NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Says an American paper: The salary of the King of Samoa is only $20 per month, yet he is happy and prosperous. A United States senator resigned recently because he could not live on $10,000 per year. It looks as though barbarism has the inside track.

Impersonator of Gen. Washington (who has been knocked off his horse in the parade by a bouquet thrown at him)—Oi may be 'th father of me country an' a law-lovin' man, but be the powers! av Oi catch th' thafe av a Britisher thot pit a brick in that bookay Oi'll hov th' blood av him!

Friend—By the way, how is your novel selling? Aspiring Young Author—It isn't selling at all. The critics killed it. "I am surprised to hear that. I didn't suppose they could say anything against it." "That was just the trouble. They all united in saying that everyone should read it, on account of its lofty moral teachings."

In a certain town in California the doors of the calaboose are left open all night. In the morning the constable goes to the jail and closes the door, and as a general thing has from six to ten vagrants inside. Then the men have a farcical trial, are found guilty and ordered to leave the town, while the justice of the peace and the constable pocket a fat fee in each case. Soft thing.

A—well—middle-aged lady of eccentric habits, having undergone the amputation of her left leg, was anxious to have the said limb deposited in her family vault. To this intent she applied for a certificate of death in which it was set forth that "the leg died in consequence of amputation at the age of fifty years." The funeral obsequies were carried out with the usual solemnity. The owner of the leg followed the hearse in her private carriage.—Ex.

Which was right?—At the late election on the prohibitory amendment a Chelsea man on going to the polls was confronted by a lady who said to him: "Young man, are you married?" "Yes, madam." "Have you a family?" "Yes, madam." "Then take this Yes ballot and cast it, and you will find it all the better for your famiiy and your home." "Madam," said the young man, "are you married?" "Yes, sir." "Have you a family?" "Yes, sir." "Then give those ballots to some man and go home and attend to your family, and it will be all the better for everybody."—Boston Courier.

Professor Arminius Vambery, during his last visit to Constantinople, obtained the Sultan's permission for a commission of five Hungarian savants to explore the secret archives of the imperial library at Stamboul, in which there are many historically important documents, carried away from Hungary by the Turks during their wars with that kingdom. The Hungarian Academy of Science sent his Majesty a letter of thanks for his graciousness, and has received an answer, promising that the delegates shall have full liberty in their researches. The commission will start towards the end of June.

The S. F. Bulletin of a late date has the cheek and bad taste to talk in this way: There are several reasons why the United States should acquire British Columbia besides that of military policy, if any way could be found to do so. It is desirable on account of revenue complications. It is an inlet for smuggled opium and other goods from China. It is desirable to enable us to effectively shut out Chinese immigration. It is desirable for the purpose of establishing land connection with Alaska. It is desirable because Vancouver Island blocks the entrance to Puget Sound, the site of future great cities and an immense commerce; add to this the military menace of Esquimalt, and we have abundant and cogent reasons for desiring its acquisition which can hardly fail to address themselves to the intelligence and statesmanship of the members of the senatorial commission now visiting this city.

Says an eastern exchange: The author of "King Solomon's Mine" ought to keep his eye upon Quebec at present. A highly romantic search for a treasure is being conducted in one of the suburbs of that city, and promising material for a novelist is being manufactured. In digging the foundations for a house a few days ago an old will, written on parchment and enclosed in a sealed tin box, was found. It bore date 1734, and told of a buried treasure, "100 lbs. weight of gold and 300 lbs. weight of silver," to be found by digging in a certain direction and to a certain depth. The diggers have industriously turned over every sod in the plot of ground mentioned, such is the modern eagerness to get money without patiently earning it. The treasure cannot be found, and the searchers would like to look in the property of the next door neighbor, but he is at work vigorously on his own account making holes in the ground, and refuses to part with his premises, estimated to be worth $800, for an offer of $3,000. "What fools these mortals be."

BEHRING'S SEA.

President Harrison Orders the Capture of all Vessels Taking Seal in Behring Sea.

The First Execution by Electricity to Take Place in Auburn, N. Y., Next Month.

The Senate Committee on Canadian Relations will Inspect British Columbia Defences.

WILL SEIZE ALL SEALERS.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The president has directed the revenue cutters Bear and Rush under the act of March 2, 1889, to seize all vessels and arrest all persons found violating the laws of the U. S. in Behring sea. A large number of vessels have already left the Pacific coast for sealing voyages in Behring Sea, and their owners have made every effort to communicate with them, and have applied to the treasury department for relief. A letter was sent from the treasury department today to one of their owners stating that the comedy officers of the revenue cutters designated to patrol Behring sea will be authorized to receive open letters of recall from the owners of vessels which have been despatched on sealing voyages, addressed to the captain of same, which letters will be delivered provided the vessels are fallen in with and found not to have violated any of the laws of the United States.

A BIG SALE.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The English syndicate of buyers of American breweries made their debut in this city by gobbling the extensive brewery of George Ringler & Co., East 92nd street. It is one of the oldest and best known in the city. The sum received for the transfer is $9,500,000 in cash. Ringler is to remain a director of the establishment at a yearly salary of $10,000. The sum of $10,000 has been put up as a forfeit by the agents of the syndicate. The sale caused considerable excitement in brewing circles.

RAIN.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—Rain is predicted for Oregon and Washington territory for the succeeding 24 hours.

TO DIE BY ELECTRICITY.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 14.—William Kemmler, for murdering his paramour Mrs. Tillie Seigler on March 20th last, was to-day sentenced to die by electricity within the walls of Auburn prison during the week commencing June 24th. This is the first sentence under the new law since its enactment.

SUICIDED.

BUTTE, MONT., May 14.—Edward Shepard, a young drug clerk, suicided with morphine last night. Despondency, the result of ill health, is supposed to have been the cause. Sixteen hundred dollars was found on his person.

THE TABLES TURNED.

