HORRIBLY HANGED.

Harvey, the Guelph Wife Murderer, is Bunglingly Butchered To-day.

The C. P. R. Can't Have Halifax. Canada's Position on the Alaskan Boundary.

Hippolyte's Cabinet is Unevenly Divided, Which Will Probably Induce Revolution.

HARVEY BUNGLINGLY HANGED.

GUELPH, Ont Nov. 29.—Wm. Harvey was hanged this morning for murdering his wife and two daughters on May 26 last. The hanging was a bungling affair; the weights were not heavy enough nor the scaffold long enough to give sufficient rebound to break the neck. The wretched man's struggles and contortions were frightful to witness as he slowly strangled to death.

CAN'T DO AS THEY LIKE.

OTTAWA, Nov. 29.—Premier McDonald has refused to allow the Canadian Pacific to make Halifax the terminal point of the ocean route.

THE ALASKAN BOUNDARY.

OTTAWA, Nov. 29.—The deputy minister of the interior says that the Dominion government will insist that the Alaskan boundary as defined by the treaty between England and Russia shall stand as the boundary between the Dominion and the United States.

AN OLD HAND.

READING, Cala., Nov. 29.—The Redding & Weaverville stage was robbed between here and Middle creek last night at 7:30. Wells, Fargo, & Co.'s box and the mail were taken, the driver throwing out all but lock sack. The robber ordered the latter out with the remark: "I give you to understand I am an old hand at this business." He then ordered the driver to get down and break the box open and covered him with a pistol while he was breaking the box open. The express company's loss is small.

WATERBURY WELL-NAMED.

WATERBURY, CONN., Nov. 29.—The storm last night swelled the little brook under east and south Main streets here and it overflowed and filled twenty store cellars, causing damage to goods to the amount of $4,000. Naugatuck valley, from Thomaston to Benningham, is turned into a sea by the rise in the Naugatuck river.

A FAMOUS SPORT GONE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 29.—William E. Joyce, ex mayor of Tucson, Arizona, one of the proprietors of the Cafe Royal in this city and well-known in sporting circles all over the coast, died this morning at the age of 48, from consumption.

THE FIRE EPIDEMIC.

KEYPORT, N. J., Nov. 29.—The fire this morning destroyed many fine buildings. The loss is $50,000. L. E. Royal was burned to death, and his wife and son were so badly burned that they are not expected to recover.

BROUGHT BACK.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 29.—Henry L. Edwards who forged a check for $420, and fled to Virginia, Nev., where he was captured, was brought back to-day.

AFLOAT AGAIN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 29.—The steamer Protection, which went on a rock inside the harbor at Fort Bragg yesterday, is afloat this morning, but half filled with water.

UNEQUAL REPRESENTATION.

PORT AU PRINCE, Nov. 29.—President Hippolyte has at last announced his cabinet, and so largely is the north represented in it that there is already much grumbling on the part of the south. Whether or not this expressed dissatisfaction is to be regarded as the initial phase of another revolution, time alone will show, but the political atmosphere of the island is rife with vague rumors of trouble.

BOSTON'S BIG BLAZE.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 28.—At 10:30 the fire which started in two houses previously on the southwest corner of Bedford and Kingston streets, had extended to Harrison avenue, south to Roe Place, west to Chauncey, and along Kingston nearly to Hammers street, and, despite the heavy rain and the presence of the entire fire department, crossed Chauncey street and showed no signs of stopping until the Common was reached. So rapid was the spread of the fire from the big building occupied by Brown, Durrill & Co., to the four-story brick building on the other side of Bedford street, No. 9, occupied by Lambson & Hubbard, hatters, that three engines and a truck had to be abandoned, and they were soon crushed by the falling walls of the Durrill building. Kingston street was now red hot with flames, but the firemen rushed past the hat factory, and while a hose was being placed on, the firemen attached a line to the chemical engine and dragged it along Kingston to Bedford street and up to Chauncey street. At this moment the attic of Taylor & Bros' hat and cap factory caught fire, and in exactly forty-five minutes the entire block, Kingston, Bedford, Chauncey streets, and Roe Place, had been traversed by the flames, which crossed to Chauncey street, going straight toward Washington street and threatening the entire business section. Three engines were massed at the intersection of Roe Place, holding the fire in check, until the big freestone building of Williams & Co., on Chauncey street and Roe Place caught fire, when the firemen surrounded Roe Place to save, if possible, the large granite block on the west side of Chauncey street. In spite of all their efforts, however, the flames spread across the street and the buildings on that side were soon ablaze. At 1:15 it looked as if the fire would burn clear through to Washington street on one side to Sumner, and nobody knew how far on Kingston street, as the efforts of the firemen to control the flames were futile, and the large streams of water thrown by the engines turned into vapor before reaching the roofs. Just about this time, while a number of firemen were at work in Chauncey street, the entire glass front of No. 72 Chauncey street, occupied by Wright Bros.', skins and wools, was blown out, probably by the hot air generated by the fire in the rear. The firemen were blown in all directions.

OTTAWA NOTES.

OTTAWA, Nov. 28.—M. Antoine Zdziarski, a civil engineer of St. Petersburg, Russia, who is now inspecting the Canadian Pacific Railway with a view to getting some pointers in railway construction, says that the Russian government has determined to push at once the construction of a railway across Siberia. The Russian department of railways, of which he is one of the engineers, sent him to Canada to examine carefully the construction and management of our trans-continental road in order to benefit by our experience. Vladivostock would be the Pacific terminus, a distance of about 4,000 miles from Ziatoust, or about 6,000 miles from St. Petersburg. From Vladiovostock a line of steamers would run to Yokohama and connect with the Canadian Pacific Railway steamers. Among other things, he says that our railways are more comfortable and run faster than those of his own country, but expressed his surprise at the presence of wooden bridges and trestles on many of the roads in America. While in Montreal he called upon President Van Horne and Chief Engineer Peterson of the Canadian Pacific Railway, from whom he received much valuable information.

FROM VICTORIA.

The Steamer Idaho goes Ashore on Race Rocks and will Probably Become a Total Wreck.

Special to THE COLUMBIAN.

VICTORIA, Nov. 29.—A special messenger has just reached this city with the news that the steamship Idaho is ashore near Race Rocks. She was bound from Portland for this city and ran on the rocks during a thick fog. She is making water very fast and the cargo is being jettisoned to lighten her. The tide is falling and the chances are small for ever getting her afloat again. It is believed she is ashore near the spot where the Barnard Castle was wrecked two years ago. The coast is a bad one. Assistance has been sent from here; all hands aboard are safe.

