NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The manufacture of Honiton lace is falling off, owing to the failure in the demand. The children in Honiton and thereabouts used to be taught to make lace as soon and as regularly as they were taught to read; but this has almost ceased, and the art seems in danger of dying out.

A respirator, with "goggle" attachment to protect the eyes, the use of which enables the wearer to get around comfortably in thick smoke, has been invented in England. This will be a valuable thing for firemen, and people who live in mosquito countries might find it a handy thing to have in the "smudge" season.

Smuggling—or rather illicit making of whisky—is increasing in the highlands of Scotland, and some amusing stories are told of the plots and counterplots of the law breakers and law officers. The government has been compelled to increase the number of preventive officers, as the staff was found insufficient to protect the revenue.

We find in an exchange a statement that the contract has been let for the construction of a ship railway across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec in Mexico, the work to be finished in five years. This is Capt. Ead's scheme, and if there is money enough at the back of it, ships will probably cross that way before they float through the Panama canal.

Some of the English railway companies have recently taken to decorating their carriages—as they call them—with photos of buildings and scenery belonging to the country through which the line runs. The pictures are said to be very good, and the effect is an immense improvement on the old style of plastering the panels with advertisements.

If we are to believe the telegrams, the republicans are having rather the best of it, so far, in the presidential fight. But, then, we have not got the "inside track" as to the politics of the men who make the telegrams. At all events, our cousins will have a good man at the capitol, whichever way it goes; and that has not been the case in some similar contests.

The latest work for the camera is the photography of lightning flashes. You focus your machine for a long distance, point it at a thunder cloud, and leave it there. Of course, the work must be done on a dark night, when the plate can be "exposed" without spoiling. Then when the flash comes, it registers itself. We would not advise our photographers to go into the business. It is doubtless very attractive; but they would probably get tired waiting for lightning in this part of the world.

Great minds don't always look at things in the same way. The Daily News of London, and the News-Advertiser of Vancouver hold radically different views about the influence of Mr. Chamberlain's presence on the fishery commission. And yet these great minds do run in similar, or parallel grooves, for both are largely influenced by their prejudices, and give their judgment very little scope in the matter. The London paper has it that Mr. Chamberlain's appointment was unpopular in America, and in this it is undoubtedly right; although, of course, if it wants to saddle the whole fiasco on poor Joe, it goes too far. The Vancouver paper has it that Mr. Chamberlain was "perfectly satisfactory" to both American and Canadian people, and the Vancouver paper must either know that it is telling a fearful taradiddle, or else it is so blinded by its ultra-toryism that it does not know black from white where any political matter is even remotely concerned. Chamberlain is, and deserves to be, a badly discredited man, and if our friend at the salt water wants to pour the sweet balm of his tory sympathies on any British statesman, we fancy he could easily find a fitter object. There is "my promising nephew," for instance—the renowned A. J. He's a credit to toryism, at all events; whether he is a credit to anything else or not is another question.

Sleeplessness is due to nervous excitement. The delicately constituted, the financier, the business man, and those whose occupation necessitates great mental strain or worry, all suffer less or more from it. Sleep is the great restorer of a worried brain, and to get sleep cleanse the stomach from all impurities with a few doses of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, gelatine coated, containing no mercury, and are guaranteed to give satisfaction or the money will be refunded.

LAST NIGHT'S DESPATCHES.

PERCY RUNS THE WHIRLPOOL.

NIAGARA FALLS, Sept. 18.—After many trials C. A. Percy made his second much talked of trip through the whirpool rapids this afternoon. The forenoon of to-day he spent in repairing his boat. At 2:25 it was taken down to the old Maid of the Mist landing and launched. At 4:15 p.m. everything was in readiness and Percy descended in a rowing suit stepped in and rowed toward the centre of the river. At 4:20 he fastened the oars to the boat, stood up and waved good-bye to the crowds of onlookers. At 4:23 p.m. he stepped into the aft air chamber. At 4:26 passed under the bridges. At almost the first toss the boat went out of sight and rose bottom up. It seemed an age before it righted itself, but did so just as the crowd became very anxious. The trip was very similar to one Percy made in Aug. 18, 1887. He arrived at the whirlpool at 4:29 where he left his chamber and rowed across to the Canadian shore. He remained in the whirlpool until 5:30 when he was towed across the lower reef and started on his trip to the Lewiston Rapids below a whirlpool equally dangerous if not more so than those above. Just as he was passing Foster's Flats, about a mile below the whirlpool, a huge breaker dashed in the door of his chamber, filling it with water; he was compelled to take the centre of the boat, but before he could properly secure himself he was thrown out in the rapids. He managed to catch the boat again to which he clung for half a mile when he was dashed away just where the rapids are most fierce. Having a life preserver to buoy him up he started for Lewiston three miles below. For two hours he battled with the waves. When he reached stiller water, several boats were on the lookout for him. He was picked up just under old Lewiston bridge by a fisherman named Gillett, brought ashore and carried into the Waggoner's House, nearly exhausted. Had it not have been for the life preserver he would have been drowned. The boat has not yet been picked up. Percy has unintentionally performed a feat never before attempted, that of swimming the Devil's Hole Rapids. Nellie Dilaworth, of Pittsburg, who was to have accompanied Percy backed out and thus saved her life.

TO-DAY'S DESPATCHES.

