Daily British Columbian

Monday Evening, Jan. 21, 1889.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

It has been said of Mr. George W. Childs, the publisher of the Philadelphia Ledger, that he is "the two Cheeryble brothers rolled into one," and from recent developments it would seem that the benevolent editor fully deserves the title. On Christmas day he made numerous presents, and distributed among the Ledger employes alone nearly $40-000.

The S. F. Bulletin says: The Provincial Secretary of British Columbia takes no stock in the story that a million Chinaman are to be imported into Canada. He thinks the United States would consider it a hostile act, and he is dead right about that. Canada could have no possible use or opening for 1 per cent of such an immigration and would only be the base for the invasion of this country. Such a condition of affairs would justify annexation by conquest in self-defense.

One who has known Gen. Boulanger in his private life says:—"The jeune et beau General is in reality neither jeune nor beau, but a worn-out old fellow of 56, who has his grey hair and beard carefully dyed dark brown, and who uses perfumes and pomades like any coquette. At home he is often in bed for days together, with feet bandaged and body wrapped up in ten layers of flannel, in order to get rid of his gout. And when he appears in the street he minces his steps like a youth of 18 who wears his top hat for the first time."

According to American Notes and Queries, "in one of the cellars of the Raths keller at Breman, there are twelve large cases of wine, each case containing the celebrated Rosenwein which was deposited there in 1624. One case of this wine, containing two hundred and four bottles, cost five hundred rix dollars at that time. Taking all expenses into account and compounding the interest, a single glass, one-eighth of a bottle, would cost about $300,000, or about $300 a drop. It must have been an "injunctor" that did the above figuring.

Says an exchange: Professor Schurman, the distinguished Canadian, who fills an important chair in Cornell University, has been invited different cities of the United States. In accepting a splendid post in the educational world of the neighboring country, Professor Schurman has not abandoned his principles as a loyal British subject. He may, consequently, be depended upon to give a good account of his country to foreign audiences. It does seem unfortunate that men of the ability of Schurman, Osler and many others, should have to look abroad for proper recognition of their attainments.

The London World says: The Emperor of Russia has decorated several French authors, and has thereby offended the Germans, some of whose principal writers would also have been decorated, no doubt, but for the fact that neither the Emperor nor the Empress ever reads German. His Majesty's favorite authors are Dumas pere, Balzac, Paul de Kock, and Edmund About; while the Empress likes Prosper Merimee, Victor Hugo, and Octave Feuillet; and she also reads many English works, preferring those of Dickens, Scott, Marryat, Thackeray, and Wilkie Collins. They are both particularly fond of Lever's novels, and "Ten Thousand a Year" and "Valentine Vox" are constantly taken up by them, and "Vivian Grey," and "Henrietta Temple" are also favorites.

A bright detective in Macon Georgia, says the Macon News, captured a burglar in a very clever manner. A store in Hazelhurst had been robbed, and there was seemingly not the slightes clue to work upon. While examining the premises the detective noticed an apple, out of which two bites had been taken. His professional instinct caused him to examine the apple, and he saw upon it tooth marks that were not only irregular, but peculiar, and he resolved to find the man who had bitten that apple. He visited a store in the neighboring village where he knew there was a number of loafing negroes. Among the number there was a real negro dude, and his manner and conversation convinced the detective that he had found the man he wanted, but it was necessary to put him to the test. Syping some apples in the store the wily detective purchased a dime's worth and treated the crowd. The dude negro had taken just one bite, and as he was raising the apple for another away went the apple and his two wrists were joined with a shining pair of bracelets. It was done so quickly that the negro stood as if paralyzed and submitted to be led off without resistance. He subsequently owned up to the entire affair.

GERMANY WARNED BY ENGLAND.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Lord Salisbury, on account of certain high-handed proceedings of the Germans in East Africa, has warned Prince Bismarck not to permit interference with the Sultan of Zanzibar.

LADY ALDERMEN.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The women suffrage state committee have advices that about two million women were registered at the elections for new councils last week in England, Scotland and Wales. Many rich, titled and influential ladies, headed by the Countess of Landhurst, have banded to aid Miss Jane Cobden and others in holding seats to which they have been elected in council. Lady Landhurst is practically sure, it is asserted, to be made alderman of London.

A SILLY TRUST.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—A special to the Herald from Manistee Mich, says the meeting of the Michigan salt association of East Saginaw has been conducted behind closed doors and with great secrecy. The fact is the salt men are engaged in forming a stupendous trust which is to include all salt makers of the world.

KILLED FOR $28.

TOSON, Mont., Jan. 21.—John P. Freeman, who came from New York 2 years ago, shot and killed Robert Hassfelar yesterday at Radersburg in a quarrel over a debt of $28

THE MAHDI DEFEATED.

SUAKIM, Jan. 21.—Refugees from South of Berber report that Mahdists have suffered a severe defeat on the white Nile, toward Wadelai, at the hands of regular troops, presumably Emin's followers.

WON'T VISIT ROME

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Gladstone has informed the correspondent of the Daily News at Naples, that he finds the air of Naples so invigorating that he has resolved to remain in that vicinity to the end of his stay abroad, without visiting Rome.

RASCALLY SOCIALISTS.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Mass meeting of "unemployes" was held last night at Turner Hall, Prof. Gartside spoke. He said there are six men out employment. He attributed it to the present system of society and the only solution he saw was in socialism. The men have to pay taxes, he said, and the city should found public works where men could find employment. He finally said: "The red flag of socialistic A revolution in public opinion will soon occur. Prof. Gartside was succeeded by Dr. H. Kleinath, the originator and manager of the anarchistic schools. He denounced the police and made a rabid speech recalling memory of the "five martyrs" and expressed the hope that they would be avenged. A "workingmen's educational society" was organized and it was concluded to arrange a socialistic library under its auspices.

THREE THOUSAND DESERTERS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The brig Bradshaw from the West Indies reports that General Paul, of Legitime's army, has deserted with 3000 men to Hippolyte.

THE LAWLESS SOUTH.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—A special to the Tribune from New Orleans says: "The regulators have been at work in different parts of the state during the last week, but have generally found a disposition on the part of the authorities to check their schemes. Colored as well as white men are implicated. At Homer, in Clarborne parish, James and Ezekiel Smith, two young white men were lodged in jail charged with the murder of a negro woman. It seems that the parties went to the negro's house for the purpose of whipping him and for some reason shot into the house and killed a woman. The supposition is that they intended to kill the man. On Wednesday night a colored man, Wm. Edridge, was killed near a garden. There appears to have been a conspiracy formed, to which several colored men were parties, to put Eldridge out of the way and he was decoyed out of his house and shot down. Four, men all colored, have been arrested and are now in jail. Several colored laborers have recently been ordered off the ninth ward of the parish of Batson Range by irresponsible parties. A meeting of the leading planters was held here on Saturday to put a summary end to this lawlessness."

AN EASTERN STORM.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—All the police wires and many telephone and electric light wires in this city were broken by the storm last night. Telegraph communication with all parts of the country is more or less interfered with.

A WEAK BRIDGE.

EVANSVILLE, Jan. 21.—Details were received in this city to night of a railroad bridge accident at Spottsville, Ky., on Green river, in which four people lost their lives. The bridge, which has just been completed for the Louisville, St. Louis and Texas railway, was of the drawn pattern. Owing to some difficulty between the railroad company and the contractors the latter secured an injunction yesterday which prohibited the railroad from using the bridge and proceeded to remove all of the latter's rails, ties and other property from the bridge, which, it is claimed, weakened it to such an extent that it caved in to day about one o'clock There were about 25 people on the bridge at the time. It is definitely known that four of them were precipitated into the waters and drowned. The bridge in its fall came very near crushing the str. General Dawes, which was just steaming out from Spottsville.

FINE THEATRE BURNED.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 21.—The Grand opera house, the oldest and finest theatre in the northwest, was burned this morning. Probable loss, $250,000; covered by insurance. It is believed the costumes of Helen Barry, the English actress, are all consumed. The total loss is now estimated at $250,-000; insurance $50,000. Helen Barry lost neither baggage nor wardrobe. effects were not taken to the building on account of religious services at the opera house yesterday.

FROZEN TO DEATH.

ST. ANDREWS, N.B., Jan. 21.—Yesterday morning early, John McCloskey, an old man, was found frozen to death on the roadside, near Milledgeville. It is believed he was overcome by liquor and lay down on the road and perished.

AUTHOR DEAD.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Jno. Goghan, author of "Lancashire Witches" died yesterday, aged 74.

SCOUNDREL LOCATED.

SARNIA, Jan. 21.—F. L. Bickhart, who keeps an exchange bank in Oshada, Mich., and who absconded in December last with $8,000, the proceeds of several bogus drafts and customers' deposits, was located here on Saturday night and the officials of the Commercial bank of Bay City, Mich., which was a loser by his operations to the extent of $2,000 communicated with.

ARRESTED IN SCOTLAND.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Sheehy, M. P., for South Galway, was arrested to-day on charges under the crimes act and hurried off for shipment to Ireland for trial. This is the first arrest on Scotch soil for political offences committed in Ireland, and Scotch liberals are highly indignant.

ON HAND IF WANTED.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—Prince Victor Napoleon has taken residence at Turcoing near the French frontier to be on hand if wanted after the election on Sunday next.

NEW TELEGRAPH CONNECTION.

OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—The Commercial Cable Co., of New York, better known as the Mackay-Bennett company, has decided to form connection through Canadian territory with the company's cable. O'Heart and Soper, electricians, of this city, have secured the contract for the work. At present the Mackay-Bennett cable lands at Cape Canso, the extreme eastern point of Nova Scotia, and thence is connected by shorter cables with Coney Island. The proposed Canadian line will begin at Canso and pass through Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, connecting with the C. P. Telegraph system. The lines are especially to be made to secure a permanent and steady service. The electric conductor to be used being larger than any hitherto erected in this country. Arrangements have been completed for beginning the work early in the spring and completing connections by August.

FAILED TO WORK.

DUBLIN, Jan. 21.—The judges before whom Edward Harrington, M. P., sentenced to six months imprisonment, was brought on a writ of Habeas Corpus, have refused to order his release finding the allegations of technical informality, on which the discharge was applied for, insufficient.

DROWNED.

NAPANEE, Jan. 21.—Albert Dafoe, aged 20, was drowned while attempting to cross Navy Bay on the ice.

DROWNED WHILE SKATING.

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 21.—Lewis Burtch, aged 14, was drowned while skating.

ROBBED OF $5,000.

ST. ANDREWS, N. B., Jan. 21.—The residence of F. G. Campbell, postmaster, was entered Wednesday and robbed of $5,000. Officers searched the premises of C. R. Reynolds, father of Campbell's servant and found the money concealed in an out house. The father and daughter have been committed for trial.

A GODLESS ORGANIZATION

MONTREAL, Jan. 21.—Rev. Father Dowd, chief pastor of the Irish Catholics, in a sermon yesterday condemned the Catholic Order of Foresters, a branch of which is sought to be established here, as a godless organization and hostile to the interests of the church. The members of St. Patrick's church were forbidden to join the society under pain of censure.

A VETERAN DEAD.

HALIFAX, Jan. 21.—Daniel Wilson died on Saturday night aged 60. His father fought at Waterloo. The son entered the royal artillery and afterwards the 11th Hussars. He went through Balaclava and the Indian mutiny; being present at Cawnpore and Lucknow. He was paymaster-sergeant of the Princess Louise Fusileers and went through the northwest rebellion.

LATE DESPATCHES.

KILLED HER BABE AND HERSELF.

SUSQUEHANNA, Pa., Jan. 16.—At Sunshine, Mrs. John Greer killed her baby and then committed suicide. She left a note stating that she loved her husband dearly and requesting to be buried in the same coffin with the babe. No cause is assigned.

A DYNAMITE PLOT.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 16.—Referring to the dynamite plot story published in the New York Herald to-day advices from Kansas City are to the effect received a telegram from the Herald asking on December 22 Chief of Police Speers if Mark Kilbourne, representative of that paper, had been killed in an accident. Nothing is known of Kilbourne, nor has anything been heard until to-day, when a note was left at the business office of the Star purporting to be from Kilbourne, stating that he is alive and well and has been in Colorado on a secret mission, which will soon be made public. The Pinkerton and Mooney & Boland detective agencies protest ignorance of the Herald's reported plot and deny that any English detectives have been here or have Pinkertons been engaged in any such business.

THE RACE WAR.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 17.—The Times Democrat special from Jackson, Miss., says private information has been received by Governor Lowry that mob law continues to exist in the southern part of Noxubee and the northern part of Kemper county, and that negro cabins are being burned and destroyed. The present lawlessness grew out of the Wahalak troubles. The governor is informed that the avengers are still wreaking vengeance on negroes. Governor Lowry wrote to the sheriff to call out a sufficient force to put down the lawlessness and arrest all guilty persons promptly. Over forty negro families have been run out of the two counties and their cabins burned.

FROM VICTORIA.

A Chinawoman Murdered on the Lillooet River. Another Sealer Leaves for the South.

[Special to The Columbian.]

VICTORIA, Jan. 21.—The steamer Idaho, from Alaska, brings news of the discovery, at Ship Creek, seven miles from Juneau, of a rich silver mine which assays over two thousand dollars to the ton. The schr. Walter L. Rich left for the southern sealing grounds this afternoon.

The new civic rulers were sworn in this morning.

The loss by last night's fire is about five hundred dollars.

A rumor is in circulation that a Chinawomen at Lillooet River has been murdered by Chinamen. One man was arrested on suspicion. It is believed others connected with the crime, are in this city.

LATE CANADIAN NEWS.

In the Quebec assembly a vote taken on district magistrates' bill showed 29 for and 16 against, a majority for the government of 13 Mr. Mercier has now a majority of three in the legislative council.

It is reported around Minnedosa that Mr. A. L. Smith, book-keeper for J. D. Gillis & Co., has skipped with about $20,000 of the firm's funds, mostly in cash, which the Keewatin Mills sent up to pay for grain.

The postoffice department has issued a circular to all postmasters in Canada, specifying the conditions upon which parcels may be mailed at any Canadian postoffice addressed to any postoffice in the United States or Newfoundland.

Nova Scotia is sending to Ottawa a formidable deputation to protest against the Canadian Pacific's neglect to carry out its promise to build a line of railway from Harvey to Salisbury in order to give the province the benefit of a new short line through Maine.

It is rumored that the proposed building of a railway from a certain point on the Ottawa direct to Quebec, and to complete the communication between Quebec and Jasper is part of the scheme of the Northern Pacific Railway to control an independent line from the west via Sault St. Marie.

Sir John, speaking Friday at Ottawa, said the report published in certain papers that he had promised manhood suffrage to a deputation from the Dominion trade congress, was not correct. Any amendments to the Franchise Act at the coming session would not alter or extend the franchise in the least.

An alleged order issued by the American customs authorities instructing the collector at Detroit to collect duty on all Canadian cars entering Canada at that place, is causing some stir at Ottawa among railway men and members of the government. Hon. Mr. Bowell, minister of customs, does not credit the report but has wired for particulars

In the Montreal government Hon. A. S. Hardy was Tuesday afternoon sworn in as commissioner of Crown lands, and J. M. Gibson, M. P. P., of Hamilton, was sworn in as provincial secretary. Hon. Mr. Pardee was sworn in as commissioner of Crown lands to resign, to retire on account of ill health. The promotion of Mr. Gibson to a cabinet portfolio is a most popular one.

The "Ottawa liar" is at it again, his latest being the crowning achievement of his career. He sent a sensational despatch to the New York Graphic, stating that Sir John Macdonald and all the members of the Dominion parliament had been invited to take a free excursion through the United States at the expense of American capitalists, who are seeking a new method to bring about unrestricted reciprocity.

B. C. Provincial Exposition Subscription Fund.

For the purpose of raising a fund to contribute towards the patriotic and worthy object of making the next annual provincial fair, to be held in this city, a grand and unprecedented success, the undersigned agree to contribute the sums opposite their respective names (to be paid into the association or to trustees competent to receive the same, on or before 6 months from the date of the last provincial exhibition, and to be applied to preparing exhibition grounds and buildings in the city, for increasing the amount offered in prizes, and for furthering the exhibition in other ways):

ROCK CREEK MINES

Pan Out 71 Ounces of Gold to the Ton. Forty Miners Wintering on the Creek and All Sanguine. A House Gutted by Fire.

From our Victoria Representative.

VICTORIA, Jan. 20.—J. R. Tait, a former Victorian, but now owner of the "Carbonabe" claim at Rock Creek, arrived in the city last night via the Sound. Mr. Tait was interviewed to-night by THE COLUMBIAN representative and stated he came out via Ruby City, Nooksack Valley and Whatcom. There was about twelve of snow, over which he travelled on snow shoes. Mr. Tait says the mining outlook on Rock Creek is very promising. About forty miners are wintering there and all are sanguine. He has shipped a thousand pounds of ore to San Francisco via Sicamous to have a practical assay made; also four hundred pounds to Butte, Mont. This ore assays about seventy-one ounces of gold to the ton.

A fire broke out last night at eleven o'clock in a small cottage on Johnson street, between Blanchard and Quadra streets. The building, owned by Thos. Styles, was completely gutted. Owing to the rainy weather and the soaking condition of adjoining buildings, the fire was confined to the one building. The loss is small.

The Umatilla arrived from San Francisco at midnight.

Constable Moore "ran in" a couple of klootchmen in the small hours this morning. They had risen early to continue an adjourned dispute of Saturday night on the "Injunctors'" taxation figures, but waxed so noisy that the Southern Railway "sleepers" began to stir, and the excited disputants were safely Moored in the lock-up.

A dozen or more down-river gentlemen, who have votes in Westminster, arrived last evening by the str. Louise to watch to-day's election and cast their votes for the "People's Ticket." It is a matter well worthy of note that all non-resident voters of Westminster are strongly in favor of the Southern Railway and the bonus by-laws.

Small-Pox Ravages.

Mr. P. McTiernan, Indian agent, has returned from Bute Inlet, where he went, accompanied by Dr. McGuigan, to investigate the reported cases of small-pox. The reports turn out to be only too true, and Mr. McTiernan found that 24 deaths had occurred among the Indians previous to his arrival and that 29 persons are now afflicted with the disease. The Indians were instructed not to move about from one rancherie to another and all were vaccinated and supplied with food and disinfectants. The Seychell Indians were visited and the whole tribe vaccinated. There is now no doubt but the disease will remain with the Indians till it has run its course.

"Pioneer Days."

