BLOOD SPILT IN CHASE

Pursuit of Train Robbers Ends in Shooting of Constable Decker and One Outlaw—Second Man Fled.

ASHCROFT, B. C., June 30, 2 p. m.—Pursuit of robbers still going on, but bloodhounds cannot pick up trail of murderer. Yesterday's story about the cornering of the robbers in Red Gulch turned out to be fiction. Close watch is being kept on all highways, and specials are scouring the country side in every direction.

Coroner's inquest and postmortem to be held this afternoon on the bodies of the slain Constable Decker and the robber. The boat used by the robbers held thirty sticks of dynamite wrapped up in blankets and a large quantity of ammunition in a suit case. No means of identification by letters could be found in the valise and no marks were found on his clothes, which were of superior quality.

Death stalks in the footsteps of the train robbers now. The corpse of one lies in Ashcroft, killed by an officer of the law in the execution of his duty, and the hangman's rope awaits his companion who shot special constable Decker at Ashcroft on Monday evening last. None of the train robbers have been captured alive as yet, but death has sealed the doom of one and its shadows hover around the fugitive footsteps of the other.

The story of Decker's death is that of a hero who did not flinch in the hour of trial, but died bravely executing the duty that had been laid upon him. It was about 8 o'clock on Monday evening last that Standing on the bank of the Thompson river a short distance above Ashcroft he saw two men in a boat pull into the shore and try to make a landing. Their movements looked suspicious to him, and he called to them and told them to stand. Immediately one replied, "Take me if you can," and pulling a revolver from beneath his coat, before Decker had time to breathe he fired The bullet struck Decker in the side and seeing the kind of men he had to deal with he promptly raised his rifle and shot the villain through the throat. He dropped, but his companion at once raised a shotgun he carried and fired at Decker with fatal effect. The shot tore up his face and he fell mortally wounded.

Some men standing on the bridge below heard the firing and rushed up to find the body of Decker and that of the outlaw lying not far apart upon the river bank, and in the confusion of the moment Decker's murderer escaped. Decker was taken into Ashcroft, where he died at midnight.

Yesterday the news of the shooting got abroad and as a consequence the country around Ashcroft is up in arms. Everybody is on the watch and it will be little short of a miracle if the outlaw should escape. As the most authentic descriptions obtainable show that three men were engaged in the hold-up, it is evident that one must have been separated from his companions before the boat reached Ashcroft. It was a report that three men had been seen in a boat at Penny's that caused Decker to be on the watch.

The identity of the dead outlaw is unknown to anyone around Ashcroft, but that he must have been one of the train robbers everybody feels certain. He bears the earmarks of the trade, and it is quite uncertain that none but desperadoes of the worst kind would attempt such murderous acts in their endeavors to escape. It seems quite sure from reasonable deduction that the men who did the shooting are the men wanted for the hold-up. They were coming down the river from the direction of Kamloops, they had escaped in a boat, they were armed for resistance, and when challenged did not hesitate to shoot.

Now that one of their number has added to the crime of robbery that of murder, efforts to capture him will no doubt be redoubled. The reward that Decker should have had may go to another, but his memory will be honored. In the meantime it is evident that those in pursuit of his murderer have no light task, for with the gallows gaping before him, he will naturally be reckless of how much blood he may spill henceforth

The dead robber has been identified as resembling the man who ordered the engineer to stop at Ducks. About thirty pounds of dynamite was found in the boat out of which the robbers came. This is thought either to have been left over from the last attempt or to have been kept for some future escapade.

SPORTING NOTES

Last night the Intermediate baseball team defeated the Businessmen in a very one-sided game. J. Hume was on the firing line for the Businessmen and considering that this was his first time out this year, he did well. F. Sinclair was doing the pitching for the Intermediates and the Businessmen found it hard to hit him safe. Score ended 16-3.

To-night the North Stars play the Schools in the junior baseball league. The schoolboys are playing better ball lately and they expect to put it over the Stars as they did the Beavers last Wednesday. The Stars are now ahead of the league and are sure to put up a strong game.

Moving Pictures tonight.

BOARD MEETS MINISTERS

Several Important Matters are Brought Forward

A deputation from the local Board of Trade waited on Premies McBride and Hon. Thos. Taylor at the Revelstoke Hotel on Saturday evening to press upon them several matters of local urgency.

The first matter brought forward was the establishment of a land registry office at Revelstoke. J. D. Sibbald cited many instances of unnecessary delay which had occurred through people from the district being forced to deal with the Nelson land registry office.

The Premier replied that at present a great deal of work was being done in the registry office at Nelson, but if there were any neglect in the matter of office work the Government would give it their immediate attention. If the business of the Revelstoke district warranted the establishment of a registry office the Government must carry it into effect. He asked Mr. Sibbald to write him giving full details of what was needed and he would do what he could.

The second question asked was as to to the establishment of a judicial circuit on the main line with Revelstoke as the centre. W. M. Lawrence explained what was the matter complained of so far as Revelstoke was concerned.

The Premier said that a change and readjustment of circuits could only be brought about by act of Parliament. It would mean a great deal of work and changing and the department at Ottawa might complain At the same time if it worked a real hardship and the Board could prove its case the Government might legislate to bring about the change suggested.

In regard to the request for a ferry at the confluence of the Canoe and Columbia rivers, Hon. Mr. Taylor stated that it was already being installed, and further than that cabins were being built for the convenience of travellers between Boat Encampment and Tete Jaune Cache.

