NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The false hair trade of New York requires the annual importation to that city from Europe of about four tons of human hair. London takes about seven tons annually.

John L. Sullivan is being put forward in earnest as a candidate for mayor of Boston. Still we do not believe that the New England Athens will stultify herself by voting Sullivan into the civic chair because he is a great bruiser.—Am. paper.

It is said that Baron Rothschild headed a deputation of prominent English Jews who waited upon the Shah of Persia in London and prayed that he would take steps, on his return to Persia, to improve the condition of the Jews in his dominions.

Class in Physiology: Omaha Teacher—"Will some member of the class explain how we hear things?" Bright Sprig—"Somebody tells pa something down town, then pa tells it to ma as a profound secret, then ma tells it at the sewing society meeting, and then we all hear it.

An absent-minded German professor was one day observed walking with one foot continually in the gutter, the other on the pavement. A pupil meeting him, saluted him with, "Good evening Herr Professor; how are you?" I was very well, I thought," answered the professor, but now I don't know what's the matter with me; for the last half hour I have been limping."

John Bennett, of Spotswood, N.J., to show the ardor of his affection to Miss Cornelia Hullfish, made a deed of $18,000 of property to her a few days before he was to lead her to the altar. But Cornelia thought Bennett old and ugly, while her cousin, David Jobs, was young and handsome. She is Mrs. David Jobs now, and refuses to restore the $18,000 which the unwise love of John Bennett bestowed upon her.—Ex.

A Kansas City evening paper comments upon the fact that St. Paul has expended three quarters of a million dollars in city improvements this year, and plaintively adds: "Had all the work which is contemplated in Kansas City been properly attended to, instead of being pushed to one side by the common council, it would have shown twice that amount of money expended." Another sad instance of might have been.—Pioneer Press.

The Italian Bersaglieri, or riflemen, are taught a marching gait which astonishes the military men of other nations. A Bersaglieri regiment stationed at Cremona recently made a forced march of about seven and one-sixth miles in seventy-three minutes. After a halt of half an hour the regiment set out on its return, marching without a pause to Cremona, and passing in review at double time as fresh as if they had not covered fourteen miles in three hours.—Ex.

Says an exhange: The Rev. Hugh A. Pentecost, who announces himself pastor of the Church of the Holy Discontent, has blossomed into a howling Anarchist. In a harangue near New York last Saturday he said: "So long as there is a millionaire you ought to be dissatisfied. I want to inflame your discontent to obtain your rights by socialism or somehow. There is enough money in the country to give every man $5,000 a year. I do not say there should be a bloody revolution, but I hope there will be a revolution, even if it should be a bloody one."

The first election in the United States under the voting system which several states have copied from the Canadian election acts will be that for state officers in Massachusetts next fall. In order that the opponents of the reform may not be able to make the new law a failure a ballot act league has been formed, which will take all possible steps to render its provisions effective. It will look after all preparations, and take charge generally of all the work that is to be done. It is confidently expected that the reform will put an end in Massachusetts to many of the evils which have long attended all election contests in the United States.

Those who wish to live long—and who does not? observes an exchange—will be cheered by the information that the duration of human life appears to be extending. Common sense applied to the problems of existence is doing much to remove the causes which make for early disolution. People are indeed learning to avoid the death traps, and to operate the human machine with such care that it will last long. The point to be remembered is that in youth there is a reserve power which must not, by dissipation or other unnatural agencies, be drawn upon. Let that power be economized, and it will stand its possessor in good stead when sickness or old age overtakes him. The wilful waste of vitality on the other hand will lead to the proverbial "woful want" in due time.

The ship Lanarkshire, from Buenos Ayres, has been detained at Quebec and quarantined, with smallpox on board. The patients have been placed in the hospital, and the ship has been fumigated.

THE ROYAL WEDDING.

The Nuptials of Earl Fife and Louise of Wales Take Place To-morrow.

Preparations for the Event are Made on a Scale of Great Magnificence.

The Dervishes Again Reinforced and a Great Battle with the Allies Expected.

EARL FIFE'S WEDDING.

LONDON, July 26.—The royal wedding to morrow will take place at 12 o'clock at Buckingham palace. The chapel service will be fully choral and will be solemnized by the archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by the dean of Windsor, Rev. Edgar Shephard, the sub-dean of Chapel Royal, the bishop of London, the rector of Sandringham, the dean of Westminster, and the bishop of St. Albans. The musical portions of the service will be undertaken by Dr. Bridge, of Westminster Abbey, assisted by Mr. Jekyll, organist of Chapel Royal, St. James, and the choir of the latter royal chapel. Earl of Fife will have as best man his cousin, Horace Farquehar. The bridesmaids will be the Princess Victoria of Wales, Princess Maud of Wales, Countess Feodara Gleichen, Princess Victoria of Teck and the Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein. The whole ceremony will be carried out in what is known as semi-state. Owing to the bereavement by the loss of his third son, the Lord Chamberlain has been exempted from attendance, but all the chief officers of the queen's household will be present. The queen will arrive at Buckingham Palace, from Osborne, accompanied by the court, on the day preceeding the wedding, and will remain at Buckingham Palace that night. To-morrow at 11:45 the royal family, with the exception of the Prince of Wales and Princess Louise of Wales, will assemble in the bow room at Buckingham Palace. The Princess, with the Princesses Victoria and Maud of Wales, and Princess Albert, Victoria and George of Wales, and the chief officers of the Prince of Wales' household, in three street carriages, will drive to Buckingham Palace shortly before 11:45 from Marlborough house, escorted by field officers and an escort of life guards. The route, which will be lined with armed troops, will be by St. James park. The carriages will be drawn by richly caparisoned horses. The other princesses who will act as bridesmaids will be driven in a royal carriage to the palace privately. At 11:40 the bride with the officers of state will start from her appartments in Buckingham Palace for the Bow room, where a procession will be formed. The Earl of Fife, with Mr. Horace A. Farquehar, will have arrived at the palace previously. The queen's procession will enter Buckingham Palace chapel shortly before noon and the members of the royal family will be seated immediately facing the altar. The Prince of Wales, with the bride, will leave Marlborough house in a state carriage a little before 12 o'clock. His royal highness will be escorted by a line guard. The carriage he will use will be of great magnificence, being that which has only been used by the queen on occasions when she has opened parliament in person. It has never been used by any of the royal family other than the queen. After the ceremony the wedding breakfast will be served in the supper room in Buckingham Palace to those invited to the wedding. The royal family will breakfast separately in another room with the queen. The usual toasts will be given and then the Earl of Fife and his bride will drive back to Marlborough house, followed by the Princess of Wales and her family and the bridesmaids. The bride and bridegroom will, in the afternoon, drive to Lord Fife's suburban seat at Sheen, where the first portion of the honeymoon will be spent. The new wedding anthem, "O, Perfect Love," which has expressly been composed by Mr. Joseph Barneby for the royal marriage, will be included in the services at Buckingham Palace.

