DOMINION SAWMILLS START OPERATIONS

MILLS AND CAMPS AT TAFT, THREE VALLEY AND COMAPLIX TO EMPLOY 600 MEN

C. S. Dickie, Resident Agent for Sir Wm. Plender, and Superintendent C. F. Lindmark, Make Important Announcements

It will be good news to our readers to learn authoritively, that the Receivers of the Dominion Sawmills and Lumber Co., Ltd., do not intend to cease operations in the mills and camps this season. This announcement is official. Mr. Chas. F Lindmark, superintendent for the receivers of the company, in an interview with the Mail-Herald reporter, said:

"Yes, operations will start immediately, at our mills and camps, at Taft, Three Valley, Comaplix and Cascade. The receivers expect to employ about 200 men at each of the mills, camps and logging railways. at Taft, Three Valley and Comaplix, making in all 600 men whilst at Cascade about 100 men will be employed in and around the mill. There will thus be about 600 men employed in the Revelstoke district.

Logging railways may be operated at Taft and Three Valley. Owing to the fact that the company is late in commencing operations this spring, the work will be pushed with all possible force, in order to get the season's cut out before winter.

The receivers will use every endeavor to engage only white labor if within the range of possibility, that is if whitemen can be obtained. The work at the mills and logging camps will start just as soon as the necessary repairs to the mills are completed, which will be immediately.

"Last week I made a trip of inspection to Cascade, Grand Forks and Greenwood, and as far as Midway, I went ten miles up the river from Midway, returning to Nelson and from there on to Creston, from Creston up the Kootenay river as far as Port HillIdaho, I made selections of some storage places for logs in the Kootenay river, which will hold the logs, if necessary, till next season. I may say that some of our camps are already started up, for instance Camp Seven, and men are also working on grades and logging roads at Taft and Three Valley putting them in good candition.

"It is my intention to push work for all that is in it, for this season's cut."

After interviewing Mr. Lindmark, the Mail-Herald scribe was granted a short interview with Mr. C. S. Dickie, resident agent of Sir William Plender, the receiver and manager, appointed by the court in England. Mr. Dickie said in part.

"It is the intention of the management to operate this season with a view to ascertaining the real commercial value of the properties, from the manufacturing standpoint.

"If the results of this season's operatians are satisfactory on the interests involved, it is believed that an entire re-organization upon a permanent basis will be carried through

"I have assotiated with me in the management Mr. C. F. Lindmark, whose long experience and practical knowledge of the industry in all its branches has already proved to be of much value in the work preparatory to commencing operations. I might add that Isaac Hale, has been appointed by the receivers to thepostion of manager of the sales department, with headquarters at Revelstoke. I would like to add that we look to the community to assist and co-operate with us in our endeavors to establish a sound and profitable undertaking in their midst."

Mr. Hale, the new sales manager, was the next official interviewed. He said:

"The receivers of the Dominion Sawmills, Ltd., have removed their head office of sales department, from Calgary back to Revelstoke, where I expect it will be located permanently

"I have just returned from a sales trip to Alberta, and have disposed of a very considerable amount of lumber, and orders continue to come in rapidly, and prospects are generally bright. It is the intention of the management to ship only everything up to the standard grades, the greatest care being taken that the same shall be maintained by an efficient service and prompt shipment. It is the intention of the sales department to re-arrange a retail yard stock in town, with a new stock from various mills, which will include a stock of coast material comprising the best coast fir finish obtainable, so that we can assure our customers of new, bright material of our own stock and the best for interior finish, from the coast for higher class business.

"We solicit the patronage of all local consumers, builders, contractors, and will show them an efficient personal service, we being thus placed in a position to supply anything required in the lumber line, for building purposes.

Calls Not Ignored

In reply to the telegram published by the "News-Advertiser," that the German steamer Frankfurt did not respond to the call of the Titanic, Professor F. R. Blochberger, editor and proprietor of the "Westliche Canada Post" Vancouver, sends us the following: "Bremen cable gives following from Captain of Frankfurt. Arrived scene of Titanic disaster 10:50 o'clock Monday morning in response to wireless calls, too late, saw Carpathia, Virginia and Birma. Frankfurt 140 miles away when Titanic's call for assistance was received. Made all possible speed. This was signed by Messrs. Oelrichs & Co., the New York agents of the North German Lloyd Steamship Cof

Caps Exploded

Lytton, B. C., April 21—With his left hand blown off at the wrist, his thumb and two fingers gone from his right hand, both eyes blowo out and a number of ghastly wounds in his abdomen, Godfrey Rugg, powderman for J. S. Washtok, was brought in from Cisco last night and taken to the Kamloops hospital where he died this morning.

