FIFTY-ONE INCHES DRILLED

Old Rossland Men on Top—Fifteen Minutes Work in Hard Granite—Other Teams.

Spokane, Sept. 23.—(Special.)—In the rock drilling contest in this city last night W. M. Ross, of Phoenix, B. C., and G. S. McLeod, of Sandon, B. C., known among the list of competitors as the Rossland team, won first prize, drilling 51 inches and breaking all previous records for drilling in granite rock. The second prize was awarded James Davey and H. Stephens, of Marysville, Mont., who drilled 46 2-5 inches, while Frank Stevens and Peter Spaulding, of Murray, Idaho, took third prize with 42 15-16 inches.

But three teams contested. Fifteen minutes was the drilling time allowed each.

Both Ross and McLeod are old Rossland boys and are well-known throughout the camp. Their victory is but little more pleasing to them than to their many friends here. That they broke all records in such contests is not surprising as they have had considerable experience and their ability is well known, but it is exceedingly gratifying to Rossland people nevertheless.

KILLED BY A BEAR

Fate of a Kaslo Prospector and Hunter--Badly Mangled.

Kaslo, Sept. 26.—Dan Rice, a prospector and hunter of this place met his death on Friday in an encounter with a bear. He went up Milford creek on that day with Gus Adams on bear-hunting trip. After the pair had been out some time they became separated, and Adams not finding him at camp when he returned, became alarmed and returned to Kaslo on Saturday. He formed a party of ten men, who left that night, and on Sunday they formed a search which was rewarded by finding Rice's body in a badly mangled condition. From appearance he had stepped over a log on top of a large silver-tip, which had attacked him, breaking his arm. It had also struck him on the head, tearing away his entire face and forehead, and tearing the skull back so as to expose the brain His left arm was also chewed badly. Death must have been instantaneous. Qice had not even time to fire his gun, which was found beside him. The body was brought to Kaslo last night and buried at 2 p. m.

Greenwood, Sept. 24.—Clive Pringle, barrister, well-known in West Kootenay and the Boundary districts, who went east about three months ago to get married, has returned to Greenwood accompanied by his wife.

WHO IS THE ABLE EXPERT?

A Delicious Description in the London Financier.

THE AMIABLE LIAR IS AT WORK

Great News for Rossland People--How the Mines Are Really Situated--Nearest Railway Is 30 Miles Away.

Residents here who were under the impression that the Rossland Great Western had two railroads running over its property and that the Kootenay mines were favorably situated as to transportation will be somewhat startled to find that they have long been laboring under a great mistake.

Who is the Expert.

In the London Financier of 28th August last appears a lengthy article upon the unhappy position and future prospects of the two properties named, written by a mining expert of standing.

The WORLD regrets not being able to reproduce the "bear" article in full but the following extracts will be read with interest.

"It may perhaps be as well to say at once that the information contained in this article is based on the evidence of a mining expert of unquestionable ability and integrity, and one who is thoroughly acquainted with the properties named, as well as with all other mining propositions of importance in British Columbia."

This is Important.

"The following statements, therefore, may be accepted by the public with implicit confidence."

Here is Good News Indeed.

"Both the Rossland Great Western and Kootenay are placed at a great disadvantage by the lack of a railway service. The ores, therefore have to be transported at great expense by means of horse-waggons over rough roads for a distance distance of about thirty miles to the nearest lakes, across which they are taken by boat and finally shipped by rail to the smelter at Northport and Trail Creek. To the uninitiated it may may be well to point out that of every ton of stuff thus transported from the mine to the smelter, 19 cwt. roughly speaking, is waste rock."

Worse and Worse.

"The lack of railway service also adversely affect the mines with respect to the carriage of the necessary mining materials, fuel etc., which have to be taken to the mines by the same expensive methods by which their ores are sent from thence."

An Explanation?

Mr. Purgold, of Liverpool, having written the London paper denouncing the absurd misstatements made by "the expert of standing" the Financier wrote its truly able correspondent for an explanation and this is his reply:

Makes it Quite Clear.

The expert explains that "not having been in England, except at short and widely-separated intervals, for many years, he was not acquainted with the names by which the mines are known in London. The facts produced in the article are applicable to two properties situated in the Kootenay district, sometimes known there as Le Roi No. 3 and Le Roi No. 4, and it will be readily understood, having regard to their names and their connection with the Whitaker Wright group, how it was assumed that these must be the mines known here as Rossland and Kootenay respectively. Whilst the Nickel Plate is situated on the slope of the Red Mountain, where are situated also the Le Roi, Le Roi No. 2, Centre Star, War Eagle, etc., and all within a short distance of the railway, the properties referred to above are situated altogether beyond the Red Mountain, and several miles from the railway, as stated in the article."

