NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Hurrah for the C.P.R.! The wire informs us that certain stocks go up and down in the London market as our big syndicate is supposed to be a "bull" or a "bear" on them. Think of a Johnny Canuck bulldosing the financial centre of the world! Ain't we just getting to be somebody? Let us forget local grievances for a minute or two, while we watch the beaver flop his triumphant tail in the sacred precincts of the Stock Exchange!

More sensational telegrams about Skeena. Strangers to the country will see before their mind's eye a picture of swarming bands of braves, dressed in a few streaks of paint and a scalp lock, bidding defiance to the military amid the fastnesses of their native wilds. We are of Mr. Crosby's opinion, that the matter will in all probability be settled without bloodshed, and if the worst comes to the worst, "O" Battery may safely be backed to clean out all the Indians on the Skeena.

Mr. Gladstone and his wife celebrated their golden wedding the other day, and were made much of on the occasion. Replying to one address Gladstone spoke warmly in praise of his wife—she deserved all the kind things said of her—but as for himself, he was not so sure. However, he hoped he had profited by criticism, and on the whole had little to regret in his course of action. This is an instance of what the G. O. M.'s enemies—especially the Liberal-Unionists—call his bumptiousness; but then if a man is clear-eyed enough to see the right and resolute enough to go straight after it, he must appear bumptious to some people. About fifty years from now, most people will be of one mind as to which is which in this case.

The more one hears about Japan, the more one wonders. Not many years ago, the common idea was that Japan was a sort of offshoot from China; but it appears that some notable differences were there all the time; if one could have seen them—the much better position of women, for instance. Now Japan has made an apparent right-about-turn (these things are generally the result of some hidden forces, and not so sudden as they seem) and from being the most exclusive and conservative of nations, has become well-nigh the most liberal and progressive. An honest desire to learn the best lessons that western civilization can teach, and a keen intelligence to discover what is best, strike observers of the national spirit, and compel their admiration.

An editor down by the shore of the restless Atlantic has been raising a slight breeze by writing up the beauties and benefits to accure from the annexation of this Canada of ours to the U. S. In these days when the patent of nobility and the passport to happiness are comprehended in the sign $, the poor man might be excused for thinking that the whole case rested on the balance of material advantages. He forgot probably that there is a considerable leaven of what the wholly $ people would call sentimentalism left in some of us yet. We are progressive, but we must draw the line somewhere, and we draw it at turned coats; to say nothing of the fact that we have contracted a sort of affection for the young lion whelps known as the Dominion of Canada, and want to see—er let our children see—what sort of an animal he will be when he grows up.

There are only seven candidates nominated for the presidency of the United States. The five who are outside the two great parties will not probably amount to much in the counting of the votes, although the prohibition party is showing increased strength at every trial. Just how the party vote will be affected by the five side issues, we do not pretend to know; but it seems to be generally believed that Cleveland will be sent in for another term by a good majority. It should not be forgotten, however, that the strength of both candidates is their personal "straightness." Four years ago, such a man as Harrison would probably have polled a solid Republican vote (which Blaine failed to do, on account of his shady personal record) and have beaten Cleveland. But in the interval, many voters have formed new political affinities, and Cleveland is now backed by a good executive record.

LAST NIGHT'S DESPATCHES.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, July 26.—In the house of commons this evening Mr. Sexton, referring to the arrest of O'Kelly, asked why the government had not warned him of the issuance of a summons against him, instead of setting detectives to dog the footsteps of members of the house. Mr. Balfour replied that the issuance of the warrant was the only legal method of summoning an Irish member in England. Regarding the question as to whether he had had reason to suppose that any member of parliament would evade going to the court on a summons, Mr. Balfour said he could state that several members had refused to obey a summons. He accepted the entire responsibility for the action taken in regard to O'Kelly and others. Mr. Smith asked the assent of the house to an autumn session. It was necessary, he said, for the civil, army and navy services. He trusted the house would pass the county government and Parnell commission bills. The house agreed to adjourn on Aug. 11 and reassemble in November.

