REVELSTOKE WILL ROYALLY CELEBRATE

Corner Stone Laying of New Hospital---Turning First Sod of Mount Revelstoke Auto Road---Hon. Thos. Taylor Guest of Honor--Picnic at Columbia Park.--Lacrosse, Sappertons vs. Revelstoke.

The reception committee of the Progress Club have arranged an elaborate program for the occasion of turning the first sod of the Mt. Revelstoke motor road, which is to take place on the 20th or 21st instant.

The Hon. Thomas Taylor, Minister of Public Works, will perform the ceremony, and will also lay the Corner Stone of the new wing of the Victoria Hospital at Revelstoke, on the same date.

The corner stone laying will take place at 11:30 a. m., and the s. s. Revelstoke will leave the wharf at 12 noon, making a second tripat 1:15 to convey the citizens to the spot in Columbia Park where the sod turning will be performed. A fare of 10 cents each way, to defray expenses, is to be charged on the boat, or rigs will also be available for those who prefer that mode of travel. After the second boat load of citizens has arrived at the park, about 3 p.m., immediately following luncheon, the sod turning ceremony will take place, and will be followed by speeches by Hon. Thomas Taylor and others.

Among the attractions for this date arrangements are being completed for a match between the famous Sapperton lacrosse team, now touring the province and a picked team of Revelstoke juniors, full particulars of which will be published later. For the picnicers in Columbia Park, hot water will be provided.

The Progress Club extend a hearty invitation to every citizen to be sent at this most important event.

Revelstoke vs. Kamloops

An exciting baseball match is being played this afternoon in Kamloops between Kamloops and Revelstoke ball teams. The local team left here in good trim this morning, the line up being as follows:

Harry Pulley, catcher.
Phil Lezie, pitcher.
Beck, first base.
Calder, second base.
Wright, short stop.
Wilson, third base.
And three fielders between Bruce, Wright, Hutchinson and Monro.

Again on Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 the fans of the city will have the privilege of seeing the Kamloops ball team and the Revelstoke team cross bats on the local grounds at Riverside park. The series of games played between the two teams now stands two wins and two looses apiece and this game is sure to prove a hard and bitterly fought contest as both teams are desirous of annexing the game to the win column, and it is understood that the Revelstoke team are importing a battery to strengthen their team. The local team will line up in their usual order, no changes being made. The game will be called at 3:30 sharp.—Inland Sentinel.

Citizens Must be Prepared

Vancouver, Aug. 5—That people enjoying the privilege of citizenship of Vancouver have also duties to perform to the community was evidenced by the city council's sefusal to alter the fire bylaw clause whereby fire officeIs may call upon the public for assistance in fighting fire, or in getting goods from a burning building.

Alderman Crowe advocated the striking out of the clause, considering it entirely unnecessary in a city which possessed a police force numbering 220 and a large fire fighting force.

The assistant city solicitor said a similar provision was in force in Montreal and Toronto, and by a vote of five to four the clause was allowed to remain.

Titanic Survivors,

Paris, Aug. 5—A story is being told here, which, if true, shows how some people may be seized by a strange morbid vanity. It is said that many of the survivors of the Titanic, recovered from their shock, have ventured to recross the Atlantic, and now staying in Paris. There is nothing extraordinary in that, but what is curious is that few men were saved there is said to be quite an army of men staying in Paris hotels who boast of themselves as survivors of the disaster and are treated as favored guests, and pointed out as they pass.

An hotelkeeper, who, by the way, has not been lucky enough to secure such a draw, stated a few days ago that there were more men staying in Paris hotels at the moment who say they were on board the Titanic than the ship could hold.

It is said that in one of the hotels where several real, or pretended, survivors are staying, the orchestra plays as a delicate attention every night after dinner, "Nearer My God To Thee."

