SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

The first submarine telephone cable—about thirty miles long—is to be laid between Buenos Ayres and Montevideo.

A mountain of iron ore, 200 feet high and a square mile in area, has been found by Dr. Noetling, of the Indian Geological Survey, among the Shan Hills of Upper Burmah.

The ginseng of China, a plant to which the Chinese ascribe such remarkable virtues as the renewing of youthful vigor, is said to be in such demand that the root has sold for more than $200 an ounce.

Italy has each year nearly 300,000 cases of typhoid fever, with 27,000 deaths, according to Prof. Ruata. A third of the population reaching the age of forty-five have the fever, and more than three per cent die from it in some localities.

A much better preservative of food than the boric acid, etc., now used for keeping fish should be had in sterilized infusorial earth, in the opinion of Prof. P. Waage, the Norwegian chemist. Enormous deposits of the earth were discovered in Norway last year.

Feejeean doctors are said to have great faith in massage, which they have practiced from time immemorial, and have taught to the Samoans and the Tongans. The rubbing and kneading of the affected part is sometimes continued for hours, stimulating the circulation and relieving the pain.

THE SAFEST EXPLOSIVE. — Wet compressed gun cotton is the safest high explosive yet produced, says Mr. Karl Rohrer, U.S.N.. It can be readily and safely transported by any conveyance, and is eminently convenient to handle on store. It can be sawed, turned, cut and bored easily and safely, and the turnings, cuttings and borings may be worked over. Dry compressed gun cotton, which need form only a small percentage of any charge, is safer than gunpowder.

CHEMISTRY OF TO-DAY. — The subject of the constitution or structure of chemical compounds, states Prof. Ira Remsen, at present receives more attention from working chemists than any other, and this has been the case ever since chemistry came to be a science. Hopeful attempts are being made to go so deeply into the structure of matter as to determine the shape of its minutest particles, and to solve the problem of the arrangement and connection of the atoms in the molecule. The chemical act itself is being studied in investigations into such matters as the speed of chemical action, the influence of mass upon chemical reactions, and the relations between the phenomena of heat and electricity and chemical action.

BURMAH'S HAIRY PEOPLE. — A remarkable hairy family has long existed at the court of Burmah, where Lord Crawford saw Shwe Maong, the first described of the family, in 1824. A hairy daughter—now sixty-four years old—and a hairy grandson of the hairy Shwe Maong and his beautiful wife still survive, a hairy great granddaughter having died last year. Several other children of the family have shown a tendency to develop the peculiarity, but died when quite young, and others have exhibited only normal hairiness. The surviving man is thickly covered with coarse, goat-like hair on the entire face, neck, shoulders, breast and spine, and with a kind of down two inches long on the limbs. The hair hiding the woman's face is much finer, resembling that of the spaniel. Neither has hair on the hands and feet. They have no molar teeth, and in the upper jaw have only the two first incisors and two canines.

BOOKS OF MEDICINES.—Pharmacopœias published by authority of government or of a medical or pharmaceutical society date from about the middle of the sixteenth century. The early publications of this kind attributed medical properties to such substances as crab's eyes, pearls, oyster-shells, coral, human skull and moss growing on it, blind puppies, earthworms, the excrement of various animals, etc. They also gave heterogeneous mixtures containing from twenty to seventy or more ingredients. National pharmacopœias now exist in the Argentine Republic, Austria, Belguim, Chili, Greece, Holland, Hungary, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, India, Japan, Mexico, Norway, Portugal, Russia, Spain, Sweden, and the United States. Except in the United States and Mexico, these works are issued under the authority of the government, and their instructions have the force of law in their respective countries. The French Codex has the most extended foreign use of any pharmacopœia, being the standard for druggists in a large part of Central and South America, as well as in Turkey and other parts of Europe. It mentions about 2000 drugs and preparations, which is more than double the average of the modern pharmacopœias. On account of the lack of uniformity in works of this kind, the prepration of an international pharmacopœia, to serve as the standard of all nations, has long been under consideration.

TRUSTEES APPOINTED.

BOSTON, March 9.—At a meeting of the creditors of the Pacific Guano Co. this morning, Charles E. Morrison, of C. E. Morrison & Co., A. D. Bell, and Wm. E. Stowe, of Whitney, Stowe & Co., were chosen trustees to take charge of the property in the interest of creditors. It was voted that a statement of the company's condition, as given to the directors, be printed and sent to all creditors.

A SANGUINARY RIOT.

TROY, N.Y. March 9.—This noon a bloody riot occurred at a democratic caucus in the fourth ward of West Troy. Several men were injured by revolvers. Discharged Policeman McGrath was arrested for disorderly conduct. The room in the hotel, where the caucus was held was barricaded, but the doors were broken and the bar room of the hotel nearly destroyed. The fight was between two warring democratic factions of the ward.

GOOD NEWS, LADIES.

LANSING, Mich., Mar. 9.—A bill empowering women to vote at the school elections has passed the house.

NEWS FROM THE ORIENT.

SAN FRANCISO, — March 9.—The str. Belgic arrived from Hong Kong this morning with the following advice: Owing to the failure of crops in Corea the government has entered into a special contract with Japan to supply Corea with a hundred thousand bags of rice, the same to be returned when Corea's crops are again plentiful.

The steamship Remus, while carrying soldiers to various stations in the Philipines, stuck on a reef and sank. Forty-two men were drowned.

A severe and prolonged earthquake shock in Yokahama on January 18th, caused considerable damage to roofs and chimneys.

The str. Anglo-Indian was wrecked near Samsui Formosa, last month. The natives ill-treated the ship-wrecked sailors and pillaged the ship. Three of the plunderers were captured by soldiers and beheaded.

HOME OF REFUGE FOR ALASKA WHALERS.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The New England whalers are urging the speedy establishment of the proposed home of refuge at Point Barrow, Alaska. A building will be erected under the direction of the revenue and marine service. It is probable that Captain White, now on detached service at Oakland, California, will be directed to do the work with the advice of Captain Healy, of the steamer Bear. The amount appropriated for the building is $15,000. It will be devoted to building the structure and providing provisions and fuel, which will be sent from San Francisco.