Speaking of the condition of the Big Bend road Mr. Taylar said the recent freshets were responsible for the damage that had been done. It was practically impossible to maintain the road in that particular place. It was practically impossible to maintain the road in that particular place. It would cost the Government over $4,000 to keep it there.

Several of the deputation pointed out that the present condition of the road it was impossible for any great development to take place in the Big Bend country.

"I am well aware of the necessity of access to the Big Bend," said the premier, "but unless the traffic war rants it such a large expenditure cannot be made." He added, however, that he would keep the matter in mind and do what he could towards meeting the request of the board.

Hon. Mr. Taylor, questioned as to the expediency of putting in concrete instead of wooden piers for the new traffic bridge over the Columbia, said that personally he had always avored concrete rather than woodenf piers, though the contract called for the latter. The government had decided to put in concrete, but the board of trade had asked for wooden piers rather than wait for the delay that must arise from change of plan.

The premier said that concrete piers would cost over $17,000, but he hoped that once the bridge was completed it would be in such a way that it would stand.

Mayor Lindmark asked if the government could not undertake the construction of the road from Revelstoke to Mara.

"I don't think it necessary at all," said the premier, "as there is no traffic to warrant such a heavy expenditure as that would entail." He continued that they should first get in the bridge and they could then take time to think about the road. He would back Mr. Taylor in all development work that would aid the city, but he considered this road was unnecessary just now.

The deputation thanked the premier for his kind hearing and retired.

SHELDO IS BROUGHT BACK

Was Captured Near Calgary by Mounted Police—Denies His Guilt — Remanded Till Saturday.

John Sheldo, the Italian who is wanted here on a charge of attempting to murder Frank Orsetti last Saturday a week ago, was captured near Calgary by the Mounted Police and brought back to the city by Chief Bain yesterday morning. After his return Officer Bain received a telegram from Calgary saying that they had arrasted another Italian, whom they believed, from the description given, to be the accomplice of Sheldo.

Last Saturday a report came to the Mounted Police in Calgary that a man answering the description of Sheldo had been seen walking along the C. P. R. tracks eastward from the town. The Mounted Police gave chase, and about fifteen miles out saw a man who crept under a culvert when they came in sight. They arrested him there and brought him back to Calgary. Chief Bain was notified and went out on Saturday night. Sheldo admitted that he had been present when the cutting was done, but said it was the other fellow that used the knife.

The man alleged to have been Sheldo's accomplice was seen in Calgary with him, and Chief Bain spent a day there hunting for him, but had to return as Falzetti, who is being tried as an accessory, was to come up for hearing before Police Magistrate Foster this morning. Chief Bain will leave for Calgary to bring back the other man as soon as he receives a photograph so that he will be sure he is not going on a wild goose chase.

Sheldo came up before Magistrate Foster this morning, but, by request of Mr. Gillan, counsel for defence, the hearing was adjourned till Saturday. By request of the prosecution, the charge against Joe Falzetti of being an accomplice, was adjourned to the same date. In the meantime Falzetti is allowed out on $400 bail in two sureties of $200 each.

Two Fatal Accidents

A workman named J. Sissons died in Victoria Hospital on Monday night as a result of injuries received while working in the mill of the Big Bend Lumber Company at Arrowhead. He became entangled in some machinery and was badly crushed. He was brought here on the train on Monday afternoon and taken to the hospital, but never recovered consciousness. His death occurred before midnight. The body was removed to Howson's unpertaking rooms, and an inquest will be held by the coroner, Dr. Hamilton, this evening. The witnesses from the mill are expected to arrive this afternoon. Sissons was a married man with a wife living in Cranbrook.

The second victim was Joe Posel, a foreigner employed in the Eddy mill. Yesterday morning he fell thirty-five feet from a jack ladder on which he was working, his head striking on the logs below. The ambulance was called and he was brought into the hospital unconscious. He never rallied, and death occurred during the night. Dr. Hamilton pronounced the man's skull to have been fractured by the fall. Inquiries as to the cause of death are being made. Posel was a new man here and very little known.

DOMINION DAY

To-morrow, the Dominion of Canada will have completed forty-two years of its history. On July 1, 1897, the four provinces of Quebec, Ontario, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick were brought into existence as a confederation by the British North America Act, and a few years later Prince Edward Island joined the union. The population at that time consisted of about 3,000,000 people scattered along the Atlantic seaboard, down the valley of the St. Lawrence and along the shores of the great lakes. Since then the map of Canada has been unrolled to the westward, population more than doubled, and a fringe of settlement spread along the international boundary from the Atlantic to the Pacific. To-day the map is still unrolling towards the north, Canada is growing in breadth as well as length, the wealth of the plains and forests and the mountains of the beyond is being gradually unveiled, settlement is rolling from the Peace to the Mackenzie, and Babine and Omineca are becoming names familiar to the white man's child.

It is said that Canada is the land of the twentieth century. She may become very much more. From the dawn of history the movement of empire has been towards the west and north, and Canada on the map of the globe to-day is the ultimate rule of that northwestern destiny. The misty and ancient records of China, the buried cities of India and Ceylon, the mouldering obelisks of Egypt, show that civilization had its birth in the far east and in the tropic zone. The crown of empire moved northward to Assyria and westward to Persia till the Greeks defeated Cyrus and shifted the scene to Europe. From Greece it moved to Rome, from whom it was wrestled by the northern Goths. Out of the chaos of its ruin in later years arose the empire of Charlemagne. For some centuries the boundaries of empire moved like a dissolving scene on the map of Europe. Now Henry the Fifth, of England, now Charles of Spain, now Napoleon the Great, was triumphant, till at last it found its abiding place in the British Isles.

