PROUD HARVARD

Elects a Young Negro Barber Class Orator After a Very Animated Election.

An Important Arrest Made to-day in the Cronin Murder Case Proper.

A Great Prairie Fire in Dakota Sweeps a Village Out of Existance.

APPOINTED.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 19.—The president to-day appointed Greenbaume, of Illinois, commissioner of pensions.

DIVIDEND DECLARED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The Boston, Concord and Montreal Railroad Company have declared a semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent.

FAIR WEATHER.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19.—Generally fair weather is predicted for Washington territory until 6 a. m. Sunday.

GREAT PRAIRIE FIRE.

BISMARCK, North Dakota, Oct. 19.—An immense prairie fire, many miles in extent, has been raging all day within a few miles of Bismarck. The efforts of the farmers to check the huge flames have been unavailing, and a large number of farms have been destroyed. A strong wind has been helping the fire along, and the village of Menokan, 14 miles below Bismarck, consisting of sixteen blocks, is entirely swept away and the inhabitants reported destitute. The wind is rapidly carrying the fire to Bismarck, and the city is enveloped in smoke and flying cinders. Preparations are made for a night watch around the outskirts of town, as the residents apprehend great danger. The people of Menokan have telegraphed for aid, which will be sent immediately.

A STOUT PROTEST.

BUTTE, Mont., Oct. 19.—The Butte board of trade sent a dispatch to the secretary of the interior last night protesting against the issuing of patents to large tracts of mineral lands in Montana to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. During a lengthy discussion it was shown that the scheme of the Northern Pacific Company was to gobble thousands of acres of mineral land on false representation to the land office that they are "mountainous timber land."

WILL SWALLOW IT.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 19.—Ex-President Wright, of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, says that although he is displeased with the result of the Northern Pacific election, he is disposed to make the best of it.

A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct. 19.—Mrs. Joseph Smith and a companion were discovered in a house of ill-fame by the former's husband about 7.30 this morning. Smith shot, and it is believed, fatally wounded his wife, and then attempted the life of her companion, but the latter, whose name is unknown, made his escape. Smith then took his own life.

ELOPED WITH THE GARDENER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Mary Lehunt, daughter of a wealthy resident of Wexford county, Ireland, and John Burns, her father's gardener, eloped to this country on the steamer Aurania, which arrived last Monday night, and were detained at Castle Garden by the emigration commissioners at the cable request of her father. George Lehunt, brother of Mary, arrived on the Germanic last night and will take his sister home.

WHEAT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19.—Wheat active and steady; buyer '84, 133⅜; buyer season, 141¼.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Wheat quiet; Oct., 83; Nov., 83¾; Dec., 85¼; May, 90.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Wheat quieter; Oct., 78¼; Dec., 81¼; May, 84.

JUSTICE FOR ONCE.

BOSTON, Massachusetts, Oct. 19.—The senior class of Harvard college to-day elected Clement Garrett Morgan (a colored man) class orator. The election was hotly contested, but Morgan received a substantial majority. Morgan entered college with little means and during freshman year worked in odd hours in a barber shop. Last year as competitor for the Boylston prize he carried the audience by storm and won first place.

IMPORTANT ARREST.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Another important arrest was made last night in connection with the Cronin case proper, and to which is attached considerable importance. The state's attorney refused to divulge the name of the latest suspect, but it is known that he was a member of Camp 20, was an intimate of two of the suspects on trial, and was prominent in the conspiracy to murder Dr. Cronin.

BOILER EXPLOSION.

ANDERSON, Ind., Oct. 19.—The boiler in R. J. Walker & Co.'s sawmill exploded this morning, tearing the building to splinters, and killing Horace Koontz and Walter Trimple, and seriously injuring five others.

DINING THE DELEGATES.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Elaborate preparations are being made in this city for the entertainment of the delegates to the International Maritime congress, who arrive this evening. Four hundred invitations have been issued for a banquet in honor of the delegates, at the Grand Pacific hotel to-night.

THE NEW GUNS.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 19.—The reported recent trial of the dynamite guns on the Vesuvius, was received at the navy department to-day, and found to be favorable. The board reports that the trials, as far as proceeded with, were a success, and the guns threw shells containing 200 or more pounds of dynamite one mile with reasonable accuracy. The board also reports that the crew were well protected. The rapidity of fire was not tested, but the board believed that it will be all right.

THE NEW COMMISIONER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Gen. Raume, the new commissioner of pensions, took the oath of office before Chief Clerk Dawson, of the interior department, at 12 o'clock, to-day. He was then officially introduced by Secretary Noble to the officials in the department. After some time spent in receiving congratulations of friends, Raume proceeded to the pension office accompanied by assistant Secretary Bussey. He was introduced to the chiefs of the division by Gen. Bussey and Assistant Commissioner Smith. Gen. Raume will assume charge on Monday. Secretary Noble, speaking of the selection of Gen. Baume, said that he was chosen from a number of excellent men, and he thought he would make a commissioner satisfactory to the country. He felt much relieved now that a commissioner of pensions had been selected by the president. Among interior department officials the selection is well received, the only criticism made being that Raume has not in recent years been in active political life. With the appointment of Raume as commissioner, the rumor is revived that Deputy Commissioner Smith will either be allowed to resign or else be transferred to some other field. It seems to be accepted as a fact that he will not remain the assistant commissioner of pensions.

ANOTHER EXPRESS ROBBERY.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 18.—News of another big express robbery in Alabama has just leaked out. It involves about $5000, and occurred at Millsport, Lamar county, about a week ago, but the matter had been kept quiet till yesterday, when Walter Abercomb, a young man, was brought to this city by a detective and charged with the robbery. The agent at Millsport had in his possession certain packages which were worth about $6000. By some means the robber learned of it and made his haul The agent was in the office at night when the robber entered, covered him with a pistol and made him hand over the money. No further particulars can be learned. The express people think they have the the thief, but say they want to collect more evidence before they talk.

OTTAWA NOTES.

OTTAWA, Oct. 18.—Mr. Burgess, deputy minister of the Interior, has returned from a two months tour in the Northwest.

Mr. Massue, conservative was elected to-day in Richelieu by 200 majority.

Mayor McGee, engaged in the real estate, loan and investment business in Oshawa, has failed. Already $30,000 liabilities are known. As far as can be estimated the nominal assets are $7,000. The debts of this insolvent are principally due to farmers; several widows are left penniless by the failure.

A syndicate with a $1,000,000 capital has been organized in Kingston, Ont.

Dr. Powell, superintendent of British Columbia Indians, was superannuated on October 1st. It is understood that A. W. Vowell, provincial gold commissioner, succeeds him.

Application will be made to parliament to incorporate the Alberta Colonization Railway to build a line from Cassels, on the Canadian Pacific, across the Bow river and through the Crow's Nest Pass to the Pacific ocean.

The Baptist convention had a lively discussion to-day on the question of tax exemption. The debate is not yet concluded.

FROM VICTORIA.

The Frisco-Victoria Record Beaten--The Puebla Makes the Voyage in 48 Hours.

VICTORIA, Oct. 19.—The s. s. City of Peubla, the greyhound of the San Francisco fleet, arrived at 11 o'clock o'clock this morning, making the remarkable fast time of 48 hours from San Francisco. This beats the best time by two hours, and she expects to do better next trip.

At a meeting of the tramway shareholders last night it was decided not to change the route from Fort st. to Victoria west, but the latter line be built and running to Esquimalt within five months. The contractor commenced work distributing the rails this morning.

The usual sports at Beacon Hill this afternoon. Weather like summer.

A Big Investment.

