PROCESS CATCHES ON

New York People Want to Know About Elmore Oil Mill.

A New York correspondent who is interested in some Rossland properties wishes to know what is roughly the cost of operating the Elmore process and what kind of ores it will best treat. We would suggest his writing to the Elmore people and asking them for some figures on work actually accomplished in Rossland. Still, roughly it may be stated that the cost of concentration, including the two per cent tax, duty on machinery, duty on oil, depreciation of plant, royalty, present heavy cost of oil which is likely to be considerably reduced will figure for a small plant something less than $1.50 per ton of ore concentrated. The arger the plant the cheaper the operation. With reduction in cost of oil, the abolition of the duty of the duty upon it, the readjustment of the mine taxation, which is promised, it is hoped to bring down the cost to one dollar or less.

With regard to the kind of ore—any ore which does not contain too much iron, which would reduce the percentage of concentration without any commercial value being added to the concentrates, will serve for the process. The value of the ore that can be concentrated profitably can be arrived at by adding the cost of mining and the cost of marketing the concentrates, together with the freight upon them to the cost of milling. Taking that at $3 50, it will be seen that $5 anything over $5 ore can be successfully and profitably treated. As the concentration runs about 10 to 1.

LOCKHART WINS BY CASTING VOTE

Official Returns of This Afternoon—Reform Party Elects Four of Their Candidates

The victory of John S. Clute at the polls yesterday gave much satisfaction and the band turned out, paid the WORLD a complimentary visit, (it didn't last year) paraded Columbia avenue and generally with flaming tourches, mayoral speech, (which was one of the mayor's best efforts) hoarse hoorayings, throwing up of hats and opening up of saloons, made things hum to everybody's delight. As for the Hulme men, they had put up a fight and when beaten were only beaten by a man who had their own platform practically and who had the advantage of being better known and of having a clever financial reputation.

The tactics of Mayor Dean with his city solicitor of disfranchising wholesale had no effect but in the more decisively turning them down. Twice has Mayor Dean been given a civic opportunity and twice at the close of the opportunity have the people turned him down in exactly the same way and for exactly the same cause. He never should have had the second opportunity. The aftermath of his administration will be a series of law suits and expense. It is certain no Rosslander will ever vote to give him a third opportunity in however humble a civic capacity.

The vote as officially recounted today is as follows:

FOR MAYOR

EAST WARD.

CLUTE	110
Hulme	101
Dean	70

WEST WARD

CLUTE	116
Hume	100
Dean	53
Clute's majority over Hume	25
Clute's majority over Dean	103
Hume's majority over Dean	78

FOR ALDERMEN.

EAST WARD.

McDONALD	161
PETCH	133
LOCKHART	112
Preston	112
Morris	94
Dunlop	78

WEST WARD.

STOUT	148
MARTIN	139
ROLT	108
Embleton	100
Forteath	97
Johnson	92

The first three elected in each ward.

The official recount for the west ward had noe closed when the World went to press. No material change is likely.

By the casting vote of Returning Officer McQueen, A. J. Lockhart, who tied with W. C. Preston, is returned.

Card of Thanks

Messrs, Hulme, Martin, Forteath, Stout, Petch, Preston, McDonald, of the Municipal Reform ticket, beg to thank the public for the support accorded them.

Mrs. L. Nadeau will take lodgers at the Headquarters Hotel.

UNPAID TAXES BAR NO VOTERS

Election Bill Invokes Warm Debate With the Victoria Legislators.

Victoria, Jan. 15.—The province's legislators wrestled manfully in committee yesterday afternoon with the Election Act. No radical changes were made up to the time the committee rose, although several distinct departures were suggested. One of these was a proposal to extend the franchise to women, and this found its principal advocates on the opposition side of the house. Although the Socialists were obliged to line up with those on the left, Messrs, Macdonald, McInnes and Paterson voted with the government. The amendment was lost.

A suggestion from the Socialist benches to reduce the deposit for election purposes from $200 to $50 stood over.

The leader of the Opposition questioned its advisability, as he regards the present deposit as no standing in the way of a candidate of substance, while preventing irresponsibles from entering the field, and thus putting the state to needless expense, and perhaps defeating a worthy man by senselessly cutting up the field.

