his water." This probably accounts for the Major's style. He gets off a pretty good one though on some Victoria papers when he says: "Some sheets, which require mangling, have letters from Paris or London * * * Parisian letters wrote in Victoria are very interesting." So they are, Major, but not more so than the last sentence quoted.

Those who regard our Governor-General as merely ornamental, will probably be surprised to know that Lord Lansdowne was regarded by officials as a "demon for detail." He wanted to know, you know, and was not ready to put his signature wherever an honorable or right honorable left a blank for it. To have an outsider of standing and ability at the head of affairs, even if his power to direct is somewhat limited, is by no means a bad thing the people is scarcely strong enough to make itself heard amid the clamors of those who have axes to grind.

The Leary or Joggins log raft has escaped the perils of the sea and reached New York in safety. It is stated that there will result a profit of $21,000 from the enterprise. The success of the venture will naturally lead to further attempts of the same kind, but already hostility to this method of shipping logs is being aroused, both in Canada and the United States. In Nova Scotia it is said that the shipment by the Leary raft deprived forty-four Canadian schooners of a load, and in New York it is urged that the passage of these monster rafts will be a constant menace to the navigation of the high seas, as disaster is sure to overtake some of them, and the floating about of sections of such masses of timber would prove a serious danger to ocean steamships.

If Dr. Wild is correct about the millennium being due half a century or so from this writing, it is plainly time that newspapers began to look forward to the new order of things. It would take half a century good, for the ordinary paper to get itself tuned up to proper tone. Just suppose that the so-called christian nations came within a whole century—to say nothing of half a one—of deserving their title, what on earth would the papers do for news? Imagine the great European nations living in the security of assured peace—the people of the Great Republic unanimously deciding to make the best man president, and then vying with each other in carrying out his orders—imagine social hypocrisies and social shams utterly discredited—social vices diminishing rapidly to the vanishing point, and banned by the contempt and detestation of the majority—imagine in fact, the shady side of life put completely into the background, and such a reversal of the prevailing order of things that we would be compelled to revise the hackneyed quotation and write and say what the newspaper men—and the men who make the telegrams—would do for news! Our craft is in danger. This Wild person must be suppressed. To the block with him! Great is the liberty of the press!

"Now man's humanity to man

Why go limping and whining about your corns, when a 25 cent bottle of Holloway's Corn Cure will remove them? Give it a trial, and you will not regret it.

LAST NIGHT'S DESPATCHES.

PRESS OPINIONS.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The News, commenting upon the rejection of the international fisheries treaty by the United States senate, says: "It is another example of the evils which the disunionists are bringing upon their country."

The Chronicle says: "This unworthy attempt to make party capital out of a question which might involve the two countries in war is more likely to endear the Republican party to the majority of native-born Americans."

The Pall Mall Gazette, referring to the rejection of the fisheries treaty, says it is thankful that Mr. Chamberlain's mission has not made the difficulty more serious than it was before. Senator Morgan's speech, it says, was buncombe. The rejection of the treaty was simply to relegate the whole question to an amicable settlement after the presidential election. The paper continues: "Neither Englishmen nor Americans are lunatics, and the world will not be plunged into a bath of blood because opinions differ over a kettle of fish. The matter will be again negotiated after the election, and in the meantime we can cultivate an India-rubberlike forbearance and a cool temper."

The St. James Gazette says that the modus vivendi will be continued for two years and then matters will assume a different complexion.

The Standard says that the people of England will feel no diminished friendship for Americans because of the rejection of the fishery treaty, but the action of the senate places the United States and Canada in a position in which it is easy for them to quarrel.

HIGHLY HONORED.

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—The Deutsche Kolomal Zeitung announces that General Matthews, an Englishman commanding the Zanzibar troops, has been awarded the second class decoration of the German order of the crown. This creates surprise in Berlin because it has always been supposed that General Matthews was hostile to German interests.

TO-DAY'S DESPATCHES

AFGHAN RISING A FIASCO.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—A dispatch from India says: The Afghan rising has proved a fiasco. The troops turned against Ishak Khan and declared in favor of the ameer. The ameer's authority has been firmly established in Turkistan.

SINKING FAST.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The Vienna correspondent of the News says he has heard from Munich that King Otto of Bavaria is sinking fast, his fits of insanity having become much more frequent.

THE JURY DISAGREE.

REDWOOD CITY, Cala., Aug. 23.—The jury in the second trial of Dr. L. A. Powell, who murdered Editor Ralph Smith, has been out since five o'clock yesterday afternoon. There appears to be no prospect of an agreement.

NEW CASES.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 23.—Nine new cases of yellow fever have been developed in the last twenty-four hours. No deaths.

HARD ON THE OPIUM SMUGGLERS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—The Chronicle says editorially this morning: "Justice, though somewhat leaden-footed, appears to have been speedy enough to overtake E. A. Gardner, one of the principals in the Puget Sound opium smuggling ring, as he was apprehended in Chicago on Friday last with a large quantity of the smuggled drug in his possession. Being taken red handed he will not find it easy to escape this time, and his conviction will be a step towards breaking up the ring which has thus far defied the law; but his capture and conviction will not be enough so long as the master spirit of the infamous combination, Herbert F. Beecher, is at large, and more especially so long as he holds the position under the treasury department of the United States.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION.

