Clearing Land By Machinery---Board of Trade Accept the Mayor's Invitation to See Plant in Operation

At Tuesday night's meeting of the Board of Trade Mayor Lindmark extended an invitation to the members, their wives and sweethearts to see the steam plant which is operating south of the city in clearing land for settlement, so on Thursday morning the following availed themselves of the invitation and mustered at the city hall: Messrs. W, Bews, C. R. Macdonald, McKinnon. Watson, McLennan, Lawrence, Allen, McKenzie, Briggs, Sibbald, Young, Pratt and Haggen. The party, accompanied by the mayor, was driven out to the property formerly owned by P. Burns & Co, on the south side of the Illecilliwaet, about a mile and a half south of the city as the crow flies. This property consists of 80 acres, and was recently purchased by Arthur Johnson. Twelve years ago the standing timber had been removed from it, leaving a mass of stumps. The soil is a rich alluvial deposit, and the problem was to get rid of these stumps that the land might be cleared and made available for cultivation. Mr. Lindmark being interested in land on the west side of the river, where he had purchased the Wright estate, when at the Coast went to see the extensive land clearing operations and experiments being carried on by the C. P. R. There he was impressed with the success of steam logging engines as implied to the stumping of land, and purchased one, which he brought to Revelstoke and set it to work on the land south of the city.

The plant has been at work about two weeks and has proved a thorough success. The members of the Board were astonished at the marvellous way in which the plant handles the largest stumps. It pulls them out of the ground, as it by magic, hauls them to a central point and hoists them up on to a pile ready for burning.

THE PLANT

consists of a 60 h.p. vertical boiler and engine fitted to a double reversing hoisting drum. A travelling cable is anchored to stumps, and this guides the main cable. A derrick is raised and the main cable passes through a pully at the top and is then attached to the travelling cable. The main cable is attached to the stump to be extracted, the power applied, and the stump, with very rare exceptions, immediately yields and comes up with its roots almost entire. It is then hauled to the derrick and raised on the pile ready for burning, when the pile is completed. The cable is automatically released and travels back to where it is required for the next stump.

AN ACRE A DAY

is the record of stumping with this machine, and it is a remarkable result. The plant will extract, haul and pile at the derrick a stump in four minutes on an average. The regularity, reliability and thoroughness with which the plant does its work is a pleasure to see. The smaller roots are taken out by horses, a team being employed following up the stumping plant at this work, so that the land is left ready for cultivation. The cost of operation where the plant is working makes it undoubtedly the most economic means of clearing land ever introduced in the district. It takes five men to operate the engine and stumping plant and another five men are engaged clearing up and doing the extra work following the operation of the plant.

THE SOCIAL SIDE.

The Mayor then entertained the visitors with tea and cake provided by Mrs L. Marseau after which the president and vice-president of the Board felt so refreshed they gave an exhibition of their wrestling powers, the stumping machines having left a soft place to fall. Honors were with the vice-president.

The president, Mr. W. M. Lawrence, on behalf of the Board, said they had to thank Mayor Lindmark for bringing them out and showing them what capital and energy could do. The enterprise shown in bringing in this stumping plant and clearing up their lands should be appreciated by the citizens generally. It was a great thing for their city and district. He moved a hearty vote of thanks to the mayor. (Cheers.)

Mr. F. H. Young seconded the motion, and in doing so said this trip had been a treat to every-one.

Mr. J. P. McLennan: It is an eye-opener allright

The mayor said they were all interested, directly or indirectly, in the opening up and settlement of their country. If they could get their land cleared at reasonable cost and settled they need not care what else might or might not take place He complimented the Board on the life and energy they were putting into their work and on the good results that were being obtained therefrom. This was not the time to make a speech as the stumping plant which they had seen in operation spoke louder than words. (Cheers).

L. Marseau, formerly with the Revelstoke Sawmill Company, is in charge of the plant. The visitors were loud in their praises of Mrs. Marseau's cookery, and returned to town delighted with the trip and demonstration of practical progress accorded them.

THE LADIES TAKE A TRIP.

