DOMINION DAY CELEBRATION

EXCELLENT PROGRAMME BUT RAIN UPSETS ARRANGEMENTS

The marked efficiency which characterized the conducting of the annual 1st of July celebration on Saturday last clearly showed that the North Shore is learning from experience and that the handling of this event is being reduced to a systematic basis which augurs well for the success of future celebrations. From the very inception of events the programme on Saturday went with a smoothness and a swing which evidenced the fact that the organization had every detail of the occasion under perfect control. The committees and the manager got along famously with the management until shortly after noon when Jupiter Pluvius took things in hand, whereupon the committees relinquished control, the contestants retired from the events, the crowd melted away and for the remainder of the day there was "nothing doing."

Promptly at ten o'clock Cammander Stewart of H.M.C.S. Rainbow landed at Larson's wharf and was met by Mayor McNeish and Reeve McNaught. Five hundred Boy Scouts headed by the N. V. City Band formed in procession and marched to the city hall where the formal opening proceedings were held. Mayor McNeish, in a short address referred to the significance of the occasion and emphasized the fortunate circumstances of peace, prosperity and plenty which prevail throughout Canada at the present time. On behalf of North Vancouver city and district he welcomed the officers and men of H.M.C.S. Rainbow upon this the first visit of the first Canadian warship to the North Shore. Miss Jeanie Grahame, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Grahame, then presented Commander Stewart with a magnificent bouquet of roses accompanied by the following address:

"On behalf of the girls and boys of North Vancouver City and District, I beg to present you, Commander Stewart (the officer commanding the first Canadian warship to visit us) with emblem of Peace—Roses—but we well know that if at any time danger from a hostile nation threatens our beloved country, our homes will be safe in your keeping. We bid you welcome to North Vancouver, and wish that on this, the Natal Day of our country, you, your officers and crew of the Rainbow, will so enjoy yourselves that you will want to come back again."

In a few words Commander Stewart made an appropriate reply expressing the pleasure of himself and his fellow officers and the men of the Rainbow at being present and also the hope that his ship and her complement of men would be able to respond to any demands that their calling might place upon them in the future years.

Mayor McNeish then officially declared the day's proceedings opened and the program started at once.

The sailors' sports resulted as follows:

220 yards race—1, J. Wedgewood. 2, J. Stephen; 3, Gale and Daykin.

Veteran's Race—1, J. Stephen; 2, Smith; 3, Pook.

Boys' race—1, W. Jackson; 2, N. Hanley; 3, McLelland.

3-Legged race—1, J. Bone and G. Luck; 2, J. Wedgewood and A. Whiteford; 3, G. Gale and G. Bready.

Sack race—1, A. Whiteford; 2, G. Bready; 3, A. Daykin.

Obstacle Race—1, Whitford; 2, Bready; 3, Daykin.

Tug-of-War—(Stokers vs Seamen)—Stokers won in two straight heats.

THE MARATHON RACE

Shortly after the ceremonies in connection with the official opening of the day were completed, the twelve-mile marathon road race, the chief athletic event of the day was started in front of the city hall.

Seventeen magnificent specimens of manhood, every muscle tense in expectation, formed a double line on First street, then the crack of the starter's gun in the hands of Mr. Salsbury sped them on the long monotonous grind.

Hamilton, the local runner, set the pace during the first two or three miles of the race and to this may be attributed the fact of his finishing in 8th place, although against such a classy field of distance men the position in which he arrived at the tape is far from a dishonorable one.

At the first of the fourth mile Rogers of the Y.M.C.A., Vancouver, took the lead, with McDonald, Vancouver, Athletic Club, and Manning, Vancouver, unattached, running in second and third positions. The positions of these three leaders remained practically unchanged until the ninth mile when Rogers dropped back and McDonald changed places with Manning, the latter taking the lead which he maintained to the tape. As with a long, swinging stride of seeming untiring buoyancy the winner passed between the long lines of the populace leading McDonald the second man by a half minute cheering thousands perched on the mountainous piles of dirt thrown up by sewer construction gave him an ovation of which a king might well be proud.

The course lay along First street to St. Andrew's, thence to Keith Road and the Boulevard, thence to the Plank Road to Lynn Valley and the Lynn Creek intake and return over the same streets, comprising in all a distance of 11¾ miles, which was covered by Manning in 1 hour, 4 minutes and 56 seconds.

