OFFICIAL ORGAN "E" AND "H" COMPANIES 107th EAST KOOTENAY REGIMENT.

Number Thirteen. FERNIE, B.C., NOVEMBER 2, 1916. PRICE FIVE CENTS

FOR RELIEF OF CANADIAN PRISONERS OF WAR IN GERMANY

The committee in charge of the collections for the above fund have been working hard since the meeting held in Morrissey camp last week. Sergeants Carter, Minton and Ross have already secured the following amounts, to be paid monthly. "E" Co., 107th E.K.R. has certainly every right to be grateful for the privilege of being able to contribute a little to relieve the suffering of our brothers in their confinement in German prison camps. There are still other monthly donations to be received which will be published next week. The list is open to any and all who wish to contribute and is in no wise confined to members of this company or to the 107th Regiment. It is hoped that many others may join us in doing what is but our duty.

CAPT. ADAIR CARSS IS KILLED IN ACTION

Death of Well Known Officer Follows Closely That of His Fiancee, the Late Miss Cecelia Green

Victoria, B.C.—News has been received of the death in action of Capt. Adair Carss, of the 102nd battalion. Capt. Carss was well known in this city, where his family had lived for many years.

It is a touching coincidence that the deaths of Capt. Carss and of Miss Cecelia Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Green, M.P., who had been engaged for some time, took place within a few days of each other, neither being aware of the passing of the other.

J. H. Austin, aged 44, a prominent Victoria lawyer, has been killed in action in France.

SERGEANT ROBERT CROWE,
Regimental Paymaster 107th East Kootenay Regiment.

Sergt. Crowe has his headquarters at Creston, B.C., the regimental headquarters, and at Morrissey camp, where he has spent most of this year. He is very popular and perhaps the best all-around fisherman and sport in the camp.

Mr. Lloyd George, after distributing prizes at a school, said he hoped the children would have a good record when he came again. Thereupon they rose and with tulips said, "Same to you, sir!"

Nothing costs a nation so much as its liberty.

CHARLES E. HUGHES

Republican Presidential Candidate has stated that "He did not want the support of anyone who has any interest superior to that of the United States who would not instantly champion the right of interest of America against any country whatever, who wants immunity for foreign aggression or would have the power of this nation held captive to any foreign influence or swerved by alien machinations."

PRIVATE W. A. BLEASDELL of the 148th Battalion, C.E.F., a well known Montreal regiment, who has left for England recently, is a son of A. W. Bleasdell, a prominent druggist of Fernie, B.C. Private Bleasdell has a host of friends in Fernie who will be glad to hear he is well.

WUB

The Western Universities Battalion, 196th, C. E. F., has issued the first number of its regimental paper, "WUB," a splendidly edited and printed periodical, published by permission of the camp commandant, Camp Hughes. It is a credit to the battalion and should be a most pupular reminder of a great regiment. Everyone in British Columbia who has any relative or friend in the 196th should at once subscribe to this effort of a student regiment. The Mention wishes it every success, and compliments the Winnipeg Saturday Post, who are responsible for the good appearance of the Wub.

THIRTIETH ANNIVERSARY CONGRESS

Capt. Cox, of the Salvation Army, Fernie, B.C., leaves on Nov. 6th to attend the thirtieth anniversary congress of the Salvation Army, to be held at Winnipeg November 10th, 11th, 12th and 13th.

The congress will be conducted by the Chief of the Staff, Commissioner Howard, who is second in command of the Salvation Army throughout the world. The Chief of the Staff will lecture on "How Goes the Army." His Honor, Sir James Atkins, Lieut.-Governor, will preside, supported by many leading citizens.

Commissioner Howard, assisted by Commissioners Sowton, Lamb and a number of other officers will also visit Regina Nov. 14th and Calgary Nov. 15th, where His Honor, Robert Brett, Lieut.-Governor of Alberta, will preside at the meeting.

Lieut. Fredk. W. McLaine, 107th E. K. R., reported for duty at Morrissey camp on Tuesday evening. Lieut. McLaine has been a resident of Midway and Greenwood, B.C., for many years, coming to the Boundary district in 1895.

BRITISH PRISONERS OF WAR IN GERMANY

HOW TO HELP THEM

You would like to do something but can afford so little. Remember "Every mickle makes a muckle." If you are willing to take trouble you can still do your bit. There are three ways.