PORTLAND, Wis., Aug 23.—Shortly after 12 o'clock last night a fire broke out in the paper mill of Geo. Whitting, situated on an island between here and Maunasha. A large crowd soon gathered around the burning mill, which was rapidly enveloped in flames. The boilers of the mill suddenly exploded, throwing out the walls and filling the air with bricks and timbers. Eighteen of the spectators were instantly killed, while a large number of others severely injured, many of whom will die. The fire started from shavings in the engine room. After the roof fell the firemen turned the hose upon an immense revolving iron bleacher, filled with straw and rags, which was superheated. An explosion quickly followed. The bleacher was carried 200 feet across a tramway, where most of the people were standing, mowing them down like grass. It passed about as high as man's head and most of those killed and injured were struck on the head by it. Seven of the killed were coopers by trade, and all leave large families in poor circumstances. They will be buried at the city's expense, probably altogether, next Sunday. The mayor has appealed to citizens for aid for the destitute families. A coroner's jury has been impaneled, and will investigate the catastrophe.

GARRETT NO WORSE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The rumo that Robert Garrett has been remove to an insane asylum, and was ver much worse, is denied. He is said t be in about the same condition as fo the past few days.

NAVAL REINFORCEMENT.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—Admiral Krant has given orders for the equipment o eight ironclads to reinforce the Frenc squadron in the Mediterranean.

A BRIEF PLATFORM.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 23.—The Republican state convention last night, afte nominating a complete state ticke headed by W. D. Hoard, for governor adopted a very brief platform. I endorses Harrison and Morton an praises Governor Rusk for his abl administration, but makes no mentio of the tariff liquor problem or othe prominent issues.

A BIG N.P. DEAL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The Northern Pacific R.R. has completed the sale o about $5,000,000 worth of its securities. The available balance of th third mortgage bonds and nearly $3,000,000 of branch line bonds make the total sum. The price and particulars of the branch line bonds were not made known by the officers of the company to-day. The sale is to the German syndicate, headed by Henry Villard. The bonds will go to Europe where the bulk of the third mortgage is already held. The transaction is said to extinguish the floating debt of the company, leaving something less than $2,000,000 in the treasury to be expended in improvements. In addition to the sale of the bonds it is learned that an independent company, with a capital of $3,000,000, will be formed for the explicit purpose of supplying the railroad with an equipment. Over two-thirds of capital has been subscribed and the success of the scheme is assured so far. Large orders for engines and cars have been placed. The equipment company is composed of large stockholders and directors of the Northern Pacific, but is an entirely separate organization. The railroad will not be bound for anything beyond the rental of the equipment furnished to it.

LUCKY BALLOONISTS.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—An aeronaut and three companions who had ascended in a balloon from Antwerp on Monday, were found floating in the channel yesterday p. m., half-drowned, and were picked up by an ironclad warrior.

U. S. SENATE NOTES.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Stewart offered a resolution in the senate to-day, calling on the secretary of the interior which the commissioner of the general land office based his letter to Burns, of the house of representatives, on the subject of timber depredations. It went over till to-morrow, Stewart stating that he would then submit a few remarks.

CONGRESS NOTES.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—On motion of Smith, of Arizona, a bill was passed in the house granting the Tidal Land and Water Co. right of way through Fort Lowell military reservation, Arizona. Dubois, of Idaho, offered a resolution discharging the committee on judiciary from further consideration of the resolution calling on the attorney-general for a list of pardons granted by the president to persons convicted of unlawful cohabitation in Utah and Idaho. This went over until tomorrow. The house resumed the consideration of the conference report on the army appropriation bill.

PARTICULARS OF THE COLLISION.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—The list of those lost in yesterday's collision between the ocean steamers Oceanic and City of Chester still numbers 13, and from all indications it is not likely that it will be increased. Whitelaw, the wrecker, is at work to-day endeavoring to bring to the surface, if possible, whatever remains of the Chester, but as the steamer is submerged at such a great depth of water, and was so badly shattered by the explosion of her boilers as she went down, it is not believed that much can be saved. There is some conflict between the U. S. inspector of hulls and boilers and the local inspectors as to who has authority to conduct the examination into the disaster, as the Oceanic is a British vessel, and the Chester was a U. S. vessel. The local inspectors, however, will immediately examine the Oceanic's officers so as to allow her to get away again, after which the Chester's officers will be examined. In the meantime communication will be had with Washington as to what shall be done in the matter.

AS PARMELEE'S VEGETABLE PILLS contain Mandrake and Dandelion, they cure Liver and Kidney Complaints with unerring certainty. They also contain Roots and Herbs which have specific virtues truly wonderful in their action on the stomach and bowels. Mr. E. A. Cairncross, Shakespeare, writes: "I consider Parmelee's Pills an excellent remedy for Biliousness and Derangement of the Liver, having used them myself for some time."

Cycles of various sorts—tri-, bi-, and multi-, as adjuncts to military movements, were experimented with at Wimbleton this year. The multicycle might prove a useful aid to skirmishers if people would only consent to fight on ground suited to its use; but that is rather a large "if".

A. D. Noyes, Newark, Mich., writes: "I have enquired at the drug stores for Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, but have failed to find it. We brought a bottle with us from Quebec, but it is nearly gone and we do not want to be without it, as my wife is troubled with a pain in the shoulder, and nothing else gives relief. Can you send us some?"

Daily British Columbian

Thursday Evening, Aug. 23, 1888.