Says Hell is No Myth

Hamilton, Aug. 5—Rev. J.A. Miller pastor of Trinity English Lutheran church, made a reply to the International Bible Students' Association's stand that hell is a myth. He declared that such a stand was equivalent to calling Jesus Christ and the Apostles liars.

Newspaper Co-Operation

Nelson, Aug. 2—Affiliation with the Canadian Press Association was decided upon at the concluding session Saturday of the Alberta and Eastern British Columbia Press Association annual convention in Nelson, the delegates endorsing the plea of John M. Imrie, secretary of the Dominion body, for unity of effort, and co-operation towards placing the newspapers of Canada upon a sounder business basis. Particular attention was devoted to advertising rates and job printing cost system.—Ex.

A Famous Play

One can almost count on their fingers, the plays which have become immortal in the history of the English speaking stage. Thousands of plays have been written but few there are that have endured the fickleness of an amusement loving public. One play there is which seems destined to live as long as the language exists. This is Washington Irving's beautiful story of "Rip Van Winkle," a play which compelled the laughter and tears of our grand parents and which possesses an irresistable charm for us of today. In every English speaking country this famous play has been revived again and again and always with the most triumphant success. The children; the older folks as well as the pulpit and press has ever pronounced "Rip Van Winkle" the most beautiful story of which the stage can boast.

One of the most important bookings at the Rmpress here is Wm. E. Lorraine's magnificent production of "Rip Van Winkle." A carload of elaborate scenery, costumes and electrical effects is carried and the special selected company is a guarantee of a most unusual dramatic treat.

Saturday, Sept. 28th.

A Peculiar Adventure

A police officer and a well known government employee of Revelstoke, met with a peculiar adventure on Tuesday evening last, within the city limits.

Walking home about 11 p.m., one of the friends wheeling a bicycle, and both engaged in an animated conversation, the attention of the alert eyed officer was attracted to the movement of some wild, brown creature rustling its way through the grass along the roadside. The silent night resounded with the quick call— "A bear, a bear" and whilst the constable pulled his gun, the other fellow stepped over and gave bruin a playful little kick, it was a bear, but of the electric variety, and there was a scene of great excitement as the venturesome kicker danced round the road with no less than eighty four porcupine quills sticking into his foot and leg. The startled constable got in a pot shot at the fleeting animal, but the bullet went right through the steel quilled one without apparently damaging it, and found a safe billet in the tyre of the bicycle which exploded with a noise like thunder, the double report bringing the night patrol hastily to the scene.

The quills were removed at the Revelstoke hospital, and the two nimrods continued the movement homewards, arriving safely without any further adventures.

The wounded hero of the incident, was very reticent when our reporter tried to interview him the following morning, but the quills were there to speak for themselves, and all we succeeded in learning was that "next time he ran across a porcupine there would be no kick coming so far as he personally was concerned."

CITY COUNCIL

The city council met on Friday evening in the city hall. Mayor Sutherland took the chair at 8 p.m.

Aldermen McKinnon, Howson, McSorley, Bourne, Barber and Abrahamson were present.

The minutes of last regular meeting were adopted.

A long letter from Fire Brigade No 1 objecting to the central fire hall from a financial and efficiency standpoint, was received, considered and filed for reference.

Various communications were ordered answered or filed.

Various accounts were ordered paid

An application for light on Eighth street was referred to the Fire and Light committee.

Various matters of routine business were discussed and a short meeting came to a close at 9:30 p.m.