1. Give ten cents a week yourself and collect the same from nine other people. This forms a "circle" and provides for one prisoner. Your dollar will send him every week a parcel of good substantial food.

2. If ten cents a week is too much, try for a semi-circle made up of ten five-cent pieces, or a full "circle" of twenty five-cent pieces.

3. If this is still too much, collect twenty-five cents a week in pennies, and this will provide a good loaf of bread sent straight from Switzerland, and a loaf is a pretty good present to send to a hungry prisoner.

WHICH OF THESE THREE WAYS WILL YOU CHOOSE?

Why is it better to send the money for the purchase of parcels by the Canadian Red Cross is London rather than to send parcels from British Columbia?

Because it is imperative that we keep our men supplied with food, and in case of the parcels not reaching their destination, private individuals have no redress, whereas the Red Cross can refer complaints to the American Embassy in Berlin for an investigation. Also the Germans are moving the prisoners constantly from camp to camp, and the notification from the prisoner of this change of address reaches England at least two weeks sooner than it could reach British Columbia. It is essential that a regular supply of food be sent to each prisoner, so the committee recommends that private parcels be sent only as extras to supplement, not to supercede, what is being sent by the Canadian Red Cross.

Parcels of food sent to prisoners: 1 tin of corned beef, 1 tin of assorted biscuits, 1 tin of coffee au lait, 1 tin of dripping, 1 tin of Golden syrup, 1 tin of fruit in syrup, 2 tins of fish pastes, 4 meat soup cubes.

Parcel No. Two—1 tin of pork and beans, 1 tin of fruit and cherry cake, 1 tin of mackerel in oil, 1 tin of margerine, 1 tin of jam, 1 box of biscuits, sugar and milk.

These boxes are varied every fortnight, but these are two pretty good samples.

THE REBEKAHS' DANCE

There was a sound of revelry by night. The Rebekahs' dance given last Wednesday, October 25th, testified to the wonderful popularity of the ladies' order, for there was a goodly attendance. The supper proved that orders has been given by the ladies with a supreme liberality. As for the music, it was excellent—Allen's orchestra; but how could it be otherwise when the players were surrounded by belles—fair and brunette—ringing changes on the peals of merriment and merry men.

The Rebekah ball is an annual event; one of those events that eventually will have to be repeated. The dancing broke up at break of day; and Cupid, as usual one of the most welcome guests, got in some of his deadly work—or is it life-saving work?

One guest, whose name is to be obliterated pro. tem., found considerable difficulty in getting out of a huge brass trombonelike instrument—after supper. The supper was in keeping with the rest of the evening—superb.

Why stir up the mud until you are ready to use the scraper.

A cynic is a person who sneers at life after life has sneered at him.

MEMORIES

The saddest things and the happiest things in our life are our memories. How grateful we should be for that peculiar faculty of mind which allows us to remember—and forget. Not only are the happy episodes of existence to be remembered, let us not forget at least some of the sadder experiences, if only to remember to profit by them to our advantage and the advantage of those we come in daily contact with. Life without memory would mean a world without history. History is memory inscribed. Fiction is history as we would have had it be; so we are indebted to the memories of the past for the present and our hopes of the future. How bald would Society (with a capital S) be without memory. For gossips could not exist without memories—elastic memories—and without gossips where would Society be? Memory enables us to labor under the continuous illusion that there has been a present that is now a past, when really there is only a present. Worry and anxiety is fear of the future which is a shuddering recollection of what has happened more often than not to someone else. Memory is the brain's cold storage of useful and useless facts—"Is that a fac'?" Later they become subject to correction or alteration or are proved not to be facts at all and they have to make room for other facts which take their place, and we remember what mayhap we had forgotten, that our memories often make cowards of us all. Keep sweet memories of that which is sweet and forget the memories that are not sweet.

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

Most people who go to the movies expect a few reels, a piano player, a violin or two, something amusing, something pathetic, and all for two bits—or less. They are prepared to pay a larger price for a comedy, a farce, musicale or a limb exhibit. But Fernie on Monday was visited by something vastly superior—an historical life drama, accompanied by the supremest symphony orchestra—a double attraction, either of which was well worth the rather higher raised price of admission. The pictures themselves would indeed be hard to better. 30,000 people taking part, 3,000 horses, battle scenes so realistic that one really expects to face a casualty list published the next morning, love episodes that defy any criticism, a touch of humor at times, and many a touch of pathos, and all the while a constant stream of harmonious melody cultured and synchromatic under the splendid leadership of Mr. George H. Wiseman, a conductor of great sympathy and feeling.