Great and increasing interest is being manifested by our cousins in the neighboring republic with respect to the North Pacific coast sea fisheries. As a consequence of the two or three pioneer fishing schooners from Gloucester, Mass., which came out to test the fishing grounds about Puget Sound and vicinity, with such satisfactory results, it is stated that Port Townsend is about to become the centre of a fishing industry and interior export trade that has but few parallels elsewhere. An American paper says that all Yankeedom has been infected with the fishing fever on account of the phenominal success of the pioneer schooners, and two hundred schooners are reported to be getting ready to at once come to this coast, their first objective point being Port Townsend. It is stated that this immigration will include five thousand families. Port Townsend, accordingly, is not merely going to boom; it is expected that the ambitious port of entry will literally "hum." The whole of Pugot Sound cannot fail to be benefitted by this impetus to the fishing industry, and with our prospective close connection with the cities of the Sound, their prosperity cannot be a matter of indifference to us. The Portland press calls attention to the fact that there are good fishing grounds for deep sea fishing just outside of the Columbia bar, and urges the people of Portland to take an active hand in this enterprise. The American fish commission steamer Albatross is making a scientific and test survey this season of the North Pacific American waters, and everything is being done by our neighbors to take advantage of the lavish sea wealth at their doors. What is being done in this connection with regard to British Columbia's undoubtedly rich sea farm? Nothing. The Dominion authorities have indefinitely postponed action in the matter.

The Montreal Witness, a most valuable general newspaper, gives some very useful information to farmers with regard to forage for cattle, especially for milch cows. It quotes from the Prairie Farmer to the effect that "silos and ensilage are to nearly all kinds of domestic animals what cans and bottles, and the vast amount of fruits, meats and vegetables are to the family of the well-to-do householder." When ensilage was first introduced the silos were filled with the green corn as quickly as possible, tramping and packing it solidly, and was weighted down with planks and stones: but it the better way is to fill the silo four or five feet at a time, and wait two or three days until the temperature rises to 130 or 140 degrees, then fill again and so on until the silo is full. When the last day's filling has been heated as before, it is covered with tarred paper, well lapped, and over this is placed rough inch lumber to exclude the air, and the whole is weighted down with sawdust or moist clay. Of course, farmers in B. C. wishing to save green crops in this way should procure the latest and most approved style of building silos and storing therein. Mr. B. S. Hoxie, of Rock county, Wisconsin, writes: "I believe there is no one factor of farm economy of more importance than this, and the dairyman without a silo to preserve his fodder is laboring to great disadvantage. That good ensilage is a proper food for all farm animals is a well established fact, and those who have used it find that double the quantity of stock can be kept on the farm by this new system of feeding; for winter dairying it is invaluable." The district of Westminster is so well adapted to dairying that the farmers should at once set about to preserve their green crops suitable for ensilage in this way. Corn seems to be the favorite crop for ensilage; it does not require to be ripened for that purpose, so that B. C. is a suitable climate to raise it in abundance for that use. The farmers of the Fraser valley can well afford to let the higher altitudes in this province and the Northwest territories raise the wheat, and devote their energies to butter, cheese, stock, and fruit raising, for which the soil and climate are so well adapted. Any system like this, which will enable the farmer to keep double the number of cattle, will also enable him to manure double the quantity of land, and the poorest high lands in B. C., well manured, will produce the best fruits, corn, and other things in abundance. In a future issue we will give a number of extracts from various practical authorities on the subject of building silos for curing green forage for winter use, which will enable any intelligent farmer to try the experiment on a small scale at first. We are satisfied that ensilage will in British Columbia be adopted as a winter feed for cattle in the near future; it has so many advantages in a climate like this; it would be a saving of labor to begin with, and also a very great means of enriching the farmer.

Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is pleasant to take; sure and effectual in destroying worms. Many have tried it with best results.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

In a world and in an age where there is so much that is palpably hollow, so much that is mere sham, in all departments of life and society, not excepting the churches, it is refreshing to come across such sterling utterances as the following, which bear on their very face the seal royal of spirit and of truth, and go crashing through the maimed and stilted ranks of affectation, hypocrisy, and religious superstition with all the scattering and detergent influences of a thunder storm on a sultry day in midsummer. Such expressions, by whoever uttered, can stand unchallenged on their own intrinsic merits, without the added weight of authority, however illustrious. They were delivered recently by Ven. Archdeacon Farrar, who, in the course of a sermon preached in Westminster Abbey, and in anticipation of the Lambeth Conference then about to sit, spoke thus:

"Perish the hand which would circumscribe by one hair's breadth the limits or the definition of the Church of Christ; perish the arms that would exclude from that one flock of the Good Shepherd the 'other sheep which are not of this fold'; perish the narrow superstition that the wind of God, which 'bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof but canst not tell whence it cometh or whither it goeth,' can only be conveyed by mechanical transmissions. I, for one at any rate, refuse to flatter the priestly pride which would sectarianize the Catholicity of the Church of Christ. The articles which I accepted at my ordination taught me that the visible Church of Christ is a congregation of faithful men wherein the pure word of God is preached and the sacraments duly administered, and I, for one, even if I were to stand alone, would repudiate and protest against the un-Catholic teaching which would pretend to do what it cannot do by unchurching those who love the Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity and truth. When I speak of the church in general I do not mean this or that communion, under this or that organization, but I mean, in their ten thousand times ten thousand and thousands of thousands, the whole multitude of the saints of God. What! Are we not to claim as full and honored members of the Church of Christ in every possibly true sense of that word, because they were Moravians, those holy missionaries who planted successfully

Sweet Sharon's Rose
On icy plains or in eternal snows?