ALBANY, Or., May 14.—Sheriff Smallman while about to look the prisoners in their cells as usual last night, was overpowered by two of them, Jas. Bannon, a bank robber, and John Wilson, a petty burglar. The sheriff was locked in the corridor and the men escaped. He was released shortly afterward and started in pursuit. Wilson was recaptured but no traces have been found of Bannon.

THE SENATORIAL COMMITTEE.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—The U. S. senatorial committee on Canadian relations left Monterey this morning for Los Angeles. They are expected back in a few days when they will go to Puget Sound, and among other things examine the British fortifications.

ODDFELLOWS.

The Grand Lodge of the California Independent Order of Oddfellows, opens its 38th annual session here tomorrow.

THE NEW MARSHAL.

The news comes from Washington that the appointment of J. H. Mahony of San Francisco as marshal of Alaska will be made by President Harrison to-morrow. Mahony was recommended for the postion by the Pacific coast delegation and also warmly urged for the place by Vice-President Morton, who is Mahony's personal friend.

DISTINGUISHED JAPS.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—Five distinguished Japanese, representing a special commission sent by the emperor to the U. S. to study our agricultural methods, have arrived here today.

CAN'T BRIDGE NIAGARA.

ALBANY, May 14.—The senate has defeated the bill to enable the Canadian Pacific road to bridge the Niagara river and mak Buffalo connections.

NOTED CRIMINAL ARRESTED.

DENVER, COLO., May 14.—It has now been almost positively ascertained that the two tramps arrested at Fontaine, and identified as the Florisant post office robbers, as telegraphed a few days ago, are no less noted criminals than Sam Robinson and one of his pals, who are wanted for the murder of a county sheriff and wounding two deputies. The Robinson gang has made itself notorious on the frontier in the last few months, committing murders and daring crimes. Photographs have been forwarded to Kansas to serve in identifying the prisoners.

'FRISCO NOTES.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—Yesterday the sailors of the Chilian bark Lima Maria mutinied, alleging that their food was not up to standard in either quality or quantity. The vessel at the time was about to depart for Port Townsend. As the men had received no money the captain had no claim upon them and they finally hailed a boat and came ashore. The Maria succeeded in obtaining a crew this afternoon.

Senator Stewart, of Nevada, will address the chamber of commerce tomorrow on the question of silver production and coinage.

At the office of the Union Iron Works this afternoon inquiry developed the fact that the cruiser Charleston is expected home either this evening or to-morrow. In answer to the query as to whether he looked upon the trip as a failure, Manager Scott said: "A failure, no, why with six thousand horsepower the vessel developed 18¼ knots an hour. This is much better than the department at Washington expected. The idea there was that with 7000 horsepower the cruiser would develop a speed of little better than 17 knots, but she has gone better with 1000 less horsepower. From all points of view the trip has been a success."

The first exhibition of the California State Floral Society will open next Wednesday afternoon in this city, with a large display of flowers of all kinds from all parts of the state. The exhibition will be the first organized flower show ever held in California.

NEVER THE WIFE.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—The last act in the celebrated Sharon case, which has been before the courts for nearly six years, was played in Washington to-day. A despatch received from there this afternoon says that the supreme court has affirmed the decision of Judge Sawyer, of the federal court of this city, which declared the "marriage contract" a forgery, thereby deciding that Mrs. Terry was never the wife of the late Senator Sharon.

IN SELF DEFENCE.

PASO ROBLES, May 14.—Joseph P. Dubar, a painter, was shot and instantly killed in his residence here last night by Marshal Misenheimes, who attempted his arest. Dubar was drunk and threatening to kill his wife. This caused the trouble. Misenheimer alleges self defence.

DROWNED.

EUREKA, Cal., May 14.—Thos. Schroeder, a fireman on one of the local tugs and an old resident of this city, while bailing out his boat yesterday fell into the water and was drowned.

LUCKY MEN.

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 14.—The following are the winning numbers of large prizes in to-days drawing of Louisiana lottery: 1st, 50416; 2nd, 38847; 3rd, 34281; 4th 87826; 5th, 97233; 6th, 74807; 7th, 66576; 8th, 35688; 9th, 94513; 10th, 66438; 11th, 27408.

THE RAILWAY FIGHT.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The Oregon Transcontinental Co. has been restrained from parting with any of its holdings of the Oregon Railway and Navigation shares for more fast steamers, preceding the coming election. Villard claims that it is aimed at his party. The present condition of affairs grows out of the fight between the Union Pacific and the Northern Pacific to get control of the property involved.

Chilliwack Council.

The municipal council of Chilliwack, held their regular meeting on 6th of May. Present, Reeve Cawley, and councillors Lickman, Reece, Bayly, Kennedy and Armstrong.

Minutes of previous meeting read and adopted.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Hon. John Robson, provincial secretary, regarding the construction of "Camp Slough Bridge," and the publication of by-laws; ordered filed.

From D. Robson, clerk, New Westminster city council, re "folders;" ordered filed, and clerk instructed to reply.

From A. J. Street and Hector Loop, protesting against the appropriation of more than 20 feet of their land for road purposes; was laid over till next meeting.

From J. H. Irwin and A. J. Street, re statute labor, referred to pathmaster.

From Wm. Bell, calling the attention of the council to the dangerous condition of bridge on William's road. on motion tenders were invited for repairing same.

From James Bruce, calling the attention of the council to the unsafe condition of the Dunville bridge; clerk instructed to place notices on the bridge, of the fact, and communicate with the government regarding the same.

The following accounts were received and ordered to be paid: H. Webb, $60, repairs to Luck-a-kuck river road; John McCutcheon, $12.45, survey of gravel pit and telegram to D. Chisholm, M. P., Ottawa; P. McGrath, $7.50, for drawing plan of Camp Slough Bridge; A. Davison, $13, on account of road leveller; BRITISH COLUMBIAN, $26.85, advertising by-laws; S. Millard, $15, on account of 500 assessment forms, 300 order forms, and 600 receipt and demand forms.