A TIMELY COMPLIMENT.

LONDON, July 26.—The Times, referring to Mr. Gladstone's speech on the royal grants last night, said: "It gives genuine pleasure to acknowledge the excellence of his oration, which was inspired with the best traditions of statesmanship, and lighted perhaps by the reflection of his golden wedding.

THE GERMAN COLONIAL CO.

LONDON, July 26.—It has been cabled to America that the German South West African Colonial Company was in negotiations with an English syndicate for the sale of its African possessions. The officials of the company, however, deny that any such wholesale action is contemplated and assert they are only selling certain tracts of land to private persons.

CANADIAN STOCK DULL.

LONDON, July 26.—The market for American railways opened active and higher this morning. At 2 o'clock the list was buoyant, with the exception of Canadian roads, which found little demand, and in which there was little doing. The general market is firm.

A GREAT BATTLE IMMINENT.

LONDON, July 26.—The latest news from Cairo is that reinforcements for the invading Arabs are moving down in 3 columns, marching through the desert, where they have joined the main body. Wah-El-Ingami, the Arab chief, will give battle to the combined British and Egyptian forces.

PARNELL'S STAND.

LONDON, July 25.—It is positively asserted that Parnell's support of the government proposal to increase the allowance to the Prince of Wales is due not so much to Mr. Gladstone's influence as to his intimate knowledge of the prince's political views, more especially those on the subject of the treatment of Ireland. It is stated that, notwithstanding his great respect for Mr. Gladstone and his sense of obligation to him for his great services in behalf of Ireland, Mr. Parnell could never have followed his lead into the camp of the Tory government were it not for the certainty that in doing so he is aiding the Prince of Wales, whose sympathies are with the popular cause of Ireland. The Irish Nationalist members had a meeting this afternoon to discuss their attitude toward the question of grants, and although there was no attempt to bring about united action on the subject, a very pronounced majority committed themselves to the course which Mr. Parnell has cut out for himself. A small section of the Irish party will, however, follow the lead of Mr. O'Connor in opposition to the government's proposals.

THE ROYAL GRANTS.

LONDON, July 25.—There was an unusually large attendance of members in the commons to-day. The interest in to-day's debate on the part of the public was also made manifest by crowded galleries. The great attraction was the debate on royal grants. When Mr. Smith moved the adoption of a report of a special committee on royalty grants every eye was directed towards him. He was promptly questioned by members of the opposition as to the present condition of the queen's finances. They demanded to know what savings the queen had made out of the allowances already made for the support of the royal family. Mr. Smith declined to reply to the questions, which he claimed were entirely irrelevant to the subject in hand. It was not the duty of the sovereign, he said, to provide for the royal family. The government could not believe that there existed any important class among the loyal people of the British empire who grudged to royalty the very moderate provision necessary to maintain its dignity, a dignity which was not only that of the royal family, but of the empire as well.

Mr. Labouchere moved a substitute for the committee's report. This substitute is in the form of an address to the queen, stating that in the opinion of the house her majesty ought to provide for her grandchildren out of her present income. He stated that it was his opinion, and the opinion of those who stood with him on this question, that the sums already granted to the royal family out of the public treasury were quite sufficient for all purposes with which the people had any concern. He was determined to oppose all future grants to the junior royalties, and he spoke not only for himself but for many others who acted with him in support of this substitute for the committee's report, notwithstanding the refusal of the honorable gentleman to reply to the inquiries as to the queen's savings. The government was already on record as admit*ting that large savings had been made* out of the allowance heretofore granted the Queen for her civil list. These savings, he understood, were well invested and if it was true as it has been stated, that the queen had out of these savings given various sums to several of her grand-children, he had no doubt there was enough left to provide for the others. He insisted that the extreme limit which the nation should put upon its bounty to royalty was reached when a proper provision was made for the children of the sovereign. To extend the principle of royalty grants beyond this limit was to treat with injustice the people from whom the sum for such a purpose must be wrung in taxes. Possibly some notions of ordinary prudence and common sense in the management of their finances might be imposed upon royalty by a denial of a further pension, but he could not believe that a display of these virtues would in the least militate against the dignity either of the empire or the royal family themselves. It might become necessary to abolish the horde of useless officials who are now pampered in the royal household, but who would complain, if, for instance, the queen's lord chamberlain were to leave the stable yard or if her master of the house were to drop out of sight, or her eight lords-in-waiting on her, or all these useless officials of the households of the Prince of Wales and other princes and princesses.

Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Morley followed and the debate was adjourned.

THE CRONIN CASE.