Out of the seventeen entries the fourteen men finishing were as follows: 1, Manning, unattached, time 1.04.56; 2, McDonald, Vancouver A. C., time, 1.05.30; 3, Downey, Vancouver A. C. time 1.06.02¾; 4, E. Manders, Vancouver, unattached; 5, McLean, Vancouver Y.M.C.A.; 6th, Rogers, Vancouver Y.M.C.A.; 7, Nash, Nancouver A. C.; 8, J. Hamilton, North Vancouver unattached; 9, I. C. Morrison, Vancouver A. C.; 10, Samuel Thornton, Vancouver, unattached; 11, Owen Findale, Vancouver, unattached; 12, T. J. Allen, North Vancouver, unattached; 13, John Reilly, Vancouver, unattached; 14, Robt. Smith, Vancouver Y.M.C.A.

The gameness of the runner, T. J. Allen of North Vancouver, is worthy of note, for although his feet became cut and blistered in a painful manner in the light gymnasium shoes he was wearing, he completed the grinding round, doggedly pegging away although owing to the swollen conditions of his feet he was far in the rear during the latter part of the course.

The officials in charge of the race were somewhat hindered at the beginning by the learned discourse of a number of local experts and authorities on matters of this nature and owing to the time taken up in absorbing this additional knowledge nearly half an hour's delay was caused.

ATHLETIC SPORTS

Protected by umbrellas a large crowd of enthusiasts watched the athletic events in Victoria Park during the entire afternoon. The presence of the band somewhat lightened the otherwise dreary aspect. The results in the events were as follows:

100 yards dash—1, McConnell; 2, Gallon; 3, A. Martinson. Time, 10¼ seconds.

Shot Put—1, J. Gillis, 43 ft. 11 in.; 2, A. McDermott, 42 ft. 5½ inches; 3, D. Gillis, 40 ft.

56 lb. Shot—1, McDermott 36 ft.; 2, D. Gillis, 34 ft. 4 in.

228 yard hurdle race—1, McDermott; 2, McConnell; 3, Sinclair.

High Jump—1, J. Gillis, 5 ft. ½ in.

In the tug-of-war, City vs. District, the district strengthened by six stalwart citizens won in two straight pulls.

220 yards dash—1, B. Davidson; 2, S. Mitchell; 3, A. Jack.

Hammer Throw—1, D. Gillis, 152 ft. 8 in.; 2, J. Gillis, 122 ft. 4 in.; 3, F. W. Baker, 121 ft. 10 inches.

440 yard dash—1, Gallon; 2, Jeffroy; 3, J. McDermott.

Hop, step and jump—1, Graham, 39 ft. ½ in.; 2, McDermott, 37 ft. 9½ in.; 3, J. Gillis, 36 ft. 6 in.

Pole Vault—1, J. Gillis, 9 ft; 2, A. Grant, 8 ft. 10 in.; 3, D. Sinclair, 8 feet.

Obstacle race—1, D. Sinclair; 2, W. R. Osborne; 3, A. Martinson.

Broad Jump—1, Mitchell, 19 ft. 10 in.; 2, W. Graham, 18 ft. 7 in.; 3, McDermott. In the jump to decide the third man in the last named event, Graham beat McDermott by feet.

On account of the scarcity of entries the fat and thin men's races were not held.

AQUATIC SPORTS

Mr. James Livingstone acted as starter in all the events. Mr. H. Whiting judged the results in a manner satisfactory to all. Following are the races and results:

Dinghy rowing race, boys under 15—1, J. Williams; 2, A. Nelson.

Cutters' race, all comers—McDonald's crew won easily, crew consisting of Smith, Brendy, Scott, Hornper, Jack, Plumbridge, Jane, Wedgewood, Cunningham, Ruddock.

Boys' swimming race, under 15—1, J. Cates, silver cup. This is the third time J. Cates has won the 100 yards swimming race.

Ladies and gents' single oar each—1, H. Page and Mrs. Anderson; 2, H. Moody and Neva Cooke.

Swimming race, 100 yards, members of "Rainbow"—1, A. Shepard; 2, R. McCormick.

Ladies and gents pair oared race—1, H. Page and Mrs. J. Anderson; 2, H. Moody and Neva Cooke.

Ladies' single scull, championship of North Vancouver—1, Miss Neva Cooke; 2, Mrs. L. Page; 3, Miss Ruth Fillcott.

BOY SCOUTS

Owing to the heavy rain during almost the entire day the competitions held by the various corps of the Boy Scouts were only partially carried out and the Eves Cup will be awarded at the end of the next competition instead of Saturday last as intended. The following are the scores made in a few of the events which were competed in by the corps: Seymour 440 points; Fairview, 266 points; Mt. Pleasant, 15 points; Mountain View 170 points.