A large number of petitions were handed in asking for new roads and appropriations on those already located.

Councillor Reece moved that the "Loan By-Law" be taken up, when considerable discussion took place as to whether it would not be advisable to raise by way of loan, on the credit of the municipality the sum of $25,000 instead of $2,000, first proposed. Coun. Reece, spoke in favor of the $2,000 loan, bnt was against the $25,000; he thought it would be too much to saddle the municipality with such a heavy debt. Coun. Armstrong was in favor of the $25,000 loan, but thought it adviable to leave the $25,000 loan till next year, as it would be too late this season to build roads by the time the money would be at the disposal of the council. Councillors Kennedy and Lickman were of the same opinion as Coun. Armstrong. Coun. Bayly spoke against the $25,000 loan; he would rather see the rate doubled than to see the municipality so deeply in debt. The Reeve spoke in favor of the $25,000 loan, but would support either, and thought Coun. Armstrong's suggestion, to leave the $25,000 loan till next year, a good one. On the motion being put to take up the $2,000 loan by-law, it was carried. "Loan by-law" was read a first time.

On motion following pathmasters were appointed: Ward No. 1, Wm. Ford, W. Chadsey, W. Gill and C. Richards; Ward No. 2, A. C. Wells, Mark Huff, C. T. Higginson, Shelton Knight, Isaac Kipp and M. McLean; Ward No. 3, W. H. Cawley, C. Turner, R. Nowell, P. McGee, W. Branchflour, C. Walker and S. McBride; Ward No. 4, John McDonald, D. Greyell, H. Jasperson, C. Allitt and E. Greyell; Ward No. 5, W. Nelmes, M. F. Gillanders, D. Nelmes, Geo. Bamford, M. Brannick, H. Stady, Jas. Ford and Jno. Parker. J. C. Henderson was appointed pathmaster for Centreville.

On motion the council adjourned to meet Monday, the 13th inst., at 5 o'clock p. m.

PRINCE OF WALES

Is Anxious to be Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and Would Accept the Appointment.

The Strikes in Germany are Spreading Throughout the Country Like an Insurrection.

The Shah will be a Guest at Buckingham Palace During His English Visit.

MR. YATE'S CABLE.

LONDON, May 14.—There is a very general impression that Mr. Howarth's letter to the Times on the subject of the viceroyalty was intended as a feeler to see in what direction opinion as regards it is going. The only member of the royal family who could go to Ireland would be the Prince of Wales. It is no secret that the Prince of Wales has always had very strong feelings about a royal residence in Ireland, and many years ago one of his most confidential and trusted advisers was empowered by him to make known his opinion to the queen with a view to his going to Ireland in some capacity as her representative if she felt she would be unable to do so herself. The queen was much displeased and expressed her feeling strongly, as well as her desire that the subject should never be mentioned again. The prince, very wisely, not wishing to put himself into opposition to the crown, let the matter rest. The difficulty in finding a successor to Lord Londonderry has brought the question up again, and I believe the prince would gladly accept the position and undertake its duties if the country wished it. His position there would be different from that of the lord lieutenant, who must reside in Ireland a great part of the year, whereas were the prince to go to Ireland a residence of a few weeks during the Dublin season, from January to march, would be all he would be asked to do, which arrangement would not clash with his English engagements.

THE RAILWAY FIGHT.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The Oregon Transcontinental Co. has been restrained from parting with any of its holdings of the Oregon Railway and Navigation shares for more fast steamers, preceding the coming election. Villard claims that it is aimed at his party. The present condition of affairs grows out of the fight between the Union Pacific and the Northern Pacific to get control of the property involved.

THE NEW PALACE.

The queen has given the late Duchess of Cambridge's residence at Kew to the Duke of Cambridge for life, and after some necessary alterations and repairs have been completed he intends to live there a good deal during the summer months.

THE SHAH'S VISIT.

The Shah will be in England during the greater part of July, and is to occupy apartments at Buckingham Palace during his stay in London. He is a very costly guest, for in 1873 his brief visit cost upward of £20,000, of which the queen herself paid £12,000. There was a bill of £1,800 for cleaning and redecorating the rooms in Buckingham Palace which were occupied by the Shah, who, however, is reported to be now a very much more civilized creature than he formerly was. He is to visit Buckingham, Liverpool, Manchester and Leeds, and will make a short tour through Scotland, and he is expected to be present at the great naval review at Spithead on Saturday, July 27th, when one of the royal yachts will be placed at his disposal, probably the Osborne, as the Prince and Princess of Wales will be with the queen aboard the Victoria Albert.

FINE STOCK.

Lord Rosslyn has decided to give up the breeding stud which he established about ten years ago, and which has been kept in the famous paddocks at Burghley park, which he rented from Lord Exeter. The mares and foals are to be sold at Newmarket on Monday and the yearlings on Tuesday. Feronia, by Horman, by dam of Atlanta, who is the dam of Ayrshire, will doubtless be purchased by the Duke of Portland for his stud, and also the filly foal by St. Simon.

KENSINGTON GARDENS.

The horticultural gardens at South Kensington are doomed. The conservatory and arcades are to be pulled down and sold next month as waste material and bricks. The land originally purchased for national purposes of science and art is to be given over to the speculative builder.

SPREADING LIKE AN INSURRECTION.

LONDON, May 14.—The strikes are spreading through Germany like an insurrection. They break out in city after city in the northern provinces and the number of trades affected is rapidly increasing. Even in Berlin, under the eyes of the Kaiser labor is becoming insubordinate. The stoppage of the tramways is momentarily expected. Employees have been in consultation all night and are making arrangements for a general strike if their demands are not complied with. So unusual and widespread is this uprising of labor the government seems to be at a loss how to deal with it. It is yet averse to crushing it by military force, and continues to favor a policy of compromise between employees and employers.

