AMATEUR BASE BALL

New Club Formed Upon Lines Which Meet With Public Approval.

The formation of a amateur base ball club, which now has been practically accomplished in this city, is something which all true lovers of sport have been wearily looking for some time past. Professionalism is usually the death blow of sport and the recent action of the base ball men of this city is highly to be commended, and their efforts to place the game upon an amatuer footing will be warmly supported.

At a meeting held last night the election of officers of a week ago was endorsed and the following gentlemen will be the executive of the new club: F. A. Dunkle, president; T. R. Morrow, vice president; Ed. Farnsworth, treasurer; A. D. Davis, secretary; Harry Martin, manager. The meeting was thoroughly representative and committees were appointed to arrange the preliminary negotiations precedent to success. Rosslanders may look forward this year to seeing a series of well conducted base ball games which will be won or lost on their merits without the aid of professional help.

The new club will erect the grand stand on the western side of the ground, where it should have been built in the first instance, so that the afternoon sun will no longer be full upon the spectators.

At W. F. Lingle's you can get wood that will burn. Phone 149.

KOOTENAY MINES

Rossland Boundary and Slocan Shipments.

LATEST RETURNS OF OUTPUT

What the Mines are Doing Over the District—Boundary in the Lead.

The shipments for the week, owing to the large increase in the output of the Le Roi, are in excess of those of last week and go nearer the record for the camp of March 17th, 1901. Had the Centre Star continued shipping and the War Eagle still continued its quota, it is probable that a record would have been established.

That the Centre Star and War Eagle have ceased the further shipment of ore was only to be expected, as already announced in the WORLD Nothing can be settled on a permanent basis until such time as the smelter question has been definitely arranged.

The shipments of ore from the camp since January 1, are subjoined. While the shipments for the past week can only be approximately given, those for the previous period have been corrected and give the gross wet weight in short tons of 2000 pounds.

KAMLOOPS LABOR CONVENTION

Five delegates will go from Rossland to the Labor Convention to be held in Kamloops on April 14th, the last of whom was elected last night. These are Rupert Bulmer and Frank Woodside, representing the Miners' Union; J. McLaren, from the Trades and Labor Council; T. Brownlee, Independent Labor Party; T. Beamish, Carpenters Union.

DORNBALT FARM

Scene of the Late Boer Action.

CANADIANS SAVED THE DAY

Further Details of the Recent Encounter—The Regiments Engaged.

Pretoria, April 4.—The British losses in the engagement in the neighborhood of Hart's river, in the southwestern extremity of the Transvaal, March 31st, were thirteen officers and 24 men killed and 16 officers and 131 men wounded. The Boers admit that they lost 137 men killed and wounded.

The action occured at Dornbalt farm, a few miles south of the scene of General Delarey's defeat of General Methuen. The Boers, who were commanded by Generals Kemp and Potgieter, attacked with great determination, but the Canadian contingent which was the last to arrive in South Africa from Canada, and two squadrons of yeomanry under Colonel Cookson, and the artillery and mounted rifles under Colonel Kier, presented such a stout front that the burghers were finally forced to retreat.

The casuality list shows that the Second Canadian Mounted Rifles had four officers wounded, nine men killed and 40 wounded.

Toronto Shipyard.

Port Burwell, April 5.—The Bertram Engine Works, of Toronto, has decided to establish a shipyard here and spend $100,000 on it. The company has a contract for two or three large lake vessels too large to be brought through Welland canal which explains its action.

PRINCE GEORGE

Will Visit United States Next Fall.

NEW COMMERCIAL CONGRESS

Germany's Crown Prince and Other European Representatives Will Attend.

New York, April 5.—High diplomatic circles here are discussing plans for a visit by the Prince of Wales to the United States. The administration at Washington is officially forwarding the proposal of the visit which receives the personal sanction of King Edward The prince's visit will be in acceptance of an invitation to the dedication of the magnificent new home of the New York chamber of commerce.

Several of the members of the New York chamber of commerce who were working on the committee which is arranging the details of the ceremonies to take place in connection with the formal opening of the chamber of commerce building, when they were assured that their names would not be used, said that the heir to the British crown had been invited, he would come to New York early in October, coming as the guest of the New York chamber of commerce and in all probability will make a tour of the United States under the auspices of the New York chamber of commerce. He added that it was the purpose of those having the matter in hand to make the opening of the chambers new home coincident if possible, with a commercial congress of representatives of the great commercial countries. He intimated that word had been received that Emperor William had in consideration the sending of the German crown prince to this country to represent him at the ceremonies. The chamber of commerce is in communication with the French government, and France will undoubtedly be represented.

LABOR PARTY.