CHICAGO, July 25.—To-day five defendants in the Cronin murder case, Beggs, O'Sullivan, Coughlin, Woodruff and Hunze were taken before Judge Horton by order of the state's Attorney Longnecker, and the question: "Are you ready for trial?" put to each of them. All but Coughlin replied: "I am," and after a little discussion on the case the prisoners were taken out of court by the sheriff, under an order from Judge Horton to bring them before him again to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock. Judge Longnecker's object in having them arraigned was to prevent them from claiming the protection of the statute which holds that in criminal cases the state must be ready for trial at the second term after an indictment is returned.

OTTAWA NOTES.

OTTAWA, July 24.—General surprise has been created at the sudden flop of the Toronto Mail on the commercial union question. After advocating it vigorously for two years, the Mail now says that as the United States will seemingly have nothing to do with it, it would be a useless attempt to create public sentiment in its favor, and Canada should accordingly devote itself rather to straightening out some of the incongruities in the national policy.

Argument in the Edison case terminated to-day. Counsel for the Royal company knocked out the objection of Edison's counsel that by the international industrial convention the Edisons could import a patented article to Canada, by showing that Great Britain's adhesion to the connection expressly exempted the colonies. Decision was deferred.

OTTAWA, July 25.—E. H. Greaves is here attending the convention of the brotherhood of railroad brakemen of America.

The Indian treaty payments are in progress. Nearly a million and a half is devoted to the purpose.

A series of anti-Jesuit meetings will be held throughout Ontario next month.

It is announced that arrangements have been completed in London, England, for laying a cable from Greenly Island, Gulf of St. Lawrence, to West Port, Ireland, a saving of 1,300 miles as compared with the present route. Complex instruments will not be required.

It is expected that a warrant for the extradition of Burke will be issued next week.

The Rome correspondent of the Catholic News cables that Bishop Walsh, London, Ont., was yesterday elected Archbishop of Toronto, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Archbishop Lynch.

LUNDY'S LANE.

The 75th Anniversary of the Glorious Victory at Lundy's Lane Celebrated To-day.

Thousands of People Gather on the Old Battlefield and Honor the Occasion.

Advices Received at Ottawa of a Serious Outbreak of Asiatic Cholera at Manila.

ANNIVERSARY OF LUNDY'S LANE.

DRUMMONDVILLE, Ont., July 26.—Thousands of people attended the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Battle of Lundy's Lane. Among those present were Sir A. P. Caron, Adam Brown, M. P., and the York and Wentworth pioneers in large bodies. After the decoration of the graves of the heroes who fell in the struggle of 1814, patriotic speeches were delivered by the minister of militia and others of the prominent men present, and appropriate resolutions were passed. Sir Adolphe promised to do his best to induce the government to aid in the erection of a monument on the battlefield. The prominent feature was the speech by Sir A. P. Caron, who received a great ovation. He said it was with the deepest gratitude he accepted the invitation extended to him to come here on this historic spot with its many associations of early days in Canadian history. Although of French descent, he was a Canadian, and loved the old British flag that those who were sleeping here defended 75 years ago to-day; the same floated over their citadel at Quebec and the French descendants of that province, like himself, know no other flag but that one. They loved their country and their queen, and proved it in time of trouble. Sir Adolphe spoke on the unity that should exist among all classes of Canadians for the general welfare of all, and concluded by stating that he felt just as much at home on the battlefield of Lundy Lane, Ont., as he did amongst his friends in the county of Quebec.

A DESIRE TO BE DESPERATE.

KINGSTON, July 26.—Twitchell is in better spirits this morning. Several doctors attended him during the night. He says he is subject to despondent fits, and then does things he wonders at afterwards. For over a week he has been completely upset in his mind, which was filled with a desire to do something desperate. This was the cause of his recent action. He appeared in court this morning and was remanded. The victim is not fit to appear in court. Mrs. Martin is very ill. Her nervous system is overwrought and she fainted when Twitchell pounded her on the head, but was aroused by the fire. Her feet were badly cut by the broken lamp chimney.

THE NEW ARCHBISHOP.

TORONTO, July 26.—The news of the election of Bishop Walsh to the archbishopric of Toronto was received with joy by the Roman Catholic clergy of the city. They are unanimous in the belief that a better selection from among the ecclesiastics of the province could not be made. Bishop Walsh is spending a vacation in Montreal. Scores of telegrams were yesterday sent him from all parts of the country congratulating him on his elevation. The pallium, the insignia of archbishoprics, will not arrive from Rome for about a year.

ASIATIC CHOLERA.

OTTAWA, July 26.—The department of agriculture has been apprised of an outbreak of Asiatic cholera in the Phillipine Islands. As many as 20 deaths a day are occurring at Manilla. Vessels going to the United States report the presence of cholera, and our own officials on the Pacific coast have been notified to be on the lookout for vessels coming from these ports.

A ZULU VIRAGO.

QUEBEC, July 26.—For the past two days races have been in progress on the St. Charles course, and disgraceful scenes of disorder and rowdyism are reported in the vicinity. Matters culminated yesterday in the arrest of one woman rider, Madame Maranatte. She applied the whip among the people right and left, some persons receiving ugly cuts on their faces. She gave bail to stand trial. She is a Zulu.

BRAVE NEW YORKERS.

NEW YORK, July 26.—During a fog this morning a collision occurred in East river between the tug boat Burgess and the ferry boat Brooklyn. A wild panic arose among the latter's passengers, the men rushing for life preservers regardless of the women who screamed and fainted in many cases. The bow of the ferry boat struck the tug amidship and the latter sank almost immediately. Her crew all succeeded in getting aboard the ferry boat, and after a time the panic was quelled as it was found the ferry boat had sustained no damage. The latter proceeded to her dock and landed all her passengers in safety.

A DISHONEST LAWYER.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Lawyer John R. Dunn, who advised his client, cashier Scott, of Manhattan, to steal $185,000 of the bank's money and afterwards got the greater part of it himself, was taken to Sing Sing this morning to serve a sentence of 9 years and 6 months. Legal delays has kept him in the tombs here for a year pending appeal.