Vote by Congregation

At the meeting of the General Assembly when the returns to the remit on Church Union where presented, the Clerks of Assembly were directed to prepare an additional return showing the number of congregations in which by a majority of those voting, the union proposals were approved or disapproved respectively. This return has been prepared and will be included in the Assembly blue book. It is of considerable interest, inasmuch as it was in this form that the vote was taken in the union of 1875, and between the Republican leaders, there is good reason can be made. The return presented to the General Assembly of the Canada Presbyterian church in 1874 showed 168 congregations in favor of union and 87 opposed. After further conference and readjustment the basis was resubmitted and at the Assembly of 1875 the vote was reported as 231 congregations in favor and 7 opposed. In connection with the present returns it is interesting to note that in only one Presbytery—Pictou—did a majority of the congregations vote against union. The table which we print is based upon the vote of elders and members in each congregation. Two Presbyteries are not included— Winnipeg and Edmonton—as the necessary returns were not forthcoming:

UNION LABEL 231

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 7th, 1912

As we returned from church on Sunday last, our attention was very forcibly, if unpleasantly drawn, to a decided public nuisance which exists in Revelstoke, although long since swept away in every other progressive city of our acquaintance. We refer to the parading by Chinamen, through our streets in the heat of summer midday, of open carts filled with stinking refuse, consisting of slops from hotels, restaurants and private houses. We quite understand that as long as humanity demands pork, and is careless from whence it comes, so long will swill continue to be collected, but the spectacle of these open barrels of slops being dragged around our principal thorofares, dispensing a malodorous breath and millions of flies along the line of route, is certainly a nuisance which might well be avoided.

The Chinese gatherers of this traffic should be instructed to perform their job during the silent hours of night, thus allowing the public the privilege to which they are certainly entitled, of taking their walks in the city, without the most offensive aspect of this business being brought so strongly under their notice.

Just a Plow

The American harvester trust is advertising a new machine for turning the soil. The advertisement says of this stupendous plow:

"It is a plow turning a furrow sixty feet wide; a plow ninety-two feet from front to rear; three noble engines move before a resistance equal to that of a hundred Pullmans. Three engineers and a plowman—these are the working forces.

"Seven acres are plowed to every mile of advance; two miles an hour are covered, which means an acre plowed every two minutes and fourteen seconds.

"The labor of the spader for five hundred years is concentrated in twenty-four hours. This is the act of challenging the imagination, yet only the beginning of an epoch."

This new machine is called the Oil-pull plow, and has been in operation at Purdue university, Indiana.

London, Aug. 2—The Grand Lodge of Free Masons of Scotland today affirmed the suspension of Forfar and Kincardine Lodge of Dundee for initiating Jack Johnson, the prizefighter

VEGETABLE GROWING

CELERY.

Soil—Celery can be grown on any fertile, well drained soil, but best results can be obtained from a loose, rich sandy loam or a black muck soil Well drained swamp land is often excellent soil for the commercial growing of celery. Special attention should be given to the maintenance of humus in the soil, as celery growing not only exhausts the chemical fertility of the soil, but also injuries its physical condition. This is not so important in the case of swamp land where there is generally an extra large supply of humus. The maintenance of humus in the soil can be accomplished by the application of large quantities of barnyard manure, or by planting the land every third or fourth year to some leguminous crop such as clover.

Fertilizers.—Where fresh manure is used, it should be plowed under in the fall at the rate of about twenty tons to the acre. Well-rotted manure may be applied as a top dressing a short time before planting, and harrowed into the soil. If the manure is plowed under, the land should be replowed a short time before planting, in order to bring the manure near the surface.

Many growers are getting excellent results from the use of commercial fertilizers at the rate of 600 or 700 lbs. per acre. The best results seem to be obtained by making a furrow where the plants are to be set. Then scatter the fertilizer in the bottom of this furrow and mix it well with the soil and then set the plants on top. Nitrate of Soda might be applied in light applications during the growing season just before cultivating. When celery is grown on the large scale, it is advisable for the grower to experiment with different mixtures of commercial fertilizers, and find out what gives the best results with his own particular soil.