Just before quitting time he started to open a box of dynamite detonators in a rockcut where the Washtok steam shovel is operating and in some unaccountable manner the caps exploded. There were 100 caps exerting a force of 90 pounds. Contractor Washtok, who was near Rugg, had his left eye badly injured and several of the copper caps penetrated his left arm. A blacksmith's helper was also wounded in both legs.

Rugg was a German, his family living in Hatford, Wiscontin. He was conscioos and able to converse immediately after the accident but was unaqle to assign a cause for the accident.

Will Double Track Line

Vancouver, B.C., April 22—Revision of existing grades and surveys, for double tracking the Canadian Pacific main line between Vancouver and Calgary, a distance of over 600 miles are now under way. The work is in charge of F.F. Busteed, former general superintendent of the British Columbia division, who has established double tracking between this city and Port Hammond is now in progress.

This is the most extensive improvement undertaken by the C.P.R. since the completion of the main line and will involve the expenditure of millions of dollars within the next five years. Face to face with the early advent of the two rival transcontinental roads with lower grades than the existing line, the C.P.R. is confident of making betterments which will afford it facilitiee for meeting competition on an equal basis as regards operating expenses. A good deal of revision work for the section between Ruby Creek and Kamloops has been performed during the past two years It is realized that in many places the new line will not closely parallel the present main line. This was the experience in double tracking the main line of the C.P.R. between Winnipeg and Fort William as the new line at many points is several miles distant from the old route.

Found Not Guilty

Information seceived from Ashcroft this afternoon announces that Mr. Stuart Henderson, K. C., has been honorably acquitted of the charge of embezzlement laid against him there by Peter Gjillstad, a Norwegian farmer and client of Mrf Henderson. The hearing in the Police court only occupied three minutes, it is stated.

Mr. Gjillstad, in the information, alleged that he had given Wr. Henderson a sum of $1112 two years ago in order to pay off a mortgage on 160 acres of land in Alberta, and received a notice from Mr. Henderson that this had been done. He alleged that when he tried to rent the land this spring he was informed that the mortgage had not been paid. He accordingly swore out an information Wr. Henderson was arrested in Vancouver on Wednesday afternoon last at his hotel.

At the time of his arrest Mr. Henderson assured his friends that there had been a mistake in the matter. He said he would easily be able to clear himself of the charge on his return to wshcroft.

Mr. Henderson was a candidate for the Liberal party in Lillooet at the recent provincial election, and formerly representgtive for Ya'e.

Two Things Indicated

That big New York hotel that had to change its dainty, esthetic liquor buffet for women into a common bar for men, because the women would not patronize it, seems to prove two things: First, that the stories of the drink habit among women are greatly exaggerated; and, second, that it's always safe to start another bar for men.—Judge.

Premier for England

Premier and Mrs. McBride, with the Premier's secretary, Lawrence Macrea, sailed from New York on April 20th, and will be accompanied by D'Arcy Tate, who is on a financial mission in connection with the construction of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

To Fly to Dawson

A company is being formed in Dawson to finance and carry into execution a daring adventure in air navigation that is probably without parallel except in the passage of the Alps a year or more ago. The program in the rough is to secure the services of aviator of the first rank to make a distance flight from Vancouver to the Klondyke capital, winning much fame for himself and incidentally advertising the Yukon on other lines than that of gold production. It is contended the trip can be made without difficulty over the Chilkoot mountains. The flight will be the feature of an aviation meet in midsummer, in regard to which negotiations are in progress with the Wright Brothers, Farnum, Fish and other famous birdmen. Invitations will also be extended to Mr. McCurdy, Mr. Gibson and J.B. Woods. of Victoria, and Mr. Stark of Vancouver. Should the aviator be successful and reach Dawson from Vancouver, it should be but little trouble for him to load up with gasoline and continue his journey as far north as the North pole. By so doing he would win much honor and laurels, and, if he cared to, he could lecture a la Peary and Cook, and rake in a few barrels of dollars.