GIVEN WAY TO SUPERIOR FORCE.

HELENA, Mt., March 9.—The Northern Pacific laborers in Jefferson Canyon have given way to the Union Pacific men, the latter force being too large and too well armed for them.

PULLING FOR THE AUSTRALIAN TRADE.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—In the matter of appointments Representative Vandervere, of California, thinks that his state should be given the consul-generalship to Melbourne. Trade between Australia and the Pacific coast is increasing every year, and as British Columbia is striving to take away part of this trade, Vandever believes some man familiar with the coast interests should be made consul at Melbourne.

WHITE HOUSE NOTES.

WASHINGTON, March. 9. — There were not so many people at the White House this morning. The politicians turned out in full force. They were received in the president's office and occupied his attention from 9.30 to 12:30, when the president excused himself for the purpose of consulting the cabinet on matters requiring prompt action. The session lasted two hours, all the members being present.

THE GERMAN FLAG HISSED.

PITTSBURG, Mar. 9.—The Samoan affair played a conspicuous part in the performance at the academy of music last night. At one point in the performance there was a "Song of all nations," the singers waving approprate flags to national airs of Ireland, England, France, and Italy, which were sung amid applause, but when the German flags were brought out and the singing of "Die Wacht am Rhein" begun, there was loud hissing and a tumult, which resulted in a fight and the arrest of two persons in the audience.

JILTED, AND BLEW OUT HIS BRAINS.

WOODLAND, Cal., March, 9.—Frank Yoder 19 years of age, received a letter from the east, yesterday stating that his financee had married. The young man immediately blew out his brains with a revolver.

C. P. R. LEGISLATION.

OTTAWA, March 9.—A bill has been introduced in parliament to allow the C. P. R. to consolidate its indebtedness and float new loans.

VICTORIA NEWS.

A Sensational Scandal Promised.—Weather, Shipping Notes, &c.

Special to the Columbian.

VICTORIA, March 9.—It is reported that a sensational scandal will develop in the next day or two.

Vancouver weather to-day — viz., rain.

Arrived, ship T. S. Stove, Captain Fraser, 147 days from Liverpool, consigned to Welch, Rithet & Co. Also steamer Sardonyx, Capt. Meyer, from the north. No news of importance. Among the passengers are Messrs. Dempster, Spencer, and Drainey.

Sailed, Umatilla, for San Francisco, with 150 passengers and a full cargo. The City of Pueblo will leave for San Francisco Thursday.

The Mexico will sail from San Francisco Monday for Victoria. In future there will be a steamer every five days between San Francisco and Victoria.

Thomas Robinson, Farnham Centre, P. Q., writes: "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for the last ten years, and have tried many remedies without any relief. I got a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and found it gave instant relief, and since then have had no attack. I would recommend it to all."

LOCAL PARLIAMENT

Yesterday's Proceedings in the Provincial Legislature

VICTORIA, March 8.—The speaker took the chair at 2 o'clock p.m.

Mr. Grant presented the petition of W. A. Robertson and others asking that a bill be introduced to protect the mechanics and tradesmen of the province in the same manner that the lawyers and doctors are now protected. The provincial secretary laid before the house a petition from the corporation of Vancouver asking for certain amendments in its act of incorporation. Mr. Ladner presented a petition of 21 residents of Ladner's Landing with respect to a road. Mr. T. Davie presented the petition of William Wilson with respect to the mining law. The various petitions were read.

The petition of the city of Victoria asking for amendments in the official map act; of the residents of Lillooet with regard to the liquor license held by Ah Foo; of James Laidlaw and others in regard to the incorporation of the Burnaby Lake Improvement Co., were read and received and the second named ordered to be printed.

Colonel Baker presented the report of the committee on standing orders, and private bills. It was reported that the bill to incoporate the National Electric Tramway and Lighting Company was complete with amendments. The report was received.

The standing committee on railways reported complete with amendments the act to incorporate the New Westminster Southern Railway and the New Westminster and Vancouver Short Line Railway. The report was received.

Mr. Orr moved that a select committee be appointed composed of Messrs. T. Davie, Bole, Higgins, Fry and the mover with power to call persons, papers, maps and registers and report to the house respecting matters connected with the survey of the townsite of Granville; the sale by auction of certain lots in the said townsite in the year 1870 and the subsequent disposition of the remaining lots or otherwise.

A debate arose on the above resolution. Mr. Duck proposed an amendment which was seconded by Mr. Mason, to strike out all the words after "that" down to the first "the" on the third line and insert: "The government be requested to take into consideration" and the following words: "With a view to ascertain whether the rights of the province have been lawfully conserved in the disposition of the lots referred to."

The debate was finally adjourned.

Mr. Grant moved that an address be presented to the lieutenant-governor praying that it be strongly pointed out to the Dominion government the very urgent necessity that exists for providing for the mail once a month from the first of April to the end of October in each year and at least three times during the intervening winter months between Victoria and Skidegate and Mussel Inlets, Queen Charlotte Sound by steamers having accomodation for passengers. After an hour's discussion the resolution was carried unanimously.

The house went into committee, Mr. Semlin in the chair, on the municipalities act. At 6 o'clock the committee reported progress and asked leave to sit again. The house then adjourned till Tuesday at 2 o'clock p. m.

The provincial secretary gives notice of the following clause to be added to the school bill: "With the sanction of the lieutenant-governor in-council to summarily suspend from teaching any teacher found guilty of gross misconduct or signally failing in the proper management of a school, or for any other sufficient reason to cancel for cause the certificate of qualification of any teacher, until the lieutenant-governor in council shall confirm or disallow his action in suspending such teacher and the cancellation or suspension of such teacher's certificate when confirmed by the lieutenant-governor-in-council shall release the school trustees of any district in which such teacher may be employed from any obligation to continue to employ him or her as such teacher."

Mr. Bole will move for the necessity of providing weekly mail facilities for that portion of British Columbia from Okanagan to Osoyoos and Rock Creeks. Mr. Higgins will move to add to the school bill as section 5: "Holders of certificates who shall have taught continuously in the public schools of this province for a period of twelve years shall be entitled to have their certificates renewed without examination while they continue actually engaged in the service."

