A GOOD MANAGER

R. C. Clute on the Labor Situation in B. C.

TEN YEARS WITHOUT TROUBLE

New Vancouver Coal Company's Record—The Fight of Unions to Organize.

In commenting upon the evidence of Samuel Robins of the New Vancouver Coal company, taken before him on the Royal Chinese commision last spring Mr. R. C. Clute writes as follows:

"The company of which Mr. Robins is manager exports about 80 per cent of their entire output, which last year amounted to 580,000 tons of coal. This statement therefore, comes with great force from one having such large interests under his control, and from the fact that he has to compete in the open market. Does not the method adopted with success for over ten years by this company indicate the possibility of running large industrial concerns without an appeal to strike or lock-with their accompanying evils?

The Right of Labor.

It is now conceded by all thinking men the world over that if capital has a right to combine, labor has an equal right. Does it not follow that if capital has the right to speak through one man, and that the ablest man procurable for their business, labor has the same right; and how are strikes to be avoided and lockouts prevented if the only parties competent to treat are not to come together, and how are they to meet if the representative of capital persistently refuse to recognize as such the unions and their representatives? A dispute arises, a strike is threatened. If any agreement was in force by which both sides agreed that the strike should not take place until every other means of conciliation had been tried and failed, are not the chances of settlement immeasurably greater than where, as now in most cases, the strike precedes all attempts at settlement, and after great loss, much irritation and usually unreasonableness on both sides, overtures are for the first time made?

Union Recognition.

The time has come when unions have the right to be recognized, and until this is freely admitted and acted upon, strikes must multiply. A strike is war, always injurious to both parties. In the higher trades and callings unions are recognized. Upon what principle then, can or ought the same right be refused to unskilled labor? When large companies were unknown, and even employers engaged but few men, there might be some reason in the argument that each individual workman must treat for himself, but where the interest of immense numbers and of great capital is represented by one corporation, is it common sense to still insist that there the individual workman shall not speak and act through an organization that can properly represent him.

The Individual's Chance.

Take a company like the steel trust, that employs several thousands of men, what chance has the individual to protest against wrong, real or supposed?—Universal experience has shown that in such case to protest is to invite dismissal. Is, then, the individual to have no remedy for wrong, real or imaginary? The answer comes, if he is not pleased with the wage let him go somewhere else. In nine cases out of ten he cannot go somewhere else. He probably has a wife and family dependent upon him, and stoppage of wages is sometimes stoppage of bread. He is at the mercy of his employer, and often chained by circumstances to the spot. If large corporations will not recognize unions, and if consolidations or trusts are to continue to develop, I think it will be conceded by everyone who has given the matter consideration that some means to arbitrate disputes must be adopted.".

A Good Show.

The circus was well patronized at both performances yesterday and the audiences came away very well pleased. It is the best show of its kind that has visited the camp. The Eddy family are wonderfully good and their share of the performances yesterday alone amply repaid a trip to the circus tent.

ANOTHER DEAL

The Speculator Group, Near the Arlington, Sold.

FIFTY-FIVE THOUSAND IS PAID

Who the Vendors and Purchasers Are—Work Will Be Continued on the Claims.

Nelson, Aug. 21.—The deal on the Speculator group, adjoining the Arlington, on Springer creek, in the Slocan city division, was closed in Nelson yesterday by the payment of $49,000 by J. F. Collom, who throughout the negotiations has represented a San Francisco company known as the Ricowilabi Mining company, the stockholders in which include R. P. Rithet of Victoria and a number of wealthy men from San Francisco, the name of the comdany being arrived at by the inclusion of the first couple of letters in the name of each.

The total consideration paid was $55,000. The claims embraced were the Speculator, Speculator Fraction, Mineral Mountain, Eda Fraction, Empire and Westside. The vendors of the property were Kirkwood of Slocan; Thomas Kilpatrick, Revelstoke; C. E. Smitheringale, of the Slocan Drill and A. Tanks, of New Denver, the two first mentioned getting away with the bulk of the purchase price.

