NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The great Evangelical Alliance Convention in Montreal last week was a most important event for Canada. It marks an era of union and co-operation between the evangelical churces in aggressive Christian effort.

The Kamloops Sentinel says: The coast papers and the Victoria press are still wrangling regarding the representation of the province in the Dominion senate. What the outcome will be it is hard to determine, but one thing has been fully demonstrated during the discussion, and that is the utter selfishness of the Victoria press in general and the Colonist in particular, entirely regardless of the rights of the remaining portion of the province.

An eastern exchange says: Dr. Dawson, of the Dominion Geological Survey, visited this season Kamloops, Yale, Kootenay and Cariboo districts in British Columbia, and in the course of his explorations came across a great deal of country well adapted for agricultural purposes. In examing the mining regions he found ample evidence to support the sanguine expectations which have been formed of the country's respences. Dr. Dawson believes that a mining boom will strike that region and be of immense proportions. His report for this year will be of great interest to Canadians. We may note the fact that the Hon. Edward Blake, who is visiting British Columbia for the first time, has just discovered that his "sea of mountains" is a fine country. We have to thank the C. P. R. retainer for that.

They tell a rather bad thing on Jay Gould: Once while giving evidence before a railway commission Mr. Jay Gould said that in some counties he was a Republican, in some he was a Democrat, but in all he was an Frie man. Although he is no longer an Erie man, because western railways and a telegraph monopoly are more profitable investments, he is still a Republican or a Democrat according to circumstances. In the last general election he was a straight Blainite and when that fact became known it did not do the Republican cause any good. In the present contest he has sent his cheque and his blessing to the Republican managers with a request that they say nothing about his gift, and a similar cheque, and a similar blessing to the Democrats. Unfortunately the secret leaked out, and now the Republicans are denouncing him as a traitor, and the Democrats are reviling him as a sneak.

"Beauty is vain and favor is deceitful," says the scriptures and experience and observation prove them true in this as in other declarations. The following from an exchange is not a bad illustration: Mary Stevens, the young Viennese lady with the undoubetedly British name, who gained the third prize in the "Competition of the Graces" at Spa, is in Paris, and has just given a very graphic account of the "Show." She is a pretty, rose-tinted blonde, with black eyes, and states that the entries were twenty-five in number, that all the competitors, dressed in ball costume, went every evening for a fortnight to the Casino, where they were gazed at by people who had paid 5f, for the privilege. In the centre of the competitors was the beautiful Fatma, who was "out of running," and at her feet were all her swarthy attendants. Mademoiselle, or Fraulein, Stevens was on the whole glad to be able to compete, although she found it fatiguing to sit out the show. She evidently views Mlle, Debroza, who was awarded the second prize, with considerable jealousy. She says that "the Debroza" lacks distinction, and obtained the honor simply because she was only sixteen, was a Belgian, and had influential friends. Here is a verbatim report of this Viennese lady's description of the other competitors who did not obtain high prizes and of the grand finale of the show: "The prize winners, apart from all the rest, were not only hideously ugly, but bad-tempered and ill-bred. You cannot imagine how they behaved when the names of the most successful competitors were read out. The scene was indescribable. There were groans and shrieks and imprecations. When we (the winners,) had received our boquets, the others rushed at us like wild beasts, snatched our nosegays out of our hands, and trampled on them. Somebody spat upon the dress of Mlle. Soukares, the Guadeloupe girl who got the first prize, and Mlle. Villian, who obtained the fourth or last prize, whacked me with her fan and cut my arm. She had to be ejected from the place by the police, and Mlle. Soukares and I had to fly literally for our lives. M Soukares, the brother of the Guadeloupe beauty, who is also here, states that his sister only consented to complete owing to the pressing solicitations of friends, and that then she was entered under an assumed name. So ended the famous "Spa Beauty Show" of the Year of Grace 1888.

THE MUNCHISON LETTER.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 6.—The Express this evening discloses the name of the author of the celebrated "Murchison letter." It is given as Francis G. Hall, a farmer, a native of New York, living two miles from the town of Pomona. "The letter was written to Minister West," says the Express, "entirely of his own notion, and to obtain Lord Sackville's opinion upon the question set forth in the letter. He was in collusion with no other person and had little expectation of receiving an answer. When it came he kept it for three weeks before showing it to anyone."

THE ELECTIONS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7.—367 precincts outside of San Francisco give Harrison 19,242 and Cleveland 17,013. There are still 1,396 precincts to hear from.

TOO MUCH ELECTION.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7.—Early this morning Thos. J. Gallagher, a well known attorney of this city, about 45 years of age, while under the influence of liquor, jumped from a third-story window and was fatally injured.

FIRST IN SIXTEEN YEARS.

HELENA, Montana, Nov. 7.—From the returns now in it is estimated that Carter, republican for congress, has a majority of 3,000 over Clark, democrat. Carter will be the first republican delegate elected in Montana in 16 years.

REPUBLICANS CARRY NEVADA.

JUMPED OVERBOARD.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7.—The captain of the str. Mexico, which arrived from Victoria yesterday, reports that on Sunday night Donald Charters, a steerage passenger, created a sensation by jumping from the deck of a steamer. The vessel was stopped as soon as possible and a boat was lowered, but owing to the darkness it was impossible to rescue him.

THURMAN GIVES UP.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 7.—Judge Thurman, in an interview, gives up the entire election.

A LARGE MAJORITY.

AUSTIN, Nov. 7.—Cleveland's majority in Texas is 150,000. Congressman Mills is re-elected by a small majority.

INDIANA DEMOCRAT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The World claims Indiana for Cleveland by 2,500 plurality. Florida and Deleware are Democrat.