The Methodist Tabernacle, Hamilton street, was well filled Friday evening by an enthusiastic audience assembled to hear the Rev. E. Robson's lecture on "Pioneer Days in British Columbia." The reverend gentleman commenced his lecture with reminiscences of his experiences in Eastern Canada up to the time he began his mission work in British Columbia 30 years ago. He then launched forth into his subject, giving his experience when acting as Methodist minister at Victoria, and also when engaged in the Fraser River camps, Hope, Yale and other points. The lecture was replete with amusing and well told anecdotes, affording not only much laughter, but instructive as giving an historical resume of the last thirty years. It is to be hoped Mr. Robson will again come forward on some future occasion and give us some thing more in the same strain.—Vancouver World.

be in a better position financially; but there is no proper provision in the by-laws, and we must go on for fifty years paying the same taxes on the railway debentures. I need not say that, if elected, I will assist to carry out any measures that will benefit the city.

Mr. Shiles—"Why did the injunctors try to quash the by-laws?"

Mr. Lord—"They did not try to quash the by-laws; there was no such application."

Mayor Dickinson — "The papers served on the council stated that the action was brought to restrain the council from dealing with the debentures, and also to quash the workshops by-law." (Applause).

Mr. Shiles—"I would like Mr. Lord to explain that." (Applause).

Capt. Scoullar was called for and came forward amidst applause. He said:—"Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, this is the first time I have addressed a large audience, and I ask a fair hearing. You have read my address; that address has received considerable abuse, but I notice that nearly all the other candidates have adopted about the same platform. I have been in the town for some ten years, and have always been to the front in enterprises for the advancement of the city. I went in with other gentlemen and put money in the woollen mill at a time when it was represented to be languishing and Mr. Lundbom said to me that it was in danger of being taken to Victoria. We put $9,000 in it, and it is in a flourishing condition." Mr. Scoullar here referred to the extensive building operations he had engaged in in the city, and continued; "I am prepared if improvements are taxed to pay my taxes (applause). I am in favor of improvements of all kinds, but, of course not to rush faster than we can go at first. I consider that Westminster has the best position commercially of any city in the province. Speaking about taxation, our assessment as a city is ridiculously small; it injures the credit of our city. Business-men, seeing the small figure of our ratable property at the banks in the east and in London, think that Westminster is a village of about 800 inhabitants; I was told so by a gentleman from the east, who was surprised to see such a large and thriving place with such an absurdly small assessment. We should have an assessment really of at least $3,000,000. You know I have taken a prominent part in the railway; I have spent considerable money and a great deal of time. We had a hard time to get the necessary stock taken up to save the charter, and tried to get many of our citizens to take stock, among them, Joe Armstrong, that declined. If we had not succeeded, the city would have lost the charter, and I am surprised at the abuse that we have got from some of the citizens. If there is any citizen now that wants stock, we are ready to share it with him. I consider I am as good a business man as any going, and if elected I am going in for pushing the town ahead. I am not going in under false pretensions. (Applause).

Mr. Herring was called upon and said: "Like Capt. Scoullar, this is also my maiden speech before a public audience. I am independent; I belong to no party but that of honesty and right. I have had to stand alone, I am sorry to say, on the side of right, in the council, on some occasions. It is a base falsehood to say that I am opposed to the Southern Railway. Look at my interests here, and tell me if I can afford to be opposed to the railway. Mr. Scoullar talks about his buildings; I think I can point to a few buildings also. I built the opera house, as you all know. I would not have built it if I had not looked ahead and expected the city to advance as a result of the Southern Railway. I have never opposed the railway except on two occasions—when Sheefe & Co. attempted to secure the debentures, and when the trust committee was appointed. I was satisfied that the council had no right to appoint that committee. If they had taken my advice, it would have saved them some law expenses. If elected, I will give my honest and hearty support to the railway, which is the life of this city. I am in favor of all improvements that will help the city. We can lay the foundation of those that we may not be able to carry through. I ask you to elect me on Monday, and I will work in the best interests of the city. If not elected, I shall continue to do the same. (Applause).

Mr. Shiles—"If you are elected, will you vote yourself on three committees? Would you pursue the same course that you have in the past with regard to the folders?"

Mr. Herring—"The finance committee did the best they knew how in the matter of the folders."

Mr. Shiles—"When one gentleman offered $50 and another one $100 to advertise in the folder did you not object, and at the same time work in an advertisement of your own?"

Mr. Herring—"That is the first time I have heard it. Any man that tells you that he offered me any money to put an advertisement in the folder is a darned liar." (Sensation).

Mr. Wise was next called and spoke briefly: "I do not think it is necessary to go over what three or four have already gone over. If you elect me, my first step will be to get the railway carried through in the best possible way. (Applause). It is necessary that we should have water works and also sewerage. I will give my attention to the public park. I will always be willing to carry out everything to the best advantage so far as the finances will allow. I am in favor of the market and will go in for starting it. With regard to the present council, I do not approve of the way they have carried out a great many things, but I believe they have done the best they could. If you elect me I will see and have less law and more improvements. (Laughter and applause).

Mr. Thos. Cunningham was the next candidate called out, and he spoke as follows: "Mr. chairman and gentlemen, I am sorry I have to appear in a rather disabled condition. (In explanation, Mr. Cunningham appeared with his arm in a sling from a sore finger). It is rather unfortunate that I have had an accident. I have not been able to solicit a vote in this election. It was charged against me in THE COLUMBIAN that I was an unwilling candidate. While I would be if everything was running smoothly, I feel it is my duty to come out at this time and work for the city. THE COLUMBIAN correspondent stated that we wanted volunteers to serve the city. You don't always find that the volunteer who is so anxious to serve his neighbors is the very best man for a public position. He is very likely to have some ulterior motive. It is the hardest thing in the world to get honest men to touch politics. This business of writing anonymous communications is a bad one. The man that attacks his neighbor in this way is a scoundrel. I have lived fifty years and have never written an anonymous communication. There has been a good deal of shuffling here to-night. Some men have tried to make you believe that they are the most earnest advocates of the railway, but they did not put their names on the bond." (Applause). Mr. Cunningham then started to take up the injunctors' pamphlet, but Mr. Curtis said he would do that later on. Mr. Cunningham: "I want to get a slap at these injunctors, but I will leave it to Mr. Curtis. My record is clear on the Southern railway scheme. For five years I have been working on that railway scheme. I do not regret it. I do regret that some misguided men (laughter) are throwing obstacles in the way. We must make the city an attractive place for people to live in. Victoria has profitted much from such a policy and we can learn a lesson from her. The time is not far distant when we shall export lumber, fish and fruit in great quantities, and all experience goes to show that success in exporting products must depend upon competing routes. We must have competing lines, if we are to reach the markets of the world—if it does cost something. (Great applause). Don't be frightened about this fifty years business; there's nothing in it; you can't eat your cake and keep it too. Now I can calculate this way. A roast of beef is a good thing for dinner. I buy a roast of beef, which costs me $2. In fifty years, at compound interest, that beef will cost $1100! (Laughter). I could have bought 10 cents worth of corn meal and filled my stomach, but I prefer the roast beef, because it's just what I want. It furnishes me with strength; it braces me up; it helps me to raise a family. (Uproarious laughter, and long continued). Don't lose sight of the fact that the injunctors tried their very best to quash the by-laws. When they say they are in favor of the railway you can meet them with this." Mr. Cunningham here made a calculation to show that the injunctors had spent more on the proceedings than, if carried out for fifty years, would build the railway, and elicited much laughter and applause. Mr. Cunningham continued at considerable length, but we are forced to condense. He was in favor of making this the agricultural centre of the mainland, and was sound on street improvements, sewerage and other questions.

Mr. Ovens was loudly called and applauded, and said: "Mr. Mayor and gentlemen, I think there is very little left for me to say. You have read my address; that is my platform and I stand by it. As to whether I am sound on the railway, the citizens' bond will tell that; I am down on that bond for $1,000. (Applause). Progress is my motto. I am in favor of having water—(A voice—'Very little water will do you, Tom.'—immoderate laughter) works, and will do my best to obtain this and other necessary improvements. If elected, I will do all that my humble endeavors can accomplish for you."

Mr. Townsend was next called upon. He said: "I have not come prepared with a speech, but I can tell you that if you choose to elect me I will do my very best for the city. I am not awfully anxious to be elected, but it is time that some one took hold to see that all the money does not go into the hands of the lawyers. I do not know what you have had, as I came in late (a voice—'We have had plenty'—laughter). We want sidewalks and other things. I am going to do my best. If you elect me, I will do my very best to see that the funds are devoted to the best purposes. (Applause).

Mr. Reid was then called. "Make it short," exclaimed a voice from the audience. Mr. Reid said: "That is first what I am going to do. I am in favor of doing all I can for the railway. One of the first things that I will advocate is the preparing of exhibition and recreation grounds, and it wants to be done early—the first thing in the spring. (Applause.) Streets and sidewalks are the most important things that we want in this town today. I know dozens of men, young fellows, that would buy lots and build houses, if more streets were opened out. The market is a very important thing; the business men of this town have lost by not having a market before. We are naturally the centre of this district, and should not lose any of our advantages. I believe in encouraging manufacturing industries, as they help to build up a town. I am in favor of doing something to get a flouring mill here. Waterworks and sewers are very important matters. They will require careful consideration. I do not believe they can be taken up this year. It is a fact that we want waterworks and sewers, but we must not go too rash. If you elect me, I will do all I can to advance the interests of this town."