PERSONAL.

A. W. Lundbom was in town today.

L. P Eckstein has gone to Seattle on business.

Rev. Mr. Irwin returned from Victoria to-day.

F. R. Glover and wife arrived from Victoria this afternoon.

Rev. E Robson, of Vancouver, came over to the city to day to officiate at the marriage of Mr. Cumyow and his bride, and returned this afternoon.

William Little, of Montreal, brother of Leonard G. Little, of Ross, McLaren & Co., lumbermen, is at the Driard, having arrived yesterday. Mr. Little was so much impressed with his brother's glowing accounts of the Pacific province that he has come to see it for himself.—Colonist.

LATE CANADIAN NEWS.

The Ottawa Free Press says of the British Columbia canners now in that city, that they want the earth.

Two infants have died here, says a late Quebec despatch, from the effects of poisonous soothing syrup, and several cases of severe sickness from the same cause are reported.

A demand of assignment was served upon Prevost, Prevost & Co., wholesale hardware merchants, Montreal, at the instance of the Banque de Peuple. The liabilities are $75,000.

It is likely that before the close of the year Hon. Mr. Hamley, collector of customs at Victoria, B. C., will be superannuated. Mr. Hamley in pre-confederation days was a member of the colonial council of British Columbia.

Chas Boden, of Chas. Boden & Co., Montreal, produce exporters, has been arrested at the instance of the Merchant's bank, charged with appropriating two thousand dollars of the bank's money to his own use. Bail was accepted.

The wholesale lace firm of White & Peter has assigned, with liabilities about $100,000. Half of the amount is due exclusively to European houses. There is no statement of assets. The failure is largely due to the disappearance of the junior partner of the firm.

In the vice-admiralty court, Quebec, judgment was given in the Polynesian-Cynthia case against the Polynesian on every point. The pilot of the Polynesian was pronounced solely to blame for the collision. The Cynthia was sunk, the Polynesian badly damaged, and eight of the former's crew were lost in the collision.

Premier Mercier has telegraphed to Hon. Mr. Chapleau asking for authority to publish the latter's letter of April 9th, concerning the settlement of the Jesuits estates. In conversation the other day, Hon. Mr. Chapleau said the letter was a private one, and as he didn't know what it might contain he would not give permission for its publication.

A trip is to be taken to Vancouver in July next, says a Winnipeg despatch, by the Toronto and Montreal lacrosse clubs, to play exhibition games during the big demonstration there on July 1st. The C. P. R. Co. is arranging an excursion to the Pacific slope, and the above clubs are endeavoring to secure suitable rates for the trip. The clubs are also talking of a tour to Australia.

A shortage of many thousands of dollars has been discovered in the provincial crown lands office at Charlottetown, P. E. I. The Charlottetown Patriot says: Hon. Donald Ferguson, land commissioner, is charged with doing away with the daily cash book, so that weeks went by without a balance being struck, while the only record of the daily proceedings in existence is the receipt book stubs.

The following resolutions, agreed to by those interested, explains the condition of the Laval University troubles: "It is unanimously resolved that the professors of the school of medicine and surgery of Montreal, and those of the faculty of medicine of Laval, who signed the union act, engage to take the Pope as arbitrator of the difficulties that have up to now prevented the definite union of these two schools, to abide by his decision."

PRINCE VICTOR

Charged by a Wild Elephant in India, is Rescued by Col. Sanderson.

One Thousand Barrels of Powder Explode at Marseilles, but Kill No One.

Dom Pedro Ill. Jack the Ripper Badly Handled by a Madrid Mob.

PRINCE ALBERT VICTOR'S NARROW ESCAPE.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—A dispatch from Mysore, India, says: An event that threatened the death of Prince Albert Victor occurred here yesterday. The prince was witnessing the herding of some elephants, when one of them became unruly, and escaping from his driver, charged directly upon the prince, who was standing apart from the rest. At this juncture Colonel Sanderson sprang forward, waving his arms, and darted between the elephant and the prince. This brave act disconcerted the beast for a moment and he swerved in the direction of the colonel. The prince turned and ran and finally found refuge. Col. Sanderson escaped.

A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION.

MARSEILLES, Nov. 29.—The explosion last evening caused widespread terror throughout the city. The three-masted ship "Ville de Marseilles," with a cargo of 3,000 barrels of powder, shipped for Mozambique, caught fire, and an attempt was made to blow up the ship with dynamite without success. The fire in a very short time reached the fore hold where there were 1,000 barrels of powder. A terrific explosion followed. All the windows for miles around were shattered Fragments of the ill-fated ship were picked up 500 metres away from the scene of the disaster. Strange to say no lives were lost.

POOR OLD PEDRO.

LISBON, Nov. 29.—A cable despatch from Rio De Janeiro says that Dom Pedro was ill when he left Brazil, and was accompanied by physicians.

DISCOURAGING FOREIGN IMMIGRATION.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The bill now before the French chamber of deputies regulating taxation contains a clause which has aroused a great waste of popular excitement, though it has more partisans than opponents from its obvious character as an anti-German measure and anti-Italian as well. This clause proposes the imposition of a poll and military tax upon every foreigner residing in France, and as though this were not enough to render France an undesirable residence for foreigners, it goes to the length of minimising the opportunities for obtaining employment by imposing a tax upon every employer for each foreign employee in his service residing in France. Though many French employers have already refused to hire foreign labor, there are still a great many others who for one reason or another prefer them to Frenchmen, and these together with the foreign element whose exclusion is sought constitute the opposition to the measure.

FATAL OIL EXPLOSION.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 28.—A terrific explosion occurred last night in the Konstanlice petroleum pits at Bochun; fourteen workmen were instantly killed and four others seriously injured. The bodies of the dead are horribly mangled. The explosion was caused by lights coming into contact with the gas from the pits.

"JACK THE RIPPER" CATCHES IT.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—A man supposed to be "Jack the Ripper" was set upon by a crowd of women in the poorer quarter of Madrid this morning while he was in custody of the officers who were removing him from the jail to the court room, where he was to be arraigned on a charge of having recently committed a murder under circumstances resembling those of the Whitechapel murders in London. The crowd increased in numbers till it reached upwards of 500, mostly women, and it was only through the utmost exertions of the governor of Madrid and a strong force of gendarmes who were summoned that the prisoner's life was saved. As it was, he was so severely beaten that the services of a physician were necessary to restore him to a condition rendering the legal proceedings in his case possible.

Granite Quarry.

