GENERAL FLOAT

Only 11 days until Christmas.

Vancouver now claims a population of 80,000.

Eugene V. Debbs is 52 years of age, but he does not look to be over 40.

The next convention of the American Federation of Labor will be held in Denver.

The St. Eugene arbitration commission will meet in Nelson next Thursday, December 19th, Marysville can boast of a weekly newspaper, the News, edited by E. J. Clayton. The typesetting and press work is done at Caron, Sask.

The Republican national committee voted in favor of Chicago being the city in which the national convention will be held June 16th.

It requires five hours operation daily to keep the water out of the Dominion Copper Co.'s Brooklyn mine, a number seven Cameron pump being used for the purpose.

The American Smelting and Refining company announces that it will resume the buying of all custom ores. This will mean the resumption of many mines in Montana which have been closed down.

The Vancouver city council has taken up the question of providing for the unemployed whites. It was decided to make an emergency appropriation of three thousand dollars to provide relief work in clearing the streets, the men being paid 20 cents per hour. It was also arranged to establish a municipal employment bureau and a temporary shelter and food for the men, pending the starting up of work.

Rev. Dunn Married.

The following item clipped from the Fernie Free Press will be read with interest by a large number of Moyie people, as Mr. Dunn was the first Presbyterian missionary to have charge of this field:

Rev. Alex. Dunn and Miss Ida Jessie Evans were married in Guelph on Tuesday, Dec. 3. The happy couple will sail from New York, via the Mediterranean, for India, where Rev. Dunn has accepted a professorship in the Presbyterian College at Calcutta. The bride is a sister of Mrs. A. C. Liphardt and of Mrs. L. Stabler, formerly of Fernie. Rev. Alex. Dunn is well known in Fernie having been pastor of the Presbyterian Church here in the early days and again just before the Rev. Grant took charge.

Stewart to Marry.

R. H. Stewart, manager of the mines of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. of Canada, left on Saturday for the purpose of taking a well earned vacation. He will first visit Ottawa and New York and other places, and about Christmas is to be married to Miss A. Will, of Toronto. A tour of the leading countries of Europe will constitute the wedding trip. Under the circumstances, the time of his return is uncertain. At the conclusion of the wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will settle down permanently in Rossland.—Miner.

Building New Planer.

A new planing mill is now in course of erection at the mill of the Porto Rico Lumber company. It adjoins the old mill, and will be 48x100 feet in size. The company is taking out more logs than ever this winter and is preparing for the largest run in its history next season.

CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY.

Moyie Miners' Union celebrated its eighth anniversary Thursday evening by giving a grand ball, which proved a most enjoyable affair. Financially, too, it was a success, for after paying all expenses the treasury of the union will be "fattened" to the extent of about $100. Too much praise cannot be given the different committees who had in hand the management of this year's dance. There was nothing neglected. Morley hall was never decorated as it was that night, and the members of the floor committee were ever on the alert to make strangers acquainted and to look after the general welfare of the dancers.

The Moyie union is one of the strongest in the Western Federation of Miners in Canada. It has a membership 350 and has $2,500 in the bank on deposit, besides a valuable lot in town. At the present time John Taylor is the president and Thos. E. Kelly the financial secretary.

Strike Called Off.

The executive board of the Western Federation of Miners at Denver has officially called off the strike in the Cripple Creek district of Colorado, giving as the reason the fact the camp is in need or skilled mine workers; and now, by calling off the strike, many union men employed "in less favorable places" can go to Cripple Creek and accept work without violating their union pledges.

The board also received a message from unions in British Columbia stating that the mine operators are attempting to reduce wages and asking advice in the matter. The reply was sent back to the union men to "stand pat." Acting Secretary Kirwan had the following to say:

"If the reduction as threatened is made in British Columbia more than six thousand skilled miners will lay down their tools and the mining industry of the Canadian west will be crippled."

Liard—Gibson Wedding.

The marriage of Mr. W. H. Laird, of Moyie, and Miss Gibson, of Qua A'Pelle, Sask., was solemnized at the English church in Cranbrook Tuesday evening, December 10th, Rev. Flewellyn officiating. Mr. Liard and his bride returned to Moyie the following day, and they are now residing in their home on south Victoria street, which Mr. Liard purchased recently from A. Stephensen. The Leader extends congratulations.

Leaving Kingsgate.

It is reported that D. J. Elmer is severing his connection with the hotel at Kingsgate, and will move to Vancouver about the first of the year. James Campbell, a C. P. R. dining car conductor, will be the new manager,

Preliminary Notice.

On Sunday' January 19th, Mrs. (Rev.) W. L. Hall of Fernie will preach in the Moyie Methodist church, and on Monday, January 20th there will be a social and lecture the full details of which will be given later.

A Home Made Happy by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

About two months ago our baby girl had measles which settled on her lungs and at last resulted in a severe attack of bronchitis. We had two doctors but no relief was obtained. Everybody thought she would die. I went to eight different stores to find a certain remedy which had been recommended to me and failed to get it, when one of the storekeepers insisted that I try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I did so and our baby is alive and well today. Geo. V. Smith, E, Holly Springs, N. C. For sale by The Moyie Drug & Stationery Co.

LOCAL ASSAYS

Mrs. Harry Steuart left Thursday for Spokane.

Prof. Arthur Stubbs, the pianist, is again in Moyie.

Mrs. Geo. Garden was taken to the hospital at Cranbrook Thursday.

There is almost three feet of snow at the St. Eugene upper workings.

Rev. Mr. Boulton, of the Methodist church, went to Creston last Sunday and held services,

Mrs. White, mother of Mrs. Goldwin Stewart, returned yesterday to her home at Calgary.

MacEachern & Macdonald are unloading a car of Anchor brand goods and Christmas groceries today.

Chas. Livesley is back to Moyie from his old home in Ontario, where he has been since last September.

Miss Jennie Arrowsmith of Creston was here this week visiting with Mr. and Mrs. G. A. M. Young.

Austin McLellan left the first of the week for his old home in P. E. I., where he will spend a portion of the winter.

J. A. Dewar, general manager of the Porto Rico Lumber company, was over from Nelson this week.

Miss Breta Peterson was up from Cranbrook this week to visit with her parents and to attend the Miners' Union ball.

Methodist church, Sunday next December 5th, the Rev. Wm. Boulton,s subjects will be: Morning at 11, "Fasting." Evening at 7:30, "Spiritual Madness."

Mr. E Tetrault, of Eureka, Mont., was in Moyie yesterday. He has been in Cranbrook for several days with his sister, Mrs. W. A. Boyd, who is still ill and is in the hospital.

J. H. Walsh, organizer for the Industrial workers of the World, delivered a lecture in McGregor hall Wednesday evening. The hall was well filled and Mr. Walsh proved himself an interesting speaker.

Last Night's Blaze.

What might have been a very disastrous fire last night in R. Campbell's store was nipped in the bud by the prompt action of the fire brigade. The fire started from an explosion of gasoline which Mr. Campbell was carrying, while at the same time he was carrying a lighted lantern. When he reached the back door he thoughtlessly held the can and the lantern in the one hand while he opened the door. The gas from the gasoline ignited and the explosion followed. Luckily there was only a small quanity of gasoline in the can, probably not over a quart. The alarm was quickly given and it was not long until there was a stream of water playing on the flames, but not before considerable damage was done. The office corner of the store was gutted and many of the goods in that portion of the store were scorched and ruined. The stock was fully insured. Mr. Campbell suffered some personal injury by having his hands slightly burned and his clothing singed.