Mr. McPhaden came forward in answer to calls from the audience, and said: "I won't occupy your time to-night. I am solid on the railway question. (Applause). Furthermore, I am convinced that the water-works are of great importance and should be taken up immediately—the sewers later on. I think we should strain a point this year to get the exhibition grounds put in good shape. We may not have an opportunity very soon again to have the provincial exhibition here, and we should make it a grand success. (Applause). Streets and sidewalks are badly needed to bring the business portions of the town nearer to the business centre. If elected, I shall work to the best of my ability and judgment in the interests of the city. (Applause).

The mayor here read a note from Mr. Calbick, one of the candidates, regretting that he could not be at the meeting, on account of sickness in his family.

Mr. Curtis was recalled and said: "A pamphlet has been circulated by the 'Injunctors' in which are some wonderful figures, but these figures are not facts. Our good friend Mr. Lord would have it that they are correct and we cannot get round them, and though I confess to their correctness I will show you the absurdity of such figuring. (1). The writer of the pamphlet says there is no provision made for the redemption of the debentures, but I want to tell you that the redemption clause could not have been drawn any other way, and that as it stands the city has ample protection. (2). The writer of the pamphlet says the lawyers will tell you that the rate can be changed to suit the circumstances, and he goes on to say: 'The council has just as legal a right to change clause 1 as to change clauses 3, 4 and 5 of the bonus by-law, and if they have a right to change either they have a right to wipe them out altogether.'" Mr. Curtis here read a clause in the new charter showing wherein the council has a right to change the fixed rate as circumstances justify. Continuing, Mr. Curtis said: "No doubt the writer referred to thought he was making a great point against the railway when he laid before you this array of figures. I want to prove to you to-night that others are capable of figuring fully as prodigally as he. In the first place, to show you the result of such calculations take our assessment roll of last year of $862,511 and assume the real value of real estate to be $1,000,000 and an increase of 25 per cent. as soon as the railway is finished, for it certainly will increase to that amount. This would give us $1,250,000 value of land to assess. Take the $250,000 and invest it every 6 months at 6 per cent., 50 years, compound interest and you get what? $138,720,000. What a rich community we would be! Again take the $3,000 annual sinking fund, invest every year at 6 per cent. for 24 years and we get $152,446—or $2,446 more than is required to redeem the whole of the debentures. For example take an individual lot worth to-day $200; with railway an advance of 25 per cent., or $50 on the lot. If that profit on the lot, $50, were invested every 6 months for 50 years at 6 per cent. that man would be worth $138,620 and still have the lot left. During that 50 years he would pay taxes on said lot to the amount of $110,896. Deduct this from his $50 investment and you have a surplus of $27,724 to get married on. How the increase of assessable property will affect us this year, I will endeavor to show you. The present assessment roll is $862,511; area of land to be taken in under new charter 400 acres; deduct 80 acres for streets to be made by owners in subdividing and we have left 320 acres estimated at $500 per acre gives $160,000. To this add the increase of land only within the old limits since the last assessment, say 25 per cent., and you have $215,628, thus giving the city an extra amount of real estate to assess of $375,628, saying nothing of the certain increase on land in years to come. In this way the railway debenture rate will be reduced from 14 mills to 9⅔ mills during the present year." (Great applause and cheering).

Mayor Dickinson, in response to appeals from the audience, said: "The gentlemen you have heard this evening have made great promises and no doubt will carry them out if possible. But where is the money to come from to carry out all these schemes? Our revenue is only a paltry $16,000. We are assessed at $862,000, while our sister city is assessed at something over $3,000,000. Our system of taxation must be changed. There is one property owner in Westminster who has a monthly income of $250 from his buildings rented and on which he pays not one cent taxes, while the poor workingmen are taxed to pay their share of the city's expenditure. Now, gentlemen, I ask you is this right? (Cries of no, no). To you workingmen I appeal to give a solid vote on Monday so that the large property owners of the front of the town may be taxed to build up the back part of the town. (Tremendous cheering).

Frantic cries were made for Mr. J. C. Armstrong, who finally took the platform. He thought that if the fifteenth part of the promises made by the candidates were carried out Westminster would be rapping at Vancouver's back door before the end of the year. The promises made by each candidate were so liberal that were such a thing possible he would vote for the whole sixteen. He hoped the city would once again pull together as it did at the old drill shed when the C.P. R. scheme was before the people.

Mr. Hendry was enthusiastically called for and responded briefly. "The candidates," he said, "have covered the ground so well that there is nothing left for me to say. You all know my sentiments in regard to the city's progress, and you know that I will do all within my power to advance its best interests. Water, sewerage and railway matters will have my hearty support as will also all matters of importance to the city. The questions under discussion this evening have been well ventilated and now I will ask you to elect such men on Monday as will, in your belief, best serve the city's interests. For my part I will endeavor to perform faithfully the duties of the high office to which you have elected me, and when my term is finished I trust to hold your respect and esteem the same as I do to-night. (Great applause).

Col. McGregor was called on and said: "Although it would always afford me much pleasure to be of service to you, I am not seeking election to the council board just now—perhaps I never will—and even if I were I scarcely think that it would be necessary for me to to express my views with respect to the Southern Railway; the most of you know them pretty well. I trust that you will show your wisdom at the polls, and elect the most faithful and progressive men. Do not canvas to-morrow, but be up before the lark on Monday morning and, in the figurative language of an illustrious North Briton, "Light a fire on all the little hills."

The meeting then adjourned."

PUBLIC OPINION

Gives Excellent Medicine to Electors, Non-Electors, and Others.

Under this style Public Opinion has at various times during the last two months addressed pertinent remarks to candidates, would-be candidates, and injunctors; plainly setting forth the needed improvements and the wants of the city, directing the candidates as to their course, if they wish to sit in the council chamber, and forcibly bringing home to the injunctors the actual position they are in—defeated. And now we propose to make a few utterances and assertions to electors and non-electors. First, then, to the electors: Excitement at a crisis like the present runs high, and while you, in the heat of the contest, might be influenced by parties who would fain save the strain upon your pockets as taxpayers, you must remember your duty as citizens to your city and families; that you have to lay the foundation upon which shall rise to eminence the prosperity of our city, and, if you should not reap the benefit, your children will. You must not quietly remain at home to-day, not caring how things go, or feeling indifferent as to whether things are changed or not. You owe your correct vote in the interest, not only of yourself, but of future generations. There comes up from every part of the city a continual cry for a never-failing supply of pure water, and equally urgent is the necessity for a thorough system of drainage, in which disease cannot lurk ready to seize the populace unawares and carry bright members of families and society to the tomb. Your natural resources of trade of the fertile valley of the Fraser must be conserved, a market established to transact the business of those who come from above and below the city to vend their produce, and, jointly with this, a council chamber and offices appertaining to a city hall must be built; so that we can always have a place in which to hold not only business meetings of the council but ratepayers' meetings as well. Then, it is no use getting up in church meetings and bewailing that the boys and young men of the city are frequenting saloons, or are enticed there by the more convivial surroundings than you have given them: it is for you to see that the men you vote for will aid in establishing public recreation grounds, where their manhood may be strengthened, and a pleasant public library and reading room, light, airy, comfortable and enticing, where their minds may be improved. You cannot—you must not—plead that you have done without all these things. Your forefathers did without the steam engine and electricity; you would be in a sorry pickle without them to-day, and you cannot afford to drive the rising generation away to cities where they can have these, their rights, supplied to them. See to it that each candidate you vote for promises this recreation ground and public library. And then think of the humiliation of having to direct a stranger to two streets back of Mr. So-and-so's, or opposite or next door to Mr. So-and-so's, instead of to No. 37 or 38 Mary or Columbia street—don't forget this important item—and then, last but not least, while the question that interests us most is practically settled, see that you vote for no man who did not think enough of the interests of the city to sign the citizen's bond to the railway company; because, if they will shirk their duty in this, they will shirk their duty and play with your interests in the council, if you make the unfortunate mistake to elect them to a seat therein. TAKE CARE YOU DO NOT SPOIL YOUR BALLOT PAPER! VOTE EARLY! VOTE RIGHT! Help those who are aged or infirm to the poll; call to the city those whom you know to be away, so that they may exercise their franchise. Don't vote for the man who, at the last moment, wants to take the popular view of things; tell him, plainly, you see his little game. See that no moss or cobwebs are hanging to the coat collar of the man wishing your vote—if there is, don't vote for him. And, now, don't let your interest in the right lead you to commit a breach of the peace, no matter how you are taunted; these tactics will be tried as a last forlorn hope by those who would have the city retrogade. Now a few words to non-electors. You who have failed to see your names placed upon the voters' list, see to it that you are not left in this predicament at another election. You who are tenants, and cannot under the existing charter, vote, see that you use every legitimate means to have the franchise extended, so that you, who have to produce the wherewithal, may have the right enjoyed by tenants in any other city and have the power to vote in January next, and at this election use your influence to elect a "progress party;" you can do a great deal; do it; for, in the prosperity of the city, lies your chances of prosperity and the possibility of becoming property owners, instead of, for want of trade, your having to search anew for employment and a home for your families. And now, you young fellows, you have a claim upon the city fathers; they want to see you rise up strong in business pursuits, morally, intellectually, and physically able to carry on the business many of them have founded. Watch the events as they are passing now, cling to the ideas arising out of this struggle for progress, so that when you become old enough and stable enough to handle civic affairs your experience now gained may help you and as you have present needs, of the recreation ground and library, make your relatives and friends who have votes promise only to support those men who will save you the humiliation of having to contest for athletic honors on the macadamized Columbia street, or of holding converse on the street corners. Your future prosperity lies in what is done at the poll to-day; make your friends lay the sure foundation to that prosperity.