Raising the Young Plants.—Celery seed loses its vitality very quickly and is practically worthless when kept over until the second year. Order your seed early, before the supply of the best is exhausted and there will be very little difficulty in getting good seed. One ounce of seed will give about 5,000 plants. Celery seeds are slow in germinating, and the temperature of the seed bed should be kept low. The seeds for the production of early celery are sown about the end of February or beginning of March, in hotbeds or flats. Where grown in flats there is less danger of damping off if the seeds are covered with sand

For late celery the seed is sown in an old hotbed, cold frame or in a well prepared seed bed. The seeds should not be covered to a greater depth than one-eighth of an inch Watering should be attended to very carefully and the bed should not dry out. After the plants are up care should be taken that the beddoes not become too wet and the plants damp off. A better root system and a stronger plant can be obtained when transplanting into flats is practised, but this is seldom done when celery is grown on a large scale. The cost of labor is too great to recommend two handlings for commercial celery production. The plants should be thinned out in the seed bed to prevent over-crowding.

Transplanting to the Field—The ground should be well plowed, harrowed and smoothed before the plants are set out. The seed bed should be thoroughly soaked with water before the plants are dug. A portion of the top is generally trimmed off the plant when transplanted. When raised on a large scale celery is grown in single or double rows, 4, 5, or 6 feet apart with plants 5 or 6 inches apart in the rows. Most of the growers in this province prefer the double row system. Early celery is generally planted closer together than late celery. If the weather is warm after setting the plants in the field, they should be shaded for a few days.

Cultivation — The young plants should be frequently cultivated but at no time should deep cultivation be practised, as the roots are to be found very near the surface of the soil As soon as the plants attain considerable size the leaves should be drawn up and a little soil compacted about the base of the plant to hold it upright.

Blanching—Early celery is usually blanched by means of boards as there is less danger of disease during the warm weather. Late celery may be blanched by the use of boards, or by banking up with earth. There is much less labor required when boards are used for blanching, but if the celery is to be left in the ground in the fall there is more danger from frost than when it is well banked with earth.

Digging and Preparing for Market—In the field the celery should be loosened only as required for removal to the storehouse or washing house, as a short exposure to the sun after the roots have been disturbed is very injurious and detracts from its keeping qualities. When ready for market the celery is washed free of adhering oil, the outside leaves are removed and the roots trimmed, and it is packed in boxes or crates. A lining of paper is usually placed in the box before packing the celery.

Storage—When only a small quantity of celery is kept for winter it may be Rell banked in the field and covered with straw, or put in a trench and covered. This method is, however, too laborious for application on a large commercial scale.

Celery may be safely stored in cellars or storage houses provided the temperature is kept low and plenty of ventilation maintained. Make bins 3 or 4 feet wide 2 feet high and any desired length and put in about 5 inches of strong soil. Plant the celery, leaving the roots on, close together in rows about 3 inches apart After the plants are set in water heavily without putting any more than necessary on the tops. Leave the bin open until the plants are dry and then cover.

Varieties in Order of Maturity—Golden Self Blanching, White Plume or Chicago Giant, Paris Golden, Giant Pascal, Evan's Triumph, and Winter Green.

MALAKWA TOWNSITE

Lots in the new townsite of Malakwa are now on the market at prices ranging from $75 to $175. These lots are all high and dry and the regulation size.

Reasons Why You Should Buy in Malakwa

This new town is just about half way between Revelstoke and Salmon Arm, being a trifle over 30 miles from either place. It is a natural location for a town, being surrounded by a highly rich farming district. Lots in this townsite can be purchased on long terms so that a purchser before he has really paid for his lots will have made a good profit on his investment.

Business Opportunities

There is a grand opening for hotels and other branches of business, including a barber shop, shoe maker, drygoods and gents furnishings, and all other legitimate businesses.

Industries Already Started

Already industries are being located here. The first keen business concern to grasp the golden opportunity of locating at this townsite will be a large shingle mill, operated by Spokane parties. This mill will be operated by water power.

Preparations are also being made to install a water power sufficient to operate an electric plant or any other industry that may come in.