C. A. Livingstone, Plattsville, says:—"I have much pleasure in recommending Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, from having used it myself, and having sold it for some time. In my own case I will say for it that it is the best preparation I have ever tried for rheumatism."

Job printing of all kinds neatly done at the COLUMBIAN office. Prices will be found as low as at any other office in the province.—Adv.

GREAT FLOODS

In Western England Such as Have Not Been Known in this Generation.

A Panic on the Bourse, Which Comes Very Near Precipitating a Crash.

The Market for American Railroad Securities is Very Flat in London.

PANIC ON THE BOURSE.

PARIS, March 9.—The run on Comptoir D'Escompte was resumed this morning. At noon the line was longer than yesterday and depositors manifested more excitement and impatience. Shares of Societe Des Metan (the copper syndicate) are quoted at 100 francs, a decline of 75 francs since last evening. Excitement around the office of Comptoir D'Escompte approaches a panic. Its shares continue to tumble.

GREAT FLOODS IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, March 9.—Great floods prevail in Western England. Railway traffic is interrupted and passengers on some of the blockaded trains are compelled to sleep in the cars. The city of Taunton is completely isolated, but the water is slowly subsiding. The floods are the greatest that have prevailed during the present generation.

ALMOST A CRASH.

PARIS, Mar. 9.—The financial panic is increasing. Syndicate shares are down to 100 francs, a fall of 55 from yesterday and Rio Tintos are quoted at 335 francs. The last quotation yesterday was 380. All that can be said is that the day has closed without a crash, although it has been perilously near one. Closing quotations show a slight recovery. They are as follows: Comptoir De Escompte, 400 francs; Societe Des Metaure, 120; Rio Tintos, 550.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT SUPPORTED.

PARIS, March 9.—In the chamber of deputies to-day the government was supported in its action in allowing Duc D'aumale to return to France, by a vote of 316 to 147.

THE COPPER COLLAPSE.

PARIS, Mar. 9.—Crowds surround the office of the Comptoir des Comptes to day eager to learn the latest news regarding the company's difficulties.

AMNESTY GRANTED.

The Official Journal publishes a decree signed to-day by President Carnot, authorizing the Duc D'aumale to return to France.

RAILROAD SECURITIES MARKET.

LONDON, March 9.—The market for American railroad securities is flat this morning, St. Paul being most active of any, and being absorbed by American dealers. The copper market opened very nervous. Rio Tintos dropped from 15 to 14.

STEAMSHIP IN TROUBLE.

LONDON, March 9.—The str. Ontario, plying between Baltimore and British ports, is in trouble off Sandy Hook and has signalled for assistance. It is supposed her machinery has broken down. A tug is alongside.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, March 8.—The budget debate is getting tedious now that the heavy weights on both sides have had their say. Half a score other speakers have yet to be heard and the vote on Sir Richard Cartwright's resolution is not likely to be reached before Tuesday next.

The house listened very patiently today to the speech of Mr. Armstrong before the debate was resumed.

The following bills were read a third time and passed: An act respecting the rules of court in relation to criminal matters; an act respecting corrupt practices in municipal affairs; an act to make further provision respecting enquiries concerning public matters; an act to permit the conditional release of first offenders in certain cases.

Mr. Armstrong followed the same line adopted by Sir Richard Cartwright. Mr. Armstrong reminded the house of the fact that last session he had given notice of a resolution he had withdrawn for two reasons, first, because the notice of another resolution had been given in favor of unrestricted reciprocity and second, because he feared he might offend some of the weak brethren. Nevertheless, he declared himself still in favor of commercial union, and he forthwith proceeded to give his reasons for the faith that was in him. The great advantage in this system he held to be the possibility that it offered for abolishing the customs houses along the international boundary and leaving the vast army of officers free to do something for the benefit of the country. Another favorable point was that commercial union was entirely practicable. As proof of this he read Sir Charles Tupper's statement of last year, that while in the United States he did not find a single leading politician who would not hold up both hands for commercial union. He contrasted the heavy tariff of the United States with the free trade policy of Great Britain and quoted the trade navigation returns to show that at present the Canadian trade with the United States was greater than that with Great Britain and that while the former was increasing the latter was decreasing.

The other speakers were Mr. Porter (conservative), and Mr. McMullen (liberal).

The provision in Sir J. S. D. Thompson's resolution regarding the judges' salaries provides that the salaries of five county court judges in British Columbia shall be $2,400 per annum, and that each judge may in addition receive a salary from the province for acting as stipendiary magistrate. The increase in all the provinces is equal to $1000 in each case.

Mr. Cook will introduce amendments to the civil service act. The amendments will require residence in Canada for five years before being eligible to enter the service.

Daily British Columbian

Saturday Evening, March 9, 1889.

According to our Victoria despatches, yesterday, the legislature was petitioned by all the blacksmiths and carriage makers of the city, to pass a law requiring all persons who shall hereafter arrive in B. C. to remain one year in the province and pass a satisfactory examination before they be allowed to enter business as blacksmiths or carriage makers. This petition will in all probability receive the sanction of our legislators. If they would be consistent, they cannot well refuse the prayer of the petitioners. They have, in their unquestionable wisdom, renewed such a hedge around the legal profession, and by so doing have put the strongest kind of an argument in the mouths of the promoters of protection for blacksmiths and carriage makers. If a duly qualified legal gentleman from some other province or country is not to be allowed to commence to earn a living by practising his profession until after twelve month's residence in the province and an examination at the hands of an association of lawyers, pray why, in the name of common fairness, should not every profession, trade or calling be similarly protected. There may be reasons why "what's sauce for the goose isn't relish for the gander" in this case, but it would be interesting and edifying to have these arguments aired. We hope that the petition of the blacksmiths and carriage makers of Victoria may have the result of knocking a hole through the sophistries of the lawyers in the house on the question of protecting their profession exclusively from legitimate competition.