Britain has sent forth her sons to the four corners of the earth, not to found new nations to wrest her glory from her, but rather to grow as sons and daughters into the proper inheritance of the greatness that is hers. And when as Macaulay says, "the sceptre shall have passed from England and commerce and civilization have fixed their thrones in lands now distant and remote," may not Canada, her brow bound with the Aurora as with a diadem, her feet bazed solidly on the friendship of the sister nation to the south, her hands grasping the commerce of Asia from the west and of Europe from the east, lie the greatest in a world where the tiger passions of men have been muzzled and peace and common sense reign at last; and when the strife and carnage of the first great acts of the universal drama have been played on the scenes of three preceding continents may not her children be actors in the fourth and perhaps the greatest and the last.

C. N. R. AND G. T. P.

The report comes from Ottawa that the Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways, has laid over for further consideration the application of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company for a charter to build from the Yellowhead Pass to Vancouver along almost exactly the same route as that already covered by the plans of the Canadian Northern Railway Company, which were approved in February last. That the minister has good reason to think seriously before granting another application for the same route no one who understands the situation at all can doubt. According to the proposals submitted the two roads would come down on either side of the North Thompson river as far as Kamloops, and from Kamloops to Vancouver they would take exactly the same route, though diverging from the C. P. R. at Lytton and taking the south side of the Fraser to New Westminster.

Those who have ridden along the C. P. R. from Lytton to Yale and have noticed the remains of the old Cariboo road scoring the face of the cliff can easily imagine what a task it would be to build one railway there, and how practically impossible it would be to construct two on that narrow rocky scarp. The rocks rise with the slightest incline from the water's edge, and the amount of blasting it would entail would be enormous. Besides that, if one road were built, a second could not be laid alongside without shutting off all traffic on the first and wrecking its rails and roadbed.

It is then quite evident that if the G. T. P. wishes to get to Vancouver on a line of its own it must seek some other route, and here it is that the representations of the local board of trade may yet bear good fruit. It is of course possible that a compromise may be arrived at between the two companies by which both will agree to use the same line. On the other hand, there is the probability that a great transcontinental road the like G. T. P. would not care to be placed at the dictation of one of its strongest rivals. It is only natural to suppose that they would prefer to seek a new route and develop their own business along the line. Could they be induced to come down the Wood river and the Columbia valley to Revelstoke, they would find their feeders in that country rich in minerals and timber, and, passing from here to the Okanagan valley, they would command their share of fruit transportation, which in years to come will be a very considerable item in supplying the needs of the people settled on the prairie traveresd by their line.

With all these things considered the board of trade and other public bodies of Revelstoke have every reason to persist in their efforts to have the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway build through this valley.

John Houston, says the Victoria Times, has shaken the dust of Prince Rupert from his shoes (some maliciously inclined persons say, however, that the new metropolis of the north will never be troubled with the dust problem), has sold out the Empire, and will seek new political and advertising pastures in Texas or New Mexico. But John will never be happy away from British Columbia. We will give him six months or a year at the most, to find out that this is the only part of the world worth living in.

There was a vague hint of a possible railway policy that might bring on an election this year, in the speech delivered by Premier McBride in the Opera House on Saturday night. It was so delightfully indifinite, however, that it floated away in the cloud in which it came, and none of us is the wiser as to whether there will be a railway policy formulated or an election held this year or not.

Now that the city council is striking snags in installing its sewerage system it might be pertinent to ask whether these things were ever considered before the work was undertaken. If they were pointed out by those who prepared the plans, it was a penny-wise policy to take no action to obviate them. If they were not pointed out there must have been incopetency somewhere. In either case it is obvious that foresight would have been better than hindsight, and it is to be hoped that the authorities will profit by the lesson in any future work they may undertake.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Mr. Foster's Answer

Editor MAIL-HERALD.

SIR: Last week in reply to a communication sent me by a responsible party in the city, the Board of Police Commissioners, and published in the local press, I submitted certain facts to which I note the chairman of the board, the mayor, in a letter to the press has persona ly replied and with the object of misleading the public, contradicts certain statements in my letter.

In order therefore that there may be no misunderstanding, I repeat that every word in my communication was based upon affidavits in my possession and that no subterfuges or unmanly and ridiculous attempts to divert the issue, can relieve the mayor of his responsibility for failing to carry out the law relative to gambling, and for obstructing the enforcement of that relative to the illegal sale of liquor.

In regard to gambling, Mr. Lindmark instanced one case, and attempts to excuse his own failure to take action by stating I also had the same information that he had; this is, however, a wilful misstatement, as in this particular instance the mayor was advised by the party losing some two hundred and forty dollars in plenty of time for action to be taken against the show people, but, as a result of promises made him by the mayor, this party did not lay an information before me until the Monday following and then as is well known it was too late for anything to be done, as in the meantime through the kindly intervention of the mayor, the whole of the circus outfit had left. I state again this is the substance of the sworn statement made by the party the mayor himself refers to, and it has been recently supplemented by one from the same party, that the mayor has called him to his office since my firs letter appeared, and endeavored to induce him to sign another statement to the effect that he the complainant did not approach the mayor until the hour stated in the latter's letter 9.30 p.m., but he, the complainant, refused to do so.