The story itself is so old, so true, so well chosen, the psychology so correct, that it must and does appeal to the studious and observant mind, while the music of the orchestra makes the scenes portrayed more easily absorbed and more lastingly impressive. EVERYONE EVERYWHERE SHOUL SEE "THE BIRTH OF A NATION." The only reason some Fernieites missed it was because the Grand theatre would not hold any more; it was filled to the brim

ALADDIN
AND HIS WONDERFUL LAMP

No more picturesque, charming performance has visited Fernie in recent months than F. Stuart-Whyte's perfect production, "Aladdin." Delightful ditties, truly tuneful topical lyrics, superior scenery, Madame Celestine costumes with abbreviated continuities, excellent extremities, and last but not by any means least an aggregation of sweetly pretty faces, together with the most droll and delicious humor—a pot-pouri of everything that is good and wholesomely instructive and entertainingly pleasing.

Mr. Stuart-Whyte is to be congratulated. Had Fernie possessed a larger opera house it would still have been filled and we should have seen another scenic display which the limited stage space precluded from production. Out of an evening of such unqualified enjoyment it is hard to choose what was especially and singularly any better than the rest of the program, but the sweetly-rendered duet by Miss Zara Clinton (Aladdin) and Miss Beatrice Carmen (Princess So-Shi) was one to be long remembered. The young lady who played the violin rhapsody captured the hearts of the already-captivated audience. Mr. J. V. Barrett-Lennard, as Abanazar, the "mad magician from the west" (there are many others in the west), surpassed himself and is an extremist in delirious merry magic antics. He almost managed to take Aladdin's lamp but at least he took the cake. The Widow Twankey, Aladdin's mother, played by Mr. Harry Hoyland, was certainly attractive enough for any emperor to marry. He is an artist of the first class; so is our old friend, Mr. Billy Oswald, who was the part to a "Tee hee" of Gen. Sam Fuse; and right here we refuse to say what we would like to say, except that the general and the widow are some pair to draw to. Is that a fac'? It is.

If the Mentioner ever gets hold of that wonderful lamp it will be used to "wish" the Aladidn company back again and that the slaves of the lamp and ring accompany the "wishing" light-giver.

IS THAT A FAC' ? ? ?

That the Grand theatre, Fernie, was filled to the roof when "Aladdin, Jr." played here last Thursday evening?

That only a thin man could have found breathing room at the Grand theatre last Monday night, when "The Birth of a Nation" pictures and symphony orchestra charmed a vast audience?

That the little lady who lost her father's wages "down a big, black hole" hollered remuneratively?

That many envied General Fuse's multitudinous mallingerings about Widow Twankey's blind porker?

That "He's awa'. Puir Sandy McWhappel! Aie! It's his last bite. You can see the ham and egg stickin' on the edge o't. Puir Sandy, he used to men' my bits. Aie, he's deid; he's gane; he's awa'. Aie! Aie!"

BIG BOY BLUE

There's the blue of the sea and the blue of the sky,
As well as the blue of a feminine eye;
But none of these kindle a thrill so acute
As the eloquent blue of a hospital suit.

It's a soul-stirring symbol of valor and pain,
It tells what its wearer would never explain.
Yes—what has been done, and what's left to do
Is silently preached by the Tommies in blue.

We see them ensconced in a smooth-running car,
And good-looking, kindly-faced fellows they are.
Maimed, bandaged, and scarred, but enjoying their ride—
The flotsam tossed up by war's merciless tide.

Though the praise at our heart is not tardy or faint,
We suffer from British self-conscious restraint;
Yet I know of one hand that would like to salute
Each gallant Boy Blue in his hospital suit.