In the afternoon the wives and friends of members of the Board, who had accepted the Mayor's invitation, went out to see the stumping plant. The party embraced Mesdames Lawrence, Haggen, Hay, Sibbald, Allen, Watson, McLennan, Johnson, Bews, and Misses Corley, and Watson.

After spending an hour looking over the plant and its operation the ladies were entertained at tea and refreshments after which Mr. Haggen proposed the health of the ladies.

Mr. Watson, who was chairman of the gathering, said this stumping plant was one of the best things that had ever been introduced into the district and was doing a work that would be of great value to their city. He was very pleased to be a citizen of Revelstoke. His family and he had enjoyed their residence here very much and had appreciated the nice social times they had had since coming here. The Mayor, who had taken a very active part in this work, was doing the right thing in getting the ladies interested. Now it was demonstrated the experiment was a success, it would be still more successful if a progressive movement of this kind had the support of the ladies. In the days when he was in politics he never thought he could win an election unless he felt assured the ladies were on his side. (cheers and laughter). He moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Marseau for the splendid refreshments with which she had provided them, and the ladies carried it, saying nice things about the bread and cakes placed before them.

Mr. Watson then proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Mayor for the treat he had provided for them. He could assure them that in his position he was determined to do his utmost to push ahead the settlement of the country along right lines, and such work as Mr. Lindmark was doing had his appreciation and recognition. (Cheers.)

Mrs. Sibbald seconded the vote. She thanked their gallant Mayor for the nice drive they had had as well as the refreshments provided She could assure them the ladies looked forward to the time when this valley would be covered with smiling homes and blossoming fruit-trees. (Cheers.)

The ladies then rose and sang for the Mayor "For he's a jolly good fellow." The party drove back to town, reaching the city about 5:30 p.m.

THREE VALLEY THEFT CASE

On Wednesday evening before R. Gordon, S.M., Wm. Swanson was charged on the information of E. N. Hallock with stealing $50, the property of the Mundy Subply Co., at Three Valley.

G S. McCarter appeared for the informant and C. E, Gillan for accused. The accused wished the matter dealt with by Mr. Gordon, so as not to have it hanging over, and this being contrary to Mr. Gillan's advice for trial before a higher court, Mr. Gillan withdrew from the case, so that accused appeared undefended.

Mr. McCarter said the information as sworn by Mr. Mundy before Mr. Foster, charged with stealing from the Mundy Lumber Company. Mr. Foster had made a mistake as it should be the Mundy Supply Co., and he asked to substitute an amended information sworn by Mr. Hallock.

E. N. Hallock, manager Mundy Supply Co., said accused was book-keeper and assisted in store and post-office at salary of $80 per month. Left on Sept. 17th, being dismissed for incompetency. On 16th was checking balance-sheet and told accused would leave it till following morning so he could get away on 10 o'clock train. He appeared to assent. At 10 p.m. Lawrence and accused came upstairs and stated they had made out statement and balanced cash. Accused had access to Supply Co's cash drawer. Had not gone into accused's personal account intending to do that next morning On opening store next morning, enquired for Swanson and found he had gone presumably to Revelstoke, where he was supposed to go to the hospital. Mundy went to Revelstoke to look up Swanson, and if he could not get the money back to have him arrested. Accused left statement showing he had taken $50 from Mundy Supply Co. Accused was not entitled to the money.

Witness here amended his former evidence to the effect that accused was not to leave the company's employ till the ten o'clock train next day.

Accused said that not having been found fault with he considered he was entitled to a month's notice.

In reply to a question by accused, witness said Mundy told him to get rid of him as soon as possible. Did not inform accused he was incompetent.

Accused: I simply took my own wages.

Mr. Hallock: Did you have authority?

Accused: No, but I asked you that night to square up our accounts.

Witness: I told you I was too tired that night and we would leave it till the morning.

Accused: I considered I was entitled to a month's notice. I offered to remain another day to fix up the trial balance.

Witness: Yes,

Accused: I left that morning to catch the train for Halcyon as I was in bad health.

Informant: The reason we had him stay till the 16th was because that was one of the days when the post office reports have to be made up after the day's business.