TAKING PRECAUTIONS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7.—Owing to reports that the democrats of this city were about to manipulate the ballots so as to give Cleveland a large majority, the San Francisco republican state central committee at a conference this morning appointed a large number of men to watch the counting and report any attempts at fraud.

BOYCOTT IN CANADA.

KINGSTON, Nov. 7.—There is an unhappy student in the medical college here. He has been boycotted by his fellows who have sworn to refuse to speak to him or recognize him in any way. He is accused of telling the police the hiding place of the resurrected bodies recently recovered. He denies the accusation.

IMPORTANT CAUCUS.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 7.—Some interesting things will likely occur at the government caucus to-night. It is said the Free Press and Mr. Luxton will be formally repudiated and read out of the liberal party. It is most probable the railway crossing difficulty will be fully discussed and retaliation on the C. P. R. will be considered.

LORD SACKVILLE AVENGED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The press news association has an early London cable which says the general feeling is that Sackville-West has been avenged.

BULLETIN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Harrison's majority in Pennsylvania is 65,956. The Democratic majority in Tennessee is 10,000. Michigan is Republican by 15,000 to 18,000 plurality. 700 out of 1806 districts in Indiana give Cleveland 101,460, Harrison 110,693. Iowa republican by 30,000 majority. Rhode Island gives republican majority of 3,196. Virginia is democrat by a majority of 10,500. Nevada's majority for the republicans is now 2000.

QUEBEC BOODLERS.

QUEBEC, Nov. 7.—The boodle enquiry has been adjourned until to-morrow. The information so far has been laid against M. Wallack, B. Trudel and R. P. Vallee. The presiding magistrate received a letter from the attorney-general asking him to make the investigation as full and thorough as possible.

FRISCO DEMOCRATIC.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7.—Partial returns from all precincts, except two, are: Harrison, 11,577; Cleveland 14,014; Pond, democrat for mayor 10,218. Story, republican 8,092, O'Donnell, Ind, 7,755.

ELECTION RIOT.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 7.—In an election riot this morning at Bowling Green, Ky., a mad mob of negroes attacked Supervisor Wickerson. He defended himself with his revolver and one negro was killed, one dangerously wounded and a whiteman shot through the arm.

H. Gladden, West Shefford, P. Q., writes: For a number of years I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Two years ago I was attacked very severely. I suffered a great deal of pain, from which I was not free a day, until last spring, when I began to use Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and I rejoice to say it has cured me, for which I am thankful.

Jas. W. Vail, a defaulting banker of Port Washington, Wis., has been found by the police in Winnipeg, Man. He has been living there for the past six months under the name of Linsquit, and is said to have brought $140,000 of the bank's funds with him.

Rumor has it that Hon. Mr. Carling and Hon. Mr. Pope will retire from the cabinet at the close of next session. The former goes to the senate and the latter, owing to ill health, is compelled to retire. White of Renfrew, replaces Carling, and Ives will likely get Pope's place.

The committee appointed by the Hamilton board of trade to correspond with the Dominion government on the subject of reduced postal rates reported that the government could not see their way to make any reduction in the expenses of running the postoffice department, as they were not far in excess of the receipts.

The criminal libel suits of Premier Greenway and Attorney-General Martin against the Free Press and Morning Call for alleged libel in charging members of the government with boodling in connection with the Northern Pacific contract came before the grand jury on Saturday. "No bill" was returned in each case.

The result of the libel suits does not satisfy the local government or its friends and there is talk of a royal commission to investigate the matter. The Morning Call publishes a long affidavit by J. B. McArthur, solicter of the Manitoba Central Railway, in which he charges Premier Green with having offered his company the Red River Valley Road if they would advance $10,000 towards the election expenses. The affidavit, however, gives no evidence that the money was ever paid over.

Mrs. A. Nelson, Brantford, writes: "I was a sufferer from Chronic Dyspepsia for eleven years. Always after eating, an intense burning sensation in the stomach, at times very distressing, caued a drooping and languid feeling, which would last for several hours after eating. I was recommended by Dr. Popplewell, Chemist, of our city, to try Northrop & Lymon's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, and I am thankful to say that I have not been better for years; that burning sensation and languid feeling has all gone, and food does not lie heavy on my stomach. Others of my family have used it with best results."

Jerussalem is rapidly growing as a trade centre. $100,000 worth of objects of devotion in mother-of-pearl and olive wood are exported to America and Europe every year. Vine cultivation is being extended, and the price of land has risen six-fold within a few years.

Messrs. Mitchell & Platt, druggists, London, Ont., write, Dec., 1881: "We have sole Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil since its first introduction, and we can safely say, no medicine on our shelves has had a larger sale, or gives better satisfaction. We always feel safe in recommending it to our customers.

The Standard considers the Blue Book acquits the foreign office and shows Lord Salisbury acted with dignity and discretion, and removes the only extenuation possible to plead for Cleveland.

The Times says: The Blue Book confirms our previous opinion and it emphasizes Lord Sackville's indiscretion.

The new time table, which comes into effect on Sunday next, the 11th inst., is an improvement, as will be seen, on the arrangements which it has superceded. We shall have connections three times a day now with Vancouver, except on Saturdays, and this service includes an early morning train from here, at 7:40, which will be appreciated by those who were disappointed when the 8 o'clock morning service was withdrawn in July last. These latest running arrangements, which we hope will be continued, until they are improved at any rate, coupled with the new and convenient passenger car and the smoker-baggage car which have lately been put on the Westminster-Vancouver route, make the service a better one than has yet been placed on the branch line. It remains, however, for the C. P. R. to do away with the unjust and petty discrimination against this city, whereby passengers from eastern points are not permitted to purchase a ticket or check their baggage for Westminster.