Late Rev. C. A. Davies

Last Thursday morning at Revelstoke, the body of the late minister was interred in the city cemetery. This tragically sudden death (which we chronicled in our last issue) thru' falling off a logging train at Taft, has called forth many remarks of warm and genuine esteem for the late preacher and sympathy for his relatives in England.

The funeral service was conducted in Messrs. Howson's undertaking parlors by the Rev. J.W. Stevenson, M. A., B.D., who spoke in sympathetic terms of Mr. Davis's niligence and whole-hearted devotion to duty coupled with his manly and bright spirit which had a fragrant influence over all whom he came in contact with. Further, it was some consolation to his friends to know that his death took place under no other circumstances than while faithfully discharging his duties in the great cause to which he had dedicated his life. The funeral service in the city closed by prayer being offered by the Rev. T. T. Reikie, Presbyterian minister of Kaslo, B.C. The gentlemen acting as pall bearers were Messrs. Hall and Drummond of the Dominion Sawmills Co., Mr. D. W. Brand, Mr. D. M. Cowan, also Rev. T.T. Reikie and Mr C. H. Ballard, the missionary for Malakwa, B.C., who was an intimate friend and fellow-student of the deceased preacher. The funeral party was also attended by Mr. Lindmark, general superintendent of the Dominion Sawmills, and Mrs. and Miss Nado, wife and daughter of the manager of the mill at Three Valley. The service at the graveside was also conducted by the Rev. Mr. Stevenson, Prayer being offered by Mr. Ballard.

The late Charles Ambro Davis was an Englishman, born in the town of Beckton, Middlesex, in the year 1877 He came of a sturdy old South of England stock, the family being well known for generations past in the district of Aldershot. As a youth deceased attended public school at Aldershot, and the glamor of the great British military headquarters, with its scenes of excitement and change, continued to color his life long after school days were past. At the age of 15, Davis passed the Junior Civil Service Test, and leaving school, secured employment in the government postal department. But the dreary routine of office and departmental red tape was unsuited to such an active temperament, and at the age of 19, he abandoned his desk to shoulder the rifle, accepted the Queen's shilling, enlisting into the Hampshire Infantry. Eighteen months later he was drafted for Foreign Service, and set sail with his comrades to join his battallion stationed in British India, where he was popular with fellow rankers, and earned the good will of his officers, being made Chief Steward of the Officers Regimental Mess. Whilst thus not neglecting his duties as an obedient and gallant soldier, Davis took up a course of study, preparing himself for missionary work, and was released at the end of four years service, in order to take up the more onerous position of a soldier of the Cross.

For eight years he worked as a missionary to the troops in our great Easetern Dependency, during that time traversing the country from end to end, visiting far off Punjaub, and the North West Frontier stations.

Suffering from recurring attacks of Tropical fever, he was invalided home for six months. He answered the call of duty the second time, but the fever clung to him, and he was finally forced by doctors orders, to abandon his work in the tropics, after twelve years of active endeavor.

Recouperated by a stay in his native land, Davis came to Canada, engaging in missionary work throughout the West, spending vacations studying to prepare himself for entrance into the ministry of the Presbyterian church. His faculty of reaching the hearts of that rugged class of men who line the frontier, acquired during his army experiences in India, being quickly recognised. Mr. Davis was chosen for work in British Columbia, and in April 1912, took up special missionary duty among the loggers and miners of the Pacific Province. It was whilst engaged in this labor of love that he was killed; he was en route to the logging camp out of Taft, B.C., to conduct service amongst the lumberjacks, when the summons came for him to appear before one who is the "Great Commander of All," and he died, like a "True Soldier and a man" in the very moment of answering duties call.

