CORNELL WON THREE EVENTS

Greatest Triumph in History of University.

THEY SWEPT THE HUDSON

IN NONE OF THE EVENTS WERE RECORDS TOUCHED.

Victors in Big Varsity Struggle Gathered Their Lead in Second Mile Finished Three Lengths Ahead

Poughkeepsie, New York, June 21.—Cornell won all three of the events in the intercollegiate regatta today. The four-oared race was a bit easy work for her, but in both the Freshman and Varsits eights she was so closely pressed that she really had to win them in the last half mile by a display of reserve force which none of the other crews could bring to bear. The summary is as follows: Four-oared race, two miles, Cornell first, by five lengths; time, 10:43 3-4. Pennsylvania second, by three and a half lengths; time, 10:54 4-5. Columbia third; time, 11:08. Freshmen, eight-oared race, two miles, Cornell first, by two and three-quarter lengths; time, 9:31 4-5. Wisconsin second, by three and one-half lengths; time, 9:42 4-5. Columbia third, by one and one-third lengths; time, 9:49; Syracuse fourth, by four lengths; time, 9:53. Pennsylvania fifth; time, 10:05. Varsity eight-oared race, four miles, Cornell first, by three lengths; time, 19:05 3-5. Wisconsin second, by one and one-half lengths; time, 10:13 3-5. Columbia third, by one and three-quarter lengths; time, 19:18 3-5. Pennsylvania fourth, by three-quarter length; time, 19.26. Syracuse fifth, by two feet; time, 19:31 2-5. Georgetown sixth; time 19:32.

Cornell this afternoon won the greatest triumph of her history in boating, when the Ithacans literally swept the Hudson, winning all three events in the intercollegiate regatta, the Varsity, the Freshmen and the four-oared race. In each race the crews, coached by Charles Courtney, had to fight all the way from start to finish for victory. In only one of the three races did the Ithacans at any time let down on their speed. The Wisconsin boys won the second honors of the day, and to them belongs great credit for the splendid fights they made in the Varsity and Freshmen races, in both of which events they finished second strong to the Ithacans. In all three races Columbia finished third. In the four-oared Pennsylvania was second, but in the Varsity race the Quakers finished in the fourth place, and in the Freshman race they were fifth. The university of Syracuse beat the Quakers out for fourth place in the Freshmen event, and in the Varsity Syracuse fought Georgetown out in the last few lengths, beating the boys from Washington by less than a yard at the finish line. In none of the races were records touched, but in all the events the times were not far above the fastest that have been made on this course.

In spite of the clouds and rain, a big crowd came to see the races. All through the morning it seemed as though postponements would be necessary, but as the hour for the first race of the day drew near the wind died out and gradually the sun fought its way through a nasty gray sky. The races were all rowed under splendid conditions; the crews had a fair wind with them and a rippling tide to help them out. Courtney says that his eight had power enough to have lowered the record of 18:53 1-5 seconds, made by Cornell a year ago if his crew had only been harder pressed.

The story of the big Varsity race is the record of a hard struggle. Over the second mile Cornell began to gather her lead, but Columbia hung to Wisconsin for second place with a deadly grip, while Georgetown was almost nose and nose with the New Yorkers, with Pennsylvania and Syracuse only a few feet behind. This was the order of the boats right up to the last half-mile, where Pennsylvania spurted and finally Syracuse jumped ahead of Georgetown only a few yards from the finish.

DEVERY'S FAT FORTUNE.

Ex-Chief of Police Buys String of Property at One Sale.

New York, June 21.—New Yorkers have not fully recovered yet from the shock of the "shake up" in the police department made by commissioner of police Partridge, several days ago, and surprises are being sprung in the various precincts so rapidly that it is doubtful if the incident will soon die away in the memory of Gothamites. It does not seem quite possible for the laws to be enforced so thoroughly for several consecutives nights, but the new captains, or rather the shifted ones, are doing admirably and if they continue, New York will soon have the reform for which it voted last fall in a greater measure than the new administration has yet been able to give.

Ex- chief of police, William S. Devery, on whom the blame is laid for the defeat of Tammany Hall at the elections last fall on the ground that he sheltered vice and accepted bribes for so doing, manages to keep himself ever in the public eye. It is no secret that many wonder how Devery accumulated a fortune of half a million from a salary of a few thousands a year, even though he was on the force twenty years. The latest rumor is to the effect that he is going into the real estate business. Several cases of office effects have already arrived at offices in a big down town office building rented in his name and the ex-chief himself is expected shortly. Devery's most intimate connection with the realty market this year was his appearance in the auction room last February, when he purchased nearly $100,000 worth of tenements.