PRESIDENT DIAZ MESSAGE.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 19.—President Diaz in his message to congress refers to the relations with the U. S. and to the treaty of July 11th regarding grazing cattle; also to the punishment of officers who crossed over to Eagle Pass and Nogales, violating U. S. territory, and to the fact that the U. S. congress has again taken up Weil La Abra claims. He says the American government has taken precautions against the depredations of Indians who fled from the San Carlos reservation. He recommends that the senate arrange a new extradition treaty with the U. S. as the present one is too limited, the frequency of crimes on the frontier requiring a more ample extradition treaty.

THE SENATE CRITICISED.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The democratic members of the house in their caucus to-night on the question of adjournment failed to come to any conclusion. A number of speeches were made and the senate criticised for its course in opposing an early adjournment. During the speaking reference to the Irish vote could be heard being made in stentorian tones. Mr. Beck and others who were present said that it was simply agreed to adjourn the caucus over to await any action that the senate might take.

THE CHINESE BILL.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Congressman Thompson, of California, had a brief conversation with the president to day regarding the Chinese bill, passed by the senate yesterday. Although the president gave no intimation of the course he should pursue in the matter, Mr. Thompson feels confident that the bill will be approved.

CONTEMPT OF COURT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Argument was heard yesterday by Justice Barrett in the Supreme Court chambers to show cause why Elijah Smith, Prosper W. Smith, Sidney Dillon and John H. Hall should not be punished for contempt of court. It is alleged they disobeyed Justice Van Brunt's injunction granted at the suit of Brayton Ives and others, restraining them and the Oregon Railway and Navigation Co., of which they are officers, from withdrawing the company's funds from the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, and from proceeding with the construction of branch lines and a bridge over Snake River. Justice Barrett decided that further testimony should be taken before a referee in regard to the money transactions.

A MONSTER SALE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—The sale of the Lick House property to Senator James P. Fair, for $1,250,000, has been confirmed by the Lick trustees. From the funds realized by the sale the trustees will give the Society of California Pioneers and the Academy of Sciences each $444,759. The Academy of Sciences will build a large edifice on Market street, just above the Flood building. Plans will be drawn up shortly and the building commenced. It is also said a prominent member of the Pioneers offers to donate $50,000 as a nucleus to the hospital.

'FRISCO NOTES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—The receipts of the Mechanics' Fair, just closed, were $,6000 less than those of last year.

The barkentine Tropic Bird, from Tahiti, arrived this morning with 18 sailors of the wrecked bark Derby Park.

IMPORT DUTIES SUSPENDED.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—La France says on account of inadequate harvests the government will suspend import duties on cereals. A council of ministers will discuss the question on Thursday.

THE GREAT BEAR SLAYERS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—A great hunting expedition has just completed its organization. It is under the auspices of Buffalo Bill and Colonel Thomas P. Ochiltree. Its rendezvous is to be at El Paso on Nov. 10th of this year. Among those participating will be the Grand Duke Michael of Russia, Lord Randolph Churchill and Lord Charles Beresford, first lord of admiralty of England. New York papers will send reporters with the expedition from El Paso. It will proceed to Senator George Hearst's ranch in Chilhuahua to meet John Follansbee, and from that point proceeds under his guidance to meet the fierce black bears in the mountains of Sinaloa.

KILLED A DESPERADO.

CHEYENNE, Sept. 19.—A cowboy named Frank Williams killed a desperado named Lem Brown in a duel at Hartville in this county last Thursday. Williams fled and could not be found. The coroner's jury returned a verdict which did not criminate him and he came from his hiding place and surrendered to the authorities on Saturday. At his preliminary hearing today it was established that Williams shot in self defense and he was released. He was tendered a reception this evening by the grateful citizens of Hartville where Brown had terrorized all.

WHEAT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—Wheat, Liverpool, 7s. 3d. @ 7s. 4½d.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Wheat, Sept., 93½, 95a; Oct. 89⅞, 91⅜, 91½; Nov., 91⅝; Dec., 91½, 91⅝; May, 95½ @ ⅝

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Wheat, cash, 98½, 99; Oct., 98B; Nov. 99¼ to 99⅜B; Dec., 100⅜ to 100⅝B; May, 105⅝, to 105⅞.

ELEVATOR ACCIDENT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—The elevator of the Bancroft building fell from the fifth story this morning to the cellar, with six passengers. The accident, which will probably result fatally, was caused by the parting of the cable, due to overloading. Alexander Oakland had his thigh broken and suffered severe hemorrhage. M. A. Little, Prof. Von DerNaillen, Robt. Critcher, Wm. Unfred and M. O. Clagner were passengers. Von DerNaillen and Little were taken home on stretchers.

HER CORSETS SAVED HER.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—A. V. Martin, employed in the auditing department of Wells, Fargo & Co. was arrested at three o'clock this morning on a charge of assault and attempt to murder. He has been keeping the company of an attractive young woman named Jessie Edwards. She told him last night he need not call any more. Early this morning he saw her coming out of a house with another. He hid behind the door of the Temple Bar saloon on Sutter street and when she passed fired four shots at her with a pistol. One of the bullets struck her side, but was stopped by the corset steel and merely scratched her. He was held in $1000 bail.

Surrey Items.

(Correspondence of the Columbian.)