Accused gave evidence stating he took the money believing he was entitled to it, as he considered he was entitled to a month's notice. Hence he made an entry in the cash account for September of the sum of $50, which was the net amount of a month's wages after deducting his board, If he acted wrongly he was willing to repay it. Having balanced the post-office account and handed over the Supply Co's. cash to the store manager he believed he was free to leave by the 5.30 train. which he discovered made the connection with the south train for the Halcyon Sulphur Baths, to which he required to go for health reasons. Had intended entering hospital at Revelstoke and took ticket for here. Went and returned quite openly without any fear that he had done anything wrong. Met Mundy at Revelstoke.

To Mr. McCarter: When I met Mundy at Revelstoke station he said "I want that $50 back Swanson." I replied "I don't think you are entitled to it." Don't remember exact words. Did not turn away from him. He said: "I'll lock you up." I replied: "All right sir." Told Mr. Dickson I was going to Revelstoke. Don't know whether Mr Lawrence saw the memo on entry of the money due me. Believe Mr. Hallock expected me to remain till 10 o'clock.

Mr. McCarter said the accused might have considered he was entitled to damages, but that was not the way to collect them. He submitted a prima facia case had been made out. A man hurt in the mill might as well go to the company's safe and take $500 and claim he was entitled to it, He was either a knave or a fool, and should not be at large.

Accused was committed for trial and on his applying for bail the magistrate said he had no power to grant it.

PUBLICITY

From F. J. Clarke, Secretary Bureau of Provincial Information.

Letter asked that copies of the report of the Board and supplies of literature describing the district and its resources and general information required by intending immigrants should be sent to the office of Hon. J. H. Turner, Agent-General in London for the province of British Columbia.

Mr. Allen said this was the most important matter that had come before them and they should get busy. They had no literature and had done nothing to advertise their resources in quarters which were likely to bring capital for the development of the country. That was the main thing. Of course it was a question of funds and the proper body to provide the cost of this work was the City Council as it was a work from which the city as a whole would derive the principal benefit. He moved that they apply to the City Council for a grant of $2,500 for the purpose, and that a committee be appointed to canvass the city to ascertain how much money will be publicly subscribed in addition; such committee to wait on the Council at next meeting and show the Mayor and aldermen what the citizens themselves were prepared to do.

Mr. McLennan seconded the motion.

The Mayor said the city could not afford to give that amount this year and suggested the matter be taken up with the new council at the beginning of the year, with a view to getting assistance to an extent likely to meet their requirements. He appreciated the work the Board was doing and was always prepared to help them in any reasonable way.

The following committees were appointed to canvass the various wards for subscriptions to a publicity fund and to wait on the City Council as a whole:

Ward 1, Messrs. Allen and McLennan; Ward 2, Messrs. Hume and Lawrence; Ward 3, Messrs. Haggen and Fraser.

Mr. Bews urged the value to the city of proper publicity. At present it was impossible to get the information asked for in proper form.

Mr. Fraser pointed out the work done in other parts of the province in this direction and the results obtained from it. Other cities supplied the boards of trade with the funds required for this work.

The motion then carried.

MAIL SERVICE

Severe criticism was made of the mail service at Revelstoke and the time of clearing the boxes through the city. It was also stated the boxes at the station are not cleared for trains Nos. 1 and 2.

It was resolved to lay these complaints before the post office inspector and ask they be remedied.

REVELSTOKE'S AWAKENING

Events have moved rapidly within the past few weeks pointing to a new era of progress and prosperity for Revelstoke. A good understanding has been arrived at with the head officials of the C.P.R. and that company, with its unsurpassed means of publicity, has thrown its whole force into advertising the attractions and resources of Revelstoke and district. The Company have also given their assurance that the railway workshops will be again placed in position to handle the whole of the mechanical repair work of the division. This means the employment of between 200 and 300 men in the shops—the largest force ever yet employed here by the railway company.