THREE MURDERS.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 25.—It is reported that the dead bodies of one colored and two white men were found yesterday morning near Whiting station, Lake county, each with a fatal wound on the back of the head. One body was naked with the exception of a shirt. Who they are, where they came from and how they came there is unknown. One story is that they had been in Whiting several days, had been enticed on the railroad, murdered and robbed. Another theory is that they were stockmen, murdered and thrown from a train by tramps. The bodies were found close together between the tracks of the B. O. and Lake Shore railways.

Friday Evening, July 26, 1889.

When England undertook to occupy Egypt, on behalf principally of English capital invested there, it took upon itself the fighting of Egypt's battles, and a busy time it has had of it for the last half a decade or more. Since the failure of the Khartoum expedition to rescue General Gordon, whose chief mission in the Soudan was the suppression of the nefarious Arab slave trade, the British and Egyptian garrisons in Lower Egypt have been repeatedly harassed by the emboldened hordes of the desert—the fanatical dervishes and the slave trading Arabs—who have become the aggressors with a vengeance, and lately threaten boldly to sweep the British from the country. The native Egyptian soldiery is no match, either in courage or fighting qualities, for these fierce warriors of the desert, who fear not even the world conquering British, but before whose equal courage and superior discipline and armament they are forced to succumb, even when far outnumbering the latter. The message of Nad-El-Jumi, leader of the dervishes, to General Grenfell, when called upon to surrender recently, illustrates very well the character of these fanatics. Says Nad-El-Jumi: "Your force is nothing to me, I am sent to conquer the world and I cannot stop. Now, I call upon you to surrender; if you will do so, I will protect you. Remember Hicks Pasha and Gordon Pasha." The troops in Egypt have been able to check the late advance of the dervishes, while scarcely strong enough to drive them back into the interior, and reinforcement have been sent to Egypt, which, with the British and Egyptian forces there, will in all probability, except in the event of an extraordinary movement of the Arabs, be able to keep Nad-El-Jumi from breaking loose upon the world, so that our local militia needn't become excited until further notice. There is no reasonable doubt that England can and will maintain a sufficient force in Egypt to keep these desert marauders and cutthroats pretty well in check; but what is very desirable—and at the same time extremely difficult and expensive in such a country as the Soudan, a fact amply demonstrated by comparatively recent experience—is that they should be once and for all thoroughly "cleaned out" in their strongholds in the far interior. These dervishes and Arabs of Lower Egypt or the Soudan are to-day the great curse of Africa. It is by them that the bloody and infamous slave trade, which has lately been brought to the horrified notice of the civilized world, is carried on, and it is stated that the present uprising is due to the fear of the Arab villains that the slave trade is about to be wiped out. The movement in Europe for its suppression has greatly alarmed them, and Germany has been giving the traders great trouble by her blockade of the Zanzibar coast. Therefore, they have conceived the design of driving the English out of Egypt and thus opening a new channel for their infamous traffic. Those who are jealous of Great Britain's occupation of Egypt have no reasonable ground for their jealousy, it will be seen. Besides looking after her own legitimate interests, Great Britain is doing a service to the world and to humanity, which would be a most inestimable one if she should utterly crush the Arab legions and occupy the Soudan as well. It is rather too much, however, to expect one power to undertake such a task, and it is to be hoped that there may soon be a concert of action among the nations to wipe out for ever this accursed slave traffic, if in so doing they should have to knock the whole race of Nad-El-Jumis into a "cocked hat." It may be expected that the international anti-slavery congress, called by Cardinal Lavegerie to meet at Lucerne, Switzerland, on the 4th of August next, and to which all civilized nations have been invited to send delegates, will result in some united and feasible plan for crushing the slave traffic forever in oppressed and blood-stained Africa.

The Parnell commission—a freak in its way—has taken another of its intermittent vacations—we are sure it needs a rest, but not any worse than the very weary public—adjourning yesterday until the 24th of October. On the 12th of the current month, it will be remembered, Parnell and his associates formally withdrew from the commission, although consenting to continue to give evidence when required. The withdrawal consisted in withdrawing their counsel, for the publicly assigned reason that the commission was not disposed to treat the Parnellites fairly, and it was but assisting at a farce to continue the case under such circumstances. The particular incident in the proceedings which caused Parnell to arrive at this decision was the refusal of Judge Hannen, the presiding justice, to authorize the production, by the secretary, Mr. Houston, of the books of the Loyal Patriotic Union—an organization of landlords principally, and directly opposed in its objects to the National League and Home Rule. The ground on which Judge Hannen ruled against the production of the books in question, it is understood, was that persons not before the court would be thereby implicated—a rather flimsy pretext, and one not sufficiently supported by precedent, it is to be feared, to stand in the way of important evidence being obtained. Sir Charles Russell, for the Parnellites, demanded the production of these books, it should be added, and desired to prove by them that the whole indictment contained in "Parnellism and Crime" proceeded from the Loyal and Patriotic Union, and that Pigott was used by that powerful political organization to concoct the plan. Under all the circumstances, the Parnellites would appear, on the surface of things at any rate, to have had a very good pretext for withdrawing in disgust, as they did. News correspondents to American papers, according as they look at the question through different political spectacles, commend Parnell's action in this matter, or decry it as uncalled for and theatrical. A correspondent, who appears to be disposed to be fair to both sides, has the following to say of the scene when Parnell and his friends withdrew their case from court, with some comments on the incident: "Judge Day, on the left, usually somnolent, was alert and anxious. Judge Smith, on the right, enjoyed it hugely. Judge Hannen, in the centre, had on an air of offended dignity. On leaving the court the correspondent had a few words with Parnell. He said they had acted deliberately. They felt they had no alternative. 'No begorra,' said Mr. Biggar, 'we could not assist at the farce any longer. Their decision to screen Houston was only the culmination of a long series of unfairness and partiality. We should be fools to go on with the judicial farce.' Mr. Biggar seems to put the case too strongly. Until the Houston incident there had been nothing unfair. The judges have been biased, but not wilfully unfair. Judge Hannen has certainly tried hard to be entirely impartial. No one can accuse Judge Day, for he has apparently slept with impartiality all through. But the decision not to probe the Pigott conspiracy or inquire into the genesis of the charges and all allegations, certainly reduces the inquiry to a farce, and the Irish members having all tendered themselves for examination, and thus disproved the imputation of a desire to shirk inquiry, are quite right to withdraw." Whatever may be thought on this side of the Atlantic of the different stories that reach us as to the fairness or unfairness of the commission towards the Parnellites, it must be particularly gratifying to the "uncrowned king" himself, as well as to his followers—and not a little significant as well of spontaneous public opinion on the merits of the case near the immediate theatre of the inquiry—that throughout Great Britain, and not by Irishmen alone, Parnell is held in the highest admiration and esteem, and enthusiastically honored on all possible occasions—as witness, for one instance, the cordial and hearty presentation to him, the other day, of the freedom of the city of Edinburgh—as a triumphantly and perfectly vindicated patriot and statesman. In the face of such testimonials, and of the famous Pigott disclosures already made, the mere formal report of the commission, if it should not be in accordance with the judgment of the people of Great Britain, will carry very little practical weight.