A meeting of the board of managers of the District of Surrey agricultural association was held at the town hall on Saturday, September 15th, to make final arrangements for the exhibition, (which will be held on Friday the 28th). Arrangements were made for getting the grounds, sheds, &c., put in order. Messrs. Cann, Anderson and Thrift were appointed a committee to attend to the details of the show such as the reception and arrangement of the exhibits. The committee will be at the hall all day on the 27th, and will take charge of articles delivered through the day, and until 9.30 o'clock of the day of the show. There will be ample facilities for the convenience of exhibitors of live stock, such as pens, &c., and the committee will also provide water for stock, and feed can be obtained in the immediate vicinity of the show grounds. As a very large number of live stock are expected intending exhibitors are requested to make their entries as early as possible.

The license court (Mr. Jas. Punch, reeve, and Messrs. Chantrell and Brown, J. P's), held a sitting at the town hall on Saturday, September 15th, when the application for a liquor license for the St. Leonard's Hotel, Semiahmoo Bay, was considered. A majority of the magistrates present considered it would be in the public interests that a license should be granted for the house in question, and granted it was.

F. Burrows, of Wilkesport, writes that he was cured of a very dangerous case of inflammation of the lungs, solely by the use of five bottles of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Feels great pleasure in recommending it to the public, as he has proved it (for many of the diseases it mentions to cure) through his friends, and in nearly every instance it was effectual. Do not be deceived by any imitations of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Be sure you get the genuine.

Daily British Columbian

Wednesday Evening, Sept. 19, 1888.

Some may be unable to repress a lugubrious smile on first perusing the account in our despatches the other evening of a prize fight between two young women in the "empire state." When the full significance of such an occurrence begins to dawn on one, coupled with the fact that the disgraceful exhibition took place on the morning of the "Lords Day," among a crowd of low professional "toughs," the smile is very likely to be congealed into a mingled expression of amazement and disgust. If there are others still inclined to extract only mirth out of the episode, they might ask themselves if they would like to see their "wives, daughters, or sweethearts," as the case might be, unsex themselves in a similar manner. The question, perhaps, does not affect us in British Columbia very much, as we never expect to get quite so low. We may be sure we shall not, so long as we keep our the thin end of the wedge. After that—human history does not warrant us in boasting. Such a thing happening in one of the two leading nations of civilization in this age of the world is neither edifying nor reassuring. Are we advancing or retrograding? On which side is the balance?

The scientists have been discussing the question, "Does excitement shorten life?" and, as usual, the "doctors differ." Of course it is rather a difficult question to decide, when it is necessarily complicated and modified by different temperaments and conditions. One authority says general physical development is necessary to prolong life, while another insists this is not required if the day's employment does not call for physical exertion. Dr. D. B. Richardson, an eminent English authority, whose remarks before the Sanitary Institute of Great Britain on the storage of life have been widely quoted, declares, among many obvious though scarcely novel propositions, that everything that quickens the action of the heart, any kind of excitement, taxes and reduces the storage of life. Commenting on this statement the Scientific American says: "If this were said of those naturally feeble, or inheriting disease, or even of those leading sedentary lives, and living from day to day without the invigorating benefits of fresh air and exercise, it would seem reasonable, for one does not have to be a skillful physiologist to know that excitement affects the nerves as well as the heart. But is the statement strictly true when referring, as here, to the entire human family? Surely soldiers engaged in actual warfare and sailors in peace as well as war live among excitements, as well as being notoriously addicted to indulgences as to drinking and smoking, and yet they are long-lived. Statistics showed it and observation corroborates them. The pension list of the British army, giving the ages of the beneficiaries, men who have served in all climates for from 20 to 40 years, and excluding those pensioned sooner because of "wounds received while in the performance of duty," shows that soldiers do not die as other men do; so it is with the naval pensioners of the Greenwich Hospital, now scattered over Great Britain, because of its abolishment. In the merchant service to-day it is no uncommon thing to find a man 70 years of age in charge of a vessel—a post requiring activity of body as well as of mind. Here in New York we have the proof near us, for at Sailor's Snug Harbor, on Staten Island, are 800 aged but for the most part hearty sailors. Most of these are between 70 and 80; active old fellows they are, with clear minds and good appetites. They will tell you they are not by any means the sole survivors of our one time merchant fleet; that many, if not most of their mates are yet living, but distributed over the country, living with their grandchildren, perhaps wherrying for a living or engaged in other employments along a water front. From this it would appear that a sound human body can withstand hunger and exposure and even frequent excitement, if only there is plenty of fresh air and exercise of a vigorous kind thrown in."

