GOD SAVE THE KING

His Majesty's Health and the Coronation Ceremonies--Career of the Ruler of a World-Wide Empire.

KING EDWARD VII.

The state of the health of the King has caused general perturbatation among the citizens of Rossland which has been more or less allayed by the various bulletins which have been posted as to the condition of affairs at Buckingham Palace. Desirous of getting a corroborative testimony as to the real state of His Majesty's health, the WORLD telegraphed for the rival service of the Associated Press, Scripps and McRae, for confirmation, eliciting the following reply:

London, June 25, 5:45 p.m.—The King's life is very uncertain. He has just awoke from an hour's sleep but was not refreshed. The Royal family are assembled awaiting instant's call.

Happily this bulletin of a certainly alarmist character is not borne out by three bulletins of a later hour, sent over the C. P. R. wires by the Associated Press and emanating from the physicians of His Majesty, his private secretary, Sir Francis Knollys and the leader of the house of commons the Right Hon. A. J. Balfour. These are respectively dated at 6:30, 7:25 and 7:45 p.m., and state that the King's strength is maintained, and that there is no symptoms to cause special anxiety; that His Majesty is resting easy and is improving and lastly, that he is free from pain.

On the whole there is therefore every reason for hope, and for thinking that the official celebration of the coronation will be proceeded with at no distant date.

The following is I. N. Ford's authoritative statement of the King's illness published in the Toronto Globe, under date June 21st, 1 a.m. It will be noticed that he locates the King at Windsor and not in London:

The King had most fatiguing work on Saturday, (June 14,) was exposed to dampness and went without food until the evening. A chill, followed by high temperature and indigestion, brought him into the hands of his physicians, who have been keeping him on low diet and as quiet as possible at Windsor.

Thers has been no lumbago, but digestive disturbances, and no serious consequence, except that it has involved the necessity for absolute rest, in view of next week's arduous labors.

Preparations for the festivities tomorrow are in due course, the citizens wisely taking an optimistic view of the situation and regarding some of the reports current as being too alarmist in their character, especially as the King has desired the holiday to be kept.

Columbia avenue is already assuming a gala aspect with its rows of greenery extending up Washington street and along First avenue. The merchants have already commenced to decorate and the stores of Messrs. Holstead & Wright, of Empey Bros., and Vaughan & Cook will be hard to rival for the effect produced. The Bank saloon has shown a good example to its fellows in the trade. Rossland will thus truly look en fete tomorrow morning at the outset of the parade, and everything is en train for the successful carrying out of the scheme of celebration which will, do doubt, go off without any hitch.

The drilling committee wish to announce that each team will only be allowed one hole and a period of 15 minutes, and that the drills must not be used of less than one and one-eighth inch bar steel.

Three bonfires have been arranged for dusk, one of which will be lighted at the old fire hall, another near the bluff at the west end of Columbia avenue and the third at the intersection of First avenue and Washington street.

One of the most interesting feature of tomorrow's program will be the children's share of the event. This will take the form of races which are being got up under the careful superintendence of Principal Tait, who has spared neither time nor money in making the affair a success. The prizes have been carefully selected and are better than the usual grade given. The races will take place on Columbia avenue at 1 o'clock sharp.

The prizes given are as follows:

Boys under ten, 75 yards, 1st prize, a football; 2nd, a tool chest.

Girls under ten, 75 yards, tea set and doll.

Boys under twelve, 100 yards, fishing rod and reel and a kodak with films.

Girls under twelve, 75 yards, dressing case and kodak with films.

Boys under fifteen, baseball bat, ball and glove and a fountain pen.

King Edward VII. was born at Buckingham palace on November 9th, 1841, thus giving a double interest to "Lord Mayor's day." His mother, Queen Victoria, conferred the title of Prince of Wales upon him when he was a month old. He was christened Albert Edward, and nearly £200,000 was spent in public rejoicing over the event.

ALEXANDRA, QUEEN CONSORT.

When he was meeting his eighth birthday he performed his first public duty by opening the Coal Exchange, London. He accompanied his parents to parliament for the first time when he was fourteen. In 1855 he went to France with the Queen and Prince Consort, and commenced a popularity with that nation which has yearly increased. When seventeen he was confirmed by the archbishop of Canterbury—"Bertie acquitted himself extremely well in his scripture examination," wrote the Prince Consort.

His studies were divided between Edinburgh, where he attended the chemistry lectures of of Lyon Playfair, Oxford, where he resided at Christ church, and Cambridge, where he was a member of Trinity college though residing at Madingley, having also the benefit of Charles Kingsley's lectures. In 1860 he travelled through Canada, and visited the United States as the guest of President Buchanan. Blondin offered to carry him across Niagara Falls in a wheelbarrow! Returning home he studied military manoeuvres at the Curragh Camp, Dublin, and his superior officer kept him up to his work "as no one else has done," wrote Queen Victoria, after a visit to her son."