Mr. Wilson was also disposed to question the propriety of the change, although he intimated that he had small preference in the matter.

The favorite proposal of Paterson was advanced, namely, that the oath to be administered to a voter should include a statement that he has paid his revenue tax. He held that this would greatly swell the provincial revenue.

The Attorney-General, however, thought it interfered with the principal of universal suffrage, and refused to accept it.

DEATH WAS NEEDLESS

Charles McPhee Another Victim.

ENQUIRY INTO CAUSES ASKED

Gneral Feeling That There Are Too Many Accidents—Wanted an Inquest.

Charles McPhee, the miner who injured at the Centre Star mine in the same accident in which Frank Gaddo came to his death, succumbed to his injuries at an early hour this morning.

The deceased was a popular man with his intimates and acquaintances, and his death in such tragic circumstances has shocked the community, More than ever is the feeling that there ought to be an inquest held. It is a terrible thing that a man's life should be cast away without any attempt to see that the same circumstances may not again carry off another victim in exactly the same way, It is all very well to say that a missed hole is not to be blamed upon anybody. Apparently nothing that Gaddo nor McPhee could have done would have averted their fate. Seemingly, therefore they are not to blame. Who is? It is not declared that Centre Star management is to blame. But there must be some remedy for these ceaseless deaths from "missed holes." But that remedy will not be found while enquiry is burked. The very fact that there has been no enquiry is extremely apt to engender suspicion. In the interests of human life there should be an inquest.

Supper will be ready at the Hoffman Cafe after the dance this evening.

UNION LABEL

THE PEOPLE'S VERDICT.

The man who declares when circumstances have shown him to be accurate in his judgment "I told you so," is deservedly a social pariah. The attitude of the WORLD with regard to Mayor Dean and his methods is well known. It opposed him in the previous election, it has opposed him throughout the year, and it has opposed him till his teeth are drawn. Every word that the WORLD said of him has been proven by Mayor Dean himself to be absolutely true. Farther removed from the strife, that regrettable strife of 1901, the electorate has been able to see more clearly now that the dust of the fight has vanished. That the people, especially the working people, have reversed their last year's verdict is an omen of peace to the camp. Rosslaud can look forward to a brighter day. There will be no more Star Chamber. There will be no more pragmatical interference. There will be no more Pooh Bah. There will be an endeavor to conserve to the city its franchises There will be an endeavor to help the mines and the working people without browbeating either. So may it be.

When the clouds arising from the present contest have disappeared from the arena, the composition of the council will be seen to be full of promise. For the first time a secretary of the Miners Union, who is also the president of the Western Federation of Miners in British Columbia, is found within within the city council. It remains for him to show the public that he is just as practical and capable a man as others, who perhaps would be commonly thought to have better qualifications, He has been honored by his fellow workmen. He is now honored by the city. Placed in the full blaze of public opinion, and criticism, upon Alderman P. R. McDonald rests much responsibility. For upon his career as alderman will the Miners Union be judged by their fellow citizens. Chock by jowl with him is one of the most respected of the few remaining pioneers of the camp, F. W. Rolt, a man who has much to do with the Elmore process, a man who is identified rather with the mine owning than the mine working interests. That two such men should be fellow aldermen, is much for the camp. Then there comes Thomas Stout, a business man and next him a working engineer, John Martin and then again a baker, Alderman Petch, and a working man, W. C. Preston. Every class is there. No council was ever more representative. This year is the turning point in Rossland's career, and it ought to congratulate itself upon its mayor and council.

There was an opposition between candidates Clute and Hulme, but both men, as the WORLD has pointed out, represented the same platform. In that competition the knowledge of Mayor Clute's past services has weighed against his misdeeds, and the weight of popular opinions has been with him rather than with his plucky but untried antagonist, friendly antagonist at that. But the Hulme party party can still congratulate themselves, for five out of the seven men put by them before the electors have been carried to victory.