A granite quarry situated on Saanich Inlet near Sayward's mill is being opened up by the owner, Mr. J. E. Phillips, of View street. Mr. Phillips has about five acres of land which is rich in granite, and has a force of a dozen men at work at present. A wharf nearly fifty feet long has been built out into deep water for shipping purposes, and the only way to get the stone into the city is by barges or tugs. The granite is of a superior quality, some pieces being thirty feet in length. The cost of transporting it to the city will come to $1.00 per ton, which is a large item of expense. Mr. Phillips is alone in the enterprise, and wants all the profits or loss himself. He is reticent about the matter but sanguine of a good thing, which it undoubtedly is. He will leave in the morning for the scene of operations, going by way of the E. & N. railway, a short distance beyond Goldstream, and then footing it a distance of four miles.—Wednesday's Times.

Whatcom and the F. & S.

The Fairhaven Company has made an official proposition in answer to the application of the board of trade, and offers to run the Fairhaven & Southern along the water front in Bellingham and Sehome, crossing 13th street at grade near its intersection with Holly, at the end of the bridge, thence along the bluff through central Whatcom to the old Reveille building, through block 20, thence to the corner of D and 18th streets, and from there north, provided the citizens will procure for them a right of way, and join with them in building a draw bridge on 13th street, the company to furnish a watchman. The board are about to consult with Captain Eldridge as to a right of way through Bellingham, but the prospect is not very encouraging for the securing of the entire route. Inasmuch as the proposed line would cut the city up badly, and the entire water front is open, it is to be hoped that some arrangements can be made whereby the road will pass through the city on the tide flats.—Reveille.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Mr. Curtis Again.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN—Sir:—Mr. Corbould in his statement published in your columns yesterday gives me some information I was not possessed of. I refer to the $250 charge re Lulu Island reserve. To put my statement strictly correct, it would be as follows:

Amendment to city charter.....	$600
" " railway charter.....	600
Acct re Lulu Island.....	250
Total.....	$1450

For some reason the $600 charge for amendment of railway charter does not appear in Mr. Corbould's statement—just what amount Mr. Corbould had to disburse from the $1450 I cannot say, not having seen a detailed account. I had no reference in my remarks to the account as published by Mr. Corbould, merely to the amount charged for services rendered while at Victoria (including, of course, the necessary office work). If Mr. Corbould and his many anxious friends could not get their "tearful" eyes upon his account I am not to blame. It's only another of their "disappointments." If said account ever came into my possession I have no recollection of it.

I know nothing of the "hospital" charge—this is the first time I have heard of it.

Thanking you for space, I remain yours very truly,

D. S. CURTIS.

The Salvation Army Speaks.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—Sir: Will you be so kind as to give space in your valuable paper for a few lines in regard to the S. A. soldiers of New Westminster and the Rooney case. Some people think it hard of the S. A. soldiers here for the way Rooney was prosecuted. First of all, the worst enemy Rooney had was himself; there is not a soldier in the N. W. corps who had the least bit of spite against him, and God forbid that there should, as all who attend our meetings know. He made a practice of coming to the meetings, from all appearances, for nothing else but to disturb them, and when he came he seemed to have a gang along with him who delighted in his conduct, to back him up and help him along. Rooney has been prayed for, and coaxed and begged to conduct himself properly. But the more kindness was shown him the worse he would be.

It has been given to understand that the army was afraid of him and his crowd, as the reason why he was dealt with so. Such is a great mistake. The fact of the matter is that respectable people were getting disgusted with the army for allowing him to come to the meetings and for not keeping better order, and for not making an example of some of the lads who delighted in making a disturbance. The short and long of the matter is that the S. A. soldiers of N. W. are not very badly frightened of the toughs of N. W., not half so much as some of them would have us believe by their expressirns. And we are going to have order in the barracks, and the good authorities of N. W. are just as determined that there shall be order. God bless them. The soldiers of N. W. have let some of the lads have too much of their own way of late, but it is wrong that we should encourage such conduct. Some of the smart lads of the streets have been very free of late at cursing soldiers while passing them on the streets, when the soldiers have been going along quietly about their business. But this is not going to be encouraged any longer by letting such pass unnoticed; and, for their own good, let it be understood that the first person or persons who does hereafter use insulting language to soldiers, on the streets or about the barracks, or anywhere else, will have to share the same fate as the unfortunate Rooney; and to the young man who used the abusive language to soldiers on Wednesday night, on his way to the Club saloon, it would be better for you to cease such a habit. Do not do so again, for you are known.

Lads, may God bless you all, do try and be decent; take a look at yourselves, acknowledge your wrongs through your words and actions, and be men in principle as well as form. We do love your souls and would like to see all do well. If we didn't we wouldn't go out on the muddy streets to deliver God's love to you. And His message we will deliver on the streets and in the barracks, rain or shine. And we do love to have the people come and listen. We appreciate good conduct, and more than that it is attainable. S. A. S., C. 309.

Friday Evening, Nov. 29, 1889.

OTHER matters have engrossed the attention of our citizens of late, to the exclusion of any particular thought or discussion of the very important question as to who shall occupy the seats around the civic board for the ensuing year. Whatever is to be done in the way of selecting good men and true for these high and responsible functions must now be done quickly, with a vengeance, as Monday next is nomination day for both mayor and aldermen.

Last year, being the first under the new charter, the aldermen, nine in number, were elected for the whole city. For the ensuing year the elections will be by wards. The city is now divided into five wards, as follows, beginning at the west end: Ward No. 1, all that part of the city west of London street; No. 2, from London to Douglas street; No. 3, from Douglas to Clement; No. 4, from Clement to eastern limit of Queen's park; No. 5, from the eastern limit of Queen's park to the eastern limits of the city, including Sapperton, annexed last winter. For the first four wards two aldermen each will be elected for 1890, Sapperton, or ward 5, having no representation next year, as the property comprised has not yet been placed on the assessment roll. Thus the council will number for the ensuing year, eight aldermen, besides the mayor, one less than in the matter of aldermen than during the present year. It will be seen that the old definition and nomenclature of the wards (such as St. Andrew's, St. George's, etc.) has been abandoned, under the new act, as well as the principle of ward representation of the several [illegible]. Although the council have, however, determined that two aldermen shall be the representation per ward for the ensuing year, they have power under the charter to increase the number to three; so that when ward 5 is enfranchised (which will be done before another general municipal election after the one impending), the civic board will comprise the mayor and ten or fifteen aldermen, as the council may from time to time by by-law provide.

