MASKED MEN

A Daring Hold-Up at Sirdar Camp.

ROBBERS MAKE A GOOD HAUL

How a Game of Poker Was Interrupted—Two Men Hold Up Seven.

The Sirdar hotel, at Sirdar, was the scene of a very daring holdup on Sunday evening in which, according to the Tribune, two men in masks and armed with guns played a very prominent part. The robbers made a good haul and got clean away.

About 11 o'clock on Sunday night, while a poker game was in progress, a masked man entered by the front door and another man enteren by the side door. The men wore red masks and each was supplied with a six-shooter. There were seven men sitting around the takle at the time and these were at once commanded to throw up their hands, an order which was obeyed without question.

One of the masked men then commanded the victims to line up around the room and while one kept the party covered, the other proceeded to see what there was of value in their clothes. All told, the robbers are said to have secured about $200 in cash, as well as a number of watches.

The victims were then commanded to remain where they were until the robbers could get away, and in a few minutes the bandits were out of sight and well on their way to parts unknown. It is thought that the men who performed the trick were familiar with their surroundings.

SUCCESSFUL SMELTING.

The pleadings in the celebrated injunction proceedings inaugurated by Mr. Macdonald at Seattle, whereby a British company has appealed to the United States court to throttle free speech and jail its former employes, contains some very interesting information which if true, gives the lie direct to the statements appearing in the press concerning the successful working of the smelter.

The complaint avers, and Mr. Macdonald swears to the truth of the statement, that the smelter has been operated since the lockout was instituted at a loss of not less than $50,000 a month. Think what this means to the English stockholders.

Both Mr. Macdonald and his smelter superintendent have repeatedly stated in the press that the smelter has been successfully operated and the public has been given to understand that number five furnace was doing very good work indeed. When well handled five men on shift can manage one furnace, but place the compliment at 15, and what becomes of the odd 200 scabs the management say they have within the smelter stockade?

If it takes 225 men to run one furnace—at a loss of $50,000 a month—how many men and at what cost can the other four furnaces be run at? That is a very pretty sum in proportion is it not?

If Mr. Macdonald desires any credence to be given to his utterance—upon oath or otherwise—he should prepare them more carefully, a short memory is fatal to a certain class of evidence.

Law is proverbially expensive and if $50,000 per month was the minimum cost of running the smelter before "government by injunction" was attempted, it may be taken for granted that the real figure per month will be very much higher now. It will make pleasant reading for the English shareholders of the Le Roi company will it not? Truly when Mr. Bela Kadish declared to Ben Shed and the smelter union at the very out set of this horrible war "you must abandon your union; we have determined to break it up at all cost," he was speaking by the book.

Beyond doubt the general manager must be a remarkable and efficient mining engineer when he deliberately starts a fight against organized labor at a cost of from $50,000 a month up at the smelter alone, to say nothing of the great loss at the mines here.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The general attorney of the Western Federation of Miners has arrived at Northport, to advise the Smeltermens' Union. The smelter management seem to have successfully bought off some the local talent, but they will hardly attempt to meddle with the legal gentleman named, and he can be confidently looked to to make matters very interesting for the management.

The Grand Forks News, a new weekly publication has made its appearance at the Boundary city. The initial number was issued on Saturday last, the manager is E. D. Hall. The proprietors say they hope "to found a weekly journal that shall be the pride of the community, and a profitable investment for the owners." The WORLD respectfully salutes the latest arrival in local newspaperdom, and wishes the management good luck.

What do the champions of Bernard Macdonald think of his attempt to black list the flotation of the Giant, and thus through personal malevolence prevent the introduction of capital into the camp? Isn't it a case of fouling his own nest?

It is often noticed that during a flood, all kinds of things which have rested at the bottom of the stream when it was quiet, suddenly come to the surface. The same thing occurs with a man's character. Traits which lay submerged in peaceful times come to the surface in hours of strife. For instance, by his attempt to throttle freedom of speech, with judicial injunction Mr Macdonald has proved himself to be a tyrant. By his statement that the strike was caused by labor unions that he is untruthful, and by his editorial attempts to blackmail other mining properties that he is a fool. If he indites many more editorials he will become a bankrupt.