The inception of the Labor Party in this province, like the inception of the labor parties in the various colonies of Australia and in New Zealand, is met with the initial difficulty of deciding on the best means of gaining the ends of labor. In absenee of a better suggestion it would be well to follow the lines which have proved so successful when laid down by our brethren across the Pacific. In the beginning the labor organizations united in conference and determined to erect a separate party, or rather the nucleus of a party. This it was considered would permit the labor element where strong to put a separate candidate in the field, and where not strong enough for this would be sufficiently powerful to force in most instances an endorsement of their platform. In New Zealand the rule was made that every candidate who accepted the nomination of the labor party was obliged to give a written resignation in return. This has never been used but it will be seen it remains a powerful weapon in the hands of the organization and also in the hands of the labor member against the insinuating advances of his would-be bribers.

This scheme has worked out satisfactorily. In some instances the labor party has remained distinct as in Queensland where out of a house of 72 members the laborites count 28 votes and thus control the situation. In other Antipodean colonies fusion has been made with the Liberal party to which many abor members formerly belonged. The great danger to be guarded against is the fusion in any one locality of the old parties against the labor vote which is to be feared in such a province as this where so much influence is illegitimately wielded by capital. This can be prevented, if no separate party is formed in the province by large numbers of labor votes in the ranks of either party. A nomination against their wishes is hardly probable, and even if occurring is unlikely to be successful.

The next point is the platform. The drawing up of this needs great care. It needs to be clear cut and define accurately the desires of its framers. If it includes too much, especially in formulating truths which may be self-evident to many of us which, however, are not as yet recognized by others, it will estrange many friends by trying to force them to accept a strange creed which, after all, has nothing to do, except ethically, with practical politics. It were better to dwell upon one or two points, such as the exclusion of the Oriental, a cause practically won, and the arbitration act, whose battle is nearly over, rather than to waste strength on numberless planks which will inevitably follow, but which are not practical politics today.

Then there is the all-important point of organization and a central council or executive with a means of controlling the same, which hall not take all power from their hands but which at the same time will provide a means of seeing that they do truly represent the will of the majority. This will include the proper standing of delegates and the relative number of their constituents and other points of detail which are nevertheless vital to success.

With a well organized party, with a clear cut decisive platform of not too great a length and a clearly defined purpose, there is no reason why the party cannot be formed at once on stable lines and that it should not leap at once into a position of authority in this province.

REFINERIES.

Anyone interested in mining, by looking over the report of Mr. Frecheville and the answer to that by Bernard Macdonald, may easily gather that it is of the first importance to a mine to own its own smelter, since the various methods by which the smelter man increases his legitimate profits, from the arbitrary one per cent added to the amount of moisture to the difference between the wet and the dry assays of copper, are eliminated and these profits accrue to the mine. But there is a step beyond this, which is the refining. Under present conditions, besides the profit in the refining which goes to the refiner and not to the mine, there is the freight to be paid on the matte over long distances. Now as matte seldom is over 60 per cent metalliferous, and often falls to 40 per cent, it follows that freight is not only paid on this before it can be refined but also on 40 to 60 per cent impurities which are of no value. Here a large sum of money is dropped which might be saved. It is a well known industrial axiom that it pays better to sell the finished product than the raw or half made up material. The point is whether this applies to mining as it does to other things industrial.

Now it may be taken for granted that smelting does so pay. But what about refining?

The chief conditions are that there shall not only be a steady supply but that that supply shall be a large one, and also that there shall be plenty of cheap power and plenty of water. Further that the refinery should be established in some central position easily accessible to the whole district.

The steady supply of copper depends altogether upon the steady demand for labor. There must be no labor troubles in the air, hanging like the sword of Damocles over the head of the unfortunate company which will invest its hundreds of thousands of dollars necessary to erect a refinery capable of dealing with the copper ores of the Kootenays. This is the first objection to be removed, and if some local thickheads stand in the way, the legislature must be invoked so that capital can flow in as readily as it does at the Antipodes.

The next point is that of the largeness of the supply, which is enormous in this country but is dependent for its exploitation upon the cheapness of fuel, flux and railway rates. Many a mountain stream in the Kootenays is fit to supply the power and water, but Bonnington falls is peculiarly suitable, and its position near Slocan junction renders it readily accessible from all parts of the Kootenays.

Should that refinery be established there is little doubt but that a further cut could be made in the obtaining of the metallic values from our ores and a consequent further reduction in the possible pay grade, and naturally an increase in the quantity of ore to be mined. Under such circumstances it would be hard to be a losers if almost any old ledge in the country side were mined, and the woods are full of these seams.

But there is a further point in this matter, which is the refining of silver. As the WORLD has pointed out, there is a large and rapidly growing market for silver in the Orient, that Seattle has agents all over the country to get the silver slimes and silver ores for either the Seattle refinery or the Everett smelter, whose dore metal is sent to the former place for refining into bars for the Chinese market. Seattle and Everett are making this profit which should be applied to our mines if proper investigations were made and the matter taken up as it should be by boards of trade and trades and labor councils all over the Kootenays. For, though the latter probably may not as yet think so, it is something that concerns them more vitally than it concerns any other class in the country.

This would stimulate production in silver by transferring the silver market, in no great lapse of time, as is the opinion in western Washington, from New York to the Pacific seaboard.

