BEAR LAKE ROUTE TO FINDLAY RIVER

Babine Man Declares There Is Only One Practicable Way to Get Into the New Goldfields.

VICTORIA, April 3—The best route to the new gold fields of the Findlay River district is by way of Babine and Bear Lake, according to the statement of a man from Babine. It is absolutely useless to leave at the present time, as the snow trails are breaking up. The best time to leave Hazelton is a trifle before the beginning of June.

The all-water route up to Quesnel and through and up the Qugemka is ridiculed by the same man. It is impracticable as it is impossible to go all the way by water, and at the head of the navigable water no pack animals can be secured. Similarly the proposal to go up the Telegraph trail and in by the police trail is not viewed with favor. The latter is only a blazed trail, streams have not been bridged and no fallen trees which could be jumped have been cleared away.

By way of Babine and Bear Lake, there are fewer difficulties. The streams are all bridged as far as Babine and there is a good trail from the latter place to Bear Lake. While there is no regular trail on through to Findlay River the route has been traversed by pack animals with but little trouble.

Pack animals at Hazelton are plentiful enough to meet ordinary demands but in the event of a rush, there will be a shortage. Freights will be higher later on. At the present time per pound by snow road freights are: From Hazelton to Babine, 4 cents; from Babine to Bear Lake, 6 cents; from Bear Lake to Findlay River, 7½ cents.

The regular pack trains which winter to the south do not start running until on in June. Indian pack trains consisting of from three to twelve horses are plentiful, however, and may be secured as soon as feed can be obtained along the trails.

So far the following are known to have gone into the district: Perry and partner, all winter; Jansen brothers, discoverers of first strike since January; Mark Carr, Dave Purvis, Condet brothers, Wood, King, Nelson, Fallensby, Oleson, Bates, George Burns, G. Rosenthal.

Many others are now on the way.

With regard to the richness of the discoveries the new arrivals were reluctant to speak.

"No one knows," they said. "No one has as yet got anything but rough gold. Any one attempting any other route, save that by way of Babine and Bear Lake, is foolhardy."

—o—

We clip the above from the Vancouver "Province" and give it to our readers for what it is worth. We presume, however, that it is'nt worth much, as evidently he has not read about the "All-water-route" as outlined by the much better posted Golden "Star." Considering, too, the fact that this man has just returned from the Findlay River and is able to explain all about the different routes, it is a little bit tough on some people that he asserts an "all-water-route" as impracticable," and even goes so far as to "ridicule" it as being "impossible." He must be almost as bad as the "fool writer" for the "Times."

OUR "SOCIETY" COLUMN.

We thank our kind lady correspondent for her interesting batch of weekly "Society Items," but regret that owing to our crowded columns this week we are compelled to hang "Society on the "held over peg.

We feel sure our lady friends of the "Hosiery Club" and others of "Golden's Four Hundred" will forgive our taking such a liberty with their skirts, but we hope to have them all nicely cleaned up in time to harmonize with Easter gowns and bonnets.

"POP GOES THE WEASEL"

It is very humiliating to "crawfish and take everything back when once it has been put in hard cold type, but the "Times" feels that when clear and unmistakeable proofs have been submitted that are absolutely incontrovertible it is better to own up and freely acknowledge that we are badly beaten. When a man comes to a bit of "backwater" it is better to turn back than try to go over it. Discretion has always been considered the better part of valor, and a living dog is always thought to be more valuable than a dead lion.

The "Times" therefore wishes to "crawfish." It had taken the position that an "all-water-route" from Golden to the Findlay River Gold Fields, (situated somewhere or another about 700 miles north of Quesnel, though nobody seems to know just where or how far away they are) was an impracticable and visionary scheme originating in the fertile brain of our celestial luminary "The Golden Star." But we find we are away off; and that an "all-water-route" does really exist; and furthermore that it is the easiest kind of a pleasureable summer outing at the moderate cost of Five Hundred dollars.

We never should have consented to "crawfish" in this way, had it not been for the extremely plain and lucid manner in which our old time friend and esteemed citizen Manuel Dainard Esquire has placed the matter before us in the April-fool-Number of "The Golden Star." We feel sure that our old-time friend and esteemed citizen of 23 years residence would never make the plain and unvarnished statements that he has done unless there was an ulterior motive, and we feel compelled to accept his statements even without the proverbial "grain of salt."

