AUSTRIA IS BELLIGERENT

FEAR MUSCOVITE'S LITTLE GAME

Mobilization of Troops is Not Going On—Albanian Revolts Spreading.

Vienna, March 3.—Austria expects to have to interfere in the Balkans' struggle, as she cannot permit Russia to have all her own way in a Slav movement, and as there is active fighting going on which is proving a serious menace to the integrity of the Austrian Empire,

Despite their assertions to the contrary there is no truth in the Albanian revolt having been crushed by the Turks. On the contrary the revolt seems to be spreading daily in an alarming manner. The Albanians are threatening Ipek in Servia as well as other points.

It is rumoured here that Russia will take its first opportunity to interfere actively, as it has already threatened. In consequence the entente cordiale which seems to have been established some months ago between the powers of Western Europe has disappeared and Austria has issued orders for the mobilization of her army. No leave is granted to officers on any pretext and the commissariat and other departments are having a thorough overhauling so that the out break of war may not find the Empire unprepared. Special preparations are being made for mounts for the cavalry and Austrain agents are already scouring various countries to obtain an adequate supply.

The Emma

J. J. Campbell, of the Hall Mining & Smelting company, Nelson, was a visitor at Eholt this week for the purpose of inspecting the Emma mine, two miles from there, in which the smelter company is interested, and which it has been actively operating for over a year. For some time past shipments have been made from two glory holes, the second opened being on the B. C. apur. At this point work was recently discontinued, and a few men temporarily laid off. A tunnel, however, has been started farther down from the original ore quarry and a hoist from the No. 2 quarry will be installed at this point, tunnel being on an incline.

Ore from the Emma has been found very desirable for use as a flux at the different Boundary Kootenay smelters when the supply was more than needed by the Nelson smelter. Thus shipments have been made to the Trail, Boundary Falls, Greenwood and Granby smelters, latterly a large part of the output going to the last named reduction works. Since the first of January the Emma shipped ove 5000 tons of ore, while in 1903 the shipments were about 22,000 tons.

Alixeieff Orders Destruction of Port Arthur.

FLANK MARCH OF JAPANESE ARMY

Landing at Possiet Bay May Slightly Disturb Russia's Grand Plan for the Campaign.

London, March 3—It is announced here from St. Petersburg that under cover of the constant attacks on Port Arthur the Japs have landed at the neck of the peninsula and are threatening the railway communication. As Port Arthur is but slimly provisioned and is running short of ammunition it is reported that Prince Alexeieff has ordered the dismantling of the fortress, the spiking of those guns that cannot be carried away, the sinking of the remains of the Russirn squadron in the mouth of the harbor, and the retirement of the entire garrison upon Liaoyang.

Seoul, March 3.—Immediately after the Japanese-Korean agreement was signed, Mr. Hayashi sent the Korean autrocat, Yi-Yonk-Ik, under a special Japanese guard to Chemulpo and thence on the Japanese transport to Japan. This measure on the part of Mr. Hayshi saves Mr. Yi-Yonk-Ik's life from the hands of Koreans, who suffered from his oppression. It is improbable that he will ever return to Korea. By order of the Emperor he was immediately deprived of all official position and titles, excepting that of Major General Yi-Yonk-Ik. His supreme rule rule in Korean affairs is finished, as his absence from the court effects a complete political eclipse.

His history is remarkable. He was born in Aming district, away from the capital, and could neither read nor write. He was shrewd, crafty and unprincipled in serving his Imperial master He rose through successive stages of official life to the control of the empire, finance, army and foreign affairs, and even to control of the emperor himself.

Through his hold on the imperial government funds his influence heretofore had been Russophile, but the departure of the Russian minister and the presence of the Japanese troops caused him to change his policy. The Japanese knowing him to be untrustworthy, and having used him for the completion of all their political arrangements, have now sent him where he cannot cause trouble.

The complexion of the government has been completely changed, There are new officials in all departments, and the absolute supremacy of Japanese influence is effected.

London, March 3.—The Sea of Japan has been full of Jap transports for the last two weeks. Some vessels of this great fleet could easily have gone beyond Wonsan, where a force was landed, to Possiet Bay. Wonsan is on the east coast of Korea, 330 miles south of Vladivestok. Every move has been planned out in advance by the Japanese strategists. Every indentation on the coast line is known to the Japanese sailors, and Possiet Bay may have been selected as the base for a flying column that will strike across country to the Siberian railway.

The position of Japan so long as Russia does not controle the Korean ports is the best possible. A long line of Japanese positions fronts Russian Asia from Saghalien to Formosa.