Election Card.

To the Municipal Electors of New Westminster City:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been requested by a number of citizens to allow myself to be a candidate for alderman, and having been duly nominated, I consider it necessary to make known to you some of my views regarding a few of the important city interests.

As regards railway matters, I am solid; and having been connected with railways for over six years, I am confident that it is to the best interests of this city to make itself a railway centre.

I believe the new council should immediately lay the foundation for a first-class water works and thorough sewerage system.

I shall endeavor to have all moneys that can advisedly be taken from our resources used to beautify our park, knowing that such is one of the greatest health-giving benefits any city can have, both for the old as well as for the young.

This being the year for the provincial exhibition to be held in this city, I will do my utmost to make it a grand success.

I will give my hearty support to anything that may be brought forward of vital interest to this city.

I remain, Ladies and Gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,

Election Card.

To the Municipal Electors of the City of New Westminster:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

At the request of several of the ratepayers of the city, I have allowed my name to be placed before you as a candidate for Alderman, and, if elected, will exert every effort in my power to further the interests and general progress of the city.

I am strongly in favor of the Southern railway and will use my influence to the fullest extent to have the road built immediately; but will not consent to the people's money being paid out, as lately attempted, in advance of any equivalent received by way of road, ferry or workshops.

I shall work in favor of the city waterworks, sewerage system, city park and all necessary improvements as far as the city revenue will admit.

Yours respectfully,
JAMES WISE.

Election Card.

To the Municipal Electors of New Westminster City:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having allowed my name to be placed in nomination as a candidate for Alderman, I deem it proper to acquaint the electors with my views and intentions on a few of the more important questions affecting the city's interests.

I will, if elected, support the Southern Railway scheme, believing that the city should keep good faith in the matter, and, at the same time, that the city's interests demand that this enterprise should be pushed without delay.

I believe the new council should deem it necessary to devise and lay the foundation of some scheme to secure to the city water works to be owned by the city, and also a thorough system of sewerage.

I shall endeavor to give all questions arising with regard to our municipal affairs a careful consideration before voting on the same, and shall favor all measures of progress compatible with the finances of the city.

I believe it is the duty of the council to have in view at all times the moral and material welfare of the city.

In conclusion, I respectfully ask your support at the coming election, on Monday the 21st inst.

Faithfully yours,

Daily British Columbian

Monday Evening, Jan. 21, 1889.

We are glad to observe that popular sentiment in this city is running decidedly in favor of the new (to this town) style of taxation—taxing permanent improvements as well as real property. This, too, in spite of pronounced opposition on the part of a few. In an article on the subject in last Friday's COLUMBIAN we endeavored, and, we believe, with some success, to show the perfect reasonableness and equality of taxing improvements, as against our present antiquated and unfair system, as well as the benefits certain to accrue to the city from the adoption of so sensible a measure. We honestly believe that not even the Southern Railway itself will prove a greater boon and means of advancement to this city than the new basis of assessment which will soon be in operation. Abroad, our credit will be greatly enhanced, or, more strictly perhaps, raised to a level commensurate with our real status as a city. The results of this desirable end being attained will be very appreciably and speedily realized in increased attention, capital and population being attracted to this field. In the city, the beneficent effects of the change will be none the less apparent. The municipal revenue of the city will be considerably increased in the first place. In judicious hands, this will react almost immediately in stimulating the advancement and prosperity of the city. Then, property owning and building on the part of the working men and those in moderate circumstances will be encouraged, because the burden of taxation will be equalized and the increased municipal revenue will enable the city to open up streets and sidewalks where none now exist. The largest reproductive property owners, those who consequently pay the greatest amount in taxation, will reap the most liberal share in the general prosperity, on account of the speedy doubling up in value of their property. Altogether, every citizen, in whatever circumstances, has reason to view with satisfaction the sensible reform that is to come into operation so soon with respect to our municipal taxation.

The statistics of our fisheries, &c., published in THE COLUMBIAN a few weeks ago have already borne fruit, by being copied into American and other papers. An American exchange introduces the subject as follows: "It is generally supposed that our near neighbors, the British Columbians, are very slow people who will never amount to very much until they join in the great American procession. This is not entirely the case. They manifest much enterprise, and are developing their fine natural resources with great success. The fishing interest is one of their principal industries. They expected to pack 200,000 cases of salmon in 1888, but had bad luck, and only secured 76,000 cases. This is the second season of failure. They hope, however, to do better this year. One thing they did do in 1888 which is very important. They developed a new industry, and are now taking black cod and halibut from deep water. The business promises to expand to very large proportions. Much capital is invested in salmon packing."

China's first railway, between Yientsin and Youngshan, has now been in operation about three months. It is eighty-one miles long, and most of the way the track is laid on embankments eight feet high for protection from inundation. The company is comprised of Chinese officials, and an English engineer had charge of the construction, and the bridges and rolling stock are mostly of American manufacture or design. The road cost less than $9,000 a mile notwithstanding the heavy earthwork, and notwithstanding low fares and freights, the enterprise promises to be very remunerative. The Chinese, at first much prejudiced against the road, have already discovered its advantages and use it freely. Li Hung Chang is greatly interested in it and expects to obtain the imperial sanction for its extension to Tungchow, fifteen miles from Peking, during this year, although there is much opposition in some conservative circles. Japan is building railroads rapidly, and now that China has turned the first sod, further progress is almost assured. The railroad there, as everywhere, cannot fail to effect great industrial changes. The dense population and cheap scale of living will make freights and fares proportionate, and whatever China has to sell will be landed at tide-water on the lowest terms. In India which is naturally as conservative as China, English skill and capital have already established cotton, jute and other manufactures which are competing with American and European goods in Oriental markets. Some of the ablest and most influential men of China are now advocating the naturalization there of foreign manufactures, but they propose to do it with Chinese capital and to become independent of foreign skill as soon as possible. The Chinaman never divides with an outsider, except temporarily to effect some ulterior purpose. When China fairly starts on the road on which India and Japan are already moving, American and European economists will have some new problems to solve.

Our American neighbors are evidently looking forward to the time when, after having "assimilated" the whole of America—North, Central and South — they will, like Alexander, weep because there are no more worlds to conquer. They don't fancy the "weeping" business, however, and are preparing to survey, with the view of annexing, one by one, the nearest heavenly bodies. To this end, they are improving their telescopes, regardless of expense. Representative Butler, of Tennessee, says the New York Sun, has introduced a bill in Congress to appropriate $1,000,000 to be expended, under the direction of the secretary of the navy, in the construction of a great telescope with a lens 60 inches, or 5 feet, in diameter. The diameter of the Lick object glass, the largest in the world, is 36 inches. In view of the fact that many astronomers regarded the success of the great Californian telescope as more than problematical, on account of the difficulty of casting and figuring such huge disks of glass, Mr. Butler's proposition is decidedly startling. But it should be remembered that, thanks to the success of the Paris glass makers and the incomparable skill of the great American telescope makers, the Clarks, the Lick lens has turned out to be so perfect that the croakers have been silenced, and wonder has taken the place of doubt. While it would undoubtedly be an achievement that would tax to the utmost the skill and experience of the artisans and artists who should undertake the work, yet it cannot be said that the construction of a telescopic object glass of 60 inches diameter is impossible. Such a glass, if successfully made, would be a much greater improvement over the Lick telescope than that great instrument was over the largest of its predecessors. To show this it is only necessary to remember that the light-gathering power of an object glass varies as the square of its diameter. The largest glass before the completion of the Lick lens was the 30 inch telescope of the observatory of Pulkowa. The light gathering power of the Lick telescope is to that at Pulkowa about 13 to 9, or one and a half times as great; but the power of a 60 inch lens would be to that of the Lick telescope as 36 to 13, or nearly three times as great. Such a glass would be four times as powerful as the Pulkowa telescope. If there is a man in the moon, we shall soon know what No. boot he wears, as well as the color of his hair, and whether his pants bag at the knees, like those of the frail mortal of earth.

ELECTION CARD

To the Municipal Electors of New Westminster City:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

At the request of a number of friends I have consented to place my name in nomination for the position of alderman at the coming election, fully realizing the importance and duties of the office. If elected I will endeavor to the best of my ability, to place our city in the front rank of the cities of B. C. The following important questions will have my careful attention:

1. RAILWAY.—I will use every legitimate means in my power to bring to a successful termination the building and completion of the Southern Railroad, and will treat liberally any projected railway which may wish to run into our city, always carefully guarding the best interests of the city. And it is my opinion if we are true to ourselves and bury any little differences that may exist and work shoulder to shoulder, we can make New Westminster the greatest railway center and most important city between Seattle and Alaska.

2. WATER SUPPLY.—I am in favor of the city owning its own water works, for there is a very large revenue to be derived from this source, if properly conducted, and, if elected, I will at once take up this question and deal with it on business principles. Water rate debentures when issued, bear their own value and will not be one dollar's tax on the ratepayers.

3. SEWERAGE.—This is one of the most important questions that the new council will have to grapple with, and, as there is bound to be a large emigration here this year, it behooves us to be alive and get our city well advanced so as to keep away those dread diseases which we so mercifully escaped last year. And I have no doubt if you select the right men a scheme can be got up whereby the city can be properly sewered, and the revenue derived from the sale of water be made to pay the interest and sinking fund for both water works and sewerage.