LEGALLY MARRIED.

NEW YORK, July 27.—A private despatch from London says the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough have had the legality of their marriage established in England.

PARNELL IN A QUANDRY.

LONDON, July 27.—The report is gaining ground that Parnell is likely to sue the Times for libel. He is seriously considering the matter, but is unsettled whether to bring the issues here or in Dublin. The Gladstonians are opposed to this course. Parnell argues that his position will be worse before the commission than a court, and assumes that if he sues the Times the commission will be dropped.

A CRUEL MURDER.

PAWNEE CITY, Neb., July 27.—Fremont Emmons, cook at the Exchange hotel, murdered Bertha Schultz, a laundry girl of the house, last night. The murder was committed on the street while the girl was returning from a visit to her home. The weapon used was a small knife which penetrated the girl's heart. Fever and Ague and Bilious Derangements are positively cured by the use of Parmelee's Pills. They not only cleanse the stomach and bowels from all bilious matter, but they open all the excretory vessels, causing them to pour copious effusions from the blood into the bowels, after which the corrupted mass is thrown out by the natural passages of body. They are used as a general family medicine with the best results.

Daily British Columbian

Friday Evening, July 27, 1888.

Sensational and vicious literature continues to play havoc among the school boys of America. All sorts of juvenile freaks can be traced to the corrupting and distorting influences of the flash dime novel and the cheap "blood and thunder" boys' papers. A Chicago lad of fourteen is the latest victim of the dime novel mania. He assumed the name of Cloudy Clyde the King and posed as a bandit prince for several months. Making his headquarters in a cave near a lumber yard in the city, he gathered round him a gang of boys as vicious and silly as himself. Two boys who were invited to join the organization refused and were bound and gagged in the cave. Their screams reached a policeman's ear, and the young reprobate's plans were discovered. The police found stolen goods in the cave, and they think they have run to earth a youthful but bad gang of burglars. The leader is at large, but the guardians of similar incorrigibles should remember meantime that a good-sized slipper vigorously laid on is an excellent corrective for the modern dime novel bandit.

On the third page of this paper will be found two by-laws, both of which were passed by the city council at a special meeting last night, and upon which the ratepayers will be asked to vote on the 7th day of August next. The Westminster Southern Railway scheme has finally assumed this tangible shape, and we are sure our readers will receive this announcement with satisfaction. A careful perusal of the by-laws, we think, will justify the wisdom and expediency of the course which has been adopted. Until recently it has been generally supposed that a by-law would be introduced empowering the city to borrow the aggregate sum of $250,000, as bonuses for the railway and the bridge. Such evidently was, approximately, the original intention. Technical difficulties, however, intervened. It was found to be necessary in order to carry out the scheme on these lines to have a strip of land on the opposite side of the river added to and included in the city limits. Steps were taken to have this accomplished, which caused most of the delay complained of, but it was found impracticable to attain the object. The arrangement at length decided upon, and embodied in the by-laws presented to-day, avoids all the difficulties referred to, and places all the objects to be bonused within the limits and the control of the city. The agreement between the city and the railway company will, of course, have to be modified verbally to suit the different construction of the terms of the company, but identically the same objects will be attained as before, with the advantage of greater clearness and definiteness in favor of the present arrangement. The by-laws provide each for the borrowing of $75,000—a total of $150,000. The $100,000 additional for the bridge is not being provided for at present, as it will not be required for two or three years, when the ratable property of the city may be considerably more than doubled, and the burden then would be hardly felt. Both the city and the railway company, however, are bound to the construction of the bridge in due process and time. One by-law provides for borrowing $75,- as a bonus for the establishment in this city of a foundry and other works for the manufacturing and repairing of the rolling stock to be used on the Westminster-Southern and other roads. The other by-law calls for $75,000 for bonusing an adequate and efficient ferry service between this city and the terminus of the railway on the south side of the river, suitable for transferring rolling stock, and also passengers, horses, wagons, cattle, and heavy freight across the Fraser river, the said ferry to be operated adequately and sufficiently for the requirements of the public service. A very satisfactory feature in connection with the ferry is that it is to be a general traffic, as well as a railway, ferry. Such a ferry, independent of the railway even, will be worth thousands to this city, and in fact will prove nearly as valuable as the bridge itself. Both by-laws provide for borrowing the money required at 6 per cent., the debentures to be payable in fifty years, and provision being made for the repurchase from time to time by the city of its own debentures, which then become cancelled. The by-laws state the rateable property of the city, according to the last revised assessment, to be $862,511. A total annual interest and sinking fund of $12,000, covering both by-laws is required, and will be raised by a special rate of 14 mills—a little less than 1½ cents—on the dollar. As the value of ratable property increases, and the city limits are extended, from time to time, this rate will be still further lowered. Another point to be observed in this connection is that of the $12,000 raised annually for interest and sinking fund, $3,000 is appropriated for sinking fund. This will accumulate in a few years and may be reinvested by the city, thus bringing in cumulative interest, which may be applied in the re-purchase and cancelling of debentures, or, when a sufficient sum has been secured, in meeting the interest and sinking fund for a year, when the special rate for that year may be suspended. Altogether, it will be observed that there is much to recommend these two by-laws to the favorable consideration of the ratepayers, and there is not much doubt that the action of the council will be sustained by a large majority. Some time next week we shall publish the agreements between the city and the railway company, etc.