Although nomination day is so near at hand, very few names have been definitely announced as candidates. Mayor Townsend, in fact is the only person who has published a card, stating that he will stand for re-election as the city's chief magistrate, but only on the condition, as will be seen by his announcement made to-day, that the mayor of Westminster shall receive the salary provided for by the charter, the same as is done in the two other principal cities of the province. We do not blame the mayor for his resoution; he has had about six month's of the mayoralty, and has not only given his whole time for that period to the onerous and ever increasing duties of the office, but has spent considerable hard cash as well. The fact is, this city has reached a stage when no man, unless he has an ample private income and unlimited capacity for sacrificing himself for the public good, can afford to serve as mayor without the same salary as the mayors of Victoria and Vancouver get, namely $2,000, which sum even has been found by those officials not to be adequate compensation for the time and money spent. Mayor Townsend comes out squarely on this question, and it is just as well for the people to face it in the same spirit. It is only a question of time when we shall have to, as Victoria has already found it necessary to do, pay our aldermen a small compensation, if we expect good business men, and not adventurers, to consent to occupy these rapidly becoming onerous positions.

For the current municipal year the work has been so exacting upon the time and attention of the aldermen that, it would appear, none of the old board are at all anxious to stand for another term. It is obviously in the interest of the city, however, that a number of the retiring council should take their seats on the new board, and not that it should be composed entirely of new men. There are several good men in the present council that we trust may be prevailed upon to accept nomination for the ensuing year. For new aldermen, the very best men should be put forward in the different wards. This is a matter that very nearly concerns every ratepayer and citizen. The interests at stake are yearly increasing with the growth and increased importance in every respect of the city. We confidently appeal to the ratepayers and citizens of the royal city, on behalf of themselves and their homes, their best interests, material and moral, not to permit, through any laxity or remissness on their part, the forthcoming civic elections to go by default, but to put forward the very best material the city affords at the nominations on Monday.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

LORD Macaulay has given it as his opinion that with the advance of civilization poetry necessarily declines, and it is likely that the same thing may be said of purely national characteristics. Before the age of steam and electricity, before cheap literature was to be had, old manners and customs, pretty superstitions and quaint doings passed naturally from generation to generation almost without variation. But, with the facility of locomotion and the more easy association of men one with another, these "unwritten traditions" fell upon sorry times, and as the practice of more extended travel increased, if only into the next county, men began to smile first of all, and then dared to laugh outright, at the old fashioned simplicity of their forefathers.

Perhaps no country ever afforded stronger confirmation of these truths than bonnie Scotland, the national festival of which land is celebrated to-day. Referring to the subject under discussion, Lord Cockburn wrote: "The feelings and habits which had prevailed at the union, and which had left so many picturesque peculiarities on the Scottish character, could not survive the enlarged intercourse with England and the world." The author of the "Lays of Ancient Rome" did not hesitate to say that "Sir Walter Scott was but just in time to save the precious relics of the minstrelsy of the border." What Scott, Percy, Ritson, and others did for Scottish minstrelsy, Dean Ramsay performed for the quaint customs, sayings, and humors of the people at large. A prose writer of evident sympathy with all that pertained to Scotland's "domestic nationality," his "Reminiscences" are for all time a very precious storehouse from which every man of Caledonian extraction may draw in afresh the humors and peculiarities, the religious feelings or convivial manners, of his ancestry.

It has frequently been asserted by writers who ought to have been better reformed, that the Scottish mind is absolutely devoid of humor. What could possibly have been more humorous than the Scotch servant's remark to his master when the latter was so choked with passion as to be unable to speak, "Eh, sir, maybe an aith would relieve you," or again, when a Perthshire Laird told one of his tenants that he purposed sending "the young laird abroad," "What for?" asked the tenant. "To see the world," was the reply. "But laird," came the ready objection, "will no the world see him," implying that the son was such a fool he had better be kept out of sight.

The pride which every Scot feels in his country is so eminently [illegible] that [illegible] become quite a proper dispositive to apply to the people of Scotland [illegible]. The [illegible] national feeling finds strong hope for the perpetuation, at least in a measure, of the memories of things essentially Scotch. Scotland once was an independent kingdom, and can still point to the remnants of a regalia that once belonged to a separate crown, and it is fitting therefore that memory should cling to peculiarities "which tell of a separate and independent people."

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Contrary to what might naturally be expected under the circumstances, the admission of ladies to the university of New Brunswick is resulting in a gradual diminution of the male students. It is consequently feared that the institution will soon become a high school for girls. It can only be said that the New Brunswick youth is wanting in gallantry or the New Brunswick beauty must be wanting in charms.—Ex.

It is estimated that the fund raised for the relief of the Conemaugh Valley sufferers would have given every man, woman and child $200 apiece, and yet the fact is that no poor family—and many included from eight to ten persons—has received more than $300, while many have received less than $200. The dissatisfaction among the poorer classes is so great that a committee has been appointed by the food commission to investigate the manner of distribution.

France is a protectionist country, and yet, strange to say the condition of its working classes is by no means what the arguments of advocates of protection would lead us to expect. A report recently issued by the French statistical bureau, dealing with the strikes in the country during the eleven years which ended with 1885, shows that the most frequent causes of these disturbances were demands for an increase in wages, reductions of wages, and dissatisfaction with the conditions of labor. This appears to be another case in which protection is open to the charge of false pretences.

Dr. Frithjob Nansen, notes an exchange, will start for the north pole in a few days. He will land as far north in Greenland as possible and then push north with small boats and sledges. As travel by sledges is better in winter than summer, he has chosen the winter season for this bold push for the northern "hole in the ground." He will cut loose entirely from any base of supplies and will not undertake to establish relief stations, but will depend entirely upon what he can take with him or can find for food. No "rescuing parties" have yet been organized, and it is generally conceded that none will be needed, for if he does not come back unaided there will be nothing to rescue.

Job printing of all kinds neatly done at the COLUMBIAN office. Prices will be found as low as at any other office in the province.—Adv.

DUST FOR MANY AGES.

The Industrious Cliff-Dwellers of Southern Colorado.

Relics of a Peaceful Race of Men Found Among the Wind-Worn Caves of Montezana County, Col.—Why They Became Extinct.

The archæologists of Denver should be happy. Almost at their very door they can now see the skulls and handiwork of men and women of pre-historic time. The caves of the cliff-dwellers on the Mancos, of Southern Colorado, have been once more entered by vandals, but this time only ruin and the dust of departed centuries were to be found.

The existence of these caves has long been known, but no thorough examination was ever made until a few months ago, when Charles McLoyd, a prospector and miner of the San Juan, and four companions concluded that it would be at least a lark to look into the abandoned dwellings. A writer in the Denver Republican describes the result of their investigations. No definite idea of securing a collection was thought of, but after wandering from one ruin to another on the top of the cliffs, and where the land could be made fertile, they commenced exploring the caves. Among the first entered little of interest was to be found, but they finally came to a place that was almost inaccessible. On the mesa above a large reservoir was to be seen, and it is the opinion of the explorers that this great tract of ground was once tilled by the people who lived in the caves below. But now pinon trees of great age are standing on all sides, and how many of them have sprung up, lived their days, decayed and then have been succeeded by others, no man living today knows—it may have been hundreds, it may have been thousands of years ago.

Mr. McLoyd says that the dwellings in Montezana County were found on the sides of walls of the canyon of of the Mancos and its tributaries in wind-worn caves or crevices caused by falling water, and were so completely protected from the elements that many of their effects were found in a perfect state of preservation. As a rule, these caves are in almost inaccessible places. When inhabited they were reached quite frequently by notches cut in the rock, and at other times rope ladders must have been used.

Quite a number of the houses found were of pretentious dimensions, the largest being a building on the ground floor of which are 112 rooms, and 200 in the upper stories. This building was four stories in height with a tower, and was built of dressed stone and a cement made of the surrounding soil mixed with a substance now unknown, and the architecture now would be called that of the Roman period.

The race which inhabited it is thought to have been related to the Zunis, Moquis and Pueblos, and it is supposed was the ancestors of those tribes. This, however, is simply supposition, and is based on the formation of the skulls and the relics of different kinds left.

The race, according to the theory advanced by the Smithsonian Institute, existed about ten thousand years ago. This theory is based upon the idea that the people lived and farmed on the banks of the Salt river before the bed of that stream was changed and the finding of trees and fungi in the ruins.

The adjoining natives, the Navajos, are only race that have any tradition concerning these people, and theirs is that the cliff-dwellers became extinct by being overcome by numbers, and, preferring death by drowning rather than at the hands of the enemy, jumped into the water below their homes, and, instead of drowning became fish. The cliff-dwellers were a quiet, inoffensive race, judging from the lack of instruments of war and the many articles that were used in their crude method of farming.

Phrenologically speaking, they were quiet and peaceable, the back part of the skull being very flat and often depressed, while the front part was well formed and denoted some intelligence.

Among the skulls in the collection is one that consists of one piece only, and shows no trace of a seam between the three parts, as is usual in the human skull. The bones found would indicate that they were a people of medium height and well formed, having small hands and feet, the hair black and finer in texture than that of any known race of savages. There is no sign of any domesticated animal or fowl with the exception of the turkey; it was utilized in many ways, specimens of dust brushes, bone needles, etc., having been found. The agricultural products found consisted of corn, beans and pumpkins, for articles of food, and the yucca for that of clothing. Their textile fabrics consisted of mats and cloths made of cord of the yucca plant interwoven with the down from the turkey or fur of some animal, and is soft and flexible. It was used evidently only in the burying of their dead, who were wrapped in this cloth.

There were discovered near the cities of these people large reservoirs for holding the water that came down from the mountains. These reservoirs were made with stone walls. There is one still perfect, it being situated on top of the "mesa verdi" or foot hills, and is 150 feet in diameter, walled with double walls and contains from ten to fifteen feet of water. All their farming was carried on in the valleys above the canyons and was accomplished by hard labor and with the crudest of implements, nothing having been found of this nature except a sharp-pointed stick of hard wood, which was used to tear up the ground for planting.

Their household utensils consisted of pottery jars and casks made of fiber and covered with a substance resembling modern varnish Both were made in coils and are light in weight and of course very durable.

Their knives were made from the bones of the deer, highly polished and very sharp. There is nothing to indicate that they were acquainted in any respect with the uses of any kind of metal. They used both wood and coal for heating and cooking purposes, and had their fireplaces just outside the door in the same manner that the Mexicans do to-day. The sandals used, unlike those worn by savage tribes of the present, were made of vegetable fibers and not of skins, and there is nothing to show that the cliff dwellers were in any way proficient in the art of hunting, as only arrows of hard wood and cane are found, and they could not be used in killing large game, being of so fragile a nature. They had but few ornaments, which were made mostly of turkey bones and nuts resembling the hickory nut, and of which no other specimens are extant. There are, however, a few made of cannel coal, inlaid with ivory of some kind.

This race was one evidently that on account of their peaceful natures were driven from place to place in the valley, and finally took refuge and built homes in these almost inaccessible places, and were at last overcome and perished in defense of their homes, as the unfinished walls found indicate that they were suddenly interrupted in the midst of their usual occupations and met a violent death.

THIRTY CENTURIES OLD.

Something About the Latest Find of Cuneiform Tablets in Egypt.

The latest find of cuneiform tablets in the valley of the Nile is one of unusual interest. Workmen excavating for bricks in the mounds at Tell El-Amarna, a village about 100 miles south of Cairo, discovered 375 of these tablets on the side of the palace of one of the Pharaohs, King Amenophis IV., who reigned about 1,300 years before the present era, or 3,189 years ago. They are about three inches square, composed of the soft clay which was in common use among the Babylonians. Several of them have been deciphered. Some are found to constitute a diplomatic correspondence between Burnaburiash, King of Babylonia, and Amenophis touching an alleged outrage on a Babylonian subject by the latter's Government for which an explanation and indemnity are asked. The letters show that human nature in that gray antiquity was about the same as now and that diplomatic intercourse has changed little. They begin with all the formality and courtesy of diplomacy of the present day:

To Naphuria (surname of Amenophis) the great King, the King of Egypt, thus speaks Burnaburiash, the great King, the King of Babylonia, thy brother. To me and my house, to my horses, and chariots, to my officers and my country, may there be abundance of peace. To my brother and his house, to his horses and to his chariots, to his officers and his country, may there be an abundance of peace.

Another installment is found to be a portion of a correspondence between Dushratta, King of Mitanni, a province of Mesopotamia, with Amenophis III., father of the preceding Pharaoh, which contains the outline of two pretty love stories. Mitanni was a famous hunting ground and Amenophis a mighty Nimrod who is credited on a scarabæus with a hundred lions slain by his own hands. In one of these expeditions he had met Thi or Thna, Dushratta's daughter, fallen in love with her, and subsequently married her. In the other case the same Dushratta pleads the suit of Mane, his brother's grandson, for the hand of the daughter of Amenophis IV. Alas! even in those old days hearts were bought with gold, for Dushratta not only sets forth his own regard for Amenophis as a reason why Mane should be allowed to visit his daughter, but sends him gold and rich gifts and intimates that if Amenophis will only consent to the marriage still richer gifts and gold galore will follow. We do not know whether Dushratta was successful, but the analogies from that day to this would indicate that in all probability Mane made a triumphant tour from Babylonia to Tell El-Amarna with his camels loaded down with ivory, gold, sweet spices and precious stones, and carried off his swarthy bride of the Nile.

There are also in this notable collection letters from the ruler of Alashia, an unknown country, and numerous reports from Egyptian Governors at Sidon, Jaffa, Ascalon and other places on the Phenician coast and in the interior of Palestine, written in the Babylonian language, showing that it was the polite language of the time, and that the domination of Egypt in that day was far extended. Prof. Jastrow, who contributes to the Nation a detailed description of the find, is inclined to the belief that it is only the beginning of most important revelations concerning the early history of Babylonia and Egypt, and says:

There is little reason to question now that the soil of Egypt contains further treasures such as have been found at Tell El-Amarna. The discovery of this remarkable correspondence is as rich in the promises it holds out for the future as in the direct gain which results from it. A few years ago several cylinders inscribed with cuneiform characters were found in Egypt, which, upon examination proved to be documents deposited by the great Nebuchadnezzar in the sixth century while in Egypt, in commemoration of his campaign against the land of the Nile. Between the days of Burnaburiash and those of Nebuchadnezzar the contact between Mesopotamia and Egypt, now more close, now less so, now of a friendly, now of a hostile character, was never entirely broken. We may confidently look forward to having one day in our possession tolerably complete records of this contact.

Apart from the historical, geographical and ethnological value of these documents now coming to the light of day after their sleep of three thousand years in the Egyptian mounds there is a peculiarly romantic interest connected with their discovery, says the Chicago Tribune. They bring us face to face with the men and women who lived in the days of Abraham and Jacob. The Aryan race had hardly begun its great migrations to India and Europe when these letters were written. The Teutons were savages roaming about the huge forests in skins of wild beasts. It is doubtful whether the English islands were populated at all. Greece was unknown, for her traditions do not run back to that time. Old Homer had not yet sung his immortal epics. Romulus and Remus had not suckled the wolf. The great Cæsars were not born. The wealth, refinement and civilization of the world were contained within that comparatively small area through which flowed the Nile on the one hand and the Euphrates and Tigris on the other. And now, after three thousand years have passed away, these little bricks with their cuneiform inscriptions appear among the railroads, steamboats, telegraphs, telephones and fast mails of to-day to tell us that although the material world advances and human skill and knowledge increase human nature remains the same.

A DISASTROUS CHESTNUT.

How a Milwaukee Dude Got a Drink and Lost a Bride.

A very amusing incident, says Peck's Sun, happened a few evenings since over at the Bijou Opera-house, and one young man, at least, received a lesson which he will not forget in a hurry. McKee Rankin was entertaining a large audience with his new play, "The Runaway Wife," and had become blind, as is his habit at each performance, when the curtain went down on the second act. Several men immediately arose and crowded their way out, the eager expression upon their faces telling plainly that they were after a drink. Finally, a nice young fellow, with a beautiful bang, a low-cut vest and a general society air about him, began to get uneasy, and after looking anxiously at each man who arose to go, at last, in desperation, turned to the fair dream of loveliness at his side and said:

"Mary, if you will kindly excuse me for a few moments, I should like to go into the lobby, as there is a gentleman out there whom I desire to speak with."

Mary did not answer, but bowed her consent, and the poor young man crowded his way out, much to the discomfort of several ladies in his immediate row. Hardly had he disappeared through the door when the young lady, too, arose and followed him. Alas! if he had but told the truth and said that he wanted a drink all might have been well, but that old chustnut about wanting to see a man was too suspicious for even a young thing like her to swallow, and so she followed him. She was not mistaken, for, going out the front door, she hurriedly glanced into the bar-room at the right and there beheld her escort peering into the inverted bottom of a glass.

With a cold glitter in her eagle optics that would have quecred a book agent, she headed north and boarded a Grand avenue car, leaving the young man to guess at her whereabouts. Five minutes later he entered the theater, and being a trifle near-sighted, marched down the aisle, and even crowded his way to his seat before discovering her absence. Then the blank look that came across his features was laughable to behold. First he looked at the vacant seat and surveyed the audience, but all to no purpose, for she was nowhere to be seen.

Finally a gallery god mildly hinted that "De girl has gone home to her maw," and then, amid much laughter, the discomfited young man left the house. To make it worse, the young couple were to have been married soon, but now the wedding has been indefinitely postponed.

To Prevent Sick Headache.

Very many attacks of sick headache can be prevented if those who are subject to them are careful about their diet and largely restrict the same to vegetables and fruits easy of digestion. They must forego meat, cheese, pastry, beer, wine, etc in fact, neither eat nor drink any thing which is stimulating in character and at all likely to the digestive organs

It Made Mother Strong

"My mother has been using Paine's Celery Compound for nervous prostration, accompanied by melancholia, etc., and it has done her a world of good. It is the only medicine that strengthens the nerves.' G. H. Beebe, Orbisonia, Pa.

"I am in my 64th year. Have been afflicted in several ways—could not sleep, had no appetite no courage, low spirits. I commenced using Paine's Celery Compound, and felt relief from the third day after using it. I now have a good appetite and can sleep well. My spirits and courage are almost like those of a young man.' S. C. Lineaid, D. D., Gonzales, La.

Paine's Celery Compound

Strengthens and builds up the old, and cures their infirmities. Rheumatism, indigestion and nervousness yield quickly to the curative power of Paine's Celery Compound.

A Perfect Tonic and Invigorator, it GIVES NEW LIFE.

"I am now 69 years old and have tried several remedies, but none had any effect until I used Paine's Celery Compound. I feel entirely different for the short time I have used it. I can walk nearly straight, sleep sound and well, and feel as though there was new life and energy coming into my whole system.' H. Mylius, Cleveland, Tenn.

Paine's Celery Compound is of unequaled value to women. It strengthens the nerves, regulates the kidneys, and has wonderful power in curing the painful diseases with which women so often silently suffer.

Attention is called to the new advs. to-day, a list of which will be found at the top of this column.

Special attention is called to Miss Peebles' window—Xmas cards and Xmas presents in great variety. *

It is a pity that two such good things come on the one night, the St. Andrew's dinner and the Katie Putnam theatre company.