4. STREETS.—Something must be done at once to open up all streets in the city so as to give workingmen and mechanics a chance to get to their lots and buildings, and, if elected, I will give this subject my careful attention and hearty support.

5. CITY HALL.—If any proposition is brought forward for the erection of a suitable city hall, and if the finances of the city will allow it, I will give it my warmest support.

6. STREET LIGHTING.—I will favor the extending and improving of our system of street lighting, for there is no doubt it will stand considerable improvement.

7. PARK.—In order to make the coming agricultural show a success we must put a portion of the city park in a fit condition with suitable buildings, etc. If elected I will do my best to make the grounds a credit to the royal city. I am also in favor of removing the present stumps on Albert Crescent and planting a few shade trees to replace the stumps. Nature has done much for our city and it only wants touching up a little to make it perfect.

8. PUBLIC LIBRARY.—There is no doubt a new building is wanted to replace the delapidated one now occupying a valuable lot, and there is no doubt in my mind, but that a suitable one could be erected with stores underneath and library above; and the rents from said stores would more than pay for interest and sinking fund, and leave a balance for keeping the library in proper condition.

9. MANUFACTURERS.—I will encourage any manufacturers that contemplate starting business in this city, treating them in a liberal manner, and will use every effort to show them the advantage of doing business here. It is well known that manufactures are the backbone of any city.

10. COMMUNICATIONS.—I will urge upon our representative the necessity of the Dominion government subsidizing a daily boat between here and Richmond and also between here and Ladners Landing. We must also get better connections with the surrounding district.

11. LETTER BOXES.—I will also endeavor to have the postal authorities supply and put in place letter boxes in the suburbs of the city.

12. I will also urge on our city member the necessity of having the local government place a sum of money in this year's estimates to put the North Arm road in a fit condition for travel.

13. STREET NAMING AND NUMBERING.—If elected I will urge upon my colleagues the necessity of having our streets properly named and buildings numbered, as is always done in well-regulated cities. In fact, any project that may be brought up for advancing the interests of the city will have my careful attention and hearty support.

I remain,
Your Obedient Servant,
E. S. SCOULLAR.

REQUISITION.

H. V. EDMONDS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—Believing that your advice and experience would be of the greatest benefit in the Municipal Council of this city at the present juncture of its affairs, when a charter involving extensive changes will have to be put in force, we beg to ask you to allow yourself to be put in nomination for Alderman at the ensuing election, promising you a hearty support if you consent.

REPLY.

To MESSRS. CUNNINGHAM, FISHER, BROWN and others.

GENTLEMEN,—I thank you very much for the confidence you express in my ability to be of service to this city in the Municipal Council and have, therefore, much pleasure in accepting your nomination. If elected, I will do my best to fulfil your expectations. While I am well aware that the city has many urgent wants yet, the organization of affairs under the new Charter will this year involve a large amount of work, and if too many additional matters are undertaken at this stage some of them are sure to suffer from want of due consideration. I feel, however, I should state with regard to the Southern Railway, that although I run independent of any ticket I shall do my best to further its just interests.

I am, Gentlemen,
Your obedient Servant,
HENRY V. EDMONDS.

CORN SHUCKINGS.

Reminiscences of Old-Time Frolics in Sunny Georgia.

The Gathering of Corn as It Used to Be in the Days Before the War—Melodious Negro Songs—Looking for the Last Ear on the Field.

"Did you ever haul up corn with a yoke of oxen?" asked Plunkett, as, according to the Atlanta Constitution, he lit his pipe and took his seat in the corner.

"Gathering corn with oxen hain't no easy job," continued the old man, as he settled back in his rocker. "You have to jerk and haw and gee to keep 'em from pulling their necks off stretching out for eating on each side, and the man that can drive 'em under such circumstances and not cuss is a deserving man for sure. I've been driving for the boys to-day and my old bones ache and my throat is sore from jerking and whooping, and then, besides, corn-gathering time is not what it used to be, and it don't bring the frolic and fun of the shucking like it used to; but I don't say a word, for I know if I did some of these youngsters would say 'the old man's liver hain't flopped,' so I just grin and bear it and comfort myself by thinking of the days when I was young and of the good times we had then.

"Corn-gathering then was a frolic, for we knowed that a good time was coming. The corn wasn't throwed in the crib in them days, but a big pile was made in the lot and then the night was set for a shucking and the settlement gathered in—white and black—and the corn was shucked, put in the crib and the shucks penned all in one night. I've seed a pile of three thousand bushels shucked and put up in one night, and there wasn't a tiard person in the crowd, for there was fun and frolic and songs and dances, and there was 'looking for the last ear' before anybody knowed it.

"Them old shuckings are things of the past, but the generations to come will never feast on melodies sweeter than the nigger songs of the old corn-shucking days. I've sat at night and listened to the crowds as they were on their way to the corn pile. They always went in crowds and had their leaders, and the young masters would go along to protect them and they felt as free and grand as they have ever felt since the war, and there has never been a gang of since-the-war niggers that were near so happy as these crowds as they went across the fields singing:

"Old massa give me holloday,
He says he'll give me more;
I thanked him very kindly,
As I shoved my boat from shore.
Oh, my dearest May!
You're lovely as the day,
Your eyes so bright
They shine at night,
When the moon has gone away.

And then over on the river you'd hear the big chain lumber on the bottom of the ferry-boat, and as the ferryman pulled out from shore you'd hear fifty voices of another crowd join in the chorus and sing:

"Then row away, row,
O'er the waters so blue,
Like a feather we'll float,
In our gum-tree canoe.

"But the climax was at the corn pile. With two or three hundred niggers at the foot of a corn pile as big as a house a 'leader' would mount on top and start off with, 'I will start the holler,' and the rest would come in with, 'Buglelo.' It ran thus;

"'I will start the holler!
'Buglelo!'
'I will start the holler!'
'Buglelo!'
'Oh, don't you hear me holler!
'Buglelo!'
'Massa's got a bugle!'
'Buglelo!'
'A ten-cent bugle!'
'Buglelo!'"

"And on and on that leader would 'call' and the crowd would answer till they would want a change, which was indicated by throwing corn at the 'caller,' and it never failed to bring him down, and then another leader would mount the pile and he'd have something on the same style, but never the same tune. And thus the night would wear along and the pile of unshucked corn diminish. The lively time would be when the pile begin to grow small and they'd begin to yell:

"'Looking for the last ear!'
'Bangamalango!'
'Looking for the last ear!'
'Bangamalango!'
'Round up the corn, boys!'
'Bangamalango!'
'Round up the corn pile!'
'Bangamalango!'

"Then there was scrambling, for the work was over and the frolic begun. The crowd would gather around the owner of the corn and he was lifted on the shoulders of strong niggers and all would follow behind singing in their own way as the march was continued to and around the 'big house' and then to where a bountiful feast was in waiting on tables prepared in the yard.

"The tables were full, and the niggers would eat awhile and sing awhile and return to eat again. Here would be a crowd patting and dancing; other crowds would wrestle and box, while others would gather on seats in the background and sing the songs they loved to sing. I love them old songs, and I loved them old-time niggers, for I never seed a singing nigger that was mean.

"The seasons are the same. The cotton patches grow white as they used to, but the old-time nigger, as he runs across a belated watermelon in the grass around some stump and grabs it and breaks it open on his knee and scoops out the meat with his hand and thrusts it into a mouth that is always ready to smile, is not here. Corn-gathering time gives no hope of a good time to come, and it's work—sure enough, work—and business, business, all the time."

The Meddler.

Whenever madam added to her list of friends an eligible young man, she set about finding a girl who could amuse him, and keep him within her circle; but no sooner did the two young persons become mutually interested, than she changed her manner and did all that she could to separate them. It would seem that she considered courtship rather than matrimony the climax of earthly bliss, and that, consequently, she endeavored to prevent marriage whenever she was able, not only because it was something she could not conscientiously recommend, but also because the fewer the weddings the more hearts would she continue to have at her disposal for the pursuit of her favorite amusement. It was her sole pleasure in life to promote love. She paired couples as nonchalantly as she pared her nails, and a great deal oftener. But let it appear that the young people were beginning to care for one another, presto! She would have none of it. The young woman was out of her books instanter. She knew her no more forever, and all her failings, real or supposed, were paraded before the would-be lover's eyes, that he might avoid that young woman as he would a pestilence. And yet this meddler was a match-maker in her own despite; for though she did not press a couple on to matrimony, whole droves of couples arrived there nevertheless, thanks to her peculiar methods alone.

A Queer Prayer.

About twenty years ago the late L. L. D. Smith, "the great inventor of the self-winding clock," as he called himself, after being absent from Dahlonega for ten year, was brought up before the Town Council of Dahlonega and fined a good round sum for being drunk, swearing, and shooting off his pistol.

The thing was sudden and so different from the good old times in the "fifties" that he asked the Mayor if he would be fined for praying. On being informed that he would not, he immediately fell on his knees and offered up this petition:

"Oh! Lord, why did the Injuns give up this country and let in the —— tribe that they have got here now?"

EGYPTIAN WOMEN.

Peculiarities of Their Looks, Dress, Manners and Customs.

In youth the women of Egypt, writes a correspondent of Truth, generally have lovely forms—plump, supple and elegant. An excess of flesh is rare among them. Graceful curves, an upright carriage and finely-molded hands and feet are common characteristics. Their faces, too, are usually pleasing and often beautiful, with the richly-tinted softness of the south. So sweet is the expression of these faces, so bewitching are the glances of their dark eyes, that an experienced traveler declares they are the most perfect women in the world.