BASEBALL MATCH

At 3 p.m. the two baseball teams which had been secured to give a diamond exhibition at Recreation Park came over on the ferry. These teams were the Vancouver Clovers, one of the fastest amateur aggregations from that city, and the Victoria Amateur Club. Notwithstanding the fact that the rain was pouring in torrents the teams took the field in order that the patrons of the grand old pastime who were dryly ensconced in the grand stand should not be disappointed. The players were very partial to umbrellas and a number took this commodity with them when they went to the field or took their turn at bat. About the third inning, however, the rain became too much for even these hardened disciples of out door life and the umpire called the game, the score standing at the time 7-0 in favor of Victoria. As it takes 5 innings to constitute a legally played game, these two teams will play here at a date to be selected by the committee to finally decide the ownership of the cup. The teams lined up as follows: Victoria—W. Gravlin 2b, Brown cf, McDougall ss, Fowler 1b, T. Gravelin rf, Steel lf, Russell 3b, Scott c, Surplis p.

Clovers — Cowle ss, Carruthers 2b, Shaddock 3b, Owens cf, E. Carruthers 1b, Fraser lf, Alberta rf, Shaw c, Wilson p.

During the three innings played Surplis of Victoria allowed no hits and only one base on balls. Six hits and five bases on balls were gleaned from the offerings of the Clover pitcher Wilson.

AUTHORITIES TENDER BANQUET

OFFICERS OF H.M.C.S. RAINBOW ENJOY ENTERTAINMENT

The toast list at the complimentary banquet given last evening at the Palace hotel to the officers of H.M.C.S. Rainbow called forth some highly interesting and instructive utterances from the speakers. Mayor McNeish presided and was particularly happy in remarks with which he opened the speech making portion of the program and in his introduction of the several toasts and speakers.

The toast "The Empire" was proposed by Ex-Mayor May who in eloquent and stirring terms enlarged upon the greatness, the stability of the British Empire, the destiny of the British people and the privileges of British citizenship.

In replying to this toast Mr. Geo. H. Cowan, K.C., M.P. submitted some valuable comparative statistics as to the naval and military strength of nations bordering on the Pacific ocean.

"Every British subject," said Mr. Cowan, "has inherited pride in the royal navy of Great Britain, looking upon it as the greatest safeguard of citizenship and building force of the Empire. Britain had this thought uppermost when in the interests of safety she sent Commander Stewart to our shores." The speaker called attention to the fact that Canada's Atlantic seaboard was within striking distance of the British fleet, and therefore no invasion might be reasonably looked for from that quarter. On the Pacific, however, it was different. When Britain found it necessary to withdraw her battleships from the Pacific, then was the mastery of the Pacific in doubt. Today Japan can put 200,000 men with merchant marine sufficient to transport those troops to our shores. In 1915 when the alliance between Great Britain and Japan has expired then the latter will have a fleet of dreadnaughts and armored cruisers equal to those of almost any nation. Japan in making an invasion has no colonies scattered in other parts of the world of which she has to think, her interests are centred in the Pacific, she is an alert and enterprising nation with a proud and virile government, an enemy to be feared. On the other hand Canada has neither military or naval force, with the exception of a militia of 60,000 men. What would prevent Japan or other powerful nations on the Pacific from taking possession of our coast line a month before the ships of England might arrive through the Panama Canal, or in the event of Japan at war with the United States what would prevent her from taking possession of Canadian ports as fleet headquarters. Canada as a neutral nation would necessarily have to prevent this and with no fleet it would be impossible.

Mr. Cowan advocated the formation of a mid-ocean fleet consisting of four units to guard the British coast line on the Pacific. These factors, said the speaker, could act as a deterring agent against the ships of an invading country until the other squadrons of the empire arrived. If such a project might be carried out Britain might continue her hitherto resistless march for naval supremacy of the world.

Mr. Cowan's speech was awarded storm of applause.

The first toast on the program was "The King" proposed by the Chairman, Mayor Wm. McNeish, who spoke of the present as a fitting time to celebrate, being immediately after the coronation of our king and the celebration of our grand natal holiday, July 1st.

Mr. Percy King, in proposing the toast "British Columbia" called attention to the great natural resources of the province stating that the revenue of B. C. yearly exceeds that portion of Canada stretching from the lakes to the Rockies. The speaker said that it was true that many made fortunes in the middle west, but after making them they came to enjoy the beautiful climate of the coast and spend it.