We printed a communication yesterday, from a settler on the Scott Road, who signs his own name to the article, complaining, very justly, it would appear, of the present condition of that important highway, and of the manner in which a certain sum of $400 appropriated by the government for the purpose has been expended. Whoever is to blame for the way in which the work was done—as well as for the way it wasn't done—the statements of our correspondent, which we are convinced are true and honest statements of fact, show a deplorable condition of the thoroughfare in question, and one that should be remedied with as little delay as possible. As the government, it would appear, have expended $400 on this road, and the money is said to have been misapplied and, to a considerable extent, wasted, we would recommend the authorities to look into the matter, at least, and ascertain who is to blame, so that a recurrence of such practices may be prevented According to our correspondent there must be something rotten somewhere with regard to the expenditure of the $400 mentioned upon the Scott Road this season, and the mismanagement, or worse, wherever it may lie, should be exposed, and corrected. The road itself is a most important one. Three different stages make several trips a week each over this road, connecting with Blaine and Whatcom. Many farmers south of the river find it the most convenient route to town; it is the mail route also for half-a dozen agricultural settlements, and the travel, by horses and vehicles particularly, is constantly increasing. The necessity of keeping this road in good repair will thus be plainly apparent, and we trust that the government will not only undertake to do so, but may succeed better in the future than in the past. The present system of road work, however, whereby a road like the Scott Road appears to fall to the ground between the government and the rural municipalities through which it passes, is far from satisfactory. It is extremely difficult, too, to properly administer road making and repairs all over the province from any one centre, much less, an excentric point like the island capital. As we have more than once urged, it is about time that some distribution of the province into counties was undertaken, thus decentralizing road, school, and other matters, and putting them under the immediate control of the communities interested. The advantages of such a system are obvious, and we hope to see our legislators moving in the matter very soon.

Some new light has been thrown on the relations of labor and capital. The Evangelical Alliance convention held in Montreal recently took up the labor question, and some rather unusual phases of the subject were ventilated in a lucid and commonsense manner. The Montreal Witness says: The labor question has been the subject of a series of interesting papers at the meetings of the Evangelical Alliance. That of Mr. Hague, of this city, knocked a great many current fallacies on the head. The currency of these fallacies proves the superficiality of the thinking on this subject. It is a most misleading fallacy to speak of the question of employment as that of capital and labor. The workers are often capitalists. The employed are often far richer than their employer, who may be carrying on business for years on the strength of the confidence reposed in him and with less than no money that he can call his own. Another fallacy underlies the frequent talk about the laborer having a right to a larger share of the proceeds of his labor than is secured by the wage system. It is best illustrated by a few actual facts. A magnificent factory started ten years ago has not yielded the first cent of dividend and may never do so. So far as appears, the money sunk in it is a pure loss to the capitalists. The principle of giving the laborer his share with capital would have deducted all this lost capital from the wages of the operatives who have simply been living on it all these years. An honest man pluckily carried on a most useful business for six years at a loss of fifty thousand dollars a year, hoping always to carry it to a success, but had then to give it up. He had, perhaps, fifty employees, old and young. Had these shared with him they would have had to await the end of each year to learn what they were to get, only to learn that they owed the creditors of the business, or the capitalist investors, an average of a thousand dollars apiece, a sum which they could never hope to pay. Some businesses succeed, and some do not. Even successful business is some years carried on at a loss. On the average, it is fairly presumable the wage-earner gets, at least, his full share of the proceeds of his labor, with the advantage that it comes to him regularly and with tolerable certainty. Speaking generally with regard to the public works of Canada, Mr. Hague declared that the workmen who have built them have received actually forty millions more money than the product of their labor is worth on any commercial valuation. They would, if they had been paid the full market value of what they produced, have received that much less reward for their labor than they actually got. A third fallacy lies under the common opinion that the organization of labor has bettered the condition of the laborer. Mr. Hague arrayed a series of facts leading to the opposite conclusions, at which he had arrived as the result of intimate knowledge and close observation for very many years. He was convinced that what raised the workingman was probity, sobriety, diligence and education, and that taking part in the wars unhappily existing between those whose interests were necessarily one, was neither Christian nor profitable to either party. Combinations of labor against capital, so-called, are simply efforts to corner the labor market and sell it at prices from which the safeguard of competition is shut out. Combinations of employers are, similarly, efforts to corner the wage market against the working-class. The great corner, however, is that in land, which, being united in all old countries, enables its holders to tyrannize over those whose sentiments or whose poverty kept them from seeking it elsewhere and forces them to pay rent for land which they themselves have made and for houses they have built at their own cost. The conditions of free contract being so much affected by these limitations it has been held necessary in Ireland and other countries to make legal regulations to secure to the working class its fair share in the products of its toil. As regards the duties of Christianity to this question it is only necessary to apply the Golden Rule to every transaction and every relation to dispel all fratricidal strife. This is not only what Christianity aims at, but what, happily, it is actually doing more and more.

Your Children

Are constantly exposed to danger from Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, and diseases peculiar to the throat and lungs. For such ailments, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, promptly administered, affords speedy relief and cure.

As a remedy for Whooping Cough, with which many of our children were afflicted, we used, during the past winter, with much satisfaction, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. For this affection, we consider this preparation the most efficacious of all the medicines which have come to our knowledge.—Mary Parkhurst, Preceptress, Home for Little Wanderers, Doncaster, Md.

My children have been peculiarly subject to attacks of Croup, and I failed to find any effective remedy until I commenced administering Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. This preparation relieves the difficulty of breathing and invariably cures the complaint.—David G. Starks, Chatham, Columbia Co., N. Y.