Protection of Forests

Ottawa, Aug 3—James Lawler of Ottawa, secretary of the Canadian Forestry Association, has just returned from Montreal and the city of Quebec, where he was making arrangements for the Dominion Forestry convention to be held upon the invitation of the government of British Columbia, in Victoria, B.C., on Sept. 4 5 and 6. He found great interest being taken in this convention, in which Sir Richard McBride and Hon. W.R. Ross will personally take part, and which will be held in the best time to see the Pacific coast and the prairies. Hon. Jules Allard, minister of lands and forests for Quebec, has consented to attend and he will be accompanied by some of the officers of his department. Eastern lumbermen and forest engineers will also be well represented. The railways have granted greatly reduced rates for the return to Victoria to delegates. Mr. Lawler, who is looking after the arrangements, states that everything is looking well for one of the largest conventions ever held on the coast.

Brakeman Shot

Calgary, Alta., July 31—Breakman Roy Blair died in the Banff hospital today. The "gun-man," who last night shot him as he stood in the doorway of a refrigerator car at Morely, is at large, having so far eluded the posse of police and Indians that is scouring the foot hills.

The companion of the hobo who did the shooting was found riding beneath the second section of the train and was dragged out at Exshaw and forced to give a description of the gun man. He declared that they had only met while attempting to steal a ride, and that he did not know him.

The companion is held by the police at Canmore, and will be brought to Calgary to stand trial for attempting to ride on a train without a ticket.

The shooting of Roy Blair occurred at Morely shortly before midnight. The first section of No. 3 left Calgary at 9:30 last night. When the train was about to pull out of Morely, Conductor McConnell spotted two men attempting to enter the refrigerator car. He went to them and told them to drop off.

The men refused, and Blair, coming through the car, saw his chief and went to his assistance. The men had refused to budge for the conductor and when Blair arrived one of the vagrants calmly drew a revolver from his right hip pocket and fired point blank at the brakeman.

Blair grabbed for the weapon but he was not quick enough. The bullet blew the top off his right thumb and entered the groin on the left side, passing upward through his twelfth rib and finally lodging at the base of the spine.

Other members of the train crew were attracted by the discharge of the gun and investigated. Conductor McConnell went to the assistance of Blair and before the train crew became really cognizant of what had occurred, the hoboes had disappeared into the darkness.

In the interval the police had been notified of the occurrence. The R.N.W.M.P. detail sprang into action and soon had a posse of Indians and civilians on the trail.

Up to a late hour tonight the gun man had not been captured.

Will Increase Forests

Paris, Aug. 5—Premier Poincare's visit to the Czar at Peterhof, the Russian Versailles, is arousing the keenest interest and enthusiasm. The moment chosen for making the naval convention public between France and Russia was most opportune. The plans for the reconstruction of the Russian navy were communicated to the French naval authorities by Admiral Prince Lieven, during his recent stay here.

It is now certain that Russia is determined to make her battle fleet one of the best fleets of its size in Europe and it will consist, in two years, of eight Dreadnaughts, four of which will be of 30,000 tons each, four big armored cruisers, twenty-two destroyers and twelve submarines.

Moreover, a perfect understanding now exists between France and Great Britain on the one hand and between France and Russia, on the other, in regard to the distribution and co-operation of the naval forces of Britain, France and Russia in the Baltic as well as in the Mediterranean. Should an emergency arise for mobilization, it is an open secret that whenever Russia decides to demand the free passage of the Dardanelles for her warships, such a demand will be supported by France and Britain.

This formidable addition to the Russian Baltic fleet comes as one of the measures of precaution against the recent increase of the German army on the French frontier.

According to trustworthy information, the German war minister has decided to make considerable reinforcements to the army corps on the Russian frontier and the number of men under colors in time of peace in Germany, which today is 70,000, will in 1920 be increased to 800,000. Thus military and naval armaments are being pushed on toward extreme limits in Germany and France.

These developments will doubtless form one of the many topics of conversations between the Czar and the French Premier, but no one here except the socialist group of Jaurez and Hervie, who propose an impracticable Utopia of disarmament can find any satisfactory solution to the problem.