Among other matters before the British house of commons, growing out of the hydra-headed Irish question, is the bill for the appointment of a commission to investigate the charges made by the London Times against Mr. Parnell and other Irish leaders. Some time ago the Times published a series of articles, including letters, purporting to be genuine, entitled "Parnellism and Crime." These articles and published letters cast most damaging reflections upon Parnell and his associates, charging them with complicity or at least connivance in the horrible murder of Lord Cavendish and Mr. Burke, known as the Phœnix Park outrage, and with being privy to other atrocities and favoring generally the use of dynamite and violence to gain political ends. On the 2nd of July inst., Frank Hugh O'Donnell, Nationalist member of parliament, began a libel suit against the Times, before Lord Chief Justice Coleridge, on the ground that in its articles, "Parnellism and Crime," it had coupled his name with those who used dynamite and resorted to violence. The damages demanded were fixed at $50,000. As the case progressed it appeared that the claim upon which O'Donnell's libel suit was based hinged solely upon the question as to whether he was one of the Parnellite leaders. It is said that this view of the flimsy foundation of the case disgusted everybody but the counsel for the defence. On the 5th of July the jury returned a verdict in favor of the Times, recording its opinion, we suppose, that O'Donnell was not included among the Parnellite leaders in the Times' strictures. It was expected that the O'Donnell-Times suit would have been a sort of test case, and that rare and startling disclosures of the methods and secret business of the Irish National League would have been brought to light. Mr. Parnell's testimony, too, had been looked forward to with great interest, and the disappointment was general when the trial proved a fiasco. Parnell himself was disappointed. In the house of commons, on the day after the verdict, he said that the conclusion of the O'Donnell libel suit against the Times had prevented him from testifying under oath to the falseness of the statements made in reference to himself. He then characterized the great majority of the letters submitted by the Times as palpable forgeries. Some of these letters showed connivance in crime by Mr. Parnell and other Nationalist leaders. The Times of the next morning, the 7th July, reiterated and stated that it was fully prepared to prove in open court the charges made against Mr. Parnell and his followers. It thus became absolutely necessary for Mr. Parnell, if he would escape the odium of guilt attaching to him from these charges, to bring an action for libel, or to take some equivalent action, and so clear himself. On the 10th July, accordingly, Parnell gave notice in the house of commons that he should insist upon a resolution creating a special committee to enquire into the charges made against him by the attorney-general and the Times. This action of Mr. Parnell satisfied the critics of the Liberal party, but the Tories insisted that he must go to the courts for satisfaction. On the 12th inst. Mr. Parnell asked the government to grant a select committee of the house of commons to investigate the charges against him. Mr. W. H. Smith replied that the government maintained its opinion that a tribunal such as Mr. Parnell proposed would be incompetent to deal with the question he raised, but said that the government were willing to pass an act appointing a commission consisting wholly of judges. Mr. Parnell accepted the government's proposal, but signified that he would subject the judges appointed to rigid conditions and restrict the scope of the enquiry. A bill to authorize this commission is now before the house of commons. Mr. Morley, in a speech delivered at Morpeth, the other day, gave a forecast of the bill. He stated that he had taken the pains to consult the highest legal authorities and was positive that the bill would be passed in such a shape as to empower the commission to decide whether Mr. Parnell wrote certain letters and whether he and other members of the house were privy to the murder of Lord Cavendish and Mr. Burke. It was a mistake to imagine that the commission was appointed with a view of procuring evidence against Mr. Parnell or anybody else. It was simply charged with the duty of establishing the truth or falsity of certain accusations already made, and this duty performed, the functions of the commission ended. When this commission has been appointed and gets fairly to work, it is probable that some interesting, if not startling, disclosures, will be made. The result of the investigations will be looked forward to with much interest, and Mr. Parnell's friends in America as well as in the old country will be gratified if everything is cleared up and the terrible charges against him refuted.