The bill relating to the offence of libel in civil cases, which Mr. Higgins has introduced into the local house, is a measure that is needed in this province. Heretofore there has been no provincial statute regulating the proceedure in libel cases, and English and Canadian statutes and precedents, somewhat time-worn and behind the spirit of the age in their intent and operations, have stood for law in such actions. The practical result has been that it has been altogether too easy to procure damages against a newspaper. In fact, the publishers of a newspaper are on the "ragged edge" continually lest some stray paragraph of local news, telegraph, or correspondence, should creep into their columns and give a pretext to some one in search of a financial lift, or who wishes to gratify a grudge, to institute a suit for damages. Although heavy damages are seldom allowed, the case generally goes against the newspaper, which has to stand the costs, and these are never light. While the public is, of course, entitled to protection against abuses of the press, a reputable and conscientious press should be secured against speculative and malignant prosecution. It is in the public interest that the press should not be unnecessarily muzzled, and Mr. Higgins' bill is a long step in the right direction. We published the text of the bill in full the other day, and will not refer to it more particularly at this time. We trust that the bill may pass the legislature and become law. Mr. Higgins' long experience in the newspaper business eminently qualifies him for initiating legislation pertaining to libel.

The "ups and downs of life" never, perhaps, receive a more striking illustration than in the experiences which every occupant of the White House is fated to undergo. Elevated to the head of a great nation, and endowed with almost dictatorial powers, compared with those of a king or queen under constitutional government, the president of the United States enjoys, during his short term of four years, all the importance, respect, and homage due the embodiment of his high office, not only from his sixty millions of loyal countrymen, covering half a continent, but from the entire civilized world. When the four years have flown, all too swiftly, ere he has had time to more than adjust himself to his lofty surroundings, the president of yesterday has to bundle his traps into a baggage car, and himself into a coach, and drop with a jerk from the firmament of power and position into the obscurity of a private citizen. There is something almost pathetic about the sudden transition, and more than one of the retiring presidents has, with the instinct of self-preservation, endeavored to "break the fall" by keeping himself before the public in some way or other—a popular and soothing "let-down" being a trip round the world, a European tour, or some such diversion. Presidents' wives, of course, suffer with their lords, as they share the privileges and honors of the office. Notwithstanding the fact that it is always a "cold day" when a president of the United States first has the "ex" prefixed to his title, the experience is a good test of and discipline for character, and besides nips in the bud any undue risings of ambition or pride in the "servant of the people." A well-balanced, philosophical mind will accept with equanimity and dignity what he foresaw and prepared himself to anticipate. Judged by this standard, Grover Cleveland has acquitted himself well in the ordeal which overtakes all "first citizens" of the republic. The ex-president has cheerfully and philosophically stepped from the White House into his lawyer's office in New York, and entered upon his duties as a private citizen as if they had never been disturbed. A few days before the inauguration of his successor, Mr. Cleveland was interviewed in Washington by the representative of a leading New York paper, and gave his views briefly on a variety of subjects. The ex-president expressed in unmistakable terms his sense of relief in view of his release from the cares and anxieties of office. He is not ungrateful by any means, he says, for the high honor which was conferred upon him four years ago, and declares no man could be indifferent to such an expression of confidence on the part of American citizens. At the same time public office, faithfully administered, necessitates a great many personal sacrifices and an almost appalling amount of hard work. Domestic relations are invaded, home life is almost an impossibility, while accumulating and pressing responsibilities of the most serious and grave character tax the physical as well as the mental energies of the incumbent to the utmost. To receive the presidency of a nation like this is an honor only equalled by the privilege of retiring to private life with the consciousness that he has endeavored to serve the public interests with an eye single to the welfare of the whole people. The foregoing are Mr. Cleveland's own sentiments. That the ex-president has been a rugged worker and has not spared himself is easily admitted. Two o'clock is the time he set for retiring, but it frequently happened that the clock struck three in the morning before he could leave his desk. Still he shows no wear or tear. Mr. Cleveland plainly has no intention, although retired to private life, to sulkily give up all interest in affairs pertaining to his country's welfare and interests, but the same principles which guided him in office he will endeavor to further still. To the representative of the press he said: "It is plain that under a Republican administration there has been given a fresh and dangerous impetus to monopolies, trusts and combines. Immense fortunes have been accumulated, unknown in the days of our fathers. They are a peculiarity of the present times, and the control which they arbitrarily exercise over the cost of existence is a direct menace to the welfare of the workingmen and of our farmers. The party which willingly encourages these evil tendencies is not worthy to be called the party of the people. The Democratic party must, therefore, be true to itself, whether in power or out. It must keep itself the representative of the poor and rich alike, and maintain a solid front against the ruthless encroachments of combined capital, which result in dividing our population into the abnormally rich on the one hand and large multitudes of unprotected and laboring masses on the other. The country wants more of the spirit of true democracy, and the Democratic party, if loyal to itself, must win in the long run. There never was a time when wise counsels and harmonious action in the Democratic party was more important to the people of the country than now." Mr. Cleveland boldly nailed his colors to the mast during the late presidential campaign, thus challenging the defeat which overtook him as a consequence. He has never hauled those colors down, and has plainly no intention of doing so. That he will be heard from again most unmistakably in their defence, is almost certain.

Amos Hudgin, Toronto, writes: "I have been a sufferer from Dyspepsia for the past six years. All the remedies I tried proved useless, until Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure was brought under my notice. I have used two bottles with the best results, and can with confidence recommend it to those afflicted in like manner."

JAMES CUNNINGHAM.

Importer of Hardware, Agricultural Implements, Etc.

In every city there are individual examples of men whose connections with its business pursuits, whose prominence in all matters of public enterprise, whose record for unflinching integrity, undaunted energy, and untiring industry, make them objects of special note, not alone in their homes, but wherever exalted commercial reputation is recognized and respected, such a man have we in the subject of this sketch. Mr. James Cunningham established his business in this city in 1862 and has, through all the vicissitudes of twenty-seven years' trade, maintained the even tenor of his way. His transactions have increased year by year, and the circle of his customers and patrons gradually widening and his firm extending until he now controls a business unexcelled by any similar establishment in British Columbia. His buildings are large and commodious and admirably arranged and appointed. All this space is filled with a complete and extensive assortment of hardware, agricultural implements, paints, oils, glassware, crockeryware, wall-paper, woodenware, stoves, tinware, hollow-ware, plumbers' goods, house furnishings, iron pipe and fittings. This house also manufactures tinware of all kinds and does every variety of sheet-iron cornice work, gas-fittings, plumbing, roofing, etc. There is no house in the trade which carries a more complete stock or whose facilities surpass those of this establishment for supplying the trade with first-class goods at lowest quotations. The length of time this gentleman has been in business and the success he has attained are better recommendations than the loudest praise we could possibly give. We may mention, however, to our readers who have not yet become acquainted with this firm, that none in the Northwest has a better reputation for fair and honorable dealing. —Mercantile Review.