I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for many years, and have found it especially valuable in Whooping Cough. This medicine allays all irritation, prevents inflammation from extending to the lungs, and quickly subdues any tendency to Lung Complaint. —J. B. Wellington, Plainville, Mich.

I find no medicine so effective, for Croup and Whooping Cough, as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It saved the life of my little boy, only six months old, carrying him safely through the worst case of Whooping Cough I ever saw.—Jane Malone, Piney Flats, Tenn. ††

LOVE IN LODGINGS.

When I hired lodgings at Mme. Hampton's I had no idea that she owned so precious a thing as a daughter.

Not that it would have made any difference if I had known it. I had become indifferent to women; they interested me only as a trivial in study. I neither sought nor avoided them; those whom fate threw into my way I placed under my mental microscope, not caring much for what it revealed.

My indifference, however, did not arise from any lost illusions. I had never been in love, and it never occurred to me that the thing was possible. I had been on friendly terms with blonde and brunette, with the prude and coquette, the clever and the designing; but I had forgotten their existence half an hour later.

Mme. Hampton herself had never left her room; she was doubtless dying, but she had been so long about it, and made so little circumstance about it, that no one gave it a thought, it would seem. She saw her lodgers, and arranged terms, and sent in the bills; and yet the house and all its appointments seemed to share the order of the planetary system.

The motive power was madame's daughter. I involuntarily pictured her, since we always picture those who appeal individually to us in any way, as a coarse featured woman, with "silver threads among the gold," a face more or less wrinkled, a sharp voice, big, rough hands, and a genius for snubbing the servants and haggling with butcher and baker.

On entering the madame's room one day in order to settle my account, according to the custom of the house, I beheld a slender being before the open fire, with one tiny hand on the mantel. A lavender gown turned the knot of yellow hair at the back of her head, from which some curls escaped, into pure gold.

There was an air of luxury and leisure about her which was simply delicious in view of the facts.

"My daughter," said madame presently. "Estelle, this is Mr. Van Huysam; you have heard me speak of him."

"Indeed, I might say I have heard you speak of no one else." Plainly the old lady had been singing my praises, and the young one did not fancy the tune.

I do not know what chord thrilled in my heart at these words, in that soft minor voice, capable of all melody of terse expression, nor how I got myself out of the room. A man who has received a fatal bullet in the breast does not recognize the sensation, for the reason that he has never experienced it before; he does not know its import.

We met often after this, always by accident, it would seem, on the staircase, in the hall, and finally one night I made so bold as to knock at the door of her music room. She welcomed me with her haughty cordiality, if haughtiness can be cordial.

There were three or four young men already in possession, but she placed her seat near my own, and while she anon threw out javelins of wit for the general benefit, I received the lion's share of attention. This was flattering to my amour propre. But still, whenever I repeated my call, I had to wrestle with a handful of younger men for the supremacy.

I must confess that before I reached this point I had been obliged to wrestle with myself to overcome a prejudice. A Van Huysam in love with his landlady's daughter was an anomaly.

What would my family and friends say to such an affair? With what eyes would they regard it?

What would Miss Douglass think, for whom I had been destined, but who had been a hobbledehoy girl of thirteen when I had last seen her? Of course she would care nothing for me; it would be a wound to her vanity at the most; I had never intended to marry her; I had never consented, in fact; that bony, shy school girl, with the big eyes and lank figure, had never appealed to me; I had never been able to forgive her for stammering and blushing. Besides, there had been some rumor that the coffers of the family had suffered during their sojourn abroad, and that I had lost sight of them through their own negligence.

But a landlady's daughter! The idea would wither all my acquaintances. However, love not only laughs at locksmiths, but at one's relations. When I sunned myself in Estelle's presence I cared no more for the world's opinion, or for that of any Van Huysam but myself, than for the inhabitants of Flatland; but once away from that subtle magnetism, then my poles changed.

I saw a thousand reasons for giving her up—if one can be said to give up what one does not possess. Such a thing as a Van Huysam marrying out of his sphere never had been known in the family annals. But how did I know that Estelle would marry me? To be sure, if I had been quite certain of that perhaps I should have hesitated and proceeded further. The far-off, unattainable and dim is dear to the soul of man—at least till it is his to take or leave.

One day, when we were reading a new poem together, a card was brought in.

"Tell Mr. Chester that I am engaged and cannot see him to-night," I overheard her say to the servant. "Mr. Chester does not appreciate our author," she apologized to me, "and I am not self-sacrificing enough to accept him in exchange for Browning."

It occurred to me at that time that there were other young men belonging to aristocratic families who had no fear of a mesalliance with the landlady's daughter, although to be sure they might be simply amusing themselves, as gilded youth are wont to do.

Estelle would never go out with me; she had no chaperon, she said. I wondered what my sister-in-law would answer should I write her to chaperon my landlady's daughter to Lohengrin, she who chaperoned only the very elect, so to speak.

One evening the conversation drifted into the subject of marriage. Mr. Chester and some others were present and led the theme.

"I would marry the woman I loved," said Mr. Chester, "if she were a beggar, and my father disinherited me on the spot."

"Beggary signifies nothing," returned another. "One would not ask has she a dot, but has she blue blood."

"An ancestral tree, in short, with more roots than branches," spoke a third. "As for myself, I confess I should prefer my wife to belong to the impecunious old families rather than to the noveau riche. Poor Bishop, how his world came down upon him when he fell in love with a shopgirl, with neither blood nor bullion, his mother, especially! But Bishop stood to his guns; it must have taken a lot of pluck to weather all he did from friend and foe."

"You call that pluck?" said Chester. "I call it obstinacy in his case. It was such an easy thing for Bishop to fall in love that he might have pleased his mother and given up the girl."

