NOTES AND COMMENTS.

It is probable that the opposition raised in Canada by the press to the wholesale importation of pauper children from England has had its effect. At any rate, the returns of the English Local Government Board show that only 411 children have been exported to Canada this season. The London Times in commenting upon the fact says that England may make up her mind that she will have to keep her own paupers, a remark the appropriateness of which will be appreciated by Canadians.

The London Spectator speaks of President Cleveland's having still "five months to reign." This is an English misconception of what an American president does. He never reigns, and when his successor has been elected the remaining months of his term are spent in the saddest of all earthly occupations, that of packing up. In all the world there is no more mournful spectacle than that of a president preparing to vacate, except that of a president who has vacated being ordered to "keep off the grass" by a supercilious park policeman.—America.

The statistical abstract of India which has just been issued contains an estimate of the population of India in March, 1887, namely: British territory, 207,754,578; the native states, 60,382,466; giving a total population for all India of 268,137,044. Both in British territory and the native states the number of males is much larger than that of females. In 1881 in British territory there were 101.2 males to 97.4 females, and in the native states 28.7 males to 26.4 females, and in all India there were in that year just 6,013,419 more males than females.

An eastern exchange says: They actually tried to interview Mr. Chamberlain at New York, but the impatient bridegroom refused to talk politics and hastened on to Washington. The New York reporters are positively aghast at the statesman's temerity in declining to tell them all he knew. They are equal to requesting the clergyman who performs the marriage ceremony to substitute for the usual questions a few queries on leading topics, such as "What do you think of the Sackville incident?" "Are you interested in the Parnell commission?" and so forth.

Benjamin Harrison will be 55 years 6 months and 14 days old when he is inaugurated president of the United States. His distinguished grandfather was 58 years old at the time of taking the oath of office forty-seven years ago. Three other presidents were 55 years old at the beginning of their administrations. They were Martin Van Buren, Zachary Taylor, and Rutherford B. Hayes. Lincoln became president at 52. John Tyler and Chester A. Arthur were 51. Millard Fillmore was 50. Franklin Pierce and James A Garfield were 49. Grover Cleveland was 48. Grant was 47. All the other presidents were older than General Harrison.

The Princess Louise has been paying a visit to Glasgow. Lord Lorne and the Princess had been spending some days with the Duke of Argyle, at Inverary castle, and went thence to Glasgow to see the exhibition. Although the visit was a private one, the municipal authorities were on hand to give the Princess an unofficial reception, and to bid her welcome to the northern metropolis. A visit was also paid to Queen Margaret's college, of which Princess Louise is president, and there an address from the council, lecturers and students was presented. The party during their stay in the vicinity were the guests of Sir Archibald Campbell, of Blytheswood.

Says an exchange: A sensation has been created in Woodstock by a sermon preached by Rev. Mr. Farthing, of the Episcopal church there, in denunciation of gambling. Mr. Farthing condemns the practice as tending to deprave the community, and to divert men from honest toil to speculative means of making a living. The practice is a tremendous deception in more ways than one. Whenever a man falls a victim to the gamblers the popular feeling is one of regret. But a due regard for the circumstances will show that the man has really made a fool of himself by deliberately walking into a trap. Nobody but the professional gambler makes money at gambling. The games of chance are not devised with a view to giving the greenhord an equal opportunity with his gambling acquaintance. Even if the appliances are not fixed so as to prevent the novice from winning, the superior knowledge of the game possessed by the professional renders loss to the beginner a certainty.

Miss Mary Campbell, Elm, writes: "After taking four bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, I feel as if I were a new person. I had been troubled with Dyspepsia for a number of years, and tried many remedies, but of no avail, until I used this celebrated Dyspeptic Cure." For all impurities of the Blood, Sick Headache, Liver and Kidney Complaints, Costiveness, etc., it is the best medicine known.

Harrison Thinks Canadians are Willing to Sell Their Birthright for Yankee $s.

THEY HAVEN'T MONEY ENOUGH.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—A News' special from Indianapolis says that an intimate friend of General Harrison, said yesterday: "General Harrison, like all presidents, will desire to do something that will give his administration prominence in the history of his country, and I have reason to believe one of his first official acts will be negotiations for the annexation of Canada." "What is his plan of annexation?" "He believes that the United States can and should receive Canada in a peaceable manner. His idea is that the territory can be annexed to the United States by assuming Canada's debts. If the territory cannot be obtained for that consideration, I think General Harrison would favor paying a considerable bonus. I understand he has said privately that the surplus in the treasury could not be spent in a wiser manner than in buying Canada. Whatever his plan for making Canada a portion of the United States may be, I know he heartily favors such a move, and will so recommend in his first message to congress."

FATAL BRIDAL TRIP.

WHEELING, W. Va. Nov. 22.—Patrick Waters and Jessie Bates were married at St. George, Tucker county, on Tuesday. Yesterday they were taken from the waters of the Black Fork at Silas ferry, apparently dead. Mrs. Waters was revived but all efforts to resuscitate the husband were fruitless. The newly married couple conceived the idea of visiting the great falls of the Black river, one of the most picturesque sights in West Virginia. In crossing the railroad bridge Mrs. Waters grew dizzy and fell into the stream. Her husband plunged in after her and both were swept away with the above result.

THE MANITOBA RAILWAY CASE.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21.—The hearing of the Manitoba railway case commenced before the full bench in the supreme court to-day. Attorney-General Martin's counsel were: Hon. O. Mowat, the premier of Ontario, Mr. Dalton McCarthy, Q. C. The Canadian Pacific Railway was represented by Hon. Edward Blake, Judge Clark, the company's solicitor; Hon. Christopher Robinson, Q. C. Mr. Blake opened the argument, followed by Mr. Robinson, who concludes to-morrow. The province of Quebec was represented by counsel. Mr. Blake observed that the question involved is simple in character and was whether any work or undertaking was under the exclusive legislation of the federal parliament by this reason whether the provincial legislature assuming to authorize it was ultra vires by the legislature and therefore void. He considered that the legislative authority, which otherwise would have belonged to the province, was removed from them by clause 10 of the 92nd section of the British North American act. The test question to be applied in any case was not whether the work mentioned was one for the general advantage of Canada, but whether the parliament had declared it to be so. The declaration by the federal parliament in such a matter was indisputable. He charged that the clauses of the British North American act must be treated in the broadest possible way. Sections 306 and 307 of the railway act, he concluded, took away from the provincial legislatures the right to grant charters for a railway which would cross or connect with certain railways declared by the Dominion parliament for the general advantage of Canada.