Or Williams, the Apostle of Polynesia and the martyr of Erromanga, because he was a dissenter? Dr. Carey and others in India, because they were Baptists? Or Elizabeth Fry because she was a Quakeress? We must not be thinking that God is mainly or chiefly for outward organization, their views of Christ are not such as I learn from Him who made keeping the Commandments the essential of entering into the Kingdom of heaven. I say with Whitefield: 'Do they profess repentance towards God and faith in our Lord Jesus Christ? If so, they are my brethren.' True and unswervingly loyal in my love for the Church of England, yet I would stand bare-headed before any true saint of God, be he Romanist or Independent, or Quaker or Presbyterian, so be be a saint of God, desiring ten thousandfold more that I may stand with him before the throne of Christ rather than with those who, though they may have had 'Lord, Lord,' or 'the Church, the Church,' forever on their lips, and have spent their lives in the endless round of outward ordinances may yet, if their lives have been unloving and unworthy, hear those awful words, 'Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites,' and 'Depart from me, I never knew you.' For it is Christ, and Christ alone, and not episcopal government, or apostolical succession, or ancient ritual, or the orthodoxy of curiously articulated creeds; it is Christ, and Christ only, and the innocence which shines in the lives of them that truly believe in him, which has been the strength of Christianity."

A Creaking Hinge

Is dry and turns hard, until oil is applied, after which it moves easily. When the joints, or hinges, of the body are stiffened and inflamed by Rheumatism, they cannot be moved without causing the most excruciating pains. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by its action on the blood, relieves this condition, and restores the joints to good working order.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has effected, in our city, many most remarkable cures, in cases which baffled the efforts of the most experienced physicians. Were it necessary, I could give the names of many individuals who have been cured by taking this medicine. In my case it has worked wonders, relieving me of after being troubled with it for years. In this, and all other diseases arising from impure blood, there is no remedy with which I am acquainted, that affords such relief as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.—R. H. Lawrence, M. D., Baltimore, Md.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla cured me of Gout and Rheumatism, when nothing else would. It has eradicated every trace of disease from my system.—R. H. Short, Manager Hotel Belmont, Lowell, Mass.

I was, during many months, a sufferer from chronic Rheumatism. The disease afflicted me grievously, in spite of all the remedies I could find, until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took several bottles of this preparation, and was speedily restored to health.—J. Fream, Independence, Va. ††

THE WEST SHORE

PORTLAND, OREGON

The West Shore is the only illustrated magazine published on the Pacific coast, and aside from its excellent literary features, its object is to convey information, by both pen and pencil, of the great resources of this region, and the progress of their development.

Special illustrated articles appear in each issue; also, several pages of notes of the progress being made in every section. Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Alaska, Utah, California, British Columbia, and the Pacific Northwest in general, are being illustrated. The subscription price is only $2.50. It is not only the cheapest illustrated magazine in the United States, but contains articles and engravings of great interest to every resident of this region, which can not be found in any other publication.

Subscribers for 1888 receive a large supplement every month. The first one is a beautiful oleograph of the "Entrance to the Columbia River," printed in nine colors, and each of the others represents some feature of our sublime scenery. The supplements are alone worth more than the price of the magazine. Try it for 1888, and after reading, send it to your friends elsewhere. You will find it both entertaining and instructive.

FALSE NOSES IN THE PUNJAB.

Restoring the Facial Promontory—An Ingenious Operation.

A correspondent of the Allahabad Pioneer gives an account of the Kangairas, a people who have long enjoyed a reputation as nosemakers. They live chiefly in Kangra, a small hill canton in the Punjab. Although there are but fourteen families remaining, out of which only two individuals are practical nosemakers, their reputation still remains.

People come to them from the remotest parts of the Punjab, and even Afghanistan, actuated by the sole desire of having their facial promontory repaired or renewed. The Kangra nosemakers consider their art as one specially granted to them by the great Bajreshivn Devi of the place. They therefore perform the operation in strict secresy. The writer says:

"It was only with great difficulty that I procured the following information respecting the modus operandi of this plastic operation for restoring the nose from an old bald and habitual opium eater. The old bald was a kind of a family doctor or professor of medicine to one of the nosemakers, and in this capacity had more than once witnessed the operation of nose restoration. He therefore considered himself in possession of the secret, if secret it is. His narrative ran thus:

"'After drugging their patient with some narcotic, the Kangairas forthwith proceed to paint the forehead with a medicated lotion as a preliminary step. On asking the composition of this lotion, the only answer vouchsafed was a grave shake of the head.

"'The next step is to cut a piece of leather to the shape and size of the required nose. This being done, it is placed on the forehead and used to mark out the lines of incision. Then they beat the forehead with an old slipper until the part marked out becomes swollen and prominent.

"'Zinc tubes, with a plate between them to serve the purpose of septum nasi, are then lodged in the nostrils. The next proceeding is to dissect a flap of the swollen flesh with a razor, leaving the lower part attached to the forehead. In doing this they take a vein with the flap, the name and position of which is a profound secret, known only to himself and the nosemakers. The success of the operation depends entirely on the preservation and careful dissection of this secret vein.

"'The next step was to turn up the flap with the secret vein a particular way over the tubes.

"'This being accomplished, the other parts of the nose are pared and fastened to it with silk ligature, and the whole thing is brought to an end by the application of a special ointment. For several days, until the wound is healed, the patient must keep a recumbent position.