Perfect Hair

Indicates a natural and healthy condition of the scalp, and of the glands through which nourishment is obtained. When, in consequence of age and disease, the hair becomes weak, thin, and gray, Ayer's Hair Vigor will strengthen it, restore its original color, promote its rapid and vigorous growth, and impart to it the lustre and freshness of youth.

I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a long time, and am convinced of its value. When I was 17 years of age my hair began to turn gray. I commenced using the Vigor, and was surprised at the good effects it produced. It not only restored the color to my hair, but so stimulated its growth, that I have now more hair than ever before.—J. A ROMANTIC CAREER.

The Othello-like Adventures of a Philadelphian.

"Asmodeus," after detailing, in Texas Siftings, the adventures of a gentleman now resident in the Quaker City, asks the apposite question: Was there ever such another career?

Mark Leonard Nardyz was born in Cordogno in 1828. After a course in the schools he went to the famous old university of Padua to study medicine. A drawing he made for Prof. Ungaretti's atlas of anatomy attracted so much attention that his anatomical drawings and designs were published.

In 1848 young Nardyz volunteered in the First Lombardy Infantry, under Victor Emanuel, and was wounded in the same year at the battle of Santa Lucia. Victor Emanuel's brother, the Duke of Genoa, gave his wounds personal attention.

In '49 he had recovered so far as to enlist in the service of the Roman Republic, and was soon captured by the French, who sent him prisoner to San Marino.

The facility with which so gallant a soldier passed, without compunction, from one service to another, as will be seen also further on, illustrates forcibly the troublous character of those times as well as his own fiery and mercurial temperament.

The day Nardyz was captured by the French, at the Fort of Sampan Grazzio, Salvini, the great tragedian, then unknown save as a gallant young soldier, received in the same ranks a desperate wound.

On recovery Dr. Nardyz enlisted in the Sardinian army as assistant surgeon.

In 1854 he went as surgeon with the first Italian regiment sent to the Crimea. There were only 16,000 altogether of his compatriots in that greatest of all modern wars, and Nardyz' company saw the hottest service near the Redan, under command of General La Marmora, who died soon afterwards of typhoid fever.

In '59 Dr. Nardyz became surgeon to the 12th Regiment of Infantry under General Ceccari, and was, as was thought, mortally wounded at Solferino. For his heroism in capturing, single handed, an Austrian flag, the honor of the Cross of San Maurice En Lazzaro was conferred on him.

In 1860 he quit the service at Ancona and gained the First Independency of Sicily. For this he was imprisoned, but was pardoned by Victor Emanuel after sixty-three days' confinement, and honorably discharged from the service.