Messrs. Penney and Brown, two wealthy young Englishmen at present living in Victoria, yesterday afternoon completed the purchase from Mr. Morris Moss of the now famous schooner Black Diamond, as well as the fishing station on Queen Charlotte Island. The price paid for the schooner is said to have been about $3,000, while the amount given for the fishing station has not been made public. The Black Diamond last year received a thorough overhauling and repairs, which cost about $1,400. It is the intention of Messrs. Penney and Brown not only to engage in the sealing and fishing industries, but also to establish a ship chandlery and general store at which the sealing schooners can refit without returning to the city. The Black Diamond, with Messrs. Penney and Brown on board, will sail on Monday for the Islands, with Capt. H. Smith in command.—Friday's Colonist.

Naval Notes.

On Tuesday afternoon while a boat containing nine seamen was being lowered from H. S. S. Amphion, one of the davits gave way, tipping the occupants into the harbor. The tackle block, as the liberated end of the boat was submerged, swung round striking one of the men in the face and inflicting an ugly cut as well as bad bruises. He was not deprived of sensibility, however, and with his companions at once struck out for the other boats which had been previously lowered. The men who were on deck at the time the accident occurred, sprang over the side in a swarm, clothes and all, to the rescue, while a couple of dozen life preservers rained down around the swimmers. They didn't need help, however, and in three minutes after the breakage, all were on board again. H. M. S. Icarus was yesterday docked for repairs, when it was found that her injury was fully as serious as was at first feared. As soon as the Icarus leaves the dock, the Acorn will enter.—Friday's Colonist.

Dr. Bryce, secretary of the provincial health board of Toronto, contradicts the statement that has been spread abroad regarding small-pox in Pelee Island.

FULL POWERS.

Sir Julian Pauncefote has Full Powers to Conclude a New Extradition Treaty.

Parnell's Health is Greatly Improved and he Hopes to Take the Field Again.

The King of Portugal Died To-day and Carlos I. Succeeds to the Throne.

NEW EXTRADITION TREATY.

OTTAWA, Oct. 19.—The government has been advised that Sir Julian Pauncefote, British minister at Washington, returns to the United States with authority to re-open negotiations for the arrangement of a new extradition treaty between the United States and Great Britain, and also to arrange preliminary matters for the re-opening of the fishery question and adjustment of the Behring sea difficulty. It is learned from the state depastment that Blaine has intimated to Salisbury his willingness to dispassionately review the matter in dispute informally before it is formally taken up for final adjustment, to see if an amicable settlement cannot in this way be secured without the help of arbitration or the appointment of a commission.

CONCESSIONS TO CATHOLICS.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Sir Edward Clarke, solicitor-general, says the govt. will persist in making concessions to the Irish Roman Catholics, and will go ahead with the scheme of making further endowments for their benefit. Negotiations are now proceeding between Balfour and Archbishop Walsh.

HAPPILY FRUSTRATED.

ST. PETESBURG. Oct. 19—An official message states that a plan was made to wreck, near Zassy, in Roumania, the train on which ex-queen Natalie of Servia recently travelled to Belgrade. The train started ten hours earlier than the time announced for its departure, and owing to this fact, the plan of the conspirators was frustrated.

CASHIERED.

PARIS, Oct.19.—The cabinet has expelled Laysant, the Boulangist depury, from the position of officer in the territorial army.

PARNELL'S HEALTH.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Parnell has been interviewed on the condition of his health. He says he is better, and expects to take part in the business of the coming session of parliament. The fall of the Salisbury government, he says, is either at the next session or at the session of 1891.

DIED.

LISBON, Oct. 19.—The king of Portugal is dead.

THE NEW KING.

LISBON, Oct. 19.—The death of King Luis occured at 11 o'clock this morniug. He was 51 years of age. Crown Prince Charles, duke of Braganza, in succeeding to the throne assumes the title of Carlos I.

CLARA'S MARRIAGE.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The marriage of Prince Hatzfeldt and Miss Clara Huntington will take place at Brompton on the 28th of this month. It will be private.

A DANGEROUS WEAPON.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Distinguished army officers interviewed on the Zealinsky dynamite gun are all of the opinion that it is a dangerous weapon.

THAT INTERESTING TRIAL.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Nearly 200 additional policemen arrived at Maryborough from Dublin this morning, and though the popular excitement continued, the court proceeded with the work of selecting a jury to try Father McFadden and his associates for the murder of Police Inspector Marlin in February last. The court room was filled with police, and the indignant parishioners of Father McFadden, whose violence yesterday compelled the court to adjourn, were excluded. The main object of the Crown attorney appears to be to blacken the character of the accused priest and to destroy his popularity with his people. An admission made to-day by one of the Crown witnesses, a police official, who took part in the fighting in which the police inspector lost his life, is regarded as of the highest importance by the counsel for the defence. This man admitted that before Martin was struck at all, he saw Father McFadden with blood running down his face, evidently from a wound in the head.

Cariboo Wages.

British Columbia furnishes a pretty good illustration of the wages question as raised in the tariff interest. In 1861 the gold mining excitement was at its height. At Cariboo that year carpenters were paid $16 a day and laborers $12 a day. It was high pay, the result entirely of the natural obstruction—viz., the absence of roads—to the entrance of outside labor into the country. But the agency that put up the rate of wages also increased the cost of living. A meal cost $2.50. Flour, bacon and sugar were $2.50 per pound. A shovel or a pick cost $14, a pair of boots $36, and an ordinary cooking stove $350. It is a question whether $16 a day at Cariboo at that time was not poorer pay than $1.50 at Toronto.—Mail.

The Alert Ashore.

Shortly after noon yesterday, Mr. Thos. Earle received the following telegram from Nanaimo, concerning a mishap to the Alert Bay Canning Co.'s new steamer Alert at a point about five miles from the coal city. "Alert ashore at Dod's narrows. Scow coal laden filled and sank." Immediately upon receipt of the despatch the steamer Yosemite, Capt. Jagers in command, was sent to the rescue, and has not yet returned. The meagre information furnished by the telegram contains nothing in regard to the injuries, if any, received by the steamer. "Dod's narrows" is a small and very treacherous channel lying between Gabriola and Vancouver Islands. It is supposed the scow, a very large one, carrying 200 tons of coal, became unmanageable in the strong current, and swung the steamer on the rocky shore. —Friday's Colonist.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

LATE CANADIAN NEWS.

Michael Birtle, who was shot by Louis Deas, died at Toronto Hospital Thursday morning.

Two French officers are in Canada for the purpose of purchasing remounts for the French army.

Lieut. Laurie, son of General Laurie, has been appointed a lieutenant in "C" school at Toronto.

The Canadian Pacific earnings for the week ending October 14th were $363,000; for the same week last year, $287,000.

Hon. E. J. Flynn has accepted an invitation to deliver an address before the Montreal Conservative club at the end of this month.

Chief Justice McDonald, of Halifax, has sentenced Jos. Smith to Dorchester penitentiary for twenty years for killing George Barrow, a fellow-laborer.

News has been received at Yarmouth, N. S., of the murder of Enoch Crossley, plumber, of that place, at Tacoma, W. T. It is supposed that he was killed in mistake for some one else.

Shortly after 1 o'clock, Thursday, a Grand Trunk freight train, consisting of 17 cars, was approaching Upton, Que., when it suddenly jumped the track and about a dozen cars were badly smashed.

The body found at Murray canal, Kingston, is now said to have been used for dissecting purposes by Toronto students, who carried it there in a yacht after dissecting it. The remains were buried, but resurrected.

The first general meeting of the shareholders of the new Montmorency Cotton Manufacturing Company has just been held in Montreal, and the directors are elected. China is to be made the principal market for their manufactures.

After the appointment of the standing committees in the assembly, at Regina, N. W. T., Thursday, a proposition was made that the assembly adjourn for a few days and take in the grand ball at Banff. After a great deal of good humored banter, it was decided to go.

Sixty-four witnesses have been examined in the St. John, N.B., strychine poisoning case by Coroner Bertman. So far the crown has failed to make good the assertion that McDonald is a criminal, although it has enveloped him in suspicion by a dense cloud of circumstantial evidence.