"'On union taking place the piece which was left attached to the forehead is severed, and the patient comes forth with a new-born nose. I ought to have mentioned that the removal of the zinc tube is effected as soon as convenient.'."

A LUMINOUS TREE.

It Gives Light enough To Read by.

A most remarkable tree or shrub said to grow in a small gulch near some springs about twelve miles north of Tuscarorast, is about six or seven feet in height, with a trunk which, at its base, is three times the size of a man's wrist.

It has innumerable branches and twigs, and resembles somewhat the barberry tree. Its foliage at certain seasons of the year is so luminous that it can be plainly distinguished in the darkest night for a distance of more than a mile, while in its immediate vicinity it emits sufficient light to enable a person to read the finest print. Its foliage is extremely rank, and its leaves resemble somewhat, in size, shape and color, those of the aromatic baytree of California.

The luminous property is evidently parasitic, and consists of a sort of gummy substance, which, upon being transferred by rubbing to a person's hand, imparts to it the same apparently phosphorescent light, while that on the leaf entirely disappears.

AN ELECTRIC FISH TRAP.

The Promise of Deep-Sea Fishing without the Necessity of Bait.

It has long been known that fish, like birds and insects, are attracted by and will swarm around any source of illumination. Birds are killed in thousands by flying against the thick glass which protects lighthouse lanterns, and various insects are caught with the help of a light.

The difficulty of maintaining a subaqueous light has hitherto prevented the application of the same principle to fishing. But now that we have at command an electric illuminant which is quite independent of oxygen, and which will therefore give light in a closed chamber, the difficulty is at an end.

With lamps arranged for the purpose, the United States steamship Albatross has been catching multitudes of the finny tribes, the lamps being inclosed in wire netting to obviate risks of breakage.

It is curious to note that if this method of fishing is found to be advantageous enough to become common, it will have a distinct bearing upon the disputes which have arisen between the American and Canadian fisher folk, for the former will have no longer any need of troubling the latter for bait.—Chambers's Journal.

He Wrote His Prayers.

There is a story illustrating the Rev. Simon Peter Richardson's brightness of mind.

On one occasion the venerable preacher was in company with several other divines, among them the Rev. Sam Jones. Uncle Simon Peter was on the programme for a prayer, and, preparing to leave the group, said: "You must excuse me, I have got to go and write my prayer."

"What! Uncle Rich, you don't mean to say you write your prayers?" exclaimed Mr. Jones.

"Certainly I do," said the good old man, "I write my sermons yet, and you don't think I'd write what I've got to say to men and not write what Ive got to say to God Almighty, do you?"—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

Mother's Darling.

Says one of Atlanta's most lovable young men:

"I find more real pleasure in a quiet, intellectual conversation with my mother than in the society of any young lady that I ever saw."

Now such a boy as that is worth winding, and when won worth keeping.

A Pertinent Question.

Woman (to tramp)—"I can't give you anythin' to eat jest now, but I've got some pies in the oven, an' if you want to saw wood till they're done, I'll give you a piece."

Tramp—"How near are the pies done, ma'am?"—New York Sun.

INDIAN LIFE IN ALASKA.

Their Huts, Mode of Cooking, Simple Meals and Practice of Half-Baking Themselves.

The Indians of Alaska spend their winters in the mountains. They are generally found in villages consisting of from two to a dozen houses.

The winter house of these people consists of a hemispherically shaped hut, made by bending willow saplings or cutting spruce to the desired shape. The framework is covered with brush, and over this dried moss and turf to the depth of a foot or more. There is an ice window on either side of the entrance. In the roof is a hole just over the fireplace for the smoke.

Inside the centre of the hut is used as a fireplace, the fire being made the same as in the open air! At the back of the hut is a meat-stand, upon which several hundred pounds of deer-meat are kept, so that a quantity will be on hand sufficiently thawed for use. Upon entering a hut when traveling, some of this partially thawed meat is always offered to the newcomer.

The floor of the hut is covered with brush, upon which they sit during the day, and spread skins to sleep upon at night.

Meat is cooked but once a day. About five p. m. a large fire is started and the pots are put on. These are the ordinary kettles of civilization, which they get in trade, or, in their absence, pots made of native clay are used. The cooking is done by the women, who taste the meat from the moment it is put on the fire until cooked.

The remainder of the fire is then thrown out through the hole in the roof by the young men, and as soon as the hut is clear of smoke, the flap that covers the chimney-hole is hauled over for the night. The hunters usually return about this time of the day, and upon entering the hut take off most of their clothes.

After eating pounds of the deer meat, alternating the cooked with raw meat, and drinking quantities of the soup, they smoke a pipe and all hands go to sleep.

All the household are fond of stripping and baking themselves before the fire, particularly the old people, who go so close as to almost blister themselves. They say the heat makes them young and drives away their pains.

HE BISHOP'S FALSE TEETH.

Declared by an African Convert To Be the Wonder of the World.

Many a good story has been told about the consternation and dismay produced by the sound of the Scotch bagpipes on uninitiated ears. They are said to have put to flight foes for whom a bayonet charge would have had no terrors. But the story told by Bishop Taylor in Asbury Church last evening about the effect which his movable teeth produced among the blacks in Africa seems to cast all the other yarns of this kind into the shade.

Somehow his black brethren came to know that the good bishop had false teeth, and one of them gently and tremulously broke the subject to him in conversation one day.