LATE DESPATCHES.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The president's next annual message is likely to be brief but very pointed. He has not yet begun work on it, but will have to take it up soon, It is understood that he will repeat, with emphasis, the recommendations of his last annual message. He will not change his attitude on the tariff, nor ignore or avoid the issue on account of the recent election.

JEFF DAVIS IN FEEBLE HEALTH.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 15.—From a letter received from Jeff Davis, by President Ashton Starke, of the Richmond Exposition, it seems Mr. Davis' health is feeble. SHERMAN SAYS BLAINE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. — Senator Sherman states to-day that he had never received an intimation that he would be asked to take a seat in General Harrison's cabinet, and he did not expect to be invited to become one of its members. He said that he should prefer to remain in the senate as chairman of the foreign relations committee, to being secretary of state under any administration, and added that he supposed that James G. Blaine would be Secretary Bayard's successor.

HEADED FOR THE TREASURY.

VIRGINIA CITY, Nov. 18.—The friends of John P. Jones, the well-known silver advocate and the senior senator of Nevada, are organizing to advance his claims for the portfolio of the Treasury.

WRONG AT PORT TOWNSEND.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. — Secretary Fairchild, when asked last night the reason for the suspension of Quincy A. Brooks, collector of customs at Port Townsend, said: "I can't now give you details, but it's because things were in my judgment in many respects very wrong at Port Townsend."

REPUBLICANS CLAIM IT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. –Senator Quay, chairman of the republican committee, in conversation with a correspondent today, authorized the following statement of the situation in the lower branch of the next congress: "We have the house of representatives by a majority of five, certainly, and possibly nine, by the official count of congressional districts. As to the democratic threats that the democratic governors of certain states will refuse to certify the election of republicans to the clerk of the House, and will refuse to place our people on the roll, we do not care what the democratic governors or the clerk of the house may do. They are not dealing with children or old women. The republican party will hold with mailed hand all that it fairly won on November 6th.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—In the house of commons to-day Mr. Madden, the solicitor-general for Ireland, moved the second reading of the land purchase bill. Mr. Labouchere moved the rejection of the bill, and in support of his motion complained of the haste with which the measure was being passed, obviously with the desire on the part of the government to prevent the country from considering the proposals. The importance of the question, he declared, made it absolutely necessary that it should receive the special sanction of the country. The bill does a gross injustice to the British tax-payer, and would be particularly injurious to Ireland, since it would encourage the system of absenteeism. Sir George O. Trevelyan opposed the bill and warned the house that if it passed the measure it would soon be called upon and compelled to grant additional millions. On the motion of Mr. Parnell the debate was adjourned.

AN OVATION TO BOULANGER.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—General Boulanger attended the performance at the Renaissance Theatre last night. The audience recognized him and gave him an ovation. The crowd outside also cheered him as he left the theatre. There was some disorder and the police made some arrests.

UNWILLING RECRUITS.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—It is reported that 200 Alsatian recruits attacked their military escort yesterday and wounded a Prussian officer. Subsequently the recruits fled across the border into Switzerland. It is also stated that four Prussian officers have been seriously injured by French sympathizers in Strasburg.

JACK, THE RIPPER.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The police are in receipt of another letter from "Jack, the Ripper," dated Portsmouth, in which he announces that he will soon be at work again and that this time he will do a thorough good job and will cut of both head and arms. The letter is in the same handwriting of the previous epistles.

CHALLENGED TO FIGHT.

PARIS, Nov. 22.—M. Gilley has been challenged to fight a duel with M. Raynal, an ex-minister whose name he has connected with the statement that the great French railway companies distributed 14,000,000 francs among the deputies on the occasion of the signing of the railway convention.

IRISH PAPERS TO THE RESCUE.

DUBLIN, Nov. 22.—The United Ireland makes a furious attack on the Parnell commission because of the heavy fine imposed upon Edward Harrington. It says whether it is guilty of contempt or not it will not abstain from commenting on the action of the judges. It then reiterates the charges made by the Kerry Sentinel against the commission, and asserts that the government whose existence is at stake has paid the court.

THE PARNELL COMMISSION.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The taking of testimony was resumed and George Curtin gave details of the murder of his father. After the murder the Curtin family were boycotted and their servants were compelled to leave their service. Curtin testified that he was a member of the league when it was first organized. His father was vice-president of a branch. Witness had no reason to believe that the league was implicated in the crimes against his family. Various branches of the league had denounced the murder of his father.

A ROYAL BIRTHDAY.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—To-day is the Empress Frederick's birthday. Many German officers and other notables tendered their congratulations.

CONDITION CRITICAL.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—John Bright's condition is critical to-day.

THE EMPEROR'S SPEECH.

BERLIN, Nov. 22—The emperor opened the Reichstag to-day in person. In his address, after referring to the improvement in trade, the emperor emphasized the pacific character of Germany's foreign relations and the policy towards neighboring nations. His recent visits abroad were in the interests of peace and were successful. No bills for military credit were announced.

ON ITS LAST LEGS.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—For two days there has been a curious concensus of opinion that the French republic is in desperate straits and that its downfall is imminent. Several English radicals of repute have expressed the most pessimistic views on the subject, out of which a sort of a scare has been generated here.

It is amusing to notice that when a man becomes a candidate for office he suddenly developes a conspicuous affection for each and all of the several towns in which he respectively was born, went to school, attended college, studied law or medicine, drove a grocery cart, courted his wife and buried his mother-in-law.—Lewiston Journal.

Diplomacy—"Miss Maud," he said, "I have come in this evening to ask you a question, and I brought a ring with me. Now, before you try it on I want to tell you that if you feel inclined to be a sister to me I will have to take it back, as my father objects to my sisters wearing such high diamonds." And Miss Maud said she would keep the ring.