"And what do you think, Mr. Van Huysam?" asked Estelle.

"I? I think Bishop was a fool; that is—I mean—there may be exceptional shopgirls who have all the refinement and cultivation, all the traditions of good breeding in the world; but Bishop's choice was not one of these. She was simply beautiful, and he was a fool to allow himself, at his age, to be hoodwinked, so to speak, by mere flesh and blood."

"I quite agree with you," she said.

I could have bitten my tongue out when I called Bishop a fool—in fact, the whole conversation had seemed malapropos to me, and I went away with a sense of defeat. But how could I tell her that although I might draw the line at the shop girl, marrying a landlady's daughter was quite another affair?

Every day, to be sure, I made up my mind that I would seek Estelle no more; that the difficulties in the case were too great to be surmounted; but every day, all the same, found me beside her, without self-denial enough to resign the infinite charm of her presence, and yet too weak of will to accept all the consequences of such an alliance.

You will say that if I could thus judge and weigh circumstances I was not in love. I am certain that in time I should have overcome all obstacles, that the nobility within me would have got the better of any meaner qualities, but every man's nature or temperament is in a manner his own fate. Had I not been quite certain at this time that I pleased Estelle, in spite of her gentle hauteur, perhaps I should have been able to overcome my social scruples sooner.

A few weeks later I was called away on business, and it was a month or more before I found it convenient to return. During that time I had written to Estelle more than once, without, however, receiving any reply. Yet I was sure that she was mine, that I had only to speak; and I meant to speak at last—to speak so eloquently that she would not remember the silence had been long.

I went first to pay my respects to Mme. Hampton.

"I have been making my will," she said, after a little.

"Your will, madame?"

"Yes. I have other heirs besides Estelle, who may dispute it. They will contend that I am—what you may call a 'crank.' But I had a method in my madness. I beg you to be my executor."

"I am at your service, madame."

"Thank you. I leave the bulk of my property to Estelle."

"The bulk!" I repeated. "You have found your business remunerative?"

She chuckled audibly. "I have found it entertaining, enlightening," she answered. "It has paid me? Yes. I have discovered who are my friends. I must tell you that Estelle is not my daughter."

"Not your daughter?"

"Are you disappointed? When her father died abroad, insolvent, I was at hand. We were both drinking the waters at some German spa. Long ago I had been going to marry Mr. Douglass, her father."

"Mr. Douglass?"

"Yes. Does the name offend you? When he died I promised to take Estelle if I might give her my name and money. There was literally nothing left from the estate for her to live upon."

"However, when I returned from Europe I returned a pauper, so to speak. Do you follow me? I allowed myself a little masquerade; I deceived even Estelle, but I have never deprived her of a luxury; even the lace on her handkerchief is real.

"She often marvels that the business is so good. I have held the purse, and she has been glad to work with me. But my friends were too indignant at my misfortunes to lend me aid. What business had I to lose the money which they might have inherited? And adopt a daughter?

"They wanted me to place Estelle in a shop—Estelle! How I laughed in my sleeve! I am now about to retire from business; the doctor has advised me to make my will. You will find Estelle in the music room."

I entered the music room without knocking, according to my habit. Estelle sat with her mandolin on her lap, but every chord had been snapped in the last stormy touch.

"You have returned," she said, smiling as a ghost may smile.

"Yes. I have come to tell you—what you already know—I love you. Estelle, I have loved you since I first met you; yes, and before. I loved you before I knew that you existed. It must be so, because I have never loved till now. You do not doubt it?"

"No, I do not doubt it; I know that you love me, Mr. Van Huysam; and I know that your love must be great, since it has overcome every conventional scruple in your heart."

"My darling Estelle, I was sure you loved me; it is that which has given me courage."

I would have taken her in my arms and kissed that perfect cheek where the rose was just beginning to blossom, but she escaped me.

"You knew that I loved you," she repeated. "Mr. Van Huysam, I don't mind confessing that there was indeed a time when I loved you better than life. At least, I believe so. At that moment I thought you loved me."

"I did, I do love you, Estelle," I protested.

"Yes. Then I would have loved you forever. Then I could have died, for you, lived for you. One day I awoke. I saw that you could not love me or nothing on earth could keep you silent. You did not see how I suffered. Then my heart broke. Do you know what it is to have a broken heart? It is to have lost the power to love any one again. I have read somewhere that a man never loves the same woman twice."

"But you—I love you. Listen, Estelle, time will—"

But she smiled sadly. "I thank you; I forgive you," she said. "I would love you if I could."

And then the servant announced Mr. Chester.

SELF CONTROL,

Its Expression in the Use of the Hands.

There are few people who possess that absolute repose which marks the "Vere de Vere."

A person may be outwardly calm and self-possessed under all conditions and yet find a peculiar sustaining quality and moral support in some small article held in the hand. In this case a woman has the advantage over the sterner sex, as there are countless smelling bottles, bon bonnieres and the all powerful fan especially designed for the use of nervous feminine hands.

A man plays with his knife, fingers his watch chain or flutters his handkerchief, and there are few who quite know what to do with their hands when they are entirely unoccupied.

Lawyers are keen observers of human idiosyncracies and one of them in relating a story of a client gave as a point of interest the fact of the absolute repose and quiet of the client's hands. The case was important and the one one most interested was a woman.

In talking the matter over with her the lawyer observed with surprise that she kept her hands empty and absolutely quiet. They were not even folded together, but lay in repose on her lap throughout the whole conversation.

The circumstance was an unusual one, as there are few who possess sufficient self control not to feel an increased sense of confidence and self assurance when the hands are supplied with some small article, which seems to render them less obtrusive and takes away any feeling of responsibility their owner may have regarding them.

A Drawback to His Sobriety.

