NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Montreal Witness points out for the first time since it was completed, 29 years ago, a train has run off the track in the Montreal bridge, and that this speaks volumes for the care of the Grand Trunk railway officials and employes. It is exceedingly fortunate that the accident happened to a slow freight train and not to a passenger express. In the latter event the bridge would have been partly destroyed and there would have been a frightful sacrifice of life.

An amusing instance of hero-worship is related in London. It concerns Mr. Gladstone and is told of a workingman. The latter not long ago entered a public library and asked for a book. On being questioned as to what he would like, he replied that he wanted "Omer." The assistant's next enquiry was whether he would have a Greek text or a translation, to which he received the following reply:—"I don't know nothing about a Greek 'un; what I want is to read what Mr. Gladstone reads." After half an hour's reading (with his fingers stuck into his ears to ensure against interruption) he said he thought it was "rum sort of stuff," and went out. He has not since returned to finish it.

An exchange says: Prince Henry brother of the German Emperor, cut a fine figure during his recent visit to Copenhagen. A correspondent contrasts him with the Russian heir apparent, who was also present, and says:—"Prince Henry is very fair with smooth hair, clear eyes, tall, and broad-chested. Dressed in his glittering naval uniform, decorated with the violet ribbon of the order of the elephant, he looks like a gladsome figure of light. The Czarevitch is the exact opposite of the Teuton sailor prince. Graceful, of medium height, with almond-shaped eyes, a pale, dark complexion, and close-cut hair, black as ink, he appears almost too serious in his simple uniform, although he can be extremely pleasant and amiable if he becomes interested in a subject of conversation."

The problem concerned in the disposition of prison labour, says an exchange, is a very perplexing one, and there has always been a strong opposition on the part of the working classes to any system which permits the labour of convicts being purchased by contractors. In the recent issue of the Forum Col Brockway discusses the subject and takes the occasion to protest against keeping prisoners idle. He declares that to prevent the prisoners from working is cruel and brutalizing; it prevents all possibility of reform, and indeed is demoralizing, so that the prisoners are sure to go back to society worse than when they left it. Our prisoners are now he says, for the most part, a curse to the country. No efforts are put forth to reform, but only to punish. This is brutalizing. The men at the head are seldom qualified for intelligent efforts to make men wiser and better.

The representative Jewish journals of America are discussing the expediency of holding the Sabbath on Sunday. The New York Hebrew Standard very forcibly says:—"The business interests, the inexorable necessity, which compels hundreds to labour on the Jewish Sabbath in order to support their families, have made the observance of the Sabbath the exception instead of the rule. Those you cannot preach to; they do not come to listen to you. You cannot argue with them, because your words will not provide the bread which they and their families must have." The Rochester Jewish Tidings boldly says the change must come. No doubt one day of worship for both Jew and Gentile would be to the advantage of both Christians and Jews, and as there is no Jewish law forbidding worship on Sunday, there should be no difficulty in transferring the Sabbath to Sunday.

A Brussels writer in the Weser-Zeitung places Mr. Henry M. Stanley by the side of Ulysses and Eneas, and implies that in the wanderings of the modern American, as in those of the ancient Greek and the Trojan, there was a woman in the case. Mr Stanley's Calypso, or Dido, was a young English lady whom he met in his forty-fourth year, when he was living in New Bond street. The hero who has faced such stupendous difficulties was too modest or shy to tell her of his love, but confided it to her brother, requesting him to be his mediator. He might have remembered the famous old American precedent, of which Longfellow made so telling a use in his "Miles Standish." The English lady refused to take the initiative; she would neither decline nor accept the lover who had not courage to "speak for himself," but promised to think over the problem. While she was thinking came the call to Stanley to march off to Africa for the liberation of Emin. His old love for Africa revived, and he left the English Calypso deliberating.

GREAT SLAUGHTER OF DERVISHES.

SUAKIM, Dec. 19.—The British have destroyed an Arab redoubt, the shells bursting in and around it, hardly giving the defenders a chance to escape, and causing great slaughter. A deserter who has just come in reports great havoc among the dervishes crowded in the trenches.

LABOUCHERE'S CABLE.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—A few weeks ago I announced the sale of the Murtly & Grand Tulloy estates in Perthshire, which extends over 34,000 acres, to Mr. Kennedy, of New York, who had agreed to buy the property from Sir Douglas Stewart on condition that he obtained possession in May next. No sooner had the preliminaries of the transaction been completed than Sir Douglas Stewart repented and now declines to complete the bargain. Mr. Kennedy has in consequence commenced proceedings in the court of sessions to compel him to do so, or if he finally refuses the execution of the contract to pay the sum of £30,000 as damages. Sir Douglas pleads that his written consent to the sale was obtained from him in undue and illegal manner, as being eighty-two years of age, and, being very infirm in health, yielded to the pressure brought to bear upon him at a moment when he was in a high nervous flurry and excited condition, and therefore weak in mind and facile to persuade.

LORD SACKVILLE.

I learn that Lord Sackville, who intends to pass the winter in the Riviera, will probably be appointed ambassador to Constantinople next spring when Sir Wm. White is going to retire on a pension. Lord Sackville's appointment, however, can only take place if the superior claims to the post of Sir Henry Drummond Wolf are ignored.

THE PRINCE OF WALES ANNOYED.

I understand the Prince of Wales is excessively annoyed at the economical reforms which are to be carried out in the Queen's household. His royal highness foresees that whenever the demise of the crown takes place the civil list will be resettled on a basis of new arrangements which will make a very considerable and disadvantageous difference to the next sovereign of these realms. Many of the reductions and reforms which will now be carried out were recommended privately by the late Prince Albert, thirty or forty years ago.