Geo. Dodge, Sr., a well-known citizen of Emporium, writes that one of his men (Sam Lewis) while working in the woods so severely sprained his ankle that he could scarcely get home, but after one or two applications of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, he was able to go to work next day.

The cause celebre case of the province of Manitoba versus the C.P.R.—which has come to be recognized in its true light, as a test case of provincial rights in railway matters—was opened yesterday at Ottawa before the supreme court of Canada. The despatches of the last few days indicate that intense interest is being taken in the issue of the case by the eastern provinces. Eminent counsel have been engaged on both sides. Mr. Edward Blake will argue the case for the C.P.R., and Mr. Oliver Mowat, premier of Ontario, for the province of Manitoba, assisted by Attorney-General Martin, of Manitoba. It is said that several other provinces will be represented by counsel also. In Mr. Blake the C. P. R. will have an able advocate, although we should think the job would go rather against his grain. Mr. Mowat has already won renown as a champion of provincial rights, in the famous case of the disputed Keewatin territory, between the Dominion and the province of Ontario, which he so ably argued and won before the British privy council a few years ago. The legal battle will be waged principally upon the interpretation of clauses 306 and 307 of the Railway Act, which we give below:

306. The Intercolonial Railway, the Grand Trunk Railway, the North Shore Railway, the Northern Railway, the Hamilton and North-Western Railway, the Canada Southern Railway, the Great Western Railway, the Credit Valley Railway, the Ontario and Quebec Railway, and the Canadian Pacific Railway, are hereby declared to be works for the general advantage of Canada, and each and every branch line or railway now or hereafter connecting with or crossing the said lines of railway, or any of them, is a work for the general advantage of Canada.

307. Every such railway and branch line shall hereafter be subject to the legislative authority of the parliament of Canada; but the provisions of any act of the legislature of any province of Canada, passed prior to the twenty-fifth day of May, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, relating to any such railway or branch line, and in force at that date, shall remain in force so far as they are consistent with any act of the parliament of Canada passed after that date.

The case briefly is this: Manitoba, in common with the other provinces of the Dominion federation, has certain provincial rights and privileges with regard to provincial railway enterprises guaranteed her by the British North America Act and by certain clauses of the Railway Act mentioned above. The C. P. R. hope to show by their interpretation of the clauses cited above that Manitoba, and hence every other province as well, has practically no such rights in railway matters as it was plainly the intention of the confederation act that they should have. The C.P.R., of course, wish the law to be so interpreted as that the Red River Valley Railway may be removed from provincial to Dominion control, being, as they are, on much better terms with the Dominion government than with the sturdy recalcitrants of Manitoba. The action of the C.P.R. in this matter is not creditable to that corporation, seeing that its very doubtful monopoly rights in the first place were recently purchased by the Dominion government at an exorbitant figure. If the supreme court of Canada, now sitting at Ottawa, sustains the interpretation put upon clauses 306 and 307 of the Railway Act by the C.P.R., it will be about time to have the Railway Act amended by striking those clauses out altogether; and that is what the provinces will insist upon.

Some personal pointers about the next occupant of the "white house" and his family will not be uninteresting. General Harrison, who will be inaugurated on the 4th of March next as the twenty-third president of the United States, is described as a small man (the presidential chair will, at any rate, have a rest after groaning for four years under Grover's bulky avoirdupois), solidly built, with light eyes, beard and hair. In gait, as in despatch of business, he is unusually quick. In debate he is effectively witty. Except when aroused or interested, his manners are retiring almost to bashfulness. Alertness, perseverance, and sound judgment are said to be his most salient characteristics. A writer who enjoys some measure of personal acquaintance with General Harrison, says: "He generally seems wrapt in thought, but has a way of glancing up at a man with a swift, comprehensive look that takes one unawares, but seems to be perfectly satisfactory to the observer." As a speaker, his enunciation is described as clear, his voice melodious, and his fluency unfailing, while his manner is deferential yet confident, and a resemblance is traced in his oratory to that of the renowned British statesman and orator, Gladstone. Mrs. Blaine's remark, on hearing, in Scotland, that Harrison had received the Republican nomination, that he "came of a fine family," is corroborated by the facts. The phrase, although an unfailing social passport, does not necessarily mean much. However, when, as in the case of the president-elect, a person's ancestors have been noted for generations as being possessed of "fine" mental, moral and social qualities, such a prestige is not to be sneezed at. "The Harrison family," says an authority, "is now the first in America, and second to none in the world. It has the right to be as proud, but is as modest as any in the country. * * * While some * * * have had their heads turned by display and shoddy ostentation, and base their claims to recognition on coach-top and bob-tail notoriety, the Harrisons have maintained the genuineness of true aristocrats, and, through bewildering ovations, a Vere-de-Vere equilibrium." Some other good things are said of Harrison, among which is the following: "His sincerity (in his religious belief) was shown by unremitting observance, during the greatest campaign pressure, of the good old custom of family prayers. He believes that reading and expounding the scriptures to the young is an intellectual as well as a moral training." An American writer adds: "Every good citizen, irrespective of party, may rejoice that another avowed champion of Bible study should be chosen to the presidency." From all of which it appears that the new president of the United States is a pretty good sort of man, after all. Whatever motives and methods come into play in a presidential campaign, it must be admitted that our neighbors, as a rule, enter picked men in the lists at the head of the two great parties. It is the undignified, and, too often, immoral, political by-play that is discreditable. With respect to the insinuation that Blaine would wield the real influence in American politics in the event of Harrison's election to the presidency, it does not seem probable that a man of the individuality and force of character that the president-elect has been shown to be would permit anything of the sort, and the result will likely prove that Harrison will boss his own job. In that event, neither his own country, nor those having the most intimate relations with it, will have to deplore the election of the grandson of the hero of Tippecanoe to the "highest office in the land." Mrs. Harrison, upon whom will soon delvolve the social honors and duties of the "white house," is described as follows: She is a woman "without a history," except the noblest that a lady may have—that of a faithful helpmate to a distinguished man. The personal attractions, the fine intelligence, and the gentle birth, which are hers in ample measure, seem secondary considerations compared with the exalted devotion to the poor young lawyer and to the absent soldier through the struggles of pioneer life, and the heart-rending separation incident to warfare. With a charming daughter and a very beautiful son's wife to assist her in the "white house," Mrs. Harrison is likely to treble the unusual feminine attractions presented in the executive mansion by the Cleveland administration.