RESIGNATION.

To the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of New Westminster:—

GENTLEMEN,—

I beg most respectfully to tender my resignation as a member of the Council. I feel that owing to the course of conduct respecting railway construction to which the Council appears to have committed itself, and which must result disastrously to the best interests of the city, I can no longer satisfactorily discharge my representative duties at your board.

I am, &c.,

RESIGNATION.

To the Aldermen and Citizens of New Westminster:

GENTLEMEN,—

I consider it my duty to resign from the Civic Board, as my relations with the New Westminster and Southern Railway conflict, or appear to conflict, for when I introduce any scheme between the Railway Company and the City, although it may be for the benefit and best interests of the City, some of the Aldermen insinuate that I am working for the New Westminster and Southern Railway Company (of which I am a member) against the interests of the City; therefore, I beg respectfully to tender my resignation, hoping the Chair will be more ably and honorably filled to the advancement and best interests of the City of New Westminster. I am,

Your Obedient Servant,
JOHN HENDRY.

ENERGY OF STORMS.

Some of the Laws and Theories of Meteorological Phenomena.

H. A. Hazen, in discussing the subject in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, states that the theory was advanced by Espy in 1835 that the energy of our storms and tornadoes was entirely due to the latent heat set free in the condensation of the aqueous vapor in the air. He supposed that a primary impulse was given to an ascending current by the heat of the sun falling upon a certain limited portion of the earth, and that saturated air in this ascending current, through expansion and cooling, had its moisture condensed. This condensation liberated the latent heat stored up through the process of evaporation, and this in turn heated up the air, producing a rarefaction and an increased upward motion. The longer this process went on the more intense the action became, the more heat was evolved, and thus more and more force was evolved. Prof. Ferrel adopted this view in part, and said that without the action of some constant force the primary impulse would rapidly lose its intensity through friction, and thus the disturbance would quickly come to an end. This constant force he maintained was the heating of the air through condensation, etc., as set forth by Espy. Prof. Mohn, one of the most prominent meteorologists of Europe, has gone still further, and has computed the amount of energy brought out in developing a single Cuban hurricane during October 5, 6, 7, 1844. He says: "The Cuban hurricane, in moving the in-flowing air, developed at least 473,500,000 horse-power in these three days—that is, at least fifteen times as much energy as comes from all wind mills, water wheels, steam engines, locomotives, man and animal power of the whole earth at the same time." He states that all this power needed in the storm generation came from the latent heat set free in the process of condensation.

This, then, must be considered the chief corner-stone of theories in regard to storm formation. It seems exceedingly probable, however, that this enormous development of energy is purely and highly imaginary, and that it is an attempt to make something out of next to nothing. While undoubtedly latent heat will be evolved if vapor be condensed, yet this evolution would seem to bring certain death to the very process of condensation. Suppose we have a mass of air and could condense its moisture without altering its temperature, the latent heat set free would make just enough sensible heat to again evaporate the moisture, and there would be no rain, but every thing would remain in statu quo. Suppose, however, we take away enough heat to cool the air 10 degrees for each cubic foot, this would amount to the heat necessary to evaporate one-seventh of a grain of moisture and must be taken in part at least from the surrounding air. If we cool the air 1 degree it will condense a certain amount of moisture, depending upon the temperature, and this will generate exactly the same amount of heat that was used in the original evaporation. In order to absorb this heat it is necessary to cool the condensing air, and this can only be done by imparting still more heat to the surrounding air, so that we have increased the temperature of the environment in two ways, and thus have put a stop to all further development.

For example, let us cool a cubic foot of saturated air from 80 to 79 degrees, and let us suppose that the heat imparted to the surrounding air is all concentrated in a single cubic foot close by the first. We now have 1 cubic foot of saturated air at 79 degrees and another of unsaturated air at about 81 degrees. The cooling to 79 degrees has condensed one-third grain of moisture, and this has liberated latent heat which can be disposed or only by heating the adjacent cubic foot to 2.3 degrees. We have, then, if there is no flaw in the reasoning, one-third grain of moisture as rainfall, 1 cubic foot of saturated air at 79 degrees and another of unsaturated air at 83.53. Suppose we mix these, we shall have 2 cubic feet of air at about 81 degrees and unsaturated, hence no further rainfall can occur till this is again cooled, and it can not be cooled except at the expense of the surrounding air. It is plain that this will be the effect even with the most infinitesimal cooling and condensation, hence we must conclude that no appreciable rainfall can occur by these processes, and the enormous energy developed is a figment of the imagination, or else that the heat evolved has been changed to electricity or radiated into space or disposed of in some other way. The processes hereabout set forth seem to be exactly analagous to those taking place when two masses of saturated air or widely-differing temperature are mixed together, in which case all meteorologists are agreed there can be no appreciable rainfall, and, of course, no development of energy.

