Dear Dr Larkin: -

In reading over my original hand written manuscript of the Rise and Decline of Pacific Coast Salmon Fisheries, I noticed I used the name Thomas Mowat as the Ontario hatchery superintendant on the 1880's Fraser River Fishery Commission. This was an error. Mowat was the first B. C. Fishery Superintendant, with headquarters at New Westminster, and a very competent and well considered man.

I may possibly have made the same error in the manuscript I sent you and if so would like you to make this correction. The 1880's Commission was known as the Armstrong-(Chairman) Newcomb Commission, and Newcomb - not Mowat - was the self opinionated know-it-all governmental expert who antagonized all the witnesses.

Sorry to trouble you but, if made, I do not want the error to stand.

Yours faithfully,

Henry Doyle