AN ELABORATE WORK.

I hear that the Queen is desirous that Sir Theo. Martin should undertake to write an elaborate biography of the late Emperor Frederick on the same scale as his life of the Prince Consort.

RECONCILED.

A reconciliation has been patched up between the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Austria, and the threatened divorce has been abandoned. The Crown Princess will remain at Vienna through the winter.

THE EMPEROR'S PORTRAIT.

Prof. Von Angai, who has just finished his full length portrait of Emperor William, has been summoned from Vienna to Nice to paint a portrait of an American lady. He was informed he might name his own price if he came on at once.

IN HONOR OF THE CZAR.

Anton Ruinstein has completed the cantata which he has composed to celebrate the preservation of the emperor and empress of Russia in the recent railway accident at Borki. It will be performed for the first time at a court concert to be given next month at the Winter Palace at St. Petersburg.

THE DIVORCE ACT.

Gladstone intends to occupy himself during the next few weeks by writing an article for one of the reviews on the working results of the divorce act.

A BRUTAL SULTAN.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—A despatch from Zanzibar says the sultan has signalized his return by a remarkable outburst of fanaticism which bodes no good to the peace and safety of his subjects or the security of European residents. Yesterday morning he ordered the instant beheading of four natives, charged with murder, but who had had no trial. The sentence was carried out in the public street with clumsy brutality, and the bodies were suffered to welter in their gore until evening. The sultan proposes to repeat this revolting spectacle every day for a week, there being 24 men and women under sentence of death. He announces he will be guided in future by Mahommedan law. What change this makes may be judged from the fact that capital punishment has been unknown in the island of Zanzibar for 25 years. Yesterday's butcheries, and threats of others to follow, have caused a profound sensation. The whites are shocked and the blacks are terrified. Col. Ewan Smith, British political agent, has waited upon the sultan and remonstrated against these cruelties. Common action will probably be taken by the British and other representatives of European powers to prevent their recurrence.

POWERLESS TO SAVE.

PARIS, Dec. 19.—The tribunal of the Seine, having been urged to save the Panama canal from bankruptcy, declared itself powerless to interfere with the due course of law.

A GREAT CITY.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—The Honorable Artillery Company, the oldest military body in the world, has been disbanded owing to the resignations of the Prince of Wales, Duke of Portland and others, and the withdrawal of the company's charter by the queen.

A NOVEL ENTERPRISE.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—An attempt is to be made to introduce salmon into the Ande, which flows into the Mediterranean near Narbonne. A hundred thousand ova of Sacramento salmon will be brought from America shortly and placed in the river.

MEETING CALLED.

PARIS, Dec. 19.—The shareholders of the Panama Canal Co. have been summoned to a general meeting to be held on Wednesday next. DeLesseps and temporary administrators, appointed by the court, will report on the condition of the Co.

MEN OF WAR AGROUND.

ZANZIBAR, Dec. 19.—The German men of war Leipseg, Mowe, Dogale and Carola, and one ship of the British squadron have been run aground on a dangerous reef. The news comes from the interior that the Massai tribe have entered into a fight against the Arusha tribes and are ravishing and devastating the country west of Kilimanojaro. This will seriously affect the position of the British East African Co.

LATE DESPATCHES.

HUNGRY HUNTERS.

NORWALK, Conn., Dec. 14.—Three unknown men have been on Konkeen island, three miles from shore, all day without food or shelter. They went there yesterday to shoot ducks and their boat got adrift. It is impossible to reach the island on account of a heavy gale.

KILLED BY A HOSE CART.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—An aged man named Willard Hodges attempted to cross the street this afternoon while engine No. 17 was proceeding to a small fire in Laumeister's flouring mills, and was knocked down by the hose cart, one wheel of which crushed his chest. He died a few minutes later. Bystanders exonerate the driver of the hose cart from blame.

UNRULY REDSKINS.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 14.—During the presentation of a border drama at Sandusky to-night by a traveling company, three Indians engaged in a quarrel in the dressing room. John Ungerer, stage manager, interfered. He was struck by a tomahawk and shot at and fired in turn at the Indians. He was forced to retreat, and his wife grabbed his pistol, discharging a blank cartridge in the face of one on the Indians, who fired at her three times, inflicting a slight wound. By this time the audience began to stampede and four policemen carried the redskins to prison, where they were locked up.

SULLIVAN AND KILRAIN.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Kilrain has accepted the challenge of Sullivan to fight to a finish for $10,000 a side. An unknown friend will cover Sullivan's money to-morrow. The fight will come off in six months or not at all. Charles Mitchell will act as Kilrain's manager. The parties will probably meet in Canada to arrange the preliminaries, or some other place outside the jurisdiction of the United States government. Kilrain's backer is unknown. Kilrain, after posting his money, said: "I would not make a match with Sullivan if I did not think I could whip him, and I guess when the battle is over people will agree with me that I am the champion. Sullivan has said some very hard things about me, but I won't talk about him now. I'll wait and meet him in the ring. I know I can do him up, and I'll make him sore for the way he has used me." Mitchell declined to say anything about the match with Dempsey more than that he would probably make a match with him to box ten rounds in the east and fight him to a finish in San Francisco.

FOG AND FIRE.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—Dense fog prevails England. The queen was delayed two hours to-day while on the way from Windsor to Osborne. The civil service stores here were burned this morning; damage, £40,000.

PEACE AT ANY PRICE.

PARIS, Dec. 18.—Owing to fears that the Panama canal company's difficulties may give rise to disorders on the isthmus, the French government has decided to send a man-of-war to Colon to protect French interest. It is expected the U.S. will send two.