This seems a very startling result, and no one will ask: What can we substitute as the cause of storms? It is believed by a great many intelligent people that meteorology has not yet taken its first step toward a satisfactory solution of its profoundest problems, and there has been scarcely a well-authenticated principle established even in the simpler problems. We may well conclude that the principal reason for this has been in the extreme proneness to adopt doubtful hypothesis, which has greatly hampered investigation. One of the first steps to disprove these theories before we can lay the foundation of a better structure, is the only possible way in which we can hope to learn the formation of our storms and the laws governing their movement is to investigate them in the open air, where, as is now admitted by all, their power lies. Such a knowledge, it will be readily admitted, would be of incalculable benefit to all classes of people, but especially to those living in Canado districts, to scafaring men and to others. It is to be hoped that those interested will turn their attention to this subject, but if not, in this evening of the nineteenth century there will undoubtedly soon be a demand from many classes of people that the investigation be undertaken. With the modern appliances this may be made at very slight expense and with entire safety to the investigator.

BOUGHT FOR A SONG.

Old Phrase Which Has Outlived Its Days of Usefulness.

This phrase, so long used in a contemptuous, or at least off-hand, sort of a way, is right now to fall into disuse, says the London Globe. It has no reason for existing; the idea contained in it is exploded. Time was when the best of songs had little pecuniary value, and when to say "I have bought such and such for a mere song," implied a purchase of exceeding cheapness. Now all is changed. A fortune can be made, and sometimes is made, out of a single ditty. If it catch the public ear, prosperity follows as a matter of course. Some songs yield a handsome regular income to their owners. We know, for example, how enormous is the circulation of some of Sir Arthur Sullivan's drawing-room melodies. Who shall say what has been netted by "The Lost Chord!" An American musical paper has just recorded that the well-known ballad: "Listen to the Mocking Bird," has brought in a profit of $70,000. Our contemporary contrasts this sum with the sums realized by certain works of the "old masters," but the comparison, of course, does not hold good. It is a question, not of intrinsic value, but of popularity. Every thing that is popular pays; that is irrefragable. And the fact is the outcome, mainly, of the great growth of the population. When any thing succeeds nowadays, its success is usually very great, simply because there are so many different persons to whom to appeal. "Listen to the Mocking Bird" must have commended itself to the great majority, and place its monetary triumph. It would be pleasant if the million would go into raptures over songs of a high caliber, but that is hardly to be expected.

Queen Victoria's Rings.

It is said that the three rings which Queen Victoria prizes the most highly are: first of all her wedding ring, which she has never taken off, then a small emerald ring, with a tiny diamond in the center, which the Prince Consort gave her at the age of sixteen; and an emerald serpent, which he gave her as an engagement ring. For many years after the Prince Consort's death her Majesty slept with these rings on her fingers, only taking them off to wash her hands, as the water would, of course, spoil the enamel.

THE BRAIN (from a photograph.)
Healthy Condition. With Paresis Lesions

There are many well known men confined in our Asylums who but a short time ago were prominent among our business and social circles.

Why are they there?

Paresis!

Did it come on at once?

Not at all. It was a gradual but positive growth. They overtaxed nature. The drain on their vitality, their nerve powers, their brain tissue, was too great, and they gradually but surely sank under it. The things they did to bring this sad end about are precisely the same things being done by thousands of men and women to-day. It is not necessary to name them. They all end disastrously unless checked or regulated.

Prof. Phelps, of Dartmouth College, knew this fully when he began his experiments which resulted in the discovery of the wonderful Paine's Celery Compound. He realized that Paresis (consumption of the brain) was our great National weakness. He knew that the brain and nervous system must be fortified to meet the great strains which modern life bring upon it. He saw that men were becoming debilitated and women weakened by the pressure and demands of life, and he sought and discovered the remedy. Paine's Celery Compound, if rightly taken, will renew the brain and build up nerve tissues as fast as they become exhausted. It is not a narcotic. It contains no drugs, no nostrums. It is perfectly pure. It is absolutely harmless. The high character of its discoverer guarantees this, and the indorsement of the medical and chemical professions prove it.

Port Kells

This Fine Townsite, at the Fresh-Water Junction of the Southern Railw'y

—WITH THE—

FRASER RIVER

12 Miles Above Westminster,

Has just been Surveyed, and the Lots are for sale by

WOODS, TURNER & GAMBLE

—AND—

ALBERT J. HILL & COMPANY

OF NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C.

The advantages and prospects of this Plot for a future thriving Town are many.

The Land in the vicinity is good.

There are inexhaustible IRON ORE DEPOSITS, of a superior quality, immediately adjacent, as well as vast strata of the finest BUILDING SAND and POTTERY CLAY.

On the Townsite are a number of valuable MINERAL SPRINGS.

Communication by land and water is unequalled, by reason of the location of the Townsite on the Fraser River and the Southern Railway, while the natural elevation and lay of the land can not be excelled as a situation for a fine town.

The ground is open and clear of heavy timber.

The site has been selected as one of the most important stations on the Southern Railway, and with the completion of the road, in the near future, must, with all its other advantages, spring into prominence at once.

Those who apply early will have the pick of the Lots.

A clear title given with every purchase.

Parties wishing Lots can apply as well, on the premises, to

The rifle range at Brownsville will be put in better condition before the provincial matches come off than it has been since its inauguration. In all about $250 will be spent in erecting new targets and firing points, brushing the range and opening the ditch, which has got badly blocked up of late.