A NOTED MIND READER DEAD.

A Strange Meeting.

A Seattle paper says: General Bates, a retired English army officer, who is travelling for pleasure, arrived at Seattle on Wednesday and registered at the Occidental hotel. On entering the dining room the surprise of the general may be imagined, when in the person of the waiter he recognized his son John, who had left England seven years ago and had not since had any communication with his relatives. John Bates, a young man of 22 years, has had an adventurous career since leaving his home. He served in the Northwest rebellion as a volunteer, making a brilliant record for himself. After wandering about eastern Canada, he finally drifted to the coast, and after working a while in Vancouver and Victoria, about six weeks ago he went to Seattle, where he secured employment as a waiter. The meeting between father and son was a most affecting one. Young Bates has resigned his position as waiter, and yesterday father and son left Seattle for Vancouver. From there they will go to Victoria and will visit Alaska before returning to merry England.

The action of the council last night, instructing the board of health to have a tour of inspection made of the city with a view to having nuisances removed is well timed, and it is to be hoped the inquisition after filth and all manner of material uncleanness may be thorough and practical. The time of year is upon us when the greatest harm must result from any laxity in civic sanitary matters. In fact, with the imperfect, or altogether lacking, sewerage of the city, the greatest care will have to be exercised to protect our citizens against those fell diseases which such circumstances are almost sure to give rise to, and any remisness in this respect may easily be demonstrated, by the most unpleasant test of actual experience, to be little short of criminal. We owe it to our splendid situation, to the unexampled salubriousness of our climate, and to the fact that the townsite has not been closely built up, that we have hitherto enjoyed comparative immunity from those endemic and epidemic diseases which the absence of proper measures of sanitation is so fitted to conduce to and to aggravate. What is required, and must speedily follow the completion of our projected water works, is a thorough system of city sewerage; but this cannot, under the circumstances, be undertaken until next year. In the mean time, let our citizens, as they value that greatest of blessings—good health for themselves and their families—cooperate heartily with the board of works in placing the city in the best possible sanitary condition which our present facilities will allow.

The study of Canadian history has, for some years past, been pursued in nearly all our centres of culture with an ardor that is full of promise, says the Dominion Illustrated, and continues: "The historical societies of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba have shown an earnestness and an activity which have been extremely fruitful in character and direction. The younger organizations have been especially praiseworthy in stimulating research in directions hitherto but slightly followed up. The Manitoba Literary and Scientific Society, under the zealous leadership of Professor Bryce, the historian, and others like-minded, has made the early exploration and later development of the Northwest and the empire of the Hudson's Bay Company its peculiar field, at the same time giving attention to aboriginal ethnology and languages. The Lundy's Lane Historical Society carries its flag in its name, and we have already had an earnest of the new light that it will shed on our military and Loyalist annals. The Society for Historical Studies of Montreal has, in the course of three or four years, succeeded in establishing a magazine Canadiana, which is now on a firm basis under the editorial care of Mr. W. J. White, the vice-president and chief founder of the society. The Haliburton of Windsor, N.S., of which Prof. Roberts is president, is another valiant young society, of whose quality our readers have already had an example. And now we learn that an aim which all these societies, as well as their older sisters, have kept constantly in view, the recognition of Canadian history in our seats of learning, has been accomplished as far as McGill University is concerned. Need we add that the Arts Faculty's action has given general satisfaction to all patriotic students and educationists? It might not be amiss to ask what interest is being taken in gathering and compiling the materials from which the history of this province shall be written. If there are any societies in the province making this laudable work their aim, they have escaped our notice. Such a society would have plenty of work to its hand, and would materially assist in preserving from comparative oblivion some intensely interesting chapters of early British Columbia history. As much as this we owe to posterity and to the general fund of knowledge.

New York reaps to the full—and something over—the advantages of being a hub commercially and socially. In the latter respect, which is the one to which we shall confine these remarks, modern Gotham seldom is without some one or thing to "trouble the waters" and create a ripple that prevents anything like stagnation. The latest diversion is a rather personal ink-slinging tournament between a trio of somewhat famous feminine literateurs and authors, and it is expected that others will be drawn into the "unpleasantness" before all is over. The trouble commenced with Mrs. Gertrude Atherton, visiting New York from California, writing to her paper, the San Francisco Argonaut, some personal sketches, including a paragraph about Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox, which described that sensitive-minded lady as a "mouse-colored little thing" who required to be seen in a dim light to look like anything. The barbed paragraph was copied into a New York paper, and of course reached Mrs. Wilcox's ears, who immediately addressed an aggrieved private missive to the Californian lady, inquiring how, in the name of the friendship which existed between them (which was not of very long standing, but was apparently sincere on the part of the New York authoress), she could permit herself to pen such a cruel thing. Mrs. Atherton replied in effect that she allowed nothing like friendship to stand in the way of her legitimate business—which was to furnish her paper with matter that the editor appreciated and paid for—in short that business was business, and the good or bad opinion of people was a matter of supreme indifference to her. A further interchange of amenities took place, each time with sharper pens and more vinegar in the ink, and every billet doux being, of course, concluded "sincerely yours" or words to that effect. Subsequenly all these private (?) notes were secured by the enterprising New York press and served as choice bits to a large and interested circle of readers. The Wilcox-Atherton feud had hardly abated when Gotham society was delighted by a passage at arms between Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox, aforesaid, and Miss Laura Daintrey, the author of "Eros." The gentle and sensitive New York lady criticized this work of the younger authoress quite sharply, and being, in her turn, remonstrated with privately by Laura Daintrey, replied, among other uncomplimentary, if half deserved, strictures, that after reading "Eros" she felt as if she wanted to take a Turkish bath. The papers got hold of this private (?) correspondence also, of course, and dished it up with appropriate comments and the ascertained opinions of other authors and journalists of both sexes, on the merits and demerits of the fair participants in the unseemly squabble thus far. As Mrs. Amelia Rives-Chanler, author of what a critical journal calls "that literary Limburger cheese, 'The Quick or the Dead'" is, so to speak, in the same literary set as the disputants above, it is hinted that she too may take a hand in the round of sharp things that are being written and said. There are some who inquire, not without reason, if the whole "rumpus" is a sort of prearranged literary hippodrome got up to advertise the names and the wares of the fair novelists and writers taking part. Certainly the spectacle is neither edifying to the public nor creditable to the performers.