All our fancy biscuits will be closed out at 15 cents per pound. Paulson Bros. tf

SPITZEE RETURNS

Thirteen Cartoads Have Been Shipped--Down 100 Feet.

The last car load of the Spitzee ore shipped to the Trail smelter netted the owners $452 from the smelter. From this has to be taken the cost of mining. About 22 tons constitute a carload. In all, thirteen cars have been shipped to date and so far only the 100 foot level has been reached.

A Crisis Averted.

"Things have come to a pretty pass in Rossland" said a prominent miner yesterday, "when the entire police force of this city has to be called in to protect a lot of innocent rubber-necks—married and single—from the wiles of one poor lone woman."

From hints thrown out by the authorities the WORLD understands that the camp has been passing through a social crisis but faintly understood by all but a favored few.

It is not known whether Attorney-General Eberts has been advised of the matter, but it is now ascertained that the lady in the case has departed and peace once more reigns in several distracted families. Now that the crisis is over it is only necessary to say that the cause of it all appeared to be very cute in her ways, made a killing of Johnnie's-son, and from the time she arrived here until she said good-'eve last night she did nothing but saw wood.

NO GOLD VALUE

A Pleasing Discovery at Northport Smelter.

PLENTY OF VALUELESS MATTE

Where Has the Gold Gone to?—No. 2 Furnace Out of Business for Some Time.

Northport, Aug. 21.—(Special) For some time the smelter management has been exulting over the shipment of two cars of matte they were about to make. The first products of the smelter operations since May 25th. On Monday last the matte was crushed and sacked for shipment and then sampled. On assaying the sample there was found to be a total absence of gold values. Consternation reigned, and doubts were expressed as to whether the gold had leaked out into the Columbia river in some of the numerous mishaps, or was still concealed in some corner of the celebrated No. 5 furnace. The matter is now under consideration by the management. They have decideded to run the matte through the smelter again in the hope of its absorbing enough of the precious metal to come up to the qualifications of their contract with the refineries in New Jersey.

No. 2 furnace went on the retired list for some time to come at 9 a.m., yesterday. The connection with the main stack having blown out at that time on account of the furnaceman allowing too great an accumulation of gas at that point.

Early Bird Catches the Worm.

The lark came up to meet the sun
And carrol forth his lay;
The farmer's son took down his gun
And at him blazed away.

The busy bee arose at five
And hummed the meadows o'er;
The farmer's wife took to his hive
And robbed him of his store.

The little ant arose very early
His daily toil to begin;
A sparrow flew around that way
And took his ant-ship in.

Oh! birds and bees and ants be wise,
In proverbs take no stock;
But like good folks of Rossland
Stay abed till one o'clock.

A FATAL MISTAKE

Gave the Wrong Hoisting Signal.

KILLED AT THE SILVER KING

Terribly Mangled Between the Cage and the Timbers—An Ontario Man 40 Years Old.

A fatal accident occurred at the Silver King mine on Monday night, which cost Curtis Brott his life. The victim of the accident was employed as a machine man and with John Bolitho was at work in running a drift from the ninth station in the main shaft. When being hoisted out of the mine after starting a blast the men did not give the blast signal, and fearing trouble Brott tried to leave the cage and then to get back into it and finally was caught between the timbers and crushed to death. His back was broken, as were both legs and one of his arms.

The victim of the accident had not been employed at the mine very long but was a general favorite. He was about 40 years of age and leaves a widow and five small children in Bracebridge, Ontario.

RETURNS LOST.

Census in Cassiar District Will Be Taken Over Again.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 21.—The census list for the Cassiar district were on the wrecked steamer Islander and are consequently lost. Commissioner Blue has telegraphed for the census to be taken over again.

CIRCUS METHODS

The Thimble Rig and the Change Artist's Little Game.

The ticket sellers at the circus yesterday had all sorts of prices for admission, and succeeded in getting more than the advertised price asked in several cases. One lady who tendered a $10 bill for a reserved seat was—apparently—given back the bill and told to pass in. Later the lady found the returned bill was a $1 one, still later the police collected the $9 and handed the lady the amount.