Out of Sorts.—Symptoms, Headache, loss of appetite, furred tongue, and general indisposition. These symptoms, if neglected, develop into acute disease. It is a trite saying that an "ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and a little attention at this point may save months of sickness and large doctor's bills. For this complaint take from one to three of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills on going to bed, and one or two for three nights in succession, and a cure will be effected.

Job printing of all kinds neatly done at the COLUMBIAN office. Prices will be found as low as at any other office in the province.—Adv indicates a natural and healthy condition of the scalp, and of the glands through which nourishment is obtained. When, in consequence of age and disease, the hair becomes weak, thin, and gray, Ayer's Hair Vigor will strengthen it, restore its original color, promote its rapid and vigorous growth, and impart to it the lustre and freshness of youth.

I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a long time, and am convinced of its value. When I was 17 years of age my hair began to turn gray. I commenced using the Vigor, and was surprised at the good effects it produced. It not only restored the color to my hair, but so stimulated its growth, that I have now more hair than ever before.—J. STATESMAN AND COMEDIAN.

THE WORK AND CHARACTERISTICS OF TWO BIG NEW YORKERS.

Blakely Hall's Pen Picture of Erastus Wiman—Influence of the Canadian in His Native Land—Commercial Union with Canada and the Outlook for It—Comedian Wilson and His Fat Salary—Why He Prefers To "Star" It.

(Copyright 1888.)

In a flying trip through New York Sunday I ran across two rather eminent men in the Grand Central railroad station, and both of their names begin with W. One was Erastus Wiman, the Canadian, and the other Francis Wilson, the comedian. Wilson had come on from Boston to see his family, and Wiman had just come in from the West.

The Canadian is a powerfully built, erect, bright-eyed man of perhaps forty-five years, with a clear-cut profile and a manner that is quick, alert and vigorous. He is one of the best talkers among the public men of New York, inasmuch as his conversation is what newspaper men call "meaty." He seems to be loaded to the guards with facts, and he shoots them off with rocket-like force one after another as he talks. Speaking of politics he said:

"Why is it that the Canadian vote attracts so little attention? There are 12,000 ballots cast by Canadians in Minnesota, and they have it in their power to elect a President under certain contingencies. Yet, nobody ever thinks of trying to influence this power. Altogether there are a million Canadians in the United States, and I am glad to see that they are beginning to appear on the surface. Personally," he added with a smile, "I am doing all I can to bring them into prominence."

Mr. Wiman's position in the United States is somewhat unique. Without occupying any official station or becoming a citizen, he is one of the best known men in the land. Frank Thurber, the head of perhaps the greatest grocery establishment in the world, said in a speech not long since: "The best advertised individuals in North America to-day are Sara Bernhardt and Erastus Wiman." Wiman is constantly catching the public eye as a successful business man and an earnest promoter of large enterprises, and above all by his indefatigable efforts in trying to bring together the interests of his native land and those of the country of his adoption. Exactly where Mr. Wiman expects to get his reward for his continuous and expensive labors toward the accomplishment of the commercial union, it is difficult to see. The number of books, pamphlets and addresses he has printed would swamp an ordinary millionaire, but he goes on with his work with undeviating earnestness. In traveling in Canada I found that his influence is second only to that of Sir John Macdonald and Sir Richard Cartwright. Probably a large share of Mr. Wiman's power in his native place is due to the fact that though he has lived in the United States for more than a quarter of a century, he has never parted with his Canadian nationality. I asked him about it once and he said that he did not take up American citizenship because he felt that the day would come when his loyalty to his native land would enable him to serve both countries. The advance has been made in the commercial union agitation within the past few months is very great, despite the set-back which it received from President Cleveland's retaliation message. Wiman looks upon it as a possibility within five years; but this view is not generally shared by Canadian statesmen.

The other W—actor Wilson—is the man who received the remarkable salary of thirty thousand dollars a year from the Casino for playing comedy parts. It is the largest salary received by any actor in the world, though I think some of the stars of the profession make more money. Despite his great success and the money he is making, Wilson has decided to leave the Casino and become a star. "What's the good," he said, "of having a wife and family in New York if you have to be introduced to your own children every time you go to town? Like most men in this world I am fond of the best, and New York about realizes that condition. My family and all my interests are there. I have ample means and a large acquaintance in the town, and yet here I am obliged to start out in September and remain away from people I love six or seven months. I prefer to be my own master, and on that account I am going to start off for myself on the 1st of May. If I succeed, well and good. If I fail, I have the glorious satisfaction of knowing that I can pay. Don't fancy that I am filled up with discontent, misery and woe—not a bit of it. I will stand up and take all that comes to me, good, bad and indifferent, and smile like a delirious Mugwump. Mine is not a disjointed or disappointed career. I have much to be gleeful over, and I haven't lost or gained a respiration over the many professional troubles the papers have talked so much about. Things might have been more pleasant to me, but all is fair in love and war, so let her went. I have a capital company selected, including Jansen, and I am going to run in opposition to the Casino and McCaull. The principal opera will be the 'Oolah,' but I have also a very merry little opera called 'The Singer and His Song.' When I was in Paris I made an adaptation of an opera which I believe is funnier than either of the above named, and John Paul Bocock has done the lyrics for it. It is yet unnamed. The 'Oolah' will, of course, be the opening work, because it is the best advertised. I have altogether six operas in good condition, and I am going to put one on right after the other so as not to weary the people by trying to run a piece the whole season. New York will only take kindly to my and uproarious, and music of a bright and whistlin[illegible] nature, then I am its oyster for life."

BLAKELY HALL.

THE WHITECHAPEL MURDERER.

Cases of a Monomania among Men Who Lay for Annoying Women.