No Clue to Murderer.

The police have no clue as yet as to the whereabouts of Mike Philips who is wanted for the murder Monte Lewis, the sporting woman who was murdered at Blairmore three weeks ago. A reward of $200 has been offered for the apprehension of Philips.

In Rossland, acting in sympathy with the reduced wage scale, the grocers have cut down their prices, but booze has not yet weakened. With or without water it is the same old price.

New Church Opened.

Moyie's new Presbyterian church was formally opened last Sunday morning, when the service was conducted by the Rev. G. A. Wilson of Vancouver, superintendent of missions for British Columbia, The evening service was conducted by Mr. G. H. Findlay of Trail, who was the former pastor,

Tuesday evening there was a supper and entertainment in the church, which was very well patronized by all denominations in the town. Short addresses were made by Mr. Wilson, Rev. Dr. White, superintendent of Methodist missions, Mr. Findlay, Mr. Boulton, Mr. McCree, the pastor, and Mr Sowerbutts.

The building is 24x40 feet in size and is neatly and substantially built. Most of the materal and labor were paid for as the work progressed, and there is now a very small indebtedness on it. The church was very tastefully decorated for the opening.

The Christmas Tree.

The ladies who are canvassing the town for subscriptions for the Christmas tree entertainment are receiving liberal donations and they are well satisfied so far as they have gone. Their fund was materially swelled by a donation of $10 from the St. Andrew's supper committee. The entertainment will be on Christmas night and will be held in Morley hall.

METAL MARKET.

NEW YORK—Bar silver, 55 cts. Lead, $4.75. Copper, 13¼ cts.
LONDON—Lead, £13, 17s. 6d.

Moyie's Manufacturing Industry

Moyie's reputation for having the biggest silver-lead mine in Canada is well established, and her immense lumbering industry is well known to all. She is again adding to her already won laurels. This time it is in the manufacture of beer—beer that is already making Moyie famous—famous as the Schlitz beer made Milwaukee. The Moyie Brewery has made wonderful strides since it changed management a few months ago. They have already doubled the output of their wholesome beverage, and have extended their trade to the neighboring towns. They will reach out farther as time goes on and increase their plant as the occasion requires. A special brew has just been turned out called "Lake Shore Export," which is proving a great favorite with the public.

Went Back to Work.

Almost a full force of men is again at work in the camps of the Porto Rico Lumber company out on Lamb creek. Last week about 40 of the 65 men quit because their pay was cut from $3.00 to $2.50 a day. After being around town for a few days most of the men reluctantly accepted the cut and went back to work.

AIKENSIDE

BY MARY J. HOLMES

Author of "Dora Deane," "The English Orphans," "Lena Rivers," "The Rector of St. Mark's," "Tempest and Sunshine," Etc.

The breakfast bell had rung twice while Guy was holding that interview with Agnes, and at last Mrs. Noah came up herself to learn the cause of the delay; standing in the hall, she heard a part of what was transpiring in the parlor. Mrs. Noah was proud and jealous of her master's dignity, and once or twice the thought had crossed her mind that perhaps when he came home Maddy would be treated more as some governesses were treated by their employers, but to have Agnes take the matter up was quite a different thing, and Mrs. Noah smiled with grim satisfaction, as she heard Guy issuing orders as to how Miss Clyde should be treated. Standing back to let Agnes pass, she waited a moment, and then, as if she had just come up, presented herself before Guy, asking if he were ready for breakfast.

"Yes, call Miss Clyde; tell her I sent for her," was Guy's answer, and forthwith Mrs. Noah repaired to Maddy's room, finding her still sobbing bitterly.

"I cannot go down," she said; "my face is all stains, and it's so dreadful, happening on Sunday, too. What would grandpa say?"

"You can wash off the stains. Come," Mrs. Noah said, pouring water into the bowl, and bidding Maddy hurry, "as Mr. Guy was waiting breakfast for her."

"But I am not to eat with them," Maddy began, when Mrs. Noah stopped her by explaining how Guy ruled that house, and Agnes had been completely routed.

This did not quiet Maddy particularly, and her heart beat painfully as she descended to the parlor, where Guy was still walking up and down.

"Come, Miss Clyde, Jessie is nearly famished," he said pleasantly, as Maddy appeared, and without the slightest reference to what had passed he drew Maddy's arm within his own, and giving a hand to Jessie, who had just come in, he went to the breakfast room, where Maddy was told to preside.

Guy watched her closely without seeming to do so, mentally deciding that she was neither vulgar nor awkward. On the contrary, he thought her very pretty, and very graceful for one so unaccustomed to society. Nothing was said of Agnes, who kept her room the entire day, and did not join the family until evening, when Guy sat upon the piazza with Jessie in his lap, while Maddy was not very far away. At first there was much constraint between Agnes and Maddy, but with Guy to manage, it soon wore away, and Agnes felt herself exceedingly amiable when she reflected how gracious she had been to her rival.

But Maddy could not so soon forget. All through the day the conviction had been settling upon her that she could not stay at Aikenside, and so on the following morning, just after breakfast was over, she summoned courage to ask Mr. Guy if she might talk with him. Leading the way to the library, he bade her sit down, while he took the chair opposite, and then waited for her to commence.

Maddy was afraid of Guy. He did not seem quite like Dr. Holbrook. He was haughtier in his appearance, while his rather elaborate style of dress and polished manners gave him, in her estimation, a kind of superiority over all the men she had ever met. Besides that, she remembered how his dark eyes had flashed when she told him what she did the previous day, and also that she had said to his face that she hated him. She could not bear to leave a bad impression on his mind, so the first words she said to him were:

'Mr. Remington, I can't stay here after all that has happened. It would not be pleasant for me or Mrs. Agnes, so I am going home, but I want you to forget what I said about hating you yesterday. I did not then know who you were. I don't hate you. I like you, and I want you to like me."

She did not look at him, for her eyelids were cast down, and her lashes were wet with tears she could scarcely keep from shedding. Guy had never known much about girls of Maddy's age, and there was something extremely fascinating in the artless simplicity of this half child, half woman, sitting there before him, and asking him so demurely to like her. She was very pretty, he thought and with proper culture would make a beautiful woman. Then, as he remembered his avowed intention of urging the doctor to make her his wife some day, the idea flashed upon him that it would be very generous, very magnanimous in him to educate that young girl expressly for the doctor, and though he hardly seemed to wait at all ere replying to Maddy, he had in the brief interval formed a skeleton plan, and seen it in all its bearings and triumphal result.

"I am much obliged for your liking me," he said, a little mischievously. "You surely have not much reason so to do when you recall the incidents of our first interview. Maddy—Miss Clyde—I have come to the conclusion that I knew less than you did, and I beg your pardon for annoying you so terribly."

Then, briefly, Guy explained to her how it all happened, blaming himself far more than he did the doctor, who, he said, had repented bitterly.