Not wishing to be suspected of witchcraft, the bishop told the children of the sunny South that in big America where he came from, when a man lost a leg, he could go and get a new one made. When his hair fell off he could buy a fresh supply, and so with teeth; when they dropped out or were pulled they could be replaced.

"Then," said the bishop, "I drew out my beautiful, white, clean porcelain set, and when they saw that you ought to have seen those darkies run and scream and gesticulate. One woman declared she had seen the wonder of the world, and was now content to die in peace."—Buffalo Courier.

GREAT FEATS OF MEMORY.

Sermons and Essays Repeated Verbatim after Being Heard but Once.

Idiots have been known whose memory for names and words was so retentive that they could repeat a sermon verbatim and indicate where the preacher blew his nose and coughed while delivering it.

Cardinal Mezzofanti, the linguist, who is said to have known a hundred languages, declared that he never forgot a word he had once learned.

To a friend who congratulated Leyden on his remarkable memory he replied that he often found it a source of great inconvenience. On the friend expressing surprise he exclaimed that he had often wished to recollect a particular expression in something he had read, but could not do it until he had repeated the whole passage from the beginning to the expression he desired to recall.

An English clergyman mentions a man who could remember the day of the burial of every person who had died in the parish during thirty-five years, and could also repeat the name and age of each deceased person, and the names of mourners at his funeral. But so weak was he intellectually that he could not be trusted to feed himself.

Dr. Moffat, the distinguished African missionary and father-in-law of Dr. Livingstone, once preached a long sermon to a crowd of negroes. Shortly after he had finished he saw a number of negroes gathered about a simple-minded young savage. He went to them and discovered that the savage was preaching his sermon over again. Not only was he reproducing the precise words, but imitating the manner and gestures of the white preacher.—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Endearing Familiarity.

A teacher in one of the public schools says that it is sometimes extremely difficult to obtain from young children the names of their parents.

In one instance a little boy was asked what his father's name was and gave the surname. He was asked what the rest of his father's name was and said he did not know.

"Well," said the teacher, "what does your mother call him?"

The boy promptly replied: "She sometimes calls him an old crank."—Albany Journal.

Cruel Injustice.

A little girl who made too much noise in the early morning in her sick mother's room was put out into the hall, and soon after a miserable old rag doll, of which she was very fond, was tossed out to her.

This was the "straw" that did it.

Snatching up her beloved, and hugging it tightly in her arms with streaming eyes, she sobbed out to her grandma: "I wouldn't a tared, but what had Judy done."

Two old friends met. "Let me see," said one, "it must be two years since I saw you last, John. You were going into a jewelry store to buy a diamond ring."

"Yes, I remember."

"And where are you going now?"

"I'm going into a grocery store to buy a codfish."

"It Saved My Life"

Is a common expression, often heard from those who have realized, by personal use, the curative powers of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. "I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died from lung troubles.—E. Bragdon, Palestine, Tex.

About six months ago I had a severe Hemorrhage of the Lungs, brought on by a distressing Cough, which deprived me of sleep and rest. I had used various cough balsams and expectorants, without obtaining relief. A friend advised me to try

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

I did so, and am happy to say that it helped me at once. By continued use this medicine cured my cough, and, I am satisfied, saved my life.—Mrs. E. Coburn, 18 Second st., Lowell, Mass.

I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for over a year, and sincerely believe I should have been in my grave, had it not been for this medicine. It has cured me of a dangerous affection of the lungs, for which I had almost despaired of ever finding a remedy.—D. A. McMullen, Windsor, Province of Ontario.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved my life. Two years ago I took a very severe Cold which settled on my lungs. I consulted physicians, and took the remedies they prescribed, but failed to obtain relief until I began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Two bottles of this medicine completely restored my health.—Lizzie M. Allen, West Lancaster, Ohio. ††

Bound to have Business.

The passage of a bylaw granting $150,000 to an American railway, which is to cross the British Columbia line to New Westminster, has been the occasion of much jubilation in the city mentioned. The circumstance is instructive to restrictionists on both sides of the boundary. To the Canadian restrictionists it teaches the lesson that, talk as they will about treason and disloyalty, our people are bound to have business relations with their neighbours. To the American restrictionists it shows that the railway policy of the people, as distinguished from the politicians, of Canada, is not exclusive.—Toronto Mail.

The Delicious Oolachan.

A sample box of a delicious little fish which abounds in the waters of British Columbia, has been received by Joseph Carman, commission merchant, of Winnipeg. The fish is known as the oolachan, and is a shade smaller in size than the red herring. The fish are cured by smoking, in the same manner as herrings, but have a better flavor than the latter. The price at which they are held, however, will preclude their sale in this market, herrings being worth about 30 cents per box, whilst the oolachans would be worth at least $1 per box, if put up in the same way. The oolachan is a favorite fish in British Columbia, and either fresh, smoked, or salted, forms a real delicacy.—Winnipeg Commercial.

A Compliment to Westminster.

The city of New Westminster has passed by a large majority a bylaw granting to the Southern Railway, which is to connect the city with the boundary, a bonus of $150,000 in return for being made the northern terminus of the road. The agreement provides that security be given for the completion of the road within four years, that the workshops be built in New Westminster at a cost of $75,000, that pending the building of a bridge across the Fraser River, the service will be performed by steam ferry to convey freight cars and passengers over, and finally that the road shall not be extended farther north, so that New Westminster shall get all the advantages of the connection. This last proviso is a proof that the city had its eyes wide open when the contract was drawn up, and if all these clauses can be enforced New Westminster may consider itself extremely fortunate.—Toronto Empire.