A DOMESTIC IDYL.

She's a treasure and a beauty,
So devoted to her duty,
Thinking only of my comfort all the year;
I am single, to my sorrow,
But I'd marry her to-morrow
If it were not that my friends would surely sneer.

There's a gulf, but I will bridge it
(By the way her name is Bridget),
I'll ask her to remain and be my cook for life;
And I'll seal the bargain tender
With matrimonial splendor,
And see if Mrs. Grundy dares to snub my wife.

L'ENVOI.

Well, I've asked her and I've missed her—
But she said she'd be a sister,
And no terms matrimonial would she make;
But she said if I was "willin'"
She would marry the young villain
Who serves us with our mutton chops and steak.

(Girl wanted).

PAUL'S CHOICE;

Or, How Belle Brandon Lost a Good Husband.

Paul Raymond had confidentially told some of his young lady friends that he was ready to take a wife as soon as he could find the right sort of a girl, and in some way it had been whispered around from one to another, until every fair one in Paul's large circle of acquaintances had heard it. It was only a trifling bit of intelligence, but it created as great a stir among the young ladies as a declaration of war could have created among the diplomats of a foreign country. It fell upon the paternal pocket-books like a financial crash, for every marriageable miss proceeded at once to adorn herself for the conquest. It proved to be a grand hey-day for milliners and dress-makers though, and the bewitching hats and lovely costumes they turned out ought to have melted the stony heart of any old bachelor. There were picnics, excursions and tea-parties without number, all planned in honor of Paul Raymond. Fond mothers looked hopeful, and did not believe any human heart could long resist so vigorous a besieging as was laid to Paul's heart, and each one fancied that her own especial charge would eventually win the victory. But Paul was the fortunate possessor of plenty of common sense, and lovely dresses, hats, frizzes, etc., lost their effect upon him unless there was a true, kind heart and a good supply of practical knowledge back of them. Paul's mother was an eminently sensible woman, too. Though not obliged to perform any of the labor necessary to the preservation of her well-ordered household, she was none the less capable of doing so, if the occasion required. The sudden departure of a servant caused no consternation in her house, and she frequently advised her son never to marry the girl who looked with disdain upon the performance of household duties, or regarded a knowledge of the same as an inferior accomplishment.

Paul's father was a successful merchant, and had lately made his son an equal partner in the business, besides deeding to him a charming little cottage in the suburbs of the city. Add to such brilliant financial prospects a prepossessing young man with exemplary habits, and it was no wonder the girls looked longingly at the pretty cottage and grounds, and wondered who the future occupant would be. None of them seemed likely to win the coveted prize, however, unless it were Belle Brandon.

Paul and Belle had been warm friends since childhood, and it had often been predicted that the friendship would some day ripen into a closer union, and now it seemed very probable that such predictions might come true, for Paul showed decided preference for Belle's society.

"What a handsome couple they would make!" said a fashionable lady, who had no daughters of her own. And it did seem as though Belle was well fitted to adorn the high position that Paul Raymond's wife would occupy, for she was highly accomplished in the modern acceptance of that term. She had passed three years at a fashionable boarding-school, and could speak French and German quite fluently, could play all the new and popular music, and had decorated every thing from garret to cellar with her brush.

Though in humble circumstances, Belle's parents had expended much money upon their daughter's education, hoping to fit her for a teacher; but she had been out of school over a year, and as yet manifested no inclination to teach, but seemed contented to enjoy the comforts and luxuries that for which others toiled.

Mrs. Raymond was not pleased with her son's growing fondness for Belle. She was satisfied that Belle was not qualified to become a successful home-maker, and without mentioning her misgivings to Paul, quietly determined that he should have an opportunity of finding out for himself, and laid her plans accordingly. She had for some time contemplated a visit to some friends in a distant city, and concluded to go at once, shutting up her house, and leaving Paul to board with the Brandon's, for they kept boarders, and were patronized by the merchants and clerks of the city.

Paul was well satisfied with his mother's arrangement, though he little suspected her motive. The thought of eating three meals a day at the same table with Belle's bright face was very pleasing, and a week later, when he found himself comfortably ensconced in one of Mrs. Brandon's cozy rooms, he could not help wishing that his mother would make a long visit. There was none of the elegant furnishing of his own home, but every thing presented an aspect of refinement and cheerfulness, from the bright home-made rugs on the floor to the snowy white curtains looped back with blue ribbons, that adorned the windows. As he gazed admiringly around the room, he thought what a lovely home his cottage would become when presided over by the same fairy whose wand, he fancied, had so beautified this apartment, for, lover-like, he attributed every thing to Belle.

The Brandon family consisted of four members at the time of this writing—Mr. and Mrs. Brandon, Belle, and Alice Neal, an orphan niece of Mrs. B.'s, who was studying music in the city and attending the normal school, and working for her board at her aunt's.

For several days after taking up his abode with the Brandon's Paul was late to breakfast. He lingered on purpose, that he might have the privilege of breakfasting with the family, and perhaps of having his coffee poured by Belle. But his little plan failed, for it was always Alice who poured his coffee, and Alice who placed the delicious toast, poached eggs and hot cakes so temptingly before him. Belle seldom appeared at the breakfast table so early, and when she did set there was too intent upon getting her own wants supplied to think of ministering to others.

"Did you leave some toast in the oven to keep warm for Belle?" asked Mrs. Brandon of Alice, in a low tone, as the family were about to leave the breakfast table one morning, after Paul had been there about a week.