Burned to Death

North Bay, Ont., April 21—Sellwood, on the Canadian Northern railway, north of Sudbury, was the scene af a fire in which seven dwellings were destroyed and two children, a daughter of Fred Rivard, aged 2, and another daughter 4 years old, were burned to death. The parents had left the house to visit a neighbor living near, leaving their six children in bed. A lamp which had been left lighted, exploded, and the flames spread rapidly and before the children could be rescued two had perished. Only a bucket brigade was available to fight the flames, as Sellwood is a small village.

One of the most rediculous proposals ever made to the public of British Columbia, is now being put forward by certain "organs" to the effect that the electors of Kootenay should take advantage of the approaching bye-election, to elect a non party member to fill the vacancy at Ottawa, caused by the promotion of A.S. Goodeve to a seat on the Railway Commission. The argument advanced in favor of such a weird proposition originating in the Cranbrook Herald, is stated by the Inland Sentinel of Kamloops as being "The Government is strong enough without another hidebound adherent, while it is common knowledge that the strong partisan is inclined to put party first, relegating the needs of his constituents to an inferior place"

It is not our intention to waste time discussing such profound statements, the rather we would accept them as the repentent utterances of these "Daniels of the Liberal Press" who, after many years, have at last come to judgment.

For years the party under the leadership of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, resting on a Quebec majority, ruled the Dominion of Canada, solely as partisan politicians. The people of the West, especially British Columbia, who dared to hold political views differing from those favored by Quebec, during all that time, were insulted and ignored. The great interests of the Pacific province were bartered away in the shuffles of Eastern party politics; our fisheries were given to the Japanese, the development of government works at Vancouver port was forbidden, the party politicians who were paid by the government to act as customs and immigration guards, betrayed their trust and sold the white men of British Columbia in order to gain the Chinaman's gold and for the interests of party politics, whilst in the great reciprocity game, our lumber, mines and fruit orchards were used as pawns which could be sacrificed so that the party politicians of the Dominion house might win a few votes in the middle west.

And, when for the first time in all these years, British Columbia is in a position, thanks to the change at Ottawa, to secure a measure of fair treatment in Dominion matters, after the electors of this province have been freed from the grievous handicap of hostile party politicians (so touchingly referred to by our contemporaries) comes their suggestion, that the electorate of Kootenay should throw away this advantage, by choosing one of their so called non-partisan candidates. If such a suggestion had been made by the Conservative press in the days when Sir Wilfrid's slightest nod was law at Ottawa, there would have been some grounds for supporting it, but under the circumstances of the Dominion politics of today, the idea is so rediculous that we are surprised it should have ever been seriously advanced; such a scheme is too transparent, too obviously a political kite to appeal to the intelligent electors of Kootenay.

Exclude Hawaii Fruit

Hon. Martin Burrell, minister of agricultural, is considering the advisability of prohibiting the importation into Canada of fruits from the Hawaiin Islands, owing to the prevalence on those islands of Mediterranean fruit pest. This insect would do just as much damage to fruit grown in Canada as to productions of a tropical climate, if it once get a foothold. The United States government is also considering the advisability of prohibiting Hawaiin fruit, and it is possible that joint action may be taken by the governments.

Every Wheel Will Stop

Montreal, April 22—It is planned during the coming week, to pay a tribute to the late Charles M. Hays, unique in the history of Canada when every wheel on the Grank Trunk, Grand Trunk Pacific and affiliated lines in Canada and the United States will simultaneously stop for several minutes during the course of a memorial service. This is not merely to emphasize the loss these railways have sustained, but to give the thousands of employees in the two countries an opportunity to join in the memorial service in spirit for the chief they have lost. Definite plans have not yet been made, pending an expression of the wishes of the late Mr. Hay's family, but it is expected a special service will be held during the latter part of the week, at the American Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Hays was for many years a member.

As far as possible the headquarters offices will be closed so as to give the officials and staff an opportunity to join in the service. While the memorial service will probably be for the colleagues and staffs of the late Mr. Hays in the various railway enterprises of which he was the head, it will also be for his friends. It is also likely that the other great transportation systems centering in Montreal, will be represented.

Would Work if They Dared

Lytton, April 22—The I.W.W. held a street meeting here yesterday about 65 being present. An agitator from Yale was the chief speaker. No trouble has been reported since the dynamiting at Yale Thursday night. There is still a big camp of strikers at Yale and one near Ashcroft. Work is proceeding between Cisco and Hope, but east of Cisco everything is still closed down except the steamshovel at Savona. It is stated that a number of contractors on this section would resume operations could they secure men.