Aside from the political significance of the appointment of the Hon. Michael Herbert to succeed the late lord Pauncefote as ambassador of Great Britain to the United States, New York society is interested in the selection, for Mrs. Herbert is a former New York belle. She is the sister of the younger Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and a daughter of R. T. Wilson the banker. Mrs. Herbert is a strikingly beautiful woman, admirably fitted for her new position by her continued association with the elite of the Old World and there is no doubt that she will become immediately one of the leaders of Washington's smart set when her husband shall have assumed his duties at the capitol next autumn.

LAURIER ARRIVES AT LIVERPOOL

Liverpool, June 21.—Sir Wilfred Laurier, premier of Canada, who comes to England to attend the conference of colonial premiers and to be present at the coronation ceremonies, arrived here tonight on the Cunard liner Etruria from New York and started for London.

SPIKE SULLIVAN WORSTED

JABES WHITE AWARDED THE FIGHT ON POINTS.

AMERICAN WAS FLOORED IN THE NINTH ROUND.

London, June 21.—There was a small attendance at the opening tonight of the coronation boxing tournament, and little fighting was done. "Spike" Sullivan, the American boxer and Jabez White of England met in the first bout. The Englishman was a favorite at odds of 22 to 20. Both contestants were fit, though Sullivan looked a trifle fine drawn. The contest was mainly on scientific lines. White was the stronger of the two and did most of the leading and was adjudged the winner on points at the end of the stipulated round. There was little difference between the men until the ninth round, when White floored his rival with a neatly executed right. He assisted the American to rise, an innovation which was severely criticised. Recovering from his grogginess, Sullivan continued at a great pace, and the Englishman weakened under the pressure and used every method to avoid punishment, roughing it all the way. He was quicker on his feet and sprinted around the ring when "Spike" tried to corner him. Towards the end of the contest White used a long left jab most frequently. He won on points after a hard struggle.

New York, June 21.—Followers of the pugilistic game on this side of the water are awaiting with more amusement than interest the results of the so-called championship bouts to be pulled off in London during the coronation festivities. According to the programme the series of events is to be inaugurated tonight with a go between "Spike" Sullivan of America and Jabez White of England for the 134-pound championship of the world. Those who are to mix it up during the coming week are "Denver" Ed Martin and "Bob" Armstrong, "Joe" Walcott and "Tommy" West, Frank Erne and "Pat" Daly, and last and least "Tom" Sharkey and "Gus" Rublin, who are slated to decide the heavy-weight "championship." It would be difficult to get together a more representative lot of "has-beens" than the American fighters named, while the few Britishers to appear are of no large calibre, having taken their turn a long time ago at at being walloped by second-raters from this side of the water.

London, June 21.—Eddie Connelly of St. John, N. B., and Pat Daly of England met for the 141-pound championship. The fight was the fastest and most interesting event of the night and much surprise was expressed that the men were able to go the limit at such a terrific pace. Connelly, however, showed himself the better ring general and more scientific boxer and was given the decision on points. No Americans appeared for the wrestling bouts which proved to be rather a fiasco.

BURIED THE HATCHET.

King Edward Shows Special Consideration to the Marquis of Bute.

London, June 21.—A pleasing impression has been created by the report that the king has intimated his wish to have the young marquis of Bute attend the coronation, despite the fact the latter, according to strict rule and precedent, would not be entitled to admission to the abbey with his fellow peers. Lord Bute came of age today, but as he will not take his seat in the house of lords before the coronation ceremony he would not be allotted the seat proper to his rank at the great function next week, if there was a strict adherence to official etiquette. It now seems probable, however, that the question of form will be waived and the young marquis will be found seated among his elders, instead of on the special bench provided for peers and peeresses in their own right who are minors.

If king Edward makes an exception in this case it will not be the first time he has showed favor toward the young marquis. A year ago when the marquis of Bute was received in audience by the king for the purpose of returning to the sovereign his dead father's insignia of the Order of the Thistle, the king was exceptionally cordial and gracious to the young peer, and by his conduct he gave all to understand that the ill will and almost downright animosity towards the court manifested by the late lord Bute during the late reign in connection with treatment to which his aunt, the unfortunate lady Flora Hastings, had been subjected while a member of the royal household some sixty years ago had become a thing of the past.