"What is the matter with Belle that she can not eat breakfast with us more than one morning in seven?" asked Mr. Bandon of his wife, for he had heard the question she addressed to Alice, though it had not been intended for his ears.

"She was busy with her music and painting until a late hour last evening," answered Mrs. Brandon, trying hard to apologize for her daughter's tardiness.

"Music and painting!" sneeringly replied Mr. Brandon. "I think it is about time Belle busied herself with something of some account. I am very much displeased with the way our daughter's education has turned out. It was just so much time and money thrown away. She thinks she is a fine musician; but I would rather hear one sweet home song, such as Alice sang last evening, than all the Mikado trash she could play in a year, and as for painting, I'd like to know what good there is in daubing posies on every little rag there is around the house. Yesterday I saw her covering a little dust-pan with something, and I suppose she intends to paint a daisy on it. May-be I will get it for a Christmas present. If she would get out here in this kitchen and use a dust-pan as it should be used, I would be better pleased."

"Belle has no natural liking for housework," replied Mrs. Brandon, "and I do not think it advisable to force one's children to do work that is distasteful to them."

"Neither do I think it advisable for a daughter to spend her time in idleness and tomfoolery while her mother toils and drudges every day of her life, and I hope you will see, after this, that Belle performs a share of this work," answered Mr. B., very decidedly.

Mrs. B. was evidently much annoyed at such an exposure of Belle's faults in the presence of others, especially Paul Raymond, but it could not be helped, for Mr. Brandon was a man who always spoke his mind very freely, upon every occasion, regardless of the consequences. Paul excused himself from the table as soon he he could, for he felt very much out of sorts with himself and every body else. He was provoked at himself for having been late to breakfast, and thus compelled to listen to a family discord, and he felt almost angry with Mr. Brandon for having, as he believed, so unjustly censured Belle. He could not, or would not, believe that Belle was so indolent and selfish as her father evidently thought her to be.

Mrs. Brandon was a very hard-working woman. She said she had always worked hard, and expected she would always have to, but she hoped that her children might have lighter burdens to carry. Like many another mistaken mother, she toiled early and late, never asking Belle to assist her with any of the work, but allowing her to devote all her time to books, music, fancy work, visiting, etc. The result was Belle grew to womanhood without acquiring any knowledge whatever of housekeeping, and, instead of being the help to her mother that she ought to have been, she looked with contempt upon "Cookology," as she jestingly called her mother's work, and seemed to regard it as a sort of degradation. She said she thought familiarity with pots, kettles and such greasy commodities was destructive of refinement, besides being so ruinous to one's hands; and one day, when her father, who never sympathized with her erroneous notions, chided her for not helping her mother, she carelessly replied: "I do think there might be one lady in the Brandon family who can do something besides wash dishes. All that I have ever seen of them seemed to have no ambition outside of their kitchens and dining-rooms." And so the foolish girl thought herself a lady superior to the patient mother, who toiled on from day to day, adding so much to the comfort and happiness of those around her. But "all work and no play" not only produces dullness, as in the case of Jack of old, but it will eventually wear out the strongest constitution. Mrs. Brandon had been slightly indisposed for some time, and one morning was taken suddenly worse immediately after breakfast. A physician was summoned, who said her illness was caused by over-work, and that a rest of at least six weeks would be necessary to restore her to health. Mr. Brandon was greatly perplexed. He knew not what to do. Dinner time was coming, his wife sick in bed, and Alice out of town spending her Christmas vacation. He appealed to Belle for help, but she said she would as soon think of flying to the moon as of preparing dinner for those men. Disgusted with Belle's reply, Mr. Brandon notified his boarders that, owing to his wife's illness and his daughter's incompetence, he could not furnish dinner, but would have every thing in order by supper time. He then sent a team to bring Alice home, and returned to his sick wife, feeling, as he afterwards expressed it, a deeper sense of humiliation than he had ever felt before. The thought that his only daughter, a full-grown woman, could not help him in such an emergency was very mortifying.

Alice came back soon after noon, and soon had the household machinery in motion again, and when the boarders came at six o'clock the savory odors of a well-cooked supper welcomed them.

"How very unfortunate it was for mamma to get sick while Alice was away," said Belle to Paul, as they were all seated at the supper table. "I think we will get along nicely now, though, for Alice seems to be perfectly at home in the kitchen. I tell her she ought to give up her music and confine herself strictly to housework, for she would be so successful there."

That was perhaps the most unlucky speech Belle Brandon ever made. Paul had felt his infatuation for her steadily declining for some time, and now her thoughtless words, together with the loss of his dinner, well nigh completed the work. As he compared the stylishly-dressed young lady at the table, who seemed to be of no use in the world, with the modest little figure in the neat blue calico dress, flitting about, dishing up the viands that her own hands had prepared, the comparison seemed all in favor of Alice.

When Mrs. Raymond had been home two weeks, she said to her husband, as they sat alone in the library one evening, that she believed her little scheme had proven successful, for she had noticed that Paul did not take Belle riding any more. Mr. Raymond, who had been taken into his wife's confidence, smiled significantly, and said he guessed the young man was on the right track now.

The winter months slipped quickly away, and when the violets and crocuses gladdened the earth again, Paul's cottage was remodeled and beautifully furnished. Then there was a quiet wedding, a short tour and Paul Raymond and his wife settled down in their elegant home. Mrs. Raymond was well pleased with Paul's choice of a wife, for Alice is a lady of culture and refinement as well as a model housekeeper. Paul is proud of inviting his young friends home to dine, for he knows by past experience that there is a skillful hand at the helm.—Laura Gibbons, in Ladies' Home Journal.

SOME QUEER REQUESTS.

How Rural Constituents Make Use of Their Congressmen.