The eyes of nearly all are large, black and almond-shaped; their soft expression, still further heightened by long lashes and the universal use of "kohl," with which they blacken the edges of the lids. They have oval faces, sometimes a little broad, and clear olive complexions. The lips are usually quite full; the nose is straight, though a little wide. Glossy black hair, with eyebrows that form a lovely arch, complete the features of these sirens, famed since Cleopatra for their beguiling beauty.

They dress the hair in an elaborate fashion. It is cut short over the forehead, but on either side of the face hangs a full lock, often curled or braided. The rest of the hair is arranged in numerous braids, usually from eleven to twenty-five, but always an odd number. Three black silk cords bearing little ornaments of gold are generally fastened to each braid, hanging down the back in a glittering shower. The head-dress is a complex arrangement. It consists of a kind of turban, round which is commonly bound a gay kerchief, or a long strip of muslin folded into a narrow band. The latter is usually black or rose-colored. The central part is ornamented for several inches with spangles that fall over the forehead, while the ends are decked with a gay edging, and tassels of colored silks above which a few more spangles are sewn. On the crown of the head-dress is worn a round convex ornament called the "kurs." It is about five inches in diameter and as costly as the wearer can afford. Wealthy ladies, and even the wives of some small tradesmen, wear those composed of diamonds set in gold. Others wear a simple golden kurs, silver being seldom seen, even among servants. The head-vail consists of a long piece of white muslin embroidered at each end with colored silk and gold, or of colored crepe ornamented with gold thread and spangles. This is drawn well forward upon the head, while the long ends hang down behind nearly to the ground. The face-vail, always worn in public, is a simple strip of white muslin fastened just below the eyes, from which it falls nearly to the feet. It completely hides all the features except the eyes, but as these are commonly the greatest beauty of the women, it serves rather to heighten admiration than to quell it.

MEN'S IMAGINATION.

Incidents Illustrating the Influence of the Mind on the Body.

General de Trobriand, in his book "The Army of the Potomac," relates many incidents illustrating the influence of imagination. One poor fellow believed he had a ball in the head, and prepared to die on account of it. He died. Another with his eye gone and his eyebrows burned off thought nothing was the matter. Another instance was that of a surgeon who had been allured into the army by a salary. He had been a man of luxurious habits. He found himself living without fire in a tent covered with snow. He sought to make himself comfortable by making a fire in the open air and toasting one side while the other froze. He could not get used to the meager fare and no bed of the camp. But the roaring of cannon ended his career. He became livid, trembling like a leaf; he shook at each detonation and seemed about to lose his legs. "I am a dead man," he at last exclaimed as if actually shot. "I must go away or I am a dead man." And there had not been a shot anywhere near the division. He had to be carried to a hospital and discharged. At Gettysburg a color-bearer staggered and fell back. "Steady," called the Colonel. "I am wounded," he replied in a choking voice. "Where?" "In the throat." The commander leaned over his horse and looked. "It is nothing. I see no blood." He immediately retook his place, raising up his flag. The ball had really struck him in the neck but bounded off his leather collar, and the shock had choked him for a moment.

On the dawn of the day after Gettysburg De Trobriand found a young sergeant stretched out on his back, his head resting on a flat stone serving for a pillow. His position was natural, even graceful. One knee lightly raised, his hands crossed on his breast, his eyes closed, he seemed to sleep; perhaps dream of her who awaited him in the Green Mountains. He was dead. Wounded, he had dragged himself there to die composedly. His haversack was near him. He had taken out of it a little book on which his last looks had been cast, for it was still open in his rigid fingers. It was the New Testament. Different was the tale of a Florida lad. Scarcely twenty years old, he had been bullied by Confederate agents into entering the army. His left heel was carried away by a piece of shell. His right hand was torn off by a canister shot—two amputations he did not complain of; but when he spoke of returning crippled to aged parents dependent on him, his smile was more heart-breaking than any complaint could be.

It Was a Pretty Foot.

The funniest incident of my trip was in a sleeping-car, writes "Gath" in the Cincinnati Enquirer. It was in the morning, when most of the passengers had got out of their berths, and only several sets of curtains were drawn tightly in front of still slumberous persons. Suddenly a foot was thrust out between two curtains. It was small, white and symmetrical—no more than a feminine No. 3—and the merest bit of ankle in sight looked soft and fine. The men glanced at it from the corners of their wicked eyes. The women deprecated the exposure. Then a bold, brazen fellow went right straight to the pretty foot, grabbed the ankle and flung the whole member rudely into the berth.

"He wouldn't treat his bride so," said a woman close by. "It must be his sister."

Then the head of a ten-year-old urchin emerged where the foot had been, and a sleepy, angry, boyish voice said: "Look here, Sam, you let me alone. Next time you ketch a hold of my foot that way I'll kick the gizard out of you."

There was a subsidence of sentimental interest and a risibility of mirth.

The American Flag.

It may not be known to every one that there is a law regulating the making of the American flag. The law of 1818 requires that on the Fourth of July following the admission of a State a new star shall be added to the blue field of the flag. There are now thirty-eight States in the Union, and there should be thirty-eight stars in the field of the flag. Many of the cheap flags have not the requisite number of stars, because it is much easier to have stars in rows, with an even number each way, which can not be secured with thirty-eight.

About Sleeping Alone.

It is very much healthier to sleep alone. The unhealthfulness of two persons occupying the same bed very much depends on the physical condition of either or both. If one is diseased, injury to the other is sure to result. The practice is unhealthful because the exhalations from the body of one come in contact with and are absorbed by the skin of the other, and because each one must, of necessity, breathe some of the air which has been breathed by the other, and consequently rendered impure.

"Rufus, wuz yer to de chu'ch dis mornin?"

"Dar's jis' whar I wuz, Clem."

"I hope yo' drawed in much profit fom de sarbice, Rufus."

"What yo' mean, sah? Jus' yo' take notis. Mr. Clem, dat w'en we plays keards in de quiah durin' sarbice we jus' plays fo' 'musement, an' nuffin' mo'."—[Yonkers Gazette.

The Chinese are busy paying their debts in order that the Chinese New Year will see them square with the world. The manhood and principles of the Anglo Saxon race are supposed to be superior to those of the poor celestials, but a few of our delinquent subscribers might borrow at least one custom from the Flowery Kingdom and still lose none of their self-respect.

About two months ago a number of settlers at Langley subscribed about $3,000 to be expended in building a dam across Cromarty slough in order to reclaim a quantity of land in that vicinity. A force of men was employed in the work and the amount subscribed, expended, but unfortunately through bad management, the whole thing, so far, has proved a failure. We understand, however, that some of the property holders are still determined to make the scheme a success and that a contract will be let for the work in the course of a few days.

THE ROCK ON WHICH MANY a constitution goes to pieces is Dyspepsia. The loss of vigor which this disease involves, the maladies which accompany it, or which are aggravated by it, the mental despondency which it entails, are terribly exhaustive of vital stamina. An Opium Eater.

The chinaman Ah Foo, who was taken in charge last week by the police for acting in a peculiar manner and who was released a few days afterwards, was arrested again this morning in a condition bordering on insanity. The chinaman is a victim of the opium habit, and when arrested, had a box in his possession which contained sufficient opium to last him a year. The drug was confiscated and destroyed, and the Chinaman was sent to gaol for two months with hard labor, which, it is hoped will cure him of the vicious habit.

For Bute Inlet.

Mr. P. McTiernan, Indian agent, accompanied by Mr. George Calbick and a nurse, leaves for Bute Inlet to-morrow morning on the str. Skidegate. Mr. McTiernan will take a large supply of groceries, blankets, clothes and medicines and will supply all the quarantined rancheries with the articles they stand in need of. The nurse will pay regular visits to the affected camps and report at intervals to Mr. McTiernan. An attempt will be made to establish strict quarantine by appointing a number of Indians to act as police.

Glad of It.

William Henry Jones, who was hanged in British Columbia on the 8th inst., for the murder of Edward Durant, ought to have been prudent enough to have quarreled with his victim and killed him in the United States. In the United States this would have been manslaughter, and in many states of the south, this murderer would have been acquitted. William Henry Jones ought to have crossed the line to "get in his work;" and yet on general principles of public security we are glad that British Columbia hung William Henry Jones.—Oregonian.

Peck's Bad Boy.

Peck's Bad Boy drew another large and appreciative audience to Hart's opera house last evening. The special features of the entertainment had been changed, so that those who were present on the previous evening had something new. Of course the body of the play was the same. The jokes and tricks of the bad boy were as refreshing and as exciting as ever, and the grocery man's perplexity was if anything more amusing. The audience had plenty of material for laughter, and they acknowledged it by their applause.—News-Advertiser. Peck's Bad Boy will be played at Herring's opera house this evening.

Did Not Come Off.

The proposal to burn the manager of the Colonist in effigy would have been acted upon but for the advice of Mayor Grant and a number of his leading supporters, who counselled moderation, and asked the more enthusiastic to abstain from any demonstration that might be taken by the other side as offensive. But the proposal became current and reached the ears of the person whose image was to be cremated and becoming alarmed he called upon the police for protection. No effigy, however, was burned, and the services of the police were not required. The best of order and good will prevailed after the result was known.—Times.

Langley Elections.