"There is no doubt in the mind of any man who has studied alienism," said a prominent New York physician in the Grand Union House this week, "but the much hunted assassin who has terrorized London by a series of atrocious murders is suffering from a mental disease which is well known to the medical faculty. The disease is a monomania whose chief characteristic is morbid thoughts and feelings and unnatural conduct toward the other sex. The last takes all sorts of forms but seldom expresses itself in homicidal actions. In a recent case here in New York the monomaniac took an insane delight in promenading Broadway when it was crowded with shoppers and throwing small quantities of oil of vitriol on every handsome silk dress he walked past. He ruined several hundred dresses before he was caught by Inspector Byrnes on Fourteenth street. Similar to this case was that of a young man who prowled Broadway near Thirty-fourth street some six years ago and squirted kerosene oil upon the clothes of well-dressed and fine-looking women. He was so apprehended after considerable hard work on the part of the police and I think Inspector, then Captain, Williams. An interesting case in which the disease took a ridiculous turn was in Chicago. Here an old bachelor found a morbid pleasure in stealing shoes from women. He would only take one shoe and that one the left he could get it, and it made no difference to him whether the woman was old or young, rich or poor, pretty or ugly. Upon the man's death, his diary disclosed over two hundred thefts of this class and in his bureau and trunks were more than ninety shoes and slippers he had stolen from the other sex.

"Two cases recorded by the French authorities verge upon the sentimental. In one the monomaniac had a craze for ribbons around women's necks, and would resort to assault and battery to obtain them if he could not do it by craft or address. In the other, the man's weakness was locks of hair. He went provided with barbers' scissors, and whenever the opportunity presented itself would relieve a luckless woman of a handful of hair. Both of these fellows carefully preserved their spoils and kept them arranged and labeled in a way that would do credit to a scientific cabinet.

"Two other instances, one in Berlin and the other in Vienna, were of a very different nature. In each of these the maniac assumed a set of clothes that were almost a disguise, consisting of a slouched hat pulled down over the face and a military cloak drawn up around the neck until the collar nearly met the hat brim. Thus attired, they would start out in quest of victims. When an attractive woman approached, they would hide themselves behind a tree or projecting building, and if the coast was clear as she passed, glide noiselessly behind her and stab her in the arm or back with a sharp penknife. The wound was always painful, seldom dangerous and never fatal. Both of these wretches were captured finally by the police and convicted by the courts. They were examined after the trial by expert alienists and pronounced insane. They were sent to asylums for insane criminals and died not long afterward from paresis.

"A common form of the disease which is found in nearly all large asylums, is where the victim imagines himself the object of the admiration and passion of numberless beautiful women. I recall one case where the patient, who was seemingly sane in all other respects, kept a diary of the imaginary women who visited him hourly, and who spent all his leisure time in writing love letters of the most intense type to himself from his fancied paramours and admirers.

"Dr. Bronardel, a distinguished physician and writer of Paris, has given this subject great study and has collected a vast number of cases. He instances not less than seven men who killed women or children while under the impetus of mania, and five of the six mutilated the corpses in the same loathsome way as is done by the Whitechapel fiend. One of the seven, a quiet and well-educated man named Meneslon, confessed to the authorities that he knew perfectly well what he was doing when he murdered his victims and suffered the pangs of remorse during as well as after the commission of the crime, but that he was seized with an irresistible frenzy to kill which he could not control.

"The monomania to inflict pain and shed blood is much more common. In the past six years three men have been convicted in Strasburg and two in Paris of making passes at women with sharp, steel pointed canes.

"These monomanias make their appearance usually toward the commencement of general paralysis or paresis—in other words, toward the close of the sufferer's life. At the outset he generally displays the remarkable cunning and quickness for which crazy people are noted. This disappears as the disease progresses, and the brain becomes more and more impaired. In many cases the perpetrator of this kind of crime is never detected and dies a few months or a year afterwards in some hospital or asylum. In all probability the Whitechapel murderer is a monomaniac of this class, who, if he is captured will probably cheat the gallows by the natural progress of his disease."

FALES-CURTIS.

GENERAL FRANZ SIGEL.

How the Old Hero Carries Himself in the Streets of the Empire City.

A little old man came down Broadway at a rapid gait the other afternoon. The tails of his long Prince Albert coat flapped around his legs and impeded his progress, but he continued to move along with a quick, nervous step, dodging here and there through the crowd, all his energies apparently bent on getting to his destination in the shortest time possible. At first sight there appeared to be nothing about him to impress one in any way, unless it was the earnest expression that seemed habitual to his face and the nervous, almost savage manner in which he shook his head whenever his long, straight hair strayed across his vision.

It was astonishing, though, to see how many people bowed to him, many of them apparently inclined to stop and speak. But he did not pause except to return the courtesy with a polite, formal bow. Evidently that little old man had a great many friends among the busy, bustling throngs of people that were walking in the streets that afternoon.

At length he reached Canal street and turned westward. In the short distance Broadway to West Broadway I counted a baker's dozen who touched their hats as he passed them. A few doors beyond West Broadway, on Laight street, he turned into the large brown building occupied by the United States Pension Agency, and disappeared into the inmost private office.

This little old man, apparently so well known, was Gen. Franz Sigel, United States Pension Agent for the district of New York. He is one of the few men alive to-day who have been prominent in battles fought on both sides of the Atlantic for home and liberty. He is a veteran of the rebellion and also of the great German revolution of 1849. Probably not more than five of his comrades in the latter struggle who were or have become prominent are alive to-day. H. G. T.

THE SOOTHING CIGAR.

A Philosophical Physician Clears Up the Mystery of Its Fascination.

An Albany physician, who is something of an investigator, says that smoking is not good for any man so far as his physical condition is concerned; that it is only good to relieve mental depression; that it does so simply by diverting a man's mind from himself and from objects that worry him.

"Nothing," said he, "requires more devotion to it for its enjoyment as a cigar. It is not the taste of tobacco that one enjoys. It is looking at the smoke, inhaling and smelling it, and knocking off the ashes. All these things divert the mind and so drive dull care away."—Albany Journal.

Seizing the Opportunity.

Alfonse de Beriot—"You say you are superstitious, Miss Gushington, but would you dare to be married on Friday?"

Miss Gushington—"What! Next Friday? Why, dear Alfonse, you are so sudden and so unconventional."