The students of Victoria medical college, Montreal, are still in opposition to amalgamation with Laval, but they will probably have to succumb, as the church has taken the matter in hand, and Archbishop Fabre has forbibben rebellious students admission to the hospital for practice.

William Hall, son of the late Col. Hall, of Guelph, Ont., is a lucky youth. By the death of his uncle, in England, he falls heir to large estates yielding an income of $150,000 a year. The young man, who is a general favorite, has not allowed his large fortune to alienate himself from his old friends.

Samuel Hich, an Englishman, convicted at Halifax, N. S. of indecently assaulting a 6 year-old child, received twenty-five lashes in Truro jail. The flogging was administered with a cat-o'-nine-tails borrowed from a man-of-war. The wretch moaned and writhed during his richly-deserved flogging and, judging by his sufferings, will never again be guilty of a like offence.

Mayor McGee, of Oshawa, Ont., engaged in the real estate, loan and investment business, has failed. Already there are $36,000 liabilities known, and it is estimated there are $20,000 more not given or enumerated. The nominal assets are $7,000. The debts of the insolvent are principally due to farmers, in amounts of from $1 to $1,000; but the residents of Whitby, Oshawa and Toronto also creditors of the estate. Several widows are left penniless by the failure. The heaviest individual loser is Principal Kirkland, of the Normal school, Toronto, who gave McGee $10,000 for investment.

Dr Frank Krauz, a well known practitioner, and formerly a popular journalist, died suddenly of heart disease in Toronto, Thursday. The deceased was about 38 years of age. For a number of years he was night editor of the Toronto Mail, and it was while occupying this position that he studied medicine. He attended college in the day time and at night managed the concerns of a great newspaper, and with all that tremendous strain upon him he succeeded in carrying off the gold medal in his graduating year. Many Toronto people will miss the kind hearted and clever man who has been so suddenly called away.

Langley Council.

Council met at the town hall on Saturday, Oct. 5, at 1:30 o'clock. Present reeve and Couns. Houston, Davey, Norris, Yeomans and Mufford. The minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. COMMUNICATIONS: From Mayor Oppenheimer, inviting the council to be present at the official reception of his excellency the governor-general. On motion, the reeve, Coun. Davey and the clerk were appointed as a delegation to attend on behalf of the council. From Surrey council, anent bridge on Nicomekl; clerk instructed to renew protest against bridge being built without a draw, and also to communicate with the authorities at Ottawa on the subject. Petitions from L. McClugan, T. H. Tibbs, G. Bartholim and others were laid over until next meeting. Clerk was instructed to ascertain if the section lines in township 9 are gazetted as public roads, and if not to apply to have them gazetted. The following contracts were awarded: James road, to T. Sincock, at $35; section line, to H. Vivian, at $20. Coun. Mufford reported having let work to following amount: on Brown's road, to R. Brown, at $40; on McGillivray's road, to A. McGillivray, at $50. The following accounts were ordered paid: McGillivray, $50; R. Brown, $40; D. Harris, $31; D. Stewart, $14; D. McRae, $67.50; McDermott, $40; W. Davey, $10; G. Goddard, $30; and W. Emptage, $3. Tenders were ordered to be called for at next meeting for enlarging the graveyard and for bridge on town line. Coun. Davey gave notice of motion to appoint a constable; Coun. Houston to bring in a by-law for the better observance of the Sabbath. Council adjourned until the first Saturday in November.

Saturday Evening, Oct. 19, 1889.

A writer in search of a subject would find one capable of filling a volume in the relation of art to advertising. Advertising to be a success must be systematic and persistent. Without these qualities great benefit is hardly to be looked for. In addition to this, if the advertiser can hit upon a striking means of telling the public what he has to sell, so much the better, but this is not an essential, as witness the case of Holloway's pills. The success of that patent medicine is due, we may say, entirely to persistent and methodical advertising, in season and out; but, at any rate until recently, the announcements in the papers were of the ordinary kind, and there was no attempt at unusual display in the way of cuts. But the advertisement was always there, hence its success, for a person might be sure that as soon as he took up his morning or evening paper he would find the announcement of Holloway's Pills staring him in the face. When the persistent advertiser calls in the aid of art, he is doubly armed, and almost forces the public to look at what he has to inform them, and in the majority of cases the man who looks once looks a second, and perhaps many, times, and the end of it is that he buys the article advertised "to see if there is any good in it anyway." It is only of late years that the master hands of first rate artists have been called into requisition to aid the merchant in bringing his goods prominently before the public eye; but it is astonishing with what rapidity the idea has spread. When Messrs. Pears commissioned Mr. Marks, R. A., to paint his well known picture "Cleanliness is next to Godliness," and then placarded every hoarding in London with excellent reproductions of the work, people shook their heads and said that fools and their money were soon parted. Since then the same firm have had no reason to regret their venture, but on the contrary, so successful was it that again and again have some of the greatest living painters and sculptors been called into requisition to assist them. Thousands of fine steel engravings of various notabilities have been scattered broadcast, and Mr. Marks' picture has been followed by others, at immense cost, including Sir Everett Millias' portrait of his little grandson, a fac simile of which is at the present time to be seen in every drug store in the city. What this one firm has done on a large scale, others have done in a less degree, until it has become the proper thing for artists of repute to assist the advertiser. Only recently, at great cost, another soap maker bought a picture from the walls of Burlington House, and has issued the engraving under the title of "So clean," thus furnishing us with a first-class work of art by Mr. Frith. We may regard this departure as being a decided step forward in the work of education, for few men can long be familiar with good pictures without being the better for it, and the assertion that "flowers and pictures are the most humanizing things men can possess," although perhaps a trifle exaggerated, is not without truth.

One of the ticklish questions to be settled by the Episcopal convention now in session at New York is the position of the colored race in the church. In two dioceses colored representatives have been declared ineligible to sit in synod. It is hardly necessary to say that the dioceses in question are in the South. A few weeks ago the colored Episcopalians met and decided to ask the coming convention to declare whether or not these dioceses had acted properly. "Is it in accordance with the doctrines taught by the church," asked the colored clergymen, "that when men have once been admitted to the sacred ministry or communion of the church any restriction should be made in the spiritual or legislative rights of a colored man which would not be made in those of a white man?" The Episcopal church, however, is not alone in its color line difficulty. Nothing but the color question keeps the Presbyterian churches of the North and South asunder. The Northern church favors the recognition of both races. The Southern church, on the other hand, will only receive colored ministers provisionally, or until an independent colored Presbyterian church be organized. No colored man has complete legislative rights in the Southern church, and Rev. Dr. Vaughan, of Virginia, explains why. He says: "The number of the colored people in the South will give them the constitutional control of the property and the constitutional government of the church if organized on the principle of a mixed church. It will also be followed by a certain amount of social mixture, which in lapse of time will be followed by a mixture of blood, with all its degrading and disastrous consequences." Another clergyman argues that the color line is drawn by the Almighty. It is, therefore, a sin to break through it. To prevent the break social relations must be avoided, and to avoid social relations the colored people must not be given a footing equal to that of the whites in the church. This gentleman must have been one of the pro slavery preachers who found in the Bible not only a justification of the restriction of human liberty and the traffic in humanity, but positive commands that the colored race be enslaved. In the Southern Congregational church, also, the race question is prominent. In Georgia the church is divided into two Congregational bodies. One is called the Congregational association, and is colored; the other is called the Congregational conference, and is white. The former is ready to unite with the latter; but the conference declines union with the church of the ostracised race. An eastern cotemporary, commenting on this state of things, says: "In all the churches concerned the chief cause of the trouble is prejudice, an unchristian feeling born of the wickedness that made the colored people involuntary servants. It will take years to overcome this intolerance. Were the good Christians who entertain it to look back to the ancient church and to remember that some of its leading men—among them, in all probability, Athanasius—were colored, they would feel that, inside the church at least, they have something in common with the other race."

