VOLUME 12 — NORTH VANCOUVER, B. C., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1911. — NUMBER 13

Busy Season for Hockey

The prospects are excellent for an interesting series of hockey matches during the approaching season. Six teams have entered the B. C. League in which a schedule has been prepared consisting of twenty-eight games. Under the name of the Mainland League it has likewise been arranged to play a series of twelve games. The trophy for the B. C. series is being provided by four prominent citizens of North Vancouver, while that of the Mainland league will be offered by the Vancouver hockey club.

Among the officers elected at the annual meeting this week Mr. E. H. Bridgman of this city was appointed president and Mr. P. N. Baylis secretary.

The North Vancouver hockey club is listed for six games in the Mainland series and ten in the B. C. schedule in addition to which they will play two friendly matches, making eighteen in all. In order to work through this program the local team will play a match every Saturday during the season with two exceptions. The first match will be played at Boulevard park tomorrow.

The complete schedule of matches for the North Vancouver team is as follows:

Mainland League Series

Dec. 2—North Vancouver at Vancouver.

Dec. 9—British Isles at North Vancouver.

Dec. 23—North Vancouver at British Isles.

Jan. 6—72nd Highlanders at North Vancouver.

Feb. 3—Vancouver at North Vancouver.

March 10—72nd Highlanders at N. Vancouver.

B. C. League Series.

Nov. 4—Vancouver at North Vancouver.

Nov. 11—72nd Highlanders at North Vancouver.

Nov. 18—British Isles at North Vancouver.

Nov. 25—Garrison at North Vancouver.

Dec. 16—North Vancouver at Victoria.

Jan. 13—North Vancouver at British Isles.

Jan. 20—North Vancouver at Garrison.

Jan. 27—North Vancouver at 72nd Highlanders.

Feb. 17—North Vancouver at Vancouver.

March 3—Victoria at North Vancouver.

N. V. HOCKEY CLUB

The above club will play a friendly match tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock against the public schools team. The homesters will be represented by the following: Goal, E, J. H. Cardinall; backs, G. Greene-Armytage and F. H. Gosland; half backs, S. Humphreys, E. S. Baylis and N. Humphreys; forwards H. L. McPherson, R. F. McNaughten, R. G. Ward, H. Cameron and P. N. Baylis.

I. O. G. T. CONCERT

A most delightful and entertaining concert was held at the Japanese Tea Gardens on the first anniversary of the I.O.G.T. Songs and recitations were given by the members and visitors. Mention must be made concerning the accompanist, Miss G. Kirkland of Lynn Valley who played excellently all through the evening and gave a special rendering of her own composition called "Echoes of Lynn," which speaks well for the talented young musician. A recitation was given by Miss M. Hall, songs by Mr. J. Holt, Mrs. Bowlish and Miss Currie and Mr. Varnes and a mandolin solo played by Mr. Sutor was also well received.

A prize was given by Mr. Tate, the G.C.T. of B. C. won by Miss G. Kirkland, and a prize offered by Mr. Raynard won by Miss Tindell. The judges found it a very difficult task to make their decision, there being such a splendid arrangement of baskets, but this decision throughout was generally admitted. After the sale of baskets coffee and tea was provided by the acting committee, who did most praiseworthy work for the order.

ASSAULT CASE

The case reduced to one of common assault against A. B. Fletcher was heard yesterday morning at the city hall, Mr. C. Arnold defending and the prosecution being conducted by Mr. Ruggles. The charge wes instigated by Mr. J. G. Hargreaves, who complained that he saw the accused put his arm round his daughter's waist while she was passing the accused's store on Lonsdale Avenue. He the witness, demanded an explanation and as the defendant's reply was not satisfactory, he "hit him." The recipient of the blow said something to the effect that he knew he was in the wrong and wished to be excused.

(Some amusement was created by the utilization of the chief of police as a dummy on which the witness gave a demonstration of the accused's behaviour).

Juanita Hargreaves, the child of thirteen whom the charge involved, said that Fletcher had called her "sweetheart". On previous occasions he had "said silly things."

Several eye-witnesses were called, both by the prosecution and the defence, but even lengthy questioning and demonstrating did not procure an unanimity of opinions.

The accused, giving evidence, freely admitted calling the child "sweetheart" and "cousin" and similar terms in a jocular way. He did so with other children, and this one had been in his store "hundreds of times." He had no indecent itentions whatever. He had sometimes called her a "proper American girl" and had "offered to buy her for so many cents." Cross-questioned, he had never lost custimers through his attitude towards children.

Mr. Arnold admitted that technically speaking there may have been an "assault" but it was a trivial matter that should never have been brought into court. A fine of $5 and costs was imposed.

North Vancouver Ratepayers' Association

The Post Office Site Question

A general meeting of the North Vancouver Ratepayers' Association took place in the city hall on Tuesday night, Mr. D. W. Reeve occupying the chair.

An assembly of seventeen waited patiently for half an hour in the hope of reinforcements but there were none forthcoming. Regret was expressed, both formally and informally, that members of the association were so apathetic with regard to the general meetings. As the secretary intimated, while they had now a membership of 66, they also had a large auxiliary list that "turned up just when there was any excitement."

Certain amendments in the constitution were then considered. A clause to the effect that one of the objects of the Association was "to secure the election of good and able citizens to the office of mayor and aldermen, to arouse interest in civic elections and for such purposes as may seem desirable," was amended to read simply "to arouse interest in civic elections and all questions of public importance." As the chairman insinuated, there was nothing in the new clause that prohibited the Association taking part in the civic elections if occasion arose. The membersip clause to the effect that "all ratepayers and municipal voters, resident or non-resident, of the city of North Vancouver shall be eligible for membership in this Association, but the mayor, aldermen and city officials shall not be eligible for membership," was amended to read as follows: "All ratepayers and municipal voters, resident or non-resident, of the city of North Vancouver shall be eligible for membership in this Association, and the qualification shall be the payment of subscription mentioned in the by-laws."