The permission to lord Bute to sit with his elders will leave an even dozen little peers and peeresses to occupy the special bench. Little lady Clifton will have to bring her nurse with her, but lady Beaumont (judging from her self-possession as bridesmaid at a wedding the other day) will be quite able to take care of herself. As to the boy peers, most of them as the duke of Leinster, marquis Conyngham, and lords Camoys, Torrington de Clifford, Holmpatrick, and others, are of schoolboy age, and quite as competent to hold their own in a crowd as one or two of the nonagenarian nobles who may be expected to put in an appearance at Westminster next Thursday.

COMBINE AGAINST LABOR DEMANDS

Chicago, June 20.—It is reported today that the plans for the formation of an association of merchants for the purpose of protection against unreasonable demands of labor are nearing completion, and within another week it is expected to have every store owner of prominence in the city enlisted in the movement. The demands made upon merchants in the past, especially in the course of the recent strike of department store wagon drivers, are said to be the chief force that has caused the business men to get together for mutual protection. Organized labor threatens to retaliate with a general boycott of all the stores that may become members of the new organization.

IN MEMORY OF AMOS CUMMINGS.

New York, June 21.—Many prominent men in public life have accepted invitations to attend the memorial service in honor of Congressman Amos J. Cummings, which will be held in Carnegie Music hall tomorrow afternoon. The services, which promise to be of unusual note, will be under the auspices of Typographical Union No. 6, of which Mr. Cummings was a member for more than forty years. Addresses will be delivered by congressman John S. Williams, of Mississippi, and David H. Mercer, of Nebraska, General James R. O'Beirne, and the Rev. L. J. Evers, the printers' priest.

JEST OF THE JACOBITES

LONDON IS PLACARDED WITH SENSATIONAL READING.

CLAIM EDWARD'S THRONE FOR MARY OF BAVARIA.

London, June 21.—The Jacobites who from time to time amuse the country by exhibitions of loyalty to the house of Stuart, placarded London in the dead of night with a document proclaiming the archduchess Therese, of Bavaria, as the rightful queen heiress to the British throne. The proclamation was worded as follows: "Whereas by the decree of our sovereign lord and king Francis XX., in November, of the year of grace 1875, the crown of these realms did by just lineal succession descend to his niece and heiress, the lady Mary Therese Dorothea, archduchess of Modena, we, the loyal people of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales, hereby assert, as our forefathers have done, the right of primogeniture in the descent of the crown of these kingdoms, and the indefeasible claim therefor of her royal and imperial highness of the house of Plantagenet and of Stuart.

FREE TRADE IMPOSSIBLE.

Colonies Require Tariffs for Revenue and Could Not Drop Them.

London, June 21.—In an interview today on the subject of the forthcoming colonial conference, Edmund Barton, premier of Australia, said he considered that an imperial customs union was not within the bounds of practical politics, though it might be possible many years hence. Free trade within the empire now would deprive the young communities of their main source of revenue, namely, the customs, and render it impossible to carry on their internal government successfully. Mutual tariff concessions within the empire stand on a more practical basis and he hoped to see the difficulties in the way of such concessions removed.

ROBERTSON'S NEW MISSION.

Ottawa, June 21.—It is thought here that Lord Milner contemplates establishing in South Africa an experimental farm, similar to those in Canada. This inference is drawn from the fact that lord Milner's secretary has been communicating with professor Robertson, from whom he obtained full information as to the character of the experimental farms of agriculture in this country. There is said to be a possibility that professor Robertson may go to South Africa to give the administrators of the Transvaal and Orange River colony the benefit of his experience with respect to the development of agricultural industry and the adaptability of different sections of the country for various farming pursuits.

A FASHIONABLE HOTEL ON FIRE.

Newport News, Virgina, June 21.—The Munro Beach hotel is burning. It has 200 guests, and a big summer theatre and pavilion adjoins the building that is now ablaze.

THEY WANT ARBITRATION

Silk Workers Want Militia Withdrawn.

HAVE QUIT WORK IN PROTEST

THEIR ACTION COMPLICATES THE SITUATION.

City Officials Afraid to Meet the Request and Have Decided to Post the Soldiers in the Mills.

Patterson, New Jersey, June 21.—A meeting of all the trades unions connected with the silk industry in this place was held late today. It was decided not to go to work again in the mills until the militia had been withdrawn from the city. No formal strike was inaugurated but the matter was left in the above shape. In addition to this the unions decided to send a committee to the mill owners on Monday to ask them to submit the differences which exist between the owners and the dyers helpers to arbitration.

The city officials decided to post the militia at the mills tonight and keep them there until all trouble is over.