AFTER THE STORM.

PANAMA, Dec. 18.—Railroad communication with Colon is still interrupted by the effects of the storm. The river at Chagres rose again Saturday, but, although still high, is subsiding. The canal works were considerably damaged.

SMUGGLED OPIUM RECOVERED.

SAND BEACH, Mich., Dec. 18.—Government agents have recovered 40 pounds more of smuggled opium. There are still 500 pounds which the officers are searching for.

COURAGEOUS SENATORS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—The Republican senatorial caucus this morning decided that the senate would continue in session without holiday or recess until the tariff bill is disposed of, letting the house take a holiday if it so desires. It was also decided to hold two sessions daily, beginning at 11 o'clock a.m. and 8 o'clock p.m.

THE LEADER RETIRES.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—It is said in the lobbies of the house of commons, and it is generally believed, that Mr. William Smith has made his last appearance in the house as the leader of the government party. It is perfectly plain to everybody that Mr. Smith has mismanaged the business entrusted to him. Many of the embarrassments with which the ministry now has to contend may be ascribed to his over zeal and lack of tact. It is thought probable that Mr. Smith will accept a peerage before parliament reassembles, and that next session will likely find him dozing on the benches of the house of lords, where his opportunity for doing harm will be almost altogether removed. The leadership of the house will doubtless fall to Mr. Goschen, though many members have already expressed their preference for Mr. Balfour in that capacity.

A LONDON SENSATION.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—The withdrawal by the queen of the warrant for the existence of the Honorable Artillery Company of London, the oldest military organization in England, has created a tremendous sensation in military circles. The company was established in 1737 and has had several offshoots, the principal one of which is the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston. The chief cause of the disruption of the parent body was an internal squabble which arose concerning the administration of its finances through the immediate cause was a disagreement with the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge, and other officials as to the company's joining the regular volunteer force involving an abandonment of its charter and a surrender of its recognized privileges. The organization owns an enormous amount of real estate and other property in the city which will possibly be divided among the members if an agreement as to its division can be reached.

The United States Protests Against European Countries Building Canals in Central America.

A TERRIBLE STORM.

MONTREAL, Dec. 19.—The fury of the storm which has been raging since Sunday was considerably spent at midnight. The foundry of King & Rogers has been wrecked by the fall of its 90 foot chimney, which crashed through the five floors of the building to the cellar, destroying all the machinery and causing $80,000 worth of damage. Tales of suffering are coming in from neighboring towns. Many people became lost in the drifts and were found insensible or badly frozen. The thermometer was 15 degrees below zero at many places and the wind blew between 40 and 60 miles an hour. Six farmers, two of whom were accompanied by their wives, and the others by their sons, left Coucherville, a short distance below this city yesterday afternoon with Christmas produce to cross the frozen river. The ice began to break up during the night and no trace of the unfortunate people has been found.

A NEW PRESIDENT.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 19.—The monthly meeting of the directors of the Baltimore & Ohio Railway to-day elected Chas. F. Meyer president, in place of Samuel Spencer. Meyer received 13 votes.

A YANKEE PROTEST.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Edmunds offered in the Senate and had referred to the committee on foreign relations to-day a resolution that the government of the U. S. will look with serious concern and disapproval upon any connection of any European government with the construction or control of any ship canal across the Isthmus Darien, or across Central America, must regard any such connection or control as injurious to the just rights and interests of the U. S., and as a menace to their welfare. Resolved, that the president of the U. S. be requested to communicate the expression of the views of Congress to the government of countries of Europe.

A PEACEFUL SETTLEMENT.

GALESBURG, Ills., Dec. 19.—Alex. Carner, of California, a brotherhood official, addressed the "Q" strikers here last night. The strikers refused to reveal what occurred but expressed confidence there would in the course of a few weeks be a peaceful termination of the strike. Carner goes to Burlington to-day.

DIED PENITENT.

HACKENSACK, N.J., Dec. 19.—John Myers Doremus was hanged in jail here this morning for the murder of a 19-year-old son, in June last, while the latter was defending his mother from the abuse of the murderer. Doremus died quietly and fully penitent.

A GREAT STRIKE THREATENED.

FORT DODGE, Ia., Dec. 19—The miners employed by the canal company have struck for an increase of wages. If their demand is not met 300 employees and other miners are prepared to go out and aid them.

VILLARD DENIES IT.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Henry Villard denies the current story that a syndicate controlling a capital of $8,000,000 has been formed by him to buy up and operate a large list of electric patents, including the stock ticker service and the Edison electric lighting and other inventions.

THE ALASKAN INQUIRY.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Testimony before the house committee on merchant marine and fisheries to-day, in regard to charges of immorality in Alaska and the Seal islands, was of a somewhat sensational character. Mr. Gravitt, special agent of the government for St. George's island, testified to the loose state of affairs and extensive prostitution throughout the island. The natives, he said, were encouraged in their vices by the employees of the Alaska Co., and corruption was prevalent among the latter, one of whom told Gravitt he could draw a second salary from the Co. if he would do as he was wanted to.

TOO MUCH WATER.

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 19.—The Lackawanna river overflowed last night and barns and outbuildings were carried away. People were forced to leave home in boats. Miles of railroad were submerged and destroyed.

BATTLE IN SAMOA.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Dec. 19.—Latest advices from Samoa state that King Mataafa's forces have fought a long, hard battle with the followers of Tamasese and have captured a large portion of the town of Atna. One hundred were killed and many wounded.