On the 25th of Nov., 1860, he sailed for America, arrived in Philadelphia Dec. 1st and went to New Orleans, where he enlisted in the First Louisiana Tigers. In June, 1861, he quit them and walked all the way from New Orleans to Philadelphia, without knowing a word of English, steering his course by the compass.

The soldier of varied services but unvarying bravery then enlisted in the First Pennsylvania Volunteers as a three months' man and was at Bull Run. He then enlisted in the Lafayette Guards, served through the war of the Rebellion, after which he enlisted in the United States marine corps as a surgeon.

In 1870 Dr. Nardyz recrossed the Atlantic and enlisted in the 14th French regiment for the Franco-Prussian war. Under General Bourbaki's command in the northern part of France he was decorated with the Red Cross of Geneva for assisting the wounded, and with the Cross of the Legion of Honor for personal bravery.

In 1873 Dr. Nardyz went to Cincinnati and practiced his profession there several years. He then removed to New York where he became Assistant Demonstrator of Anatomy under Prof. James R. Wood.

In 1878 he returned to France as physician and Secretary to Prince Aristoff, son of General Alexander Aristoff, First aide to Alexander II. of Russia. The young prince died in Paris, and was embalmed by Dr. Nardyz, who took him to Moscow.

There the General Aristoff invited him to enter the Czar's service, which he declined to do, as his family, a wife and two charming daughters, had established a home in the United States.

In 1879 he returned to Philadelphia and was pathologist and anatomist in Jefferson Medical Hospital. His skill in modeling and embalming became famous, and in 1882 he embalmed Archbishop Wood by a method of his own, the first time it was ever used in this country.

The Month of Babes and Sucklings.

"Now, Minnie," said a mother to her four-year-old daughter, "I want you to play with your little brother while I am down town."

"An' what will you bring me?"

"Never mind I'll bring you something; and now, mind you, if he wants to play with your toys you musn't cry."

"Nome."

When the lady returned the little girl ran to her and said:

"I played with my little brother. Now, what did you bring me?"

"Mamma brought you an orange. Where's little brother?"

"He's sleep. Gimme the orange."

She took the orange and said:

"When he grabbed my dishes I didn't cry."

"You didn't! Why, you are a good little girl."

"Yessum, an' when he grabbed my doll I didn't cry, eiver."

"You didn't?"

"Nome."

"What did you say?"

"Nuffin', but I knocked him down wif the little chair."

General Grant's Maternal Ancestors.

General Grant in his "Personal Memoirs," says of his mother's family (page 22): "My mother's family lived in Montgomery county, Penn., for several generations. I have little information about her ancestors," etc.

The archives of the Hibernian Society of Philadelphia contain the following in respect to General Grant's mother:

"Matthew Simpson, a respectable farmer of Galen, county Tyrone, Ireland, emigrated with his family to America and settled in Bucks county, Penn. His daughter, Hannah, became prominent as the mother of General Grant, and one of the sons was the father of the late Bishop Simpson of Philadelphia."—[Philadelphia News.

"The Other Fellow."

There is a good story told of Bishop Clerorie.

He (the bishop) was sitting next to a Yankee navy captain, who said to him:

"You have in your province two rival bishops, C—— and another fellow. To which of them do you incline?"

"I am the other fellow," said Bishop Clerorie.—[Living Church.

Homo Some.

Miss Waldo (of Boston, discussing literary matters)—"Have you read 'Homo Sum,' Mr. Wabash?"

Mr. Wabash (of Chicago, who is keeping up his end of the conversation with difficulty)—"Well—er—yes, Miss Waldo, I have read Homo some, but not a great deal."

PEOPLE WHO TRAVEL.

Some Experiences of a Depot Master.

"For a nice, every day, go-as-you-please nuisance," said the depot master, "give me an ancient and provincial woman. I am not an old man, nor have I been in this business very long, but I am getting gray just the same, and I believe these women are responsible for it.