New York, June 21.—The silk mill Hudson county, New Jersey, met in this city and decided to open the mills on Monday morning. The mills have been shut down since the Patterson troubles began. The owners have asked the Hudson county authorities to give them protection when the mills open.

CHICAGO RACES.

Chicago, June 21.—Coming with a sweeping stride through the stretch the game colt Wyeth, owned by John A. Drake, won his first Derby and upheld the traditions of the race by the overthrow of favorites, and by the western horses beating the best that could be sent from the east. There was no room for argument about the best horse winning, the race was free from rough riding or anything in the nature of a foul, was cleanly run, and Wyeth was the best of the twelve three year old colts that lined up at the barrier today before Starter Dwyer.

BERKELEY EASY VICTORS

NELSON UNABLE TO CONNECT WITH OVERALL.

LOCALS PLAYED VERY RAGGED FIELDING GAME.

The ball game yesterday afternoon was not as well patronized as the management of the Nelson club expected it would be. This was doubtless owing to the conviction of most people that the locals were outclassed, and it takes a stout lover of the game to go and see his home team walloped, and to have this in his mind as the only certainty. The locals were walloped, but this was by no means the most disappointing feature of the game, for in addition to this the home team failed to play good ball.

Shaw replaced Sheere in the box for Nelson yesterday. He was not what one might call effective but he played his position much better than most of the other members did theirs. All told there were 13 hits charged up against him, but the support which he received from the first would take the heart out of a finished artist. Gibson, Whittet and McCreary were the only members of the Nelson team who came out of the game without cause for regret. All the old stand-bys were up in the air. Harry Houston, who generally distinguishes himself in the course of a game, figured principally in the error column. He made a couple of bad plays early in the game and decided to get into the outfield, but his bad luck followed him and he earned a couple of others. He changed off with Sheere, and the latter after giving promise of looking after his territory well, also fell down. The thing was contagious. Worth at short, Eacritt at second, and McDonald in left all contributed costly errors, so that the 13 hits secured by the visitors netted them as many runs.

Overall, the star pitcher for the visitors, was in the box. He had the Nelson men at his mercy all the time. Four hits were made off him, but when a hit would have been dangerous he did not allow it to be made. Nelson had but one opportunity to score. It came in the first inning. With two men out and Gibson on first, Worth made a hit into right and Gibson got around to third. Overall made a baulk and Worth walked, but for some reason Gibson did not, and Eacritt's strike-out retired the side.

Sheere got a hit in the second, but the next three men went out in rapid succession, Whittet, with a short hit to short being the only one of the three to hit the ball. In the fifth Whittet hit safely to center, and traveled to third on passed balls, but McDonald and Houston retired the side with strike-outs. There were visions of a run in the seventh. McCreary opened with a double into center. Whittet filed out to center, and McDonald reached first on an error at short. With but one man gone Houston forced McCreary out at third, and McKeown's running catch of Shaw's hit into right again put Nelson out of business. In the remaining two innings Eacritt was the only man to reach first. He got there on an error at third, but was caught napping on the base a few minutes later.

Just how the visitors made their string of runs must be gathered from the score. It would not make pleasant reading on Sunday morning. The score is appended:

BOERS ARE IMPERIALISTS

FIRST YEAR'S WAR LOSSES WERE UNUSUALLY HEAVY.

FIGURES COMPARED WITH OTHER MODERN CONFLICTS.

London, June 21.—The Times publishes an article on South African casualties from its Actuarial correspondent, which says that, excepting during the first year's fighting, when the losses in battle and by disease were heavy, the casualities in South Africa compare favorably with those of more recent campaigns for which trustworthy figures are obtainable.

In the last year of the American civil war, the total death rate of officers and men, which previously had been much higher, was reduced to 46.49 per 1000, and in the Franco-Prussian war the total death rate was 46 per 1000. In South Africa during the closing months of the war the total morality has been 30.03. These figures show how the war tends to become less deadly under modern conditions, especially when these conditions become understood by experience.

It is noticeable that not many more died of disease in South Africa during the last eight months than would have been the case if there had been no war. The average death rate of British troops in foreign service is 15 per 1000 and in South Africa it was 18.01.

It is surprising, says the Times correspondent at Pretoria, how intimate is the friendship which has sprung up between British officers and Boer leaders, who joined hands in order to put an end to devastation in South Africa, rapidly being brought about through the obstinacy of guerilla leaders. It certainly would be difficult to get together a finer body of men than these leaders of what is an imperialist movement among the Boers.

ENGLISHMEN THE VICTORS.