"Why, what is the matter?" asked a lady of a friend whose eyes were red from recent tears.

"Oh, I'm—boo-hoo—in such trouble."

"What has happened? Something dreadful, I am sure."

"Yes. It was something d-dreadful."

"What is it? Has your husband been drinking harder than usual?"

"No, that's just it. He has signed the pledge, and he is so disagreeable when he is sober."

Scrofula

Is one of the most fatal scourges which afflict mankind. It is often inherited, but may be the result of improper vaccination, mercurial poison, uncleanliness, and various other causes. Chronic Sores, Ulcers, Abscesses, Cancerous Humors, and, in some cases, Emaciation and Consumption, result from a scrofulous condition of the blood. This disease can be cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

I inherited a scrofulous condition of the blood, which caused a derangement of my whole system. After taking less than four bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla I am and, for the past year, have not found it necessary to use any medicine whatever. I am now in better health, and stronger, than ever before.—O. A. Willard, 216 Tremont st., Boston, Mass.

I was troubled with Scrofulous Sores for five years; but, after using a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the sores healed, and I have now good health.—Elizabeth Warnock, 54 Appleton street, Lowell, Mass.

Some months ago I was troubled with Scrofulous Sores on my leg. The limb was badly swollen and inflamed, and the sores discharged large quantities of offensive matter. Every remedy failed until I used Ayer's Sarsaparilla. By taking three bottles of this medicine the sores have been healed, and my health is restored. I am grateful for the good it has done me.—Mrs. Ann O'Brian, 158 Sullivan st., New York. ††

THE ATTENTION OF THE PUBLIC is hereby directed to the "Provincial Health (small-pox) By-Laws, 1888," issued by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, under authority of the "Health Ordinance, 1869."

Having been appointed Provincial Health Officer for Districts lying south of Fraser River, I hereby give notice that the provisions of said By-Laws will be strictly enforced, and all persons are required to govern themselves accordingly.

R. I. BENTLEY, M. B.,
Provincial Health Officer.

New West., Oct. 6, 1888. doc6ml

BY-LAWS ISSUED BY HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR-IN COUNCIL,

HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT-Governor of British Columbia, by and with the advice of the Executive Council of British Columbia, acting under and by virtue of the provisions of the "Health Ordinance, 1869," enacts as follows:—

1. Whenever small-pox is present in any locality without the boundaries of any Municipality, the Provincial Health Officer nearest to such locality shall at once cause the patient to be removed to an isolated hospital, tent or other suitable place, or cause such person to be otherwise sufficiently isolated, and shall see that he is properly cared for, and shall take proper measures for the disinfection, or, if necessary, the destruction of all clothing which may have been exposed to the contagion, and for the disinfection and purification of every conveyance, rail-car, steamboat, railway vessel, carriage, or other vehicle which may have been exposed to the contagion.

2. Such Health Officer shall have, in his discretion, full power to place in another building or tent all persons who may have been exposed to the contagion, and shall cause them to be supplied with all necessaries until the period of incubation of the disease shall have elapsed, and no such person shall go, or be permitted to go, abroad, until he or she has given satisfactory proof of successful vaccination within the preceding seven years, or shall have obtained a medical certificate of insusceptibility to the vaccine disease, nor until the clothing or effects worn or carried by or with him or her have been properly disinfected, if the same have been exposed to contagion.

3. To assist the Health Officer, he shall have full power to employ persons to be nurses, sanitary policemen, and other wise to aid in the prevention of the spread of the disease, and may himself give and enforce such reasonable directions for the same purpose as to him may seem expedient, and the nearest Government Agent shall see that all articles and necessaries required by the Health Officer are furnished.

4. It shall be the duty of every medical practitioner who shall attend upon, or give medical or surgical advice, to or about any person suffering from small-pox, to give notice forthwith after he shall have commenced so to attend or give such advice, to the nearest Provincial Health Officer. 5. The Provincial Health Officer before mentioned is and includes any person appointed Health Officer under the "Health Ordinance, 1869," by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

6. The foregoing provisions shall have no effect within the limits of any Municipality, save as hereinafter mentioned.

7. In case the Council of any Municipality, whenever small-pox is present, or likely to occur therein, shall fail to make or carry out proper provisions to prevent the invasion or spread of small-pox within the Municipality, and complaint thereof shall be made to the Lieutenant-Governor by the Council of any adjacent Municipality, it shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, acting upon such complaint or in his discretion upon other information, to order that these regulations shall, until otherwise ordered, apply to and be in force within the Municipality in which such neglect occurs, and thereupon any Provincial Health Officer shall have, within and in respect of such Municipality all the authority with which he is clothed in respect of localities without Municipalities, and in such case all disbursements and expenses paid by the Province, in the carrying out within such Municipality of the foregoing regulations, shall be paid by such Municipality.

8. These regulations may be cited as the "Provincial Health (small-pox) By-Laws, 1888."

The Whatcom Democrat, in the following paragraph, no doubt voices a sigh of relief that will be fervently sighed all over the United States: So far as it is concerned the Democrat closes the campaign with this issue. It will be a relief to have the great political battle ended. The result will be the all-absorbing topic next week.

Seattle is preparing for Mr. Moody. The Seattle Press says: The union choir, for Moody's meetings, organized on Friday evening with Professor Geddes as leader. Upwards of fifty were present. The next meeting for rehersal will be on Monday evening at 8 o'clock, at Plymouth church. More Christian singers are wanted. Each one should be provided with Gospel Hymns No. 5.