A large percentage of the strikers are said to be willing to return to work, but are kept terrorized by threats of violence and do not care to risk their lives for ordinary day wages.

Court Holds Marriage Valid

London, April 21.—The appeal from Mr. Justice Kenny's decision, in the now famous Ne Temere case, was dismissed by the lord chief justice on Saturday in a judgment which said: "In my opinion the decision in the council of Trent as it has been promulgated in Ireland is applicable to and controls Catholic marriages and makes the presence of two witnesses necessary to the ceremony, and any ceremony which is not in accordance with its requirements in regard to the presence of a priest and two witnesses is null and void. The decree of the council of Trent though coercive and conclusive from the standpoint of the Roman Catholic church is not recognized by law, that is, common law. This distinction must not be lost sight of when dealing with this question—whether the marriage in which the court was concerned was good at common law."

Turning from the law of the Roman Catholic church to the common law, his lordship said, in the present case they had the substance and essential conditions of a marriage valid at common law. The contracting parties intended marriage and the couple married had interchanged their mutual consent, one to be husband and the other to be wife, in the presence of a priest in holy orders. At common law the presence of any other witness was unnecessary to constitute a valid marriage. He was therefore of the opinion that there was a good and valid marriage, according to the law of the realm, and the matter was an absolute and non-conditional contract of marriage. There was cumulative evidence of mutual consent regarding the formula as a whole.

The Lord Chief Baron in concurring, said that the contract was absolute and non-conditional and in his opinion the marriage was valid according to the laws of the country. "I take thee to be my wedded wife, if the holy church will it permit," of which so much has been said, are wholly immaterial to the case. Mr. Justice Gibson also agreed and the motion was dismissed with costs.

MALAKWA NOTES

Parties desiring information regarding the Valley of the Garden of Eden, can obtain same free of charge by writing to Mr. J. H. Johnson, Malakwa, B. C.

Editor Mail-Herald:—

A remarkable epidemic of painting mania has spread throughout the valley with the result that buildings are looking spick and span in their new coats of paint.

Mr. Eric Erikson is certainly demonstrating the necessity of up-to-date barns. The present barn under construction will have concrete floors and the latest improvements.

Hot beds are going full blast and thousands of celery plants are being raised for June planting.

The acreage devoted to celery growing promises to be far in excess of previous years and will doubtless eclipse Armstrong in the near future.

Mr. Humphries, secretary of the Malakwa Farms, Ltd., paid a short visit to the ranch. He expressed himself as being very satisfied at crop prospects for the coming season.

There appears to be every indication that before next fall many new families and land owners will be recorded as "Garden of Eden Settlers" Following the many enquiries that have all winter been reaching here asking for information about local conditions here, comes the word that many prospective land buyers will arrive here during May, with a view of personally inspecting the many offers for fruit lands that are in this valley. The non-irrigation of these lands, together with the special adaptability of the soil for fruit growing, as well as the unlimited markets for all kinds of produce within such easy access has placed the Garden of Eden lands in first place to all home seekers.

Many of the old settlers will follow the example set by one of the pioneers, Mr. Eric Erikson, and will build commodious outbuildings on their lands this year.

AMONG THE FIGHTERS

Calgary, April 23.—The following interesting dispatch has been received from Toronto:

Tom Flanagan is going to make things hum for Tommy Burns and Billey Allen, the Canadian lightweight champion, if the proposed fight between Allen and Tom Bayley of Victoria for the Flanagan belt, emblematic of the championship of the Dominion, carded to be fought at Bassano, Alberta, on June 19th, is put on.

"Those people must think they own the belt, and have a nerve going ahead and arranging this contest without getting the permission of the National Sporting Club," he said.

Allen is under a bond of $200 to fight only before the National Sporting Club for this belt. They can fight all night if they wish for the title, but not for the belt.

If Allen or Burns had been reasonable, and asked for the Club's permission to contest the belt, we might have agreed to their wishes, but Allen is not going to peddle the belt all over the country without first getting the club's consent. I will take action against Allen if he fights for the Flanagan belt in the West.