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

Certain officials in Switzerland have shown symptoms of irritant poisoning, which have resulted, it is believed, from handling some new bank-notes printed in green.

Japan has 31 schools of medicine, one of dentistry, and two of veterinary surgery. The University of Tokio graduates an average of 100 medical students yearly. Tokio alone has over 20 hospitals and numerous active medical societies.

At the late British Association meeting, Mr. J. A. London called attention to fibrous peat as a material for brown paper, wrappers and millboards, stating that five mills are now using it. The cost of the fiber is 50 per cent. less than wood, and it is very much stronger.

M. Ortolan states that the proportion of nicotine in tobacco is less when the stalks grow close together and the leaves are numerous; and that is the reason why the Frenchman poisons himself more than the German, who is a greater smoker. The number of leaves to the stalk is limited by government in France, and French tobacco has as much as six per cent. of nicotine.

A Hint from Russia.—A school-car has been fitted up for the Transcaspian Railway in Russia. It will visit districts not provided with schools, stopping at each place as long as may be deemed necessary. In our owa country where home study is so popular, might not a useful application of the same idea be found in traveling laboratories for special scientific instruction?

An Ancient Monster.—According to Nilsson, the great Greenland or right whale (Balenr mysticetus, L) weighs over 100 tons— as much as 88 elephants or 440 bears. Yet the remains of the fossil whale (B. prisca) found on the coast of Ystad, in the Baltic, indicate that the ancient animal, although not more than 50 or 60 feet long must have had a body 27 times larger and heavier than that of the common or right whale.

A Table Lighted by a Fountain.—The novel display at the Paris Exhibition is likely to lead decorators to make much use of luminous fountains—that is fountains lighted up in various colors by electric lamps concealed beneath. The Grand Hotel at Paris has already adopted the idea; and now an ingenious amateur in science, M. Gaston Menier, who had already distinguished himself by making an electric railway serve at table in the place of waiters, has placed a beautifully illumined fountain, surrounded by flowers, in the centre of his dining table.

Spontaneous Combustion of the Body.—Dr. G. Archie Stockwell, F. Z. S., states that, within a period of two centuries, some 76 cases of catacausis ebriosus—the disease of so-called spontaneous human combustion—have been reported in medical and medico-legal literature. Many circumstances are connected with these cases that are mysterious, to say the least, and unlike those of ordinary accidents by fire. This combustion, for instance, is chiefly confined to the fluid repositories of the body—abdomen, chest and head; the clothing, instead of being destroyed, suffers only an immediate contact with the fire; and the residue of catacusis is of peculiar character, resembling the product of distillation rather than of direct combustion. In most cases the evidence points rather to external than to spontaneous ignition, the body being in a combustible state. The accumulated cases—including several within the last five or six years—have served to establish beyond cavil the fact that an abnormal combustibility of the body may supervene as the result of morbid changes, but this does not necessarily imply spontaneity or even ordinary ignitability. It has been shown that mere saturation with alcohol does not make the animal tissues inflammable. Of the many other explanations that have been suggested, that of the generation of inflammable hydrogen compounds by decomposition—which has been known to commence before death—seems to be supported by considerable evidence.

THE RAT'S WORST FOE.

How the Ferret Attacks and Vanquishes Rodents.

A Deadly Duel Between One of the Clumsy Weasels and a Pugnacious Rat—The Wonderful Tenacity of the Ferret's Hold.

Clearing rats out of several large buildings by the use of ferrets recently started some queer stories of the relations of the ferret and the rat, which have excited the derision of a retired rat-catcher—or rather rat-exterminator — says the Philadelphia Press. He is a man who has prosecuted his calling in all the large cities of the country and once had the honor of being employed by the Government to clean out the United States Treasury building at Washington.

"I see," he said, in telling his version of ferret vs. rat, "that some one has discovered that a rat won't fight a ferret, and that the moment the ferret gets close to him the rat gives up. That's a queer yarn for a truth-teller. Come along and I'll let you see for yourself. I'm out of the business, but I have a couple of ferrets, and I've an accommodating friend who'll lend me a couple of rats."

The two went to the ex-rat-catcher's residence, where he brought from the cellar a cage similar to those in which rat-exterminators carry their ferrets. Looking through the holes in the top of it all that could be seen were two pairs of small eyes, a brilliant, baleful green. They belonged to two brown ferrets of English stock, and were said by their owner to be of a superior breed. Wrapping the box in a piece of paper for appearance's sake, and punching some holes in it for the animals' sake, the ex-professor set out with the reporter for the residence of the friend who had rats in stock. On the way to the theater of experiment the man learned in ferrets and rats descanted on the minutiæ of his calling.

"You know a rat doesn't have to be taught that a ferret is his natural enemy, and he has a mortal terror of the little beast. If there is a ferret within a rod of a swarm of rats they'll all clear out and keep going for a mile to get to other quarters. You must know, too, that while a ferret's body looks big his head is the biggest part of him, and wherever his head can go the rest can follow easily.

"A ferret doesn't often catch a rat in a run, for the rat is fast and the ferret very slow. Sometimes they do catch one, and then it's hard work to get that ferret back. He'll load up on the rat's blood and go loafing around, instead of attending to business; stay in there, perhaps, to do some hunting on his own account. I've lost ferrets in stables, where they have wandered on into side runs, caught a rat or two, and laid out a future for themselves on the premises. Sometimes a ferret will come to his owner's whistle, but generally we have to keep a sharp lookout and pick them up as they follow the rats out of the hole. Well, here we are."

The two men entered a sporting resort; it was in the Kensington district. The ratter remarked: "Billy, I want to show this gentleman an experiment; let's have the little room." The little room was an apartment eight feet long and six feet wide, and utterly without furniture. The window-sills were high and broad, and these were used for seats.

The proprietor of the establishment absented himself a minute or two and returned with a large rat in his leather-gloved hand and when the door was closed dropped it squeaking on the floor. From a box on his lap the ratter, also with his right hand in a leather glove, drew a ferret and dropped it on the floor. The three watchers of the impending tragedy were sitting with their feet swinging a foot and a half from the bare, unincumbered floor.

When the rat had first been released it had scampered around the wainscoting, looking for escape, but when the ferret was dropped it stopped a moment as if in consternation and then made for the corner farthest from the enemy. As the ferret advanced, stealthily, his neck stretched and his nose protruding, the rat made a break and got farther away. The ferret had some difficulty in following the rapid motions of the rat on account of the room being light, but he kept the trailing process up until within four or five minutes from the start the rat was in a corner and whichever way he turned the ferret turned, too, to head him off. This process was kept up until not more than a foot separated them, and then the rat deliberately raised on its haunches and prepared to fight. The ferret drew nearer until they were six inches apart, and, rearing up as the other had, there was an actual sparring match. The ferret made a plunge for the rat's jugular, but the latter dodged and bit back viciously.

In an instant the two fought ferociously, the rat making no attempt at escape, but fighting for dear life. They separated and again on their haunches had another sparring bout. The rat left an opening, and, quick as an expert boxer, the ferret took advantage of it, made a rattlesnake sort of dart with his head, and seized the rat just behind the ear. There was a lively wrestling-match, but the rat could not loose his antagonist's hold. He tried to bite, but the hold was such that he couldn't and very soon it was all over with his ratship. To exhibit the tenacity of the ferret's hold the rat man picked up the rat by the hind leg and rat and ferret hung dangling in the air. The ferret was picked up in like manner, but he would not break his hold.

A second rat was let loose with the second ferret and the performance was repeated to a nicety, with the exception that this rat was a trifle more pugnacious and fought harder for his life.

STRIKING RESEMBLANCES.

United States Senators Who Look Like Other Statesmen.