Goldwin Smith has been spreading himself "without our leave" on British Columbia since he got back east again, after his late "flying streak" through the country. "British Columbia has hardly any agricultural land," he says. Of course he knows all about it; he flitted through the country, touching only at Vancouver and Victoria, where, naturally enough, he saw no agricultural land, and, travelling night and day by rail, he surely couldn't have expected to see much en route. The "only true and original Smith" probably got prairie-struck by his three or four days' "scoot" over the illimitable plains of the Northwest, and would no doubt argue in this way: "All agricultural land is prairie; I did not see much prairie in British Columbia; therefore British Columbia has hardly any agricultural land." In spite of Mr. Smith's dictum, British Columbia's agricultural land will continue to maintain its respectable dimensions, and if Mr. Smith learns to tell the truth before he dies, he may sometime have an opportunity, in company with Canada's illustrious premier, of "looking down" upon this glorious province, when he will see that its patches of "agricultural land" are far more numerous and extensive than in the ignorance of his flesh he supposed. "In both places (Victoria and Vancouver), so far as I could learn, commercial intelligence recognized as essential to the interests of the colony the liberty of sending her lumber, salmon and coal, as well as the minerals which she lives in hopes of finding (?) (the italics are ours), to a free market in the United States, and of buying freely in that market at the same time." This is not so far from the mark. British Columbia would certainly be benefitted, and would have profitted largely in the past, by a very material relaxation of the trade restrictions with the American republic; but she has sacrificed something in the past, and is prepared to do so to a certain extent in the future, to the general good and to national patriotism, while viewing with favor an abatement or removal of the present trade restrictions. "British Columbia belongs not to Canada, but to the Pacific coast, nor will any number of political railways identify her with us or make the connection anything but a desperate struggle against nature. Of the 'welding' efficacy of the Canadian Pacific Railway there is as yet hardly a sign. No British Columbian, any more than the maritime province man, calls himself a Canadian or likes you to call him so." The foregoing clause or two is a piece of unadulterated, cranky "cussedness," and could only result from viewing the question through a pair of ill-adjusted "annexation" spectacles. "The politics, they frankly tell you, are 'government appropriations.' The truth is that there are no Dominion politics in any but the two old provinces, in which and in reference to the circumstances of which, our political parties were formed." It would be interesting te have a definition of "Dominion politics" from this greatest of all the Smiths. Perhaps it will be found very much to our credit that we don't take any stock in that article. Mr. Smith will probably allow us to consider ourselves as a part of Canada, even if we do decline to mix ourselves up with the Liberals and the Conservatives, the Grits and the Tories, the Bleus and the Castors, the Rouges and the Nationalists—the ins and the outs—of the two older provinces of the Dominion.

Canker humors of every description, whether in the mouth, throat, or stomach, are expelled from the system by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. No other remedy can compare with this, as a cure for all diseases originating in impure or impoverished blood.

A Creaking Hinge

Is dry and turns hard, until oil is applied, after which it moves easily. When the joints, or hinges, of the body are stiffened and inflamed by Rheumatism, they cannot be moved without causing the most excruciating pains. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by its action on the blood, relieves this condition, and restores the joints to good working order.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has effected, in our city, many most remarkable cures, in cases which baffled the efforts of the most experienced physicians. Were it necessary, I could give the names of many individuals who have been cured by taking this medicine. In my case it has worked wonders, relieving me of after being troubled with it for years. In this, and all other diseases arising from impure blood, there is no remedy with which I am acquainted, that affords such relief as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.—R. H. Lawrence, M. D., Baltimore, Md.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla cured me of Gout and Rheumatism, when nothing else would. It has eradicated every trace of disease from my system.—R. H. Short, Manager Hotel Belmont, Lowell, Mass.

I was, during many months, a sufferer from chronic Rheumatism. The disease afflicted me grievously, in spite of all the remedies I could find, until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took several bottles of this preparation, and was speedily restored to health.—J. Fream, Independence, Va. ††

SHERIDAN AT GRAVELOTTE

FIGHTING QUALITIES OF AMERICAN AND EUROPEAN SOLDIERS.

Unpublished Correspondence between Sheridan and Grant—The Same Percentage of Sneaks and Runaways in Foreign Armies—He Thinks Americans Are Better Fighters—Surprised at the Cowardice of the French at Gravelotte and Sedan.

(Copyright 1888.)

The death of General Sheridan and the announcement that he had prepared an article on the battle of Gravelotte, reminds me of a letter of his to General Grant in which he discussed the Franco-German war. I was in England at the time and had been requested by Mr. Froude to furnish a paper on that war for Frazer's Magazine. I wrote to General Grant, then President, asking if he could help me, and he replied as follows:

"I am in receipt of your letter in which you speak of the article you propose writing for the British press, and of getting something from Sheridan to aid you in preparing it. I have received but one letter from Sheridan since he has been with the Prussians. It is probably too late for that letter to be of any service to you, but I send it."

REIMS, FRANCE, Sept. 18, 1870.

MY DEAR GENERAL GRANT: The capture of the Emperor Napoleon and McMahon's army at Sedan on the 1st of September has thrown France into a chaos which even embarrasses the Prussian authorities. It seems to a quiet observer as though Prussia had done too much. Who to negotiate with? who to hold responsible in the final settlement? are becoming grave questions, and one cannot see what will be the result. I was present at the battles of Beaumont, Gravelotte and Sedan, and have had my imagination clipped in seeing these battles—of many of the errors it had run into in its conceptions of what might be expected of the trained troops of Europe.

There was about the same percentage of sneaks, or runaways, and the general conditions of the battles were about the same as our own. One thing was especially noticeable—the scattered condition of the men in going into battle and their scattered condition while engaged. At Gravelotte, Beaumont and Sedan the men engaged on both sides were so scattered that it looked like thousands of men engaged in a deadly skirmish without any regard to lines or formation. These battles were of this style of fighting, commencing at long range, and might be called progressive fighting, closing at night by the French always giving up their position, or being driven from it in this way by the Prussians. The latter had their own strategy up to the Moselle, and it was good and successful. After that river was reached the French made the strategy for the Prussians, and it was more successful than their own. The Prussian soldiers are very good, brave fellows, all young, scarcely a man over twenty-seven in the first levies. They had gone into each battle with the determination to win. It is especially noticeable also that the Prussians have attacked the French wherever they have found them, let the numbers be great or small, and so far as I have been able to see, though the grand tactics of bringing on the engagements have been good, yet the battles have been won by the good square fighting of the men and junior officers. It is true the Prussians have been two to one except in one of the battles before Metz, that of the 16th of August, still the French have had the advantage of very strong positions.