Apart altogether from this case, however, I have absolute proof that about half past two in the afternoon, gambling was reported to the mayor by the police, and the mayor's reply was "not to do anything about it unless the people began to kick." And as Mr. Lindmark, unwilling now to take responsibility for his action attempts to deny it, by evasions and false statements concerning my letter I make the above statement plainly and with the full knowledge that it can be sustained before my tribunal.

Had I been apprised of any violation of the gambling laws it is perhaps unnecessary to say the same steps would have been taken as in the case of the illegal liquor selling, and it is to be surmised there might have been some very inconvenient disclosures.

Other portions of the reply to my communication are written upon a level to which I shall not descend, but the matter of the violation of the law by the circus people, with its peculiar attendant circumstances, being now, and very wisely under the circumstances, public property, the citizens are entitled to know exactly what took place, and although there may be further denials, and further attempts to evade and turn the issues, I rest in the assurance that I have submitted nothing that cannot be proved beyond the question of a doubt to any citizen of the town or any tribunal in the country.

Yours faithfully,
W. W. FOSTER
Police Magistrate

June 29, 1909.

Forestry Commission

The Forestry Commission as foreshadowed in the MAIL-HERALD a week ago, has now been officially appointed. As was stated then it will consist of Hon. F. J. Fulton, A. S Goodeve, M.P., and A. C. Flumerfelt, of Victoria. The commission will at once set to work collecting data concerning the timber resources of the province, and will gather information about timber holdings from every possible standpoint. They will make a special study of the problem of reforestration and the protection of forests from fire. They will also hear evidence on the the question of the perpetuity of titles to timber lands with a view to embodying it in legislation to be presented at the next session of the Legislature.

Skeletons Unearthed

Three old Indian coffins were unearthed by some men working in a brickyard near St. Boniface, Man., a few years ago. The coffins were rudely made of poplar boards and fell to pieces when struck by the scrapers and shovels, disclosing the skeletons in an almost perfect state of preservation. They had evidently been dressed in civilised clothing as fragments of bragments of broadcloth were found with brass buttons marked "Dominion of Canada Indians." Near each skeleton were cups, spoons and knives, some of the cups being filled with hazel nuts to feed the dead men on their way to the happy hunting grounds. Each warrior had also a little hand mirror laid by his side that he might present as smart an appearance as possible before the Great Spirit.

A lineman named Edward Moore while fixing electric light pole in Vancouver about a week ago slipped and fell with his feet on a high voltage wire. The shock of thousand volts burning his feet held him rigid until he was rescued by some fellow workmen. Except for bad burns in his hands and feet he is now all right again.

RECEPTION TO MINISTERS

Premier McBride and the Hon. Thos. Taylor Well Received —Hopeful Speeches — Premier Non.committal.

It was a message of hope and good cheer that the Premier and Minister of Public Works brought to the people of Revelstoke at the "smoker" given in their honor in the Opera House on Saturday night. They told of glowing prospects wherever they had been, and Hon Mr. Taylor backed his statements of the growth of the country with figures and facts.

"But, great as has been the prosperity of the past few years," he prophesied, "we are entering now on an era of progress greater than British Columbia has ever known ih the past."

The premier's speech contained a vague hint, but no certain promise of a railway policy which might precipitate an election. In telling how rapidly the needs of the country had grown, till the expenditure on public works reached $3,000,000, he said it had been found necessary to put the dedartment of public works under a separate head.

"And, looking round among my colleagues, for a man to fill that position I was fortunate indeed in having a man of such ability and sound judgment as your townsman, Mr. Thos. Taylor." A statement that was greeted with applause. It was Mr. Taylor's first appearance in Revelstoke since his appointment to the government and he was well received.

For the most part the evening was a pleasant social function. The Opera House was well filled, and had been finely decorated with flags hung around the balconies by an energetic committee. The Independent Band played in their best style. Mr. Bruce Lawson amused with some capital stories and a recitation of "The One Hoss Shay." Mr. W. H. Humhreys sang twice, and, being again encored, recited "The Owl Critic," with fine spirit. Mr. Davis, of Regina, entertained both with pianoforte and song, and Mr. Albert Arman gave a sentimental selection in a rich, clear voice.

M W. W. Foster presided, and, in opening, explained that it had been thought better to have an informal meeting than one of set speeches, because ih a Saturday night in Revelstoke many people were engaged in different occupations and they wished to have them free to pass in and out. They had more than usual pleasure in welcoming the premier, because not only had he raised British Columbia to its present proud position, but they felt that they had in him a personal friend. During the last session he had honored this district by calling its member into the cabinet. They could therefore feel that he had a double claim upon them, and they wished to take this opportunity of thanking him for the honor he had done the district. (Applause.) They had also Mr. Taylor among them in a public capacity for the first time since his appointment. Various causes had prevented his appearance before, but now that they had the opportunity they felt that he should be honored in a public rather than a private capacity, because they must remember that when Mr. Taylor last came before the electors he was elected not by the efforts of Conservatives alone, but by Conservatives and Liberals alike throughot the riding.