But, be it remembered, these ideas are not to be languidly approved of but should be actively prosecuted if ever the Kootenays are to be anything or Rossland get beyond the stage of a pretentious village with absurdly metropolitan airs.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

They kicked in New Zealand because "Ready Money" Robison had 100,000 acres of land and forced him to sell 99,000. We are far ahead in British Columbia, for we say nothing of a grant of 4,000,000 acres to one railroad. Moreover we don't even tax it. Ungenerous people those New Zealanders!

The complaint is often made against the insular Briton that he will not suit himself to his market. A dispatch published yesterday regarding American articles sent into South Africa shows that the exporters are of the opinion that anything that suits the American home will necessarily suit South Africa.

JAPS DRIVEN OUT

Miners of Atlin Assembled En Masse.

EFFORTS OF THE AUTHORITIES

No Bloodshed But the Persuasions of the Miners Sufficed.

The following story appears in a recent issue of the Colonist of Victoria regarding the attempted importation of Jap miners into Atlin.

"The present week has been one of the most exciting since the camp was started owing to the appearance of the Japanese laborers engaged for the Atlin Mining company by Mr. Fetherstonhaugh. Mr. Fetherstonhaugh was induced last week to sign an agreement by which he pledged himself to send out the Japs on the first day of June next.

After this arrrangement was entered into, it seemed as though nothing more could be done, but the feeling of intense excitement continued to grow until finally a large meeting of miners was held at Discovery, and it was decided to come down to Atlin in a body and eject the intruders. When the teams, which had been sent out via Cariboo trail to bring the Asiatics to Atlin drew up on Pearl street, it was found that the men were fully armed with Winchester repeating rifles, and as each one stepped out of the sleigh, rifles in hand, a thrill of rage and disgust ran through the minds of the inhabitants, who witnessed the scene. At once the evil news sped from creek to creek.

Forth poured the miners from their tunnels, their cabins and their tents. The men of Pine met the men of Spruce at the halfway, and having joined troops marched straight down to Atlin. The miners, about 150 in number, on reaching Atlin, marched in good order down the main streets of the town, and drew up near the Royal hotel where they had a consultation.

The government authorities apparently apprehended serious trouble and possible conflict with the miners as a number of special constables were hastily sworn in by Mr. Thain, and a team engaged to transport them to McKee creek, whither the miners, their brief consultation over, were already on the way in search of the Japanese.

Just before the miners left for McKee creek, Mr. Thain, commenced to read the "riot act." The miners, however, refused to dally, and continued on their way to McKee. There they interviewed the Japanese and evidently their powers of persuasion were effective, as the Japs consented to leave the creek and the camp, only pleading that they be allowed to remain where they were for the night so as to get a good night's rest before commencing their journey out to Skagway next day.

The following morning (Saturday) they returned to Atlin, escorted the Japs to the town, where the latter soon made ready for departure south. Subscriptions were taken up and sufficient money was raised to pay the passage of the little brown men out to Skagway and Vancouver. They were well fed and treated, and then got off at once. Jack Perkinson being placed in charge of the of the squad, with explicit instructions to see them out of the conntry.

Atlin then gave itself up to the celebration of the auspicious event, and at this moment the sound of revelry and rejoicing may be heard ringing through the town. The miners permitted no excuses of any kind whilst they were engaged upon their task. The whole affair was well planned and organized, the purpose in hand was carried out well and quickly without injury to any one concerned."

SERIOUS REPORTS

Chinese Advices Report Nouthern Insurrection as Dangerous.

With regard to the disturbances in South China the North China Daily New says: "The central government in Peking is in a most pertubed state owing to the serious news simultaneously received lately from Canton and Kweilin, the capitals of the Two Kwangs. Their high authorities report that the disbanded soldiers of General Feng Tze Tsai, numbering nearly 4000 men, have joined the insurgents of Kwangsi which has rendered the situation in the south very precarious and the crisis a dangerous one. These men were all armed with modern fire-arms in 1900, which they refuse to give up when disbanded. The insurgent number now some 60,000 men and when enough supplies in food have been gathered in by them, we may expect to hear some serious news.

MAY BE AN EPOCH

Labor Party Elect Kamloops Delegates--Three Planks Adopted.

What may be regarded in after years as an epoch in the chequered history of this camp is the sending of the delegates from this city to the Labor convention meeting in Kamloops on April 14th. The members of the various unions have already appointed their delegates, and last night the Independent Labor party, as organized in this mining city, has duly elected its delegate and is sending him to Kamloops to represent its views.

The meeting, which was held in the Miners' Union hall, was well attended, and several good speeches were made. The upshot was the appointment of Tom Brownlee as its direct representative, and the formulating of several planks of the proposed platform which is to be decided upon at Kamloops. These were compulsory arbitration, adult suffrage and the initiative and referendum, which last, however, encountered some opposition on account of the cumbersomeness of its machinery.