The question of how many members should form a quorum gave food for thought. While it was unanimously conceded that five of the executive should form a quorum to conduct business at an executive meeting, both twelve tnd twenty-five were suggested as members more suitable than fifteen in the matter of forming a quorum at a general meeting. On the one hand it was contended that twelve were too few to properly conduct business on the association's behalf On the other hand, the difficulty was apparent of getting an attendance of twenty-five. There was some talk of educating and enthusing the members, but in the end the word "fifteen" was allowed to stand.

It was resolved, after lengthy deliberation, that the Association's fiscal year should terminate on January 31st each year instead of on September 30th as hitherto, the annual meeting to take place in February. The meeting also decided upon the second Tuesday in each month as a specified date for general meetings. Other minor amendments were carried unanimously.

Mr. Wright then voiced his opinion that it behove the Association to mention the matter of the post office site. It appeared that some developments had lately taken place with regard to it, and it seemed that the deal would not be consummated. But even if that be the case he considered that a formal endorsement of the council's action in the matter would not be unfitting.

Mr. W. J. Irwin thought that they would be neglecting their duties if they did not deal with the matter.

Mr. Philip said that he happened to be a member of the Liberal executive and he wished to declare that the executive was opposed to any such purchase having been made. The deal was never agreed to by the Liberal executive, it was never mentioned by them.

Mr. R. J. Fowler recommended an investigation into the matter. Surely they could find out how the deal was put through. He considered that the people should know who was at the bottom of it.

Mr. Irwin moved that this meeting endorse the action of the city council protesting against the proposed purchase of a post office site and that the executive should draw up a petition and forward same to Ottawa requesting a thorough investigation into the matter. This, said Mr. Irwin, was a civic matter, not a political one. If anyone were being wrongly blamed, it was only fair to them that the circumstances should be explained. The Dominion, provincial and municipal governments could only be kept clean by punishing those who were guilty of a breach of the public interest. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

The meeting then dealt with the proposed adoption of a portion of the Indian reserve for foreshore purposes, resolving ultimately, that the secretary be instructed to inquire at the proper source and ascertain the facts of the case and the conditions of the present lease.

This question and one concerning the civic charges for sewers will come up for discussion at the next meeting of the association which will be held as soon as possible.

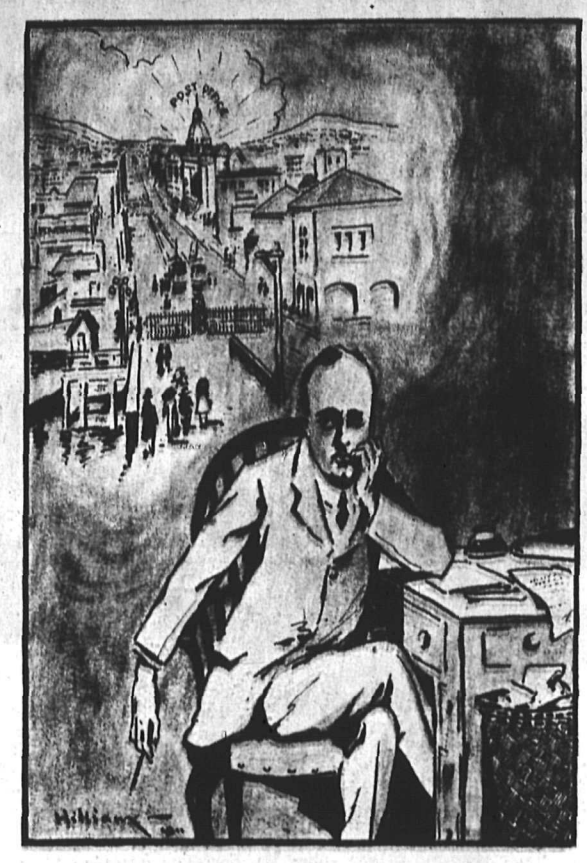
NORTH VANCOUVER CONSERVATIVE CLUB

The new quarters of the North Vancouver Conservative Club will be open to supporters of the party for the first time on Monday evening, and all local Conservatives are invited to call. The formal opening will be held at a later date. The rooms are situated in the Aberdeen block above the post office and consist of three apartments, an executive room, a reading room and a smoking and amusement room.

BUILDING PERMITS

The B. C. Market Co. Ltd. have taken out a permit to erect a store room with a cold storage in the rear on Lonsdale Avenue. Permits have also been taken out by Mr. W. H. Braim and Mr. Geo. H. Madden for the purposes of dwellings on 3rd street and Lonsdale Gardens respectively.

THE ETHICS OF ARCHITECTURE



"In my opinion a public building in a city should be more than a place wherein business may be transacted; it should be a thing of architectural beauty, something that will assuredly inspire in the citizens and children a deeper respect for their government and their country and will stand as a constant reminder of the nobler things in life."—Mr. H. H. Stevens, M.P., in his address to the Conservative Association.

Board of Trade Meeting

A meeting of the North Vancouver Board of Trade was held in the city hall on Wednesday evening, Councillor Bridgman occupying the chair in the absence of the new president, Alderman Smith, who was announced to be unwell. No matters of great import came up for discussion. After the minutes of the last meeting had been read and approved, the secretary (Mr. Donaldson), announced the receipt of a reply from the Duke of Connaught's secretary saying that the new Governor-General "sends best thanks to the North Vancouver Board of Trade for their message of welcome."

A communication was read from the department of public works, Ottawa, notifying the board that the dredge Mastedon would complete its work at Alberni on Nov. 1st and would commence work in the Second Narrows forthwith.

Some minor amendments in the by-laws were then considered and the heads of the several committees gave brief reports.