The queer requests that are received by members of Congress from their constituents are innumerable, writes a Washington correspondent. The other day a Western member had a letter from a rural supporter, who wrote that he had seen in the newspapers that hay was selling at a very high price at Washington, and that he had shipped a car load to the Congressman's address, and hoped he would be able to dispose of it profitably and remit him the proceeds. The member read the letter to several others sitting around him with much amusement, not unmixed with annoyance and dismay. His feelings underwent an agreeable change, however, when one of the listeners said, quietly: "I have several horses here, and my coachman told me this morning that the hay is about used up. I'll take two tons of the car load." "I'll take a ton of it," said another, and so the word passed around, and inside of ten minutes the entire car load was sold. The member, with much satisfaction, remitted to his thrifty constituent thirty dollars more than the latter had expected.

Another member received a letter from a constituent which ran in this way:

"Dere Sur: Sum time ago I cent sum chickns to Messers. — & —, comishun men, No. — — street, Washington, and they hev nut sent me iny munny, and I wish of it ain't asking tu much as how u would kollect and farard keepin out onuf tu pay ecpenses for collecksh un, pleas du this ez sun es u kin es I am hard up."

Of course the member made the "collecksh un" and didn't charge any thing for expenses.

Constituents of Congressmen in every part of the country ought to make much more use of their Representatives in this way than they do. It is part of the duty of a Representative to sell hay, butter and eggs for his supporters and make "collecksh uns."

It is to be hoped that the above examples of the kind and successful attention awarded to such requests will result in a widespread employment of our National law-makers in these practical, honest and very useful channels.

A Nihilistic Speech.

"I wish it would stop raining," remarked a St. Petersburg gentleman the other day, after a week's storm, and a detective promptly arrested him for referring to the Czar as "it."

Harper's Bazar.

ILLUSTRATED.

HARPER'S BAZAR will continue to maintain its reputation as an unqualified family journal. Its art illustrations are of the highest order, its literature is of the choicest kind, and its Fashion and Household departments of the most practical and economical character. Its pattern-sheet supplements and fashion-plates alone will save its readers ten times the cost of subscription, and its articles on decorative art, social etiquette, house-keeping, cookery, etc., make it indispensable to every household. Its bright short stories, and timely essays, are among the best published; and not a line is admitted to its columns that could offend the most fastidious taste. Among the attractions of the new volume will be serial stories by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, Mrs. Alexander, William Black, and Thomas Hardy, and a series of papers on nursery management by Mrs. Christine Terhune Herrick.

A pleasure party of about forty, ladies and gentlemen, took a trip up to the hatchery, on the str. Fairy Queen, this afternoon, and inspected the cribbing on the Southern Railway, returning about 5 o'clock.

As will be seen by advertisement elsewhere, Messrs. Corbett & Kennedy have started business in this city as tinsmiths, &c. Both being well known here as careful and efficient workmen the new firm will doubtless obtain at least a share of the trade.

There is a movement on foot among the Hebrew population to erect a synagogue in the city. It has not yet assumed any definite shape, but the probabilities are that in the course of two or three months a site will have been purchased and a building started on.—News-Advertiser.

Mr. Henry Abbott, superintendent of the Pacific Division of the Canadian Pacific Railway, yesterday awarded the contract for the construction of the piers and approaches of the Mission bridge to Mr. D. McGillivray. The time set for the completion of the work is the 1st of June next.—News-Advertiser.

The tax on dogs this year will be $2 50, and on bitches $5.00. These rates are out of all reason and are higher than in any other city on the continent. There are many people who find it necessary to keep dogs, but are really unable to pay such a high tax. Let the finance committee make the tax reasonable and there will be no grumbling.

The str. Fairy Queen will commence Monday next making trips to the North Arm, leaving Austin's wharf at 8 a.m. on Mondays, Tuesdays, Fridays and Saturdays, and returning each day mentioned. This will prove a great convenience to the people of the North Arm particularly, and will no doubt be appreciated by the travelling public. See advertisement.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

The Ice Crop.

Notwithstanding the failure of the ice crop on the Eraser River this year, the ice and fish dealers have laid in a sufficient supply to meet all wants till the cold weather comes again. The Canadian Pacific Railway has also laid in a considerable supply. Hotels and saloons were not able to procure the usual supply and will have to depend on the dealers. All the ice in stock comes from Ashcroft, Kamloops and Donald. The indications are that the price will be very stiff.

The Mysterious Stranger.

The Port Townsend Argus has received a communication from a resident of Victoria in which it is stated that the boat is a new steel steam yacht owned by a captain whose name the Argus is not at liberty to divulge; that she makes eight miles an hour instead of fourteen as reported, and that when Capt. Roberts of the Olympian saw her last week she was returning from a trip to Port Wilson, where she landed 12 Chinamen that had left Victoria the night before.

The Northern Pacific Coming.

It is now pretty generally understood that stockholders of the Northern Pacific have purchased all but a one-tenth interest in the Bellingham Bay & Westminster railroad. Messrs. King, Dickinson and Charlton, of the Northern Pacific company, have been in the city for some days. The transfer is believed to signify that the line to New Westminster will be quickly completed and a connection with the Northern Pacific at Tacoma commenced without delay.—Whatcom Democrat.

Seattle's Sewerage.

Col. Geo. E. Waring, of Newport, has submitted an elaborate report to Seattle on a sewerage system for that city. The estimated cost of constructing the system according to the plans and specifications submitted with the report is $274,063,64, to which may be added $29,715.46, making a total of $324,679.09. The area over which the sewers have been extended is very large, yet it does not cover all the area of the city. The sewers are to be built of vitrified pipe, the main sewers to be built of brick, and carried 1,000 feet into the harbor by means of iron pipes.

Mushroom Culture.

It is reported that a certain gentleman who has a farm in a pine forest near Victoria will start a mushroom culture on his property. This is good news, for mushroom culture in British Columbia is as yet unknown. There is nothing uncertain about it, and skilled labor is not necessary to make it successful. The chief labor in connection with it is in preparing the manure and building the beds, and that is a matter requiring but little time. Nearly all the labor for the next ten weeks consists in maintaining an even temperature. We hope that this new industry will be developed on the Island during the coming summer.—Standard.

Base Ingratitude.