The Amiable Liar.

The article was of course intended to depress the shares of the Rossland Great Western and the Kootenay mines, but possibly the amiable liar has gone a trifle too far and sufficiently over-stepped the mark to do the camp much harm. The article is simply a glaring sample of the "news" placed before English investors concerning British Columbia.

ANOTHER INJURED

A Josie Missourian Hurt in the Mine--Frame Post Fell on Him.

Yesterday while one of the men from Missouri was placing a timber in the cage at the Josie he slipped, causing the timber, a framed post about 22 inches in diameter, to fall, catching poor "Bud" across the back. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and taken to the hospital. It is feared he is seriously injured internally.

LE ROI FIASCO

Another Attempt and Another Failure.

AMOS LEE COMES DOWN AGAIN

Frank E. French Alone in His Glory The Net Result—Eager Applicants From Missouri.

The much advertised re-opening af the Le Roi mine took place yesterday. At least the Miner said so this morning or otherwise Rossland people might not have suspected it.

Three Rossland men went up the hill and one of these came down this morning. Amos Lee, one of the two union men who joined the noble army of Missourians and young Ontario harvesters, was led to believe that some of the stories appearing in the Rossland Miner were partly true but when he found out the true condition of things he naturally quit the job cold and came back to the union fold.

Frank E. French, who is holding the proud position of foreman to the farmers, is the only union scalp in Bernard Macdonald's wigwam today as the result of all the shouting for days past.

French is a butcher amongst other things and takes naturally to his present job tho' its likely he feels lonely.

Doc. Johnstone, a one time druggist is the third of the rescuers and he holds the job of a shift boss.

The other eager applicants for work are simply some of former Contractor Geiser's men kindly lent for the occasion and their prompt deportation to Missouri and other parts of the United States is already assured.

Naturally the street talker has been busy with announcing details of the army which has rushed into the eager arms of the Le Roi manager, but no one believes that class of jaw-worker now.

Larry McKelvey today writes the WORLD as follows:

"I wish to emphatically deny the street rumor that I intend going on the Hill to work. I have been able so far in life to live without the brand of scab, and intend to do so in the future. Poverty and misfortune will not make me forsake principles."

The new scheme to evade the Alien Labor Act by which the immigrants are to be engaged over again at an employment office will not work, and the Le Roi manager will greatly relieve an angry and impatient public if he will kindly stop bluffing and get down to business, He knows very well that a conference is coming and he might as well come to it at once in place of playing the fool with the public at large.

Was a Rosslander.

J. J. Franklin, whose death at St. Michael's hospital, Toronto, is reported, was well known in Rossland. He was the first secretary of the Rossland Board of Trade in 1897 on its formation, and at the time of his death owned several valuable parcels of real estate in this city.

ALIEN LABOR LAW.

The following appeared as an editorial in the Vancouver Province on Saturday, and is significant coming from the recognized newspaper organ of the Liberal party in Vancouver.

Does it mean that the Alien Labor Act is to be strictly enforced at Rossland? If it does the importation of strike-breakers from Joplin, Missouri, will come to a sudden end. British Columbia must be kept free from alien contract labor, whether it be from Missouri or China. The Province editorial says: We are doubtful of the speedy settlement of the strike in the Rossland camp from the fact that the men when they went out were in a position to fight the matter for some months, and besides this they not only had assistance from the other side of the line, but the great majority of them could go elsewhere in British Columbia or the United States and get as much money for their labor as they were obtaining in the Le Roi and Centre Star properties.

Not only could they get as much money, but they would not be in the atmosphere of distrust and anxiety which existed in Rossland for a year and a half prior to the shutdown.

It is well known on all hands that the managers of the War Eagle and Centre Star properties had been making it uncomfortable for the men for many months previous, and doing it evidently with one object in view. This is so patent to merchants and miners alike in the Rossland camp that ex-Governor Mackintosh, in an interview with him in the Rossland Miner in April last, said that the mine managers appeared anxious that the properties in their charge should not pay dividends. The remark of the governor's was in reference to the uncompromising attitude of Messrs. Macdonald and Kirby, and the apparent desire manifested by them to outrage the sensibilities of the men to such a degree that a strike would be declared. It is more than possible, however, that in addition to this Mr. Mackintosh had an inkling of the stock-jobbing propensities of the directors of both companies, and taking the action of the managers into consideration in this connection he came to the conclusion that in the whole conduct of the mines there was so much going on below the surface as to justify him in imagining that the shutdown for a time at least was necessary to the purpose of those who were operating the shares.