There were a number of absentees.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Tuesday evening at St. Andrew's Christian Endeavor was one of much interest to everyone. Rev. Mr. Macleod gave one of his three lectures from the twenty-third psalm. He mentioned some very good points that would benefit the society. Next Tuesday evening will be an interesting one. We invite all who wish to come. No exceptions.

NEW DISTRICT MUNICIPAL HALL

Formal Opening Tuesday Next—The Programme

The district council have decided to formally open the new municipal hall Lynn Valley on the evening of Tuesday, Oct. 24th, at 7 p.m.

It is expected that representatives of the various municipalities and the local members of the Dominion and provincial parliaments will be present.

All ratepayers are cordially invited. Information is to hand that the opening will take the form of a promenade concert and speeches from several prominent public men. Refreshments will be served The above invitation is extended to adults only.

NO SMOKING IN BUSINESS HOURS

Among the members of the provincial civil service throughout British Columbia who are numbered among the devotees of My Lady Nicotine there is—or shortly will be—both woe and lamentation. The cause is found in the recent adoption by the Provincial executive of an order-in-council upon which has been based an official circular which will be mailed during the next few days to all and sundry affected advising them that smoking while in their offices is henceforward tabooed.

Personal Items

Mayor McNeish arrives home today from Agassiz, where he has spent a few days pheasant hunting.

Mrs. A. J. Hopkins, 11th street, cor. of St. Andrew's, will receive for the first time on Wednesday, October 25th, and the fourth Wednesday of every month throughout the season.

Tang! . Tang! . Tang! . Tang! Anything more monotonous than the Canadian locomotive bell is inconceivable. If I had the necessary brain-accumulation I would write an adverse poem on it, as Edgar Allan Peo once did on a similar sujbect. What a fearfully long day it had been! We had bidden farewell to the Laurentic, struggled through the customs, rumbled through the streets of Montreal, deposited luggage at the C. P. R. station, perambulated still more streets, dined at a restaurant in which every race, civilized and uncivilized, seemed to be represented, and marvelled generally at Montreal and its people. And now we were trying to sleep—trying painfully hard, despite the fact that the train was indulging in convulsive leaps, abrupt stoppages, frantic rushes. Personally during the first night I lay philosophically open-eyed, wondering what on earth had ever possessed Robert Louis Stevenson to pen the following: "Herein I think, lies the chief attraction of railway travel. The speed is so easy, and the train disturbs so little the scenes through which it takes us that the heart becomes full of the placidity and stillness of the country, and while the body is borne forward in the flying chain of carriages the thoughts alight, as the humor moves them, at unfrequented stations, they make haste up the popular alley that leads towards town. they are left behind with the signalman as, shading his eyes with his hand, he watches the long train sweep into the golden distance." Though I am one of that great concourse who "love Stevenson and call him master," the above sentiments found no echo within me that evening we clattered out of Montreal. And let me hasten to explain that I purpose no insinuations against the C. P.R. travelling accommodations. It was just that the easy glide of the Laurentic had turned us into spoilt, pevish children, so that we pulled faces and groaned whenever a jolt occurred. "No, Robert Louis Stevenson," I muttered now and again, "you went wrong when you wrote about the speed being so easy."

Next morning however, very little after dawn, when we gazed upon the scudding acres of Canada with the sky still tinted ruddily in the east, and absolute quietude everywhere we realized indeed that "the train disturbs so little the scenes through which it takes us." It is no sentimental jargon to say that one closed one's eyes and opened them again and gulped and stared very hard and reiterated to oneself. "This—this is the land of Canada. These are Canadian trees. Yonder is Canadian water. Everything strange about us is Canadian save the attendant, who is black as night." Whereupon, having mastered these salient facts, we arose from our respective couches and proceded to relate what bad nights we had spent. And it curiously transpired that each was decidedly under the impression that the other had been sleeping audibly, and the true circumstances remain a mystery to this day

Presently we stopped at the first small depot, quite a considerable crowd had gathered for the occasion, brown, strong-looking men in cowboy hats, loosely dressed, cynical in expression, leaning against the wooden walls chewing continuously; tall bearded farmers with great dogs at their heels; healthy unbearded youths visibly conscious of being part of an interesting group to the travellers on board; young British homesteaders searching the train windows for a familiar old country face. Meanwhile the proprietor of a tiny stall, bearing the legend "Bananas and oranges for sale here" (with the esses all turned the wrong way) was doing a roaring trade. Passengers had briskly alighted, had run the gauntlet of curious eyes and were making rapid purchases. Then "Arl aboard!" and a mad stampede for the train. A shriek from the engine, a few preliminary funnel-blasts, and we were sliding from the future ken of that motley cluster on the depot platform.

The day wore on and the outlook changed with the hours. Sometimes as far as the eye could reach there was nothing but boulders and stubble, sometimes a quiet lake, with many trees reflected with great detail; then a quaint little township similar to those I have described; then more desert country, and still another lake along whose border we seem to rush rather treacherously; then a gorgeous sunset to the west of us, and general preparations for retirement.

And finally, thank goodness a better night than the last!

Banquet at the Palace Hotel

Until an early hour last Saturday morning the parlors and hallways of the Palace Hotel echoed with music and laughter, the occasion being the gathering around the festive board by the guests of that popular inn.

Promptly at 9 o'clock Friday evening the banquetters to the number of thirty were ushered into a tastefully decorated dining room to do justice to the sumptuous repast spread before them. Mr. Thos. Watson, who sat at the table's head, in a few well chosen words, welcomed the diners and got them well on the road to good fellowship. During the course of the dinner a number of toasts were drunk. The toast to the King was proposed by Mr. Bob. MacLachlan, and responded to by Mr. Colin Telfor. The healths of the new Governor-General and family were proposed by Mr. Thos. Thompson. "The Ladies, Bless 'em, We Love Them All" was the gallant toast proposed by Mr. Harry Carpenter, and gallantly responded to on the ladies' behalf by Mr. Hugh McDougall. Mr. F. Forsyth's toast "To our next Merry Meeting," was responded to by the diners in chorus. On behalf of the management of the hotel, Mr. Bert Teevans, responding to the toast "Our Host" which was proposed by Mr. R. Dakin, expressed appreciation of the sympathy existing between the guests and the management and amid applause, stated that there mas ample assurance of its continuance..