When the Olympian arrived at Seattle on Tuesday, one of the Victoria passengers, an elderly man, lost his balance while walking along the gang plank and fell overboard. Several ropes where thrown to the man, but he did not seem to be able to catch hold of them. Just as he was about to sink the third time Andrew Hennessey, quartermaster of the Olympian, without waiting to divest himself of his clothing, sprang into the water and succeeded in rescuing the drowning man. No sooner had the man been landed on the dock when he strode rapidly away from the scene without even thanking his brave rescurer. Mr. Hennessey in saving the ingrate's life destroyed his watch and a good suit of clothes. The name of the rescued man could not ascertained.—Colonist.

Y.M.C.A. Meetings.

On Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock there will be a gospel meeting for men in the Opera House, under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. The services will be conducted by Mr. Teague, secretary of the Victoria association.

A mass meeting will be held in the Opera House at 8:15 o'clock on Sunday evening. A programme of sacred music will be rendered and addresses will be delivered by Mr. Noel H. Jacks, travelling secretary, Y.M.C.A., Mr. F. W. Teague, of Victoria, Mr. G. A. Charnock, of Vancouver, and Mr. C. A. Davie.

Business Change.

The negotiations which have been going on for some time past between the well-known firms of D. Drysdale & Co. and Ogle, Campbell & Co., have been completed, and it is now publicly announced that the latter firm has bought out the stock and good will of the former. As everyone knows, the stock in Drysdale & Co.'s is new and well chosen, and together with the incoming stock, which was personally selected by Mr. Drysdale and Mr. Campbell, in the eastern market, will place the new firm in a position to display the finest assortment of dry goods in the province. Messrs. Ogle, Campbell and Co. have admitted into partnership Mr. Ralph Freeman, who has been in the employ of the old firm for three years. The new store, which will be confined strictly to the dry goods trade, will be known by the title of Ogle, Campbell & Freeman. There will be no change in the old store.

PERSONAL.

G. E. Corbould returned home to-day.

J. W. Harvey returned home to-day from the capital.

Arthur E. Rand arrived from Victoria to-day, via Vancouver.

C. A. Davie, new Y. M. C. A. secretary, arrived from Vancouver to-day.

Mrs. A. J. McColl & Mrs. Barlow have returned from a short stay at the Brighton Hotel, Hastings.

Jno. C. Whyte, of Messrs. F. G. Strickland & Co., leaves for the east on a business trip to-morrow.

Miss Innes, daughter of Capt. Innes, of the navy yard, Esquimalt, is the guest of Mrs. Sillitoe at St. Mary's Mount.

Rev. C. Croucher, Bishop's chaplain, has been granted leave of absence for several weeks, on account of ill health, and left yesterday for San Francisco.

Mainland vs. Island.

The great football match, Mainland vs. Island took place this afternoon at Hastings on the grounds of Mr. Geo. Black. Special trains were run by the C. P. R. from Vancouver, bringing a large number of people, while a great many more found their way to the scene of the match in carriages or horseback and on foot. New Westminster was well represented, as was also the fair sex. The weather looked threatening from the start, and rain fell throughout the progress of the match. At 3:30 o'clock the play was called and the teams ranged up as follows:

Island: C V Hugonin, W Fisher, W Allison, A Hibben, L Crease, W Ward; from Cowichan: J Musgrave, R C de Mauritz and W Forrest; from Nanaimo: J H Hawthornthwaite, Havalocque, and four others.

Mainland: R P Woodward, back; J. Elwood, F A Nicholls and A B Williams, three-fourths back; C E Woodward and E A Greame, half backs; A St G Hammersley (captain), R E Lister, J Malcom, G McL Brown, R M Fripp, W J Hutchins, F Robertson, R Dawson and J A Benwell, forwards.

The mainland played well and had the advantage from the start. After twenty minutes' play, Johnson, for the mainland, got a touch-down, tried for the goal, and missed The advantage was with the mainland for the first half. After five minutes play in the second half of the game another touchdown was secured for the mainland, and a few minutes later another. Both tries missed.

Greame made the best play on the mainland team. Nicholls, one of the best men on the mainland team, got his collar bone and shoulder blade broken, and the mainland had to finish the game with one man short.

The match was finished about 5 o'clock, the mainland winning by two tries to nothing. On account of the rain, the ground was slippery and playing difficult.

The Strike at an End.

The strike on the O. R. & N. Company's lines has come to a speedy end. Yesterday morning the steamer North Pacific arrived from the Sound, bearing the good news that all hands had returned to work, the company agreeing to continue to pay the old rate of wages. The pay of those upon whom the cut was made was as follows: captains, $100, $125 and $150 per month, varying according to the length of service and size of steamer commanded; first offibers, $60 to $75; pursers, $60: chief-engineers, $100 to $125; second engineers, $60 to $75; stewards, $60. In all cases in addition to the wages the officers received board and lodging. Some of the employees state that the reduction was made without the usual warning, and that the pay already was 20 per cent. less than the scale paid on the same class of boats running out of San Francisco. The men have shown their good sense in returning to work as they did, and the general public is no doubt well pleased that the trouble had so speedy an end.—Friday's Colonist.

Eugene Canfield's Road.

President Eugene Canfield, of the Bellingham Bay Railroad & Navigation Company, is back from Whatcom, where he has been for two weeks past. Mr. Canfield says the people of Whatcom have raised $40,000 of the $50,000 subsidy for this road, and that the remainder, $10,000, will soon be forthcoming. The specifications for the Nooksack river will soon be ready, and they will be sent to Washington to receive the approval of the war department. As soon as this is done, the bridge will be built.

Kingsboro, the new townsite promises to be quite a town. It is situated nearly midway between Bellingham Bay and the international boundary. The Nooksack river, above and below Kingsboro, Mr. Canfield says is navigable many miles. This fact, together with its railway facilities, will make it an important place. It is confidently expected that the bridge will be finished and the railroad built and running through Nooksack between New Westminster and Bellingham Bay by the 1st of September.—Post. Intelligence.

How to Cure Headache.—Some people suffer untold misery day after day with Headache. There is rest neither day or night until the nerves are all unstrung. The cause is generally a disordered stomach, and a cure can be effected by using Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, containing Mandrake and Dandelion. Mr. Finlay Wark, Lysander, P. Q., writes: "I find Parmelee's Pills a first-class article for Bilious Headache."