Generally speaking, the French soldiers have not fought well. It may be because the poor fellows had been discouraged by the trap into which their commander had led them, yet it must confess to having seen some of the "stalwart" running at Sedan I have ever witnessed, especially on the left of the French position—all attempts to make the men stand seemed to be unavailing. So disgraceful was this that it caused the French cavalry to make three or four gallant but foolish charges, as if it were to show that there was at least some manhood left in a mounted French soldier.

I am disgusted; all my boyhood's fancies of the soldiers of the great Napoleon have been dissipated, or else the soldiers of the "Little Corporal" have lost their glory in the pampered parade soldiers of the "Child of Destiny."

The Prussians will settle, I think, by making the line of the Moselle the German line, adding to it Metz and Strasburg, and the expenses of the war.

I have been most kindly received by the King and Count Bismarck and all the officers at the headquarters of the Prussian army have seen much of great interest, and especially have been able to observe the difference between European battles and those of our own country. I have not found the difference very great, but that difference is to the credit of our own country. There is nothing to be learned here professionally, and it is a satisfaction to learn that such is the case. There is much, however, which Europeans could learn from us—the use of rifle-pits—the use of cavalry, which they do not use well; for instance, there is a line of communication from here to Germany extended to the value of six south of France, [illegible] the whole line, and it has never been touched. There are a hundred things in which they are behind us. The staff departments are poorly organized; the quarter-master's department very wretched, etc., etc.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
P. H. SHERIDAN,
Lt.-General.

P.S.—We go to-morrow with the headquarters of the king to a point about twenty miles from Paris. P. H. S.

It is needless to call attention to the military criticisms of so famous a commander; to his patriotic delight at the equality of the American soldier with the picked troops of Europe; his predictions of the terms which were exacted by the victors months afterward; or the clear, terse, picturesque language in which he portrays for his former chief the peculiarities of the rival armies. The familiar style into which he lapses here and there is itself a charm, and makes one sure that the letter was written with no idea that it would ever become historical; yet, what could be more historical than the comments of one of the greatest of American commanders to another on the events of Gravelotte and Metz and Sedan? [illegible] of the letters of Sheridan to Grant, and he wrote not a few to me, on points connected with his own military history. They were often short, and at times almost curt; but invariably to the point. "Full of meat," and sometimes extremely felicitous in expression, like his stirring dispatches from the Valley: "We sent them whirling through Winchester." I discovered it beat to make a story or a speech to settle this new cavalry question. "They were followed by our men on the jump twenty-six miles." He had a large share of that power of expression which men of great executive ability often possess when they approach subjects in which they are interested. He knew what he meant and what he wanted, and he could say it, not only so that a child could understand, but often with positive eloquence.

Whenever the correspondence between Grant and Sheridan during the Reconstruction period is published, it will prove all that I say. That correspondence was secret; Grant's letters were not copied in the ordinary letter-books; they were seen by none of the clerks and by few of the officers at the headquarters of the army. I retained single copies of them at the time and when Grant became President I copied these into a book, which for some reason was not turned over to the War Department, but the first drafts or rough copies he gave to me, and told me they might serve as material for a political memoir. All that were of importance I have already so used, but Sheridan's replies have not yet been given to the world. They will demonstrate the ultimate character of the relations of Grant and Sheridan, the complete harmony in their feeling and the accord in their judgment on a subject which they had never discussed in spoken words; for one was in Washington and the other in New Orleans before the Louisiana difficulty arose, and they did not meet after this until Sheridan had been relieved.

I consulted Sheridan frequently in the course of my historical labors, and he gave me all the assistance I asked, but desired me not to name him as authority in political matters. He did not wish to be involved in political controversies, especially while he was serving under a Democratic administration; but he promised to furnish me all the facts in his possession, and he kept his word. After the appearance of "Grant in Peace" he assured me that he would never contradict or give cause to contradict any statement that it contained.

When he saw the picture I tried to make of himself for my military history, he objected to my saying that he swore, and I struck out the statement; but he allowed me to describe him as rising in his stirrups and swinging his hat in the famous ride from Winchester. He was loath, however, to go down to history as a mere Murat, and naturally so, for he was much more than a cavalry leader. Still, he had all the passion and magnetism that are so irresistible with troops. I have often been told that on the great ride his face was fairly black with the rage of battle, and he cried out again and again: "We'll lick 'em out of their boots, boys! we'll lick 'em out of their boots!" He was all the more a general because he shared and inspired the feeling of his soldiers.

I shall never forget how he looked on the day of the surrender of Lee. His troops had outmarched the great Southern leader, and fairly surrounded him at last; but when this was discovered Lee sent word that he was negotiating with Grant for a surrender, and asked for a suspension of hostilities. Sheridan had heard nothing of the negotiations, and feared the report might be a ruse of Lee. At this moment I happened to ride up, and Sheridan supposing I had come from Grant, asked eagerly if the story was true. He was pacing up and down in a piece of a farm yard that looked like a pig-pen, and I could not but think how like his action was to that of a wild beast in a cage. His face flamed and he clenched his fist as he said to me: "I've got 'em, damn 'em, I've got 'em like that;" and his nails were doubled into his palm.