"Had you died, Miss Clyde, when you were so sick, I half believe he would have felt it his duty to die also. He likes you very much; more indeed than any patient I ever knew him to have," and Guy's eyes glanced curiously at Maddy to witness the effect his words might have upon her. But Maddy merely answered:

"Yes, I think he does like me, and I know I like him."

Mentally chiding himself for trying to find in Maddy's head an idea which evidently never was there, he began to speak of her proposition to leave, saying he should not suffer it, Jessie needed her and she must stay. She was not to mind the disagreeable things Mrs. Remington had said. She was tired and nervous, and so gave way to some very preposterous notions, which she had picked up somewhere. She would treat Maddy better hereafter, and she must stay. It was pleasanter for Jessie to have a companion so near her own age. Then, as he saw signs of yielding in Maddy's face, he continued:

"How would you like to turn scholar for a short time each day, I being your teacher? Time often hangs heavily upon my hands, and I fancy the novelty of the thing would suit me. I have books. I will appoint your lessons and the hour for recitation."

Guy's face was scarlet by the time he had finished speaking, for suddenly he remembered to have heard or read of a similar instance which resulted in the marriage of the teacher and pupil; besides that, it would subject him to so much remark, when it was known that he, the fashionable and fastidious Guy, was teaching a pretty, attractive girl like Maddy Clyde, and he sincerely hoped she would decline. But Maddy had no such intention. With her beautiful eyes full of tears, which shone like diamonds, as she lifted them to Guy's face, she said:

"Oh, I thank you so much. You could not make me happier, and I'll try so hard to learn. They don't teach such things at the district school; and when there was a high school in Honedale I could not go, for it was three dollars a quarter, and grandpa had no three dollars for me. Uncle Joseph needed help, and so I stayed at home. It's dreadful to be poor, but, perhaps I shall some time be competent to teach in a seminary, and won't that be grand? When may I begin?"

Guy had never met with so much frankness and simplicity in anyone, unless it were Lucy Atherstone, of whom Maddy reminded him somewhat, except that the latter was more practical, more—he hardly knew what—only there was a difference, and a thought crossed his mind that if Maddy had all Lucy's advantages, and was as old, she would be what the world calls smarter. There was no disparagement to Lucy in his thoughts, only a compliment to Maddy who was waiting for him to answer her question. There was no retracting now; he had offered his services; she had accepted; and with a mental comment "I dread doc's fun the most, so I'll explain to him how I am educating her for the future Mrs. Dr. Holbrook," he replied:

"As soon as I am rested from my journey, or sooner, if you like; and now tell me, please, who is this Uncle Joseph of whom you speak?"

He remembered what the doctor had said of a crazy uncle, but wishing to hear Maddy's version of it, put to her the question he did.

"Uncle Joseph is grandma's youngest brother," Maddy answered, "and he has been in the lunatic asylum for years. As long as his little property lasted, his bills were paid, but now they keep him from charity, only grandpa helps all he can, and buys some little nice things which he wants so badly, and sometimes cries for, they say. I picked berries all last summer, and sold them to buy him a thin coat and pants. We should have more to spend than we do, if it were not for Uncle Joseph," and Maddy's face wore a thoughtful expression as she recalled all the shifts and turns she'd seen made at home that the poor maniac might be more comfortable.

"What made him crazy?" Guy asked, and after a moment's hesitancy Maddy replied:

"I don't believe grandma would mind telling you, though she don't talk about it much. I only knew it a little while ago. He was disappointed once. He loved a girl very much, and she made him think that she loved him. She was many years younger than Uncle Joseph—about my age at first—and when she grew up she said she was sick of him because he was so much older. He wouldn't have felt so badly, if she had not gone straight off and married a rich man who was a great deal older than even Uncle Joseph; that was the hardest part, and he grew crazy at once. It has been so long that he never can be helped, and sometimes grandma talks of bringing him home, as he is perfectly harmless. I suppose it's wicked, but I must hope she won't, for it would be terrible to live with a crazy man," and a chill crept over Maddy, as if there had fallen upon her a foreshadowing of what might yet be. "Mr. Remington," she continued suddenly, "if you teach me, I can't, of course, expect three dollars a week. It would not be right."

"Perfectly right," he answered. "Your services to Jessie will be worth just as much as ever, so give yourself no trouble on that score."

He was the best man that ever lived, Maddy thought, and so she told the doctor that afternoon when, as he rode up to Aikenside, she met him out on the lawn before he reached the house.

It did strike the doctor a little comically that one of Guy's habits should offer to turn school-teacher but Maddy was so glad that he was glad too, and doubly glad that across the sea there was a Lucy Athérstone. How he wished that she was there now as Mrs. Guy, and he must tell Guy so that very day. Seated in Guy's library, the opportunity soon occurred, Guy approaching the subject himself by saying:

"Guess, Hal, what crazy project I have just embarked in."

"I know without guessing; Maddy told me," and the doctor's eyebrows were elevated just a little, as he crossed his feet upon the window sill and moved his chair so as to have a better view of Maddy and Jessie romping in the grass.

"And so you don't approve?" was Guy's next remark, to which the doctor replied:

"Why, yes; it's a grand thing for her, providing you know enough to teach her; but, Guy, this is a confounded gossiping neighborhood, and folks will talk, I'm afraid."

"Talk about what!" and Guy bridled up as his independent spirit began to rise. "What harm is there in my doing a generous act to a poor girl like Maddy Clyde? Isn't she graceful as a kitten, though?" and Guy nodded toward the spot where she was playing.

It annoyed the doctor to have Guy praise Maddy, but he would not show it, and answered:

"It's all right in you, but just because the poor girl is Maddy Clyde, folks will talk. She is too handsome, Guy, for Madam Grundy to let alone. If Lucy were only here, it would be different. Why, in the name of wonder, are you two not married, if you are ever going going to be?"

"Jealous, as I live!" and Guy's hand came down playfully on the doctor's shoulder. "I did not suppose you had got as far as that. You are afraid of the effect it may have on me teaching a sweet-faced little girl how to conjugate amo; and to cover up your own interest, you bring Lucy forward as an argument. Eh, Hal, have I not probed the secret?"

The doctor was in no mood for joking, and only smiled gloomily, while Guy continued:

"Honestly, doctor, I am doing it for you. I imagine you fancy her, as well you may. She'll make a splendid woman, but she needs educating, of course, and I am going to do it. You ought to thank me, instead of looking so like a thundercloud," and Guy laughed merrily.

The doctor was ashamed of his mood and could not tell what prompted him to answer:

"I am obliged to you, Guy; but, as far as I am concerned, you may spare yourself the trouble. If my wife needs educating, I can do it myself."

Guy was puzzled. Could it be that, after all, he was deceived, and the doctor did not care for Maddy? It might be, and he hastened to change the conversation to another topic than Maddy Clyde. The doctor stayed to dinner, and as Guy watched him closely, he made up his mind that he did care for Maddy Clyde, and this confirmed him in his plan of educating her for him.

Magnanimous Guy! He felt himself very good, very generous, very condescending, and very forgiving, the early portion of the afternoon; but later in the day he began to view Guy Remington in the light of a martyr, said martyrdom consisting in the scornful toss of the head with which Agnes had listened to his plan, and the open opposition of Mrs. Noah.