A lady from Syracuse writes: "For about seven years before taking Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, I suffered from a complaint very prevalent with our sex. I was unable to walk any distance or stand on my feet for more than a few minutes at a time without feeling exhausted, but now I am thankful to say, I can walk two miles without feeling the least inconvenience." For Female Complaints it has no equal.

It began snowing at Quebec Saturday night and continued all day. At midnight a heavy gale set in from the east and the drifts are unusually heavy. The city streets are more or less blocked and the country roads impassable. The trains are all delayed.

N. McRae, Wyebridge, writes: "I have sold large quantities of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil; it is used for colds, sore throat, croup, &c., and in fact for any affection of the throat it works like magic. It is a sure cure for burns, wounds and bruises."

The total amount raised in the Methodist churches in Toronto on Sunday in behalf of the cause of university federation was $15,000, making the total amount raised to date rather over $133,000.

Daily British Columbian

Wednesday Evening, Dec. 19, 1888.

In an item yesterday referring to the Lillooet settlement, attention was called to the desirability of connection by road with this city—a connection which it must be evident would be as beneficial to this city as to the settlement concerned. In view of the present importance of the settlement in question, and the certainty of great development in that vicinity in the near future, as shown by the item in this paper yesterday, there is every ground for asking government assistance in building the short piece of road required, and either establishing a ferry, suitable for conveying teams, on the Pitt River, or, what would be better, constructing a bridge to complete the connection. There is nothing out of the way or exorbitant in this demand. In fact, the settlers on the north side of the Fraser have been neglected in the matter of roads, compared with their brethren on the south side, where there is a trunk road from this city up to Yale, with several parallel and intersecting roads through the most important farming settlements. It is true the south side of the river has required more attention, from the fact of the greater number and importance of the settlements there and the larger area of practicable farming land. But the amount of good agricultural land on the north side is extensive, and has only begun to be developed, and, on account of the increasing number of settlers and the growing interests of various sorts, a trunk road from this city, connecting all the settlements on the north side of the river, may fairly be demanded. A good wagon road extends from this city to Pitt River, and from the Lillooet settlement, on the other side of Pitt River, to within a mile and a half of that river. With this mile and a half of road constructed across the flats (and we are informed that there is an unlimited supply of the best road gravel convenient) and a ferry or bridge established across Pitt River, the most important link in the proposed trunk road will have been completed, as most of the settlements farther up the Fraser are already connected by road, and short pieces of road here and there would establish unbroken connection with this city and complete the trunk road required. With regard to a bridge across Pitt River, it is said that the C.P.R. intend to abandon their present bridge, as not being sufficiently strong for the purpose, and build a new one. It has been suggested that the government might secure the old bridge for a comparative trifle and convert it, quite cheaply, into a good traffic bridge. We trust that something may be done in the matter of establishing the connection we have shown to be not only desirable but necessary, at the forthcoming session of the local legislature. Let our members use their influence in the matter. It is one that should interest our citizens, too, particularly.

Commenting on Butterworth's resolution to annex Canada, wholesale or piecemeal, the Seattle Press, in a very affectionately worded article, headed "Come to us, our sister," characterizes the resolution as "very commendable," and continuing says: "That a people so closely related by geographical situation, language, kinship, custom and laws should be disunited is indeed very strange. Why such an order of things should have existed so long is beyond our comprehension. But when the matter is thoroughly sifted, we are inclined to think, if presented in a a straightforward manner to the people of both countries, that they cannot fail to grasp the mighty advantages that would accrue to both by commercial union, or even annexation. Through the selfishness of both nations they have erected a tariff wall between them, which is, in reality, the only obstruction that exists to their being one and the same people. Let both nations remove those artificial restrictions that they have placed on each other's trade and no further legislation will be needed in the matter. They are both Christian nations, each professing to believe in the doctrines of Christ: 'Love thy neighbor as thyself,' yet in their relations to each other they practice an altogether different code. There is no more logical reason why the people of Canada and those of the United States should have a protective barrier placed between them than there is for such barriers to be placed between the different states of the union. If it is an advantage to the United States to hamper and restrict trade with Canada, and vice versa, then most surely it must be an advantage to Washinton Territory to hamper and restrict trade with the rest of the American union. In a nation where peoples, laws and customs are so similar, political lines cannot be tolerated. By all means let us have freedom with Canada, let it be annexation, commercial union or something else." The Tacoma Ledger, discussing annexation, says: "Nearly one-half the contents of every Canadian paper are inspired by United States events and opinions. The British Columbia papers ordinarily contain more news from this side of the line and comments upon it than they do of events occurring within the Dominion. This country cuts a large figure in Canadian thoughts, prospects and plans, and the interest is continually increasing. We do not want Canada, but Canada will in time feel it a privilege to occupy the same bed with her big brother." It is becoming quite evident that the annexation of Canada is becoming popular all over the United States, and it is no less apparent that our American cousins want nothing less. Free trade, or even commercial union, will not satisfy them—they want the whole hog, or nothing. With the accession of the Republicans to power, especially, no tariff reduction may be looked for between the two countries, not to speak of free trade regulations. A measure of free trade is undoubtedly desirable, and such would have been brought about if Cleveland and the Democrats, with their sensible tariff reform platform, had carried the day in the late contest. But, if the Republicans will not establish friendly and advantageous (to both parties) trade relations with us, they seem determined to have the Canadian market free by a method more in accord with their instincts, and which would enable them to place their tariff wall all around North America. But Canada will not agree to anything of the sort. However much she may appreciate the goodwill of her neighbors and desire to live in the utmost harmony with them, she must remain free to regulate her own commercial and other relations with the outside world. Free trade with the United States is one thing, and commercial or political union is quite another. There are no objections to the general principles involved in the first. The case is quite different with respect to the last.