The Provincial Government have set out in earnest to open up the country by roads, and have promised Revelstoke a new Court House and public building which shall be in every respect worthy of the city. The Dominion Government has promised that the Post Office and Dominion Departments building shall be started next spring and pushed to completion. Several firms have announced their intention of putting in wholesale establishments and and making Revelstoke the base for the supply of the whole of the interior of British Columbia. The bridge across the Columbia will be completed early in the winter and will be a valuable aid to the opening up of the country on the west side of the Columbia river. The completion of the Revelstoke-Arrowhead road is now promised at an early date, thus opening up a large and valuable tract of land immediately tributary to this city. The road between the Okanagan Valley and Revelstoke will be completed this season with the exception of seventeen miles, and as this can be carried through next season, Revelstoke will, for the first time, have a road connecting the city with the outside world.

The Eagle Pass route will be one of the most attractive resorts of tourists to be found in the province, and should bring thousands of people yearly to the city. It is a great fishing ground and we should like to see an organisation in Revelstoke to stock the streams and lakes annually with young fish and make these local angling resorts the greatest attraction to sportsmen in British Columbia. The results will be worth the effort. The mountain resorts are being opened up to tourists, and the sooner trails are built to Mounts Begbie, McArthur, McKenzie, Cartier, Clach-na-Cooden and the beautiful parks to the north of the Eagle Pass, the sooner will Revelstoke become the established centre of the tourist traffic of the mountains. This tourist traffic, if properly developed, is destined to employ an immense population, and will bring in a larger return than all the farm and orchard products of the province. The development of the lumber industry, the addition of new factories and industries, the opening up of the land around the city, are features of progress which are assuming definite shape, and will ere long make Revelstoke the metropolis of the interior of British Columbia — The Spokane of the Pacific Province.

INVEST AT HOME

For some time it has been a current view in financial circles that there would be a reaction in the Vancouver land boom, and the reaction has come. Shrewd, far-seeing men, advised their friends to get out of that class of investment as it has amounted at best to a gamble, and now it is found that scores of thousands of dollars have been obtained from innocent buyers on the representation and in the belief that lots sold were valuable as suburban property. The fictitiousness of the dream is being realised.

Right in Revelstoke dozens of people have been roped into these bogus land speculations, and now they find to their cost that their hard earnings are thrown away. We do not disparage in any way Vancouver city investments. Inside property in Vancouver is and always will be good, but the horde of real estate agents who flocked to Vancouver from all parts of the world, had to get a living somehow, and many of them got it by acquiring outlying areas, subdividing them and putting them on the market as suburban land.

The city of Revelstoke and every town and village in the district, every railway camp and every lumber camp was flooded with the agents of these sharks seeking whom they might devour, and hesitating not in their unscrupulous work of misleading people into placing their hard-earned dollars where they were worse than wasted. The Vancouver land boom has run its course and many have learned its bitter lesson. People have come to us and told us of their experiences. They realise how true it is that the far-off hills look green, and wish they had invested in their home town of Revelstoke where lots are at no fictitious price, where rents are high and good returns are always to be got from building investments; where rural and suburban land is comparatively low in price, and yields good and sure returns. Revelstoke is coming into its own and this city and district afford better opportunities to the wage-earner to-day than ever Vancouver did, or can offer in the future to men of small means.

A PROGRESSIVE ENTERPRISE

The invitation extended by Meyor Lindmark to the members of the Board of Trade, their wives and friends, to witness the most up-to-date methods of clearing land for cultivation and settlement was one of the most interesting incidents seen in Revelstoke for a long time. It marked a new era in the history of Revelstoke. It is understood more of these machines will be brought in and set to work on the forest lands around the city so that the country will rapidly assume a new phase, and in place of blackened stumps and unused lands, we shall have happy homes, occupied by industrious families, cultivating the soil, planting out gardens and orchards, establishing dairy and poultry farms and contributing to the wealth and development of the district. It is a great and progressive work, and the city is to be congratulated on the fact that it possesses men of the grit, foresight and enterprise to do these things, which are a permanent good and lasting blessing to the whole community.