It is reported that a resident of the Scott road, who is noted for the handy way in which he handles his "darbies," has gone into training preparatory to challenging the great Sullivan for the world's championship. The Scott road people are coming rapidly to the front, and some of them are bound in time to make a broad and deep mark in life.

Chief of police Pearce made a thorough search yesterday for the man who assisted Constable Smith to raid the Chinese gambling house on Wednesday night. Nothing could be learned of the man and no clue to his identify was obtained. It is now shrewdly suspected that he did good work in assisting to rid the board of its wealth, and quietly vanished with the proceeds thereby obtained.

Mayoralty Candidates.

Another name mentioned to-day as a possible successor to Mr. Hendry as mayor, is that of Mr. R. Dickinson, who so ably filled the civic chair for many terms. It is very doubtful if Mr. Dickinson would accept office again, but if he did his long experience undoubtedly qualifies him to fill the office well. Several other possible candidates are mentioned for the vacancy. It is stated that a requisition to Mr. Edmonds will be circulated tomorrow.

Twelve Temptations.

By an advertisement in another column it will be seen that Gilmore's "Twelve Temptations" will be put on the boards at the Imperial Opera House, Vancouver to-night, to-morrow night and at a Saturday matinee. This troupe has met with great success all through its tour, and at Victoria the opera house was literally jammed on the occasion of its representation. "Twelve Temptations" is a spectacular drama, introducing the ballet. It presents a mythical story of the elements—an idyl of ice and sun.

Bush Fires.

Bush fires are still burning briskly in all directions, both north and south. Telegraphic advices from the south say that there is scarcely 10 miles of country free from bush fires between the boundary and Seattle, and it has been found impossible during the last few days to keep the telegraph lines in good working order. To-day the fires seem to have made an unusually severe attack on the wires and poles, and the lines are reported down in many places. The atmosphere still continues heavily charged with smoke, which the south west breezes is blowing over from Oregon and Washington.

The Liquor License By-law.

A rule nisi, calling upon the city to show cause why the "Liquor License By-law, 1889" should not be quashed, has been granted by the supreme court, and the question respecting the validity of the by-law will be argued on the 6th of August. This case arises out of the decision given in the police court, in the case of J. Benter, fined for selling liquor without a license, and from which an appeal was taken. The best legal talent in the province has been retained by both the city and the licensed victuallers to conduct the case, and some very learned and interesting arguments are sure to be be the result. The conduct of the case will be watched with keen interest.

London-Westminster.

Messrs. Bell-Irving, Patterson & Co., commission and shipping merchants, of this city and Vancouver, are about to charter a vessel to load merchandise in London, England, direct for Westminster. It is expected the vessel will be berthed within a month, and intending importers should apply to Bell, Irving & Co., for freight rates, etc., without delay. A fair quantity of cargo has already been offered, but there will be space for much more. This is an enterprise that should be most warmly aided by our importers, for it is an object Westminster has been aiming at for some time. The new firm is showing the proper spirit of pluck and enterprise, and it can count on a hearty support from the business men of the Royal city.

Thrown from a Carriage.

While out driving on the Yale road a few days ago, Dr. John Montgomerie, of Eglinton Farm, was thrown from his carriage and sustained severe injuries. The wheel of the carriage struck a log at the side of the road and upset the vehicle, throwing Dr. Montgomerie to the ground with such force that several of his ribs and his collar bone were broken. Fortunately Miss Montgomerie was only a short distance behind, and she, seeing the accident that her father had met with, went to his assistance and assisted him home. Dr. Fagan was summoned and attended professionally to the injuries, which proved to be quite serious though not dangerous. At last reports Dr. Montgomerie was progressing favorably and his complete recovery is only a question of a few weeks.

The New Metlakahla.

Among the passengers for the north on Saturday will be Mr. William Duncan, who has been in Portland for some time past, the guest of the wealthy banker, W. S. Ladd. On Sunday night last Mr. Duncan related his experience of thirty years among the northern Indians to the congregation of Calvary church, Portland, and the story of the transfer of 1000 Indians from Metlakathla to their new home at Port Chester, Alaska. While in Portland Mr. Duncan purchased a sawmill outfit to replace the one recently destroyed by fire, at a loss of $12,000, and on which there was no insurance. It is just two years since Mr. Duncan returned from an eastern trip, made in connection with the new settlement at Port Chester, and on August 7th next the second anniversary of the founding of that settlement will be celebrated.

The Late Andrew Welch.

The late Andrew Welch, senior member of the firm of Welch, Rithet & Co., who died at Portland, Or., yesterday was a native of Dunfrieshire, Scotland. He was a man of great mental capacity, possessed wonderful perseverance and had an ability for business far above the ordinary. He first went to Victoria as the representative of Messrs. Anderson & Anderson, the great shipping men, and later went into business with Mr. G. M. Sproat, now government agent for Kootenay district. The firm of Welch & Sproat was shortly changed to that of Welch & Clarke and then to Welch & Co. Victoria being too circumscribed for his aspirations he went to San Francisco and there commenced business. A branch was established in Victoria with Mr. R. P. Rithet as resident partner and manager. Then a house was established in Liverpool where Mr. Welch's brother was managing partner and known as R. G. Welch. The deceased was one of the most fortunate of men, for everything into which he embarked was a success. Many years since he, in company with Mr. Hugh Nelson, now our lieut.-governor, became interested in the Moodyville Saw Mill Company. In 1882 he bought out Mr. Nelson's interest in the concern, and then became sole owner of this vast concern. He was also owner of an extensive sugar cane plantation in the Sandwich Islands, as well as being interested in the American Sugar Refinery Co., of San Francisco, and of which he was vice-president for many years. Mr. Welsh was a married man, and leaves behind him a wife and five children. He was a comparatively young man, and at the time of his death was possessed of great wealth. The business of the firm of Welch, Rithet & Co., is not likely to suffer materially by his death, nor will the operations of the San Francisco or Liverpool houses, or the Moodyville mills be interrupted, as arrangements looking to such an event as has just happened were completed some weeks since.