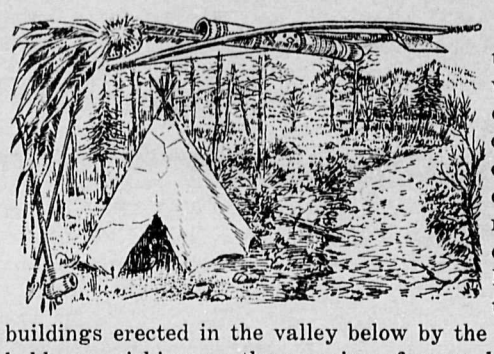
VALE MEADOWS VALLEY!



The camping party has returned from the Meadows, a walk of eight miles in a whirl of white snow; the ladies are once more wearing costumes of city cut; the men have discarded their hirsute disguises and redonned their uniforms. The deer are no longer afraid to leave the bald peaks but are taking a peek at the small buildings erected in the valley below by the campers. The birds, blithe and bold, are picking up the remains of many breakfasts.

Editor Wallace of the Fernie Free Press has received an invitation to visit Morrissey camp on Sunday next.

The masquerade ball was a great success. Hallowe'en was celebrated in royal style. Miss Alice Wilde as a Scotch lassie won the first ladies' prize; Mr. J. English as Henry III, the first prize for gentlemen. Miss M. Moon as a Russian princess took the second prize. The best comic costumes were worn by Miss Jiteson and Mr. M. Gorrie.

THE STREAK OF YELLOW

With a pocket full of money
Any coward can be brave;
When the skies are bright and sunny
Any man his flag can wave.
But the test of every fellow
Is disaster's sudden blow,
And if he is streaked with yellow
It is then that it will show.

You will never find a quitter
If he's leading in the race;
It is when the fight grows bitter
And another makes the pace
That the coward starts to bellow
And to whimper at his woe;
If a man is streaked with yellow
When he's pressed it's sure to show.

Can you stand the gaff of losing,
Can you battle to the end;
Take the cuffing and the bruising
And not let your courage bend?
For the test of pluck is never
When you're leading in the race,
But are you game as ever
When another sets the pace?

A Move To Incorporate

She: "I shall have to be a little firm with you."

He: "Fine! Let us make it a partnership!"

IT'S MENTIONED IN CAMP

That two black-tail deer got into the small flower garden in front of the Rock Creek hotel recently. Major McGraw, who was at the hotel, shut the wicket gate thinking they were tame deer belonging to the proprietor, T. Hanson. An extra two feet of fencing was rapidly put up and the deer seem perfectly at home, feeding on alfalfa and hay. In Morrissey and at the meadows the deer are not so obliging, prefering the frigid temperature of the high ridges.

That Miss Bertha Whalley visited Pte. and Mrs. Whalley on Sunday.

That Pte. McNiven is the politest whist played who ever was.

That the Mentioner has put in an application for a certain position, now vacant, in Mrs. Black's circus.

That Miss Annie and Mr. Robert Winstanley were guests of Mrs. Cecil Minton last Sunday.

That Mr. Dicken and Miss Phillips drove to Morrissey camp from Fernie on Sunday last.

That Regimental Quartermaster-Sergeant Lambkin is on sick leave for two weeks.

That the Rev. A. B. Lane, of Christ Church, Fernie, will hold Divine service in camp November 5th.

That a wold-be sign writer took to the woods when mamma Bushrat returned to her quarters.

That amongst the Surday visitors to camp were Mrs. King and Mrs. McEwan, of Fernie.

That those who arrived late at Mrs. Cecil Minton's party found Sergt. Cecil amidst a crowd of ladies having the time of his young life.

That a lady visitor to Morrissey camp on Sunday says "No more ranching for hers"—annieawy, not for a while.

That the church parade at 10 a.m. was well attended, only a few on furlough or duty being absent. Rev. Mr. Perley officiated.

That those who visited Fernie on Monday and took in "The Birth of a Nation" say it was a magnificent spectacle for saw eyes.

That Susie completing her costume adjustment is as intoxicating as a goblet of Mumm's extra dry. It goes to the head.

That Lieut. Fredk. Wm. McLaine reported for duty at Morrissey camp November 1st and has already made many friends.

That Sergt. Lane has been seeing red—ink all over the C.A.S.C. office floor. It was Waterman's ideal, not his.

That Mrs. C. Æ. Shaw left on Monday morning for Victoria. She will visit old friends at Greenwood and Vancouver en route.

That Pte. James Brown has passed his medical examination for overseas. Everyone who has met him in Morrissey will be sorry when he goes away.