Visitors to the Senate galleries, says the Washington Critic, can not fail to notice the singular resemblances between half a dozen prominent members of the present Senate and as many other conspicuous figures in the country's political history.

Occasionally Senator Eustis, of Louisiana, strikes an attitude, or his features catch a peculiar light, which renders his resemblance to Blaine so striking that it is generally recognized and commented upon. Although so widely separated in latitude, the statesmen from the extreme North and South are so much alike in appearance that it is sometimes difficult to convince a visitor that the "man from Maine" is not again in the Senate.

Senator Blair's resemblance to Hayes has often been commented upon, and increases with the marks that time is making upon the philanthropic New England Senator. The two men might readily be mistaken for each other. The resemblance which in the case of Eustis and Blaine does not extend further than to the similarity of feature and expression, in this case extends to manner, voice, form and bearing, and is in all respects seemingly almost perfect.

The similarity between the face and form of Senator Cullom and the portraits of Lincoln, heightened by the fact of their similar geographical origin, has been the subject of remark for many years and has done its full part in shaping the political destinies of Mr. Cullom.

Senator Morrill's resemblance to Charles Sumner is one of the most notable of the Senate likenesses, owing to its singular fidelity to every detail of countenance, color of eye, shade of hair and even to the tones of the voice and ease of gesture.

To the visitor who is seeking resemblances there is little difficulty in noticing a striking likeness between the profile of Senator Gorman and that of Washington as shown by many of the medallion portraits. This resemblance is sufficiently apparent to have been often remarked, and when the face of the Maryland Senator is in perfect repose and the expression one of attentive thought, it affords certainly the closest resemblance to the face of Washington of any now in public life.

The new Senators have displaced several of the Senate gallery of living likenesses, but have added one of the most striking to the number—it is that of Senator Davis, of Minnesota, whose resemblance to Ben Butler is so great as to impress itself upon the most casual observer.

A MODERN LEANDER.

Unique But Rather Damp Courtship of a Romantic Pair.

A few evenings ago, as I was walking down Wall street to take the ferry for Brooklyn, my attention was arrested by a young gentleman going the same way on the other side of that thoroughfare. His face was handsomer than common, his step was as graceful as a young fawn's, his hair, which was long and inclined to curl, gave him rather a picturesque look. He wore a suit of dark blue which fitted him perfectly. But these were not the things which caused me to keep my eyes fixed upon him. It flashed upon me as I sighted him that his dark blue suit concealed another of an unusual sort. There was that in the way he carried himself, notwithstanding his springing step, which suggested some concealed panoply. I conjectured that he might be bound for Brooklyn to attend a masquerade party, and that having thrown aside his blue suit in the dressing-room he would appear in the drawing-room as Richard Cœur de Lion or one of the knights that fought at Agincourt. While I was thus speculating the young fellow and I reached the wharf. But he didn't enter the ferry-house; he turned and walked up the dock.

So I dismissed him from my mind, bought my ticket and went on the boat. Pretty soon there was a commotion. Something in the water arrested the attention of passengers whose eyes were sharp. Gazing where they pointed I beheld the young fellow from whom I had parted a few minutes previous lustily swimming out in the direction of Brooklyn. He was perhaps one hundred feet north of the ferry-boat; he took a long, slow stroke and it must have been evident even to the dullest observer that he would have resented any assistance. I noticed that the men who were in charge of the boat seemed to take but a languid interest in the spectacle. One might have thought that a man swimming from New York to Brooklyn was an everyday sight to them. Addressing the one who seemed the best natured, I inquired if he knew who the swimmer was, if he had ever seen him before?

"No," was the reply, "I don't know who he is, but for the last few weeks I've several times seen him going to Brooklyn that way."

"Perhaps," I suggested, "he is a professional diver whose work takes him into the North river but whose home is in Brooklyn. By swimming across the East river he saves ferriage."

"He ain't no diver," remarked my companion, in decided tones. "If you got a close look at him you'll see that he looks a blanked sight more like a professional dude."

By this time the boat was entering the slip on the Brooklyn side. My curiosity having become thoroughly aroused, I determined, if possible, to find out who the swimmer was and what made him do it. Accordingly, leaving the boat, I took my position on the Heights just above the ferry-landing waiting for the bold swimmer to land. When I reached the Heights he seemed to be about half way over. Presently the shadows gathered over the river and I lost sight of him. I had gone to Brooklyn for two objects, one of business for the Tribune and one of pleasure for myself. Having transacted by business I hastened to a reception which was being given at the house of one of my old friends on —— avenue. I hadn't been long in the house before I noticed an immensely pretty girl. And when I glanced enviously into the face of the young fellow upon whose arm she was lightly leaning, I saw, to my amazement, that he was the swimmer whom I had lately left in the East river. Naturally, I lost no time in getting to my hostess to find out who this mysterious merman was, and why he did it, and all about it.

The particulars which Mrs. —— imparted to me were so novel and interesting that I urged her to allow me to print them. At first she stoutly demurred, but finally consented on my agreeing to suppress names. This is substantially what she told me; I give her own language, as far as I can recall it:

"The young man's name is Richard ——. He lives on Madison avenue, New York. He graduated at —— College, class of 1884. If you are familiar with boating matters, you will recollect that he pulled the stroke oar in the crew of that year. His fondness for all sorts of athletic sports would seem to be as great to-day as it ever was. Last summer he met the young lady with whom you saw him this evening. Never mind her name—we'll call her Juliet. Her father was at one time professor of Persian literature in an English college, and I am told was essentially a dreamer and a mystic. Her mother, the daughter of a famous prima donna, was born in France, within sight of the Rouen Cathedral.

"Juliet, herself, was born at Patmos. From his earliest youth her father had yearned for the opportunity of visiting the island whereon the apostle had had his sublime and magnificent vision. His imagination kindled whenever he thought of the island and the first year or two of his married life he spent cruising about the Grecian Archipelago, with headquarters at Patmos, among the simple fishermen.

"Perhaps it is not so strange, considering her parentage and her birthplace, that the girl should be such a romantic creature. Of course all nice girls are more or less romantic, but Juliet has as positive a passion for romance as—well, as Edison has for scientific discovery.

"Her mother has been a widow for a number of years, and it was while mother and daughter were summering on Cape Ann, near Pigeon Cove, last summer, that Richard became acquainted with them. He fell in love with Juliet—all the young men who were on the Cape that season were wild about her. But it was by no means so certain that Juliet loved Richard. He must have looked romantic enough, to be sure, with his brilliant eyes and his long hair. But Richard is not what might be called a romantic talker; his conversation lacks frescoes and his profession (he is a lawyer) is not at all suggestive of romance. I have sometimes suspected that Richard might have won her directly after meeting her had he hired a vessel and borne her forcibly away from Cape Ann without stopping to ask her own or her mother's opinion of such proceeding. Of course after the vessel had got well under way he would have fallen at her feet and sworn that it was the might of her fair beauty that made him do it, and that he would proceed to plunge a dagger in his heart and jump overboard if she did not consent to allow him to make for the nearest port and marry her. But he didn't perform this romantic coup d'etat and he didn't get her. However, none of the other fellows got her. In September she returned to Brooklyn, and he to New York. He saw a good deal of her during the fall and winter, and I have good reason for believing that the more he saw her the more surely he became convinced that she was his fate, and that he could not win her in any conventional way. But just what to do he couldn't think. He was a good deal puzzled, but by no means hopeless. He realized that she must know that he loved her and the fact that such knowledge did not induce her to rebuff him he interpreted in his favor. It seemed as clear as it had been at Cape Ann that no man was preferred before him.