"You quite misunderstand me. I protest—I didn't propose——"

"That's all right, Alfonso, you didn't propose as they usually do, but I like it just the same. Yes, dear, it shall be Friday."—Springfield Union.

Profitable Planting.

Addie—"Well, my dear boy, as poor as that piece of land looks, I raised a million dollars by planting in it."

Fuddle—"Come off! For heaven's sake what did you plant there?"

Addie—"My late lamented uncle."—Lowell Citizen.

A Creaking Hinge

Is dry and turns hard, until oil is applied, after which it moves easily. When the joints, or hinges, of the body are stiffened and inflamed by Rheumatism, they cannot be moved without causing the most excruciating pains. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by its action on the blood, relieves this condition, and restores the joints to good working order.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has effected, in our city, many most remarkable cures, in cases which baffled the efforts of the most experienced physicians. Were it necessary, I could give the names of many individuals who have been cured by taking this medicine. In my case it has worked wonders, relieving me of after being troubled with it for years. In this, and all other diseases arising from impure blood, there is no remedy with which I am acquainted, that affords such relief as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.—R. H. Lawrence, M. D., Baltimore, Md.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla cured me of Gout and Rheumatism, when nothing else would. It has eradicated every trace of disease from my system.—R. H. Short, Manager Hotel Belmont, Lowell, Mass.

I was, during many months, a sufferer from chronic Rheumatism. The disease afflicted me grievously, in spite of all the remedies I could find, until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took several bottles of this preparation, and was speedily restored to health.—J. Fream, Independence, Va. ††

THE ATTENTION OF THE PUBLIC is hereby directed to the "Provincial Health (small-pox) By-Laws, 1888," issued by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, under authority of the "Health Ordinance, 1869."

Having been appointed Provincial Health Officer for Districts lying south of Fraser River, I hereby give notice that the provisions of said By-Laws will be strictly enforced, and all persons are required to govern themselves accordingly.

BY-LAWS ISSUED BY HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR-IN COUNCIL,

UNDER THE AUTHORITY OF THE "HEALTH ORDINANCE, 1869."

HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT-Governor of British Columbia, by and with the advice of the Executive Council of British Columbia, acting under and by virtue of the provisions of the "Health Ordinance, 1869," enacts as follows:—

1. Whenever small-pox is present in any locality without the boundaries of any Municipality, the Provincial Health Officer nearest to such locality shall, at once cause the patient to be removed to an isolated hospital, tent or other suitable place, or cause such person to be otherwise sufficiently isolated, and shall see that he is properly cared for, and shall take proper measures for the disinfection, or, if necessary, the destruction of all clothing which may have been exposed to the contagion, and for the disinfection and purification of every conveyance, rail-car, steamboat, railway, vessel, carriage, or other vehicle which may have been exposed to the contagion.

2. Such Health Officer shall have, in his discretion, full power to place in another building or tent all persons who may have been exposed to the contagion, and shall cause them to be supplied with all necessaries until the period of incubation of the disease shall have elapsed, and no such person shall go, or be permitted to go, abroad, until he or she has given satisfactory proof of successful vaccination within the preceding seven years, or shall have obtained a medical certificate of insusceptibility to the vaccine disease, nor until the clothing or effects worn or carried by or with him or her have been properly disinfected, if the same have been exposed to contagion.

3. To assist the Health Officer, he shall have full power to employ persons to be nurses, sanitary policemen, and other wise to aid in the prevention of the spread of the disease, and may himself give and enforce such reasonable directions for the same purpose as to him may seem expedient, and the nearest Government Agent shall see that all articles and necessaries required by the Health Officer are furnished.

4. It shall be the duty of every medical practitioner who shall attend upon, or give medical or surgical advice, to or about any person suffering from small-pox, to give notice forthwith after he shall have commenced so to attend or give such advice, to the nearest Provincial Health Officer. When a householder knows that a person within the house occupied by him is taken sick of small-pox, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the nearest Provincial Health Officer.

5. The Provincial Health Officer before mentioned is and includes any person appointed Health Officer under the "Health Ordinance, 1869," by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

6. The foregoing provisions shall have no effect within the limits of any Municipality, save as hereinafter mentioned.

7. In case the Council of any Municipality, whenever small-pox is present, or likely to occur therein, shall fail to make or carry out proper provisions to prevent the invasion or spread of small-pox within the Municipality, and complaint thereof shall be made to the Lieutenant-Governor by the Council of any adjacent Municipality, it shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, acting upon such complaint or in his discretion upon other information, to order that these regulations shall, until otherwise ordered, apply to and be in force within the Municipality in which such neglect occurs, and thereupon any Provincial Health Officer shall have, within and in respect of such Municipality all the authority with which he is clothed in respect of localities without Municipalities, and in such case all disbursements and expenses paid by the Province, in the carrying out within such Municipality of the foregoing regulations, shall be paid by such Municipality.

8. These regulations may be cited as the "Provincial Health (small-pox) By-Laws, 1888."

We have received very handsome calendars for 1889 from P. Peebles, F. Crake, and E. S. Scoullar. All are artistic in design and execution, and useful as well.

The Vancouver papers have succeeded in making a terrible mess of the sentences pronounced by his lordship, yesterday, on the prisoners found guilty at the assizes.

The Norwegian colony at Warnock is making good progress and the old country settlers in the vicinity are satified they will make good farms and worthy citizens in time.

A member of the British Columbia legislature made a speech twenty-six hours long without a rest. This settles the annexation question. Canada stays out in the cold.—Pittsburg Chronicle.

Deputy Sheriff Langley, of Victoria came up yesterday with the Chinese prisoner Pow Chong, sentenced under the speedy trials act last week to two years' imprisonment in the penitentiary for robbery.

The Cariboo election for a representative in the Dominion parliament takes place to-day. Owing to the distance of many of the polling places from the telegraph line it will probably be several days before the full returns are in.

W. D. Woods, of the Ontario Lacrosse Club, Toronto, says the Mail of the 13th inst., leaves to-night for British Columbia, where he will permanently locate. "Shorty" has the best wishes of his friends for his success on the slope.

The wife of a laborer in the northern part of Victoria, who was confined of a child a fortnight ago, was delivered of a second child at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and mother and twins are doing well. Such a case is without parallel in the annals of Victoria.