"There was one in here the other day. She arrived one hour and a half before the train she wished to take was scheduled to leave. Five trains went out before hers did, but she charged on the gatekeeper at every departure. You cannot get a woman to believe standard and local time are identical. I don't know why, but you cannot.

"Are all travelers obnoxious to you, then?"

"No, sir. We meet with some very pleasant people I can tell you. The nicest travelers come from the East. Massachusetts or Connecticut people are refreshing to deal with. They do what you tell them, mark what you say and don't repeat questions.

"Southern people are seen but seldom around here. Those that come here are mostly of the lower classes and are ignorant in the extreme. The Western traveler is free, a trifle egotistic, but the sharpest of them all. I rather like to have him about. Immigrants are not at all bad to handle."

"Any sharp practices carried on nowadays about this depot?"

"No. I think the depot sharp is a thing of the past. He is not extinct, however, by any means. There are two or three of them who stand on the other side of the street and work everybody who goes in or out. Canadians and country people are their softest prey. Eastern travelers sometimes fall into their snares, immigrants once in a great while, but a Western man never. They are afraid of Western people, these sharps, and never attempt to work them."

"As a class, which are the most preferable about a depot—men or women?"

"Men by all means. Women are slovenly or careless. I don't know which. They throw the remnants of a luncheon on the floor without the slightest concern, and are generally more troublesome. Give me men every time in a waiting room."—[Detroit Journal.

The Shower of Diamonds.

Mr. Streeter, the jeweler, told our representative this story.

"Just after the fall of Pekin, a suspicious fellow called upon me, and, taking me aside, said he had just returned and had something to show me.

"'Where is it?' I said.

"'Down at Gravesend;' and a day or two afterward, having got the rendezvous, a friend and myself set out down the river, each with his revolver. We got down, went to a house in a low quarter, and were passed into the man's bedroom, where he was living.

"'Now, my man, what have you got?'

"He said, 'Come here and I will show you,' motioning me to go behind the bed.

"I didn't quite like it, but he reassured me; and when he had me face to face, keeping my eyes on him, and my hand on my pistol, he let down his trousers and bade me put my hand on a belt which was strapped round his waist.

"'I want £20,000 for that,' he said softly. 'Will you give it?'

"After some persuasion, he opened the belt and poured out a shower of diamonds which lighted up the shabby room.

"'Where did you get them from?'

"He refused to say, and after some bargaining we came to terms. He handed me the diamonds, and then I turned round and said, 'Now, my man, if you will call at ——, my banker's, you will find a check ready for you at 10 A. M. to-morrow morning. But before that I must have references and an account.'

"He gave them to me without a murmur, and I found them all right."—[Pall Mall Gazette.

Married by Their Son.

"I have a story for you," said a drummer. "I don't mean a yarn or a joke, but a simple account of a fact.

"Last week I was out in Iowa, and one night stopped in Ottumwa. There I became well acquainted with a quiet young man. On his invitation I sat in his room in the evening, and he told me that he was a minister of the Gospel who had been ordained a few weeks before, and had come to Ottumwa to perform the marriage ceremony for some friends of his. In fact, the ceremony was to take place that very night in his room.

"Pretty soon a rather elderly couple came in, shook hands warmly with my friend, ending in standing up before him and being married in the usual form. After a time they left, and my new friend said to me:

"'That, I think, is the most peculiar marriage ceremony a minister ever performed. I never heard of its equal, and never expect to.'

"'What do you mean?' I said.

"'I'll tell you,' was his reply, 'only you must bear in mind that it is secret.

"'My father and mother were pioneers in a county not far from this city. I was reared on their farm, and finally sent off to school. My parents are well-to-do people, church workers, and are highly respected in the neighborhood.

"'About two years ago my father wrote me a letter, in which he wanted my advice and assistance. To make the story short, and not to stop to describe the peculiar circumstances, I can say that my father's trouble was that he had never been married to the woman who passed as his wife.