In March, 1885, when Grant was known to be near his end, I was at his house, and Sheridan wrote me the following letter, enclosing a proffer of a burial at the Soldiers' Home. This I was to present to the family when the sad moment came.

April 11th, 1885.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE UNITED STATES.
WASHINGTON, D. C.

My Dear Dodge:

I am requested by the Commissioners of the Soldiers' Home to forward to you the accompanying letter to be delivered in case of the death of General Grant from his present illness, and request you to fill in the proper date.

We will select the most agreeable and commanding site on the grounds of the Home.

It is unnecessary for me to use words to express my attachment to General Grant and his family. I have not gone to see him as I could only bring additional distress. Then I want to remember him as I knew him while in good health.

With kind regards,
Yours truly,
P. H. SHERIDAN.

But the tomb of the chief is at Riverside, and it is Sheridan who lies at the capital where he expected to bury Grant.

COSTLY FISHING.

The Restigouche Salmon Club.

The rivalry among salmon fishermen has become so great that stream privileges have largely increased in value. For individuals, the cost varies, according to the desirability of the locality, from $1 a day to $25 a week for each rod. The creation, however, of salmon fishing clubs has narrowed the field for individual sportsmen and is rapidly enhancing the price of privileges. At the present time nearly every river discharging into the St. Lawrence, into the Saguenay and into Bay Chaleur has a club bearing its name. Certainly the most famous of these is the Restigouche Salmon Club, whose members are entirely Americans and mostly New Yorkers. John G. Bourne, the most thorough all-around gentleman sportsman of America, said to the writer that when he fished every summer on the Restigouche it cost him $800 before he wet a line. This club was incorporated by the Legislature of Quebec in 1880. The stated desire of the petitioners was "to promote the health and recreation of its members by the pursuit of fishing and hunting," and for that purpose they had acquired a tract of land on the Restigouche and Matapedia rivers, in the Province of Quebec, and built a club house at Matapedia. They bought and leased properties at various points along these rivers for a distance of fifty miles. The capital stock of the organization was fixed at $40,000 divided into forty shares, of $1,000 each, but those membership shares are now valued at $2,000 each. In addition to the purchase of at least one share of stock each member is required to pay an entrance fee of $600.

Wanted a Hoe.

A man who subscribed to the News for three months writes:

"I want to pay for my subscription, but I'm a little short of money; so I send you a half dozen eggs. If you'll put 'em under a settin' hen they'll hatch out enough chickens to pay for a year's subscription."

Now, this is a new way to pay debts; but if somebody will give me a hen we will try the experiment.—Smithville (Ga.) News.

"It Saved My Life"

Is a common expression, often heard from those who have realized, by personal use, the curative powers of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. ☞ I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died from lung troubles.—E. Bragdon, Palestine, Tex.

About six months ago I had a severe Hemorrhage of the Lungs, brought on by a distressing Cough, which deprived me of sleep and rest. I had used various cough balsams and expectorants, without obtaining relief. A friend advised me to try

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

I did so, and am happy to say that it helped me at once. By continued use this medicine cured my cough, and, I am satisfied, saved my life.—Mrs. E. Coburn, 18 Second st., Lowell, Mass.

I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for over a year, and sincerely believe I should have been in my grave, had it not been for this medicine. It has cured me of a dangerous affection of the lungs, for which I had almost despaired of ever finding a remedy.—D. A. McMullen, Windsor, Province of Ontario.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved my life. Two years ago I took a very severe Cold which settled on my lungs. I consulted physicians, and took the remedies they prescribed, but failed to obtain relief until I began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Two bottles of this medicine completely restored my health.—Lizzie M. Allen, West Lancaster, Ohio. ††

In another column will be found the advertisement of Mr. Geo. Byrnes announcing the auction sale of several large lots of provincial government lands on the North Arm of the Fraser River. The sale takes place on Oct. 23rd.

Some very large grain averages are reported from Surrey. Several farmers threshed 120 bushels of oats to the acre, and one claims to have threshed 140 bushels to the acre. 140 bushels to the acre is a large yield, but the soil along the lower Fraser is equal to the occasion.

The ladies will be delighted to learn that P. Peebles' famous and much admired Whitney Baby Buggies, with reversible handles, have arrived. He has also for sale a novel brake attachment, which can be applied to any buggy, stopping it on a hillside as well as if held by a boy. sel9t3

A despatch this afternoon from Kamloops says the base ball match, Kamloops vs. Revelstoke, resulted in a victory for the former club by a score of 15 to 11. Kamloops had an easy victory and had an innings to spare at the close of the game. Revelstoke was heavily backed by Donald men.

In reference to the civic holiday, the mayor and council have expressed their willingness to fix a date for it if a request signed by a number of business men is laid before the board at its next meeting. Steps have already been taken to obtain signatures and the public request will be laid before the council next Monday evening.

Building Operations.

Messrs. Forfar & Tidy, of this city, have taken a contract to erect buildings, wharves, etc., for Captain H. J. Robertson on his estate on Moresby Island, recently purchased. These energetic contractors have nearly completed Alderman Ovens' new blacksmith and machine shop, which will cost when finished in the neighborhood of $2,000.

Y. M. C. A. Convention.

The fifth annual convention of the young men's Christian Association of Oregon, Washington Territory, Idaho, British Columbia and Alaska, will be held at Seattle, W. T., Sept. 20th and 23rd. Noted workers will be present from California and the east, and one of the grandest gatherings of young men ever held on the coast is fully expected. Reduced rates have been given by railroad and steamboat lines and delegates will be entertained free of cost. Teachers of Sunday schools, pastors and all interested in this work are invited to correspond with E. C. Frost, of Portland, Oregon, who will give all particulars.