In the agreement made with Allen by Tommy Burns, he was to box at Bassano for this belt, and Allen was under the impression that he could do so; but even if the sporting club of that city refuses to allow the belt to be contested for at the coming bout, it will make no difference to the winning of the Canadian championship, for there is no doubt whatever that Allen and Bayley are the two undisputed champions in the lightweight class in this country and the winner of the contest will be accepted by the public as the real champion of the entire Dominion. The beal was competed for and won by Allen, and if he is defeated by Bayley it does not matter whether the club gives up the belt or not, the title is lost. The Toronto club does not need to think that it can offer a belt was competed for and won by of Canada and have every bout for that belt take place in Toronto.

In fact there are few boxers who recognize the belt as emblematic of the championship. There are few sport writers or sportsmen who do so and if the club does not wish to let the belt go out of Toronto, why Allen will meet Bayley anyway, and a real representative belt, that can be contested for anywhere, and representing the real championship can easily be found.

However, Tommy Burns did not intend to turn down the donor of the belt or those controlling it. It was merely an oversight that an application to get the sanction of the club was neglected. Allen did not state, in his acceptance that the Toronto Sporting Club had not given him the privilege to accept all challenges for the belt and that is how the matter stands. It was understood at this end that Allen would fix it with Mr. Flanagan. However, an explanation has been sent to the Sporting Club of Toronto, and Tommy Burns has asked to grant the privilege to compete for the belt at Bassano. If the club turns it down, Allen and Bayley will still box for the championship of Canada, and the belt will not bother them or the people much.

TOMMY BURNS.

What About It

With the caution of sciencei the two Germans who have been so successful with cancer in mice warn the wotld not to conclude yet that the terrible disease is about to be controlled in humankind. Suppose, however, that the optimistic view is right and that the cure can be transferred to man, are the antivisectionists of our proud country going to stand idly by and let cancer be conquered without a blow on their part for the mice? They have introduced aoother "iavestigation" bill in the New York legislature, to substitute their knowledge and judgment for the knowledge and judgment of our best scientific bodies, but is that quite enough? ORCHARD INTER-CROP

Has Strong Advocate in Mr. P. E. French, Famous Horticulturist, who Asserts it is Possible.

(P. E. French, B.S.A., Asst. Hort.)

The growing of crops between orchard tress until they reach productive age is one of importance not only to the individual fruit grower, but to the economic stability of the fruit industry as a whole. A few years ago, a lack of Knowledge as to the successful marketing of these inter-crops, such as small fruits and vegetables, together with a wave of enthusiasm for absolutely clean cultivation of orchards, discouraged this practice. There has recently been a change in both respects. A great inccease in the available market, and the discovery that carload production was an essential to success with main-crop vegetables, together with experimental proof that careful men could grow inter-crops with financial success and without injury to the trees have materially altered the situation.

There are, however, certain requisites to success. The soil must be deep, in good physical condition, fertile, and be possessed of adequate moisture. A soil in condition to support only the growth of the trees cannot carry both trees and inter-crop without injury to the former. A first step is to get soil in proper condition by the use of cover-crops or barnyard manure. 6

The climate must also be suitable. Wealthy apples thrive, and attain the best results in districts where tomatoes and corn can be grown successfully. Early vegetables are successful only where they can be produced in time for their market. Some non irrigated districts are so dry in the summer time that many inter-crops requiring a large amount of moisture suffer or fail. These points all require local study.

The third important requisite to success, and perhaps the most important, is the market. Co-operative marketing is almost essential in getting a new district under way. Carload production as mentioned above, is often most desirable. Given a careful study of the entire situation, success is reasonably assured.

There is usually a living to be made from the land while the trees are coming into bearing age. Many crops which will bring good returns can be grown between the rows of trees, while they are young, but it should always be remembered that the young trees are of first importance, and upon their present health, and vigor depends the future usefulness of the orchard.

Inter-cropping of young orchards is generally discouraged for the reason that the trees are likely to be neglected or misused and the soil depleted of plant food and moisture. It is by injudicious cropping, however, that young orchards are often most seriously injured. Extra care should be taken to maintain the fertility of the soil by the application of manure and fertilizers.

The growing of light crops is a means of keeping the land stirred, when it might otherwise be neglected, and if the grower is caeeful to see that the physical condition of the land is improved, and adds enough plant food to supply the loss, the light cropping of orchards for the first few years may be a decided benefit. The danger is that the fruit grower might continue too long and expect too much from it. When the orchard comes into bearing, give it the entire land.