"'For years they had been satisfied with this relationship, but at length my mother began to worry about it. She wanted the ceremony performed legally. My father had no objection, but did not dare to go to any minister or functionary in the neighborhood.

"'You know what country communities are, and what unpleasant talk would have followed. Then my father consulted me, and the result of it was a decision to wait.

"'Two weeks ago I was ordained a minister, and our plans were then carried out. The couple I just married were my own father and mother.'"—[Des Moines Leader.

A Rift in the Clouds.

Old gentlemen (to elevated road brakeman)—"Your life, my young friend, I imagine is a laborious one, and full of trials."

Brakeman—"Yes, sir; but there are moments when it is filled with blessed peace and happiness and joy."

Old gentleman—"When you are paid off, I s'pose?"

Brakeman—"No, sir; when I can slam the gate in the face of somebody who is in a big hurry."—New York Sun.

A Hint from Paris.

An agency has been started in Paris for hiring out wedding guests, for the special benefit of couples whose relatives live in the country.

The manager undertakes "to place at the disposition of the bridegroom a choice society—well educated young men, charming talkers, elegant dancers, several of whom are, besides, endowed with all the necessary talents appertaining to a really fine society."

A Creaking Hinge

Is dry and turns hard, until oil is applied, after which it moves easily. When the joints, or hinges, of the body are stiffened and inflamed by Rheumatism, they cannot be moved without causing the most excruciating pains. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by its action on the blood, relieves this condition, and restores the joints to good working order.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has effected, in our city, many most remarkable cures, in cases which baffled the efforts of the most experienced physicians. Were it necessary, I could give the names of many individuals who have been cured by taking this medicine. In my case it has worked wonders, relieving me of after being troubled with it for years. In this, and all other diseases arising from impure blood, there is no remedy with which I am acquainted, that affords such relief as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.—R. H. Lawrence, M. D., Baltimore, Md.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla cured me of Gout and Rheumatism, when nothing else would. It has eradicated every trace of disease from my system.—R. H. Short, Manager Hotel Belmont, Lowell, Mass.

I was, during many months, a sufferer from chronic Rheumatism. The disease afflicted me grievously, in spite of all the remedies I could find, until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took several bottles of this preparation, and was speedily restored to health.—J. Fream, Independence, Va. ††

This medicine is making marvellous cures in Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, etc, in purifying the blood and restoring manhood to full vigor.

The salmon catch last night was not very good opposite and above the city, the boats only averaging 20 each. Further down the river the boats averaged 80 fish each, which is considered very good fishing. Three large sturgeon weighing over 600 lbs. each were caught by Vianen's boats last night.

On Sunday the Gladys will make a tour of Harrison Lake, which will be an excellent opportunity for sight-seers to view the many beauties surrounding that famous sheet of water. The steamer will leave the springs at 6 o'clock on Monday morning for Westminster. A great many people intend taking advantage of this delightful trip.

"The D—d Little Burgh."

A well known C. P. R. magnate, at whose name governments tremble and railway corporations quake with fear, while in conversation with a prominent British Columbian a week or two ago, anent the building of the Southern railway, concluded his remarks with the following characteristic sentence. "If Westminster don't look out I'll kill the d—d little burgh." To outsiders, looking at Westminster through C. P. R. spectacles, we do seem venturesome when we oppose the greatest railway corporation on earth. But the people of the royal burgh are not to be bull-dozed and overawed by threats, and they are made of a material too manly to lick the shoes of the C. P. R. or any other corporation.

Will Menzies Return.

The Colonist has received private information from Prof. Menzies to the effect that he will shortly return to the city to make his peace with the offended law. The "Professor" also informs his friend that he has been doing a rushing business in Blaine, W. T., and consequently could not get over to see him before. His business was too profitable to leave it. He has decided, however, to give some one else a chance to make a little money and proposes to show the world how brave an innocent man can be. In this the "Professor" is wise. Mr. Gardner, Victoria in general, and especially the Times, will welcome him with open arms. The Times will endeavor moreover to assist him in obtaining justice and if he is not the miserable degraded rascal that it has described him it will endeavor to make amends for injury done to him. On the other hand if he be guilty the influence and assistance of the Colonist shall not save him.—Times.