The advantages and prospects of this Plot for a future thriving Town are many.

The Land in the vicinity is good.

There are inexhaustible IRON ORE DEPOSITS, of a superior quality, immediately adjacent, as well as vast strata of the finest BUILDING SAND and POTTERY CLAY.

On the Townsite are a number of valuable MINERAL SPRINGS.

Communication by land and water is unequalled, by reason of the location of the Townsite on the Fraser River and the Southern Railway, while the natural elevation and lay of the land can not be excelled as a situation for a fine town.

The ground is open and clear of heavy timber.

The site has been selected as one of the most important stations on the Southern Railway, and with the completion of the road, in the near future, must, with all its other advantages, spring into prominence at once.

Those who apply early will have the pick of the Lots.

GERMAN STUDENTS' DUELS.

he Way They Fight Them in the Pretty Town of Heidelberg.

A correspondent of the Boston Advertiser, scribing the manner in which German udents conduct their duels, writes as fol-ws: After dinner the student found us in e reading room. He was from Cologne, d, therefore, a Westphalian and study-g law and political science. As to duels, they were not actually permitted. Could y one see them? "I will take you to-mor-w. Hand this card at the door of the irschgasse' at 8:30 o'clock and call for . Adieu." And, bowing with the cere-ony he would have affected in a ball-room, shook hands and parted.

Before eight o'clock the next morning I w from my upper window in the "Ritter" half dozen landaus, filled with bright-pped students, rolling down the narrow eet to the old bridge spanning the Neckar, past many men who were hurrying the ir way on foot. As soon as possible I ined the cavalcade. The "Hirschgasse," large, old-fashioned, plain, two-storied ilding with an inner court and a beer gar-n in front, was guarded by an ugly-look-g seneschal, who took my card up-stairs. on my college friend appeared. A duel s already in progress.

We passed from the stairs into a high, acious chamber, in which at our right was ong, plain table, covered with great cot-n paddings, meant for the protection of parts of the body, and a sword or two, ch gauntlets as large as boxing gloves. the left were two smaller tables run-g the opposite way, separated by a chair th a head rest, which had another little ble covered with scissors, knives, pow-rs, bottles and mysterious surgical in-uments in general in front of it. The lls were bare, save a few pictures and traits. Through this room we went up o a great high hall twice as large as the st. Here the duel was in progress. At left of our entrance, stretching out to windows, were four or five tables with nches, at which a few students in ir different caps were seated drinking ne wine or bouillon, or eating sand-hes. On our right half a hundred fel-s were huddled about the narrow circle which, over the heads of all, I could see sword blades flash and descend, rise, sh and descend again, and hear their inous clashing. I was led up closer, and, rteously, members of my friend's corps, whom, with the same ceremony I have ays noticed, I was there introduced, fell k, giving me a chance to see every ng to the best advantage.

ach contestant was supported by two conds, who straightened his sword, stayed his arms or wiped the blood from his e and head. Another kept a record in a k of the cuts received. Two others stood to give the signals for beginning or ceas-the passes, which were always brought n end whenever a new fountain of blood s opened or new bits of hair began to fly. h figure was padded and wadded to the es, and the eyes of each were protected. r the breast and stomach and down to knees hung a great breastplate of the ghest cloth made, at least an inch thick. whole was streaked and stiff with ted human blood and inexpressibly dis-ting. It looked as if it had been worn years in a slaughter-house. When first oked upon the duelists the surface of the astplate worn by one was flowing with od, which dripped, dripped, dripped as it s pumped up by the vigorous lungs out m gaping wounds in his cheek and head, rn over his body, upon his boots and into reat pool upon the floor. Every little le sand was sprinkled under his feet. opponent was faring much better. He simply a slit in his ear. But every time, he given signal, the poor fellow whom I t saw rose up most pluckily from the s of the men who supported him, advanced sturdily to the contest. It no child's play at fighting. Every blow meant to tell. The vigorous dead earn-ess of the thrusts of those sharpened les was agonizing. At my side, sudden-a student, who, I was told afterward, seen several duels, collapsed in a faint he horror of the scene. In an instant he raised upon the shoulders of four stu-ts and carried back into the other room. ow and then the doctor, a pale, sepulchral-king figure in shiny black broadcloth, ld step up and examine the wounds to if there was any danger in letting the l proceed. I wondered why the better had no pity. It would seem that now had done mischief enough. But he went lashing away at his ill-matched foe in ugly, brutal manner. I would have l, "Rah, rah, rah!" if I could have n his cheek slashed to the bone. And I show unpardonable enthusiasm when, before the fifteen minutes were up, he eived an ugly cut on the top of his head. or the most part the students do not be-y themselves by the slightest word or k. They seem to believe in Bishop But-s philosophy that "things will be as they be." But the duel was at last over and t of the number betook themselves to tables, and went to writing in the little ps books or eating their breakfast. I s glad enough to take a glass of wine, I had dissipated a good deal of nervous rgy and felt faint. I tried to get away n. But the Westphalians were eager me to stay and see one of their men t. Against my will, for their sake, I ted, therefore. And, meanwhile, I was en out into the other room, where the estphalian was preparing for his battle. o was stripped to his trousers and then padding began. In a previous duel this n had had his nose seriously cut, and the tor thought it best for him to wear a pro-tor of that organ, lest the old wound uld be opened. Over on the opposite side, the chair I have before mentioned, the ticipant in the former duel was receiv-the doctor's attention. He was a pitiful-king object, nearly fainting in the pain, ich he bore without a murmur, and a fel-student was holding his hand. But at t he was patched up, the doctor was free, new contestants were ready and the ond duel began. Sometimes, my friend d me, they are kept there till four o'clock the afternoon. The system is a shocking ce of superstition, serving, as far as I can , no good end, although the students are voted to it and regard it as betraying rage of a rare sort. It is, indeed, a icky thing to walk up before a naked ord and know that within fifteen minutes u will be seated in a surgeon's chair with ounds which you must bear till death. it it is pluckiness to no good end. Nothing, rhaps, in Germany so shows the vitality middle age prejudice and custom as this stem. It is the apotheosis as picturesque utality.