"Well, such were the circumstances when, one evening in the first week in May, he came over from New York and accompanied her to a meeting of a reading and dramatic club. Brooklyn has a number of such organizations, you know. During the evening Juliet was asked to read something, and consented, after a little urging, to do so. A volume of Hood lay on the table beside her. She is a beautiful reader, and gave the poem which she selected with inimitable spirit. I had the pleasure of listening to her and was charmed. Being a newspaper man, and newspaper men knowing every thing, you are doubtless familiar with the poem. It is the soliloquy of a discontented damsel, who has discovered, or thinks she has discovered, that romance has vanished from the earth. Every verse, and there are a good many of them, ends with her sigh:

There's no romance in that!

As Juliet was reading it occurred to Richard that the poem was meant for him. Before she had finished a dazzling plan of winning her flashed upon him, and the more he thought it over the better it pleased him. So as he bade Juliet adieu that evening he said to her: 'Miss ——, I thoroughly approve of the sentiments of the poem which you read, and I have determined to do what I can, in my own poor way, to revive the spirit of romance. Hereafter, when you permit me the honor of coming to see you, I shall use neither the conventional ferry-boat nor the prosaic bridge. I shall cross the East river as Leander used to cross the Hellespont when he went calling upon Hero.'

"If Juliet had not been so thoroughly enamored of romance this speech of Richard's must have struck her as just a shade funny. As it was she was immensely delighted.

"'How perfectly lovely!' she exclaimed when Richard had unfolded his new scheme of romantic, if not rapid transit. 'Leander has always been one of my heroes. How true and strong must have been his love for Hero to inspire him for her sake to brave the mad currents of the Hellespont night after night. You must admit, Mr. ——, that the figure which that dauntless youth presents to one's fancy is infinitely more winning than that of the modern young gentleman who is transported to his lady-love hanging to the strap of a car or crushed in the motley crowd of a ferry-boat.'

"'I don't believe,' Richard replied, 'that Leander ever would have been equal to the feat if he hadn't been sure that Hero cared for him.' You may well believe there was a light in Richard's eyes as he spoke that was not to be mistaken. It was as though he had declared, 'if you don't love me or won't love me, Juliet, then I shall only be able to drown as I come swimming to you through the East river. But if you love me the swimming of a dozen East rivers to reach your side would be an easy task.'

"'Of course Hero cared for him,' answered Juliet, with her eyes firmly fixed on the chandelier over their heads. 'None but the brave deserve the fair, and I imagine that they generally get their deserts.' Then her eyes came down from the chandelier and met his a moment. And fired by their tender glances I am sure that Richard felt equal to swimming the entire three-quarters of the earth's surface, which, if I remember my geography correctly, is all water. And so you understand why it happened that you saw my young friend in the East river this evening. Since the 11th of May, when he had this conversation with Juliet, he has come over to see her frequently and every time he has swum over from New York. Her home is on the Heights just over the water, not far from — street. After leaving the river a quick run of three minutes brings him to the garden in the rear of the house. In the garden is a bit of an arbor, which he has appropriated and turned into a dressing-room. He enters it a dripping merman; he emerges in evening dress, with a flower in his buttonhole, and greets Juliet, whom he finds waiting for him just beyond on the broad piazza.

"Well, that's about all there is to tell. Her mother and she go abroad in the fall and our young friends, in accordance with Juliet's conception of the romantic proprieties, are to be married at Rome next Christmas Eve. I asked her the other day why she chose that time and place. She replied that Italy was the land of romance, and that Rome was the Queen of Italy, and that Christmas Eve was the loveliest eve in the calendar. Just now she is wild about falconry and Richard has promised her to devote a portion of their honeymoon to teaching her to hunt with a hawk. Then, of course, she will have her portrait painted with a falcon on her wrist. Perhaps you read the other day in the Brooklyn Eagle an account of a correspondence which was being carried on by a Brooklyn belle and her New York lover by means of carrier-pigeons. No names were mentioned, but I happen to know that Juliet and Richard were the persons referred to. He himself told me of the origin of the correspondence. A few weeks ago, in course of a fervent protest against the prosaic, Juliet quoted to him a verse from that poem of Hood of which I spoke. I think I can give you the lines. Let's see:

"'Of light guitar I can not boast,
He never serenades,
He writes and sends it by the post,
He doesn't bribe the maids;
No stealth, no hempen ladder—no,
He comes with loud rat-tat
That startles all of Bedford Row—
There's no romance in that!'

"The result was that Richard concluded that instead of sending it by the post he would organize a romantic carrier-pigeon service."

Such, in substance, were the facts of this interesting episode of New York and Brooklyn life which I obtained from Mrs. ——, and which, with her kind permission, are printed in the Tribune. Naturally I asked her how she came to know so much of the affair. She replied that she had known both of these young people since they were children and that they were constantly at her house. "Besides," she added, with a laugh, "I am like Dean Swift's servant, I'm good at drawing inferences."—N. Y. Tribune.

THE SHARK'S HABITS.

The Fish Is a Great Coward in the Presence of Living Men.

The author of "On Blue Water," a man who had sailed much on tropical seas and had many opportunities for studying the nature and habits of fish, treats the common belief that the shark is a man-eater as a superstition. Man does not have his dwelling in the water, and it is only rarely that, by accident or design, he exposes himself to the attacks of the shark. It is not likely, therefore, that he was intended to be the natural and preferred food of the fish. The writer referred to above says that he had never conversed with any one who had seen a living man attacked by a shark. He gives an amusing account of a meeting between a black sailor and a shark, which makes it appear that this fish is a great coward in the presence of man.

His ship, an English one, was lying in Bombay harbor. An enormous white shark lay sluggishly on the surface of the water only a few feet from the ship's side. The sailors were making such remarks as "He's got his eye on us for supper," and when this opinion was doubted, they challenged the incredulous to put a foot in the water within the shark's reach.

A negro made a bet of a pound of tobacco that he would jump into the water just as he was. The bet was taken; and, without removing any of his clothing, the man jumped from the rail plump upon the monster's back. The fish was large enough to have swallowed two men, but his fright overcame any longing for human flesh. The narrator says:

"I have seldom seen any thing so scared as that shark was; he plunged off, half his body out of the water at times, leaving a wake like a paddle-boat behind him which could be traced for three or four hundred yards where he dived, and never showed himself alongside our ship again."

This instance would, perhaps, be met with the objection that sharks show a preference for white men to feed upon. This common notion has been adopted from observing that the colored South Sea Islanders spend much of their time in the water, wholly indifferent to the sharks which swim around them. If the shark is really partial to white victims, he probably selects them from sight, not from taste.

When the shark gets a taste of human food, he no doubt experiences unusual delight, and from that time on is a ferocious man-hunter.

The case is much the same with the shark as with the tiger. Not one of a thousand of either of those creatures stands any chance of ever tasting human flesh, and before having done so they both stand in mortal fear of the face of man.

In the duel between De Witt Clinton and John Swartwout back of Weehawken, in 1802, Clinton hit Swartwout five times, and each time Swartwout demanded another shot. Once he was hit in the arm, then in the leg, then in the finger, and finally somewhere else; but, while struggling on the ground in great pain, he insisted that he should have another chance, though his antagonist was as yet uninjured. In view of such ridiculous persistency Mr. Clinton finally cast his pistol on the ground and walked off, with the remark that he had no patience with a man who did not know when either his wounded honor or his wounded body was satisfied.

Bryan O'Lynn had no boots for to wear,
So he came to Westminster to buy him a pair.
"I'll have one pair of thick ones and one pair of thin,
If I can find J. Rousseau's," says Bryan O'Lynn.

He hunted the stores all along the main route,
Says he, "The right one I've not yet found out.
I want J. Rousseau—I'll buy only from him,
For he sells the cheapest," says Bryan O'Lynn.

He stepped a little west of McKenzie street,
He met Rousseau's sign—sure it was a great treat;
He lifted the latch, and Jim stood within.
"I've found it at last," says Bryan O'Lynn.

We showed him both Calf Boots, Kip and Cowhide,
The ones we praise mostly, without seams at the side.
We have Boots of all kinds, from Quebec and Berlin;
"Sure you have boots for the million," says Bryan O'Lynn.