Hon. Mr. Taylor said it was a great pleasure to him to have this opportunity of publicly meeting and thanking his constituents for the honor they had done him in February last by returning him by such a handsome majority. They had, however, with them the Premier of the province, and as they were no doubt anxious to hear him, he would not detain them at great length. He would only make a few remarks as to the tour they had just taken. Since accepting the position of first minister of the Crown the premier had believed that in order to become properly acquainted with the needs of the province it was of imperative importance that he should visit the different portions. He had done this ennually since 1903, and he (Mr. Taylor) was glad on this occosion that the premier had invited him to come with him because as head of the great spending department of the Government he felt it imperative that he should become acquainted with at first hand with the wants of different districts. They had now covered a great deal of the province and it was his intention if his health permitted to see all the districts before the season was over.

He then described in detail the visit, and told the same story of prosperity everywhere. At Grand Forks they had seen the Granby smelter with its capacity of 4,000 tons daily, and the manager had told them that when present plans were completed it would be the largest smelter on the continent. Such signs as these were most encouraging.

"It is my duty," said the minister of public works, "by all means in my power to aid in every way the settlement of the province, and with this object in view I have endeavored in whatever district I have been to push forward the construction of roads, trails and bridges. With an expenditure of $3,000,000 in my charge I felt that I should become conversant with the needs of the country. When I tell you that our expenditure on public works this year is equal to that of the past three years put together; when I tell you that in this department we are spending more than the whole province of Ontario, you will see we are endeavoring to look after the interests of British Columbia as far as public works are concerned at all events. (Applause). I can go further and point out to you that the revenue of B. C. is gradually crawling up. When you consider that the revenue of the province amounts to $6,000,000 and that of Ontario amounts to a little over $8,000,000, and contract the scattered population of this country with that of Ontario you must admit that B. C. is making great strides.

Take our different industries. A few years ago the total acreage in fruit lands was only a little over 7,000 acres; to-day the fruit acreage of B.C. exceeds 100,000 acres. In order to encourage settlement we are at the present time expending a great deal on surveys. This year we are spending no less than $200,000 for the purpose of locating lands and acquiring knowledge to place before incoming settlers, so you will see that we are doing our part."

Turning to the lumbering industry he pointed out that while in 1901 the otal output of the mills was about 64,000,000 feet, this year he was safe in saying it was at least ten times that amount. The total output of the lode mines from 1878 to 1888 was less than $200,000, but last year alone it was no less than $24,000,000. All this development in the past was encouraging, but it was nothing to what was coming. With another transcontinental railway building to the Pacific Coast, and with another and perhaps still another to follow that, they must expect great results from the opening of the country to the north. The shipment of Alberta wheat by the Pacific route meant things untold for our ports. We had iron, steel, coal and timber in abundance and he looked forward to the day when we should make our own locomotive and steel and ships from our own resources.

Fortunately the Government was in a position to meet with this development. They had the confidence of the people and of the financial institutions of the world. Fruit from Kootenay had taken first rank among the exhibitions of the world, and in a few years he expected to see the whole country to the south from Revelstoke to Nelson an orchard country.

"We are not, however, confinen to agriculture or horticulture alone. We have other great industries and have the capital coming to develop them, and whatever the past may have been we have every reason in the near future to look forward to most prosperous times in British Columbia." (Applause.)

Premier McBride said it was with peculiar pleasure that he came there, because though they had had some bitter conflicts in the past, and he had taken some part in the various campaigns, he had never left Revelstoke without feeling that he had as a personal friend everyone in the city.

"It is a good thing when we can hold elections without disturbing social relations, and what I say for myself I can say also for my old friend Tom Taylor. I think his popularity here and through the country is due to the fact that he can carry on his elections without unfair or disturbing tactics. I am glad to be among you with him as the first minister to hold the portfolio of public works in this country. Mr. Taylor has now been in office for six months and everyone will tell you that he has made good. (Applause.) You have only to look around you to see that public works have been progressing more rapidly than ever before. Of course The Observer has criticised Mr. Taylor, but we know that in that there is nothing serious. We know that for political reasons they feel that it is their duty to find fault, but I think it would be more fair of that paper if, instead of abuse, they would give praise to Mr. Taylor for the good work he has dons."

Speaking of the Revelstoke district the premier said the valley possessed a rich soil and was at the gateway of a great arterial waterway which must prove invaluable for traffic. The one thing needed to complement all these was more population. Statistics showed that we were spending annually thousands to bring in farm produce. It was difficult to believe that in this rich country you could find in the stores in Kootenay potatoes from Prince Edward Island, butter from New Zealand, and eggs imported from eastern Canada, while all the time right here in this section was an ideal country where the pursuits of agriculture, horticulture and stock raising might be carried on with most profitable results. That complement of population they needed had been well pioneered by the class of people they had in Revelstoke and Kootenay now.

"We need population and we are going to have it," said the premier. "I think there can be no question of that. From the transportation companies I am advised that we shall, in the next few months, see a flow of population into B. C. far greater than any we have experienced in days gone by. I know from our information bureau that thousands who looked elsewhere once are looking to B. C. today."

The premier continued that he believed that the country had been retarded in the past by unstable political conditions, but a great improvement had been wrought within the past six years, so that the financial standing of the province today could be placed side by side with that of the Imperial Government itself. In 1903 the papers were filled with notices of tax sales; today these lands that could not be given away a few years ago were selling for hundreds of dollars an acre. The expansion of the fruit industry whereby thousands of acres were turned under the plow and planted with trees was due in no small manner to the campaign of advertising and exhibits that had been carried on in the Old Country and Eastern Canada. Mr. Palmer, while in charge of the exhibit in Great Britain, had distributed literature and given information, and, when the exhibits were closed he sold the fruit by public auction and secured sufficient meney to pay the whole expense of the work. (Applause.)