Cricket Match.

It was ten minutes past eleven o'clock before the Vancouver-Westminster match began this morning. The sun was warm and beat down pretty strongly on the players, but a fine cool breeze helped to temper the heat and made a great difference as it grew stronger towards noon. In the morning the attendance of spectators was confined to about a dozen admirers of the teams but later in the day the number increased largely and at one time a great many ladies were on the ground. The visitors took to the stumps first, Rand and Freeman batting. A few runs were made at the start by Freeman but Rand went out, bowled by Coulthard, without scoring. Scholfield took his place. Freeman watched for an opening and presently got one and lifted the ball high into the air. Hamber saw it coming and by a short run backwards made a neat catch, retiring Freeman. The next ball caught Scholfield's bat and glanced off at an angle behind the wicket and was prettily stopped by Chappel. Nelson and Clinton, the veteran players of the club, were now guarding the wickets, but Nelson was retired by Coulthard's bowling, without a run. Miles took Chappel's post as bowler and was so fortunate as to send Clinton home by a pretty daisy cutter. Elwood was patiently waiting for Coulthard to change his bowling and give a ball he could drive, but though he waited long and batted freely the chance never came and he was finally bowled by one of Coulthard's peculiar "shots." Beck went to bat and Coulthard bowled light; Beck caught the ball fairly but did not drive hard enough and the ball fell into Hamber's ready hands. Loutlit was caught out by Gifford and Larville fell a victim to another of Miles' daisy cutters. McDougall after a very short stand was bowled by Coulthard and Wilkinson carried out his bat. Score, 40 runs. Coulthard's bowling was a mystery to the visitors and none of them could manage to bat it, which can easily be believed when the bowling shows 8 wickets for 13 runs. The fielding was particularly good.

Without loss of time Wilson and Greame went to bat for Westminster and the former getting a good opening lifted the ball and planted it on the roof of a summerhouse in a neighboring garden, scoring 4 runs. Greame after scoring 3 was bowled by Loutlit. Gifford took his place but was bowled by Loutlit without breaking the egg. Wilson after scoring a double and a single was "run out." It being now 1 o'clock the game was adjourned for lunch.

Coulthard made a good stand and drove the balls in all directions until 17 was scored when Loutlit's bowling brought him to grief. Lewis and Armstrong went out in rapid succession without scoring, but Woods and Raymond came to the rescue and made a stand in which they scored 6 and 5 respectively. Miles made the next stand and had counted 14 runs when caught out by McDougall. Chappell did not count and Hamber carried out his bat. Score, 56.

After a short rest Freeman and Wilkinson went to bat, but were retired almost immediately with scores of 3 and 1 respectively. Clinton then took to the wickets, but was sent back by Miles on the first ball. Elwood and Rand were the next to hit the leather and made a splendid stand. Elwood stood out Coulthard's bowling very skilfully until he had made 22 runs, when his wicket went down.

Rand played a very patient innings, lasting one hour and twenty minutes. He devoted the most of his time to blocking balls, and only scored 11 runs. Nelson made a beautiful stand, in which he ran up 27 runs, the score of the day. The remaining players met with varying success.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

From Foreign Shores.

The following interesting sketch of Rio de Janerio was sent to Mr. John Kirkland, of Hazel Grove, Delta, by Mrs. Capt. Macdonald (nee Maude Kirkland), who is making a tour of the world with her husband in the barque Mandalay. It will be remembered that several months ago THE COLUMBIAN published an entertaining description of Rangoon, Burmah, by the same writer:

On the morning of March 4th we came in sight of land, distant about 12 miles northward, which, by its conspicous bearings, marked our approach to Rio de Janeiro Harbor. The morning being very clear, at this distance we were in a good situation for enjoying a general view of its vicinity. All the bold and varied outlines of the Organ Mountain (so-called because they have a number of peaks resembling the pipes of an organ) are seen to better advantage than when near the shore. The immediate entrance of the harbor, which is about a mile wide, is easily distinguished by a remarkable mountain, called the "Sugar-Loaf," readily known by its form. My attention was so taken with the view before me that it seemed only a short space of time before we were crossing the bar and entering the harbor. There are fortifications on the heights inside, which all vessels are obliged to salute in passing. Proceeding to the first anchorage ground, we were visited by the doctor of the port and the customs officials, from whom we received "Pratique," when we were permitted to go higher up the harbor to our final place of anchorage.

The Bay of Rio Janerio is very spacious and is considered one of the most magnificent in the world. I cannot pretend by my description to do any justice to the beauties of the scenery of this little inland sea, whose surface is diversified by many islands, covered with richest verdure. It is surrounded by high mountains and its shores are dotted with pretty villages, plantations, and handsome residences, the whole bearing the most agreeable aspect. No persons from ashore are allowed on board any vessels in the harbor without a special permit from the customs authorities—which is difficult to obtain—and no boat is allowed to and fro the shore after gun-fire at 9 p.m For any infringement of these rules the fines are rigidly enforced. Guard-boats are constantly plying about night and day to prevent any smuggling being carried on.