In responding to this toast C. E. Tisdall, M.L.A. prefaced his remarks with regret that North Vancouver should have had such bad weather on the day of her grand celebration. He spoke reminicently of some of the pioneers of the province and of the thanks due them for saving for us the country which we have today and for making Canada what it is. The speaker called attention to the tremendous development which the railways in British Columbia had brought about during the past year or so and spoke of the coming railways to North Vancouver. He stated that $5,500,000 has been spent in the past year on roads throughout the province.

As the member for the constituency of North Vancouver Hon. F. Carter-Cotton M.L.A. was not present. Mr. A. G. Perry proposed the toast "Our City and District" in a manner that left nothing to be desired and handed out the bouquets in equal proportions.

Reeve McNaught, in answering this toast, gave a somewhat lengthy discussion on matters of interest regarding the district.

Ald. Dick on behalf of the city council, said that when he first observed his name on the programme in this connection he was annoyed. All the gentlemen present were aware that he was not a public speaker. He however, construed the motive as an act of courtesy as no doubt it had been surmised that by the time Reeve McNaught had finished he (Dick) would have reached that stage where he would have been unable to say anything at all. Referring to the remarks of Mr. Cowan, Ald. Dick said that Canada had always responded when the need arose and in his opinion the talk of Japanese invasion was nonsense. No matter what party affiliations are politics should be forgotten tonight said he, and that we should stand not for North Vancouver only, but for the Empire.

The roof shook with the patriotic applause which was accorded the alderman for his brief but pointed speech.

Ald. Henderson, in proposing the toast "Our Navy" confessed that his blood invariably stirred when he thought of the deeds of our race of fighting forefathers. "Give us Commander Stewart, said the Alderman, "Bill Dick, good old McNeish, Ald. Smith with his Scotch blood and Reeve McNaught, and on dark night we will glide in the Rainbow out of the First Narrows and sweep the seas." Taking the serious side he gave figures showing the comparative expenditure in connection with the navy of 1800 as compared with today as follows: 1900, $82,000,000; 1910, $212,000,000. This is the burden which the British taxpayer is today staggering under, continued the speaker, in spite of the fact that not a shot has been fired by British warships in hostile conflict with another nation for 50 years. Concluding his remarks the alderman ajured Canadians not to forget the race to which they belonged.

The guest of honor, Commander Stewart of the Rainbow, in answering this toast, took opportunity of thanking the Mayor and citizens for the hospitality which had been extended to them and spoke of the magnificent scenery around North Vancouver. Commander Stewart outlined the policy which Britain had in mind whilst constantly training her young sons to the knowledge of modern methods of warfare, and gave it as his opinion that no finer training (outside of the professional part of it) could be secured for a young man. "For he is a jolly good fellow" was sung with hearty good will at the close of the commander's speech.

Other toasts were "Our Army" proposed by Alex. Philip, and responded to by Lieut.-Col. Worsop, Lieut.-Col. Leckie and Capt. McTavish. "Amateur sport" proposed by Coun. Allan, responded to by F. T. Salsbury and "The Press' by C. F. Foreman, responded to by members of the press.

Following the completion of the toast list "God Save the King" was sung with hearty fervor and the party saw the commander of the Rainbow to the wharves to bid him good bye and God speed from the shores of North Vancouver.

The tables were magnificently and tastefully decorated in flowers with borders of maple leaves. Mr. Teevens, manager of the Palace Hotel, had secured the services of Mr. J. Morgan of Vancouver who brought an army of well trained waiters with him and who pleased everyone with an efficiency and despatch seldom seen in the province. The menu was of the highest excellence in every particular and the service unsurpassed. The whole effect called forth the encomiums of a high order for Proprietor Reda and his staff.