The Westminster football club leaves for Victoria on Friday to play the Victoria club. It is to be hoped employers will place no obstacles in the way of any members of the first team taking part in the match, as it is most important that Westminster should hold the championship against the province. The following is the team selected: Rev. P. Woods, Bell, Parkes, Whyte, Greame, Turner, Lister, Hamber, Hall, McMartin, Pickles, Smith, Cameron, Mowat and Wilson.

Good Words.

The proprietors of THE COLUMBIAN, keeping pace with the progress of the Royal city, have enlarged their paper, which is now more than ever a credit to a city the size of New Westminster. The people seem to appreciate this enterprise and support their local paper in a very handsome manner. That is where their head is level.—Vic. Times.

Railway Debentures Trust.

At a meeting of the trustees appointed by the city to control the payment of the railway debentures to the company, held yesterday afternoon, Mayor Dickinson was chosen president and Mr. Jas. Cunningham vice-president of the trust. It was decided that five members from a quorum and that 24 hours notice be given all members of any intended meeting. The meetings will take place in the Masonic building. The signature of the president and two members of the trust will be necessary on all cheques passed by the meeting.

British Columbia Represented.

At the convention of the W. C. T. U. of Ontario which met at Sarnia, Ont., last month, there was present a delegate from British Columbia in the person of Miss Mildred Major, of this city. The Woman's Journal says. "A letter was read from Mrs. Cunningham, president of the B. C. W. C. T. U., introducing Miss Mildred Major, New Westminster, as the fraternal delegate from that province. Miss Major, who is a bright, sweet-looking young girl, thanked the ladies in a few earnest words and conveyed the greetings of her province. She was received by the convention standing."

A Large Potato.

Potatoes throughout the district have been large this year much to the regret of the farmers who prefer medium size to mammoths, as a better price is obtained. The largest potato we have seen this year was laid on our table to-day by Mr. A. Murphy of Clover Valley, grown on his farm, but which he did not think much out of the ordinary till he saw an item in a Barrie, Ont, paper challenging anyone to beat two potatoes weighing 2lbs. 10 oz. each. The potato grown by Mr. Murphy is of the early rose variety and weighs exactly 4lbs. 2ozs.—which weight will be pretty hardto beat anywhere.

Change of Time.

On Sunday next the running time of the local train between Westminster and Vancouver will be considerably changed, and another change added to the service, which will bring it back to what it was before the last change. Trains will leave Westminster for Vancouver at 7:40 a.m., 1 p.m. and 4 p.m., and returning will arrive from Vancouver at 11:20 a.m., 2:10 p.m. and 8 p.m. There will be no connection for Vancouver on Saturday or for Montreal on Monday by the 1 o'clock train. This service will be ample to meet all requirements and is superior to any established since the trains commenced running. Vancouverites will now be able to spend nearly five hours in Westminster instead of two hours as at present.

He Hung Himself.

Yesterday's Vancouver World says: At an early hour this morning a horrible discovery was made in a cabin on False Creek near Westminster Ave. W. B. Steele, who works in the C. P. R. workshops, found, on entering the cabin of a man named Harold Sheppard, that the latter had hung himself by the neck with a cord, and was quite dead when found. He had fixed up blocks under his feet and had evidently jumped off them. Sheppard was formerly a workman in the C.P.R. shops, and has a cousin named John Ward in Victoria. The sum of $15.60 was found in his pockets. He wore a silver watch and chain. Most of his other personal property was found in his box. A telegram has been sent to his cousin at Victoria. The coroner will hold an inquest.

Chicken Stealing Again.

Last night the hen house of Mr. Bailie Ross was visited by the Chinese chicken stealing association and every bird taken away. The thieves made no noise and the first intimation Mr. Ross had of the robbery was when he visited the hen house this morning. Mr. J. A. Gordon's hen house was also visited and every bird, all valuable Leghorns, stolen. No trace of the robbers was found, but a large number of burnt matches gave evidence that they were not at all frightened of being caught. The residents of the upper portion of the city consider themselves as fully entitled to police protection as the people down town and they think a special constable should be appointed for a few months to patrol from Agnes street upwards. It is certainly too bad that no steps have been taken to put down this class of stealing, but it is impossible to better the present state of affairs without an increased police force.

Prison Prosperity.

Mr. J. G. Moylan, inspector of penitentiaries, was interviewed at Ottawa on his return from a visit of inspection to the New Westminster and Manitoba penitentiaries and Regina jail. In regard to the institution at New Westminster, Mr. Moylan stated the discipline was excellent and the administration carried on with due regard to economy. The penitentiry property has been enormously enhanced in value during the past 10 years, almost five hundred per cent., through the instrumentality of convict labor, judiciously employed. Ten years ago the site of the penitentiary was one of the wildest spots possible, now the grounds are cultivated and the convicts produce potatoes and vegetables necessary for prison consumption. Crime in British Columbia has decreased. The penitentiary contains a less number of prisoners than formerly, being very marked since the completion of the C. P. R., when the large gang of Chinamen employed in the work of construction broke up, some going into the interior provinces and others passed into the United States.

MR. MOODY'S MEETINGS.