After a very satisfying justice had been done the many good things, speeches were in order, every one present contributing. A few expressed themselves as "being too full for words" but there was ample evidence that among the Palace guests there are many who lay claim to be neat and humorous after-dinner speakers

When the guests adjourned to the music-room an impromptu musical program was rendered by Miss Watt and Messrs. Doty and J. Thorpe, which was greatly enjoyed. The early dawn was climbing over the eastern hills before the last adieu was said and the last guest had departed.

Among the banquetters were: Messrs. Thos. Watson, Thos. Thompson, Ralph Dayken, Bob MacLachlan, Harry Carpenter, Hugh McDougall, Frank Forsyth, Thos. Chalmers, Fred. Knex, Col. Telfor, Geo. McMurchie, Bert Teevans, Geo. Ramsay, Jos. Thorpe, Bert Squire, Gus Seppman, Hardy and Mitchell.—Com.

A Glasgow Conception of the Significance of the Recent Elections.

The following paragraphs are taken from an article which recently appeared in the Glasgow News and present a summary of the situation relative to the recent federal elections from the British point of view, which is notable for its accuracy and the intelligent grasp of the matter in hand.

Dramatic and Decisive

Thursday last can be set down unreservedly as a red-letter day in the history of the British Empire. It is not often that we can adopt this attitude of complete confidence regarding the value of an event in contemporary annals. There is usually a doubt, a hesitation, especially where politics are involved, to accept an event as the close of an old, and the opening of a new epoch in the history of the people. Such turning points are apt to be obscure; the real import of the battle of Trafalgar, for instance, was not made clear; its due value was not realized, until Napoleon was finally defeated at Waterloo. But there can be no doubt regarding the import of the fight at the polls in Canada last week, for the result was at once dramatic, decisive, far reaching. Everybody was surprised; the victors no less than the vanquished. Each of the political parties for Reciprocity and against Reciprocity, hoped to gain a small majority in the new parliament. But the party politicians were all astray, as it not unusual when they get outside the groove of party politics. The Canadian people themselves grasped the significance of the decision they were required to make, and grasped it with their own hands. This, our Canada, they declared, is to be a free nation inside the British empire—a nation which we intend to develop in our own way—and we renounce all temptations to depart from that ideal.

Canada Before Party

It has to be understood, therefore, that the big victory of the Conservative party in Canada was not achieved by that party alone. Many a good Canadian Liberal, putting his country before his party, voted against Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his reciprocity agreement with the United States; while many voters who are not party politicians at any time gave unhesitating support to the side that sought to conserve the free nationhood of Canada. For that, undoubtedly, was the central point of the struggle and its central interest. It is satisfactory to know that the victory is a clear gain for the unity of the British Empire, and it is equally satisfactory to know that the battle at the polls was fought out with the firm belief on the part of the victors that such would be the result. But it is also necessary to recognise that the Canadian people, first and foremost were deeply moved by their own national patriotism, and by the well grounded fear that their nationhood was in jeopardy.

A Rainbow in the Sky

"My heart leaps up when I behold a rainbow in the sky." Thus did the poet make confession of his keen enjoyment of the beauty of nature in its ancient and arresting form. It is a precious confession in a drab world, when mankind so seldom looks skywards. And are there not moments in human affairs, all too rare, when a rainbow set in the cluods impressively claims our eyes and quickens our heart? Some noble action, some triumph of the ideal in a sordid world, is such a rainbow. And surely there must have been many men throughout the British Empire countable in millions, let us hope—who recognised in the decision of Canada last week the rainbow of promise. Dullards were they, in truth, if their hearts did not leap up in the joyful knowledge that the old ideal had triumphed, that Canada had saved her nationhood, and that she had thereby safeguarded the British Empire. For that, in its true inwardness and utmost scope, is the meaning of the decision arrived at by Canada. That is the rainbow of an ideal that appeared arrestingly. Let the men who are snared by dollars and the politicians who are the slaves of old party war cries, note that sign in the heavens. And let all good Imperialists throughout the British Empire rejoice and be glad.

Canada Has Saved Herself

For our outlook on the future of the British Empire can never be quite the same after this emphatic pronouncement made by Canada. Setting aside all temptation, refusing immediate gain, she has declared emphatically that she intends to remain permanently as a free nation inside the British empire. Now, in recent years there has been a shade of doubt upon that matter in this country. Some of our politicians have been inclined to assume, all too readily, that Canada would gravitate towards the United States; that the geographical and economic conditions make that process inevitable. It was a plausible assumption, and if dollars counted alone it would have been a safe assumption. But dollars, although very potent, have never ruled mankind permanently. A man's a man for a' that. And the Canadians, as they have shown, are men who have their own patriotic conception of their future; they have now refused decisively to gravitate southwards to the United States. With the assistance of Great Britain, they can make good that refusal. To make her ideal effective, what Canada needs first of all, and most of all, is time to increase her population, develop her resources, and strengthen her whole position as a nation. Herein lay the great danger to Canada of the reciprocity agreement; the danger that before she had acquired sufficient power of resistance, Canada would be overwhelmed by the immense organized resources of the United States. From that danger, for the moment, Canada has saved herself, and in a quarter of a century that danger will no longer exist. Canada will be able, having developed her resources, to stand safely against any outside economic pressure.