"Was he beside himself, or what?" this worthy asked. "She liked Maddy Clyde, to be sure, but it wasn't for him to demean himself by turning her schoolmaster. Folks would talk awfully, and she couldn't blame 'em; besides, what would Lucy say to his bein' alone in a room with a girl as pretty as Maddy? It was a duty he owed her at any rate, to tell her about it, and if she said 'twas right, why, go it."

This was the drift of Mrs. Noah's remarks, and as Guy depended much on her judgment, he decided to write to Lucy to see if she had the slightest objections to his teaching Maddy Clyde. Accordingly, he wrote that very night, telling her frankly all he knew concerning Maddy Clyde, and narrating the circumstances under which he first had met her, being careful also to repeat what he know would have weight with an English girl like Lucy, to wit, that though poor, Maddy's father and grandfather Clyde had been gentlemen, the one a clergyman, the other a sea captain. Then he told of her desire for learning, and his plan to teach her himself, of what the doctor and Mrs. Noah had said about it, and his final determination to cousult her. Then he described Maddy herself feeling a strange thrill as he told how pure, how innocent, how artless and beautiful she was, and asked if Lucy feared aught from his association with her.

"If you do," he wrote, "you have but to say so, and though I am committed, I will extricate myself in some way, rather than wound you in the slightest degree."

It would be some time ere an answer to this letter could be received, and until such time Guy could not honorably hear Maddy's lessons as he had agreed to do. But Maddy was not suspicious, and accepting his trivial excuse, waited patiently, while he, too, waited for the letter, wondering what it would contain.

LOW EXCURSION RATES TO EASTERN CANADA

The North-Western Line again announce their annual excursions to Eastern Canada. Rate of $40 for the round trip to points in Ontario and Quebec, as far east as Montreal, will be in effect daily during December, and tickets will be good for return three months from date of sale, with provision for extension at small additional cost. If travelling East be sure and specify The North-Western Line when purchasing your ticket, as this will ensure you best service and quickest time. Full information on application to Geo. A. Lee, General Agent, 215 McDermot Ave., Winnipeg, Man.

The Tenors' Parts.

Probably the composers are largely responsible for tenor worship. In Verdi's operas, with hardly an exception, the tenor plays a more important part than the baritone or bass, and the same is true of other opera writers, Mozart's "Don Giovanni" being a notable exception. Wagner wrote one opera, "The Flying Dutchman," in which the baritone is king, whereas in six of his works the supremacy of the tenor is indicated by the very titles—"Rienzi," "Tannhauser," "Lohengrin," "Tristan und Isolde," "Siegfried," "Parsifal." This being so, we shall probably continue to be subject to the tyranny of one tenor or another, unless it be true, as was maintained at a conclave of French savants, that the tenor voice is a relic of barbarism, destined to become extinct.—Argonaut.

Poems, Pictures and Songs.

It takes all kinds of people to make up a world and all kinds of poetry to make up a world literature. Despite the efforts of the critics to lay down definite canons of judgment for the literary, pictorial and musical arts most of us continue to like a poem, a picture or a song for no better reason than because we like it. It appeals to us, and if it does that it is for us a true poem, picture or song. Whether it is to be classed among the great products of art is another question. That depends upon the universality and permanence of the appeal it makes.—Current Literature.

Trifling Favors.

For people of the North West who desire to spend the winter in a milder climate the Canadian Pacific have arranged a series of low rate excursions for certain dates in December and January to Vancouver and Victoria.

SAYS HOME-MADE TREATMENT CURES RHEUMATISM

Shake the Ingredients Well in the Bottle and Take a Teaspoonful Dose After Meals

When an eminent authority announced in a leading Montreal daily that he had found a new way to treat that dread American disease, Rheumatism, with just common, every-day drugs found in any drug store, the physicians were slow indeed to attach much importance to his claims. This was only a few months ago. To-day nearly every newspaper in the country, even the metropolitan dailies, is announcing it and the splendid results achieved. It is so simple that any one can prepare it at home at small cost. It is made up as follows: Get from any good prescription pharmacy Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. These are all simple ingredients, making an absolutely harmless home remedy at little cost.

Rheumatism, as everyone knows, is a symptom of deranged kidneys. It is a condition produced by the failure of the kidneys to properly filter or strain from the blood the uric acid and other matter, which, if not eradicated, either in the urine or through the skin pores, remains in the blood, decomposes and forms about the joints and muscles, causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

This prescription is said to be a splendid healing, cleansing and invigorating tonic to the kidneys, and gives almost immediate relief in all forms of bladder and urinary troubles and backache. He also warns people in a leading Toronto paper against the discriminate use of many patent medicines.

There is a well-known Federal official at Washington, whose family stoutly maintain that he is absolutely color-blind, a contention as stoutly refuted by the official himself.

On one occasion at table his wife remarked a new tie her husband was wearing. "I'll wager that you don't know what color the tie is," she teasingly suggested.

"It's blue," said the husband.

"Right! But how on earth did you know?"

"Well," said the husband, with the same assurance, "when I bought it yesterday I told the clerk that if he didn't give me blue, I'd throw him out of the window."

Do Not Delay.—Do not let a cold or cough fasten upon you as it will do if neglected. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will break up a cold and cure a cough, and should be resorted to at once when the first symptoms appear. It can be disguised so that any unpleasant taste it may have will be imperceptible to the delicate. Try it and be convinced.

"I find I can wear my last year's overcoat again," chirped the optimist.

"I find that I'll have to," growled the pessimist.— Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE MODERN WAY.

He stayed till 2 a. m., and she
Seemed in no haste to part,
And also it was plain that he
Was in no haste to start.
Nor did her father give a shout
And ask him then and there
If he should come and put him out—
I guess he didn't care.

She did not whisper, "Darling John,
I guess you'll have to go,"
And so he simply stayed right on—
The light was turned down low.
Although the hour was very late,
Her father did not swear
Nor tell her to dismiss him straight—
I guess he didn't care.

For years the jokesters bold have told
How fathers fumed and fussed
And often kicked those lovers bold
Straight out into the dust.
But nowadays such scenes as these
Don't happen, I declare,
For lovers do just as they please,
And parents do not care.)

WILL PRESENT THE BONNIE BRIER BUSH

Greatest of Scottish Plays Will Tour Western Canada—Famous Songstress a Special Feature

Mr. C. P. Walker, owner and manager of Winnipeg's new $300,000 theatre, the Walker, has just completed arrangements for a tour across Western Canada of "The Bonnie Brier Bush," one of the greatest plays in the history of the drama.

The tour will begin at Fort William, Wednesday, December 4th, and will close at Nelson, B.C., about January 10th. After one day at Kenora, a week will be devoted to Winnipeg, where this famous drama has previously been given for four long engagements. One-night engagements will follow in the following named towns of Western Canada:

Portage la Prairie, Brandon, Regina, Moose Jaw, Medicine Hat, Calgary, Didsbury, Lacombe, Red Deer, Wetaskiwin, Edmonton, Macleod, Lethbridge, Pincher Creek, Blairmore, Fernie, Cranbrook, Phoenix, Greenwood, Grand Forks, Rossland and Nelson.