The largest crowd yet assembled in Herring's opera house was gathered together last night to listen to Mr. Moody. The crush was so great that nearly 200 people were obliged to find seats on the stage. It is estimated fully 1600 people were present. Several hymns were sung by the choir and prayers were offered by Mr. Winslow, Mr. Moody and Rev. Mr. Scouler. "To-night" said Mr. Moody, "I want to call your attention to some bible illustrations. Some years ago in Manchester, England, I was talking to some men at a meeting and saw a man looking at me who looked like a sceptic. Pretty soon I saw a tear gather in his eye and turning to him I asked: 'Are you a Christian?' and the answer was 'No'. I talked to him a long time and gave many illustrations but none seemed to strike him. Finally I asked, 'which do you think saved Noah—his feelings or the ark?' 'That settles it,' said he, 'good night.' He turned away and left me bewildered—it was quicker than I was accustomed to. Remember friends it isn't your feelings that will save you, it is the ark. God provides an ark for every soul here—and thank God we have not got to work a hundred years to make the ark, as Noah did. God provides an ark for all—it is ready—all you have got to do is to step in and you are saved. The door stands wide open, so don't hesitate but accept the offer. Last night I was preaching on John, and the serpent lifted up by Moses in the wilderness. When the children of Israel had been bitten by the fiery serpents all they had to do was to cast their eyes on the brazen serpent and they were cured. A moment before they were suffering all the agonies and torments of hell, but, behold, they look on the serpent and they are new men again. God provided this remedy when the children of Israel acknowledged their sins. It is the same with the people here—confess your sins and God will raise up a remedy for you. It seems strange to raise a serpent on a pole! How the doctors of New Westminster would laugh at such a remedy if they happened to be sceptics. Imagine a mother carefully and tenderly watching over her son who has been bitten by the fiery serpent and whose life is slowly passing away. She expected the strong young man would close her eyes when death overtook her but now she is called on to close his. How tenderly and lovingly she watches her boy, how her heart wrings with anguish as she sees him there, stretched out on the bed helpless and dying, with no hope of being saved. Suddenly there is a great shout heard through the camp. What does it mean? She goes out and inquires and the people tell her that the serpent has been raised up and all who look upon it will be saved. She rushes back to the tent and tells her son. 'But I haven't strength,' says he, 'to go out and look at it.' 'Never mind,' says the mother, 'I will carry you.' He is carried out and sees the sign and is cured—saved by a look. Don't you think it is a grand thing to be saved by a look? Some doubters would not be saved because they would not look. Friends gathered round the death bed and urged him to take just one look and he would be saved. They told how a look had saved their lives, but could not convince him that it was true or possible. And when that man died whose fault was it? There is a drunkard in this hall—has been a confirmed drunkard for 5 years. He has a wife and several children and beats them. His home is a perfect little hell. His children run and hide when he goes home. That man comes here to-night, hears the news, accepts the light and leaves the room a different man from when he entered. He goes home and asks his wife if she has a bible. She has and he asks her to read about the serpent, and then she reads that God so loved the world that he sent his only begotten Son to save men. Then he explains to his poor wife how he had been saved and was determined to lead a better life. They go down on their knees together and pray a short prayer. Does God listen to this prayer? Yes, he stops every harp in heaven in order to hear that drunkard's appeal. The prayer is answered and three months later that hovel has been changed into a little paradise. The children don't run away from him now but rush to embrace him. Scenes like this are constantly taking place all over the country. Temperence pledges and blue ribbon societies are all right, but not half enough. You want the Son of God to be with you and aid you when a reform in life is necessary. Now friends come to God to-night, come while there is a chance. In a few days we may all be in the grave. If every man had 6 months to get saved in how many would be saved? You remember the days of slavery in the United States. When escaped slaves were taken out of Boston, Philadelphia and other cities in free states and taken back to bondage in the south. They were not free in those northern states, but those who reached the northern boundary and stepped under the folds of the Union Jack then they were free men. Free from their cruel masters and the bloodhounds that had followed for many a weary day. The Union Jack waved over them and they were free men. So my friends come to-night—come under the banner of heaven—it is floating for you to take refuge under it and be saved."

The speaker continued at some length giving many apt illustrations and holding the interest of the large audience to the end. A special service was afterwards held in the Methodist church and was largely attended.

Successful meetings were held this morning and afternoon in the Baptist and Methodist churches, as usual, but lack of space prevents us from noticing them more at length.

A meeting will be held to-night at 8 o'clock in the opera house, and the final meeting will be held to-morrow morning at the usual time.

Press Opinions.

The following extracts from the press of the coast concerning Mr. Woodford, the renowned temperance and evangelistic speaker, who is expected in the city shortly, will be of interest:

"Mr. Woodford's subject matter was at once eloquent and convincing. Since the death of J. B. Gough he is regarded as the superior of any speaker on the temperance platform."—Daily Examiner, (San Francisco, Cal.)

"Those who hear him once, do not fail to come the second time. His speech is its own best advertisement. We never heard a lecturer who is more concise; there is not a redundant word."—Portland Oregonian.

"For ten days Mr. Woodford has been addressing large audiences in the old Standard theatre. The audiences have consisted mainly of working men, and many drinking men have attended. Woodford is an orator of much power, originality and native 'genius.'"—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

A Schooner Wrecked.

The schooner Eliza, of New Westminster, Capt. Hett, which arrived last evening with a heavy cargo of oats from Mud Bay, reports sighting an abandoned sloop, evidently of about three tons, at about 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, between Seabird and San Juan Islands. The sloop was drifting northward, stern down and bow up, her jib sheet flying and main sheet fouled. At first she was taken for an Indian canoe or a floating tree, but as the Eliza came nearer her captain clearly saw that what had at first been taken for a floating tree was the sail lying on the water. The first attempt to pick up the sloop failed, but on the second she was captured and taken in tow, Captain Hett intending to bring her in with him to Victoria. The sloop was deep in the water, had no name on her bow, or anywhere else that could be seen. Her bottom was coppered, her decks painted green, and the hull white. Nothing about her would lead to any knowledge of her name or port. Her four oars were drifting in the rowlocks, and her sails were evidently nearly new. The sloop was towed for about three miles, when Capt. Hett, seeing signs of an approaching storm and being heavily loaded, was compelled to drop his prize in order to avail himself of the little wind left and get into port. The sloop will probably drift back to near where she was found with the tide.—Colonist.