CARD OF THANKS

NORTH VANCOUVER, B. C. - - - JULY 4 1911

DOMINION DAY CELEBRATION

The civic committee which had in hand the arrangements for this year's celebration of Dominion Day is to be commended for the departure which was made in placing the organization upon a permanent business basis. The annual celebration of the 1st of July on the North Shore is now a recognized fixture and has taken its place amongst the local institutions, among which it takes no mean rank in point of actual value to the city and the district, and it is, therefore, not only desirable but essential that the methods should conform to those approved by the best business usage. The appointment of a business manager for the celebration to devote his entire time and attention to its interests was undertaken for the first time this year and has brought about most beneficial results. The committee was fortunate in securing the services of Mr. T. S. Brown in this capacity whose tact, energy and ability contributed in large degree to the excellent system which prevailed throughout the organization. The handling of all receipts and expenditures through the business maneger properly systematizes this department of the celebration and ensures expedition as well as accuracy. The system of files and the set of books with which the manager's office is being equipped provides a permanent, clear and convenient record of all transactions, brings every item of detail under the direct supervision of the finance committee and thus under the intelligent control of the general committee. These records will likewise prove of very great assistance to the committee from year to year in enabling it to get to work promptly and to proceed expeditiously thus preventing the delay and loss of time which has been experienced in previous years in arranging the program and the other features of the occasion.

The first of July celebration is now upon a sound business footing such as becomes a permanent civic institution and such as should commend it to the fullest confidence and the heartiest cooperation of all classes of citizens from year to year.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN FOREST RESERVE

The setting aside of the Rocky Mountain forest reserve has been one of the most important advances yet made in the industrial history of Canada's central west. Not only is it important for the preservation of the forests along the slope with a view to the future supply of timber, but the preservation of these forests and their proper management means much for the preservation of the waterpowers and the maintenance of that steady and permanent water-flow which is so essential to their value. Moreover, the regulation of the water of these streams, so as to provide a steady flow throughout the year and not to have a torrential flow in spring and (what is of even more importance) the drying-up (complete or partial) of the streams in summer, is of the utmost importance to the farms of the prairie provinces. Were the rivers to run short, the resulting lack of moisture in the soil would seriously interfere with the quantity of grain and other produce reaped from the fertile prairie.

During the whole of the past summer (1910) two parties of the Dominion Forest Service were in the field marking out the boundaries of the reserve. Both these parties started from Calgary; one worked south and succeeded in getting as far south as the international boundary, while the other, working north, reached a point almost due west of Lacombe (Alta.). During the coming summer the location of the boundary will be continued and it is expected that the entire eastern boundary of the reserve (which extends some forty to fifty miles north of the latitude of Edmonton) will be determined.

The general principle governing the fixing of the boundary of the reserve was that only forest land should be included in the reserve, all land fit for farming (unless in area so small that it was not worth while to make the exception) being excluded from the reserve. The altitude of height of the country above sea-level, was one of the chief considerations in fixing the line.

It was found that the boundary fixed by the Order in Council by which the reserve was set apart was, to a considerable extent, unsuitable. It included, in the words of one of the writers, "only alpine country, a large portion of which is above the tree limit and the remainder unsuitable as regards timber supply for years to come. Large portions of it have been burned over, leaving bare, eroded hillsides which were formerly covered by a thin soil and coniferous wood growth. Much country east of the line has a very thin soil and is at a very high altitude and so is unfit for agricultural settlement." Many valleys, however, were found which will be quite suitable for grazing.

Fires have created terrible havoc with the forests of the region. In the part from Calgary north it is estimated that eighty per cent. of the territory covered has been burned over within the past fifty years, and that even within the last twenty-five years forty-eight per cent. of the entire area has been devastated while at least sixty per cent. of the area from Calgary southward has been fire-swept.

The nature of the timber found on the slope has been directly determined by this repeated firing. The abundance of lodgepole pine (a species nearly related to the jack pine so often found on old burns in the east) is the most abundant timber, and much poplar (of two or three species) is found. These trees are the first to spring up on burned-over land, and by their vigorous growth get far ahead of the slower-growing spruce and red fir. In the northern part of the region reported on about seventy-five per cent. o the area is covered with lodgepole pi in pure stand, that is, without the mixture of any other tree.

In the southern part it is estimated that the lodgepole pine required thirty years to attain a diameter of five inches and sixty years to reach the diameter of nine inches. The spruce (Englemann) and red (or Douglas) fir took, respectively, ninety and one hundred and two years to reach the diameter of twelve inches.

Of an area of eight hundred squar miles covered by the "southern" party the land was distributed as follows: Timber, 9 per cent.; spruce and pine poles (a tree of "pole" size is from four to eight inches in diameter, 31 per cent.; pine and poplar, 26 per cent; poplar, 10 per cent.; open grazing land, 14 per cent.; bare rock, 10 per cent.

Through all the territory reported on game was plentiful. Special mention is made of the bull, cut-throat and grey trout, among the fish, and among the game birds and animals in their respective districts, ducks, grouse and prairie chickens, deer, moose, elk and sheep and many kinds of fur bearing animals.