Sent down to defeat deservedly was Mayor Dean. It was chance that made him mayor, and he most supremely proved his utter incompetency. Alderman Dunlop and Alderman Embleton, the only two of the old council that again sought the suffrages of the electors, fell with the man they had loyally but mistakenly suppored during the whole of last year, and without whose support the mayor could not have been the public bore which he proved. Alderman Embleton has hitherto always headed the poll and that such a stalwart should have been defeated, can only shown the utter abhorence with which the electorate regarded the late administration. Alderman Embleton has been a good servant of the public, and the WORLD hopes again to again to see him on the councils of the camp.

THE FRANCHISE.

The WORLD congratulates those public spirited citizens who yesterday formally tendered their votes to the Returning Officer and his deputies, after having been illegally stricken off the lists. The matter will not rest here, but is to be pushed to a finish for a decision. The meaning of the act is clearly to admit everybody to the franchise making it as wide as possible, as befits the vote in a free country. Some of our Rossland forensic talent will now have a golden opportunity of bringing their legal attainments well before the public eye, for, if we mistake not, the ill-advised action of the City Solicitor. will cause this matter to be a cause celebre throughout Canada.

SYNOPSIS

Phra, who dies and lives again in Britain, begins to recount his early adventures—He buys a British slave girl and sails on a trading voyage to Cornwall and marries a British princess. CHAPTER VIII (Continued)

'That blessed saint, Ambrose,' said the fat Abbot, pointing at me with his toothpick, apparently for want of something better to speak about, 'is nearly as good to us as the miraculous cruse was to the woman of Sarepta: what this holy foundation would do just now, when all men's minds are turned to war, without the pence we draw from pilgrims who come to knell to him, I cannot think!'

'Indeed, sir,' said the sad-eyed youth, 'the good influence of that holy man knows no limit: it is as strong in death as no doubt it was in life. 'Twas only this morning that by leave of our Prior I brought out the great missals, and there found something but not much, that concerned him.'

'Recites it, brother,' quoth the Abboth with a yawn, 'and if you know anything of him beyond the pilgrim pence he draws you know more than I do.'

'Nay, my Lord, 'tis but little I learnt. All the entries save the first in our journals are of slight value, for they but record from year to year how this sum and that were spent in due keeping and care of the sleeping wonder, and how many pilgrims visited this shrine, and by how much Mother Church benefited by their dutiful generosity.,

'And the first entry? What said it?'

'All too briefly, sir, it recorded in a faded passage that when the saintly Baldwin—may God assoil him!' quoth the friar, crossing himself—'when Baldwin, the first Norman Bishop in your Holiness's place, came here, he found you martyr laid on a mean and paltry shelf among the brothers' cells.

All were gone who could tell his life and history, but your predecessor, says the scroll, judging by the outward marvel of his suspended life, was certain of that wondrous body's holy beatitude, and, reflecting much, had him meetly robed and washed, and placed him here. 'Twas a good deed,' sighed the studious boy.

'Ah! and it has told to the advantage of the monastery,' responded his senior, and he came close up and bent low over me, so that I heard him mutter, 'Strange old relic! I wonder how it feels to go so long as that—if, indeed, he lives—without food, It was a clever thought of my predecessor to convert the old mummy-bundle of swaddles into a Norman saint! Baldwin was almost too good a man for the cloisters: with so much shrewdness, he should have been a courtier!'

'Oh!' I thought, 'that is the way I came here, is it, my fat friend?' and I lay as any of my comrade monuments while that old Abbot bent over me, chuckly to himself a bibulous chuckle, and pressing his short thick thumb into my sides as though he was sampling a plump pigeon or a gosling at a vilage fair.

'By the forty saints that Augustine sent to this benighted island, he takes his fasting wonderfully well! He is firm in gammon and brisket—and, by that saintly band, he has even a touch of color in his cheeks, unless these flickering lights play my eyes a trick!' whereupon his Reverence regarded me with lively admiration, little witting it was more than a breathless marvel, a senseless body, he was thus addressing.

ROTHING TO DO WITH THE CASE

Sir Wilfred Laurier Will Not Interfere With Rand

Ottawa, Jan. 15.—Premier Laurier has received a cable from Premier Seddon, of New Zealand, asking the Canadian government to join with the New Zealand and Australian governments in a protest to the British government against the employment of Chinese in the Rand.

Sir Wilfred, in reply, said that the matter was one which concerned South Africa, and with which Canada has nothing to do, therefore he could not see his way to interfere.