A Trail man who tried the tempting little game of thimble rig in one of the tents coughed up $65 but the police recaptured $50 of the amount and handed it back to the Trailite.

A Fine Claim.

J. J. Hand recently visited Tom Shipley and Jack McArthur at their claim a mile north of Sheep Creek. The men are down 20 feet and Hand says the showing is the prettiest he has ever seen in the Kootenay country. Great things are expected from further development.

We are overstocked with McCormick's fancy biscuits, so down goes the price to 15 cents a pound. We must close them out while they are fresh and nice. Paulson Bros. tf

A FAIR COMPARISON.

Mr. R. C. Clute of Toronto has written the Globe a second letter on the management of the New Vancouver Coal company as explained by Manager Samuel Robins in his evidence before the royal Chinese commission recently.

This is the company which employs 1400 men, officially recognizes the union, and for the past ten years has worked amicably with its employes under a written agreement, the details of which appeared in these columns some days ago.

During all the years mentioned there never has been a strike among the employes or any stoppage of work owing to differences betweeu the men and the management. On one occasion a reduction of $20,000 a month was made in the wages by the voluntary unanimous vote of the men. When times improved the company, without waiting to be asked, restored the original scale of wages and it is in force today.

Contrast the successful management of Samuel Robins—who has been 30 years in the business—with the announced policy of Bernard Macdonald, who told the Northport men, through Bela Kadish, "We have decided to break up the union at any cost. You must abandon your union if you work for us."

No wonder the Le Roi manager winced when attention was drawn to the case in question. His paper, the Miner, had the unblushing effrontery to state that, although Mr. Robins had succeeded with his men, the mine had never paid a cent of profit to its owners. The record of the New Vancouver Coal company has been well known for years, and when Manager Macdonald allowed his newspaper to publish the untruth referred to he did it wilfully and maliciously. A fair minded man would have made a prompt correction of so palpable a falsehood, but the true facts of case naturally do not suit Mr. Macdonald in his dual capacity of mine manager and journalist.

This union wrecker knows full well that under Mr. Robins' management the New Vancouver Coal company, besides paying a dividend of six per cent last year on its capital stock and debentures, has been able to carry over $200,000 to its reserve account and has a large sum of money on hand for any emergency which may arise.

If the manager of the Le Roi had been content to adopt modern methods, in place of trying to put back the hands of the clock for fifty years and more, this camp would not be in the trouble it is today. Unions have come to stay, and when the Le Roi shareholders obtain the services of a modern manager who knows how to deal with the men they will get good dividends and Rossland will prosper once more.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Spokesman had a funny "Geiser" article in yesterday's issue. Mr. Geiser can rely upon a warm reception from all miners here union and non-union.

Mr. Clute makes a strong appeal for union recognition as will be seen by his comment on the New Vancouver Coal case in another column. Bernard Macdonald declares not only against union recognition, but against the existence of unions and says "we have decided to break up your union at all costs."

Mr. Bratnober has told the Spokesman that the meeting of the English shareholders in the Le Roi companies will take place on August 29th, when Whitaker Wright will be formally disposed of. Mr Bratnober might have added a good deal more, but what he did say was sufficient for the present.

B. BANNETT

COMMUNICATION.

Editor EVENING WORLD.

Dear Sir:—After mature and earnest reflection I have come to the conclusion that the social question with its thousand issues affecting long-suffering humanity will never be solved until the modern system of banking has been abolished. In its stead I would substitute a plan, which if novel could not fail to bring about far-reaching results. My proposition, in simple language, is that governments through their legislatures or parliaments, should abolish all chartered and private banks and reserve to themselves the exclusive monopoly of issuing money. Then and not till then will labor, crushed under the iron heel of the capitalistic class, gain equality of opportunity and a just share of the product of labor.