MARRYING THEMSELVES.

overnor Bellingham's the First Instance on Record in America.

The incident where a Boston man of some otoriety recently performed his own mar-age ceremony (if it might be called such) New York is not without precedent. The arriage of Miss Lucy Stone and Dr. Black-ell, about thirty-five years ago, was of newhat the same nature; but, according the Boston Herald, there is a still older recedent in Boston, viz., that of Governor ichard Bellingham, of Massachusetts, of hich colony he was one of the original atentees. This remarkable marriage was acted nearly two hundred and fifty years go, and under circumstances of peculiar otoriety.

Richard Bellingham, who was bred a wyer, had been recorder of the old town Boston, in England. He came to Boston, the colony of Massachusetts, in 1634, and the following year was chosen its Deputy overnor. In August, 1634, he was chosen electman of Boston, and, with his first ife, Elizabeth Pentley, he joined the ortho-ox church in August of the year following, aking a public profession of faith. In 641 he was chosen Governor in opposition Winthrop, and was chosen again in 1654, nd again in 1660, after the death of Endi-ott, continuing in office for the remainder f his life, his death occurring December , 1672. In 1664 he was made Major-General, nd in that year the King sent four com-issioners to regulate the affairs of the rovince, ordering Bellingham and others, ho were obnoxious, to proceed to England nd answer accusations that were made gainst them in person. His Majesty, however, is said to have been appeased by the present of a ship load of masts.

But the peculiar matter in point occurred in the earlier part of Governor Belling-ham's colonial career. His first wife, who accompanied him from England, died in 1638. There had been in the family before this occurance a young woman named Penel-opo Pelham, whose position appears to have been that of housekeeper or assistant in household matters. After Mrs. Belling-ham's death, the continuance of this young woman in the Governor's household was the occasion of considerable gossip. To his other dignities, Governor Bellingham add-ed that of judge or magistrate for the trial of causes, and this gossip so scandalized the court that it was decided to depose him from his position. This was in 1641, when his housekeeper was but twenty years of age. But he refused to leave the bench, and the grand inquest presented him for breach of order of the court and the Secre-tary called him to answer the presentation.

Being Governor, as well as Judge, he was not an easy subject to handle. However, in deference to public opinion, and no doubt as a matter of policy, he called together the ministers and some of the people, inviting them to his house, and there, in their pres-ence, bringing Penelope forward, he intro-duced her to them, saying: "This is my wife, but I will have no law about it. God is enough for me and her."

This was all the marriage ceremony vouch-safed by the Governor, and appears to have been acquiesced in by the community, for he was never after troubled about it. He was not a godless man, but rather a strong church member. His second wife, so strangely wed, is said to have borne him six children, who, however, all died young. His religious peculiarities may be seen in part by his will, which provides that, after the decease of his wife and his grand-daughter, the bulk of his estate should be spent for the yearly maintenance "of goodly ministers and preachers" of the true church, which he considered to be that of the Congregationalists. His sister Annie, widow of William Hibbins, one of his as-sistants, was executed as a witch in June, 1656. Though latitudinarian enough on the subject of his own marriage, Governor Bellingham was violently opposed to inno-vation in religious matters, and was ex-ceedingly severe toward the Quakers, who affirm, says Drake, that he died distracted.

WILD WESTERN TACTICS.

Perfection to Which Murder as a Fine Art Was Brought by a Miner.

"Talking about murder as a fine art," said A. J. Pleasanton, who lives up near the Dakota Bad Lands, to a St Louis Post Dispatch reporter, "talking about murder as a fine art I am reminded of the perfection to which the safe and scientific slaying of one's fellow-men was brought many years ago in the Northwest, and which opened my eyes not a little to methods of the mining men among whom I went to live when I first visited the Black hills. Now, don't under-stand me as inveighing against the West and its border life, or criticising for critic-ism's sake the code of morals of the pio-neers. Far from it. The country of which I speak is misrepresented enough, and its manners held up to a gibing public by reck-less writers too often for me to strengthen the impression that the frontiersman is normally a cut-throat. What I do want to say is that there is no more dangerous man on earth than the citizen of a frontier town when he becomes absolutely convinced that he must have the life of an enemy. Times are changing now, and the period is pass-ing away when each one set himself up for an all-sufficient judge of personal right and wrong. People go to law where they formerly reached for the handiest weapon, and Black-stone is resorted to oftener than the Bowie-knife. But it was different when I first went West, say when the Home Stake miners were pillaged of their first big-pay dirt, and I must confess that my heart failed me until I grew accustomed to the new order of things. Mind you, I am not speak-ing of desperadoes, but of men who made of murder a necessity when con-fronted by some stern situation, and who would go to work in the most cold-blooded manner imaginable in order to attain their end. It was very terrible to my inexperi-enced mind when Jim Waters, we will call him, for I don't wish to revive unpleasant recollections up at home, shot down a man who stood high in our little community of miners and traders a few miles to the north of Sturgis, in a little town that has long since been abandoned. Waters had made up his mind to kill his enemy, and how do you suppose he went about it? Why, in true Western fashion, for he had no desire of having his neck stretched for his pains. The party of which his foe was a member was working a claim just across the ridge from us, and one fine morning Waters saw his man slowly walking along the summit of the rise, axe in hand, looking for fire-wood. His mind was made up in an instant, and he quietly left camp in the direction of his enemy. We could hear nothing of the quarrel. The first thing we knew was that Waters had turned and was running at full speed, pursued by the man who I was afterward convinced he had deliberately started out to kill. The pursuer gained a little and raised his axe as if to strike, and then we saw Waters turn and halt. There was a little puff of smoke, the crack of a six-shooter, and the man with the axe was dead. Self-defense, wasn't it? Of course that's what they said at the trial. That's what the witnesses swore and what I swore, though we felt in our hearts that Waters was a cold-blooded murderer. I merely tell you this to illustrate what I would call 'Western tactics.' The West is my home now and I love it, but I recognize its faults and am only too glad to see the tide of tenderfeet setting our way."