It is reported that John Reavis is very ill. No wonder, when he sees the standard of the Miner, which he tried so hard to raise, being trailed in the dust to advance the interest of company wreckers and blacklisting managers.

Bernard Macdonald can send agents broadcast over the United States, and through misrepresentations made by these agents induce men to come to Northport, Washington, to work in the smelter at that place of which he is general manager. Then Bernard Macdonald, after all this, can go down to Spokane, Washington, and have a good time with the boys. But let a resident of Northport approach one of these imported men with the peaceable object of letting him know the actual condition of affairs at Northport, that resident is at once hurried to Spokane in charge of a deputy United States marshal, thrown in jail until he has a preliminary hearing, and afterwards imprisoned for months and fined for daring to violate an order of a United States judge. This is the kind of liberty Bernard Macdonald and his class would give those who oppose their business methods here in British Columbia had Canada as subservient a judiciary as has the United States.—Nelson Tribune.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Editor EVENING WORLD.

Sir:—People here are getting pretty thoroughly disgusted with the misleading statements recently circulated in the eastern press, clipped from the Miner, and the poverty-stricken victims of the War Eagle stock jobbers do not hesitate to brand the whole affair as another plot to deceive the public. Sentiment here is rapidly drifting over to the strikers.

Barney's henchman in the Miner office has done, it would appear, more good than harm to the union-men's cause.

Mrs. Lott was transformed into a pillar of salt; Whitaker Wright has lost his financial head, and if the people of Rossland do their duty that other Ananias, the Rossland Miner, with its intellectually bankrupt editor, will soon be consigned to that poverty and oblivion that invariably rewards the Benedict Arnolds of newspaperdom, and if Messrs. Barney and Kirby are compelled shortly to shoulder their turkey, and without fulfilling the mission for which they came, the disruption of organized labor in Rossland, follow the hundreds of poor devils home they have during the last year banished from their homes with the brand of industrial Cain upon their brow, it will teach other union wreckers that the intelligent workingmen of British Columbia have some rights that must be respected.

Yours truly,
C. FOLEY.

Toronto, July 31st, 1901.

Editor EVENING WORLD.

Sir:—I am a mere onlooker in Venice so far as this district is concerned. I have known other countries where mining is one of the chief industries, and in all candour I must say I have never witnessed a more glaring attempt to wreck a great industry than in Rossland. Some months ago I held shares in the Le Roi, but sold them on the advice of a prominent resident of your city, and what reason did he give me for his advice? Namely that there was an intrigue between Mr. Bernard Macdonald and Mr. Kadish to bring about a conflict with the unions. Said he: "There is but one great mine manager in the world and Kadish is his prophet." I now find he was correct, and have cause to thank him for his foresight, althought I am convinced that I made a sacrifice in selling the 200 Le Roi shares which I then controlled. I do not wish to interfere in any local squabbles or agitation, but I must say it seems strange to find Slocan, Boundary, Nelson and East Kootenay vouchsafing all that is asked for by miners in Rossland, while Rossland, supposed to be the richest ore producer both as to values and quantities in British Columbia is made the exception, and why? Because Mr. Bernard Macdonald has issued his edict, and this must be obeyed although every miner employed leaves the camp, and every merchant is driven into bankruptcy. Mr. Bernard Macdonald never held any such important position as he holds now in his life, and he is, I fear, suff ring from what you call out here in the west "swelled head." He evidently thinks he is the w hole push and foolishly thinks that by starving the merchant out he will coerce him into becoming a slave to his opinions. I must say that for the acme of vanity nothing could surpass the manner in which, after purchasing a newspaper with funds belonging to the British investor, Mr. Macdonald accepts the adulation of his pocket organ.

Yours truly,
BRITISH INVESTOR.

Aug. 6th. 1901.

Editor EVENING WORLD.

Sir:—I have been in this camp for the past four years. I was here when Mr. Carlyle was manager of the Le Roi. I was here when gentlemen conducted the business of the B. A. C., and must say that the advent of Bernard Macdonald into this camp was a signal for trouble, tribulation and tyranny. I notice that his paper rather gloats over the fact that "the big mines in this camp are idle, and the 1400 men who might now be employed" are out of work because of agitation. I ask in all fairness, who caused this agitation? Did Mr. Bernard Macdonald or any of his alien gang seek to pour oil on the troubled waters? Who caused the lock-out at the Northport smelter? Who attempted to buy members of the Northport Union to betray their trusts? Absolute silence upon the part of Bernard Macdonald, if he had any decency, would be proper.