We have therefore taken the earliest opportunity of making a withdrawal of our former contention, and have even gone so far in the generosity of our pulsating heart to devote a large space to the free advertising of the famous "All-water-route." We especially commend this "Ad" to our many patrons and respectfully ask all Postmasters, Merchants, School Teachers, Lawyers, Editors, Preachers and Saloon Keepers, to give it a prominent position where it will catch the reading eye of the Five Hundred Dollar Public. Since we wrote out this free "Ad" we have been wondering whether it made such a thundering lot of difference to Golden if there was an "All-water-route" or if there was not?

If there is such a route we suppose it has been there since B. C. was first mapped out, and we are not aware of its existence having done very much for the growth or the prosperity of the Columbia River Valley. Now are we aware that its non-existence has knocked things endways in this dear old mountain town. Our genial friend Charlie Warren has not yet gone broke. Grandfather Greene still keeps adding to his comfortable hostel, and Dave Bowes still hands out an excellent brand of red-eye from the Kootenay counters.

But however this may be we confess that the "knocker" has been "knocked-out" by our dear old friend and esteemed citizen of 23 years standing, and we therefore cover our black-eye with a sly wink, and keep our courage up by whistling "Pop goes the weasel."

Before we hide our disfigured face and cause our glory to be thrown overboard as our dear old friend and esteemed citizen of 23 years standing suggests, we venture to call his attention to just one little error in his all-convincing letter in the April-Fool-Number of the Golden "Star." Where every other statement is so correct and convincing, it does seem a bit rude to draw attention to just one, only one, little error. But, as it involves a monetary consideration we feel there is a necessity to make the correction, otherwise we should not have referred to such an insignificant thing as the paltry item of Twenty five dollars again. The error we allude to is this. Our dear old friend and very much esteemed citizen of 23 years standing states that we offered this trifling sum as passage money for the trip from Golden to Finlay River over the all-water-route.

Now what we offered was this:—We offered to pay $25 to the Golden Hospital if the party who planned to make the trip would take the Editor of the "Star" over the first part of the journey only; that is to the mouth of Canoe River. When we made this offer we looked upon the Editor of the Golden "Star" as a sort of "featherweight", and thought by his making this part of the trip he would return a wiser and a better man. But our dear old friend and very highly esteemed citizen of 23 years standing has given us to understand the offer is altogether too small, and that the Editor of the "Star" is far from being a "featherweight", but on the contrary a very "heavyweight; in fact a sort of a "lead weight" which our dear old friend and greatly esteemed citizen of 23 years standing is all but ready to drop at once.

Please don't drop anything!

We'll do the dropping! And seeing it is the Editor of "The Star" we will raise the bluff and make it $50.

Now is there anything else we can do for you, kind gentlemen, before we again start to whistle "Pop goes the Weasel."

"BOOSTERS" AND "KNOCKERS"

These words being so freely used in the last issue of the Golden "Star" has caused us much quiet thought.

We have been thinking-(perhaps the Star does not think we think) about what the above two words "Booster and "Knocker" really mean.

The only handy dictionary round our small print shop fails to give any satisfactory explanation, so we have arrived at the conclusion (of course it is only a humble opinion of our own) that the learned Etymologists fainted away when they came to these words, and have never sufficiently recovered to give them a new coinage.

Of course we know they must really have a meaning, or the "Star" would never give them such conspicuous paragraphs in its very valuable column. We have therefore had to gather information by "asking questions", as the "Star" does for its news columns, (or rather as it says it does,) and the result has been that we find words are more or less "Western American" in tone, shape, size, spelling, and meaning. The word "Booster" then, in Western American English as she is spoke and writ, may be applied to any biped who speaks out loud and often for his own particular side or locality. For instance; to write a sentence in Western American English, with the word in its proper place, should be done something after this fashion: "The Rooster "boosts" the hen." That is to say, (for want of a better explanation and in further explanation of the explanation,) that the hen has just dropped an egg, and the Rooster is so proud of it that he "boosts" the hen.