The Base-Ballers Return.

The base ball teams returned this afternoon from the Kamloops tournament looking rather tired after their hard work but in the best of spirits. The members feel that had Baker not met with the unfortunate accident which prevented him catching against the Amities the result of the match might have been different, as Spencer's pitching was too strong and bewildering when properly backed. As it stands now Westminster took second prize, proving the club ranks equal to any in the province as the match against Victoria was not played on an equal footing. The club has done honor to Westminster and has earned the thanks of the whole city.

Sir John Lister Kaye's Scheme.

The syndicate of which Sir John Lister-Kaye's name appears as the head, and which purchased something over 2,000,000 feet of lumber a few weeks ago from the Royal City mills, is one of those extensive enterprises which, fully succesful or otherwise, must tend to the rapid settlement of the northwest. It is reported to own 11 farms of 10,000 acres each. On each there is (or is to be) a central farm-house, stabling for 55 horses, sheds for 500 breeding heifers and 5,000 sheep, and a piggery for 300 pigs. These buildings, it is said, are to cost about $15,000 on each farm. $150,000 is to be provided at once. The first farm, Balgonie, is already tolerably well equipped. It is evident that enterprises on such a scale must give a lively impetus to settlement.

Returning Sealers.

The sealing schooner Viva, Captain Baker, owned by Carne & Munsie, arrived in the harbor yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, from Behring's Sea, and is berthed at Welch, Rithet & Co.'s wharf. The Viva has had a most prosperous season, having on board 2,069 skins, and with 806 taken on a previous trip, makes a total of 2,875 for the season's catch. All the skins were taken in the Behring's Sea, and during the whole time the vessel was in the sea nothing was seen or heard of the American cutters. Five white hunters and five boats were employed, and during the season not the slightest accident occurred. All on board are well, and during the trip nothing worthy of note took place. The trip down was made in twelve days, the weather being rough all the time. On the 26th of August the schooner Rosa Olsen was spoken in Behring's Sea with nearly 500 skins on board. On the 10 inst., when in Queen Charlotte Sound, the Mountain Chief was spoken and reported a catch of 825 skins. The wind which prevailed yesterday was favorable for all the homeward bound sealers, and those due may be expected to reach port to-day.—Colonist.

Hard and soft corns cannot withstand Holloway's Corn Cure; it is effectual every time; get a bottle at once and be happy.

The Black Cod Banks.

The schooner Theresa, Capt. Olsen, which went north a couple of months ago for the purpose of testing the black cod banks, returned at ten o'clock last night with nearly 3,000 fish in the tanks, many of them weighing from twenty to twenty-five pounds each. The black cod were caught by the Indians and bought from them at twenty-five cents per fish. The schooner fished on a bank about five miles off shore of Queen Charlotte islands, and in 210 fathoms of water. The black cod existed in large numbers and eagerly devoured the halibut bait. Had it not been that the tanks leaked nearly double the quantity of fish could have been secured. A trawl having 200 hooks was let down from the schooner and 50 fish hauled up in an hour. The catch would have been greater had not the hooks became entangled one with another.

About a mile off shore halibut banks are to be found where fish, sometimes seven feet in length, can be secured in large numbers. A schooner load was recently taken in one day. Any kind of bait answer for halibut, though the Indians generally use that of the devil-fish, as the halibut seem partial to it. The success of the Theresa has demonstrated the fact that the west coast fisheries, if developed, will become a profitable investment to those who engage in it.—Colonist.

Jas. Shannon, Leaskdale, writes: For many years my wife was troubled with chilblains, and could get no relief until about two years ago she was then not able to walk, and the pain was then so excruciating that she could not sleep at night. Your agent was then on his regular trip, and she asked him if he could cure her. He told her Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil was a sure cure. She tried it, and judge of her astonishment when in a few days the pain was all allayed and the foot restored to its natural condition. It is also the best remedy for burns and bruises I ever used.

Steamboat Whistles.

Some weeks ago, many indignant citizens, whose nerves were apparently in a rather disorganized condition at the time, besieged this office to have us enter a public protest against the steamboat whistle nuisance. The protest was entered in emphatic terms, and, barring one letter on the subject, that ended the matter and those who promised to support our action have gently subsided, content for the time being. The different articles which appeared in THE COLUMBIAN were not long in reaching Capt. Irving, manager of the C. P. N. Co., who has informed Mr. T. L. Briggs that he is quite willing to put a stop to the whistling if it is the general wish of the Westminster public that it should be stopped. But the matter must be brought before the council in a regular way—by petition—and prompt action will be taken. Thus the matter stands and it remains with the public either to pass it or to let the whole matter drop until another burst of great indignation is accumulated. That the whistles have been a great civilizer in days gone by, among the Indians of the lower Fraser, is vouched for by Harrison River Joe, an ex-chief and a very old man, who had reached manhood's years before the first white man settled on the Fraser. He says that before the advent of steamboats and steamboat whistles murder was a very frequent occurence among the Siwashes, and as a chief it was the most difficult matter he had to combat with. The slightest offence or some trifling wrong done towards one another was considered a legitimate excuse for a fight to the death, or, more frequently, treacherous murder. But by and by the Great Sololicum (Evil Spirit), the steamboat whistle, came along and wakened every sleeping echo for miles on either side of the mighty Fraser. And then a great awe crept into the hearts of the gentle Siwashes, and it seemed to them that the Great Spirit was angry for the many crimes committed and he intented to let the Sololicum haunt and terrify them until the murderous crimes ceased. By degrees crimes became less frequent and finally murder went out of the heart of the Siwash, and to-day they are even more careful of life than their white brothers. It will thus be seen that the whistle did better work than missionaries for a time, but now that its mission is accomplished we think it should be laid away to rest, as far as the city of Westminster is concerned.