A Bad Cow at a Funeral.

A thrilling incident transpired at a fu-neral in Bungree, Victoria, the other day. The pall-bearers and other officials were in the act of bearing the remains of the late lamented from the cemetery gates to the grave, and the friends and relatives fol-lowed sadly in the wake, allowing their bit-ter tears to filter through large handker-chiefs, when a one-horned, bony cow, with a fiery eye and an elevated tail, bore down on the cortege and butted the gentlemen who bore the coffin into a condition of rags and incapacity; then she skipped about, frolicked along sideways, trod upon the procession, and wore holes in it with her solitary horn, after which the remainder of the mourners sought comparative security on top of tombstones and in other elevated positions, leaving the dead and wounded on the field of action. The grave-digger sub-sequently diverted the cow's attention with a spade, and the funeral terminated with a prayer.

A Model Woman Suffragist.

Mrs. H. H. Robinson, who for a long time has been connected with the woman suf-frage movement in Massachusetts, is brought up as a proof that "strong-minded" women are not necessarily neglectful of their household duties. Her kitchen is said to be a model of all that a kitchen should be, and to appeal in its arrangements alike to the practical and æsthetic eye. It is built of sheathed hard pine, with rafters overhead. A big closet at one end holds earthen and stone vessels, and among them stand two stone idols, which she calls her Lares and Penates. On the walls of the kitchen the cooking utensils are hung in artistic de-signs, and within easy reach of the cook. Mrs. Robinson is said to have her servants so well trained that she is seldom called upon to visit this quarter of her house, but when she does she puts it in apple-pie order.

A snake story from San Luis Potosi, Mex., is as follows: "A family succeeded in catching a baby rattlesnake with a forked stick and domesticating it. It grew to be fourteen feet in length and became tame and playful, never showing anger when handled by the children, though never al-lowing any one to touch its rattles. It fol-lowed its master like a dog. Recently many of the houses were struck by lightning. The snake, seeing the bolts falling fast around the home of its infancy, determined to die for its benefactors, and forthwith climbed to the roof and in a perpendicular position standing on its head shook its rattles violently at the heavens, defying the lightning. The electricity attracted by this living lightning rod reduced to ashes the noble animal and the house." No affidavit goes with this.

In another column will be found Mr. Trapp's adv. announcing the sale, by auction, on Friday and Saturday afternoons, of a carload of eastern furniture. Some very handsome setts are among the items offered.

THE COLUMBIAN acknowledges with thanks the receipt of a huge and beautiful boquet from Miss Eva Insley, the young lady who christened the new steamer Delaware, and in honor of which event the boquet is presented.

McMahon's circus, which visits Westminster on Saturday, was in Victoria yesterday and gave every satisfaction. The circus is spoken of as being really good, and our Victoria despatches confirm the expressions of the American press.

Voting on the water works debentures by-law, and on the streets and park improvements by-law, is fixed for Thursday June 13th, the polling place to be at the city hall, McKenzie street. The returning officers are Capt. Pittendrigh and Messrs. Hugh Burr and J. Bachelor.

Stock ranch, on Pitt River, for $3,500; worth at present rates $6,000; 276 acres land with improvement; 136 acres high bush land, rest prairie. Must be sold immediately; a rare chance for anyone with the cash; double your money in 12 months. Apply to T. J. TRAPP. *

Mr. T. Ackerman, chief engineer, recommends to the council that a new hose reel be purchased for the use of No. 2 fire station and that a telephone be placed in the captain's residence. The fire committee will consider the recommendations, and both will probably be adopted.

The case of Maclugo, charged with a criminal assault on a little boy named Henley, came before the police magistrate this morning. Considerable evidence was heard, all of which went against the accused. The presiding magistrate after hearing the evidence sent the prisoner up for trial.

After this date Mr. Robert Kerr will have immediate charge of the general freight and passenger traffic of the C. P. R. lines west of Port Arthur, with office at Winnipeg. Mr. D. E. Brown, as assistant general freight and passenger agent, with office at Vancouver, will have immediate charge of the traffic of the Pacific.

Miss Black came over from Vancouver last night and will be the guest of Mrs. J. A. Webster for a week.

The Victoria Murder.

The murder of the Chinese girl, Yow Kum, at Victoria, caused quite a ripple of excitement in police circles here, as it was thought probable the murderers might have taken the str. Rithet for this city after the deed was committeed. Word of the murder was not received by the police till after the arrival of the steamer, and therefore no scrutiny was placed on the passengers when they landed. From latest advices received it is almost certain that the murderers are still in Victoria, and their arrest is deemed certain.

The New Wellington Shaft.