TIEING UP THE COUNTRY

The mining laws of the Province are weak in one point. Under existing conditions it is possible for owners of mines to tie up a camp, ruin the town built in connection with it, and practically expropriate the property of others. They can shut down their mine, refuse to operate it themselves or let anyone else operate it, and cause untold hardship and suffering. This has actually happened in the district. We refer to the Camborne camp. There is no locality in British Columbia where there are more bona fide mineral resources. The mines are equipped with tramways and stamp mills all ready for operation. But they do not operate. The controllers hold these properties for fictitious prices, the benefit of which the shareholders will never get. The big end of the prices put on these properties, if they are sold, will go to a few men on the inside, and we are afraid it is these inside men who are the cause of these properties being held up as they are. We have assurances from a reliable New York syndicate that they were ready to take and operate the Eva and Oyster-Criterion mines for instance. They were willing to pay a fair price. The controllers, however, would give no option and verbal assurances were relied on. The proposed buyers went to the trouble to get their end of the business in shape and hoped to close the arrangement when, to their astonishment, a raise was made in the price—not for the benefit of the shareholders, but for the inside men. The result is to blackeye British Columbia mining investments among the group of capitalists who were interested, and to injure the camp itself as well as the men who have invested their money there and in the town of Camborne.

This kind of a thing constitutes a public wrong which the arm of the law should be powerful enough to remedy. In several British constitutions mining property cannot be held in such a way as to tie up the country. It must be operated, or extensions secured for bona fide reasons, and then only for a reasonably short time. When a company or proprietor ceases to operate a mineral property it reverts to the Crown and is open for re-location and operation by others. This is as it should be. The Crown granting of mineral claims in British Columbia is the obstacle to such a means of regulating mineral properties in this province, but the owners of non-operating properties can be got at another way, and that is by increasing the taxation on developed and equipped non-operating properties such as those at Camborne, to an extent to make the holding of them unprofitable. The taxation, too, should be based on the price at which they are held and not on the assessment. Here is a problem for the Minister of Mines to tackle and work out. It will have to be faced, and that soon.

HOME MERCHANT AND CONSUMER

In last issue we urged that the citizens of Revelstoke should be loyal to their town and make their purchases at home. We are aware an impression is abroad that the cost of living is higher in Revelstoke than in other B. C. towns. This is, however, a mistake. People who have lived in different towns tell us that, with the exception of Vancouver, Revelstoke is as economical a town to live in as any of them.

Then as to the prices charged by local merchants, cases have come under our observation where persons requiring to furnish a home have compared prices in Vancouver with the prices ruling here with the result that they have come to the conclusion they could save money by buying here and have done so. There are a few lines to which exception might be taken, but the merchants of Revelstoke are revising these, and are determined to meet all outside competition and bring about that Revelstoke shall be the most economical town in the west in which to make a home.

The fact of wholesale houses opening here will also have a good effect in keeping prices on an economic basis, as it will result in goods being shipped in by large quantities, as carload lots, so that the best freight rates can be got. Few people who order goods from outside points consider the cost of freight and remittances, and it is probable that in ninety cases out of a hundred when these are considered Revelstoke buyers would have saved money by purchasing at home. We suggest to our readers that if they know of cases where goods can be bought and landed here at less than charged by the local merchant, that merchant should be advised of the fact that he may have a chance to remedy the defect in his price list.

We can assure our readers that local merchants would accept such a hint as a kindness, and would appreciate it as such. We have discussed this matter with them. They feel it their duty to Revelstoke to supply at the best possible prices, and we are satisfied that they will do so. Let us all pull together to build up Revelstoke, to buy all we want at home, to get prices on a basis to compete with any other point, and to make Revelstoke the best and most economical town to live in in the west. It can be done, and it is the duty of consumer as well as merchant to each help the other in bringing this condition about.

MURDERED AT NANAIMO

The Murderer Has Been Arrested---Wife of Murdered Man Tells All---Accused Committed for Trial

Gus Carlson, a miner, was killed in his house on Haliburton street on the 13th.

As the result of the evidence at the inquest the police arrested the wife of the murdered man and later her paramour, a young man named Holmes.

The fiends responsible for the deed had evidently stunned him, and then, as he lay unconscious, had tied a slipping rope around his neck. The rope had first been drawn tightly around the neck of Carlson by a noose and then for the rest of its length, about eight feet, coiled as tightly as it could be pulled around the neck. The man had been strangled, and strangled in the most brutal manner.