Tragedy in Lodge Room

Anderson, S.C., Aug. 5—Mistaking that part of the initiation where firearms are flourished and blank cartridges are exploded as meaning to do him bodily harm, Furman Bagwell, a candidate, being initiated into the Woodmen of the World, rushed from the lodge-room and snatched his pistol from his coat hanging in the anteroom. He then hurried back into the lodge-room and opened fire on Melton Taylor, who was leading the degree team in the initiation. The first shot hit Taylor in the abdomen The second buried itself in the hip bone. The last shot struck Taylor on the back of the neck and glaced off. Taylor is dying.

The men were fast friends, and Bagwell acted through fright, He will not be prosecuted.

Brakeman Saffa was the victim of a bad accident at Chase, on Tuesday morning last, about 8 a. m. Saffa was working the east bound way freight, and in descending from the top of a car, missed his footing on the ladder, and fell under the moving wheels. His right leg was very severely injured, and left arm, it is believed the leg will have to be amputated in order to save Saffa's life, and the sufferer now lies in a very dangerous condition in the Revelstoke hospital. He has a wife and four young children who reside in Revelstoke.

A meeting was held in St. Francis Hall last evening for the purpose of making disposition of the Jackson fund. Representatives from the different organizations contributing to the fund were present. It was decided to hold the money in a trust fund and to pay it in monthly instalments to Mrs. Jackson. Messrs. G.W. Bell and Jas. Mathie were appointed to administer the fund in trust.

PRESERVING POINTERS

Raspberry Vinegar—Put the fresh fruit into a granite pan or a glass jar, cover well with vinegar and let stand for a week, stirring it occasionally. Strain out the juice, add cup for cup of sugar and boil three minutes. Put away in tightly corked bottles. Some prefer it wieh half the quantity of sugar.

A good housekeeper who says she never—well, hardly ever—breaks a glass sealer with hot preserves, follows this plan. Each gem as it is used thzoughout the year is washed, scalded and set away. There is no need to scald them again before refilling. Remove the rings and rubbers and put the gems in the oven or on the back of the range before putting on the fire. Tney can be made much hotter this way than with hot water. Set each gem on a hot plate, fill and close, and invert till cool. If they are placed on a white paper, a glance will tell if any one leaks.

Black berries make delicious jam though a little sweet. Remove the pits and simmer the fruit very slowly until tender. Add a pound of sugar to each pound of fruit and cook slowly for half an hour or less. For those who prefer the jam less sweet, add red currant juice with the sugar, in proportion of one pint to six lbs

Blue berries are delicious spiced. add whole cloves, and a little vinegar to taste.

Monument for Hanlan

It is proposed to erect a $20,000 monument at Hanlan's Point, Toronto, in memory of Ned Hanlan, the great Canadian oarsman. The monument will be 100 feet high, composed of white marble with a granite base, and surmounted by a globe. On the panel will be a tablet recording the achievements of the late Edward Hanlan and a medallion of the head and shoulders of the famous sculler.

If reports are true the ,ate Edward Hanlan had a pretty hard time to make ends meet for a considerable period before he died, and it is said that he applied in vain for a small position so as to keep the wolf of want from the door during his declining years. The erection of a monument to Hanlan and the neglect shown him before his demise, reminds us of the story of Robert Burns' mother, who, when they erected a monument to her son's memory, exclaimed. "Ah, Rabbie, ye asked for bread and they hae gien ye a stane."

A Nineteen Million Dollar Order

In these days of big things, when people talk of millions where their grandfathers spoke of thousands, the fact that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has ordered 12,500 additional freight cars and 300 more locomotives may not attract more than mere passing attention, except amongst railway men. And yet this order involves an expenditure of the immense sum of $19,000,000—the freight cars costing $14,000,000 and the locomotives $5,000,000. This is a pretty big amount for any railway—even one like the C.P.R.—to spend at one time in additional equipment, especially when costly sleepers and diners or passenger coaches of any description whatever are not included.