The advantages of Japan's geographical position would justify, and her sea power would permit of operations either by flying column of larger force from a base in Possiet Bay. A Japanese sea force in operation from a sea base in Russian Manchuria would flank Alexeieff's line of advance from Harbin. It might, in conjunction with the fleet isolate Vladivostok and thus multiply Russian entanglements Japan may be forcing Alexeieff to conform to the necessity of defending Vladivostok as well as Port Arthur. The British lost the initiative in South Africa when they were committed to the relief of Kimberley and Ladysmith. That loss would have been fatal against such a foe as Japan. Russia's plan to hurl a mighty force upon Japan in southern Manchuria or Korea must be utterly dislocated if the Japanese can invade northern Manchuria, and thns delay the advance from Harbin until the main army disposes of the expedition from Possiet Bay that may even now be in a position to threaten the flank of its advance.

LIGHTING THE CITY.

The Miner declares (the wish is probably father to the assertion) that no plan has hitherto been advanced by which Rossland can provide power for a plant to run the city lighting. This is not so. The creeks to the north of the city are yet to be reported upon. The mines have yet to be applied to. The Violin Lake company could probably say something in this matter. Nelson might be willing to supply power from the plant it is erecting this summer, the debentures for which are just reported as sold. The West Kootenay Power company itself might wish to furnish such power if the city did not wish to interfere with the power it is supplying to the mines. The city itself might erect its own plant and yet run it more economically than the citizens have now to put up for.

There are a great many things that could be done before the city has to approach the present lighting people and ask them as a favor to go on supplying the city with inferior light at double rates.

A LICENCE INSPECTOR.

Thomas Long, in addition to his multifarious duties, has now joined on to him those of licence inspector. It is just all well such an appointment should be made. It would be better if the council were to make a rule that in every case where a licence is not paid in accordance with the bylaws as from time to time altered, that the inspector make a regular report of the circumstances so that it shall be read with the minutes at a regular meeting of the council. In fact there is no reason why the licences paid should not be collected every so often and a report published. The report in such case should state the reason why, if instances occur, certain licences were not granted and why, when certain functions have been performed which require a licence for that performance, and yet have been performed without a licence, why this privilege has been allowed to the doors. In this way there can be no covert mutterings, more or less with foundation, as to favouritism. If the council wants to exempts its friends in certain cases from the action of the bylaws it should not be afraid to let it be publicly known and shoulder the blame itself, should any accrue.

THE VENEZUELA DECISION.

Venezuela is said to be bitterly dissident to the Hague decision that the blockading powers should have the preference as creditors. U. S. Minister Bowen declares that the principle was that such powers should have no preferential claim but that this is as yet unrecognized by the arbitration tribunal, but the principle is such that it will force its way into recognition sooner or later. Supposing the case were not that of a nation but an individual who is owing money, which he practically refuses to pay, to several individuals. Two or three of his creditors sue him and get judgment. The remainder will not go to the trouble or expense of doing so. Should these latter creditors be placed on equal footing as the others? That is the principle for which Minister Bowen declares himself an advocate.

The fact of the matter is that Venezuela thought that the United States would protect it against its creditors. The United States very properly refused to assume any such responsibility. To do so would be only possible were it to take over charge of Venezuela, just as a receiver is put in charge of bankrupt property. It would probably be the best thing that could happen to some of the petty South American administrations but they would probably not think so. Venezuela then attempted to play this "principle," and being defeated, is sore. There is nothing else the matter.

PHRA

The Phoenician.

SYNOPSIS

Phra, who dies and lives again in Britain, begins to recount his early adventures—He buys a British slave girl and sails on a trading voyage to Cornwall and marries a British princess. Is attacked and captured by the Romans. Escapes and is murdere by the Druids. Is born again in later Roman Britain. Fnds a tattooed record by his wife on his body. Rescues a Roman lady from a bull and is taken into favor. Lives and dies in her service. Wakes up in Saxon England just before the Battle of Hestings. Rescues a Saxon Maiden from the Conqueror. Marries her. Visited at Stonehenge by his British wife. Compilers of domesday book makes enquiries. Flight to Sanctuary where Phra again sleeps and wakes in Edward I reign. Finds himself a sleeping saint in an Abbey. Visits shrine of his Saxon wife. Joins the knights going to the French war. The daughter of a Norman Baron falls in love with him.

'Ah, but,' she answered, rushing again to the onset, sighing as now the hot, strange love that burnt within her, and now her sweet native spirit strove for mastery—('surely, I think, I am possessed), I will not take "No" for an answer. I am consumed (oh! fie to say it) for thee. I am not first in thy heart! My light, my life and fate, I cannot live without thee. Oh! as you were born by your mother's consummated love, as thou hast ever felt compunction for white cheeked maid, have pity on me! I tell thee I will follow thee to the ends of the earth (Lord! how my tongue runs on!) For one moiety of that affection perhaps a happier woman as I will serve thee through life. Thou hast no wife, 'tis said, to hinder; thou art a soldier, and a score of them, ere I was touched with this strange infection, have sued hopeless for but a chance of that which is proffered thee so freely. Truth! they have told me I was fair, and tall, with a complexion that ridiculed the water lilies on the moat, and hair, one said, was like ripe corn with a harvest sun upon it (it makes me blush'—I heard her whisper to herself—'to apprise myself like this), and yet you stand averse and sullen, with eyes turned from me, and deaf ears! Am I a sight so dreadful to you?'