To the grief of all, the amiable and gifted Prince Consort died on December 14th, 1861, and henceforward the Prince of Wales had to be more than ever his mother's helper and deputy. He had a tour in the east with Dean Stanley as a delightful cicerone. On his twenty-first birthday his betrothal to Princess Alexandra, daughter of King Christian of Denmark, was gazetted. A month before his wedding the Prince took his seat in the house of lords, and ever since has manifested a keen personal interest in parliamentary events.

His marriage was celebrated in St. George's Chapel, Windsor castle, on March 10th, 1863. The King and Queen have had six children; one dying in infancy; the Duke of Clarence, who died in 1892; three daughters (Princess

"THE KING, GOD BLESS HIM."

Seventy years ago during the reign of the man called in contempt "Billy, the King," the monarchy had fallen into sad disrepute. The reign of four alien monarchs, the four Georges, so caustically satirized by Thackeray, had so thoroughly estranged the hearts of the British pleople from the system that open prophecies were made that the end of the monarchy was near Longing eyes were cast across the Atlantic at the great and growing republic established in the "American Plantations," and comments as invidious as true were daily made between the institutions of the one country and the other.

All this has changed. Never perhaps during the whole period of British history has the sovereign been more firmly entrenched in the hearts of his people than at the present moment. Comparisons drawn today between the two great sections of the Anglo-Saxon race are no longer invidious to the older country. On the contrary, even by citizens of the United States, the mother country is looked upon as a truer home of liberty than her firstborn.

The causes for this great change have been two. In the first place the sovereign in England, personified in Queen Victoria, by personal force of mind and beauty of character did much to reconcile her subjects to the anomaly of a truly democratic people being ruled over by an aristocratic family. Again, the family became, after the lapse of the five generations between Victoria and the first George of Hanover, nationalized. It was after all the lineal descendant of the Stuart which house, more than any other, commanded the personal affection of the inhabitants of Great Britain and also that of the Emerald Isle. Moreover it was more and more understood that the sovereign "reigns, but does not govern." The personal influence exerted by a wise sovereign would make much toward the general good of the people. But an influence for evil is checked by the safeguards of what Englishmen are pleased to term the British constitution.

Heredity may seem a poor way of selection. Theoretically it is so. Practically it is not shewn to be worse than any other In that Great Republic just referred to the choice of the people on their ruler has not resulted in the best men reaching the presidential chair. Rather has there been a reign of mediocrities. Again, the aristocracy in the old country, not being engaged in trade, have no wish to exploit labor. It is rather the successful business man who has this wish and tendency. Aristocracy tends to support the monarchy and labor backs it especially when the other alternative is a legislative oligarchy controlled by a plutocracy represented by a series of gigantic trusts and soulless corporations.

All this may be perfectly unsound and wildly illogical but the hard fact remains that the King has a wider popularity today than any of his crowned ancestors possessed. He has not as yet the influence of his mother, but, should he be spared the country, it is more than probable that even this will be attained. As Prince of Wales he was before the public for thirty years and more before he came to the throne. He is a first-rate speaker at a dinner table, he is known, and the reputation endears him to the majority of his countrymen, as the dead game sport. He is easy of access, and democratic of intercourse, and is, perhaps, the most popular man today in Great Britain. He has his faults, but "fierce is the light that beats upon a throne" and regal failings, under such a searching light, are apt to be exaggerated. He is King, but first he is a Briton and a Man.

And he is the link of Empire:

Raise the songs, ye loyal voices
  Save the King, God save the King.
Shout till Britain's heart rejoices
  And the Empire's echoes ring.

Crown'd in him is all our glory,
  Summed in him our hope and power
Peopled shores and oceans hoary
  All for us are Edward's dower.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The news as to the health of the King is not particularly reassuring this morning although nothing definite will probably be able to be stated for the next few days to come. The unfortunate postponement of the coronation festivities and ceremonies tomorrow in London is extremely regrettable and it is sincerely hoped by millions of British subjects that His Majesty will yet be able to hold this function at an early date.

It seems probable that notwithstanding the indisposition of the King that the Colonial premiers assembled, together with His Majesty's government, will hold a conference as to the formulating of a compacter system of Imperial relations tending toward the unification of the Empire. The outcome is at present in doubt and the result of these important deliberations is awaited with much anxiety.

Premier Barton's View as to the Position of the Empire.

London, June 25.—Mr. Edmund Barton, premier of the Australian Commonwealth, has not lost time nor evaded any important issue in discussing the work of the approaching imperial conference.

He considers an imperial zollverein impossible, but admits that mutual tariff concessions within the empire are practicable, although attended with difficulties.

His frank statements confirm the belief that preferential trade and imperial defence will be the chief topics discussed at the conference.

THE TROCADERO

Dinner to the Visiting Colonial Premiers.

PEACE PRICE NOT TOO GREAT

Speech of the Great Colonial Soldier General Brabant.

London, June 25.—The Imperial South African Association entertained the colonial premiers handsomely at dinner at the Trocadero last night. Lord Windsor was chairman, and there was a large company to welcome the colonial visitors. The toast of "The Imperial Forces" brought General Brabant before the enthusiastic crowd as one of the most gallant colonial soldiers, and the interest of the gathering increased when Hon. A. Lyttleton proposed the health of the guests, and Mr. Barton and Sir Albert Hime were called upon for responses, which were warmly received.