That Privates Green and Stuart mushed through the blizzarding snow flakes to Camp Mott on Sunday—and back again without firing a shot. They only saw one bird and it flew away with a smile of derision at their tardy aiming.

That the occupants of the tent in the meadow wilderness are the most delightful hosts in the wide, wide world, the only complaints being that one lady tried to darn one of the visitors with a needle needlessly stuck up in the seat he sat on.

That the finder and discoverer of a small hand axe will meet with a suitable reward if the said axe, which was lost on the Mott Camp trail to the meadows, is returned promptly.

That Pte. Perry underwent an operation on his hear here Monday last, since when even a whisper of two per cent is audible to his Issuership.

That District Orders do not always foreshadow coming events, but rather bespeak the confirmation of what has happened.

That two ladies who recently paid a visit to the camp school state that Miss Cooper is a most efficient teacher and that the singing of the children is excellent, their deportment A.1., and that the work being done is well up to the standard.

That one private consumed seventeen salmonaise sandwiches in compliment to the youth of the lady in whose honor the wedding day celebration took place on Saturday in the C.A.S.C. quarters. He also attempted to get outside seventeen apples but he couldn't. He belongs to the wrong core and nearly made a corps of himself.

That the sidewalk at the palatial entrance to the C.A.S.C. offices has been replaced at last with the talus pile material at the foot of Hill 70 opposite the "Well Done" laundry, which unfortunately does not mean there will be a dry lawn in front of the said offices. It means mud in the said offices or we are sadly mistaken.

Robinson Crusoe was overjoyed at finding the day after today—Friday. What would he have done had he found Billy Sunday?

CANADA'S BOYS WANT SMOKES!

THEY ARE FIGHTING IN FREEDOM'S CAUSE
THEY ARE FACING FEARFUL CONDITIONS
THEY ARE HONORING CANADA'S NAME

THEY WANT JUST ONE THING!

WHEN THEY WERE IN CANADA THEY COULD DO AS YOU DO, GO INTO THE NEAREST STORE AND GET A FRESH SUPPLY. NOW THEY ARE ASKING YOU TO SUPPLY THEIR URGENT NEED.

"I was nine weeks without a smoke"
These were the words of a wounded soldier in a hospital in Canada.

When the Boys Come Home you would not like them to tell you how they suffered for lack of Tobacco?

Such a little thing!

Every Smoker knows what it means to be without!!

Positive discomfort!!!

Absolute suffering!!!!

Think of one night; two nights; a week; a month; nine weeks, and no Tobacco!

LOOK AT THIS BOY'S FACE AND HANDS

PLAIN TALK FROM CHARLIE

Sergt. W. J. Claridge, late of the 13th battalion, C. E. F., who left here three weeks after the war broke out with the first contingent from this city, and who has served continuously with the exception of two periods when he was confined to the hospital while recovering from wounds, which periods of evacuation are denoted by two bars of Russia gold braid worn on the left sleeve, returned to the city a couple of weeks ago, having been recommended on the field to the rank of lieutenant, but unfortunately was evacuated before a vacancy occurred, and has been renewing acquaintances preparatory to joining the 225th battalion in which he is appointed to a commission.

"The foremost matter that strikes me as a returned man from overseas," said Sergt. Claridge, 'is the totally different ideas on the present crisis the people of this country have to the people of the old country." And then he continued, "I have been asked by several in this city how I thought the war was going along, and did I think we should win. I personally cannot comprehend how persons living in a part of the Empire and who, I feel sure, have followed the war from the commencement, can yet have these feelings of doubt as to the ultimate result of the issue. Back in the old lands the whole of the people are so whole-heartedly into the struggle that everyone is doing something. Women are making munitions or taking the places of men on the railroads, car-driving, in the government departments, in fact, in almost every branch of labor that in pre war days was carried on by the male citizens. Even the children take their pennies to school to put into the war savings fund. Everyone lives over there with one set and grim determination, and that is—the defeat of the enemy.

"And why is this? Because back there the war with its grim and ghastly realities is brought home to them more so than is possible so far from the actual affair as you are here. But I wish to state with every confidence that this attitude of the people back in the old land must be taken up by all here.