The company which will present "The Bonnie Brier Bush" on this tour numbers thirty people, and is composed of players of prominence, among whom are J. Palmer Collins, Walter Scott Weeks, Ward E. Renselier, Robert Ireland, late Pipe Major of the 48th Highlanders of Toronto, Kenneth McKenzie, Marion McDonald, Ann Caird, Adelaide Matthews, Wm. J. Casey, the Bennet children and many others of note.

Scene from "The Bonnie Brier Bush"

The entire New York scenic production and electrical equipment is carried, a special large baggage car being required for its transportation.

A decided feature will be the special engagement for this tour, of the Australian nightingale, Miss Maggie McCann, the sweetest singer of Scottish songs that ever visited Canada.

"The Bonnie Brier Bush," the play of all plays dear to the hearts of the Canadian people, is a dramatization by James MacArthur, of the late Ian Maclaren's story of the same name, and it depicts life in the land whose lochs and heathery hills inspired the great song poet, Robert Burns. If in his not very long but useful life, Ian Maclaren, or the Rev. John Watson, which was his real name, had given the world nothing but "The Bonnie Brier Bush," his life would not have been lived in vain. To those who follow the stage closely the play stands out like a light house in the sea of uninteresting stage stories. It is distinctly a play of heart interest, while the comedy is abundant, wholesome and natural.

The enterprise of Manager Walker in securing "The Bonnie Brier Bush" for a Western Canada tour will be appreciated by all lovers of the best in drama.

CHRISTMAS RATES EAST VIA NORTH-WESTERN LINE

Commencing Dec. 1st, and continuing to Dec 31st, excursion tickets will be on sale to many points in Eastern Canada, west of Montreal, at $40.00 for the round trip, good for return three months from date of sale. Be sure to specify the North-Western Line between Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago.

Many people make very hard work of washing and even then find that their clothes do not look well, but have a gray appearance and reveal many of the stains which the laundrying process should have removed.

This is because they do not use water of the right temperature. If clothes are put to soak in scalding water the dirt is not loosened and the fruit and coffee stains are set. Scalding water sets the stains, while briskly boiling water removes them. If clothes are put to soak it should be after the stains are thus removed, and then in cold or tepid water

FURNITURE NOVELTY.

Umbrella Cabinet With Places For Holding Overshoes and Veils.

A piece of furniture that is a decided novelty is an umbrella cabinet.

No matter how handsome or elaborate it may be, the ordinary receptacle for umbrellas and walking sticks is not a thing of beauty and does not add to the appearance of the hall in which it stands.

This cabinet, however, is a really attractive piece of furniture, which has the added advantage of protecting its contents from dust and dirt and concealing them so that they do not seem to add to the decorative features of the hall.

Around the sides of the cabinet and also inside both doors are brass hooks, into which the handles of the umbrellas or walking sticks are fastened. Several of the hooks have silk bags attached for the protection of light colored parasols or particularly handsome umbrellas.

A long drawer in the lower part of the cabinet may be used for overshoes, and a shelflike arrangement in the top, which opens on hinges, is useful for holding veils or gloves or small articles left temporarily in the hall.

The whole arrangement is quite compact, occupying but small space, and the inlaid wood of which it is made adds much to the beauty of an article that is built on plain but well proportioned lines.

The Canadian Pacific Railway are issuing during December low rate excursion tickets to Eastern Canada from all oints in the North West.

WHAT JOY TO BE FREED FROM PILES

There Is Scarcely a Sufferer In this Broad Land But Can Be Cured By

Dr. Chase's Ointment

The utter misery and despair of the sufferer from a severe case of piles or hemorrhoids cannot be described in words.

It is not only the intense itching and stinging, which in themselves are bad enough, not only the dread of a surgical operation, with its pain, expense and danger, but the whole system seems to be undermined, and as the ailment drags on from day to day and year to year, one becomes discouraged, despondent, and in despair gives up all hope of cure.

The joy which cured ones experience on being freed from itching, bleeding and protuding piles is told in the thousands of letters which we have received from time to time.

You need not tell the writers of these letters that there is a cure which Dr. Chase's Ointment will not cure, for they will not believe it. They alone know how they suffered, and also know that Dr. Chase's Ointment cured them. In many cases the cures were almost like miracles, so little ointment was used. In others, while relief came quickly, cure was only effected by the persistent use of several boxes of the ointmnt.

Mr. John Johnson, Cowley, Alta., writes:—

"Three years ago I was cured of blind, itching piles of 27 years' standing by using Dr. Chase's Ointment. I used to think that death would be the only relief I would ever get from the terrible misery of piles. Often I was laid up for three days at a time and at other times worked when I should have been in bed.

"Dr. Chase's Ointment is worth sixty dollars a box instead of sixty cents. I am a different man since using it. I am farming all the time and never miss a day. Words fail to express my gratitude for the cure this ointment made for me. I cannot tell half as much about it as it deserves. Anyone doubting this can write direct to me."

It matters not how long you have suffered, if you have itching, bleeding or protuding piles, Dr. Chase's Ointment will relieve and cure you, and it is the only positive and guaranteed cure for every form of piles. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

A Magic Pill.—Dyspepsia is a foe which men are constantly grappling but do not exterminate. Subdued, and to all appearances vanquished in one, it makes its appearance in another direction. In many cases the digestive apparatus is as delicate as the mechanism of a watch or scientific instrument in which even a breath of air will make a variation. With such persons disorders of the stomach ensue from the most trivial causes and cause much suffering. To these Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are recommended as mild and sure.

FEAR OF THE FOREST.

The Feeling That Comes When One Finds Himself Lost.

One must be independent to enjoy the vast freedom of the woods, mighty and protecting, yet unfettering, gathering myriads of living things in safety within their shelter. It is a wonderful experience—and familiarity cannot lessen the wonder of it—to choose some unfrequented trail that the forest has half reclaimed and follow it for a time, then suddenly to stop and listen. The underbrush, the trees, the broken thread of path, which had seemed only to echo our footsteps and frame a human form, now in our silence give forth all the voices of the woods, elusive, intermittent, but alive—life everywhere, whispering warning of an interloper who may have come for evil or for good, and one feels without seeing myriad eyes upon him.

Have you ever been afraid in the woods? Not that mysterious awe of the first twilights that all know who have camped, when the silence is absolute, when shadows have swallowed up the distance and the light has almost faded from the sky, when one feels dimly the vast, latent power of nature around him with which some time or other he must struggle and conquer or be crushed. This fear of the forest was different. I was alone and lost. I had taken a false trail at some unblazed turn and of a sudden realized the truth For a long moment I could think of nothing, see nothing, hear nothing, only be conscious of the fact of my utter helplessness. I felt the heart deadening panic of the trapped animal, wanting to run against my barriers on every side. Only a moment, I say, and then my reason was alert to solve the problem of return. But the mental experience left a vivid impression, and I can understand the despair of the really lost, wandering endlessly in aimless circles. — Outing Magazine.