Speaking of the rapid expansion of the timber industry, he said that where six years ago no one though of investing in timber lands; today good, sound timber anywhere was regarded as a splendid field of investment. This was due to the fact that the policy of the government gave to the timber holders sound and reasonable titles. They had also built up the sawmilling industry by an export duty on logs, which in the past used to be taken down to Puget Sound to be sawn into timber. As a result of the government's export tax this had all been stopped and a development of 400 per cent. in the sawmill business brought about within the past five years.

"Here we are in the third year of our second term," said the premier. "Some of the liberal papers are greatly concerned because Mr. Taylor and I have been touring the country and I notice one Liberal member says that a general election is in sight. For my part I have made these tours annually for the past six years that I might keep in touch with the development of the country. Mr. Taylor also in order to give the country satisfactory adminstration felt that he should visit the country and see the public works so that he might have some knowledge at first hand. But knowing this is the third year of our term, our Liberal friends are very much concerned about an election. Well if it was proposed to bring an election on I can assure them that they would have ample time to get ready their defences and prepare for action. I would like to tell the electors here that in a new country like one where new questions which involve far reaching results are being constantly brought to light, to keep close to our constitution and carry out old time usages it would be unwise for any administration to continue in office and enact legislation the composition of which had never been passed upon by the electors. I don't say that these questions have erisen or will arise before the end of the present term, but if it should arise, on the question of a railway policy for instance, it would be the duty of the Government to go to the people and get a pronouncement before legislating on these lines. I have no announcement to make on this question tonight but if I can judge from what I have seen whenever another election comes there will be no doubt of the result. That result was foreshadowed here in Kootenay in the Dominion elections when you gave Mr. Goodeve and Mr. Burrill such handsome majorities. It showed clearly that you put country before party and that is eqactly what you would do if a provincial election came along at the present time." (Applause.)

The premier concluded with a warm eulogy on Hon. T. Taylor, who, before becoming a cabinet minister, had been the party whip through many a trying session.

"He has been known for 21 years past as a man who enjoys the confidence of his own town and district, and the man of that kind must be the right kind of timber out of which to construct a stable government. He has $3,000,000 to spend this year, and in the expenditure of that money you will find in him the same honest dealing as has invariably characterized him in the past in dealing with the people of Revelstoke and the Kootenay country."

At the conclusion of the premier's speech three rousing cheers with a "tiger" added, were given both for him and Hon. Mr. Taylor, after which the platform formalism of the meeting dissolved; it melted into a social atmosphere of tobacco smoke, coffee and conversation in which the premier and the minister of public works renewed old acquaintances and left everyone with a kindly and sociable memory of their visit.

Progress of Mining

The annual report of the Minister of Mines, which is just to hand, states that the value of the mineral products of the Province for the year 1908 amounts to $23,851,277, which, while it is less than that of 1907 and 1906, is still considerably greater than that of any previous year. The tonnage of ore mined in 1908 was the largest ever produced by the Province, and the average assay of the ore also slightly greater than that of 1907, but the average market value of the various metals for the year was much lower, which accounts entirely for the decreased value of this year's output; since the drop in the market price of metals amounts to some $3,966,826.

The tonnage of ore mined in the Province during the year 1908, exclusive of coal, was 2,083,606 tons, an increase over the proceeding year of 279,492 tons, or 15.5 per cent. This total tonnage was produced by the various districts in the following proportions: Boundary, 71.6 percentage of total; Rossland, 14.5 per cent.; Fort Steele, 7.9 per cent.; Coast District, 1.7 per cent; all other districts, 4.3 per cent. The number of mines from which shipments were made in 1908 was 108, and of these only 59 shipped more than 100 tons each during the year, while but 33 shipped in excess of 1,000 tons, and of these 8 were in the Boundary district, 6 in Nelson Mining Division, 8 in Slocan District, 4 in Coast District, 3 in Rossland, 3 in Fort Steele, Mining Division, and one in Trout Lake Mining Division.

REVELSTOKE AND LARDEAU

The special report of Mr. R. Gordon, Gold Commissioner for the Revelstoke and Lardeau Mining Divisions, which is appended, states there has been somewhat of a lull in mining operations in these districts during the year, though considerable work has been done on the placer claims in the Big Bend district on French, McCullough, Smith and Camp Creeks where from 25 to 30 men have been employed. The yield in gold was not large, McCullough Creek making by far the best showing. Several of the older companies have been reorganized and there are indications of a more systematic attempt to work the leases.

While in the southern portion of the Big Bend country some development work has been done, the mines have remained unproductive, but the owners of claims on Carnes and Downie creeks are very hopeful of being able to induce capital to come in and develop some of the best showings. He submits annual reports of the Revelstoke and Camborne mining recorders which bear out his statements.

W. E. McLauchlin, recorder for the Revelstoke division, reports that a strong company has been formed to work mica claims on End Creek, in the Big Bend district.

B. E. Drew, recorder for the Lardeau division, says:

Throughont this Division very little work outside of assessment has been done this year. It is believed, however, that 1909 will see a great improvement in mining conditions in Camborne camp, since, from reports received, the greater number of the mines which have been inactive during the past years will again be in operation just as soon as favorable weather conditions will permit; and I have on good authority that the necessary capital is now available to install the necessary additional machinery, without which, in the past, it has been almost impossible to more than cover expenses. This remark does not apply to the Eva Gold Mines, Ltd., which has already been an exception and has more than made expenses.