Are We Going to Reciprocate?

But in the meantime what is Great Britain going to do? Canada has rejected the reciprocity agreement, in the first place, because she desires to retain full control of her economic development as a nation. But Canada has declared, not less emphatically, that she desires to retain her place as a nation inside the British empire; the secure unity of the empire is her ideal. But on her side for many years, it has been much more than an ideal; she has given British goods a preference in her markets, and that policy was firmly endorsed during the recent election. Are we going to recoprocate? Or is the British government, as hitherto, going to bar and bolt the door against any reciprocal tariff adjustment with Canada? The high-and dry theorising free traders may still be in that mind, but the event of last week, the danger escaped, must have impressed many Britons hitherto unimpressed. The subject of preference does not stand today as it did last Tuesday. If Canada is ready to sacrifice her immediate gain from a reciprocal arrangement with the United States, the British people should be ready, as far as may be, to assist in mitigating this sacrifice. In maintaining the unity of the empire it is neither just nor wise that the Overseas Dominions should give us a preference and receive nothing in return. The Canadian election I would like to believe, has shattered that sterile policy.

The Truth students class will meet every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Gallagher, Keith road, near Ridgeway. Students desiring higher spiritual unfoldment are cordially invited to attend. tf

The figures which have ited show the weekly earning ca- ity of the heads of thirty different milies in various occupations to be 27.50 in Winnipeg as compared with 8.10 in Great Britain. The inform- n with regard to the comparative of living shows that with reference earing apparel, one dollar in Britain goes as far as $1.31 in nipeg, while with regard to food for every dollar spent in Win- $1.09 would be required in the untry. In the matter of house the inquiries show that the cost h higher in Winnipeg, the aver- t in that city being $15.67 per Great Britain $6.80 per e thirty families from rmation was gathered, 11 had children earning wages to the number of 21 whose average wage in Great Britain was $1.69 per week while in Winnipeg their average weekly wage was $7.10.

Encouraged by the unqualified success of their first year's operations, the Association proposes to enlarge their guarantors to one hundred and fifty, thus greatly increasing the fund at their disposal and rendering possible the carrying out of operations upon a much larger scale.

In addition to this the movement bids fair to grow into one of national importance. During the year requests for information were received from a number of civic and trade bodies throughout the west, with the result that a movement has been started looking to the establishment of similar Associations in the chief cities of Western Canada. Associations have already been organized at Fort William, Brandon and Vancouver.

As an applied theory of immigration, the scheme has proven a conspicuous success. No less an authority than Mr. J. Obed Smith, Assistant Superintendent of Immigration at London, England declares "Our records during this year show that while 45 per cent. of the assisted immigration to Canada did not meet the requirements of the Immigration department, I am pleased to say that not one single application that came through the Winnipeg Industrial Bureau proved unsatisfactory."

The scheme appears to be one of which provincial governments might profitably take cognizance with a view to according it a fixed place in their immigration policy, thus making available more expeditiously than otherwise can be hoped, the fullest possible benefits from its operation upon a large scale.

CANADA'S LOSS OF PULP WOOD 1910

The exportation of pulpwood in a raw form from Canada into the United States is increasing yearly and by just so much as this is done does Canada lose the benefits to be derived from manufacture and the increased value of raw products. The Forestry branch of the department of the Interior has compiled statistics showing that over a million and a half cords of pulpwood were cut in Canada during 1910, worth nearly nine million, eight hundred thousand dollars. Over sixty per cent. of this amount was sent out of Canada without further labor being expended on it. The United States manufactured it into pulp and paper. From United States Forest Products Bulletins, it is seen that approximately two-fifths of the pulpwood imported by that country is manufactured into mechanical pulp, and three-fifths into sulphite pulp, and that a cord of wood produces one ton of mechanical pulp or one-half ton of chemical pulp This means that of the nine hundred and forty-three thousand cords of Canadian pulpwood sent into the United States in 1910 three hundred and seventy seven thousand tons of mechanical pulp and two hundred and eighty three thousand tons of chemical pulp were made. The value of this pulp, for which Canada received six million two hundred and ten thousand dollars as pulpwood, was over thirteen and a half million dollars at the average prices paid in 1910 by United States importers of pulpwood. Thus Canada did not get one half the amount she would have received if all pulpwood were converted into pulp on Canadian soil. As the United States does not export two per cent. of what it imports a certain and steady market would be found for all the wood pulp of Canadian production.

Mr. J. W. Baker has been awarded the contract for the erection of the Institute Hall in Lynn Valley. The work will be commenced upon next week.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNERS

Sewer Connections

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that all owners of real property fronting or abutting upon a street or lane in which or under which a main or commen sewer is laid are hereby required to connect any building or premises upon such property with such main or commen sewer.

Permits may be obtained from the Plumbing Inspector at his office at the City Hall between the hours of 9 a. m. and 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. and 2 p.m.

The following regulations govern the construction of house or building connections with sewers:

No house sewer pipe shall have a less fall than 1 to 40, unless special permission is granted in writing by the Council. Said pipes between the iron pipe, to the connection of the public sewer to be of the best quality standard salt-glazed vitrified clay sewer pipe, and shall have a diameter of not less than 4 inches. All pipes shall be sound and well burned throughout their thickness, impervious to moisture, with a clear ring, smooth and well glazed on interior and exterior surfaces, free from flaws, cracks, blisters, fire checks or other imperfections.

The pipes must be so laid in the trench that after the sewer is completed, the interior surface thereof, shall be to a true and even grade.

In making the joints, a gasket of oakum or hemp, freshly dipped in cement grout, must first be used and packed into place. The joints shall afterwards be tightly packed full and bevelled off with mortar, composed of one part by volume of approved Portland cement to one part by volume of approved sand.

All joints shall be made water tight, so that they will stand a head of 10 feet of water, when tested by the Plumbing Inspector at the owner's, plumber's or contractor's expense.