They Never Knew Failure.—Careful observation of the effects of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills has shown that they act immediately on the diseased organs of the system and stimulate them to healthy action. There may be cases in which the disease has been long seated and does not easily yield to medicine, but even in such cases these Pills have been known to bring relief when all other so-called remedies have failed. These assertions can be substantiated by many who have used the Pills, and medical men speak highly of their qualities.

A NEW SANDWICH.

A Delicious Novelty For Afternoon Tea or Picnics.

Fannie Merritt Farmer, an authority on cooking, gives the following recipe for a new sandwich in the Woman's Home Companion:

"Somerset sandwiches are as acceptable at an afternoon tea or evening reception as at a picnic. They are made from a bread the recipe of which, I think, is unknown to most of my readers, so I will give a list of the ingredients which go to make it, but will presuppose that you know the principles of breadmaking: One-half cupful of scalded milk, one-half cupful of boiling water, one-half tablespoonful of lard, one-half tablespoonful of butter, two tablespoonfuls of molasses, three-quarters of a teaspoonful of salt, one-half a yeast cake dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of lukewarm water, one-half cupful of white flour and enough entire wheat flour to knead and one cupful of English walnut or pecan nut meats broken in pieces. The result is more satisfactory if the nut meats are added while kneading after the first raising. When this bread is twenty-four hours' old, slice as thin as possible, spread sparingly and evenly with creamed butter and put orange marmalade between slices. Remove crusts, cut in triangles or any desired shape and garnish with halves of nut meats, which need a bit of butter on their undersurfaces to keep them in place. To keep moist pack the same as other sandwiches. If orange marmalade is not procurable, make the sandwiches without it, and even then you will have a delicious novelty."

IT DOES NOT PAY TO DIE NOW

Doctors to Charge Five Dollars in Future for Issuing Burial Certificates

Five dollars for a burial certificate has been announced as a part of the programme for an all-round increase of doctors' fees as proposed by the Ontario Medical Council. Thousands of people have found it a very heavy tax on their resources to pay their doctors' bills at the old rate. The increase would be a very serious matter to many people were it not for the fact there is within the reach of all that wonderful remedy that, after being put to the utmost test, under the most severe conditions, has proven that for all forms of run-down systems from almost any disease or cause, especially from those diseases affecting the throat, lungs or stomach, Psychine is a safer, surer, and more dependable deliverance than the untried and experimental prescriptions of nine out of ten of the present-day doctors. Psychine, in addition to being concentrated life work of several of the world's most eminent medical specialists, has a sixty years' record of unparalleled and unapproachable triumphs over disease and death that has brought light and joy to tens of thousands of homes every year. And it is steadily going on to still greater triumphs. It does not pay to die now. Take Psychine and live and enjoy life. It is a great system-builder. Fifty cents and $1 per bottle at your druggist's, or at Dr. T. A. Slocum's, 179 King Street west, Toronto.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufacured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

A SEAT IN THE COMMONS.

Going to Parliament a Costly Honor For Englishmen.

Every Englishman who is not fortunate enough to be a peer wants to become an M. P. Every man who has succeeded in business or professional life feels that a coveted seat in the commons is necessary to round out his career. But many men of moderate means are deterred from pampering their ambitions by the big expense entailed. No salaries are paid, and, besides supporting himself, an M. P. is called upon to meet heavy drains upon his pocketbook during his entire term.

At the most moderate estimate the expenses of a campaign are $5,000. Once elected, the member must "nurse" his constituents. Clubs and charities are the greatest beneficiaries of this nursing, but many individuals come in for assistance also. Not less than $3,000 a year is required for this item, which for a term of five years represents an outlay of $15,000.

All told, then, a prospective member faces an outlay of $20,000 in addition to his living expenses, which in London are far from moderate when he maintains himself in keeping with the dignity of his position.

Many of the commoners of course spend far more than the above amount. And, in addition to the cash outlay, some of them find their lives embittered by the worries and exactions of their positions.

TESTED HIS LOGIC.

John Seemed to Make His Point, but Missed the Chicken.

The old couple were eating their first meal with their son after his return from college.

"Tell us, John," said the father, "what have you learned at college?"

"Oh, lots of things," said the son as he recited his course of studies. "Then," he concluded, "I also studied logic."

"Logic," said the old man. "What is that?"

"It's the art of reasoning," said the son.

"The art of reasoning?" said the father. "What is that, my boy?"

"Well," replied the son, "let me give you a demonstration. How many chickens are on that dish, father?"

"Two," said the old man.

"Well," said John, "I can prove there are three." Then he stuck his fork in one and said, "That is one, isn't it?"

"Yes," said the father.

"And this is two?" sticking his fork in the second.

"Yes," replied the father again.

"Well, don't one and two make three?" replied John triumphantly.

"Well, I declare," said the father, "you have learned things at college. Well, mother," continued the old man to his wife, "I will give you one of the chickens to eat, and I'll take the other, and John can have the third. How is that, John?"—Judge.

MEXICAN CARRIERS.

The Cargadors Can Carry Enormous Loads on Their Shoulders.

Just as one finds the rickshaw everywhere in India, so one finds the cargador in Mexico. He is a beast of burden. In general he is a comparatively small man, with broad shoulders and stout arms and legs. To look at him one would not think he would be able to carry heavy burdens. But the weight he can carry is surprising. You have a trunk you can scarcely move, for instance. You send for a cargador. He gets it upon his back, high up on the shoulders, and he marches off with it as easily as though it were a plaything. A life dedicated to carrying heavy burdens has made this work easy for him. A slightly built Mexican will carry over 500 pounds on his shoulders for short distances.

Until recent years almost everything in the City of Mexico and everywhere else throughout the republic was carried upon the backs of cargadors. If you wanted to move your household furniture you hired a certain number of cargadors. For house moving they generally work in pairs, each pair having a hand truck, which they pick up and carry when it is loaded, for it has no wheels. In the City of Mexico there are still hundreds of these hand trucks, though one may now find plenty of carts, wagons and heavy moving trucks.

The Only Piece He Cared About.

"There was a French count," said a lecturer in the midst of a little sermon on selfishness, "who was traveling from Paris to Monte Carlo. On his journey he stopped at Mentone, where he sent for his valet, who had preceded him and was to have met him at that point. 'Alas, monsieur,' exclaimed the count's courier, 'poor Francois! I have just looked my last upon him. He was killed in a railway accident. His corpse lies on the outskirts of Mentone, cut in a hundred pieces!' 'Ah!' murmured the count, regretfully. 'Then just go back and fetch me the piece that contains my trunk keys.'"

The Old Way and the New.

The young lady from Boston was explaining. "Take an egg," she said, "and make a perforation in the base and a corresponding one in the apex. Then you apply the lips to the aperture and by forcibly inhaling the breath the shell is entirely discharged of its contents."

An old lady who was listening exclaimed:

"It beats all how folks do things nowadays. When I was a gal they made a hole in each end and sucked."

What the Poet Says.

After their honeymoon to Niagara falls they came back and settled on the old farm.

"Gracious, Sile!" said Cynthia. "Why are you in such a bad humor?"

"Making butter is blamed hard work," grumbled Silas, removing the beads from his brow.

"Oh, cheer up, Sile! Don't the poet say that it is 'love that makes the world go round?'"