The Deputy Minister's Visit

Mr. A. M. Burgess, deputy of the minister of the interior, and Mr. Robt. Sedgwick, deputy of the minister of justice, were this morning occupied with official matters in connection with their departments. This afternoon Mr. Burgess, Mr. and Mrs. Sedgwick, Mr. H. H. Smith, D. Chisholm, M.P., and Miss Chisholm, Mrs. Z. S. Hall, Capt. Bole, M.P.P., and Mrs. Bole, G. D. Brymmer, H. B. W. Aikman, T. S. Higginson, A. F. Cotton, and a number of other prominent citizens at the invitation of Mr. Alex. Ewen, took a trip down the river on the str. Adelaide. A number of canneries were visited and the process of preparing and canning the fish was seen by the visitors, with which they were much interested. After a very pleasant trip the steamer returned to the city shortly past 4 o'clock. To-morrow the party will take a trip to Harrison Hot Springs, where Sunday will be spent in visiting the many points of interest in the neighborhood of that famous resort.

From Fort Simpson.

Rev. Thos. Crosby, of Fort Simpson and the northwest coast, is in the city, and called at this office to day. Mr. Crosby left Fort Simpson just three weeks ago yesterday on the staunch little missionary steamer Glad Tidings, and took in nearly all the inlets of the coast en route. He reports having had a fine trip on his missionary tour, and will leave Victoria next Wednesday on his return voyage, going by the west coast of Vancouver Island, and reaching home in about a month from now, as there is considerable missionary work to be done en route. Mr. Crosby, in speaking of the Skeena trouble, expressed the opinion that the shooting of the Indian, Kit-Cool Jim, was a great mistake and might easily have been avoided had less bungling occurred. Now that the trouble had progressed so far, it was difficult to say what would be the upshot, but he did not anticipate anything very serious. In the Skeena country there were some five or six tribes, comprising about 1,500 or 2,000 Indians, men, women and children.

A Pleasant Surprise.

This afternoon we were made the happy recipient of a bran new hatchet, almost similar to the one used by George Washington in destroying his father's cherry orchard. The hatchet, thanks to the forethought of the donor, has an edge like a razor, but we have had no chance to try its temper yet, as no enraged subscribers called during the day. "For the fighting editor" is the legend that graces the handle, and the "fighting editor takes this means of returning thanks for the generous and useful gift. We always knew that uprightness and a faithful regard for the truth would bring its reward sooner or later, and now it is most satisfactory and encouraging to find ourselves ranked with the great George Washington—an honor never before accorded to a newspaper writer. We are now in a position to insist on all delinquent subscribers to "call and settle," either by cash or single combat. While we retain the hatchet, business will be business, and no mistake. The old plan of dropping in and cheerfully offering to "pulverize" us if he received any more duns, is played out. Our bills will now be sent in regularly, and, as we said before, delinquents are cordially invited to come along and settle.

Do not delay in getting relief for the little folks. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is a pleasant and sure cure. If you love your child why do you let it suffer when a remedy is so near at hand.

Personal.

We regret to learn that Mrs. Geo. Wise is very ill in this city, and will be taken to St. Mary's Catholic hospital.

Bishop Cridge has arrived in the city and will preach at St. Paul's both morning and evening, on Sunday. At the evening service a class of young people will be confirmed.

The friends of Dr. McSwain in this city will be glad to learn that recent letters received from him, from Riverside, Cal., give more favorable accounts of his health than have been anticipated.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

Thomas Robinsin, Farnham Centre, P. Q., writes: "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for the last ten years, and have tried many remedies without any relief. I got a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and found it gave instant relief, and since then have had no attack. I would recommend it to all."

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria
