Don't forget the target practice tomorrow at the range.

Miss Calvert, of Salmon Arm, visited friends at Enderby this week.

R. P. Bradley received a large consignment of goods this week, paints, oils, etc.

Never pretend to kiss a girl unless you do it. You will thus avoid making an enemy.

H. W. Harvey is handling big, rich, luscious green apples from the orchard of Geo. R. Laws.

It is not the man who uses the most of them that understands the nature of an oath the best.

Enderby is to have a bank in a short time. This is only semi-official, but it will do to bank on.

Sicamous is a hard place for operators. Two of them have been drowned in the lake in less than a month.

Photographer Finley made everso-many babies "look pleasant" this week, and then caught them in the act.

Charlie Metcalfe has a stock of Keating's insect powder that knocks the life out of anything that bites.

J. C. Metcalfe will start work on the erection of a store building adjoining his present stand in a week or two.

F. Pyman will visit Salmon Arm next week, and while there will prescribe the medicine for sick watches.

An accident in the engine room of the flour mill last Saturday morning, has caused the mill to be silent this week.

The Mount Ida property, on which men have 30-day option, is reported to be the biggest mining proposition in B. C.

Miss Byrnes, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Strickland, the past month, returned to New Denver, on Monday.

J. E. Orchard painted the residence of Wm. Elson last week, and added five hundred dollars of beauty to its appearance.

Robert Peel says the Enderby Trading Company will have to hire somebody to keep the trade away while the warm weather lasts.

It is expected by contractor McDonald to have the lower floor of the Bell Block ready for occupancy about September 1st.

The school board have engaged A. B. Wallace, B.A., of Vancouver, to take charge of the Enderby school when the term commences.

You can hang up your hat when you eat dinner at the Enderby hotel now. It's jes' sprisin' what doin's is bein' done these hot days.

R. H. Spedding, of the Kelowna Clarion, paid us a visit this week. The Clarion is already in the field, and promises to be all that its name implies.

A cross at this paragraph means that this is a sample copy of THE EDENOGRAPH, and is a gentle hint that the editor would like to add your name to the list.

The Siwash with his pitch torch and long spear navigates the Spallumcheen these cool nights. There is something picturesque about it to the onlooker; but to the men in the boat, with whom it is a question of "salmon or no breakfast" it is not so interesting.

Walter E. Truesdale is receiving inquiries from all sections in America about the Okanagan, and has issued a second edition of his circular descriptive of Enderby District.

E. A. Chappell has resumed his fruit-tree canvass, and for the present will not fill orders for painting. He is taking orders for fall delivery, and is doing a land office business.

Photographer Finley made a 10 x 30 photo of Enderby while here this week. They will be on sale at Jas. C. English's furniture store, where you can get them framed to suit your taste.

Jessie James furnished us with a bit of news this week. His finger came in contact with a live saw at the mill. Dr. Bentley put the amputated member in position again and thinks he can save it.

The question of recreation grounds for Enderby is still unsettled. What's the matter with organizing a company to take it up; buy a suitable block, fence it and charge an admission fee when sports are held?

The suggestion thrown out by our Salmon Arm correspondent relative to the formation of a Valley Baseball League for next season is a good one, and will meet with the approval of all lovers of the game.

Jas. Bowes passed through Enderby for Kelowna this morning. He will return to this town in a day or two. His business eye is open, and Enderby seems to attract it most, in spite of the report that he is to take the Kelowna hotel.

Thos Pound, of Stonewall, Man., has purchased 80 acres of land of Mr. Fenton on the Salmon Arm Road. He has 20 acres under cultivation, and intends to build at once. Mr. Pound's wife and family arrived from Manitoba a few days ago.

A dog, whose eyes look sadly through two brown spots; short haired, and a dirty white, sits on the cool grass in front of our office and howls for his master. He is not here. We don't know that we ever saw him, but we will let him top the list on our subscription books if he will come quickly and take Towser home.

F. H. Hale, of the Lumber Company, returned from Alberta last Friday morning. He says it is wonderful to see the way the Alberta country is filling up with settlers. In one section he saw a settlement starting where for 30 miles square every foot of land had been taken up. Business is very good, and the outlook for building is brighter than ever.

J. P. Burnyeat, of Vernon, went to Salmon Arm, Tuesday morning, to survey the new road to be built into the Arm It will leave the present road at Walter Gardner's place and run along the foot of the mountain, entering Salmon Arm back of the hotel. It will open up five miles of new country, and will considerably shorten the distance to the Arm from Enderby.

Old Mr. Doherty, who received word last week from his New Brunswick home, of the death of his son and the serious injury of his daughter and two other sons at the hands of his murderous son-in-law, left for his home on Saturday. Mr. Doherty wishes through the columns of THE EDENOGRAPH to express his gratitude to the people of Enderby who so kindly helped him in his awful bereavement.

At the range last Thursday afternoon the shooting was somewhat better than that of the previous week. The score was: Wm. Hancock 20, W. H. Logan 15, W. R. Hancock 22, R. E. Wheeler 25, Alf Todd 7, A. Baird 15, J. Evans 15, W. H. Kenny 16.

We know a man in Enderby who sleeps in a tent. Under his blankets he has a thick bedding of hay. It's fresh and sweet. He leaves the flaps of his tent open to admit plenty of fresh air. The hole is large enough to admit a cow. The other night he was awakened from his peaceful sleep and saw at the end of his nose the horned head of a bell ringer. She was eating the hay from under him.

When the snow comes we will have a sidewalk even with the tracks at the post office corner. At present, pedestrians, and especially ladies with baby carriages, have to take the middle of the road, or get some man who is gallant enough to lift the carriage over the rails for them. When the matter of cost is considered, it is simply a disgrace that the C.P.R. should allow this crossing to remain in its present coudition.

The Kamloops Lumber Company is laying an inch-and-a-half water main from the big pump at the mill to the company's office building, and on to the Enderby hotel. Webb Wright will soon modernize things about his hotel.

A Farmers' Institute meeting, addressed by Prof. Shutt and Mr. Sharp, was held at Salmon Arm last week. These gentlemen were driven around by J. J. McCallum, and were greatly surprised and delighted with the country. Mr. Sharp has been a resident of B.C. for fifteen years, and this is his first visit to Salmon Arm. He was so greatly pleased with the district as a fruit-growing country that he purchased 80 acres, which he intends to plant out as an orchard. Salmon Arm is to be congratulated on getting a gentlemen of Mr. Sharp's experience to engage in fruit-growing in the district.

A woman can flatter a man until he feels all puffed up with a sense of his own importance, and in the next minute she can make him feel flatter than ever.

A glimpse of British Columbia lake-and-mountain scenery.

At Salmon Arm

Work is progressing very favorably on the Independent mine, situated on Mount Ida, and owned by F. A. McLeod. Mr. McLeod has uncovered a lead of quartz, 28 feet wide, streaked with high grade galena. Messrs. Currie and Siefert, owners of the "Silver Thread," adjoining the Independent, report work going ahead very satisfactorily on their claim. Billy Monteith, of the Simcoe, also on the same mountain, expects to develop his property without delay.

The Salmon Arm baseball club are practicing regularly, in anticipation of games with Enderby and Armstrong. The recent infusion of young blood has given the boys confidence in their ability to hold their own with the best of the teams in the Okanagan. Baseball cranks here are very anxious for the formation of a four-club league next season, composed of Enderby, Armstrong, Vernon and Salmon Arm. A schedule of games could be drawn out, officers elected, and everything got in working order before the season begins. What say the fans at the above mentioned towns?

The steady sale of property at the Arm still goes on. The latest acquisition to the valley being Thos. A. Sharpe, of Agassiz.

Mr. Judge, who recently purchased the Blake ranch, has gone on an extended trip to England. Miss Maude McGuire is spending a short vacation, taking in the Winnipeg fair. W. W. Shaw is down from Kamloops, superintending the cutting of his immense crop of hay on his ranch here.

Walter Gardner is making great havoc with the mud holes around Salmon Arm. At present he is three miles from town. If the report is true, Walter has more reasons than one for getting the roads in good condition.

Dan Sinclair and bride returned last Tuesday from New Brunswick. JOTTS.

PolitcalMoses

Early in February last, a representative of a some-time-to-be-published Liberal paper made a trip through the Okanagan Valley. The aforesaid representative was rosy with promises, and gave everybody the glad hand. He was on a mission of charity. He had tended the shorn lambs at Revelstoke for many moons, and came into the Okanagan a political Moses to lead the children of Laurier out of the land of Egypt into the fold of Liberalism. He was about to start a Liberal paper at Vernon—a paper that would lay bare the back of the McBride Clan and polish the nose of the other fellow. All he needed was a few thousand dollars to pay freight and get an incidental or two. He sold stock at ten dollars per and promised dividends from the grass roots. At Enderby he raked in something over $400 in green bills, promises, and other collateral. At Vernon a sum that figured more than $2,000 was raised, one staunch Liberal going as high as $400 the first clatter.

That was six months ago. The paper was to appear some time in April. It didn't. It has not appeared yet. For a month or two the plant that is to print the paper has been lying in the freight shed at Vernon. Nobody seems to know anything about it, and everybody wants to know everything about it.

After making numerous inquiries, some of the Enderby Liberals who subscribed to the stock but did not put up the money, have learned a great deal about it. A few days ago they were shocked from caudal to cranium by receiving through His Majesty's mail a check for one dollar and some cents as the first dividend declared by the company.

A dividend before the plant is out of hock! This is a newspaper venture that may well startle the world! A dividend on the shares before the shares are paid for! A game of something for nothing!

Following the dividend check, a letter came asking ever so gently for the payment of the $10 per share, and promising that, though long delayed, the political Moses would yet appear.

But Enderby Liberals are not so gullible as they are patriotic. They subscribed for stock in the venture to get a Liberal paper in the Valley that they could depend upon. On the face of it the game looked easy. But they see now that it is a political shell game. They decline to take the tempting bait put out in the shape of a dividend, and some are withdrawing their names as subscribers to the stock.

Kuropatkin Fleeing.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2. A report from an apparently reliable source, states that General Kuropatkin's main force has been rapidly moving north for several days. Every available piece of rolling stock is being rushed south for the removing of troops at Liao-yang and other points, to the northward, leaving a skeleton force to contest the Japanese advance on these positions.

All for Fifty Dollars.

An advertisement is appearing in the Vancouver World that ought to touch even the pocket of the facetious Colonel Lowery. It says: "There are some hundreds of thousands more men than women in the Central and Western States of America and in Canada," and that "as a result thousands of trustworthy men—farmers and miners and other—living in certain districts cannot possibly get wives in their own neighborhoods."

Surely this is a sad state of affairs! But listen: "In England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales there are a million more women than men. In these countries, thousands of good, intelligent and attractive girls, many of them daughters of farmers and all of them qualified to make excellent wives—see nothing before them while staying here but the prospect of living and dying as old maids, and this, to them, is a decidedly unpleasant prospect. They would willingly emigrate to America, could they be assured that they were going to meet worthy men there as husbands, and that they could look forward to happy, if humble, homes on the other side of the Atlantic."

How pathetic it all is! Those poor, dejected batchelors and that bunch of "intelligent, attractive" girls just dying to get married! and only the Atlantic between them!

"We may say," continues the "ad," "that all of them could afford to emigrate at their own expense."

By the push cart of the laughing Bob Peel; what a bargain!

And so easy, too!

Here's the way it's done: "We are prepared to give good men introductions to these girls. If you wish to get an introduction please write us with such particulars of yourself (age, nationality, occupation and circumstances), as a sensible girl would expect to get, and we shall write you in reply, with a view to bringing about a suitable introduction without undue delay."

All you have to do is to tell what you want and these Anglo-American agents, as they style themselves, will shake it down to you just like green apples. They say: "Tell us what kind of a wife (age, nationality, appearance and disposition) you wish to get. If you have a preference for any particular Christian sect please name it."

After you have picked your ideal out of the bunch unseen, "You will also enclose our fee of five dollars. A further fee of 45 dollars will be due to us within one month after marriage, thus making 50 dollars altogether.

"It is not at all necessary that you be a wealthy man.

"But it is necessary that you should be a man who would be a kind and good husband to a good wife."

If there are any Eveless Adams in this part of Eden who would make "kind and good husbands," here is the chance.

Another Good Samaritan.

An amusing story is told of a negro preacher's version of the parable of the Good Samaritan.

There was a traveller on a lonely road, said the preacher, who was set upon by thieves, robbed, and left wounded and helpless by the wayside. As he lay there various persons passed him, but none offered to assist him. Presently, however, a poor Samaritan came by, and, taking pity on the wounded man's plight, helped him on his mule and took him to an inn, where he ordered food and drink and raiment for the man, directing the innkeeper to send the bill to him.

"And dis am a true story, brethren," concluded the preacher, "for de inn am standin' dere yet, and in de do'way am standin' de skel'ton ob de innkeeper, waitin' for do Good Samaritan to come back an' pay de bill!"

Lost—A brown colt, 2-year-old past. One white hind foot, small star on forehead. A. Paul, Enderby.

Thirty-five hundred people in the Okanagan Valley, and only one bank to handle the business! What an opening there is at Enderby for another bank!

UNNECESSARY FEAR.

Since town incorporation was decided upon some four weeks ago, a few Enderby property owners have taken a decidedly pessimistic view of things. They believe that incorporation will mean greatly increased taxes. It is doubtful if a more unprogressive feeling could take hold of anyone than this fear of taxation. No one is in a position to know what the rate of taxation will be when the town is incorporated. There is not any reason to believe that it will be any higher than it is at the present time. The town will have the fixing of its own rate.

Last year, Enderby paid upwards of $3,300 taxes, and the government did not expend $200 in the way of town improvements. This year, the amount that Enderby will pay will reach $4,000. How much of this sum will we get to improve the town?

Incorporation does not necessarily mean a raising of the rate of taxation, although most people are ready to pay more when they know that it will be spent to improve the town. But the improvements can be kept down, and made to come within the Incorporation's means.

When the town is incorporated, the matter of waterworks, sewerage, and lighting, can be settled. If the town would own its own plant for lighting and waterworks, debentures can be issued to cover the expenditure. The matter of taxation need not enter into the consideration when the matter of these utilities is discussed. The users will pay for them. What is now paid for coal oil and put into the water barrel will go towards paying the debentures, and in the end the town will have a valuable asset.

If, on the other hand, the town should decide to place these utilities in the hands of a private company, it will be in a position when incorporated to grant a franchise and fix the price to be charged. In its present condition, Enderby cannot make a move in the direction of securing or granting anything. So long as we cannot give anything we cannot expect to get anything, or to induce anyone to do anything. There never was a time when something was given for nothing.

New Denver, the beauty spot of Canada, has lost its newspaper. R. T. Lowery has moved the Ledge to Nelson, and will publish a Monday morning paper. If ever a town deserved to lose its best friend that town is New Denver. It's business people have adopted a policy that will surely send the town to the demnition bow-wows. For more than two years the Ledge has been starving to death, but the editor has tightened his belt and sailed on. At last the button kissed the vertebra just above the lumber and he had to quit.

ARMSTRONG WISDOM.

Unadulterated advice and wisdom best of bigotry is not as a rule of great value. The Armstrong Advertiser says: "The Edenograph is overlooking the misleading effect of keeping the heading 'Okanagan Produce, 1903,' over a table of produce which includes not only the produce but also the live stock, lumber, cord wood, and flour and mill-stuffs shipped out of the valley. Produce, in its ordinary sense, implies no more than is given in the first five columns of the table in the Vernon Board of Trade pamphlet." With due respect to the good intentions of our creamery contemporary, we must decline to accept its "ordinary" definition of produce. Produce, according to the accepted dictionaries of the English language, means "that which is produced, yielded, or brought forth; the outcome yielded by labor or natural growth; product, yield, production, result."

Perhaps the Advertiser thinks that spuds and those things allied with spuds, are the only "ordinary" things that come under the head of produce; but, bless me, there are some extraordinary things produced in and about Armstrong. We might instance the "Tiger" as one.

THE WAY IT IS DONE.

The fruit growers of California do about as the farmers of Enderby District do through the Exchange they have not started yet. They form themselves into associations. There are local associations, and a Central Exchange. The members can sell outside of their associations, but if they do they are bound to pay a forfeit of ten cents a box. The local associations employ skilled hands to grade and pack the fruit, and they ship the fruit to the Central Exchange as they receive orders. The Central Exchange has agents at the different market centres, who telegraph market reports and receive the fruit for sale by private contract, or by aution, as they deem best. When a shipment is received from the local association it is forwarded to the market, which, according to the received reports, promises best at the time. The shippers receive dividends from the Central Exchange. A portion of the proceeds of each shipment is retained. If any shipper suffers a loss from the damage or decay of the fruit, all the members of the association contribute to make it good. After this sum is deducted an average is struck of the proceeds of the shipments, according to the different grades; the actual cost of the management of the Central Exchange is charged up and a final dividend is declared at the end of the season. The Central Exchange also fulfils a useful function by buying wholesale and distributing to the local associations the material for the manufacture of the boxes for packing fruit. The popularity of this organization is constantly increasing, and today the Fruit Associations of California market 35 per cent. of all the citrus fruit grown in the country.

Alf Todd's Business Increasing

Alf Todd had been so voluble and persistent that the baldheaded little man upon whom he was operating had, in sheer desperation, purchased a 50c. bottle of his "Sprout Instanter" hair producer.

Two days later the little man bounced into the shop with a glare in his eyes that caused the proprietor to pick up the broom as a weapon of defence, and to retreat precipitately to the other room.

"That 'Sprout Instanter'——" commenced the little man, in a tone that made all the razors shiver.

"But, sir, you must have patience," interrupted Alf. "Why, it was only two days ago——"

"Patience!" broke in the irate one. "Great Togo! There ain't enough patience in the world to fit my case! My wife has mistaken the hair-producer for furniture polish!"

"Ah, I see!" smiled the barber. "And you want another bottle?"

"No, I don't!" snapped the baldheaded gentleman. "I want to know how much you'll charge to shave our new dining-room suite!"

Brains Over Matter.

A Private Soldier who had fought bravely during the Boer war had occasion to seek employment of a well-known general. This private had had the misfortune to lose his nose while in action. The general was so tickled with the appearance of the private that he burst out into loud laughter, to the discomfiture of the private. The general said, when his laughter had subsided:

"My good fellow, where did you lose your nose?"

"I lost my nose, sir," said the nettled private, "in the same battle that you lost your head."

Matter of Opinion.

"You would get along a great deal better if you didn't get so excited," said the calm man to his irascible friend. "Can't you learn to keep your temper?"

"Keep my temper! Well, I like that," retorted the other. "I'd have you understand that I keep more temper in one day than you have in your possession during a whole year!"

Weight of Eggs.

There is a big difference in the weight of eggs of pullets and hens and of those laid by different breeds. Poultrymen who sell by count and not by weight do not always get full value for their product. An English authority gives the following differences: S C Brown Leghorn pullets 17 1-2 oz. per doz., hens 21 1 2 oz.; Light Brahma pullets 23 1-2 oz., hens 28 1-2 oz.; Black Langshan pullets 24 oz., hens 28 1-2 oz.; Pekin ducks 35 1-2 oz.

With The Owl

"LOVE, sweetheart! Who said he loved you? Surely you do not believe his attentions were inspired by love! Passion approaches nearer the truth."

"But father, he always is so affectionate; so full of life, and so free. I cannot understand what you mean."

"Perhaps you do not, my girl; perhaps you cannot. Passion approaches nearest to love of any of our feelings; passion is often mistaken for love. Men and women of all ages and all temperaments make the mistake. They climb the heights of joy on the pike of passion and —get married. Then, when the sweets turn sour, when life becomes humdrum and workaday, they find that they did not marry for love, but in passion. The best treatment for passion is a generous application of the garden hose.

"Passion is the awakening of the animal in man. It is a hard taskmaster. It does not come of God, and is not of God. Passion seeks to get and to hold, and is never satisfied. It eats the heart out of a man, and burns the love out of woman. We die to the best that is in us when we give life to it.

"Love is purer and nobler and more refined. Love takes only that which makes others happy in giving. It is long suffering, patient and kind. It's life is in the giving. As we exercise it, it grows the stronger. As we give to others, our capacity to love grows the larger. Give it abundantly and the fountain will be refilled. We shall never be empty. Retain it to oneself, and love stagnates the soul. Like ripened fruit, love is hard to keep without going bad. Love, sweetheart, is for the lover. It is from God. It cannot reign in one's heart unless it reigns in its purity, and it cannot reign in its purity if God is not there. Where God is, love is. It cannot be where God is not—that's passion,—that's hell."

Of Interest to Women.

The woman who desires long life must have eyes round and wide rather than long and narrow, and if they are brown or hazel life will be longer than if they are black or violet.

The brow must be ample, and slope back slightly from an absolute perpendicular. The head must be wide and high over the ears.

The brow must be full and well set, and the chin square and firm.

The nose must be wide and full through its whole length, and have open, easy, dilating nostrils. This indicates a good heart and good lungs.

If the orifice of the ear is low, indicating a deeply seated brain, there is a better chance of long life.

The woman who appears taller in proportion when sitting down than when standing has a good chance to live long. If the body is long in proportion to the limbs, the heart, lungs, and digestive organs are large.

Enderby Frankness.

"Mabel," said George, with his fine, open smile, "I'm going to be frank and truthful with you from the start, as I mean to be always when we are married. You are not so beautiful as many girls, but you have more common sense and good-nature than any other half-dozen girls I have ever known."

"Thank you, dear George," said Mabel, sweetly; "and now I'll be frank and truthful with you, as I know you want to have me. You have no more tact than a goat, but you have the broadest and most constant smile of any man, woman, or child I have ever seen, and it shows ——"

But George's desire for frankness had suffered a blight, and he made it perfectly clear to Mabel that he did not care to know what his smile showed.

Grandma's Wisdom.

"Ma," remonstrated Bobby, "when I was at grandma's she let me have fruit tart twice."

"Well, she ought not to have done so, Bobby," said his mother. "I think once is quite enough for little boys. The older you grow, Bobby, the more wisdom you will gain."

Bobby was silent, but only for a moment.

"Well, ma," he said, "grandma is a good deal older than you are."

Could Play Chess, But——

"You don't know how to play chess, do you, Mr. Adlet?" asked Miss Skitts, with a look at the clock, which indicated 11.30 p.m.

"Why, yes, I do, Miss Skitts. What made you think I didn't?"

"Why, you don't seem to know when it's your move."

SPUDS BETTER THAN GOLD

Whoever heard of spuds being worth more than twice their weight in gold? That is actually the case in England, where potato growing has become a science. Think of 14 pounds of seed potatoes selling for $7,000!

The following article from the London Illustrated Mail, of July 9th, gives a hint of what might be done right here in the Okanagan Valley: "Plebeian as was once the potato, it has now become a plutocrat of plutocrats; and from dwelling in the open fields it has come to reside in the Park-lane of vegetable society, and rubs shoulders with delicately-nurtured plant aristocrats living in luxurious hot-houses. Such, at any rate, has been the happy fortune of the Eldorado, of which all the world has heard so much of late. How this potato came to town and stormed Society's citadel is an interesting story. During last year Mr. George Massey, of Spalding, made a fortune out of a small stock of the Eldorado—he being one of the three holders of the variety—selling the tubers at the rate of $500 per pound, and sometimes for as much as $50 an ounce.

"Of his original stock Mr. Massey saved 24 pounds for setting purposes, and in January these were planted in a greenhouse and 'brought on' quickly with a temperature of about 60 degrees.

"Now, the 'life' of a potato is contained in its 'eyes,' and as soon as these began to grow the little shoots were nipped off and potted in much the same manner as are geranium slips. Each 'eye' received from three to four croppings, and as the plants grew they were re-potted and as many side-slips were taken as was thought advisable.

"This extraordinary method of propagating the potato was persisted in until the beginning of May, and by that time several thousand plants had been obtained, two houses being devoted to their accommodation. As the weeks progressed the temperature of the houses was gradually reduced, and the plants were eventually hardened off by standing the pots out of doors.

"On special behalf of the 'Illustrated Mail,' the writer was present at the removal of the plants to the open field on 'Mafeking' Farm, which is connected by telephone with the grower's place of business in Spalding. Lack of enterprise cannot be laid to the charge of South Lincolnshire agriculturists!

"The nursery in which the Eldorado plants received so much fond petting being some little distance from the farm, the pots were put into trays and loaded on a horse trolly. Ordinarily, the setting of valuable seed tubers is undertaken by women picturesquely hooded and sack-aproned, who take the 'tates' out of 'chitting' trays—shallow boxes in which the tubers are sprouted in outhouses—and carefully place them at the bottom of the ridges.

"With the Eldorado the land was ridged in the usual way, but the ridges were made somewhat wider apart, and each plant was divided by two feet from its neighbours, fifteen inches being about the distance at which common tubers are set. As the plants were needed, they were handed by the women to the setters, who gently tapped the pots on the upraised toe of their boots, and then, with extreme care, so as not to break off the potato-marbles, they raked in and pressed down the soil with their hands. Although the amount of land thus planted was something under an acre—which, by the bye, is being watched day and night—the owner declared to me that the crop, as it then stood, was worth from $60,000 to $75,000! What it will be worth when lifted, who shall be bold enough to prophesy?

"Previous to the planting out of these potatoes, Mr. Massey was repeatedly pressed to sell small lots of his stock of plants, but he refused all offers, having decided to run the risks of a possible bad season and a falling market. Against the latter contingency, however, the grower is already fairly insured, as he has succeeded in securing a number of advance orders at $15 per pound. It is calculated that each plant will produce from two to three pounds of tubers, or a possible return of $45 per root.

"According to the local Press an order for three tons of Eldorado tubers, autumn delivery, has been placed in the neighbourhood, the selling price mentioned being $50,000.

"Many people in South Lincolnshire have invested in single tubers of the Eldorado, and are cultivating them in the manner already described. Mr. John Crawley, of Whaplode Manor, Holbeach, paid $65 for an Eldorado, although it barely turned the scale at an ounce. It has been grown under Mr. Crawley's personal supervision, and has produced sixteen strong, healthy plants, worth at the market price from $10 to $15 each.

"The enthusiasm evinced for the new tuber is partly the outcome of the large sums of money made out of its predecessor, the 'North Star.' It should be explained that the life of a variety or species of potato is about twelve years. After that period it becomes weak, and more addicted to disease. The Eldorado, which has strong disease-resisting and crop-producing qualities, has been the most successful variety yet placed upon the market."

"Living by Faith" does not mean being lazy.

Incorporation is a step forward—the first step.

In order to know men, it is necessary first to know oneself.

The best way to forget a trouble of any kind is to get lost in one's work.

Be a friend to everybody, but lean on nobody, and do not let anybody lean upon you.

After all, how little we know of another's purpose until we can see what he has done.

It seems to me that success lieth in doing things perfectly.

Every action and every thought of ours is building for hell or heaven—here and hereafter.

Faith in our fellowman is the first requisite of a beautiful life.

No man need die of consumption who will harness himself to a sawbuck and stand up in the harness.

We do not have to know much about farming to realize that spuds grow best for the man who hoes 'em.

Teach every child to be independent. Dependence is the greatest curse that can befall a human being.

Perhaps I am wrong, but I believe we get goodness, kindness and love dished up to us just in proportion to the amount we give to others.

Say, you! Isn't it kinder to give a man credit for what he is, than find fault with him for not being what you think he ought to be.

How much we like to be parlor soldiers! How we shun doing anything that is not according to custom, or that will engender strife of thought!

There is good in all religions. Why cavil because your neighbor demands the right to teach his religion the same as you demand the right to teach yours.

I know it is difficult to think that there is no fire when we smell the smoke, but better that than excite ourselves and alarm others by telling our suspicions.

What the Local Pastors Talked About Sunday

"My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge: because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee." These words of Hosea, depicting Israel's lost condition, formed a text for Rev. Mr. Campbell's sermon, Sunday morning. After dwelling at some length on the awful darkness into which Israel had fallen in the time of Hosea the prophet, Mr. Campbell said he believed that in the present day the great lack of piety in men, and their carelessness about a knowledge of God, was the product of ignorance, just as it was in the days of Hosea and with the children of Israel. He believed that all impiety and most sin was the result and product of ignorance. Ignorance, not of worldly education, or technical knowledge, but of religion and of God. This lack of knowledge, he said, was prevalent, in all sections and with all people, the educated and the uneducated.

The fault is two-fold. When we have light, or knowledge, or wisdom of God, it is our own fault if we fail to give it to others. When we have a vision of truth, of God's goodness and Christ's salvation; when we see in Him all that makes life worth living, the responsibility is ours to tell it to others. The other fault is that of the individual. It is every man's duty to put forth his energies to learn of God and His Goodness. Ignorance that is the result of one's own lack of effort, is the great cause of the impiety of men. Because they will not take God's word and learn of Him they live in darkness and drift into conclusions that lead them farther and farther away from God. It should be every man's aim to make some progress. When we think of the posibility of the succeeding generation being less advanced in the truth of God than we, because of our ignorance; that our children shall suffer greater impiety than we because we have failed in doing our duty to them! the thought, he said, should make us quiver.

The subject of the discourse by Rev. Mr. Roberts, Sunday evening, was the "Blessing and Cursing of God," taking for his text the second and fifteenth verses of the 28th chapter of Deuteronomy. After rehearsing God's dealings with the children of Israel, showing how as they obeyed God they were blessed by Him, and as they disobeyed Him, and refused to follow His laws they were cursed by and through their own transgressions, Mr. Roberts brought the subject nearer home and pointed to the history of modern nations as proof that the blessing of God is still upon the countries whose people follow His commandments and seek to honor His name.

He said that cursing always follows disobedience: it is a natural result.

In the home life, the disobedient child is ever in difficulty; and so it is in our relationship to God. As we seek to know His will and obey, we are kept in that blessed fellowship with Him that keeps us safe no matter where we are. It is always God's way to give pardon and blessing to His children; and the offer of blessing is always given first. The conditions upon which the blessing rests are first, diligently hearkening to the Word of God, and then to be continually doing unto others what He would have us do. There cannot be any stepping aside; there must not be any idleness. And Christianity, he said, is not merely the formal attendance at church service. We might attend all the services ever held, and yet fail in the doing of God's will.

God's cursing comes as a result of not hearkening, and not doing His will. We learn to despise God when we will not hearken, then we disobey Him, and finally we desert Him. Then His cursing comes upon us. But it need not come. The choice is our own. By disobedience we deliberately accept it.

The Market.

Speaking of the market the Columbian says: "The supply of fowl on Friday was very gratifying, but the same fault can be found with this part of the floor which was complained of for some time back, viz.: that the older birds do not find a ready sale, and the younger fry are still too small. The first mentioned was less in evidence on Friday than heretofore as the supply in 'toughers' was considerably reduced. The price for the full-grown birds ranged from $5 to $6. Younger fowl as mentioned above, were rather small, though the supply was large enough. The quotations here were from $2.50 to $4.50 per dozen. Of ducks there was a fair supply, and nearly all the offerings in this class were in good marketable condition, but the demand was very weak and only a few sales were recorded. Prices for ducks were from $4.50 to $6 per dozen.

Eggs were very well represented on Friday, and the trade here was for a time rather brisk. It fell off, however, as further supplies arrived for sale, and towards the end of the morning the wholesale price was showing a tendancy to drop in places. The quotations in case lots can be safely placed at 29c. and 30c. per dozen, while the retail price remained at 30c. Butter was, like its side-partner in the dairy division, well to the fore, and a large volume of business was transacted along this line. Wholesale prices were quoted at from 20c. to 22 1-2c. per lb., according to the quality of the article for sale; though this can be said for the butter dealers that there is very little choice in their wares, as in nine cases out of ten the quality is first-class.

Vegetables showed up well on Friday, and the demand for carrots, onions, beets, and other lines was large. The supplies here were fully equal to the askings, and the result was that the vegetable section of the floor was the scene of much business on Friday. New potatoes were selling at from $1 to $1.35 per sack. No sales in ton lots were reported.

The small fruit lines were all pretty well filled up, but they are nearly all getting too ripe, and by another market day their time will have passed. Black currants were reported in demand last week by the Columbian, and this brought in a large supply for the following Friday. They sold at 6c. per lb.

Making Newspapers on Time.

A trial was recently made in Austria to decide in how short a space of time living trees could be converted into newspapers. At Alsenthal, at 7.35 in the morning, three trees were sawn down; at 9.34 the wood, having been stripped of bark, cut up, and converted into pulp, became paper, and passed from the factory to the press, whence the first printed and folded copy was issued at ten o'clock. So that in 143 minutes the trees had become newspapers.

Lumbering Looking Better.

The outlook for the lumber industry is improving. An active demand has sprung up for shingles, and it is stated the demand is greater than the supply. It is confidently expected this activity will extend this fall to the lumber industry as a whole. The harvest in Manitoba and the Northwest promises to be good. Many little portable mills have been employed to cut the odd bits of timber on the prarie, and it does not take long to exhaust these. The Lake of the Woods ship lumber to Manitoba for much less than can the British Columbia lumbermen, but the demand cannot be supplied from this source alone. British Columbia must command the market of the future.—Kootenay Mail.

Telephone to Similkameen.

Among the supplementary estimates brought down on Monday were the following items: Telegraphic communication between Okanagan Landing and Kelowna Mission, $4,500; Quesnell-Barkerville branch repairs, $1,000; Ashcroft-Lillooett branch line repairs, $1,000; extension of Kamloops Lower Nicola telephone line, via Granite Creek, Princeton, Hedley, Keremeos and Fairview to Penticton, $13,500.