Fever and Ague and Bilious Derangements are positively cured by the use of Parmelee's Pills. They not only cleanse the stomach and bowels from all bilious matter, but they open the excretory vessels, causing them to pour copious effusions from the blood into the bowels, after which the corrupted mass is thrown out by the natural passage of the body. They are used as a general family medicine with the best results.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

OLD TOM HEMPER.

The wonderful Providence that saved d Tom Hemper from the vengeance f the Comanche Indians, 15 or 16 years go, has been discussed in many a estern fort and around many a hunters mp fire. The party numbered 22 en, some of them being English urists, and they were undisturbed for vo weeks after getting down to what called the great elbow of the Cana- an. Then Indian signs became very esh, and one morning old Tom started it on a scout. Two other old hunters ith the party remained in camp.

The Canadian runs alongside of a ountain range for several hundred iles, and this range is broken with any small valleys and creeks. Tom ent to the east as he left camp, keep- g between the foot hills and the river. e was on foot and alert, but after a alk of an hour he discovered no signs, nd had to conclude that the Indians ad approached from the other direc- on. Just as he was on the point of rning back he found a spring of ice- old water, and had to lie down on his omach to reach it and satisfy his irst. He was drinking when some- hing alighted on his back. His first ought was that it was a panther, but ext instant he saw the leggings of a deskin, and knew that he was a pris- ner. When pulled to his feet he und himself in the presence of three omanches, who were out after game. Iis great surprise seemed to please them imonsly, and they offered him no iolence whatever. He was first un- rmed, his hands then tied behind his ack, and the Indians gave him to un- erstand that he was to accompany hem to their village. While there as no Indian war at that time, the ayages were hostile to any and all hite men who invaded their domain, d old Tom swiftly realized that he as in a bad scrape. He could speak nd understand the Comanche dialect ith perfect ease, but this fact he kept himself. As they moved away one his captors said:

"He is an old hunter, and we shall ave a good time burning him. He is robably the leader of the party be- w."

The prisoner was conducted about ree miles up the river and a mile to e east, at which point a Comanche illage was located. It was in a valley out three miles long and a mile wide, d contained 60 or 70 lodges. Nearly the warriors of the village were away atching the white party, but as soon the prisoner entered the village a essenger was dispatched to bring em in. Before noon all had returned d there was great rejoicing over the pture of the hunter. The head chief the tribe was expected at the camp the morrow, and it was decided not do anything with the prisoner until s arrival.

Tom was shoved into a lodge and ree warriors placed on guard over m. Tom heard the friends discussing what ways they should torture him. ne of the guards said that he had seen white man hung up to a limb with a ick trust through the bones of his gs, as the farmer hangs up a slaughter- hog, and that he lived for half a day. ne wanted to skin him alive, another lieved in a slow fire, and almost every e who came up had a suggestion to ake. It was conceded that he would e game, and that his equal had not een captured for years.

It was 9 o'clock next morning before e big chief and his staff arrived, and hour later the prisoner was brought t. The warriors had arranged them- lves in two lines, and were armed ith clubs and switches. Old Tom was ken to the head of the lines, and a arrior who could speak a little English ade him understand that he was to un to the foot of the line and return, d that if he ran fast and strong he ould be set at liberty on his return. his was all stuff, of course, but it is al- ays given out to every prisoner to en- urage him. The chief called out to e men not to hit the prisoner too ard, and all was ready for the start. om intended to wheel square about ld run for the river. There was not ne chance in a thousand for him, but e preferred death by the bullet to eath by torture. He was even bracing himself for his run when there were outs of alarm all around him, and he aw two Indian boys coming down he valley on horseback, making signs s they came. Tom was hurried back the lodge, the village was all excite- ent, and in five minutes 50 warriors ere riding up the valley. Tom figured at some of his party were scouting round to learn his fate, and that they ad come into the valley and had been en by the village sentinels. This, as as afterwards ascertained, was the orrect supposition.

The Indians did not return until five clock in the afternoon. At about six d Tom was brought out again, and his time he was tied to a stake. For me reason the redskins had decided spare him the gauntlet. This was rom no feeling of mercy, of course, but heir long ride had probably tired them ut.

"There was no possible show for me make a break," said the old man. I was backed up to the stout stake, y hands and my feet were tied to it y strips of green hide, and then they ere ready to begin business. I saw hem getting their knives and toma- awks ready to throw at me, and in my esperation and despair I railed out at hem, speaking the first words since my apture. I reviled and cursed them nd dared them to do their worst, and hile I was speaking the sub-chief, who as the head of the village, and whose ame was Spotted Horse, threw up his rms and fell back dead."

The chief was no doubt predisposed heart disease. He had been in the saddle for six or seven hours, laboring nder a keen excitement all the time, nd it needed only the increased excite- ent brought on by the hunter's de- unciation to precipitate the fatal stroke. hat the Indians considered it an act of Divine vengeance was plain in a mo- ent. It was scarcely known that he as dead before Tom was untied and onducted back to the lodge, and the illage at once went into mourning.

"It was two days before they buried him," said Tom, "and meanwhile I was well treated, but closely guarded. Oh he third day I was taken out again. I had heard the reds discussing the mat- er from all standpoints. Some contend- d that I was an evil spirit, and if not permitted to depart would work them ome terrible calamity, while others argued that I must be burned and my ashes scattered to the winds to propit- iate the evil one. Those who held to the latter opinion were in the majority. I was not to be tortured, but burned alive."