The annual election of reeve and councillors for Langley municipality, commenced at the town hall, Langley, on Monday, Jan. 14th, when the following were nominated:

For reeve, John Maxwell and Robt. McKee.

Councillors No. 1 ward, Charles Yeoman; No. 2 ward, James Houston, and R. H. Holding; No. 3 ward, W. Davey; No. 4 ward, Thos. Mufford; No. 5 ward, John Jolly.

Polling for reeve and councillors for ward No. 2 commenced at the town hall on Thursday, Jan. 17th, at 10 a.m. and closed at 4 p.m., with the following result:

Reeve, John Maxwell, 37; Robert McKee, 51. Ballots spoiled, 2.

Councillor, No. 2 ward, James Houston, 17; R. H. Holding, 6.

The following gentlemen therefore compose the council for 1889: Reeve, Robert McKee; councillors, C. Yeoman, J. Houston, W. Davey, T. Mufford, and J. Jolly. The total vote polled was 90, about 25 resident voters failing to show up at the poll.

VICTORY!

Crowns the Civic Battle of To-Day and Once More Westminster Cries "Progress."

From Early Morn Till Sundown the Fight is Waged With Much Earnestness.

The Straight Ticket is Elected by a Large Majority.--The Royal City Pulls Together.

Never in the history of Westminster was an election contest so enthusiastically fought as to-day. To say that all were interested in the fight, "progress vs. non-progress," conveys no proper meaning of the situation for everyone was enthusiastic and earnest to the last degree. Although the "popular party" was certain of electing the majority of its ticket yet no efforts were abandoned to make the victory as complete as possible. All the candidates and the various committees were at work bright and early, and when the poll opened at 9 o'clock a large number of voters were on hand to name their favorites. From the first the voting proceeded briskly and by 1 o'clock 50 per cent. of the names on the voters' list had been polled. On the streets everything was bustle and excitement. A large number of cabs and carriages were pressed into service to bring in the outside voters, and these rattling along the streets at a high rate of speed added to the general bustle of the occasion. Several spicy discussions took place on the streets between friends of contending parties which afforded great amusement to the crowds which rapidly formed to hear the fun. Whenever a candidate would pass a knot of people a rousing cheer would go up, and this was especially noticeable with Mr. Lord who received a sarcastic ovation wherever he went. But everthing passed off in a friendly way and the candidates seemed to enjoy the fun as well as anyone else. Though the fight was keen throughout, the best of feeling prevailed and there was a most noticeable absence of anything approaching bitterness between the contestants. Early in the forenoon a ticket containing the names of "Independent Candidates" was circulated, leaving out Mr. H. V. Edmonds' name. Shortly afterwards the "Independents" gathered up the tickets and destroyed them and later issued another containing the full list.

Fully a dozen Vancouverites arrived by the 11.20 train and worked and voted in favor of the "popular ticket" as did also a number of gentlemen from down-river points. Among the latter was W. H. Ladner M. P. P. Mr. S. H. Webb was seen rolling a baby carriage up and down in front of the polling booth while a lady was casting her vote. It is safe to say Mr. Webb received a "plumper" for his gallantry. The would be alderman received the applause of the crowd with becoming modesty.

THE CHURCHES.

The "Good News" as Expounded in Our Churches Yesterday.

The services at the Baptist church yesterday were conducted by Mr. Rasure, the cowboy evangelist, and Mr. Chamberlain, Canadian evangelist. At both services the instruction was given by Mr. Rasure. In the evening he read the 55th chap. of Isaiah, intercepting the verses with extended comments in which he related feelingly many personal experiences and tried to impress upon his hearers the benevolence and protection of God in the free salvation and reminded the young men that God would take care of their bodily interests and health if they consecrated themselves to him, and snapping his fingers several times said he would not give that for a God that would not protect and save the body as well as the soul, which the Rev. Mr. Baldwin afterwards emphasized very strongly, graphically describing the cowboy life—and reminding those present that the meetings would be continued by the evangelists from Tuesday to Friday evening in the basement of the church. Mr. Rasure though not a great orator has a terse, matter of fact and interesting manner of speaking, and attracts and holds the attention of his audience throughout.

Mr. Chamberlain conducted the testimony meeting and after asking all Christians to stand, asked those who wished to be Christians to stand to which three persons responded. Some of the brightest and best of the songs from Moody's collection, No. 5, were sung, the service being concluded by Mr. Baldwin, the pastor, pronouncing the benediction.

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian church last night, Rev. Mr. Scouler preached from 1st Thessalonians, 5 c. 16 v., "Rejoice evermore,' and said: Two Sabbath evenings ago we had for our consideration the darkest side of the picture of human life, as exemplified in the trials and the sufferings of Job. As there are always two sides to every question, we propose to look at the brighter side to-night, as suggested by the words of our text. I need hardly say that these words apply to those who are the people of God. Christians only are in a position to rejoice evermore; for how can the wicked under any circumstances rejoice; they are living at enmity against God; there is no peace in their minds. The ungodly charge the religion of Jesus Christ with being gloomy and melancholy. Many for this reason have thrown off all restraint; they say that they want to enjoy life. There is such a thing, it is true, as the pleasures of sin, but it resembles the crackling of thorns under a pot; there is nothing left but the sting of an accusing conscience and the memory of time that has been worse than wasted. The Christian should seek to rejoice evermore, first, on account of what God has done for the salvation of his people. 'The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad,' says the Psalmist. We should rejoice when we think of God's kindness to us in giving His Son—God's unspeakable gift. We cannot think of the death of Christ aright without being filled with joy and gladness. There is no reason why the blackest sinner should not return and obtain the forgiveness of sin and the favor of God. But God has done more than give His Son. We may have thought that no more would have been done for man's salvation, but more than this was necessary, and the Spirit was given to show man his need of, and lead him to a Saviour. When the Spirit came mighty results followed, men and women were led to embrace Christ; the Spirit should be more honored. Think, then, Christian friends, of what God has done for you by the Spirit; it is by His aid that you have been enabled to litt up your head and rejoice in God as the God of your salvation." The speaker continued that Christians should rejoice on account of what God is doing for His people and on account of what He will do, all of which was described at length and in eloquent terms, and the discourse was closed in picturing the perfect rejoicing hereafter, when the trials and tribulations of this life should be over.

At the Reformed Episcopal church, yesterday morning, Rev. Thomas Haddon spoke from Deuteronomy 33 c., 27 v: "The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms, and he shall thrust out the enemy from before thee, and shall say, destroy them;" and said:—one of our hymns says:

God is a refuge of his saints
When storm of sharp distress invade;
Here we can offer our complaints;
Behold his presence with his aid.

So said one of the greatest poets of the age, and David the inspired writer said: "God is our refuge and strength; a very present help in trouble." Few people that did not need shelter. It was pleasant when it rained to have the shelter of a dwelling—at sea amidst the rolling waves to have the assurance that we were on a good ship—and in a wind storm or cyclone a shelter underground was desirable—and a palm tree and a spring of water in the desert was desirable. Perhaps a traveller journeying for days in crossing the desert under the scorching sun, with no spring, no rock, or shade, and nearly exhausted, yonder in the distance sees a high rock and on the shady side of the rock finds a spring of water; he pitches his tent, and finds rest and repose there. Jesus is a rock of refuge to the weary traveller in a strange land; in him the weary traveller finds protection from temptation and trrals, where the distressed soul seeking for refuge can find protection from trouble. He says "I am the bread of life;" "If any man thirst let him come unto me and drink," "Come unto me all you that are weary and are heavy laden and I will give you rest;" and we get moral and spiritual shelter in the rock of ages; he is our shelter in the storm. We are told to look up—look up brother; do not look down, all the face of nature is lifted to the light. Hearts are drawn upward. David says: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh help." From above the still small voice spoke to the soul, spoke with thrilling power to the heart of the sinner, and supported the pilgrim. God is our father; and as an earthly father cares for and protects his children, so the Lord protects his children of adoption. Jew and Gentile, rich and poor—all are united in Christ. God is a protector and provider. In the last eruption of Vesuvius, in the earthquakes at Charleston, in the storms in the east where hundreds had lost their lives, and in the cyclones, fires and floods, dangers showed thick on every side. A newspaper in reporting this pointed to the insecurity, and by the way he saw the newspapers were getting religious. We should be thankful we have a rock beneath the Christian faith on which it could rest secure. I sometimes wonder why people and professing christians become so alarmed at contageous diseases, as in the case at Vancouver the other day. Why, if the civic authorities would only take half that trouble to save the people from moral diseases they would do a good and great work. God protects body and spirit; He is a sure refuge and we should learn to trust God for health of body as well as spirit. The text says, "Underneath are the everlasting arms," and were mentioned as symbols of power and strength. David said, "His right hand and his arm hath gotten us the victory." In God we have an arm on which to rest, to lean on in life's distresses and troubles, a father to the fatherless, a husband to the widow, and when father and mother forsake us, he says, "I will bear thee up," and he does this in various ways. The word comes and bears us up to the haven of peace and rest, and as the text says, will "thrust out the enemy." If God be with us who shall be against us; our enemy shall be thrust out, who are our enemies? Our sin and all that tends to stop our spiritual progress, and death, the last of enemies we can overcome; hence the apostle says, "O, Death, where is thy sting? O, Grave, where is thy victory? The reverend gentleman closed by appealing to all to come into the fold and take refuge.

Mr. W. D. Ferris read the lessons; the service was bright and thoroughly congregational.