Yours truly.

THE SMELTER GUARD.

Before Going Before Judge Hughes and After.

We are the smelter guard
And Bela is our pard;
We"ll patrol all Northport town,
And we'll do you all up brown,
For we are the smelter guard
of Northport town.

We are the smelter guards so dandy
And we keep our pistols handy,
And tho' our Bela has run away
We, the guards, are here to stay
In Northport town.

Oh! this is the wild and wooley west.
With Carey's help we'll do our best
To turn down all the union crew
And all the trading merchants too
Of Northport town.

We'll let you know, for we are strong
When we have guns; and you are wrong
To meddle with us as we stalk along
And boast and jeer you in our song
As we walk the streets of Northport

So Northport folk, to us give in,
And at our sage advice don't grin,
But quiet keep while we run bold
And make things hot in the old
Town of Northport;
For we are the smelter gnard.

We own we made a great mistake
When we ran our little fake,
And each of us is on the shake
Since we ran up against the wide awake
Citizens of Northport.

But Bela, tho' he ran away,
And fears his shadow every day,
Has captured H———d, and we'll say,
Now look out! for we will have sway
Of every citizen of Northport.
For we are the smelter guard.

A PLAIN STATEMENT.

The Facts of the Case as Presented by the Executive Committee of Rossland Miners' Union, No. 38, W. F. M.

Rossland, B. C., July 12th, 1901.

To the Citizens and Business Men of Rossland and Vicinity and to the General Public:

The business and social interests of a community are so closely interwoven in a community like Rossland, that any dispute among the industrial elements forming the social structure, is often more disastrous to the business or non-combattant class around which the labor and capital elements revolve, than to the actual combattants themselves. Thus both labor and capital are morally obligated to strive to adjust their disputes, to protect the social structure of which they are separate parts.

For this reason this union deems it well to make a careful statement of all the reasons leading us to precipitate this industrial strife at this time. Since the agreement between the big corporations of Rossland and Rossland Miners' Union in April, 1900, this city has apparently enjoyed industrial peace; yet all who are conversant with the industrial affairs of Rossland for the past fifteen months know there has been a secret warfare waged against this Miners' Union, which has been nearly as destructive to the business interests of the community as an open struggle between the two industrial forces, and worse in that there is no apparent end to be seen.

We have given long and careful consideration to this matter and have reached the conclusion that the foundation of the trouble rests on the fact that nearly one-half of the employees in the mines of this community receive about 20 per cent less wages than the same class of labor in surrounding camps, many of which camps have a lower grade of ore and are less favorably situated than Rossland. We believe that it is to continue to enforce this unjust scale of wages that so many annoying practices have been introduced to undermine the prestige of this Miners' Union of Rossland.

First.—An annoying system of espionage and blacklisting by which many of our ablest members have been compelled to seek employment in other localities, although of unquestioned ability in their trade.

Second.—By revoking a time honored privilege of the Secretary being allowed to solicit members among the non-union employees of the companies who might be off duty on the premises of the companies, a privilege guaranteed us by the last half of Article 15 of the agreement of April, 1900; thus preventing us from refilling our ranks depleted by loss of members compelled to seek employment in other fields.

Third.—By connection with bogus employment agencies seeking to flood the overcrowded labor market with cheap foreign labor.

Finally.—By the largest corporation in this vicinity openly seeking and striving to crush a sister union at Northport, Wash.

We believe all these efforts are mainly to enforce this unjust scale of wages and to prevent all efforts towards an increase. Therefore we have fully resolved that there can be no industrial peace in Rossland and vicinity until this wage question is finally and satisfactorally settled. Then will this fair city enjoy the prosperity for which nature has so evidently intended it.

For this result we ask the moral aid and support of the many diverse bodies making he general public of this city.

Especially we ask your aid in maintaining order, without which we cannot succeed.

There can be no permanent settlement but a just settlement, and to this end we will use all our power as an organization, and all the assistance of the Western Federation of Miners.

We have right on our side and must surely win.

EXECUTIVE BOARD
ROSSLAND MINERS' UNION No. 38, W. F. M