In orchards not less than twenty-five feet apart the land should rarely be cropped more than three years but apple orchards set thirty feet or more, may be lightly cropped four or five years if extra good care is taken

In irrigated sections there is a tendency to over-irrigate if there are inter-crops. This, of course, is detrimental to the trees. Quite often it makes the trees grow late in the fall and they are sent into the winter in a soft and unripened condition. When intercrous are grown an open strip, free from crops, should be left on each side of the row of trees. The width of this strip will vary somewhat according to the kind of crop For an ordinary hoe crop the space free of crops should be about four feet on each side of the row of trees the first year, and this area should be widened each year as the trees grow older. This should be kept cultivated regularly throughout the growing season. The roots of a tree generally spread farther from the trunk than do the branches, so that in no case should crops be grown within a foot and one-half of the line below the outside of the branches. The drier the land the less it should be cropped unless irrigation water is available.

Only annual crops should be grown in fruit plantations. In general, some low-growing crop which demands good tillage and comes off early is best. Almost any vegetable crop may be grown, but with all such crops the question of markets should be carefully considered before planting any large area. In any section there is always something in the way of vegetables that can be grown at a profit. The kind of crop grown will also depend largely on the type of soil and the location of the orchard.

Grain or hay should never be grown in the orchard. They are especially objectionable because they do not permit the cultivation of the soil nor shade it sufficiently to keep it from baking. Of course, such crops as wheat, rye, oats, clover, etc., may be grown late in the season as cover crops to plow under, but if grown for grain or hay it is too hard to preserve the moisture and the physical condition of the soil is not improved. A hoed crop is much more desirable. The growing of nursery stock in young orchards should be discouraged. This crop makes the same demands upon the soil as the orchard itself, and it does not allow the variations in cultivation and management which are possible when different crops are grown. Nursery stock is known to be particularly hard on land, so much so that nurserymen seldom grow two crops of nursery stock in succession on the same area.

Potatoes may be mentioned as a crop well adapted to grow in young orchards. It is a staple commodity and is often shipped across the continent, but in order to do this the community must oroduce a sufficient quantity to ship in carload lots. If early potatoes are grown a cover crop of rye or wheat, or sometimes clover, may be planted after the potatoes are harvested. Potatoes thrive best on the light or medium soils but occasionally heavier soils are found that are adapted to the crop. Potatoes require the cultivation of the coil in the spring and early part of the summer, and consequently are among the best to grow in the orchard.

Early corn, onions, carrots, beets, etc., are good crops to grow as inter-crops in the young orchard, because they all require good cultivation and generally tempt the manager to liberal fertilizing.

In fruit districts where canning factories are being built, such crops as tomatoes, corn and beans may be grown, as it is often difficult for the factories to get a sufficient supply of these crops

When clovers or vetches are grown it is well to leave a good wide strip on each side of trees for cultivation, especially where irrigation is not available, so that the trees will not suffer from lack of moisture. One crop can then be taken off, and the second crop allowed to grow to plow under next spring. This supplies nitrogen and adds humus to the soil. Small fruits are often grown as inter crops and sometimes with very good results. Bush fruits should never be planted within nine feet from the row of trees, and the ground needs extra good cultivation. There is always a danger of leaving bush fruits too long in the orchard. In irrigated sections strawberries are som?times grown with good results. There is not the danger of over-watering this crop that there is in the case of the bush fruits, as the strawberry season is over quite early.

Young orchards should never be left in sod. Sod lands are not only drier than cultivated ground, but they are favourite breeding places of insects. Mice often harbour in sod lands and they often do considerable damage to young trees.

There are a few cases where sod may be grown in old orchards, but it is the exception rather than the rule. In such a case as a very steep hillside where there was plenty of moisture available it might be an advantage to leave the orchard in sod The grass should be cut and left on the ground.

We are often asked if it pays to grow inter-crops in the bearing orchard. There is no doubt but that it does pay. One cannot expect to get two crops of produce from the same ground. The roots of the bearing trees require all the ground for the best development of the tree and fruit. The only crop that should be grown in a bearing orchard is a cover crop to plow under.

The writer does not advocate cropping the yaung orchard in all cases. Where a grower has sufficient capital to carry him over until the fruit trees are bearing it may be better not to take anything off the ground. He has a much better chance to enrich the ground by plowing under leguminous crops, as clover, etc., when the trees are young than when they are large and bearing. It is sometimes hard to get a good catch whenthe trees are large and shade the ground. If one is in such a position he should be able to have the ground in a better condition when the trees are old enough to bear fruit than the man who is obliged to grow inter-crops. However, we are not all able to do this and we must be governed largely by our circumstances.