A Siwash-Chinese Romance.

It is not many months ago since a handsome half-breed Indian woman and a Chinese merchant of Chilliwhack, named Lang Sing, happened to meet by chance, and immediately the flame of love was set burning. The light was small at first but as their intimacy ripened it soon assumed very respectable proportions, and at last the love-sick Lang popped the question to his beloved Elizabeth, which the latter accepted as blushingly and timidly as the most veteran flirt or the untutored maiden of sweet sixteen, who hears for the first time the thrilling and passionate voice of love. Lang swore by the bones of his ancestors and the eyes of Confucius that he couldn't and wouldn't attempt to live without her, and if she said no to his tender proposition that he would order the mourners and have the chickens roasted at once for the last solemnities over his crushed remains. Such an appeal as this was too much for the tender heart of Elizabeth, and murmuring in the sweetest chinook "nawitka" she fell sobbing into Lang's outstretched and eager arms. But one obstacle stood in the way of the loving pair, and that was the mother's consent, which could not be obtained even under promises of large quantities of flour, pork and other dainty muck-a-muck. Despair was upon them and it seemed that two loving hearts were going to break owing to the cruelty of an unnatural mother, whose only objection to her prospective son-in-law was the length of hair he wore. When all arguments and offers had been spent in vain the couple wisely repaired to the nearest clergyman, a Presbyterian minister, and were legally united in the holy bonds of matrimony and then returned to the mother and obtained, rather reluctantly, the blessing which she previously refused to bestow. For a time all went merry as a marriage bell, and it seemed as if a veritable Chinook zephyr was blowing peace and happiness in the direction of the loving pair, filling their lives with joy and rendering them more dear to each other every day. But the cruel mother had only given an unwilling blessing, and was watching her chance to spoil the dream of love in which Mr. and Mrs. Lang reposed. She commenced by dropping into the shop during the husband's absence passing uncomplimentary remarks on the person of Lang, and making unfavorable comparisons between him and some of the handsome young braves of the Chilliwhack tribe. Little by little this sort of thing did its work, and Lang was not long in finding a change had come over his dream. Things went on indifferently until yesterday morning, when, at the solicitation of her mother, Lizzie ran away from her husband, and both boarded the steamer Irving, leaving Lang to discover his loss a few hours later. When Lang found his wife had flown he did not sit down and weep, but without loss of time telegraphed Mr. Moresby, who arrested both mother and daughter when the Irving arrived in the city yesterday. The mother is charged with inducing Elizabeth to desert her lawful husband, and the case will come before the police court to-morrow morning.

TO ASSIST NATURE most effectually in her efforts to throw off or resist serious disease, it is essential that an impulse should be given to functions which growing ill health suspends or weakens, namely, the action of the bowels, bilious secretion, and digestion. Oftentimes, though this is impracticable by the use of ordinary remedies, it proves an easy task when Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure is resorted to.

Job printing of all kinds neatly done at the COLUMBIAN office. Prices will be found as low as at any other office in the province.—Adv.

AUCTION

PROVINCIAL

Government Lands

—ON—

NORTH ARM OF FRASER RIVER, AND ADJACENT LANDS, NEW WESTMINSTER DISTRICT,

TUESDAY, 23rd OCTOBER

AT 11 O'CLOCK, A. M.

I have been instructed by the Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works to sell by Auction

AT VANCOUVER, B. C.

Several parcels of fine agricultural lands, situate on or near the North Arm of Fraser River, being sub-divisions of Lots 325, 326, 329, 330, 331, 332 to 339, 149, 150, 156, 175, 166, 155. The subdivisions of these Lots contain from 27 to 172 acres each; the location of these lots is shown on the present maps of the District.

The farms in the immediate vicinity of these Lots are considered the finest agricultural properties in British Columbia. Some of the lots front on the North Arm, and others are in the immediate vicinity of the same.

Steamers run daily from New Westminster and Vancouver, past these valuable properties.

ALSO,

Lots 638 to 670, and Lots 750 to 756.

All situate between the North Arm of Fraser River and Vancouver City. The North Arm Road from Vancouver runs through these Lots, and there are other roads laid out that will give access to each of them. This property commences about 2½ miles south of Vancouver City and is bounded on the west by the C. P. Railway Land Grant, and is surveyed into lots containing from 4 to 50 acres each, maps of which will shortly be ready for distribution.

All the lands to be sold are well adapted for agricultural, dairy or orchard purposes, and on account of their close proximity to the markets of Vancouver and New Westminster cities, will be desirable properties for families seeking a home, or for investment.

The C. P. Railway are now constructing a fine wagon road from Vancouver to the North Arm of Fraser River and Lulu Island. They are also surveying a line of railway through these properties with a view of connecting with the United States system of railways at Seattle.

These lands may fairly be considered as the most valuable ever offered for sale by auction in British Columbia.