The Nanaimo Free Press reports that the new or No. 6 shaft of the Wellington collieries is 365 feet in depth to the coal. The seam is 8 feet thick and the quality is fully up to the famous standard of the Wellington collieries. In addition to the 8 feet of coal, there is a lower seam of 18 inches of coal, divided by a slight partition of rock. Only the 8 foot seam will be utilized at present. The shaft has been sunk through solid hard rock. It is timbered from the surface to the bottom of the "sump." On Friday the miners commenced to "break away" into the seam of coal.

The Coming Entertainment.

The Royce & Lancing Co., appear at Herring's Opera House on Thursday evening. In addition to their entire company of last season they have secured Mrs. E. Owen Flint, the famous English comedienne and character impersonator; also Maud Flint (7 years of age), the most accomplished child actress before the public. Her great success has been attained through her beautiful rendition of the role of Editha in that delightful little sketch Editha's Burglar. This little sketch will be remembered by many as having made such a decided hit at the Lyceum Theatre in New York the past season. Royce & Lancing's success is accounted for by their strict adherence of presenting a strictly refined entertainment, composed of the best artists and the best vocal and intrumental music.

Perry Creek.

The official report, dated April 28th, speaks of slow progress made in the Mount Cenis tunnel owing to the necessity of blasting the rock and removing a large number of boulders. The rush of the water through the an*cient canyon must have been tremen*dous, as the walls and boulders are found to be smoother and more polished than ever before. The grade is not rising, and there is scarcely a spot for gold to lodge, while the dirt is not solid enough to have retained it. The quality of the gold remains the same. Steady work is maintained by both shifts, day and night. The lift pumps machinery and tools have all been packed from Cranbrook to the upper camp, where Mr. A. Bilsland, with a staff of mechanics and miners, is soon expected, when the work will commence of sinking and drifting from the shaft.—Colonist.

"From Asia to Europe."

"Max O'Neil's journey from Asia to Europe," says an eastern cotemporary, speaking of the lecture, an advertisement of which will appear to-morrow, is to be delivered in this city on Friday evening next, at the Oddfellows' Hall, is a narrative of the lecturer's journey from Hong Kong to Vancouver through British Columbia, the Rocky Mountains, the Canadian plains, the great lakes, the valley of the St. Lawrence, and thence to Ireland and England. Every stage of the journey is illustrated by photographic transparancies projected by a powerful limelight, with dissolving lanterns on an immense screen. The story of the journey is given by L. O. Armstrong, a gifted and interesting speaker. The lecture and illustrations are highly spoken of by the leading Canadian and American papers, and the low price of admission places a unique treat within the reach of all. Friday night next at the Oddfellows' Hall.

The Mission Bridge Draw.

The plans for the Mission Bridge draw have been prepared, but on a plan which makes it seem as if the C. P. R. was determined to close the river to navigation despite all efforts to the contrary. The south side of the river, which is the shallow side, has been chosen by the company as the location for the draw. Inside the swing pier, which is 100 feet from the shore, the water at its ordinary stage is only 3 feet deep round the shore pier, and in winter time, when the water is very low, is almost dry. Outside the swing pier a greater depth of water is found, but not sufficient to guarantee a permanency of the channel. So, even were there plenty of water the whole year round, it would be insufficient for the future requirements of navigation. At present the river is 7 feet higher than low water mark, and therefore the soundings taken now to be used as data are worthless except the 7 feet or more be deducted. The shoal water already on the south shore is not likely to be deepened by the building of the piers, and the most experienced river men say that they will have the opposite effect. The main channel passes close to the north shore, and it is here that the swing must be placed; and unless placed where the river following its natural course has made the channel it will be worthless, and the Fraser will be effectually blocked for navigation There is another important feature in connection with the piers which must not escape observation. The specifications call for 1,000 cubic yards of rock being rip-rapped round each pier. This means additional obstructions to navigation and the possibility of the formation of bars and the diversion of the channel. Steamboat men regard this rip-rapping as a very serious menace, and are afraid of the results it may bring. The general principles on which the bridge is proposed to be constructed are exciting alarm both throughout the district and in Westminster. This city depends largely on the up-river districts for the trade which the Mission bridge threatens to cut off, but no possible effort will be be left untried to maintain the free navigation of the Fraser The large obstructions placed in the river at this point make it difficult to foretell what effect it may have on the rise of the water, and to what extent it would conduce to flooding the banks on either side.

Passed Away.

Loftus R. McInnes, M. D., an old and respected resident of this city, passed peacefully away about 1 o'clock this morning. He was a man of robust constitution and suffered little from ill health till two weeks ago, when he was stricken with illness and forced to take to bed. At the time few of his friends expected the result would prove fatal, but his strength rapidly declined and a week later it was known he could not survive. Dr. McInnes was born at Lake Ainslie, Cape Breton, 55 years ago. After taking the regular course of medicine at the Toronto University he graduated and in 1872 came to British Columbia and commenced the practice of his profession in New Westminster. Three years later he was appointed surgeon to the Vancouver Coal Company at Nanaimo, to which city he removed and for 5 years held the above office to the satisfaction of all. After an absence of 5 years Dr. McInnes returned to New Westminster and practiced his profession till the date of his last illness. He enjoyed a large and lucrative practice, and was generally considered a talented and careful physician. Dr. McInnes was elected and served as mayor of the city during the year 1882, receiving the Marquis of Lorne on his visit to this city as governor-general that year. The deceased was in comfortable circumstances at the time of his death, and leaves a wife and two brothers to mourn his loss. Edward, the eldest brother, resides in this city, while Senator Mc Innes, the younger brother, is at present staying in Toronto. Dr. McInnes died in the Roman Catholic faith, of which church he had been a member for several years. He was a man of genial habits, good-natured open-hearted, and liberal, and he passed away leaving not an enemy behind. May his soul rest in peace.

The funeral will take place to-morrow morning at 9 a.m. from his late residence to St. Peters R. C. church and thence to the R. C. cemetry at Sapperton.