He was tied to the same stake, and the faggots heaped around him, but just as they were being lighted he broke out in fierce raillety again. His words affected the whole crowd, but he would no doubt have perished had not nature come to his aid. The hush which had fallen upon the village was broken by a far-off roar, and a moment later a cyclone swept into the valley from the east like a raging lion. It came and was gone in 60 seconds, and a sad wreck was left behind. Every lodge was down, and many of them carried away, while many of the people were hurt, and two children killed outright, by falling limbs and flying debris.

"I never saw Indians lose their heads as those chaps did," said old Tom. "I was left quite alone for the next quarter of an hour, while those who had es- caped unhurt were running about in a childish way. It was just growing dusk when an Indian pony was led up to the stake by the head chief in person. I was cut loose by a warrior, lifted upon the pony by two others, and told by the chief that I was at liberty to go. I was too dazed to understand, but they gave the horse a slap and away we went. For the next 10 minutes I was no better than an idiot or crazy man, but my senses soon returned and I saw through it. They regarded me as an evil spirit and wanted to get rid of me. My rifle was strapped to the saddle, as was every other article they had taken from me, and they had given me one of their best horses. Inside of two hours I was back at our camp, but only to find the party gone. They had become alarmed and moved about 30 miles up the stream, where I found them next day."

Tom not only had the Comanche out- fit to prove the truth of what he said, but the next year, when the chiefs of the tribe held a pow-wow with a govern- ment commission, the entire story was told anew by the Indians, and many inquiries were made as to what had be- come of the white man's devil.

Her Love Revealed; or True to Her Colors.

"I shall never dare say a word to her now," said Robert Dale to his sister. "I should have offered myself before she had all the money left to her. How can I do it now?"

"Well, you were going to propose," said Florrie; "so I don't see why you should have such a foolish pride just be- cause she has had a little money left to her."

Mabel Wynne was the village school- teacher and Robert Dare and she had been intimate friends for years. The sudden accession of riches, however, did not turn her head or cause her to desert her old friends. She began, how- ever, to build an elegant house that was the talk of the town.

One day she stopped at the old Dale farm, and Robert Dale was in a flutter of excitement, which he could hardly conceal.

"I want you two to come up and see my new house to-morrow. The Glen is a very pretty place, you will find."

Mabel Wynne stayed and spent the evening at the Dale farm-house. She and Florrie sang sweet duets to the ac- companiment of Robert's violin. They talked of old times and new. And when at last Robert returned from seeing Ma- bel home Florrie, clapped her hands gleefully.

"Oh, Rob," she cried, "isn't it nice to have Mabel here once more?"

And Bob's smile did her heart good. The next day, however, things as- sumed a new aspect. Robert and Flor- rie walked up through the wood to the beautiful new house whose stained- glass casement commanded so rare a view of hillside, woodlands and distant winding river. Mabel was standing on the portico.

"Now come in," she cried, radiantly. "Walk through all the rooms with me. Here is the library—I want Robert's idea about fitting that up—and here are the drawing-rooms, Florrie and I must decide about those; for, to tell you the truth"—and the colored pinker than the heart of a rose—"I am going to be married!"

Florrie started back with a little ex- clamation; Robert stood calm and quiet as one of the marble statue in the ves- tibule.

"Married!" Florrie cried; "and not to confide in me! Oh, May!"

"Tell me," said Mabel, "shall we fur- nish the drawing-rooms in blue and silver, or pink and gold? And my rooms shall be the south one, or the suite looking out over the river? And Bob must have the vestibules furnished to suit a man's taste. I shouldn't like to have my husband criticise them when he comes. Will you do this for me, Bob, because of our old friendship? Oh, don't look so solmnly at me! I know I am asking a great deal, but I thought I could depend on you."

"You can," he answered, quickly.

"Come out and look at the sun-dial on the south lawn," added Mabel. "Florrie has run upstairs to see the river from the observatory. We wont wait for her, because, Bob, I want to tell you a secret."

"Would not your husband be the proper person to confide in, May?" he asked.

"In this case, no Bob!" she cried.

"Listen to me. I love this man with all my soul—this husband that is to be —and he loves me."

"Naturally," observed Robert, setting his teeth.

"But he does not dare to tell me so. He thinks, don't you see, that I am an heiress. Well, so I am; but I am a woman, nevertheless, and I love him! Is my wretched money to part us? If so, I will fling it all into the ocean, and begin life anew as a beggar-girl. Now, Bob, what shall I do? It is for this that I have sent for you to come here. An- swer me quickly?"

"Tell him all, said Robert huskily. "For God's sake, do not break his heart for so trifling a cause as this!"

Mabel's cheek's crimsoned, her eyes fell to the ground.

"I have told him," she murmered, "within this hour. "Oh, Robert, Rob- ert! have I said to much?"

"My May, my own darling!" cried Dale. "And to think that this miserable false pride of mine failed to measure the nobility of your virtue!"

When Florrie came down from the observatory to the marble sun-dial, where the minutes were measured off by sunshine—ah, how appropriate it seems just now, this division of time— Bob and Mabel were sitting side by side on a rustic bench, and there was some- thing in their faces that betrayed the truth at once.

"You have discovered our secret, lit- tle sister," said he.

Florrie uttered a cry of joy.

"Oh, May!" she said, "is it Bob?"

"Could it be anyone else than Bob?" Mabel whispered, her sweet eyes full of loving light.

And then Florrie, the mendacious little gypsy, declared that she had known it all along. It wasn't a bit of a surprise to her. Everybody had seen it but Bob; and Love was proverbially blind.

The Undertaker's Friend.

A man reading a newspaper in a car on the elevated road was observed to chuckle vociferously. Another man sit- ting along-side of him remarked:

"You seem to be very much amused?"