"Yes; but, by gosh, it don't make the churn go round."

A Change in Temperature.

"I hear the audience last night was rather cold?" said Hi Tragedy.

"They were at first," replied Lowe Comedy, "but when they remembered that they had paid good money to see the show they got hot."

Cult of the Cat.

The day is past when everything that purs or mews is considered a cat worth having.

With the ever increasing cult of the cat, owners are becoming more particular about good points, and considerable study is expended by fanciers on the necessary qualifications.

Such qualifications of course vary with the breed. In long haired cats the ruff is the first thing to be considered. The tufts of hair between the toes, the ear tufts and the flexibility of the tail come next.

With the short haired cats the color is of great importance, and so are the eyes, ears and the shape of the head. White cats should have blue eyes, black cats yellow eyes and those of other colors green eyes.

Here are some of the good points to be taken into consideration when buying a cat:

Head—Great breadth between the eyes.

Eyes—Round and wide open.

Nose—short and tapered.

Frame—Light, deep chested.

Legs—Straight.

Ears—Small and rounded.

Neck—Thin and graceful.

Tail—Bent at the end in long haired cats.

"Through carelessness I caught a severe cold two years ago which settled in catarrh and seriously interfered with the regular functions of the body and made me nervous and irritable.

"I began taking Peruna and found in it a faithful helper, as it enriched my blood and invigorated the whole system.

"I have no pains now, and am always well.

"I heartily recommend Peruna as a reliable medicine."

Health and Strength Restored

Mrs. A. E. Stouffer, Capioma, Kansas, writes:

"Peruna has given me health and strength; it is the best medicine that was ever made for women. My friends say they never saw such a change in a woman. I talk to every one about Peruna. I cannot say too much for it."

Peruna in Tablet Form.—For two years Dr. Hartman and his assistants have incessantly labored to create Peruna in tablet form, and their strenuous labors have just been crowned with success. People who object to quid medicines can now secure Peruna Tablets, which represent the medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna.

For Years an Invalid

Mrs. Chas. Gros Louis, Indian Lorette, Quebec, Canada, writes:

"For years I suffered from a disease that the doctors did not understand.

"One day I read in the paper about your excellent remedy, Peruna. I procured a bottle of it and took it according to directions. It was not long until I observed a change for the better.

"I can say that Peruna has cured me. I could not take any nourishment except milk.

"I will at all times say a good word for Peruna. I hold it in the highest esteem."

Mrs. William H. Hinchliffe, 20 Myrtle St., Beverly, Mass., writes that Peruna has done her a great deal of good for catarrh of head and throat.

Always the Politeness

A Germantown woman was not long ago watching a workman as he put up new window fixtures in her house.

"Don't you think you have placed those fixtures too high?" asked she, having reference to curtain rolls last put in place.

The workman, a stolid German, made no reply, but continued to adjust the fixtures.

"Didn't you hear my question?" demanded the lady of the house. "How dare you be so rude?"

Whereupon the German gulped convulsively, and then replied in the gentlest of voices:—

DOCTORS THOUGHT BABY WAS CONSUMPTIVE

A letter to anxious mothers is written by Mrs. F. W. Kittle, of Kirkdale, P.Q., who says: "My little 4-year-old boy suffered since he was 18 months old from a bad leg. I tried many salves and had doctors attend him, but none did him any good. The doctors told me it was in the blood, and he was in consumption. I only wish now I had had more faith in Zam-Buk, for it immediately healed the boy's leg. He is now nearly 4 years old and looks far from being consumptive. He is now a strong, healthy boy, thanks to Zam-Buk. I hope this letter will help a good many anxious mothers."

BALLOONING.

With an Experienced Pilot In Charge It Is Not Dangerous.

The uninitiated are prone to look upon the balloon as a sort of country fair attraction, whose principal interest lies in the risk the aeronaut takes. This is a mistake.

Like the automobile, the balloon requires an experienced pilot, and when such a one is in charge serious or fatal accidents are never recorded. Most balloon clubs require all ascensions to be made under a regularly licensed pilot, who receives his certificate from the club only after having demonstrated his fitness. The pilot who is willing to go up only in favorable weather and to come down at the proper time need never endanger lives. He knows he has only to open the valve and he can descend. He has only to throw out a handful of sand, and he can prevent his balloon from coming down or can send it up. When he is ready to land he picks out a favorable spot ahead of him, lets his balloon come gradually down near the ground, cuts loose the anchor which stops his progress, then opens the valve again if necessary. When the car touches the ground he tears out the ripping strip, and the balloon stretches out on the ground, a flat and empty bag.—F. P. Lahm, U. S. A., in Outing Magazine.

Playing School

"How many seed compartments are there in an apple?" he queried.

No one knew.

"And yet," said the school inspector, "all of you eat many apples in the course of a year, and see the fruit every day, probably. You must learn to notice the little things in nature."

The talk of the inspector impressed the children and they earnestly discussed the matter at recess time.

The teacher of the next day overheard this conversation in the play yard. A little girl, getting some of her companions around her, gravely said: "Now, children, just s'pose that I'm Mr. Inspector. You've got to know more about common things. If you don't you'll all grow up to be fools Now tell me," she said, looking sternly at a playmate, "how many feathers has a hen?"—Selected.

Principal of Public School—What are your views on the subject of corporal punishment? Do you approve of it?

New Boy's Mother—No, indeed, sir. I think when they're bad ye should just give 'em a good thrashing.—Harper's Weekly.

Many inherit weak lungs and as disease usually assails the weakest point, these persons are continually exposed to attacks of cold and pulmonary disturbances. The speedy use of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup will be found a preventive, and a protection, strengthening the organs so that they are not so liable to derangement from exposure or abrupt atmospheric changes. Bickle's Syrup is cheap and good.

Ellen (the nurse, to little girl of six, who is supposed to have an afternoon sleep every day)—Nancy, you are a naughty little girl not to have gone to sleep this afternoon!

AN ALL DAY CIGAR.

The Kind Smoked by a Tribe of South American Indians.

Cigars a foot and a half long, which are made for one day's smoking, are shown in the American Museum of Natural History. With them is a holder which looks like a tuning fork and is large enough to be used for pitching hay.

Far up the Rio Nigra, a tributary of the Amazon, two explorers made a collection of articles for the museum. The Indians there made cigars eighteen inches long and as big around as a child's arm. One of these cigars is too much for any ease loving man to clasp, so the Indians put the fragrant roll between the tines of a fork two and a half feet long, stick the sharp end of the handle into the ground at a convenient distance from their hammocks and take a puff from time to time as they sway lazily backward and forward.

There are many other picturesque articles in the collection, which was made during a three months' journey from the coast. The material is of the highest value, and nothing like it has been seen except a few articles in a German museum.

STEAMSHIP NAMES.

The Way They Are Shortened In the Companies' Offices.