If there should be two hens; or even more than two, drop frint prematurely or in due course, soft shell, or hard, or no shell at all, then the Rooster "boosts" the whole blamed barn-yard. Now carry the conception of the idea to a nobler biped "man." Something drops; and he "boosts" it. Something more drops. It may be a new thing, or a new discovery, or a new invention, or a new fake, but whatever it may be, in the choice language of Western American English it requires "boosting", and where boosting is required, there too is required the "Booster"! Unfortunately his real value has never been properly appreciated. Perhaps the chief reason of non-appreciation is the fact that his "boosting" is simply and solely on account of the thing "boosted" being of doubtful quality, or more particularly intended for the "boosters" sole and individual benefit, and whereby he hopes to very materially benefit, whether any one else does or does not.

Our conception of the word may be all wrong. We must confess to our lack of appreciation of Westerm American English as she is spoke or writ.

But while we have been able, (as we said before by "asking questions") to get some reasonable solution on the word "Booster," we have failed to discover any adequate solution to the word or cognomen "knocker" we have therefore had to fall back on our own solution of the word. The kind reader will bear with us when we again remind him it is only our own solution, because there are some people who write for newspapers, (in fact some newspapers themselves) who have totally different views on this matter. Our own solution of the word was that it applied to the person who did all that was possible to the place or country in which he lived to get people dissatisfied with the country. If they showed any signs of discontent or pined after far away pastures and distant regions where it was said the shining metal shone bright and attractively on all the river banks, persuade them by all means to go. Facilitate in every possible and impossible way their wishes, and if they have any spare money lying loose (such as $500 or more) get them to pay it out in transporting them to the sweet elysiums of which they dream. Picture the trip as one of pleasure. Tell them it is so easy and pleasurable that they will be perfectly delighted with the change from the half dead and alive agricultural valleys filled with nothing but hayseeds and mossbacks from away back. Get out of the country and don't waste your valuable years around here!

Don't bring anybody into the country but try and get everybody out of the Something of that type was our solution of the term "knocker." Of course we may be mistaken. Everybody is liable to make a few bad breaks sometimes, and why not poor little insignificant us. We know there are people who hold different views, and who are quite prepared to back up their views by having them put in print. We have recently discovered that some people's solution of the term "knocker", is one who wants to prevent men from being led away by visionary schemes and wild-goose-chases after the end of a rainbow, that the writer who deprecates such halucinations, and who prefers to see the valley fill up with a good class settlers who will become a permanent and lasting benefit; is a "knocker"! That if there are a few stray parties about who have even the sum of $500; and if it is suggested, or even hinted, that they had far, far better, put that money into even a small garden patch than squander it on opening a new and impossible "Gateways" outwards to equally uncertain impossibilities,—that man is a "knocker"!

Of course, as we said, our opinion of the term is a bit different, and we may be quite wrong. But there may be a few who have not lived in this valley and yet will be inclined to think we are nearer right in the correct solution of the terms "Booster" and "Knocker" than the man who goes looking for trouble and is pretty sure to tumble across it.

The "Times" would be glad for news items from all points in the Columbia Valley. We want to make our paper welcome in every home, and our patrons to understand that our interests extend from one end of the valley to the other.

RIOTING AT LISBON.

LISBON, April 10.—The city is in a state of intense excitement over the election riots last Monday night, brought on by the indignant protests of the republican element that it was being defrauded at the polls. Great crowds filled Pedro square, and were massed in front of St. Dominique church, these points being the chief centers of the republican disorder. Cavalry and infantry were called from their barracks and charged the multitude. As the troops advanced they were met by showers of stones. The soldiers charged repeatedly, finally opening fire on mob and intense disorder ensued. One observer says the streets were literally red with blood. No official statement of the number of killed and wounded has yet been issued, and pending authority from government sources no unofficial or press statement is permitted to be telegraphed.

Following the bloody street affray three newspapers, offices of the organization of the Francoists, the Regenerators and the Nationalists were mobbed. The crowd finally fled in terror to their homes, the cavalry pursuing the groups through the streets, and dispersing them as they sought to reform at the street corners.

The counting of ballots of yesterday's election proceeds slowly. Some districts are being held up by order of the government. The ballot boxes are being guarded by the police, backed by a large force of troops. Thus far not a single republican candidate has been declared elected, although the results in 107 districts are understood to be complete.