Job printing of all kinds neatly done at the COLUMBIAN office. Prices will be found as low as at any other office in the province.—Adv

The ferry Fairy Queen is bringing large quantities of farm produce, principally baled hay and potatoes, from the North Arm daily.

The str. Irving arrived this afternoon with a large cargo of farm produce and some passengers. She was delayed a little on account of the fog.

The lecture in the Y. M. C. A. course, which was to have been given by Rev. J. White, has been postponed from December 3 to Friday, December 6th.

Just received—A very fine assortment of the celebrated "Prang's" American" Xmas cards and booklets—in time to send to friends abroad.—Zed. S. Hall. *tc

At a full vestry meeting of St. Paul's Reformed Episcopal church, on Thursday evening, it was unadimously resolved to add $120 a year to the rector's stipend.

Rowney, the disturber of the peace, was sent up for three months, as he could not pay the fines imposed. One of the charges was not pressed and a month was knocked off.

The barque Ullock has got 400,000 feet of her cargo aboard. She is expected to be ready for sea in six days. Some lively hustling of lumber has been done on this cargo.

Military matters seem to be slumbering in the city. Not one drill has been put in this season. General Middleton may have something to say about this when he arrives.

The police have their weather eye upon some shady characters who have lately come to town. They are presumed to be some of the gang cleared out of Victoria lately by the police.

The way of the "dodger" is hard. The morning paper wriggled painfully through a column of rubbish this morning in order to evade a "straight" expression on a subject it would rather not touch.

A brand new sidewalk is being laid down across Columbia street between Begbie and Douglas streets. There will now be three in that block, but when the rain descends and the muds come they will all be needed.

Members of Cunningham's election committee should not forget the meeting to-night, over Hall's bookstore. A full meeting of the committee is requested, as matters of particular importance will be discussed.

Lumber is on the ground for a sidewalk along the south side of Agnes st. from Douglas to Mary st. This was the only gap in the side-walk and when it is filled the street may be considered finished, to all intents and purposes.

Almost a week ago, says the Colonist, a summons was issued charging a well known Mainlander with cruelty to animals. The charge was laid by a young lady who witnessed the recent polo match, and who was scandalized at what she called the "inhumanity" of the horsemen. As yet the police have been unable to serve the summons.

Mr. Frederick Villiers' letter to the Times, explaining the accident to the Amphion and correcting the statements of the Victoria morning paper, is being largely copied in the eastern press as an evidence of the famous correspondent's invariable accuracy and reliability.

Mr. Robt. Barber, of Bay City, Mich., has been engaged by the I. O. O. F. of New Westminster lodge to instruct them in the "team work." Members of the lodge and visiting brethren are requested to meet at the hall every evening this week at 8 o'clock. *tc

There was a meeting of the creditors of the Queen's Hotel yesterday at which no satisfactory understanding was come to. Another meeting was held to-day at 3 o'clock, but the result was not made public. It is thought that the creditors may assume the management.

On the 23rd inst., the wife of Mr. David Branscombe, of Steveston, Lulu Island, became the happy mother of a very handsome little daughter. Baby Branscombe is the first arrival in the new town of Steveston, and her babyship has been presented with a town lot in honor of her claim to public recognition.

The Melbourne st. improvements are progressing at a rapid and satisfactory rate. The work has been rendered more than ordinarily arduous on account of the tough stumps and roots impeding the way. The ravines and hollows have all been filled up with young spruce and fir trees, making a good solid foundation.

There is nothing new concerning the now celebrated "order." Five or six carloads of freight are waiting in Tacoma for transhipment to this point, as it was expected that freight in transit would not be included in the "order." If the embargo is not removed, a steamer will be sent over for it, as the Northern Pacific are determined to keep freight moving, and secure their share of the through trade as usual.—Colonist.

Hyack Fire Company.

A special meeting is hereby called for to-morrow (Saturday) evening at 9 o'clock for the purpose of selecting nominees for Chief and Assistant Engineers for the ensuing year, and for other business. By order of the Captain. *t2

An Optical Illusion.

Very prosaic people were trapped last night into remarking upon the beauty of the scene, as viewed from the hill. A curious optical illusion may be observed on any clear night here; when there is a heavy bank of mist resting on the river and the moon is shining brightly, looking at the picture from the upper parts of the city the view southward becomes like a vast sea encircled by far away hills. Once indulge the illusion and it is surprising how difficult it is to shake it off. As Artemus Ward remarked about his country—"Our country's chuck full o' nat'ral cur'osities." But unfortunately they are not appreciated as they might be.

Lytton Square Improvements.

The board of works has at last got round to that neglected spot beside the Caledonian hotel on Lytton square. A good, substantial piece of work is being done, and all the hillocks of stiffened mud which made such an unsightly appearance, have been cut down and levelled off. As an indication of the good reasons which the proprietor of the hotel had for complaining, it may be stated that, although there has been little or no rain lately, a very considerable pool of water collected at the foot of the cutting, in a few minutes after it was made; showing plainly enough how badly needed surface drainage was at that place. The big flume, of notorious memory and upon which the skill of a modern Archimedes was expended in vain in trying to make the water flow up it, now, like an orderly and sensible flume, allows the water to flow down in a manner that must be eminently satisfactory to all ratepayers.

An Interesting Event.

Chinese high life in this city is pleasantly perturbed by the incident, announced elsewhere, of the marriage of Won Alexander Cumyow to Yea Ch'an Sing Kai. Mr. Cumyow is well known to most of our readers, as, perhaps, the most intelligent, clever and best educated young Chinaman in the province, exceeding in his English education many young men of Caucasian origin. Miss Yea Ch'an Sing Kai is understood to be a celestial beauty of "sweet sixteen" and the affair is strictly one of the heart. The marriage rites of the Methodist church were performed this morning, by Rev. E Robson, of Vancouver, at the residence of the groom's father, on Dallas street. The Chinese ceremonies are stated to have been commenced several days ago and to be still in progress. Mr. Cumyow has asked and obtained special permission from the mayor to make a big noise with fire-crackers to-night, in honor of the happy occasion, so that the residents near Dallas street needn't be alarmed if they hear something "go off."

Saint Andrew's Eve.

The Caledonian and St. Andrew's society dinner, which takes place this evening at the Queen's hotel at 8:30, will, without doubt, be a red letter event in the annals of the society. It is understood that a number of Scots living outside of the city will come in and participate in the festivities, as they have always done in years gone by.