"You bet I'm amused. I expect to rake in several thousand dollars."

"Rich relative died and left you money?"

"Better than that. I have just read that the Board of Health is going to tear open the streets in my ward and lay new sewer pipes during this warm weather. That means typhoid fever and I am an undertaker. I tell you, my dear sir, I don't know what we poor undertakers would do for a living if it wasn't for that Board of Health."

Pencilling Her Eyebrows.

More than one woman, well known in so- ciety, persists in pencilling her eyebrows with India ink. This fashion might be con- doned if it were an improvement, but not one woman in ten can practice it without making herself ridiculous. The other day at a reception a lady who is the mother of grown children, had evidently made up in a hurry or in a room insufficiently lighted, for one eyebrow was half an inch higher, more arched and longer than the other. It gave this bitterwise dignified female the appearance of a diabolical wink with one eye, which, to say the least, was grotesque.

While Joe, a Squamish Indian, was about to make a presentation of a large canoe, twenty pairs of blankets, a quantity of pork and a variety of gegaws to the father of his intended bride, at Moodyville, on Sunday, Officer Calbick arrested the intended groom for having several bottles of "fire water." Thus the ceremony which was to have taken place on Sunday evening was postponed to an indefinite period.—World.

White Women Smoking Opium.

The Chinese proprietor of an opium den known as "No. 13," appeared at the police station late last night and stated that two well-known "Melican ladies" had visited the place with the intention of smoking a little opium "just for fun," had smoked and were lying there in a stupor induced by the the drug. Police officers visited the place and the women were taken home, still in their stupid slumber. It is not likely that they will ever try any more such dangerous experiments as smoking opium "just for fun."—Colonist.

The Condemned Man.

W. H. Jones, the murderer of Frank Durant, and who is to be hanged on Jan 9th, spends the most of his time in reading the bible, which he seems to study very closely. He receives daily visits from the Rev. Mr. White, his spiritual adviser, but from no others. Jones is cheerful in spirit but very quiet, the air of bravado, so painfully noticeable in court, having entirely disappeared. He is resigned to his fate and does not hope for a reprieve, nor has he expressed such a hope at any time since sentence was delivered on him.

Home Industry.

Mr. J. W. Stein, of Surrey, has presented us with a bottle of grated horse-radish, raised and prepared by himself. Mr. Stein has made arrangements for manufacturing this unrivalled condiment for sale quite extensively, and is prepared to meet the home demand. He raises the roots on his ranch at Mud Bay, and manufactures and bottles the product at his establishment near Brownsville, opposite this city. We can certify as to the superior quality of Mr. Stein's prepared horse-radish, and wish him, as he deserves, every success in his enterprise.

Japanese Jugglers.

The exhibition given at Herring's Opera House last night by the Japanese jugglers was the best ever seen in Westminster. The balancing and acrobatic feats were something wonderful, and the whole audience were highly pleased with the entertainment. The ladder act was a wonderful performance and deserves describing. A ladder 25 feet long is balanced on a man's chin and a good sized boy ascends and performs all sorts of tricks on it. Finally when the boy is in the middle of a trick the ladder falls to pieces leaving the youth balanced on a bamboo pole. Had the public known that the troupe would present such an excellent programme the house would have been packed. The Japs will visit Westminster again in a week or ten days and repeat the performance.

The Olympian in the Dock.

On Sunday morning the steamer Olympian was safely docked at Esquimalt, after one unsuccessful attempt. A number of the paddles on the starboard wheel were cut off and the cargo listed to the port side to enable the steamer to pass into the dock, and then she barely managed to squeeze in. By four o'clock the water was pumped out of the dock and the work of clearing away the mussels and barnacles, which were half an inch deep on her bottom, commenced; one hundred and twenty-five men being engaged to work night and day until the repairs are completed. The work is now being pushed rapidly forward and it is expected that the steamer will leave the dock on Wednesday. The bottom is to be scraped, some minor repairs are to be made to the machinery and carpentry. The value of the work in all will amount to about $4,000.—Colonist.

Adams vs. Marvin.

The hearing of the action taken by J. R. Adams to recover from E. B. Marvin the sum of $20,000 for alienating his wife's affections, commenced this morning before Mr. Justice Crease, and the following special jury: W. Heathorn, G. A. McTavish, W. H. Redmond, J. T. McIlmoyl, W. D. McKillican, J. Turner, W. Fisher, and W. J. Pendray. The plaintiff Adams was in the witness-box all day and late in the afternoon was being cross-examined by Mr. Pooley. He testified that the defendant was his agent in Victoria when he was doing business at Quesnelle, which is denied by Marvin. Letters were read by counsel with a view to proving that plaintiff was in financial difficulties and unable to support his family some fifteen years ago. The case is a long and complicated one and will last some time. Another suit growing out of the present one is spoken of.—Times.

Reclaiming Valuable Lands.

One of the most hopeful indications, as well as guarantees, for the future progress and prosperity of this district, and implying also a steady increase in the growth and importance of this city, to which the district as a whole is tributary, is the enterprise being displayed in various sections of the district in reclaiming large tracts of the richest lands in the province by means of dyking schemes. About two weeks ago we recorded the completion of the Matsqui dyke, throwing many thousands of acres into immediate availability for farming purposes, which can be obtained by bona fide settlers at a moderate rate. Yesterday we called attention to the Pitt Meadows dyking scheme, to be completed in about five years, which will be the means of reclaiming between twenty and thirty thousand acres of fine land for settlement. In addition to these, is the Surrey-Delta dyking enterprise, which is being pushed, with commendable energy by the settlers in those municipalities interested, who have almost unanimously agreed to assess themselves $2 per acre for the land owned by them respectively which would be benefitted by the projected dyke. The Dominion government are to be asked to assist the undertaking, at the coming session of parliament, and as the navigation of certain streams will be greatly benefitted by the dyke in question, there is but very little doubt that they will take the matter in hand. This dyking scheme will add between twenty and thirty thousand acres of choice arable land to the extensive agricultural resources of the district. The outlook is certainly encouraging for Westminster city and district.