Neighbors were attracted to the Carlson cottage by the screams of Mrs. Carlson, who was found tied to her bed. She declared that her husband had gotten out of bed to investigate a noise in another room, and shortly thereafter two men had entered her bedroom, and after robbing her of all the money in the house, had bound and gagged her. She succeeded in removing the gag soon after the alleged robbers departed, she claimed, and then called for assistance.

Holmes, the day after the murder, told Miss Annie Hoult, Mrs. Carlson's sister, that "it was a good thing somebody killed that——, or I would have done it myself."

The World's correspondent writes:—"Have you not suffered long enough?" asked William Holmes, when Mrs. Carlson, hearing the blow which killed her husband, exclaimed: "Oh Will, why have you done that?"

Slowly dripping out her knowledge of her husband's death, word by word, the wife of the murdered man fastened the imputation of guilt on the young fellow who, clearly wrought up to a pitch of nervous tension, stood in the prisoners' dock of the grimy and grim old court house where Nanaimo has heard so many tragedies unfolded.

Mrs. Carlson's account was the same as she had at first given until she reached the point where she heard a noise. This time, however, she said the thud which aroused her was in the bedroom, not out in the kitchen, where, according to her previous story her husband had gone to chase out a neighbor's cat, which had wakened them up.

She jumped to the foot of the bed, exclaiming, "Oh, my God."

There was a form in the doorway, and the next thing she was stunned by a blow over the head It was when she regained consciousness that she asked Holmes why he had done it. She did not see Carlson's body removed Carlson never moved or spoke after he was struck.

Holmes said he would tie her up and take her husband's money. The former he did and the latter she thought he did.

The most dramatic moment of the trial was when Mrs. Carlson was asked to identify the prisoner. Both woman and man were visibly moved.

Mrs Carlson, besides the change in her story, directly stating that Holmes was the man who struck Carlson, also testified to bad feeling existing between the men.

Holmes, she said, had visited the house on Monday morning, the day of the crime

He asked her how she was feeling. She replied not very good. He then asked her if Carlson had been ill-using her. She replied "No."

He declared he would do for him, but she asked him to let him alone.

Here the motive for the crime was laid bare. Other witnesses also spoke of it.

Mrs. Carlson's sister said Holmes had told her that Carlson had threatened to kill Holmes, and the latter in his turn had threatened to kill Carlson. She also spoke to hearing Carlson in the house on Saturday morning. She heard Holmes say that it was time he was finished, and he would do for him.

Her sister said "leave him alone." She did not know who the "he" was, but supposed it was Carlson whose name was mentioned.

Mrs. DeCour, a new witness, also testified to overhearing a quarrel at the time that Holmes boarded with Carlson's. The latter told Holmes to get out of the house, and threatened if he ever came back he would shoot him. Holmes replied that he had better be careful or he (Holmes) might get the drop on him first.

The morning after the murder Holmes saw Mrs. Carlson at Barton's house. She said it was a bad business. He made no remark. Holmes accompanied Miss Hoult down the street when he left. He remarked that those who had murdered Carlson had saved him from doing it.

Mrs. Carlson swears it was Holmes who came into her bedroom and bound her, and to the evidence of the ill feeling existing between the two men.

Miss Hoult testified also that in spite of Carlson's threat Holmes used to visit her sister once or twice a week and always when Carlson was out.

Holmes was committed for trial.

Sunday's Lecture

An appreciative audience greeted Walter W. Baer at the Opera House Sunday evening to hear his lecture on Psychic Forces and Phenomena. The address consisted of a well arrangep series of descriptive illustrations of the operations of the mental powers. Mr. W. Baer's lecture was purely scientific and had neither religious or irreligious significance. At its close a number of questions were asked by members of the audience all of which were answered by Mr. Baer to the satisfaction of his hearers.

Another address is announced for next Sunday to be held in the Edison Parlor Theatre. The subject will be "The Whirling Wheels or the Allegorical Bicycle." Mr Baer explains that bicycle as a mechanical contrivance lends itself more readily to the allegorical expression of the essential tenets and principles of Christianity than any other human creation, and he will endeavor to justify his conclusion.