'Maid!' I cried shutting out her suppliant beauty from my heart—overfull, as I thought it, of that other one, her sister—'no man could look at you and not be moved. The wayward Immortals have given you more sweetness than near any other woman I ever saw—"a sight so dreadful to me?"—why, you are fairer than an early morning in May when the new sun gets up over the wet flowered hawthorns! And for this very reason, for pity on us both, stand up, and dry your tears! Believe me, dear maid, where I go you cannot come. You tread the rough soldier's path! Why, those pretty velvet buskins would wear out i' the first march. And turn those dainty hands to the rough craft of war, to scouring harness and grooming chargers—oh! that were miserable indeed; those cherry lips are worse suited than you know for the chance fare of camp and watchfire, and these round arms would soon find a word was heavier than a bodkin—there, again forget, forgive— and, perhaps, when I come back——'

But why should I further follow that sad love scene under the broad spreading cedars? Let it be sufficient for you that I soothed her as well as might be, and stanched her tears, and modified my coolness, taking her pretty hands and whispering to as dainty and greedy an ear as ever was opened to hear it—perhaps, a little more of lover friendliness than I truly meant, and so we parted.

Now see the shield turned. The very afternoon did the other sister unbend a point with cruel suavity, and set me joyous by promising to meet me at nightfall, whereat, as you will understand, every other event of the day faded into nothingness. At the appointed hour, just as the white mist floated in thin fine wisps from the shadowed moat on the eastward of the castle wall, and the red setting sun was throwing the strong black shadows of cedar branches upon the copper gleaming windows and walls of the side that faced him, I rose, and, making some jesting excuse, slipped away from my noisy comrades in the hall into the shadows of the corridors.

MINOR MENTION

Major Van Buskirk is in the city for a few days.

A son was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. A. Barrett.

The total civic income for the year is reckoned $73,000.

The state of the sidewalk on the south side of Columbia avenue is improved but yet requires attention.

The Rossland Dramatic Club is talking about putting on "The Private Secretary." It is a good play.

There was a successful meeting of the Rod and Gun Club last night. Eleven new members joined the club.

The hockey match tomorrow evening is looked forward to by all the hockey enthusiasts and they are legion.

The water rates figure in the gross income of the city at $15,000. What would the lighting rates amount to?

There is likely to be a clash between the receivership and the winding up officials of the Giant Mining company.

An award of $3,223.50 has been made in the Hoskins case. It is understood that the company offered $3,000 at the outset.

There was a fair house to witness the comedy "Why Smith Left Home" at the Opera House last night, but not as large as the merit of the company warranted.

An order was made in the Supreme Court sitting at Nelson yesterday for the winding up of the Giant Mining Company. No official liquidator has yet been appointed.

The city is paying out yearly close on $3,000 for lighting the streets, etc. If the city could do no better than get that amount free over and above its expenditure on lighting, owning the light, it would be $3,000 better off than now.

In the Colts competition last night at the curling rink Dunn defeated McCraney and Oliver, Hunter. Renwick and Phipps will play in the semi finals to night and play the winner between Oliver and Dunn on Saturday next for the Thompson cup.

It must be remembered that in calculating the water rates there is no charge made on the other side for hydrants, civic office supply, gaol supply, courthouse, fire protection generally, as would be the case were the suppliers of water a private company.

Mr. Ralph Harron, who for the past ten months has been the proprietor of the Palace, has retired. It is rumored that he will soon be in the harness again as manager of one of Rossland's hostelries.

The interest and sinking fund expenditure accounts of the city amount to $20,000. That is to say the water rates nearly cover it. Had the city the lighting it would be in pocket and then could afford to improve its streets and build more sidewalks, do more grading as the camp improved.

CANADIAN DEFENCES.

The First Line of the Militia and the Recent Additions.

Ottawa, March 3.—In addition to Canada's first line of defence of 100,000 men, of whom 46,043 will be the peace establishment, plans have been matured between the minister of militia and General Dundonald, which provide sufficient officers and non-commissioned officers to form the basis of a second line. For example a regiment of infantry will have a field officer and each company a captain, subaltern, a sergeant, a corporal and two men, as a nucleus for this purpose, the intention being that as soon as the first line has been mobilized for active service, these will be set about training duplicates of corps which have gone to the front, so that in a very short time after hostilities have commenced another line of 100,000 men can be put in the field.

All officers and non commissioned officers of the first line will be available for both peace training and war service. The men will be divided into two classes as follows:

(a) Those engaging for both peace and war service, who will be paid and be liable for training in peace.

(b) Those engaging for war service only.

Officers and non-commissioned officers who form the nucleus of the second line, will be required to do training in time of peace.