Among the mineral resources of the area are the coal-beds, oil-fields (in the south) and quarries of building stone.

"DICK" McBRIDE OF B.C.

ing. From any crowd of men, however big, this figure would stand forth in conspicuous and haunting relief; you would find it difficult to keep your eyes off him. And the face and the head are as striking as the splendidly and broadly proportioned body. The face is massive, but short and round. It is typically Irish in its features, but instead of the typically rubicund complexion of the men and women of the Emerald Isle, it has the pallor—healthy but pallid all the same—of those who live in the severer climate of the New World. The head is again massive, and surmounted by a mane of thick, snow-white hair, it makes even more striking the personal appearance.

There is at first a curious resemblance to the head of Sir Wilfrid Laurier—the same complexion, the same massiveness of head, the same mane of white hair, but the resemblance is not as great when you examine the two men more closely. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has the long thin face of the typical Frenchman—indeed, the Dominion premier always looks to me as if he had walked out of a portrait of the noblesse of France in the days before the Revolution. Mr. McBride has the short face, the massive head, and the thick hair of the Celt of the west. Analyzing still further the face and features of the figure of the great British Columbian, you see curious contradictions with the impression of athletic massiveness. The mouth is small, the deep-set eyes are soft brown, the feet and hands are small—there are delicacy, sensitiveness, a certain artistic element in this big massive man as well as strength. And, above all, the dominating impression is of a strength that is at the same time the simplicity, the geniality, and the comradeship of that true democratic sentiment you find in these new countries where men all start from small beginnings before they reach to wealth and power.

GREAT RELIGIOUS TOLERANCE

The ancestry of the man will supply you with the explanation of the apparent contradictions in his physique, and the different factors that make up the powerful and attractive personality. Asked once by an importunate elector as to his special religious views—for they have some faint echoes even in far British Columbia of the racial and religious feuds of our Old World, and especially of that part of it which lies within the frontiers of Ireland—Mr. McBride described how his father was an Orangeman from the north, and his mother a Catholic from the south of Ireland. And Mr. McBride is the perfect amalgam of these two contradictory types of Irish life. He has abounding toleration for men of all creeds, recognizes no political distinction because of differences in religious faith, and with equal grace and general acceptance attends the bazaar for the Catholic church and opening of the Baptist Chapel, and in his character there are blended the stern strength of the Ulster Orangemen and the genial softness of the Catholic mother from Munster.

It is one of the secrets of Mr. McBride's unique hold over his people that he belongs to them in every nerve of his being. He was born in British Columbia, and though he went to the law school at Halifax, in Nova Scotia, to get his professional training, he has lived almost every hour of his life in his own province and among his own people. And he is never out of touch with them or with their outlook on things. Any day you can see him in Victoria, moving easily among the people, saluting every man he meets, for he knows them all, or seated in the vestibule in the beautiful Canadian Pacific Hotel over a cup of tea talking easily and familiarly to everyone who comes to join his circle. He is the ruler with something of the Cadi in his methods and manners.

Some nine or ten years ago Mr. McBride was the leader of the opposition, resisting a great railway bill. At the end of a terrific fight extending over months, the ministry was defeated and Mr. McBride was called by the whole voice of the country to take up its government. He started with what was a surprising and in many quarters an unwelcome transformation of the political life of the country. Hitherto ministers had been a collection of men of different parties—a personal rather than a political combination. Mr. McBride resolved that this was an unhealthy method of governing representative institutions, and he substituted party for personal government by party instead of government by faction.

EMPIRE'S YOUNGEST PREMIER

He was just a little over thirty years of age when he reached this great position—the youngest Prime Minister in the whole British Empire. He has held office for nine years since. The extent of his power is best realized when it is said that of the forty-two members of the legislature thirty-eight are his supporters. Of the remaining four two are Liberals and two are Labor men, and the Labor men are found in his lobby at least as often as in the opposite. In these years he has achieved wonders for his province. Looked at with suspicion when he started, he appealed in vain to financiers and bankers for assistance in financing the province; now he is independent of them all. The province has made such progress that today it stands in as high a financial position as any country in the Empire.

Everywhere you see manifestations of the indomitable energy of the man. The illimitable resources of the vast country are being developed with feverish energy and under the guidance of a man who knows by personal travel almost every inch of the vast territory. His last and most ambitious project is the foundation of a British Columbia University, which he means to make as to endowment and as to professorships the equal of any university in the world. Again and again the Conservative party of the Dominion have asked him to leave his province and take his place on the greater stage of the Dominion in the parliament house at Ottawa. But he has steadily resisted all such appeals up to the present. His heart and his work are still among his own people.