Christmas Examinations.

The holiday examinations in the public schools began this morning, Miss Homer's division being the first examined. In this division were 50 junior scholars, all neatly dressed and looking as pretty as peaches. About a dozen visitors were present, among them School Trustee Calbick. The little ones acquitted themselves creditably and to the satisfaction of all present. At 11 o'clock Miss Davidson's division was examined in the various branches of study, and the scholars showed by their prompt and intelligent answers that they had been well and carefully trained. At the close of the examination Miss Jennie Smith in behalf of the division, stepped forward and read a neat little address to Miss Davidson, and on concluding little Miss Douglas presented a handsome pocket memorandum book as a mark of their esteem. Miss Davidson, who was taken by suprise, returned thanks in suitable terms. Congratulatory remarks were made by Rev. Mr. Jamieson, Mr. Calbick and Col. McGregor, all of whom expressed themselves as highly pleased with the conduct and training of the division. About fifteen visitors were present, most of them being ladies.

Miss Rogers' division was examined this afternoon in the presence of about a dozen ladies and the Rev. Mr. Jamieson. The scholars were examined in reading, spelling, arithmetic, grammar etc., and made a very satisfactory showing. Several recitations were rendered with a considerable degree of taste. Rev. Mr. Jamieson and Mr. W. B. Townsend addressed the scholars and congratulated them and Miss Rogers on their successful examination. Before the division was dismissed the pupils presented Miss Rogers with a complimentary address accompanied by a handsome leather writing case. Miss Rogers, in a few words, returned thanks for the kind gift.

Decision of the Court.

Following is the full text of the decision of the divisional court in the late injunction case, which has been unavoidably laid over until to-day:

"Friday, 14th day of December, 1888.

"The divisional court being this day moved before the Honorable Sir Matthew Bailie Begbie, chief justice, the Honorable Mr. Justice Gray, and the Honorable Mr. Justice McCreight by Theodore Davie, Q. C., and W. Norman Bole, Q. C., on behalf of the defendants, upon motion on appeal from an order of the Honorable Mr. Justice Crease, dated the 11th day of December, 1888, dismissing a motion to discharge and set aside a restraining order made herein and dated the 29th day of November, 1888, and Mr. C. E. Pooley, Q. C., appearing on behalf of the plaintiffs. The court, upon hearing what was alleged by counsel on both sides, and upon hearing read the affidavit of Augustus William Lundbom and John Edward Lord, sworn and filed on the 29th November, 1888, and the exhibits therein referred to, the two affidavits of James C. Robinson, sworn respectively on the 10th day of December instant, and filed herein on the 13th day of December and the exhibits therein referred to and the affidavit of William Norman Bole sworn and filed herein on the 13th day of December instant, and the exhibits therein referred to, and the restraining order herein dated the 29th day of November, 1888, doth order that the said restraining order of the 29th day of November, 1888, be varied, and doth order that the mayor and corporation of the city of New Westminster, and the several members of the municipal council thereof be restrained, and they are hereby restrained from parting with the proceeds of the sale if any has been made of the debentures mentioned in the Workshops Bonus By-Law 1888 and the Ferry Service By-Law 1888 to the defendants, J. Cunningham, R. Dickenson, T. Ovens, B. Douglas, A. Ewen, J. Hendry, D. S. Curtis, A. M. Herring and H. Elliott or some or any or either of them or their agents or servants until further order of the court or a judge.

"And this court doth further order that the said mayor and corporation of the city of New Westminster and the several members of the municipal council thereof be restrained and they are hereby restrained from dealing with the debentures mentioned in the Workshops Bonus By-Law 1888 and the Ferry Service By-Law 1888 or the proceeds thereof in any other manner than is authorized by such by-laws respectively, until the further order of the court or a judge.

"And this court doth further order that the defendants, J. Cunningham, R. Dickenson, T. Ovens, B. Douglas, A. Ewen, J. Hendry, D. S. Curtis, A. M. Herring and H. Elliott any and each of them their and each of their agents or servants be restrained and they are hereby restrained from receiving from the mayor and corporation of the city of New Westminster or from any other persons the sum of $150,000.00 or any sum the proceeds of the sale of the debentures mentioned in the Workshop Bonus By-Law 1888 and the Ferry Service By-Law 1888, and from in any manner dealing or parting with any moneys they or any of them may have received from the said corporation or any person on account of the said debentures, until the further order of the court or a judge.

"As to the validity of the by-laws respectively this court expresses no opinion as the point was not before them.

"Let the costs of this application be reserved to the hearing.

"By the court,

"Signed, JAMES C. PREVOST,
"Registrar."

$20,000 worth of Dry Goods, Carpets, Oil Cloths and House Furnishing Goods, etc.

☞ As we are known to carry one of the largest and best assorted stocks in the Province, it will not be necessary to enumerate. An early inspection will convince the public that we mean business, and that the stock must be closed out before the end of this season; therefore we have placed our goods at prices lower than have ever been offered before in this Province.

REMEMBER—The Stock must be closed out by the end of the year. CALL EARLY WHILE THE ASSORTMENT IS GOOD.

TERMS—Under $100, cash; over $100, secured notes at three months with interest.