Political economy is encumbered with a legacy of superstitions and obsolete ideas that have drifted down the centuries. It is a sad commentary on the monied power and the inherent conservatism of human nature that so little progress has been made in the application of principles having all the advances in other exact sciences. The world moves. At the dawn of the nineteenth century, in these momentuous days of discussion of great national reforms, nothing can stay the onward march of truth. Special privileges, whether enjoyed by banks or other corporations, must be ruthlessly swept away. They have no justification for their existence, and if mankind will advance,must be relegated to the junk yard of antiquated notions and exploded fallacies.

I subscribe heartily to the tenents of the fiatist; their general adoption will, in my humble opinion, bring about economic conditions which will revolutionize mankind.

With the fiatist money is a certificate of indebtedness issued by the general government (by all the people) receiveable by all the people for the cancellation of debts. Not unlike the clearing house certificates issued by the associated banks of new York to and for themselves in cancellation of their debts between themselves during a former panic. As between those banks such certificates were money good as gold.

If farmer A takes $100 worth of wheat to the government post and receives $100 in legal tenders in settlement for the wheat, such legal tenders certify that A parted to the government $100 of value, and which debt they cancel. So also if B takes $100 in silver bullion to the government mint for which the government returns him $100 in legal tenders, then such legal tenders certify that B parted with $100 in value to the government, which debt was cancelled with such legal tenders. The fiatist proceeds upon the fact that national legal tenders are such as the people en masse have agreed shall be the instruments for the cancellation of any debt. But if C performs $100 in services to the government, for which the government hands him $100 in paper money, which it redeems in gold, then the debt has not been cancelled until C receives $100 in gold. Hence the paper money is not a full legal tender but only certificate of indebtedness calling for $100 in gold. The great battle that has been waged for the past hundred years between the fiatist and the money lord has been because of the fiatist striving to maintain and uphold the legal tender law to the end that all national currency should be an equal and full legal tender for the cancellation of debts without any discrimination as to such currency or any debts, while the money lord has fought more desperately for the destruction of legal tenders or their curtailment by discriminating legislation. By such legislation they have kept the money cornered more completely than young Phillips recently cornered corn.

The fiatist does not believe that full legal tender paper money can become "dangerously plentiful and cheap" so long as the general government issues it and pays it out in discharge of its debts, or for value received, dollar for dollar. Fiatists do not believe that full legal tender government issued paper currency can become any more cheap than postage stamps issued by the government.

The world through its greatest economic writers is being educated to the truth that all money is fiat. Legal tender currency can no more have two values than a horse can have a value as a trotter and at the same time another value as a draft horse.

No less an authority than the immortal John Stuart Mill has this to say respecting the regulation of currency· "The exclusive privilege, therefore, of issuing bank notes, if reserved to the government or to some one body, is a source of great pecuniary gain. That this gain should be obtained for the nation at large is both practicable and desirable, and if the managemenf of the bank note currency ought to be completely mechanical, so entirely a thing of fixed rule, there seems no reason why this mechanism should be worked for the benefit of any private issuer, aather than for the public treasury."

The evils engendered by chartered banks compared with their utility is overwheming. Under the present system bankers can manipulate and contract circulation at will, diverting money from its proper channels and frequently when conditions are favorable divertfng it into more profitable foreign markets. This wealth, too, after all, is the product of labor, but labor has no share in its own creation. It is high time the common people ceased paying exhorbitant tributes in the way of interest compounded at more than twelve per cent per annum on loans to fill the devouring maws of the insatiable banker, nor do I except the private banker, the parasite of the financial world.

The will of the people is sovereign and to its committee, the government should be safely entrusted the absolute control, management and direction of the currency. Let the government issue money with its own guarantee. If the government issued money at one per cent per annum we would soon hear the last of the money lords under the present archiac system. A scheme could be easily worked out whereby through the medium of postmasters having access to assessment rolls and title deeds, individuals could secure loans not to exceed 50 percent of their possessions. Money can not be made too cheap. Then would industry "blossom like the rose" and an end of the conflicts between labor and capital be reached. This is no philosopher's dream. The thought of today may be the reality of tommorrow. The real enemies of civilation are the money barons who out of their ill-gotten gains build gilded mansions of immeasurable wealth, while the creators of all wealth live like slaves in unpainted hovels.