He bought him his boots, which of course were no trash,
He paid down the money, for we sell only for cash;
To the public he says, "Be not taken in,
But buy from J. Rousseau," says Bryan O'Lynn.

"If there is a leak in the toe or side of your shoe,
Just take it to Rousseau, that's all you need do;
He will peg it or patch it just while you are in,
And the charge seems like nothing," says Bryan O'Lynn.

"The most delightful weather of the whole year," is the general expression on the streets these days.

Walker & Co. have Sapperton Lots near New Hospital and Ross-Maclaren Mills, at old prices. *

Holy Trinity church will be lighted with gas in future. Numerous other improvements have been added.

The Dominion government will likely re-build a retaining wall at the scene of the recent Quebec disaster.

The str. Princess Louise left for Victoria this morning with 35 passengers and a full load of farm produce.

The Fairy Queen brought up a large load of freight and a number of passengers from the North Arm to-day.

The str. Adelaide arrived down from up river ports to-day with a few passengers and a full load of farm produce.

The steamer Dunsmuir arrived from Nanaimo this afternoon with a full cargo of coal and a number of passengers.

Bargain hunters will do well to look through W. & G. Wolfenden's stock of Dry Goods, Hats and Clothing, now clearing at cost. *tc

The provincial voters' list for Westminster city, corrected up to Oct. 15th, is now printed, and contains the names of 950 persons.

The Park lane arch is to be removed to the entrance of Queen's park, where it will greatly improve the appearance of things in general.

Victoria makes a good showing in September for healthiness, as compared with other Canadian cities. The ratio per thousand is twenty-five.

Salmon trout are very numerous in the river at present, and in some instances the fishermen are catching more of these fish than of salmon.

A scow load of brick from Winger's new yard, on Parsons' channel, was towed to this city last night. They will be used on the Bushby block.

As will be seen by an adv. in another column a competent engineer is wanted for the steamer Fairy Queen, plying between this city and the North Arm.

In the exhibition prize list Mr. S. J. Thompson, not Mr. A. Mountain, should have been awarded first prize for the best collection of photographs.

Sermons will be preached from the following texts to-morrow at St. Paul's R. E. church: Morning—"Actions are Weighed"; evening—"Come and See."

Cross & Poingdestre have just received from Montreal another consignment of the finest grades of pipes, cigars and tobacco. A call will convince. *1w

To Farmers.—Messrs. Woods, Turner & Gamble make a specialty of lending money on farming lands; any amount from $100 to $20,000, according to security. oc17m

The steamer Irving got off Sea-Bird Bar at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and proceeded immediately to Hope where she loaded 140 head of cattle for Westminster.

The crossing on the east side of Mary street has been laid, and the sidewalk on the north side of Agnes street, from Mary street east, has been raised to its proper level.

W. H. Vianen shipped 100 bbls. of fresh packed salt salmon to Hunt Barnes & Co., Montreal, to-day. He will ship as many more carloads as possible before the salmon run ends.

The practice lacrosse match at Queen's park this afternoon was well attended and the men showed up in excellent form. The match was witnessed by a large number of spectators.

The secretary of the Victoria Football Club has notified the secretary of the Westminster club that the Victoria team will visit the Royal City on November 23d, and play a champion match

Strickland & Co. to-day sold two magnificent buggies, one to Gilley Bros., New Westminster and one to Asker Westermark, of Ladners. People seem to appreciate enterprise and a good article. *

All accounts against the celebration committee must be handed in to the general secretary not later than Wednesday next, as the books will be closed on that date and the affairs of the committee finally wound up.

The Westminster Building society's drawing for the thirteenth appropriation of $1,000 will be held at the court house on Saturday evening, 26th inst., at eight o'clock. Members in arrears are requested to pay up before that date.

G. J. Burnett, a pupil of Prof. Toms, of England, and recently of the Chicago Oratorio Society, has an advertisment elsewhere, stating that he is prepared to receive pupils for instrumental music, at the corner of Mary st. and Queen's ave.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

The special prize given by Mr. R. J. Armstrong, at the provincial exhibition, for the best driving horse, was won by Mr. L. Williams of this city. Owing to this prize not being awarded till the last day of the fair, mention of it was overlooked.

Look out for bargains to-morrow (Saturday) night at Trapp's auction mart, in furniture new and second hand, cook stoves, boots and shoes, ready made clothing, chamber sets, and 500 house plants in full bloom, in pots. Sale at 7 o'clock. *

Wm. B. McDougall, an old-time newspaper man, formerly of Vancouver, is dying at the hospital at Spokane Falls. Mr. McDougall is a Canadian, son of the Hon Wm. McDougall, and was for some time editor of the News-Advertiser of Vancouver.

On Tuesday evening next, at the City Hall, the medals won by our athletes in the celebration matches will be publicly presented by the lady mayoress and other ladies. This event will be a notable one, and should be attended by the public en masse.

The match for the $10 prize commences this morning at the shooting gallery on Columbia street. A new target was received yesterday from Vancouver, and will be used for the match to-night. A large number are expected to take part in the match.

The immense movement of freight at present gives the regular lines of the C. P. N. Co. more than they can do, and extra steamers are called into requisition several times each week. The steamer Rithet arrived in port to-day, and will load two carloads of hogs and 140 head of cattle for Victoria. She will leave port to-morrow morning.

Lots 4 and 29, block 7 (Clarkson property), Montreal, Melbourne, Clement and St. Patrick streets, subdivided into 33 lots, are now on the market at prices within the reach of all. Parties desiring fine residence lots will do well to call at once, before the choice ones are sold. The lots are mostly cleared. For sale by MAJOR & PEARSON. *tc

The first mattress in connection with the river mouth improvements was laid on Thursday, the second yesterday and the third to-day. Mr. Sinclair expects to sink seven matresses next week. At this rate the work will be accomplished in less than half the time occupied by similar improvements in the past. There is nothing like push and enterprise in matters of these kind.

News has been received from San Juan that a demented Greek is cruising around Orcas Island in an open boat. There is only one farm house that he visits and that is only when no strangers are present. He sleeps in the wet woods at night without shelter or bedding. His demeanour is peaceable, except when his desires are not appeased, and then he goes into a frightful rage, rolling off volley after volley of Greek oaths and American swearing. As yet he has offered no violence to any one. Nothing is known of his past life, name or occupation.

Political Pointers.

The writ for the election to fill the vacancy in the provincial parliament, caused by the resignation of Judge Bole, is daily expected to arrive, and when it does a hot campaign will be immediatly inaugurated. At present the announced candidates are prosecuting their canvas in a quiet way, but although little appears on the surface they are obtaining many promises of support when the polling day arrives. An exciting race for the vacant seat is promised to the interested public.

A Practical Joke.

An advertisement, emanating from Victoria, and without any signature, is appearing in most of the provincial papers (it will be found in THE WEEKLY BRITISH COLUMBIAN), in substance as follows: "The friends of the B. C. Agricultural Association are requested to meet at the city hall, Victoria, Thursday, Oct. 31, at 7:30 p. m. Business: Election of officers for the ensuing year." Somebody should inform those anonymous Rip Van Winkles who are responsible for the "ghastly goak" above, that the officers of the B. C. Agricultural Association have already been elected for the ensuing year.

Methodists Protest.

The Methodist missionary board, at its last meeting at London, Ont., passed the following resolution: "That whereas it has come to the knowledge of this board that out of three educational institutions established in British Columbia by the Dominion government two have been placed under the supervision of the Roman Catholic church and the other under the Anglican, while the Methodist church, with as many Indians under its care as the former and far more than the latter, has been ignored altogether, be it resolved that we enter a most earnest protest at this action of the Indian department at Ottawa." After a little discussion relative to the facts of the case the motion carried without dissent.

From Fort Simpson.