By order of the Council:

THOMAS SHEPHERD,
City Clerk. tf

Committed for Trial

The hearing was resumed westerday morning at the city hall of the alleged bigamy in which Oliver Raftory was the defendent and Alma Raftery nee Jack, the informant. The accused was charged with having contracted a second marriage with Hazel Fern Lowe his first wife being still alive. Mr. C. Arnold prosecuted and Mr. J. E. Bird represented the defence.

The first witness called was the Rev. McCartney of the Presbyterian church, Bellingham, Wash. He spoke as to performing the marriage ceremony between Oliver Raftery and Alma Jack on Nov. 5th, 1906.

Mr. Bird: "Does the law of your church allow you to marry a boy of nineteen to a girl of eighteen?"

Mr. McCartney denied knowledge as to the accuracy of the ages the parties had given. They had secured the necessary certificate from the court house and he presumed they had answered all questions satisfactorily.

Mr. Bird had pointed out that the accused had given his age as twenty-one.

"Did the young lady tell you?" questioned counsel "that she was a witness as this document bears witness? Did she tell you her father's name was Joseph which is not the case?"

The complainant herself seemed considerably amused at these revelations.

Recalled she said that she was seventeen and a half at the time of her marriage. She did not know what the accused's age was but presumed he was under age.

Mr. Bird questioned her as to whether she knew of any third person who went to the court house at Bellingham and personated Oliver Raftery in order to get the certificate from the authorities.

Witness said she knew of no such proceeding.

Mr. Bird: "He was a Roman Catholic and you were a Protestant. Did he say he would turn after marriage?"

Witness: "He did."

Mr. Bird: "And like many similar promises that one was fulfilled?"

Witness (with emphasis) "Just so, exactly."

Complainant's mother related the story of her daughter's secret marriage with Raftery. She believed them to be legally married. She had never troubled to find out accused's age.

Mr. Bird based the defence on two points. Firstly, the marriage at Bellingham was not strictly and legally true. Foreign law was a question of fact and such a marriage as that must be demonstrated beyond all question. The marriage was in direct antagonism to the laws of the church which Mr. Meartney represented. That being proved, the second marriage did not constitute an offence. Secondly, the young man was told by Alma Raftery that she had gone to California and had procured a good valid divorce. She had made a good job of it and was actually keeping company with another young fellow whom she was intending to marry.

Mr. Eird contended that his client acted under the above beliefs and should be judged accordingly. "Intention," he urged "is the very essence of a criminal charge of this nature."

Mr. Arnold pointed out that the magistrate's duty was, if there was sufficient evidence, to commit the accused for trial.

Mr. Kealy said that in his opinion both marriages had been sufficiently proved to warrant his sending the man up for trial.

A Reciprocity Echo

The following pronouncement uttered by Mr. Balfour, Conservative leader in the British parliament, is an old country echo of Canada's historic verdict on the reciprocity question:

"I hope," said Balfour, "that our people will find the spirit in which we must approach this question in the decision reached by the Canadian people. The Canadian decision extended far beyond the borders of Canada, and must have beneficial results for the empire at large. The decision of Canada shows how impossible it is t tain the present system of tai colonies are not believers in t tem spoken of as free trade.

Unless this country meets ation we will have Canada, Au New Zealand and other great c ities making their special com tariffs with other countries. country will awake same fine m to find that these local comm loyal as they are have instituted tem of tariffs in which we will ourselves at a disadvantage. Such state of affairs must have a fatal effe upon the unity of the British empire.

Sunday School Lesson

The Foundation of the Second Temple Laid.

If there ever was a time when the Jews might have felt excused from celebrating the Feast of Tabernacles, this was it. They had earned a rest after their journey from Babylon. They were busy building homes and fencing fields. Going up to Jerusalem would excite the suspicion of their foes. Then, there was no temple on Zion yet. All these well-turned arguments could be used by the conservatives against the call to observe the feast. The gains of the exile are evident in the quick and cheerful obedience on the part of the people to the call of God. . . When the feast-time comes the people are in Jerusalem, under leadership of prince and priest. There was nothing in sight to make them joyous. All to the contrary. On that spot once, gold was as stones and cedar as sycamores. Yet in spite of all, a joyous thanksgiving day is spent amid the ruins. . How was the triumph achieved? If they had come separately the desolation might have overpowered them. But in union there was strength to resist the uncanny gloom of the place. They gather themselves together as one man. They resume the morning and evening ritual. Thus they are able to observe their national thanksgiving day in spite of the unfrieddiliest of environments. . They go from strength to strength, every one of them in Zion. They find themselves heartened even to undertake the task of rebuilding the temple. They give out the contracts and set forward the workmen. Soon there is rejoicing over the completion of the foundation. Trumpet and cymbal, responsive choirs, and the loud acclaim of all the people make a praiseful torrent that breaks in joyous reverberations upon the Jordan hills afar.

The Teacher's Lantern

It is the evidence of the divinity of religion that makes one superior to his environment. It makes a thanksgiving day amid ruins possible. In a world where we are subject to the loss of friends and property a religion that can keep one serene in mind and even suffuse a quiet joy is a religion exactly suited to human need.