It is announced that Mr. Geiser has obtained a contract for taking out a considerable portion of the ore of the Le Roi, and in this connection the assertion is made that he can procure all the miners he wants in Rossland. It is more than probable that under cover of such a pretence he will attempt to bring in cheap labor from the other side. It is to be hoped that if any such attempt is made it will be defeated, even if the government has to take action in helping to do so.

There is little doubt that at one time the manager of the Centre Star imported a considerable number of Italians from the other side, and in doing so had the secret assistance of the manager of the Le Roi. He had to cease doing so in compliance with outraged public opinion, but there is little question that the policy of the managers in Rossland in this respect has not been changed and that they will do everything in their power to bring in objectionable labor for the purpose of cutting down wages.

It is to be hoped that if there is an attempt to resume work on a basis of that kind it will fail. It is the desire of all interested in the province that operations should be resumed with white working men on every level and in every department of the mines.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

According to the newspapers very few persons merely "die." The banker merely "passes in his checks," the cashier "goes to his last accounts," the mug-wump "joins the great majority," the cobler "breathes his last," the saloon man "seeks the spirit land," the gambler "shuffles off," the stable man "kicks the bucket," the spiritualistic medium "gives up his ghost," the accountant "goes to his last reckoning."—Ex.

Section eight of the Alien Labor Act provides that the attorney general of Canada, in case he shall be satisfied that an immigrant has been allowed to enter Canada from an adjoining country contrary to the prohibition of the act, may cause such immigrant to be taken into custody and returned to the country whence he came at the expense of the person, partnership company or corporation violating section one of the act.

The opening of the Le Roi yesterday was like some of the millinery openings that we sometimes read about, which are unfortunately postponed owing to the non-arrival of the goods.

Missourians who desire to conceal their identity are requested to apply at once to W. S. Rugh for the necessary information and papers.

The Le Roi Mining company has decided to fight the union in the courts. The company has instituted proceedings asking for an injunction and $25,000 damages. This method may wfn temporarily, but it can never permanently settle questions in dispute between capital and labor.—Greenwood Times.

THE Real Situation.

Rossland, B. C., Sept. 5th, 1901.

To the Citizens and Business Men of Rossland and Vicinity and to the General Public:

The Le Roi mine manager has been circulating a report that the strike here is practically at an end and the mines are about to resume. This report has been taken up by their organ, the Morning Miner, and sent out over the country as a true report of the situation in Rossland. We have made a careful analysis of the situation here and believe that no impartial reader can see much reason for the joyful enthusiasm which Mr. Bernard Macdonald and his paper profess to feel.

For three and one-half months the strike has been in force at Northport. The greatest claim Macdonald or Kadish have ever made during that time is that they have been able to operate two of the five furnaces at the smelter. It is only a question of simple arithmetic to see that if it takes three and one-half months to start two furnaces, it will take eight and three-fourths months before they can have the smelter in operation. Now, if it takes eight and three fourths months to e the 500 men necessary to start the smelter, it will take twice that many, or seventeen and one-half months, to secure 1000 men for the mines in Rossland. Or, at the end of twenty-six and one-half months, if Macdonald has the same success he claims to have had thus far at the smelter, he will be in a position to work the mines.

No one can deny or dispute that Bernard Macdonald has left no stone unturned to secure men for the smelter at Northport. He has cast his drag net over the states of Minnesota, Colorado, California, Oregon, Missouri, Montana, or, practically, over the entire country west of the Mississippi river, and has been able to start but two of the five furnaces at the Northport smelter. This is the success he boasts. He claims the strike is at an end. It has only begun.

So far we have taken as true his statements that he has two furnaces in operation at Northport. We wished to prove how futile are his statements by his own evidence. The real truth is he has never had two furnaces in successful operation at one time for 24 hours. They have produced no matte for shipment up till August 25. He claims to have shipped one carload on August 21. That it was the highest in value of any shipment made. The records of the railroad at Northport fail to show any trace of matte shipments on or about August 21, If any shipment was made it was via the Columbia river route and rests at the bottom of the river.

He also claims to be able to start the mines in Rossland. Apparently he does not realize there is an alien act in Canada, for of the 30 employes now at the mines all but two have been brought here in direct violation of this law and will be deported inside of two weeks. He has in eight weeks been able to secure but two scabs in Canada. Now, if the Canadian people should, to his surprise, enforce their laws, even if it does hurt the feelings of Bernard Macdonald, how long will it take to start the mines at the ratio of two every eight weeks? And as yet there is not a miner in the lot.

We are not deceiving the miners of Rossland by false promises. We have every reason to hope that by October 1, 1901, Bernard Macdonald's name will only remain in Rossland as an unpleasant memory. We hope for an honorable settlement of the difficulties here. The sooner the better it will suit the union miners of Rossland. But if it is necessary to continue this fight to its final end the union miners and smeltermen will stand shoulder to shoulder for carrying on the fight.