It is reported on good authority that a daily paper will soon be established in Nanaimo. A company has been formed, and money subscribed for the purpose, and in a short time we may expect to see in the city of "black diamonds" a lively morning paper.—Vic. Standard.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

W. H. Jones, who has been sentenced to hang on Jan. 9th for the murder of Edward Durant, seems to be indifferent to the terrible situation he stands in, and does not profess any contrition or wish to make amends for the crime he committed. The actions of the man, from the moment of the murder to the present, indicate that he is determined to maintain the same stolidity to the end that he has so far observed.

The annual dinner of the Caledonian and St. Andrews society will take place at the Oddfellows' Hall on the Festival of St. Andrew, Friday, November 30th inst. The menu will be excellent in every particular and the haggis will be perfection itself. It is to be trusted every Scotchman who possibly can will be present at the banquet, to honor the patron saint and revive the glorious memories of "Bonnie Scotland."

P. Peebles, with his accustomed enterprise, is distributing handsome calenders—veritable works of art—free to his customers. "Edinburgh Castle," grand, rugged and true to the original, looms up on one of his calenders; a cosey pastoral scene in Manitoba is the subject of the other. Both are well worthy of framing. In his advertisement at the bottom of the calender Mr. Peebles makes an offer which is worth closing with. *

The civic election is growing near and yet no aldermanic ticket has been selected. It is time the people were "were up and doing" in this matter. Progression is the order of the day and none but progrestive men need apply to the ratepayers of Westminster for election. The Royal City is now moving steadily on the road to greatness, and the aldermen of next year must be men who will put a strong shoulder to the wheel and help her through the many difficulties sure to be met with.

Fastest Tug Afloat.

The tug Sea Lion leaves in a few days for Puget Sound, says the San Francisco Chronicle, to do battle there with the English tugs, who now for the most part have the towing business cornered, shutting out American tugs. The Sea Lion is the fastest tug afloat, and Captain Lucky is as clever a sailor as ever commanded a boat on this bay, and it has been predicted along the front that when the Sea Lion gets up to Puget Sound she will give the foreign crafts a turn.

A Victoria Social Event.

The following ladies and gentlemen were entertained at dinner at government house Tuesday evening by His Honor Lieut-Governor and Mrs Nelson: Lieut.-Commander Emory and officers of the U S S Thetis, Commissioner Johnson of Alaska. Col and Mrs Stevens, Col and Mrs Prior, Col Holmes, Capt Clark of H M S Espeigle, Dr Bookey, R N, Capt and Mrs Jno Irving, Major and Mrs Peters, Miss Hathaway, Miss King, Mr Edgar Marvin, sr, Mr Edgar Marvin, jr, and Mr Herbert Stanton.

For the Fisheries Department.

At the next sitting of parliament it is the intention of the government to appropriate a sufficient sum of money to build a fine composite steamer for the use of the department of fisheries in British Columbia. The vessel will be built on the Clide and will be specially adapted and fitted for deep sea soundings, survery, etc. As soon as the vessel arrives she will go on a voyage of exploration for cod and halibut banks, and when these are located a survey of the numerous bays and inlets on the northern coast will be commenced. The results of the explorations will be of immense value to our fishing industry, and a rapid development of the same will follow the inspector's report.

From Kootenay.

An employee of Mr. T. F. Sinclair arrived down from Kootenay yesterday. He reports that the weather, up to the date of his departure, had been very favorable for out-door work, and Mr. Sinclair expected to have the canal finished by December 20th. Very little snow has fallen in the valleys in the interior so far, and there has been no severe cold. At Golden City, where he applied for a ticket to Westminster, the station agent informed him that tickets were not issued to this point, and the best that could be done was to sell him a ticket to the Junction. Despite the many assurances of C.P R. officials that tickets can be purchased at any station for Westminster, this is another clear case in point to the contrary.

New Westminster Building Society.

Last evening the directors of the Building Society met at the secretary's office on Mary Street. Amongst other business transacted, Saturday 22nd December was fixed for the next drawing for an appropriation of $1000. This will make the eighth, since the formation of the society in June 1887, and shows good progress. Some conversation arose respecting the rumored wish of some of the shareholders, that no more of the "B" series of shares should be issued, thus limiting the first issue of shares to 250. As none of the shareholders had communicated formally to the directors upon the subject, it was finally resolved to postpone the consideration of the proposal and await further developments. As the 22nd December will witness a general meeting for the drawing, probably the question will be raised then by the shareholders interested in the project.

From Another Quarter.

The Vancouver World's Westminster correspondent says: "While walking down the street, I was stopped by the foreman in the Johnny and Munday case, who seemed anxious to meet with the gentleman from the COLUMBIAN. Mr. McClellan expressed himself in very forcible terms regarding that paper's strictures on the jury. It seems to me that both he and his colleagues get off very lightly. I have seen a jury discharged as unfit to exercise their functions for a much smaller offence. If jurymen insist on acquitting prisoners when evidence is overwhelming and there is really no defence set up, they must expect to have hard things said of them." Some of the irate jurymen did meet with "the gentleman from the COLUMBIAN," but "took back water." Our "little hatchet" and our "conscious rectitude" make up a combination simply irresistible.

Use the safe, pleasant, and effectual worm killer, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator; nothing equals it. Procure a bottle and take it home.

The Canadian Pacific Policy.

Within the past weeks two letters have reached the office of The Commercial from prominent merchants in British Columbia containing complaints that the extortionate rates on the C. P. R. from the Pacific coast to points in Manitoba and the territories effectually block a trade being done therein by British Columbians. In both letters the writers state that had they rates in any way approaching those given to eastern Canadian shippers, they could do a profitable business in the districts referred to. Evidently British Columbians are feeling a little of the discrimination under which Manitoba groaned for several years. If they expect to have the privileges which the C. P. R. give to eastern shippers they will live in disappointment until they are in a position to force such a concession. They will learn ere long, if indeed they have not already learnt, that the C. P. R. policy is to discourage trade growth in the west as much as possible and concentrate it in the east. Once they have thoroughly realized this fact, they will be able to understand why Manitoba is making such terrible sacrifices, to free itself from the monopoly which thus discriminates against it.—Winnipeg Commercial.