'Dick' McBride of B.C.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., in the "London Chronicle," contributes the following about "Dick" McBride, of B. C., as he calls him, who is at present in England:

Tonight, an influential gathering of the powerful men in finance and politics who are interested in the development of British Columbia, will meet to do honor at a banquet to the Hon. Richard McBride, the Prime Minister of that province, to all Canadians, he is known by the less official and formal term of "Dick" McBride. And very appropriately. Mr. McBride belongs to that order of popular political figures to whom the masses instinctively show at once respect and affection by preferring to call them by their abbreviated Christian name rather than by formal and cold prose of their official title and their full Christian and surname.

First, let me try to make my reader realize the mighty country of which Mr. McBride is, and has been now for nearly a decade, the controlling force. British Columbia comes upon you as a mighty and a most affrighting surprise. For days, perhaps weeks, you have been passing through the ocean prairie of the great province of Saskatchewan, where night and day you look out on that tremendous expanse of flat, yellow-grassed black-soiled fields that in the latter part of the year will be thousands of miles of waving corn. But the flatness, unbroken to the horizon, and unrelieved by even a hillock or a tree, begins in the end to pall and even depress you, and in the winter time you cannot well visualize the opulent splendor of this flat yellow and black landscape that stretches before you to lengths as illimitable as the spheres. In Alberta the landscape begins to be relieved by the ranch farms and the sight of frequent houses and human faces, and horses and cattle; but there, also, you have the illimitable flatness for many long stretches of miles until you begin to see in the far distance the mountains.

But in Alberta the mountains still look small—they are not, but distance makes them look so. And then you wake up from your disturbed slumber in the railway train and as in a flash you find yourself transported to a region where all around you gigantic mountains, with tops either enveloped in frowning mist or covered with eternal snow, look down on you, and excite and seem even to menace you. You wind in and out over bridges that seem like spider-attempts to crawl through the narrow spaces left by these terrible circumambient and frowning mountains; you are continually in the deafening roar of great rivers falling precipitously down rocky beds, or sudden waterfalls—in short, you are in the midst of natural scenery as beautiful, as solemn, and as affrighting as the region of Zermatt and the Matterhorn.

And then in time you make your escape from this region of mystery and terror, and by and by you begin to feel on your cheek the soft breezes of the sea. You are approaching the Pacific, and as you approach it you become conscious of an entire transformation in your environment. Finally you get to the wild bustle of Vancouver, and there they will take you to a park with gigantic trees, with the greenest and the most massive, and at the same time, delicate ferns, perhaps, in the world and you imagine that this is Lotus Land in comparison with what you have been seeing some days previously in that other British Columbia of gigantic and snow-clad or mist-hidden mountains. Then you take steamer and go to Victoria, the capital of the Island of Vancouver, and the political capital, though some hours from the Mainland of the great province. And there you find yourself in a city of dazzling beauty — of indescribable charm. Perhaps the best impression I can give of Victoria is of a Pacific Venice—it gives a suggestion of beautiful placid water everywhere—without the age and history as yet that make Venice venerable, but, on the other hand, with vaster piles of beautiful buildings and with that snowy whiteness that comes from the brilliant sunshine and the newness of the place.

An Arresting Personality

And as I neared the pier at which the steamer was to stop, in one of the winter months of last year, I saw there for the first time for several years the remarkable man who is the ruler of this mighty country. At once, and as my first impression, there came the idea that there was something singularly appropriate in the man and the country he rules. Like the country itself, Mr. McBride is massive. I should say he is over six feet high; he has shoulders so broad that even a professional athlete might envy them; a chest of great breadth and depth, and a physique altogether that is striking and imposing—I might say dominat-

THE CARAVAN

The showmen's caravans were an unfailing attraction. For one thing it appeared miraculous that households could exist within such a small compass and the reading of "A Peep Behind the Scenes" and stories of kidnappers lent a piece of imaginery danger to one's attempts to view the interior appointments of the caravan. Though one could hardly imagine people with quivers full of their own laying covetous hands upon other folks children. Then the romance of it whenever tired of it, simply harnessing up and off, house, bag and baggage, through the country lanes until some new beauty spot irresistably called "halt."