The foundation of the old altar was diligently sought for in the debris. This was done that there might be a standing witness that the religion the exiles brought with them from Babylon was the same old faith of the fathers. The advantages of congregational worship are here apparent. Its gains are immense. It cannot be dispensed with. A place for congregational worship is indispensable. Out of the material Zion of brick and mortar God shines. He who builds or rebuilds a house for God does one of the noblest possible things. The lower semi-tone raised by those who remembered the first house and saw the inevitable disparity was natural. Even Herod's luxurious garniture could not compensate for the absence of the ark the temple's very heart. In this plain and ill-furnished sanctuary God would fain lead his people from symbol to substance. Haggai and Zecariah were the patriotic leaders of the day, encouraging the people in a task beyond the means at their command. This epoch is typical of all reform periods. It had its light and shade, its progress and delay. This ancient page teems with suggestions for today. Temperance advocates, civic reformers, peace promoters and many others may here find encouragement and guidance. "The people shouted with a great shout." This was not on the program. It was a spontaneous amen injected into the ritual. There is healthfulness in a genuine expression of approval, or the contrary. The old wept because of this disparity. The young shouted because a new era was opening. The narrative is true to Oriental demonstrativeness. The benefits of the exile were purification of worship, exaltation of the Scripture, rise of sacred music, religious and political independence. Such gains were worth seventy years of exile.

Young People's Devotional Service—October 22, 1911. Jeremiah 13:1-10; Matthew 22:15-22.

It is said that nine-tenths of all we know comes to us through the eye. Object lessons, therefore have a high pedagogic value. Of all the prophets Jeremiah seemed to understand the principle best and make the most frequent use of it. Witness—the buried girdle, the basket of figs, the potter's vessel and others. Truth conveyed in this way arrests attention, provokes thought and is rarely forgotten.

British Immigration

Statements of a London Year Book

It is interesting to note some facts relating to immigration from the United Kingdom as set forth in a London year book for 1911. It need hardly be said that Canada during the last ten years has been the premier magnet so far as British immigrants have been concerned. Year by year the outflux has steadily inceased and it is stated that a further boom is anticipated. The appended table gives the number of British immigrants from the United Kigdom during the last decade:

1900	71,188
1901	72,016
1902	101,547
1903	147,037
1904	126,854
1905	139,365
1906	194,671
1907	235,092
1908	91,156
1909	139,693
1910 (to end of August)	151,268

The decline in 1908 followed the American financial crisis, but there has since been a great revival, and for the first eight months of 1910 the figures were already higher than the total for 1909. The majority of British immigrants now proceed to British possessions. In the ten years, 1890-1899, only 28 per cent. went to the colonies, but in the next ten years, 1900-1909, this proportion had increased to 53 per cent.

The following table gives the destinations of the majority of the British emigrants in the past twelve years:

	Canada	Australia	U. S.
1900	7803	6259	47,978
1905	62503	7251	60997
1906	91263	9920	85941
1907	117525	13896	99,944
1908	41455	20423	31451
1909	52378	25202	56,377
1910 (8 mos)	94273	14040	40487

In addition a very large number of foreigners pass through England as "transmigrants." This traffic gives rise to the frequent complaint that the "alien hordes" are settling in England, but the last report on the Aliens Act states definitely that the transmigrants leave England and the shipping companies are under bond to see to this with regard to the great majority of them. The following table gives the number of foreign emigrants leaving the United Kingdom:

	To United States	To British Colonies	Total All Countries
1900	30454	20080	50041
1905	20905	87285	110514
1906	16326	115771	133878
1907	13854	94870	109857
1908	9514	38363	47667
1909	14533	59554	73360
1910 (8 mos)	18552	42,033	59171

The total is greater than the combined figure for the British colonies and the United States, the difference representing the emigration to other countries. The figures given for 1908 do not represent emigration but a return of emigrants to their native countries (following the financial panic) via the United Kingdom. It will be noted that the vast majority of the foreign emigrants proceed to the Uniited States and that the number making for the British colonies has declined to a considerable extent.

Destination of Immigrants

The United States is the land which attracts the largest number of immigrants and in the past six years the number has four times been over a million. The financial panic brought down the figure from 1,285,349 in the year ending June 30th, 1907, to 782,870 in 1908, and to 751,786 in 1909, but on June 30th, 1910, the million was again topped, the total being 1,041,570.

The Argentine is attracting an increasing number of emigrants, the latest figures obtainable showing that 255,710 arrived in 1908, compared with 84,442 ten years previously. The number of emigrants to Brazil has fluctuated considerably; in 1899 there were 85,130, in 1900 only 29,121; in 1908 the figure was 67,787. Emigration into the British colonies has made great strides, the totals of all nationalities being as follows in 1900, 1908, 1909:

	Canada	Australia	N. Z.
1900	44697		18506
1908	262469	72208	36108
1909	146908		44979

A very large number of immigrants to Canada are United States citizens; in 1909 the number was 59,926.

Local Gatherings

The regular Thursday afternoon meeting of the Board of Directors was deferred until this afternoon.

Invitations have been issued for a Thanksgiving ball under the auspices of the I. O. O. F. in the Horticultural hall on Monday evening, Oct. 30th.

A meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners will be held as quickly as can be arranged. There are a number of questions which require to be discovered.

The castlehall of the Knights of Pythias on the corner of Fourth street and Chesterfield Avenue is expected to be ready for occupancy about Nov. 1st.

The North Vancouver hockey club will oppose the British public school's team on Saturday at 3 o'clock on the Boulevard grounds. Those who wish to follow a good game should make a note accordingly.

The regular meetings of the district council are now to be held fortnightly in accordance with a resolution passed at their last assembly. The first meeting in the new routine will take place next week in the municipal hall, in Lynn Valley.

The headquarters of the district council are now located in the new municipal hall on the corner of Lynn Valley road and Fromme road. The office staff took possession of the new building on Tuesday and will doubtless find it in congenial contrast to their old inadequate quarters on the Esplanade.

Two men, John Wagner and Joseph Cook, were this morning at the city hall charged with having stolen some old fittings from the SS. Albion. They were arrested by the Vancouver police. Magistrate Kealy remanded the case until tomorrow morning.

The editor is in receipt of a letter signed "A Victim" protesting against the closing of the stamp wicket during the sorting of mail at the local post office. While the editor is in sympathy with the sentiments of the writer he can only reiterate the statement that letters are not received for publication in the Express unless duly signed by the writer.