Taking the situation as a whole it would seem that the opportunities for the small fruit grower are encouraging, not only to make a living, but an income as well, while his orchard is coming into bearing age. Many men are making extra large profits from the inter-crops, but some are doing it at the expense of the orchard. However, this need not be, if extra good care is taken to replace the plant food and humus which is lost by the growing of crops. It must always be remembered that where crops are growing between the trees, they are taking food material out of the soil, and that it is necessary to fertilize the ground well in the meantime, so that the soil will not be in an impoverished condition when the trees begin to bear.

Opera House Improvements

The enterprising proprietors of the opera house, Messrs. Tapping and Allwood, are making some improvements to their commodious play house. Among the chief of their alterations is the changing of the stage to permit of the using of twenty foot scenery instead of fourteen foot, as heretofore. The management has also installed modern lavatories as well as hot and cold water in the dressing rooms and in a few weeks time they will re-paper the house and improve the front as well as put in an up-to-date sloping floor. Messrs. Tapping and Allwood have provided for only good attractions for the opera house in the future and the Revelstoke citizens can rest assured that they will have more than their moneys worth by taking in the various events as they are billed.

The opera house, with a seating capacity of 800, provides ample room for the theatre goers of Revelstoke, and with the new improvements just made the public will have every comfort when they are guests at this papular play house. For information regarding the coming attractions see the list of coming events as well as other references in the columns of this paper from time to time.

BURTON CITY NOTES

Miss E. M. Sloan, has returned home from Brondel, Kootenay lake.

Mrs. C. Marshall and Miss Marshall returned from Nakusp, both doing well.

Large consignments of trees are arriving from various nurseries and the ranchers are busy transplanting.

Time is valuable now in Burton, and likely to be for some time to come. Serio and comic being strangly mingled one evening in the Burton district. While the bal masque was progressing, the Rev. S. Phillimore, of Nakusp, was uniting in wedlock Mrs. E. McDougald and Mr. Thomas Gayford of Burton. A good time was enjoyed at both places. On Monday last Mrs. R. Stevens, assisted by Miss McLaughlin, held a reception in the hall to receive the numerous friends of the newly married couple. Upwards of one hundred turned out to congratulate the happy couple. Both are well known, especially the bride, who has been for many years resident along this river, and is generally interested in the public welfare. Mr. Gayford arrived here from Norwich, England, a few years ago, to visit his son here, and liked it so well that he stayed. He is very popular and the couple will reside at Caribou City from now on.

Part of the celebrations to take place on the 24th of May will be a double wedding. From signs it is going going to be a busy year for parsons in this neighborhood.

DRUNKENNESS CAN BE CURED.

Old Fallacy That Drunkenness Cannot Be Cured Exploded.

Many men drink who desire to stop the habit. Whisky, however, has undermined the constitution and created a craving that is not to be denied, and the man must have whisky or something that will remove the craving and build up the system and restore the nerves.

Samaria Prescription stops the craving, steadies the nerves, builds up the general health and makes drink actually distasteful and nauseous. It is tasteless and odorless, and can be given with or without the patient's knowledge, in tea, coffee or food. It is used regularly by Physicians and Hospitals. It has cured thousands in Canada, and restored happiness to hundreds of homes.

Read what Mrs. G——, of Hull, says of it and what it did for her:

"It is four months to-day since I started to use your Remedy. I followed the directions, and had the best of results. One week after I started using your Remedy the patient stopped drinking, and has not drunk a glass of liquor since. I hope you will accept my heartfelt thanks. Hoping God will bless your Remedy whenever tried, I remain,

Mrs. G——, Hull, Que.

(Name withheld by request.)

Now, if there is anyone in your town who needs this Remedy, tell them of it. Practical philanthropy can take no better form. If you have a husband, father, brother or friend who drinks, help them help themselves. Write to-day.

A FREE TRIAL PACKAGE of Samaria, with Booklet giving full particulars, directions, testimonials, price, etc., will be sent in a plain sealed package to anyone mentioning this paper. Correspondence sacredly confidential. Write today. The Samaria Remedy Co., Dept. 46-49, Colborne street, Toronto, Canada. Also for sale by C. R. Macdonald, Druggist, Revelstoke, B. C.