Mr. Barton's best point was that the price paid for peace was not too great, since the good-will of the conquered had been secured. He contended that the suspension of free institutions in Cape Colony would be a dangerous experiment, even for a year, and that the strength of the Empire must lie in the brotherhood of nations of the same stock.

The premier of Natal called out applause when he differentiated between brave foes and rebels deserving punishment.

General Brabant stirred the pulses of the auditors by relating incidents of the seventeen days' siege of Wepener, and by paying a soldier's tribute to the valor and fortitude of British regulars and colonial volunteers.

FIGURES TALK.

The fi th annual meeting of the shareholders of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal company was held in Toronto on March 7th.

The net profits of the year after paying all operating expenses and all charge of every kind, amounted to $207,848.39. After paying a dividend at the rate of ten per cent per annum, a balance of $28,142,.89 was carried forward to the credit of profit and loss.

This company's assets are their coal mines and the townsite of Fernie. Four years ago this company bad no transportation facilities, and their stock sold as low as eleven cents per share. Today their stock is selling at $90.

The Similkameen Valley Coal company, limited, assets are coal mines, timber, water power, agricultural and horticultural land, city water works, electric light plant and the townsite of Ashnola, surrounded by the following resources: gold, copper, silver, lead, iron, lime, fire clay, platinum, and a fine stockraising country, and it is the smelting center of the Similkameen valley, with a climate that is all that could be asked, You can secure an option on this company's stock by paying 10c per share down, and ten cents per month until fully paid, with non-forfeiture clause. This price is subject to twenty-five cents advance without notice as soon as transportation is assured. The present price is $1.10 per share. Do not wait until it is too late, but get in on the ground floor, and make a handsome profit. A purchaser of one hundred shares now, may gain a profit of $8,990. Crow's nest shares as an example. This would be a fair profit on an investment of ten dollars per month for eleven months. We invite the fullest inspection of the company's affairs by intending purchasers. MINOR MENTION.

John Edwards returned last night from Sandon.

J. S. Carter, D. P. A. of the C. P. R. at Nelson is in the city.

Tomorrow being a public holiday there will be no issue of this paper.

The river is falling at Slocan junction and the fishing is reported to be excelent.

Gentry Bros. show last night was the best of its type that has ever been witnessed in this city.

There will be no special choir practice at St. George's this evening owing to the postponement of the coronation.

The St. George's smoker which was to be held this evening in the Lancaster house is postponed for Thursday next week.

Miss Kilea, who has been visiting her sister Mrs. Harvey Davis on Thompson avenue, left today for Coeur d'Alene City.

Gleason and Fredericks are both feeling fit to fight tomorrop night. Wan Lung and Klondyke are every whit as ready for their encounter,

Tradesmen are warned by the chief of police that there are a number spurious imitations of the United States half dollar being passed around the city.

There were two cases of drunks at the police court this morning The offenders were evidently eager to be beforehand with the rest of the public in drinking the King's health.

Mrs. R. Dalby Morkill came over from Grand Forks yesterday accompanied by her son D. B. Morkill. Mrs. Morkill is on her way to Idaho where she will rejoin her husband.

Miss Muriel Weatherdon, daughter of Rev. J. W. Weatherdon of the Anglican church has just graduated at St. Helen's Hall, Portland, Ore. at the head of her class in the Latin-Scientific course.

There was not a quorum at the city council last night. The contemplation of the serious business coming up was probably too much for the worthy city fathers, moreover there was a circus in town.

The members of the Salvation army will hold forth all day on the 26th on the corner of Columbia avenue and Spokane street, and will dispense of ice cream, strawberries and lemonade.

The board of works is improving Columbia avenue. The reason why the nails are not hammered down on the sidewalks, however, is probably because the members of the board strongly disapprove of long dresses.

"It's a Bute!"

"GOD SAVE THE KING!"

Louise, Duchess of Fife, Princess Victoria, and Princess Charles of Denmark), and the present Prince of Wales.

In 1875 the Prince commenced a tour which lasted seven months, and included a long visit to India, terminating just before the proclamation of Queen Victoria as Empress of India. The Prince fulfilled many public duties at home with considerable ability. He dedelivered his maiden speech in the house of lords on February 22nd, 1884, the subject being the housing of the poor. The following year he and the Princess visited Ireland.

In 1891 he was a witness in what was known as the Baccarat case. The same year by the birth of the Duchess of Fife's" daughter, he became a grandfather. In 1893 his only surviving son, the Duke of York, was married to Princess May.

In the jubilee celebration of 1897 the Prince and Princess effaced themselves with charming modesty, so that all the honor might be accorded to the venerable sovereign. In 1900 a happily harmless attempt was made on the life of the Prince while leaving Brussels in a rain

On January 22nd, 1901, by the death of Queen Victoria, after a brief illness, the Prince of Wales ascended the throne, choosing the title of King Edward VII. The events of the first year of his reign have evidenced his high respect for the British constitution, and his gracious consideration for all the countless millions of his subjects scattered throughout the Empire over which he rules.