An interesting event took place at Doon, Ont., recently, when 2500 descendants of the late George and Christina Snider met in a grand reunion on the farm on which the first of the family to arrive in Canada had settled in 1806. A thanksgiving service was held, the hundred and third psalm being read from an old family Bible printed in Switzerland in 1560.

Gangs are now at work laying the last forty-eight miles of Grand Trunk Pacific track between Winnipeg and Edmonton. Tracks are being laid at the rate of four miles a day, and the foreman is confident that the road will be completed to Edmonton by July 7. There will be a celebration when the first Grand Trunk Pacific locomotive completes the 794 miles from Winnipeg to Edmonton.

Mr. J. S. Larke, Canadian trade commissioner for Australia, in the last weekly report of the trade and commerce department at Ottawa, says that an attempt is being made to introduce British Columbia slate in Australia and New Zealand. In Australia considerable difficulty is experienced, however, because of the preferential tax tariff. In New Zealand the chance of working up a trade is much better, but the market is limited. One thing in favor of Canadian slate as against that now imported from Wales is that they would have a shorter passage over salmar seas. Slates are very brittle, so that at present 1,260 are sold at the quarries for 1,000 to allow for breakages en route.

The "white" carnival held in the skating rink last evening was a pronounced success. The white costumes had a cool and pleasant midsummer look. While all the skaters did not wear the characteristic color, a sufficient number did to bear out the name and present a very attractive appearance as they whirled around to the music of the Independent Band.

Right Reverend Bishop Dart of the diocese of Kootenay and New Westminster held a confirmation service in St. Peter's Church last Sunday evening. His Lordship gave an earnest discourse addressed more particularly to the candidates for confirmation, to whom he gave some well considered advice. There was a large congregation. The candidates confirmed were Kathleen Sibbald, Mary Parsons, Edna Corson, Douglas and Arnold McCarter, Donald Calder, and W. G Watson.

The Tecumseh lacrosse team passed through on their way east this morning. On Tuesday they met defeat at the hands of New Westminster by the close score of 6 to 5. The visitors, however, expressed themselves well pleased with the treatment they had received. They say the last game was one of the keenest and cleanest they ever played. The first quarter ended 2-2, the first half ended 4-3 in favor of the Tecumsehs; in the third quarter Westminster scored 2 and Tecumsehs 0; in the fourth quarter each side scored one goal. The Tecumsehs will play Regina on Saturday.

During the recent visit of Premier McBride and Hon. Thos. Taylor to Kaslo the latter stated a courthouse for that city would soon be constructed and it would be finished in marble.

Dominion Day Celebrations

While there is no set celebration in Revelstoke for July 1, the citizens will take care to enjoy the day. A large number will take in the excursion to Armstrong where the lacrosse and baseball teams are scheduled to play. The baseball boys will meet Enderby and are eager to turn the tables on them for the defeat they received from Enderby on May 24th. Some of the regular men ere unable to get away, but their places will be well filled. The lacrosse team will meet Vernon and a fast game is expected, as the local boys are in good shape. A good crowd of rooters is expected to go down on the spe ial train which leaves Revelstoke at 3:30 a m.

Another affair set for the day that promises to be very enjoyable is the Union Sunday school picnic on the grounds of the City Park. This will commence at 10 a.m. and last till the evening.

Another event of the day will be the dance given by the local corps of the Rocky Mounted Rifles in the drill hall.

The Oddfellows will also hold an installation ceremony in their quarters in Selkirk Hall in the evening.

Bears Are Plentiful

W. A. Aldritt, physical instructor of the Y.M.C.A. and Bert McEachern of the MAIL-HERALD office, returned in the early part of last week from a ten days' hunting trip to Isaac Creek, bringing back two bear pelts with them. They went up Isaac creek from Wigwam, a distance of about 35 miles, and during their trip saw nine bears altogether, of which six were black and three were silver-tips. They found hunting rather difficult as the brush had grown so thick that the game was difficult to see.

The first night they reached the high camp they saw a bear come down from the slide within a hundred yards of them. They gave chase in their slippers, but it was getting dark and the bear got away. The following day about a mile from the camp they saw three bears coming down, and Mr. Aldritt secured one of them. They had just crossed a creek on their return journey when another bear came in sight on the other side. They went back and put three bullets into his hide, but he carried them away into the high bush before he fell and they had to skin him there and pack the green hide back with them. However they got safely back to the city bringing with them the hides of two silver-tip bears.

THE GLORIOUS TWELFTH

Will be Celebrated in Vernon in Gala Style

The paths of Orangemen from many points in the interior of the province will, on Monday, July 12th, converge toward Vernon where a big celebration will be held. The parade that has been planned for the day will, it is hoped, be the largest that has ever taken place in the interior of British Columbia. It will be aided by a number of bands, with the fine band of the Vernon Fire Brigade leading, and it will also include a number of fife and drum bands belonging to the Order. In the evening the Vernon band will give a grand concert.

Arrangemenus have been made for a first class programme of games and sports in which Revelstoke will have its share, one of the events being a lacrosse match between Revelstoke and Vernon. There will also be a football match between Kamloops and Vernon with baseball and other popular sports. A special feature will be the firemen's sports which will include hose reel races, hook and ladder races and fire tests.