"We were forced into this game and must pursue it with only one possible result, and that is—to win, and win as quickly as possible. There must not be any talk of peace until the Hun is beaten conclusively; for should there be a patched up peace, that "day" which the enemy always has looked for he is looking for yet, and not until he is decisively beaten will he let up on this idea.

"Walking around the city I can see young eligibles enjoying an easy life, self-contented in their snug complacency. Have these young fellows paused to figure out what a critical time it is to the Empire? I wonder what would be their feelings if it had been their mothers or sisters who had be outraged and murdered by the Huns, their homes plundered and razed to the ground. If only they could have witnessed the scenes at Ypres, April 1915, when the Hun was endeavoring to force his kultur on the few remaining inhabitants of Belgium, and then figure that the positions might have been reversed had it not been for the men who fought, blead and died, that these same eligibles should be privileged to continue their lives of snug enjoyment. And when I speak of eligibles I wish to point out plainly that I refer to those through this part of the country who are young men, physically fit and whose responsibilities could be equally as well assumed by those unfit for military or the fairer sex, and are not engaged in occupations that are of such imporatnce that will help in the successful prosecution of the war.

"I think the majority of us realize the vital necessity of maintaining at the highest possible figure, our exports; this from an economic point is absolutely necessary, so it must be conceded that men working in and around the mines, or allied branches, are performing work of national importance. But there are others still around the country whose places could be very easily filled by women with but very little training. It is done over the "pond" and can be done here.

"'My advice to those fellows is to think it over. The boys overseas are looking anxiously forward for you to go and help them out. One of the vital factors in this war will be man power, and the enemy is far from beaten yet and every eligible young man will be needed. Don't wait to be a conscript; you will not like it and the writing is on the wall. It will surely happen for we have just got to win. If you figure on dodging your duty as I have learned with deep regret that apparently some are evading their duty by migrating across the border, my only question is: Do these fellows intend to live here when the boys come home?

"I should like to say on behalf of my comrades overseas, how much we appreciate what the women at home here have done. When one is in the mud and slush of Flanders, it is sure great to receive the comforts that are always coming along. Wherever you go when with the Canadian Expeditionary Force battalion, battery, hospital or bases, there is always a supply of comforts from the women at home; either from the Canadian Red Cross or War Contingent association. Also to the administration of the patriotic funds, their work, I can assure them, is greatly appreciated, for it is certainly a satisfaction to the boys when they start out to know that efforts are being made by those unable to go to care for their dependents.

"Fernie, I know, has done splendidly, but there are still some here who would be better employed at the prestime handling the business end of a rifle than contenting themselves with the self-satisfied idea that they are not needed in the big game."

CORRESPONDENCE

Fort Pitt Hospital,,
Chatham, England,
October 13, 1916.

Pte. Randolph Stuart,
Editor Morrissey Mention.

Dear Comrade—Asking youd kindness and favors to insert these few lines in your paper, the Mention. I am an old timer of Fernie district. Thanking you very much indeed.

I would be very pleased to have a line from any of the boys, and I shall always be glad to reply. I must report myself in hospital and that I am progressing towards recovery. I met my unfortunate accident on April 26 at Hill 60, Ypres district. The trouble is shell shock. I have now got over the shock but now am suffering from nervous breakdown. I am happy and cheery and contented under the conditions and circumstances.

I have been treated well since I left Fernie and never had room to make one single complaint. There is great credit coming to the British Empire for the way she treats her troops. I was not the first to go but now I thank God for giving me health and strength to take part in this great war. I have not done much but I spent nine months in the trenches and I made the very best use of my time. I am satisfied to know that I have done a little bit.

I will now ring off. Thanking you very much. I wish you every success and good luck. I remain your honorable comrade,

Pte. Walter Hill, 77988,

PITCAIRN ISLANDS

The King and Queen received at Buckingham Palace Mr. and Mrs. Scoresby Routledge, who have lately returned from a three-years' scientific expedition in their yacht Mana. They presented to their Majesties Charles and Edwin Young, two Pitcairn Islanders, descendents of the Midshipman Young, the sole mutineer officer of His Majesty's Ship Bounty.

It is an extremely rare event for Pitcairn Islanders to visit England. The two young men were greatly gratified with the kindness of the King and Queen, who conversed with them at length, and inquired closely into the conditions of the island and its people.

Sometimes success sits on the lowest rung of the ladder of life.