No matter how long or difficult of pronunciation may be the name of a steamer, the passenger agents and clerks of the various steamship lines make an effort to be correct in using it when selling tickets to customers. Occasionally they make a slip of the tongue and call the steamer by the nickname used in the office when passengers are not around. The steamers of the Atlantic Transport line, the Minneapolis, the Minnetonka and the Minnehaha, are referred to generally as the "Minnies." Individually the Minnetonka is called the "Tonk" and the Mesaba the "Mes." The Red line Vaderland is called "Father," the Finland the "Fin" and the Kroonland and the Zeeland the "Kroon" and the "Zee," respectively. The prefix St. is dropped when reference is made to the St. Paul; the St. Louis is called "Loole" and the Philadelphia is called the "Phillie." The North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse in the parlance of the office force is the "Big Bill" and the Kaiser Wilhelm II. is "Billy Two."

THE MUSSULMANS.

They Are Not Easily Disturbed While Saying Their Prayers.

When saying his prayers the true Mussulman is not easily disturbed. Hans Doering, in his account of his travels in Chinese Turkestan, writes: "It is an interesting sight to see a Mussulman perform his devotions. Through the piece of glass in my paper window I saw the interpreter spread his carpet in front of his house just opposite the one in which I was living. His wife and child sat quite close to him talking loudly with some visitors, but this did not in the least disturb the old man at his devotions.

"In spite of the noise the melodious chanting of the Koran was quite audible. The worshiper kotowed several times and cried 'Allah, Allah, Allah!' then for awhile stood reverentially clasping his hands crosswise upon his breast, after which he joined in the conversation.

"His wife then went through the same performance, doing exactly the same as her husband. This they do every morning and evening whether there are friends with them or not."

Blindness of Conceit.

"Ever notice the density of a conceited person?" asked a business man. "To me that's the most striking thing about such an individual. Maybe he has some qualities that justify his good opinion of himself, and maybe not. He's dense just the same, and the proof of it is that he doesn't realize how he impresses his associates unpleasantly. If the average conceited man had the least idea of the handicap under which he is laboring he'd shed it mighty quick. But he hasn't, and it's impossible to drill it into him. He's the modern human ostrich, with his head stuck into the sand, so far as any recognition of his disagreeable trait is concerned."

Half Understood.

"What are you reading, Marian?" asked mamma of a little girl with her head bent down under a heavy volume in her lap.

"'The Wide Awake World,' mamma."

"Gracious, child!" interrupted a big sister. "You can't understand more than half of that book."

Marian looked at the speaker with dignity. "I read it for the half I do understand," she said.

Trust.

"Here you went and told me you would trust Beasley with your life, and on the strength of that I loaned him $10 that now you tell me I'll never get."

"Well, what of it? I said I'd trust him with my life, and I would. Beasley may be a beat, but he is no assassin."

Preserving Her Bridges.

Mrs. Gossip—Mrs. Richleigh has so much embonpoint, hasn't she? Mrs Someup (ludicrously)—Well, now, she might have if she wasn't so fat.

The best portraits are those in which there is a slight mixture of caricature —Macaulay.

Pretty Bad.

"Well," asked Stinjay, "what do you think of the cigar? My doctor especially recommended that brand to me."

"H'm!" coughed Knox. "So he wants to cure you of the tobacco habit, eh?"

Her Mission.

"She always reminds me of a public office."

"That's curious."

"Not so very. She's continually seeking the man, you know."

The Growth of Trees in Manitoba

Some figures compiled by the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior gives some interesting information as to the growth which may be expected from hardwood, or broad-leaved forests in Southern Manitoba. In an article by Mr. Roland D. Craig, F. E., Inspector of Forest Reserves, published in the Canadian Forestry Journal, a table is given showing the average height and average diameter at breast height (i. e., at four and a half feet above the ground) of trees in the Turtle Mountain Forest Reserve. The figures run as follows:

At age of
10 yrs,	diameter	1½ in.,	height	13½ ft
20 yrs,	"	3 1-5 in.,	"	28 ft
30 yrs,	"	4 7-10 in.,	"	38 ft
40 yrs,	"	6 in.,	"	40½ ft
50 yrs,	"	7 1-5 in.,	"	51 ft
60 yrs,	"	8 7-10 in.,	"	54 ft
70 yrs,	"	10 1-10 in.,	"	56½ ft
80 yrs,	"	11 1-10 in.,	"	58 ft

The table quoted above also gives the amount of wood which may be expected to have been formed on these trees at the end of the same periods as above. The figures follow:

At age of
10 yrs, 4 cords wood per acre per year
20 yrs, 22 cords wood per acre per year
30 yrs, 32 cords wood per acre per year
40 yrs, 41 cords wood per acre per year
50 yrs, 47 cords wood per acre per year
60 yrs, 52 cords wood per acre per year
70 yrs, 55 cords wood per acre per year
80 yrs, 58 cords wood per acre per year

From a coonsideration of the above figures it is obvious that the best period to cut the timber would be at the age of forty to fifty years, when cordwood of good size would have been produced, and before the yield would have fallen off, as it subsequently does. Thus the reserve would produce an average of a cord of wood per acre per year; and one dollar per cord on the stump does not, at present prices, seem an excessive price to ask for the timber. Thus the 55,000 acres of forest on the reserve would produce an annual revenue of $55,000 per year.

SATURDAY, DEC. 14, 1907.

TIME TO ACT.

In about thirty days' time the meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade will be holding their annual convention in Moyie. The delegation will comprise the most capable men that can be selected by the various boards throughout the Kootenays and the Boundary. These gentlemen will be Moyie's guests for two, three, or possibly four days, and it will be up to the people here to see to it that they ar looked after properly. As we have pointed out before, Moyie must not be found wanting on this important occasion. It is very important that our visitors at that time shall be sent away with a good impression of the place and the people. A comfortable hall must be provided for their meetings, and the best of hotel accommodations must be arranged for. There should be nothing to good for them while they are with us.

President Campbell of the local board suggests holding a public meeting not later than next Wednesday evening and have a thorough discussion of the matter. The suggestion is an excellent one and he should have the hearty co-operation of the whole town in his efforts. The date of the meeting is fast approaching, and there should be no delay in making the necessary preparations. Shall the people of Moyie maintain their reputation of being a lot of princes, or be dubbed a bunch of "dead ones?"

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth has reached the height of fashion. She has been operated on for appendicitis.

The reason that "prison yawns for the men who have misapplied the funds of confiding depositors" is that prison has gotten so tired waiting for them.

Supporters of Mr. Fairbank assert that he will make no pledges during the race for the nomination. It may be necessary for him to sign one, though.

Miners' Magazine: The "Cashier's Check" is now being dubbed "Christian Science" money. Mrs. Eddy will raise an objection, as the old lady will insist that "Christian Science" is founded on something more stable than "wild cat" paper.

At the coming meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade in Moyie next months resolutions will be passed asking for an extension of the lead bounty, which expires in June, 1908. This bounty has proved so beneficial in the past that a continuance of it will meet with scarcely any opposition.

A Square Deal

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and their formulas are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate women and children. Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles used in them, viz.—pure triple-refined glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and anti-ferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate, chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

How Diphtheria Is Contracted.

One often hears the expression "My child caught a severe cold which developed into diphtheria," when the truth was that the cold had simply left the little one particularly susceptible to the wandering diphtheria germ. When Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given it quickly cures the cold and lessens the danger of diphtheria or any other germ disease being contracted. For sale by The Moyie Drug & Stationery Co,