In addition to all this special arrangements nave been made to take visitors to such special points of interests as the Coldstream ranch and Okanagan and Long Lakes. Excursion rates by rail and steamer have been provided for, the return fare from Revelstoke being fixed at the very moderate sum of $2,75.

"WIDOW O'BRIEN"

Pollards Will Be Here Next Saturday

Of interest to local theatre-goers will be the announcement of the Pollard engagement at the opera house on July 3rd. All the old time favorites are included in the caste and the play produced here will be the merry musical farce entitled "Widow O'Brien" with Alfred Goulding in the name part. Miss Eva Moore plays the leading feminine role. The company is now composed of graduates from former Pollard companies and their acting is clever and finished. The song numbers are bright and well rendered. Mr. Goulding's topical song "Fairy Tales," satire on local happenings of the day, being one of the hits of the evening.

The same principals who were big favorites on their former visit, are with the company, and judging from reports they are better now than they ever were, especially Eva Moore, Alf Goulding, Jack Pollard, Willie Pollard, Ada Hind, Emmy Davis, Teddie McNamara, Harold Fraser, Fred. Pollard and Charlie Chester. The frisky young people, with all their humor and good voices will be heard in Sydney Jones' merry musical farce, "Widow O'Brien" on Saturday, July 3, at the Revelstoke Opera House.

Boston Opera Company

It is not often that grand opera comes to Revelstoke, and the Boston Grand Opera Company deserved a larger house for their performance of Verdi's "Il Trovatore" in the Opera House here last Monday night. Those who were present, however, to judge from the applause that greeted the stronger scenes, enjoyed it well. The worst fault of the performance lay in the indistinctness of enunciation. While set to English words it might as well have been in the original Italian for all that most of those present could understand of it. This may be a virtue in the eyes of the cultured musical critic, but the average laymen would enjoy it better if he could understand what they sang. Beyond that the performers interpreted the music faithfully, and the chorus, especially in the gypsy scene with the anvil chorus, and in the Miserere, was very effective. Individually the fine tenor voice of Signor Gherandi was was heard to good advantage, and such singing as that of Mme. Judith M. Francini, the prima dona, and Siegnora Ricci, the contralto, who played the gypsy girl, is not often heard here.

Mining Notes

A rich strike has been made on the Clyde-Belt property in the Sheep creek district, where a vein of ore varying from two to three feet in thickness has been found of which the paystreak is estimated to yield at least $150 to the ton.

Every day the coal mines around Coleman do not work means a loss of $12,000.

A large number of the miners at Bellevue are very anxious that an all Canadian miners' union be formed. This fever has also reached Coleman.

A million dollars in gold dust, nuggets and bricks, all in one great pan, is probably the richest exhibit at the Seattle fair. It is all Alaska gold.

M. K. Rogers has secured an option, says a Spokane paper, upon the Nickel Plate at Hedley, for a sum running into several millions.

The Nickel Plate mine at Hedley made $300,000 last year.

The new ten-stamp mill at the Columbia group on Sheep creek will be in operation in about a fortnight. At present a staff of men is being employed in crushing ore and filling the bins in preparation for the first run.

The most important mining event during the past two weeks was the purchase of the Highland mine near Ainsworth from P. Burns and W. J. Wilson by J. S. Airheart and associates of New York. This property was in 1903 the largest lead producer in the province and made enormous profits for the owners operating it before it passed into the hands of Messrs. Burns and Wilson. Work will commence at once, and it is anticipated that a first shipment will be made about July.

The metals produced by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. at the Trail plant for the month of May yielded values to the extent of more than three quarters of a million dollars. The gold yield was $300,000; silver, $250,000; copper, $65,000 and lead $175,000; making a total of $790,000. For the past eleven months the company has produced a total in metal values of $5,000,000.

During the past two months two thousand tons of lead bullion have been shipped to San Francisco to be refined. This was necessary for the reason that the capacity of the Trail refinery. This was necessary for the reason that the capacity of the Trail refinery was not s ficient. Plans are being prepared for the extension of the refinery, so that the daily production of lead will be 100 tons.

G. Weaver Loper, of Spokane, one of the chief proprietors of the Lucky Jim mine, near Kaslo, states that a contract has been made with the Great Northern Railway whereby the steamer Kaslo will shortly be put on to carry Lucky Jim ore from Kaslo to Troup Junction for shipment to United States at the rate of 200 tons per day. So far, he said, about 1800 tons of ore had been shipped and bad shown remarkable values, the average of zinc from the crude ore being a trifle over 53 per cent. At present 24 men were being employed on the property and this number would be increased to 50 by the beginning of August in order that the lower levels might be further developed and exploited. Mr. Loper does not think that the American duty on zinc will exclude Canadian from the United States, and points out that the metal has already risen a cent a pound which is equal to the highest sum that the new tariff can impose.

Among the events most looked forward to is the convention of the National Editorial Association, which is to be held from July 19 to 24. On July 24th the Alaska Steamship Company's vessel, "Northwestern," will sail from Seattle to take the editors for a twenty day's cruise in Alaskan waters, including a railway trip to the interior. A great deal of interest is also shown in the approaching visit of Mrs. Carre Chapman Gatt, of London, Eng., regarded by many as the foremost woman suffragist in the world. She will address the National Woman Suffrage Convention now in session here.