Sale of Work.

Herring's opera house never presented a more attractive appearance than it did this afternoon, not particularly because it contained several scores of the prettiest young ladies in town, but because they, with the other adornments, natural and artificial, contributed towards making the tout ensemble something unusually picturesque and pleasing. The occasion for all this attraction is the sale of work, in aid of the bell tower fund of Holy Trinity church, now going on. Gipsy tents line the centre aisle on either side, and in these are displayed almost everything imaginable in the shape of fancy and useful articles, besides which is a dainty little confectionary stand where anyone having a sweet tooth can satisfy their tastes to a nicety. Perhaps the prettiest things about these tents are the lady attendants, at whose hands the wares do not suffer in selling. Attired in the style of garments Gipsies are supposed to have worn in the good old days of the musty past, these pretty damsels form a picture of perfection that makes one wish he had lived in the times when gipsies were all so handsome and dressed so well. A large number of people visited the Opera House during the afternoon and the proceeds from the sale were most encouraging. At 4 o'clock tea was served and many enjoyed the good things provided. This evening the grand attraction will be "Fairy Voices" by the children.

PERSONAL.

A. W. Lundbom has returned from Victoria.

W. B. Wilson has returned to the city after a lengthly absence.

J. L. Beckwith, representing H. Shorey & Co., Montreal, is staying at the Colonial.

Mrs. H. V. Edmonds, who has been visiting at Victoria and Vancouver for some time arrived home on Tuesday evening.

D. McGillivray, the well-known contractor of Vancouver, was married yesterday, at Victoria, to Miss S. D. Harker, a very pretty and popular young lady of the terminal city. THE COLUMBIAN extends congratulations.

Interesting Interior Notes.

From an Occasional Correspondent.

PRINCETON, Nov. 12.—Packing from Hope is over now for this season, the last pack train crossing the summit on the tenth inst., breaking through some five feet of snow for a distance of about two miles. It is likely the snow now on the trail will remain, although some of the weather-wise seem to think it will disappear and leave the trail open for travel with horses again; this is hardly likely however.

Mining operations on both the Similkameen and Tulameen Rivers came to a sudden end about two weeks ago, when a freshet ruined the wing dams and put a stop to all work in the beds of those streams.

Discoveries of quartz are reported, but nothing definite is known as to their real value. If assays, however, are satisfactory, development work will be commenced in the spring, when thorough and practical tests will be made.

Hydraulic mining would pay here. There are miles of benches along the Similkameen, above Princeton, that contain sufficient gold to almost pay wages with pick and shovel, and which would certainly give handsome returns if operated on the hydraulic principle. The difficulty of getting water high enough to give the required pressure seems, however, to deter men of small means from taking up and operating hydraulic claims.

Mr. W. Starrett, in charge of government work on the Hope trail, has completed the season's work putting in some new bridges and repairing the trail as far as Keromeos. The condition of the trail has been most satisfactory throughout the season and reflects a credit on Mr. Starrett's ability as superintendant of the work.

Princeton is still without a postoffice. We were led to believe here last summer that an office would be opened at this place; but, although well-known as an important and central point, and in spite of official assurance to that effect, nothing has yet been done. The consequence is, mail matter arrives by chance; if letters are missing or delayed for months, complaint is useless, the only remedy being to grin and bear this result of official neglect as best we can.

Game of all kinds, deer especially, are plentiful, the various hunting parties that visited the valley this fall met with fair success, carrying away with them numerous specimens of big horn etc. The Similkameen must ere long become famous as a resort for sportsmen.

"Shall our boys be whipped at school is the momentous question that has taken the place of "Is marriage a failure?" The fact that our boys are our boys and are here to whip proves that marriage is not a failure. As to whether the boys shall be whipped, that depends largely upon whose boy it is. Now, our neighbor's boy ought to be whipped, doubtless; but our boy—be careful how you strike our boy! Hartwell (Ga.) Sun.

Sir John Ross arrived at Ottawa yesterday from Halifax. During his stay he will confer with the national defence commission appointed last year, on the entire question of Canada's military strength. A high official of the militia department ventured the opinion yesterday that Vancouver is sure to be fortified.

H. G. Dawson, a graduate of the Royal Military College, at Kingston, practicing at Cape Vincent, was taken suddenly ill and removed to the home of his promised wife. Death seemed so probable that it was decided that the twain should be made one, and at four o'clock in the morning a clergyman untied H. G. Dawson and Jennie A. Buckley. Immediately afterwards Dawson rallied and is now out again.

Hon. John Robson, accompanied by Hon. Mr, Dewdney, had an interview yesterday afternoon at Ottawa with the minister of railways upon the subject of the Cariboo railway. It appears that Frank Bernard, candidate for representative of Cariboo in the commons, has been for some time carrying on negotiations with both governments, and represents capitalists who are prepared to take up the railway scheme, provided government aid can be obtained. Mr. Robson's efforts are being earnestly directed towards inducing the Dominion government to co-operate with the province in assisting the enterprise. H. P. Bell, who made a preliminary survey of the line last year, is expected at Ottawa in a day or two, when it is intended that further conferences shall take place. Meanwhile, Mr. Robson seems very hopeful of success, and is quite enthusiastic about the work, which he contends will revolutionize British Columbia and add famously to its wealth and population and revenue power, both provincial and federal.

Mrs. Hendricks—"I read an account in the morning paper of such a sad occurrence. An eagle snatched a baby from its nurse's arms and carried it off." Mr. Oldboy (who is not fond of babies) — "It might have been sadder, mum. What if the eagle had failed to get away with the baby?"—Boston Transcript.

No man worries or thinks about his reputation or character until he knows he ought to lose both. The man with no good character is most ready to fight for his honor. A wild man in a barroom shouts loud and says he is a gentleman. He fears people will not quickly notice what sort of a gentleman he is.

A very awkward thing happened at Newport lately. At a fashionable dinner party the hostess allotted a certain lady to be "taken in" by a certain gentleman. The gentleman obeyed, although the lady happened to be his divorced wife, to whom he had not spoken since some time before his marriage to his second wife.