The C. P. N. Co's steamer Sardonyx, Capt. Meyer, arrived at Victoria Thursday afternoon from Fort Simpson and way ports. She brought no news in regard to the accident met with by the Alert, which probably occurred after she had passed Nanaimo. A young Indian named Henry Buller, who had his leg broken above the knee about a week ago, was brought down for treatment at the Royal Hospital. The unfortunate young man had been working in the saw mill at Alert Bay, where his leg was crushed by a rolling log.

The Sardonyx brought down 11,711 cases of salmon 8,711 from the River's Inlet cannery, and 3,000 from the Alert Bay. All the salmon is for English shipment by the Lebu and J. H. Hustede.

PERSONAL.

A. O. Hastings, of Vancouver, is in the city.

S. T. Mackintosh went over to Victoria this afternoon.

Mrs. D. Robson went over to Vancouver to-day to assist in the singing at the Methodist harvest festival services, in that city to-morrow.

J. A. Macdonald, of Kamloops, is staying at the Queens. He is taking a short holiday trip and finds the royal city a pleasant stopping place.

Dr. W. R. Hall, of Chatham, Ont., and a brother of Dr. Hall of this city, arrived from the east yesterday. He will go to Victoria to take the practice of his brother, Dr. Frank Hall, who is about to take an extended trip for his health.

The Hatchery.

The hatchery is now receiving and storing salmon ova at the rate of half a million per week, but this number will be largely increased between now and the finish of stripping operations. The number of ova in the hatchery at present is 1,750,000. Some difficulty has been experienced with the high water on Harrison River, where the ova is secured. A very large number of fish entered the traps but high water followed immediately afterwards, flooding the enclosure and allowing many of the fish to escape. There are, however, plenty of fish now in the traps to supply the 7,000,000 ova which it is the intention to hatch this year. Mr. Max Mowat is in charge of the stripping operations, and hopes to finish his labors before the disagreeable weather sets in.

The Hyacks' Grievance.

The members of the Hyack Fire company are exceedingly annoyed at the action of the celebration committee in reducing the amount of the prizes, claimed by them, from $475 to $250. They cad much to say on this subject on the streets to-day, and many of the members openly declared that the whole company would resign and the city would be left without a fire brigade in less than a week. The public feeling seems to be that the amount set aside for the firemen at the meeting last night was quite sufficient under the circumstances, when it is considered that no teams except the Hyacks entered for the contests. If the firemen can show that they have a genuine grievance against the committee the citizens will see that they obtain ample justice, but it would be very ill-advised under the circumstances to resign before submitting their case for public consideration.

The Rifle.

The team from the N. W. R. A., to meet the Vancouver Rifle Association's team at Brockton Point to-day, to shoot a friendly match, left the city in carriages shortly after 9 o'clock this morning. The team was composed of the following: Capt. Scoullar and Messrs. Mowat, Cotton, Turnbull, Fraser, A. Pittendrigh, Fletcher, G. Pittendrigh and Wilson. It will be noticed that both the Chamberlains, Proud and several other crack shots are absent. The following are the members of the Vancouver team: Dr. Bell-Irving and J. D. Stuart, P. N. Thompson and H. Collins; P. A. Grant and N. McColl; W. H. Forrest and H. A, Brocklesby; Wm. McGirr, spare man. The match will undoubtedly result in a victory for Vancouver, but Westminster hopes to put a stronger team in the field for the next match. The annual banquet of the V. R. A. will be held at the Windsor hotel this evening.

According to Agreement.

Some people, we are informed, have questioned the right, as well as the propriety, of the action of the celebration committee, last night, in voting the sum of $200 to Mr. S. T. Mackintosh for his services as general secretary of the celebration committee, and also for making a small appropriation to present a testimonial to Mr. J. S. C. Fraser, treasurer of the committee. With respect to the $200 paid to Mr. Mackintosh, as secretary, no fault can be found, as that was the salary agreed upon when the appointment was made. For two months preceding the celebration a vast amount of work had to be done to insure success. A thoroughly good and efficient secretary, who should make the celebration his chief business for the time being, was a necessity. That Mr. Mackintosh proved himself all that could be desired in that capacity, is questioned by no one, and the voting of the compensation agreed upon for his services was certainly perfectly in order. Mr. Fraser, as treasurer of the general fund, devoted a great deal of time, zeal and supererogatory service towards furthering the success of the celebration in many ways. Although no salary was attached to his office, the testimonial voted last night was well-earned and deserved.

The Celebration Committee.

The meeting of the celebration committee at the city hall last night was not largely attended, and a number of reports that should have been handed in failed to materialize, consequently the meeting only accomplished half its object. Mayor Townsend occupied the chair and reported verbally for the executive and reception committees, stating that everything had been satisfactorilly carried out. The printing committee reported having exceeded the amount of their appropriation by a small sum. This was not considered a serious matter and the report passed. The procession committee showed a surplus over expenses, as did also the boating and sailing committee. The sports committee also sowed a small balance to the good, but the music and dancing managers proclaimed a deficit, which was occasioned by the financial failure of the citizens' ball. The horse racing committee showed a handsome surplus, while the decoration committee was forced to exceed the amount of its appropriations. The fireworks committee kept within the amount allotted it, and, together with the foregoing reports, was adopted. The billeting committee's report was not considered satisfactory and it was referred back. The bill for the erection of the judges' stand, $62.90, was ordered paid, as was also the secretary's salary. A deficit of $291, in connection with the grand stand, was ordered paid. On motion the grand stand was handed over to the city on the understanding that the clubs have free use of it when matches are on. The firemen's tournament occasioned several hot disputes and a great many long speeches. The matter was finally disposed of by the passage of a motion granting the firemen $250, and even this amount many thought should not be paid, owing to the fact that the contests were between the men of the same company; and they had decided to equally divide the prize money, irrespective of winners. The treasurer's report, showing a small surplus, was read and adopted. It was the general opinion that the hard work performed by Mr. Fraser, on behalf of the celebration, was deserving of recognition, and a committee, consisting of Messrs. Thompson, Eckstein, Grant, McIntosh and Whyte, was appointed to arrange for a presentation to take place on Tuesday evening next. After passing a hearty vote of thanks to Mayor Townsend for his efforts on behalf of the celebration, the meeting adjourned.

The Largest Leek.

Mr. Josh Curry, of Haliburton st., brought to our sanctum specimens of leeks grown by him in his garden. They are of immense size, and would make a Welshman smile all over his face. The plants are 4½ in length, the white part being over 12 inches. At the root the bulb measured 10 inches in circumference. Several Welsh gentlemen who have seen the roots pronounce them much larger, firmer and clearer than any they had seen in Wales or any other country. The leek is regarded as a national emblem of Wales, and is highly prized as an article of food.—Free Press.

Delta Council.

Council met at the Delta town hall on Saturday, 12th of Oct. Present—Reeve and Councillors Arthur, Pybus and Tasker. Minutes of last meeting read and adopted. Petition from Hauck and others, referred to road committee. Communications from Mayor Oppenheimer and Thos. E. Ladner, received and filed. A number of accounts were passed and ordered paid. Jno. Milligan's contract for portion of Chilochken trunk road was accepted and ordered paid. Wm. Shivas, tender for corduroying the Oliver road was accepted. On motion, the contract for gravelling the Goudy road was cancelled and laid over for future consideration. The clerk was instructed to notify Wm. H. Burr, jr., to have the railing replaced without delay on the Burr bridge. On motion, the clerk was instructed to reply to the communication from D. Dove, also to notify Mr. McDonald to have his outlet bridged where it crosses the public road. The highway by-law passed first time as read. Wharf by-law passed second time as read. Floodgate and water course by-law passed second time as read. Coun. Pybus was empowered to have the trunk road repaired. A committee was appointed to select a site for a burying ground. Council adjourned till first Saturday in November at 2 o'clock.