The glamour and the romance are now toned down by an actual experience of caravanning which taught eight of us that it had its ups and downs and on that particular occasion the downs were predominant partners One of the staff of the technical school, along with a few friends, took the first amateur caravan trip in our neighborhood, arriving back with a glowing account of their fortnight of adventure which sets many people longing for a similar holiday, and a man on the outskirts of the town rose to the occasion by letting caravans out on hire.

After discussing the question for weeks ahead of the holidays it was decided that a-caravanning we would go, and after consulting maps and contours of routes within range of the time at our disposal, it was decided to go north via the Ribble Valley, beyond Sette and then cross the watershed into the Lune Valley—Lunesdale, from whence Lonsdale—by Hornby Castle, and Lancaster's historic keep to Morecombe, and to complete the round trip via Gustang—this being the Watling street of Roman Brittanica—to Preston, and home. Our friend of the technical, among other enconium had bestowed much praise upon the quadruped which pulled them through and said we should manage very well with the one horse. Alas, had we but known it this same quadruped was rapidly approaching dissolution and we were destined to buy him after he was dead and buried. The account rendered ran something like this ' "To one grey horse, £7 10c. However we decided that it would be wiser to have two horses and we had them booked, along with the caravan, against the day of our going forth.

WILL HONEYCOMB

CHURCH SOCIAL

The Ladies' Aid of the North Lonsdale Presbyterian church gave a very successful ice cream social and entertainment on Friday evening, June 30th. The ladies sold ice cream from 6.30 until 8.30 after which an entertaining program was given. Mr. Phillips, Sunday school superintendent very acceptably filled the capacity of chairman. Although the church is only about seven months old it is steadily advancing under the able leadership of the student in charge, Mr. R. Van Munster and his energetic wife who do not spare themselves in working faithfully for the upbuilding of the church, both spiritually and temporally, and the church indeed owes its present good standing largely to their efforts. The following items went to make up the programme which closed with a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Evans, for the use of their piano, and also to Miss Fletcher who so proficiently presided as accompanist: Chairman's address, Mr. Phillips; piano solo, Miss Fletcher; vocal solo, Mrs. Simpson; violin solo, Mr. Bray; vocal solo, Mrs. Fred C. Bolish; song, Mr. Bray; duet, Miss Currie and Mr. R. Van Munster; piano solo, Miss Fletcher; vocal solo, Miss Wight; violin solo, Mr. Bray; duet, Mrs. Fre C. Bolish and Mrs. Coates; address, Mr. R. Van Munster; duet, Miss Wight and Mr. Bray; solo, Miss Currie. God Save the King.

Miss Jennie McPherson Graham, the little girl who presented the commanding officer of the Rainbow with a bouquet of flowers during the opening ceremonies on Dominion Day is a child whose martial associations mark her as well fitted for such a distinction. Miss Graham's father is an army pensioner, and she has seven other near relations who have served or are serving His Majesty in either the navy or army.

The estimated cost of the work is $21,000 of which $8,450 is to be provided out of the general funds of the Municipality.

The operator's duties are to answer calls and make connections as rapidly as possible. Conversation with you would inevitably block other calls just as urgent as yours.

So the operator is trained to use certain set phrases relating strictly to her work. Any questions outside of her functions must necessarily be referred to people having in charge special classes of "irregular" inquiries.

A minute's consideration will show that unless the operator's duty were uniform—practically the same in every call—she could not possibly give ALL subscribers the service they demand.

Notice to Property Owners of North Vancouver

As the main drainage system is approaching completion we beg to notify property owners that we are making arrangements to undertake the sewer connections on the various private properties at a reasonable cost to all those who desire to avail themselves of early drainage facilities. Having carried out the main drainage system for the city council and having the necessary plant and skilled labor available we are in an exceptionally favorable position to carry out the private house drainage at a moderate cost to property owners and we shall be pleased to furnish estimates and plans if necessary to carrying out this most essential work in accordance with the city regulations and on most up-to-date principles of modern sanitation.

FIRE WATER CAUSES TROUBLE

In the police court on Monday morning a party of red men from both the Capilano reserve and the Indian Mission confronted Mayor McNeish and C. F. Foreman, J.P., charged with being in a state of intoxication on the 1st of July. Christie John and Lorne Julian were dismissed, while taking into consideration the seriousness of the cases of Stephen Anthony and Peter John who were arrested on the ferries by Constable Shannon in a disgusting state of drunkenness, the justices imposed a penalty of $25 and costs each or jail for two months. The court failed to elicit the information as to the source of the liquor supply in any instance.