If figures are seldom amusing, they are sometimes entertaining and this latest purchase of the C.P.R. furnishes a few facts that are of more than ordinary interest. Here are some of them:

The length of a freight car from buffer to buffer is 39 feet, its weight 37,000 pounds and its carrying capacity 80,000 pounds. The length of these locomotives from pilot to buffer of the tender is about 69 feet, and its weight, in working order, 175 tons Each tender carries 5,000 gallons of water and 13 tons of coal. Each locomotive is of 15,000 horse power and can haul on the level at least 75 cars or on an average of 50 cars over the whole system. String these cars in one long line and they would reach a distance of 92 miles—from Montreal more than half-way to Quebec.

The 12,500 freight cars would make up 250 trains, and if they were to start, say from Calgary, at intervals of one hour, running on a regular schedule af 20 miles an hour, nearly ten days and a half would elapse between the dispatching of the first and of the last train. When the last train left Calgary there would be a grand procession from the Rockies to the Atlantic and 2,000 miles out on its depths—if it were possible to extend the rails on the ocean—and that is two-thirds of the watery way to the Old Country. The 5,000-mile parade would practically reach around one-fifth of the globe. The distance from Calgary to Montreal is 2,351 miles, and the run would occupy four and a quarter days. If the cars were unloaded promptly, the first train could reach Calgary on the return trip two days before the last one had been dispatched east.

Each car carrying 40 tons, the total capacity of the new cars would be half a million tons, more than enough cargo for fifty ships of the largest cargo-carrying type in the world, which have a capacity of 10,000 tons.

The motive power of the 300 new locomotives aggregates 450,000 h.p.—enough to run 64 Angus shops, the largest of their kind in Canada, or the machinery of factories that would keep nearly four hundred thousand persons employed.

The trains themselves, with the "runs" averaging, say, 125 miles between divisional points, would require seventeen crews of five men each, between Calgary and Montreal, a total of 85 men and the 250 trains would need an army of trainmen, 21,250 strong, if each crew were to make only a single "run."

And this is but one purchase of the C.P.R. When one enters upon calculations about this year's entire freight equipment, some 65,000 cars, on a similar basis as that mentioned — a 20-mile-an-hour train hourly—a good deal of arithmetic has to be indulged in. They would make up into 1,300 trains, and it would occupy nearly eight weeks between the departure of the first and the last of them from a given point. They would stretch out 26,000 miles, and encircle the globe at the equator, where Mother Earth swells out to her largest circumference—25,000 miles. They would reach across the continent of North America, from Halifax to Vancouver, over seven times. And they would have a carrying capacity of 2,700,000 tons, on the one trip, and with last year's equipment over twenty-two and a half millions of tons were carried during the year.

All of this shows that the C.P.R.'s equipment is something colossal and that its $19,000,000 purchase means a great deal more than appears on the face of it.

The Standard Baby

"Isn't Johnny a big boy!" you exclaim, and then you guess his age to be two years more than it actually is. That is a compliment that makes a mother proud and happy. Unconsciously she lays claim to an extra share of the world's gratitude if her children are above the average in size and health.

But sometimes they are not above the average in those respects; the fond mother only thinks so. Here are some standards, therefore, with which she may compare her child to find if he is above or below average Average height at birth is 20½ in., chest measurement 13½ in., and head 14 in. When one year old average height is 29 inches, chest is 18 inches and head 18 inches. At three years of age the height is 33 inches, chest twenty inches and head 12½ inches.

It is most important to weigh the baby every week for the first six months, for the gain in flesh is a good indication as to whether or not the child is thriving. At the end of the first week there will probably be a slight loss, which should be regained during the second week. After this there should be a weekly gain of from four to six ounces until the child is six months of age. During the next six months the rate of increase should be from two to four ounces each week. After the first year an annual gain of four or five pounds is all that should be expected until nine or ten years of age.

If the baby is not up to standard in weight, what should be done? Perhaps consult a doctor or change the food.