VICTORIA NEWS.

The Jap Defeats Quinn in a Wrestling Match at Seattle.—The Electric Tramway to be Immediately Commenced. Chinese Cutting Affray.

Special to the Columbian.

VICTORIA, July 26.—A telegram from Seattle states the wrestling match between Quinn and Sorakichi, the Jap, was won by the latter. Each man won one fall, but Quinn was badly hurt in the last by striking his head on the floor and could not come to time, so the referee gave the match to the Jap.

The str. Sardonyx arrived at Nanaimo from the north this morning and will reach here this afternoon.

Work will be commenced on the electric tramway immediately.

A couple of Chinamen had an altercation last night one drew a knife and cut his antagonist across the forehead.

A gentleman and his wife were thrown from a buggy this morning by the horse running away. They escaped with a few scratches.

Contraband Whiskey.

Quite a thrill of excitement was caused near the boat houses by the report that three Indians had arrived in a sloop containing several barrels of whiskey. On proceeding to the spot it was learned that three Indians, while on their way to New Westminster to take part in the salmon fishing, had, while off Coal Island, sighted a sloop half submerged and on its side. They promptly towed her ashore, and after baling the water out commenced to investigate, with the result that they found the sloop to contain 13 kegs of whiskey and one case of bitters. There were 7 ten-gallon and 6 five gallon kegs. When the craft was discovered all sails were set, as if she had capsized in a squall. The Indians, after righting the sloop, sailed her into Nanaimo harbor, where she was taken in charge, with her cargo, by Constable Stewart. Besides the whiskey and case of bitters there were several cooking utensils, a stove and a Winchester rifle. The kegs were jammed in very tightly, which possibly accounts for their remaining in the boat after she was capsized. The sloop is a very neat model and, as she is heavily rigged, is probably a fast sailer, but very cranky. A bung was started in one of the kegs last night and those who were allowed to smell the contents pronounced it "Injun pison" of the worst kind. The kegs and case were addressed "J. A. Robinson, Locus Island." It is very probable that the ultimate destination of the liquor was to Indian camps on the northern coast.—Courier.

The Great Railroad Scheme.

The Tacoma Globe contains the following article written by George Haggard: "In considering the elements of the future prospects of Tacoma you must take into consideration the fact that this city will be the distributing point for the mighty Alaskan trade now about to dawn upon us. Within five years you can ride from Tacoma to Juneau in a pullman palace car and within twenty you can ride from the 'City of Destiny,' then containing a population of 500,000 souls, by a continuous rail route to St. Petersburg, the capital of all the Russias. That such a road is perfectly feasible, I cite the following from the pen of Prof. John Muir, the distinguished Californian, who has done so much in the way of exploring Alaska and for whom the celebrated Muir Glacier is named, viz: 'Senator Stanford's girdle of steel around the earth via Behring Sea is a perfectly feasible scheme. Behring straits can be bridged. It is only twenty-five miles in the narrowest place, and there are three islands strung along in it. This would divide the bridge into four divisions. But, besides this, the water is very shallow. In many places it is not over twenty feet deep. I undertake to say that if a man was strong enough to take one of our California redwood trees in his hands he could put it down anywhere over the 600 miles of Behring Sea and yet have 100 feet of it left above water. This shows how easy it would be to bridge the straits. The only trouble would be from floating icebergs, but that could only be overcome by constructing swinging bridges, like they have across the river at Chicago. In this way the straits could be kept clear all the time, and trains of cars could run right along."

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Southern Railway.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—SIR, Your announcement in yesterday's issue that the compact between the city of New Westminster and the Southern Railway Company is ruptured, is not a very pleasant outlook, although it may be all for the best in the end. The fact that the mayor and one of the aldermen have tendered their resignation in connection with that rupture, shows that their interests are more with the company than with the city, and they, by resigning their seats at the council board, have acted consistently. If Mr. Bennet, who takes the place of Senator Canfield, has concluded new terms with the Southern Railway Company whose president and members are our own citizens, and if these new terms are objectionable to eight-tenths of our present city council, it should follow that the new terms are against the true interests of the Royal city; and if so, it is to be hoped that the citizens of New Westminster will support the council in defending the right and will lose no time in the choice of a mayor and councillor to fill the vacancies. She Railway Company, so far, has not fulfilled their obligations to the city in any particular that I can think if—even those who were their best suppisters have been disappointed—and now, the safest and best course for the city to act towards the company, is to deal with them as a railway corporation.

A Woman Lynched.

DENVER, Colo., July 24.—A Cheyenne, Wyo., special says: A telegram received to-day announces the lynching at Sweetwater of Jim Averill and a woman who lived with him as his wife. Averill was postmaster at Sweetwater, which consists simply of a station contiguous to a number of ranches. Averill drifted into the Sweetwater country four years ago, and at once took up a government claim. He was soon joined by a woman, who took a claim adjoining the town of Bortwell. Both were recognized as hard citizens. The woman was one of the most daring riders in the country. She rode, man-fashion, the most vicious brutes with abandon, and in roping cattle could take a place with the average cowboy. For a long time both have been under suspicion as cattle rustlers. They have rapidly been accumulating a herd, and as they came to the country without anything, it was regarded as evidence against them. This year they turned loose twenty-five year ling calves, which completely satisfied the stock men that they were "maverricking," which particular act led to the lynching. From the particulars received it is known that a small band of masked men succeeded in getting both to the door. They were captured after a desperate struggle, and, after being bound, led some distance away and together strung up to the limb of a tree and the bodies were riddled with bullets. This is the fifth hanging that has taken place in the same section since last spring.