The city of Rio Janerio is situated on the eastern side of the bay, from which it presents a fine appearance, being built in the form of a parallelogram. The streets are wide and well laid out, except in the older parts of the town, where they are mostly narrow and dirty, with a water course down the centre, which receives the filth from the houses. All the principal streets are provided with tramcars. These cars, called "bonds," are drawn by one, two, and sometimes three mules and they carry one along very smoothly and speedily. They are a splended institution, being such a cool and pleasant mode of conveyance. The population of Rio is about 400,000 and the language generally spoken is Portuguese. There is a good number of English and American residents, most of whom are engaged in business, some possessing great wealth. The many fine public buildings, such as the Old Palace, containing the crown jewels, the Exchange, two large and handsome theatres, the Custom and Government offices, etc., add greatly to the appearance of the city from a distance. The churches number between 40 and 50, but none of them are very grand edifices though they show conspicuous from the bay. Two or three pretty Protestant churches were pointed out to me. The street on which all the fashionable shops are situated is called Rua du Onvidor and on it no cars nor carriages are allowed. In walking this street all visitors feel bound to purchase some feather flowers, which are a speciality of this city.

They are made with great perfection from the natural undyed plumage of Brazilian birds. Some of the fans, bouquets, and sprays sell as high as one hundred milreis,—equal to fifty dollars in Canadian money, but ones a little less handsome may be purchased at very reasonable prices. Numbers of young girls are employed in the manufacture of this feathered work. I felt sorry when watching them, for it seemed such tedious employment. I was told that in the convents the art is very skilfully taught. Besides the flowers I saw hummingbirds' heads of many hues, and shiny green beetles made into jewellery of most unique designs. Hospital accommodation is very good, which is an important point where yellow-fever and small-pox are so common. In these hospitals patients get good nursing from the Sisters of Charity. Before we left, yellow-fever was becoming very prevalent. It usually breaks out before the hot season is over, though some years it is much worse than others. There is an institution where female orphans, born of white married parents are educated and portioned off in marriage, by the Empress of Brazil. On the streets I saw a great many large, fat negresses, black as jet, dressed in long white garments and white turbans. Some go about carrying baskets of fruit and vegetables on their heads, while others preside at stalls, selling oranges, bananas or lemonade.

Rio has a very extensive trade, exporting more coffee than any other port in the world; sugar, rum, and cabinet woods are also exported, besides the more precious articles, as diamonds, amethysts, topazes and chrysoberyls.

I often enjoyed a drive to Bota Fogo Bay or Languesais, two of the most fashionable suburbs, in which are situated all the elegant residences of the merchants. Most of these houses are built of granite and are of great architectural beauty. They look so cool, surrounded by beautiful green trees round whose trunks are twining creepers with bright blossoms, such as the passion-flower and the stephanotis; in fact all those clinging plants that are met with nowhere in such luxuriance as in the tropics. Having no need of fire, except for cooking purposes, the houses have no chimneys, which deficiency gives a bare appearance in the eyes of one coming from a cold climate. Granite of the best quality is easily obtained from the quarries in the mountains round the bay. I was much gratified in visiting the botanical gardens where I went several times. They are situated about seven miles from the city and it is a delightful drive out to them. They are very extensive and filled with every description of tropical plants. But the greatest feature is the grand avenue of palms; no words of mine can convey any idea of these wonderful trees to those who have not seen them; they rise perfectly straight to the height of about 300 feet without a break in their polished bark, and are topped with large tufts of feathery, drooping green leaves.

During our stay time was afforded us to make several excursions, of which one was to the summit of the Corcovado, a peak 2,306 feet in height, overlooking the bay. The ascent, which took two hours time, was made by a railroad, like a corkscrew, winding round and round the mountain to the top. The engines are of 12 tons weight, with cogged wheels underneath, working in the middle of the track. Attached to the engine is a small railway carriage in which we rode and on some parts of the road the declivity was so great that we were obliged to hold on to our seat with our hands to escape being suddenly thrown against the persons sitting on the opposite seat. Many difficulties had to be encountered and conquered before this daring road could be opened to the public. In some places up the mountain side, gigantic trees, hung with vines, form a dense forest. They seem striving, as it were, to raise themselves to the light. Bright colors intermingle with this luxuriant vegetation—red, yellow and blue, all the colors of the rainbow! Many-hued butterflies flit about, fairly revelling in this mixture of sun, light and moisture. And the many varieties of orchids! These parasital plants growing on the trunks of the trees, their flowers of dazzling hue make a beautiful effect, contrasted with the creepers and mosses that are hanging from and embracing the trees. On reaching the summit we were well rewarded for our journey. A pavilion is placed there, and from it we viewed the magnificent spectacle underneath and before us. Words are inadequate to describe the scene. Every variety of scenery is seen; the Atlantic Ocean on one side; the bay, dotted with many vessels, on the other, with the "Sugar-Loaf" so distinctly marking its entrance; the city spread out as in a plan; the botanical garden with its avenue of imperial palms; the whole forming a vast and incomparable panorama, which cannot be excelled in any part of the world. No one having viewed it once can ever forget it, for the impression it leaves will be eternal and it will awaken feelings of gratitude towards a benificent creator, who has spread out such wonders of nature for our contemplation. There is a nice hotel a short distance down the mountain, where we stopped for a few hours. We had dinner and took a walk along the aqueduct, which conveys water to the city. The aqueduct, which was built in 1740 by the Jesuits, is a grand piece of work, The water from it supplies only a portion of the city, but it is considered the purest to be had. We returned to the city before dark, more than delighted with our trip. Before concluding, to all lovers of romantic scenery I would advise a visit to Rio de Janeiro and its neighborhood, for they can be certain of seeing one of the most beautiful portions of the earth.