The B. Y. P. U. of the First Baptist church, 5th street and St. George's Ave., announce that on Monday evening, Oct 23rd, at 8 o'clock they will give an "evening with Tennyson" to which all are most cordially invited. A splendid program of music, recitations, etc., has been arranged and an enjoyable literary treat as well as a pleasant social evening is assured. The young people are anticipating a crowded house.

COLOSSAL SCHEME OF TRANSPORTATION TERMINALS.

Will Reclaim Fraser River Sandheads Twelve Miles of Wharfage Space—Expenditure of Many Million Dollars.

One of the most stupendous schemes which has yet appeared in transportation circles on the lower mainland was made public this week when it was announced by Mr. C. F. Pretty of Vancouver, president and manager of the Vancouver Harbor and Dock Extension Company, that British and local capital had been subscribed to carry out a scheme which when completed, will cost approximately twenty millions of dollars. Briefly stated, the plan is to redeem the Fraser river sandheads and to establish a great system of railway freight terminals and harbor facilities. For this purpose the entire western end of Lulu Island is either purchased or under option as well as the outer end of Sea Island.

Beyond the western end of Lulu Island stretch the extensive sandheads formed by the Fraser river and the company has ascertained through actual engineering investigations that there is an area of seven square miles or of 7,000 acres which can be reclaimed and made to present ideal facilities for railway and ocean shipping. It is the intention to build a curving breakwater of concrete filled in with sand entirely around the outer end of Lulu Island. The basin will be dredged to a depth of ten feet for the accommodation of small craft.

Further in there will be a deep sea wharfage basin with a depth of 36 feet, a length of about 5,000 feet and width of 3526. Another basin to which entrance will be available from the south or main channel of the Fraser is provided for with a depth of 26 feet, a length of 2640 feet and 1760 feet wide. Connecting the main channel of the Fraser with the north arm channel at a point about the present westerly shore line of Lulu Island, there will be a series of three canals about 500 feet wide, which besides affording additional wharfage for smaller craft, are also designed to minimize what little tidal action there will be there.

Connecting with these wharves an elaborate system of freight trackage and terminals has been laid out, while branch lines along the canals and extending down the waterfront to Steveston are also included in the plans.

In order to connect this terminal system with the city of Vancouver the plan shows a tunnel somewhat more than five miles in length and of sufficient width for a double track extending from the Lulu Island works to False Creek. It is the company's intention to begin the work early next spring and it is possible that in view of its importance to the lower mainland, the provincial government may be asked to guarantee the company's bonds.

Census Returns

The department of agriculture made public this week the detailed statement of the returns of the recent census. The figures show a population of 7,081,869 for Canada, as compared with 5,371,315 in 1901, an increase of 1,710,554. It was estimated that the population of Canada would be about 8,000,000.

As compared with the increase of population in 1891, 1901 decade figures are satisfactory. In ten years preceding 1901, Canada's population increased by only 538,076. As compared with this the increase of 1,710,554 in the past ten years is large, but not nearly so satisfactorily as expected. Of the provinces, Saskatchewan shows the largest ratio of increase, having jumped in population from 91,279 to 453,508, while Alberta comes second with an increase of from 73,022 to 372,919 in the decade. The province of Quebec shows an increase in population of 351,799, while Ontario has increased by 336,955, British Columbia by 184,109 and Manitoba by 142,480. The provinces down by the sea have all fallen away in population, Nova Scotia showing a decline of 2,273, New Brunswick 7,795 and Prince Edward Island 10,537.

Montreal shows the largest increase of population of any city in the Dominion, and continues to maintain its position as the most metropolitan centre. The total population of that city is 466,197 as against 267,730 ten years ago, an increase of 198,467. Including Westmount, Maisonneuve and Verdun, Montreal has a population of 510,811, or a considerable margin over half a million mark. Toronto is second, growing from 208,048 to 376,240 in 1911, increase of 168,200. Vancouver jumped in population from 27,010 to 100,333, and Winnipeg from 42,340 to 135,430, an increase of 93,090; the population of Halifax is 48,032, an increase of 5,249 in the decade.

The unit of representation which is arrived at by dividing the population of Quebec by 65, the representation fixed for it by the B. N. A. Act is 30,780.

On this basis the representation of British Columbia in the House of Commons will increase from 7 to 12 members, Alberta from 7 to 12, Saskatchewan from 10 to 15.

On the other hand representation of Ontario will drop from 86 to 82, New Brunswick from 13 to 11, Nova Scotia from 18 to 16 and Prince Edward Island from 4 to 3.

The next parliament will contain 232 members, an increase of 11 as compared with the present house.

The returns for the cities of British Columbia are as follows:

	1911	1901	Gain
Nanaimo	8,305	6,130	2,175
Nelson	4,474	5,273	799

JOINT HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS COMMITTEE

The first regular meeting of the Joint Habbor Improvement Committee, upon which North Vancouver is represented among the other municipalities, adjacent to Vancouver, was held on Wednesday.

A resolution was passed to the effect that the Dominion government should be requested to appoint a commission to officially investigate the shipping needs of Burrard Inlet and the north arm of the Fraser river. The discussion occupied about three hours, but the speakers were principally concerned as to the way in which the resolution should be worded, and there was practically unanimity of opinion as to the ultimate end to be attained It was conceded on all sides that the opening of the Panama canal would make Vancouver a much more important port than it is at present, and that means should be adopted to give it facilities commensurate with its natural advantages.

It was also, generally conceded, that while personal interests would inevitably be at work in the rivalry between the several municipalities, the question was too great a one to properly admit of serious sectional differences.

North Vancouver was represented by Aldermen Smith and Henderson and Mr. G. S. Shepherd, and North Vancouver district by Reeve McNaught and Councillor Allan.