This war was forced on these unions. We entered the struggle full of a belief in the justice of our cause and confident of our ability to carry it successfully to an end. This belief has never been shaken for an instant, and certainly is not when we consider the almost unbroken line of successes which have thus far attended our efforts.

A RATHER STALE MOVE

Putting Geiser Men Into the Le Roi -- Making Application.

Yesterday morning in order to keep his word to start the Le Roi mine Manager Macdonald took the men from the Josie mine, with the exception of 10 on each shift, to the Le Roi, where they began operations under French, Desmond & Co.

In order to impress the general public with the idea that the Le Roi company is being flooded with applications for employment, the management yesterday had all the men now in their employ fill out applications for employment. These applications state the man's experience (?) and qualifications and the position he desires. The idea is that they wish the public to believe that, while there are 117 men now on their rolls outside of the hospital, that there is another batch of 117 competent men seeking employment.

This is certainly a most brilliant idea, one worthy of the imagination of Jules Verne in his best days.

Voters Attention!

There will be a revision of the voters' lists for Rossland Riding on November 5th, and any qualified voter who is not now registered as a voter in this riding must have his name placed on the registration list fourteen days previous to November 5th, in order to vote at any Dominion or Provincial election in the next six months.

There is a strong probability of a Provincial Election in British Columbia in the near future, and all workingmen should be sure their names are on the voters' lists.

Registration can be made at the office of John Kirkup, collector of votes, or at Brown lee's Bowling Alley, corner Spokane street, or at Miners' Union hall.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

A Man of Great Possibilities--What He Has Already Done.

Mr. Roosevelt is an interesting personality in American politics. He has been described as rich enough not to work at all, yet he works hard all the time. He is brilliant, but not discreet, always speaks his mind, is tirelessly industrious, but yet finds time to enjoy the society of his wife and children. He has been a deputy sheriff in Montana, a politically unique figure, a sportsman, an author and a soldier. "Teddy" Roosevelt, as he is popularly known, is the author of the phrase "the strenuous life." He is a fighter, and his influence, powerful as it was, he lent towards creating the war between the United States and Spain for the possession of Cuba.

Theodore Roosevelt was born in New York, October 27, 1858. His father, who died in 1879, was for many years an influential Republican, but his uncle Robert B. Roosevelt, was equally inTuential in Democratic politics. Theodore Roosevelt himself is a life-long Republican, although he is not what is known as a machine man. Indeed, his speaking has more than once embroiled him with the party, but Roosevelt has always had the courage of his convictions, and was never afraid to express what he felt.

As a young man Roosevelt graduated from Harvard in 1880, and then entered Columbia law school. In 1881 he was nominated for the assembly in the 21st district of New York City, was elected by a handsome majority, and soon became one of the Republican leaders, In 1886 Mr. Roosevelt was nominated for mayor of New York by the Republicans, and ran against Abram S. Hewitt, Democrat, and Henry George, the Labor candidate. He was badly beaten in this three-cornered contest, and for a time kept out of politics, and turned his attention to literature. Early in May, 1899, President Harrison appointed him a civil service commissioner, and he continued in office under President Cleveland, resigning in 1895 to become president of the police commissioners of New York. He did remarkable work in reforming the department, which under Tammany influences, had become utterly demoralized and corrupt. It was his habit to walk about the city at night and in the early morning, to see for himself how the officers were attending to their duties. He kept up his work for several weeks, and the police of New York suddenly found themselves attending to business.

In this position Mr. Roosevelt served two years, and then resigned, to accept the post of assistant secretary of the navy, offered to him by President McKinley. When the war with Spain broke out Mr. Roosevelt resigned his latest appointment because he wanted to jofn the army and go to Cuba. His explanation to friends for his action was that he had done as much as anyone to bring on the war, and when war was declared he had no right to ask others to do the fighting and stay at home himself.

Mr. Roosevelt organized the volunteer cavalry that has gone into history as the "Rough Riders," a body comprising men of every creed, rank and profession, and which made a record for itself in the Cuban war. Roosevelt was the Lieut-Colonel, and led in the celebrated charge at San Juan Hill. He made himself exceedingly popular with his men, for he shared their dangers and discomforts, so much so that they swore by "Teddy."

"In 1898 Mr. Roosevelt was elected governor of New York state and at the time this was considered by many as but a stepping stone to the presidency of the United States. His career here was characterized by the same vim and energy and desire for reform that had stamped his administration in other offices, although the results were prehaps not very marked. At the presidential nominating convention he was again "the man on horseback," and almost in spite of himself was placed in the nomination as vice-president. During the campaign he passed through the west on a speaking tour, and became known as "the cyclone."