Elaborate preparations have been made in regard to the comestibles, while the toast list will not be second to any of its predecessors in point of merit. The tickets are placed at three dollars, but St. Andrew's night comes but once a year, and as has always happened at the banquet, it brings the best of good cheer.

The haggis (not haggess, as it has been printed in a certain quarter notorious for its veracity) is in the hands of a chef and is being manufactured from the recipe written by Burns himself; and nothing will be left out. Those who are used to the stirrup cup, on leaving, can indulge in a deoch an dhoris, "forbye whatever more" they may have surrounded earlier in the evening.

Caledonians are expected to rally round the standard to-night and do honor to the patron saint of Scotia; and as many as possible are expected to don the Highland garb, so as to give the occasion that eclat which is so appropriate at an affair of this national kind. The evenings, to be sure, are chilly, but it's no brawny Caledonian that's going to be kilt with the cold.

A Mysterious Tragedy.

One of the worst phases of the diabolical traffic in supplying whiskey to the Indians, developed this morning. Jennie, a Stickeen Indian woman, was missed a few days ago, the last seen of her was on the 21st inst., and a search was instituted yesterday by Mr. W. Moresby; the result was the finding of Jennie's body stripped to the undergarment, lying exposed to the elements in a puddle of water in the bush about two miles down the North Arm. Near the body were found four empty whiskey bottles, a man's hat and some fragments of clothing. The socks and undergarment were the only articles of dress upon the body. The appearance of the body indicated that life had been extinct several days. Mr. Moresby examined several witnesses and elicited the following: Ralph Smithers, who resides near the place where the body was found, said that on the evening of the 21st a tall dark man without a hat, but having his head bound around with a white handkerchief, came to his place and asked witness if he could give him a bed for the night; he said he had lost his hat in the bush. He appeared to be intoxicated and witness took him to be a French-Canadian. Witness also thought the man was shamming drunkenness, so he told him he could not accomodate him. The latter then went away. Mr. Smithers saw Jennie on the 21st and she appeared to be slightly intoxicated. Dr. McGuigan, of Vancouver, was sent for and arrived by the noon train and impanelled a jury. Foul play is very strongly suspected, and the police feel pretty certain that some dark crime was perpetrated in the secrecy of the woods last Thursday evening. The iniquitous business of supplying liquor to the Indians is affording plenty of ghastly examples of its effects of late. Those who are well qualified to pass an opinion say that the laws relating to this branch of crime are not nearly stringent enough, and say that the only remedy is the cat and plenty of it. The suspected man, whose name is William Call, was up in the police court this morning on a charge of supplying liquor to Indian Jennie. The case was remanded until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock and the prisoner was released on $100. bail.

HOME AGAIN.

F. G. Strickland Enjoys a Fine Trip to the East.—Westminster Enterprise Felt in Ontario.

After a five-weeks business and pleasure trip to Toronto and the coast, Mr. F. G. Strickland returned home last Wednesday.

While in Peterborough Mr. Strickland visited the establishment of Wm. Hamilton & Co., where the machinery, engines and boilers for the Ross. McLaren Mill Co., are being constructed. The engines will be shipped next week. There are three of them and they are being put together at the same time so as to be shipped in one consignment. They are 200 horse power and with one exception, the largest in the province. The Royal City Planing Mills are having one built of the same power. The boilers and most of the motive power of the machinery will be finished next week. The saw mill machinery will be shipped in February. Needless to say, the outfit will be the most complete on the continent and every description of wood working machinery is included in the order. Mr. Strickland took a run down to Niagara Falls with Mr. Beecher of the R. C. P. M. Co. and spent a pleasant time there The Royal City Mills are adding more power to their establishment and some fine orders for machinery have been placed with eastern firms through the agents here, Messrs. Strickland & Co. This firm has consignments coming from the east destined for points ranging from Alaska to Mud Bay.

While in Toronto Mr. Strickland witnessed an interesting exhibition of the powers of the Preston Aerial Truck; the one which performed on this occasion is for the Victoria fire department, and is now on the way to the coast. The ladders are run out on the telescopic principle, and are shot up to the roof of the tallest building in an astonishingly short space of time. The trial took place in front of the Toronto Bank, seventy-five feet in height; the truck was brought along, the ladders shot up to the very edge of the roof, and in an incredibly short time a man was right at the top of the ladder. Then the ladder was swung round on the pivot and the man was gently lowered to the ground and the ladders run in. The truck cost $5,000, and will no doubt be much appreciated by the Victorians. It was made by the Toronto Rubber Co.

The Royal City Mills' agents in Montreal have lately got out something that will do incalculable good to this district and the province generally. It is in the form of a neat little folder of card board, the reading matter on which is headed, "British Columbia toothpicks." The folder states that the Royal City Planing Mills are prepared to furnish timber of all dimensions, from 2x3 feet to 150 feet in length and two feet square. Lumbermen around the big eastern cities express their astonishment at those figures, and say they can't produce any "toothpicks" of that style from their woods. The builders are extremely pleased to hear of tall timber at such reasonable rates, viz.: laid down in Toronto at a cheaper rate than Ontario timber can be had for. There can be no doubt that large orders will be booked in the mills here for large building timber. Everybody who got one of those cards was delighted with it and kept it as a curiosity. They caused quite a ripple of excitement in eastern lumber circles. Mr. Strickland's description of the region north of Lake Superior is not very flattering to that place. A foot of snow was on the ground as he came through, and a more forsaken, barren wilderness he never looked upon. There is a good deal of timber in the gullies and it is said that there are great mineral deposits. On the plains about two feet of snow was lying, and it was like coming back to summer again to get into British Columbia.

COMMENDABLE.

All claims not consistent with the high character of Syrup of Figs are purposely avoided by the Cal. Fig Syrup Company. It acts gently on the kidneys, liver and bowels, cleansing the system effectually, but it is not a cure-all and makes no pretensions that every bottle will not substantiate.

Customs Inspectors Buchanan and Reilly, of Whatcom, arrived at Port Townsend Tuesday with J. T. McComber and A. Towers, the brace of British Columbia smugglers taken at Ferndale last Friday, with seventy pounds of opium in their gripsacks.—Times.

THE QUESTION IS ASKED: "WHAT about salary for Mayor?" In reply, I beg to state that the Charter empowers the Council to "pass a by-law" to pay the Mayor $2,000 per year, and it was generally conceded that should be done, as the position now takes the whole time and attention of whoever fills the chair. Therefore, I want it distinctly understood that as a candidate for the position, it is on the condition that the salary is attached to it, otherwise I must beg to withdraw my name, as I am not rich enough to give my whole time and services to the city for nothing.