Saturday's Polo Match Was the Finest in the Series

London, June 21.—The polo game between the American and English teams, which was played today, was a finer exhibition in every way than either of its predecessors, the ground, though soft and rather dead, fas better than might have been expected. Both teams meant to do their best, and the pace was fast throughout. There was not much apparent superiority in the English ponies, yet, they were rather faster and, perhaps handier, but it is only fair to attribute the English victory to George Miller's good captaining, he led the team beautifully and cool, and Patson Nickals obeyed each word, trusting to him fully. There was not so much actual team playing in the case of the Englishmen, it was rather an exhibition of discipline and subordination. The buck master played a great game. He was never in a hurry, never flurried and never disturbed. He always dropped on the ball at exactly the right time. His back handers were true and clean, and when now and again he came up into the game, his long shots were splendidly true in their direction. The American team played well together, and in the long run the way they backed each other up, was beyond praise. Keene was brilliant an never in his life played a finer game. It is curious to note, that on the whole, the Americans failed in that which was their strong point, their defence. They attacked much oftener than when the first game of the series, but the English defence was too good. No team could play a finer uphill game than did the Americans and there was not nearly so much advantage to the English team as the score suggests—6 to 1.

NEGRO BECOMES PRIEST.

Baltimore, June 21.—The Rev. J. Harry Dorsey, colored, was ordained a priest in the Roman Catholic church today. The ordination was performed in the cathedral, cardinal Gibbons officiating with the assistance of all the prominent priests of the diocese. Father Dorsey has the distinction of being the second colored man ever ordained to the Catholic priesthood in this country. He is a native of this city and received his education in the public schools here, and subsequently at St. Paul, where he had the extraordinary honor of studying history, philosophy and theology under the preceptorship of archbishop Ireland. Young Mr. Dorsey remained several years in Epiphany college here and was graduated in 1893. He then entered St. Jos eph's seminary, through which he managed to pass in spite of illness and the peculiar difficulty of the studies he was compelled to master. In all, he has spent fourteen years in arduous preparation for the ministry. Tomorrow he will say his first mass.

CANADIANS WON.

Lacrosse Match at New York Between International Teams.

New York, June 21.—Superior work with the stick, fast running, tricky dodging and heavier weight on the part of the Shamrocks, champions of the Blue Ribbon lacrosse team of Canada today, worked the downfall of the Crescent Athletic Club team on the field at Bay Ridge. The final score was 15 to 7. The Canadians won last years' match with the Crescents by a score of 8 to 5. For the Shamrocks' side today, John Currie made the majority of the long runs. Robinson, Hootin, McKeown and the Brennan brothers distinguished themselves by heir all-round developed game in which sure stick work and forceful throwing were most prominent.

BOUNDARY ORE SHIPMENTS.

Phoenix, June 21.—(Special to The Daily News.)—Although the heaviest shippers have temporarily curtailed shipments of ore, the record from the Boundary for this week is a good one, the total of ore being sent out amounting to 12,496 tons. Two furnaces at the Granby smelter were blown out this week on account of lack of coke, but it is expected that by next week a third can be blown in again, and by the next week the fourth will be running. The starting of the additional furnace at the Greenwood smelter and the new one at Boundary Falls, however, has helped to keep up the average. For the week the following mines sent out ore: Granby mines, 6684 tons; Snowshoe, 420 tons; Mother Lode, 3232 tons; Sunset, 1120 tons; B. C., 840 tons; Jewel, 200 tons; total for the week, 12,496 tons; total for the year to date, 240,596 tons.

At the Granby smelter this week, 6996 tons of ore were treated, making a total of 161,069 tons for the year 1902.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS MEET.

Great Barrington, Massachusetts, June 21.—The final session of the convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers was held today, and was devoted to the discussion of the education of an electrical engineer. The principal address was that of president Steinetz, who spoke on the general topic for discussion.

EBERTS GOES TO ENGLAND

WILL ASSIST IN CELEBRATED APPEAL CASE.

IT INVOLVES RIGHT OF JAPS TO VOTE IN B. C.

Victoria, June 21.—(Special to The Daily News.)—The house finished its business at midnight, sang the national anthem and gave three cheers for the king. The formal prorogation takes place at noon tomorrow.

Victoria, June 21.—The house prorogued at noon. The prorogation speech contained nothing of importance.

Victoria, June 21.—Attorney-general Eberts expects to leave for England tonight in response to a telegram which he has received from Christopher Robinson, who is at London, representing British Columbia in an important appeal before the privy council. The case in question is the famous Tomy Homa action, and involves the question of whether naturalized Mongolians have the right to the franchise, the same as other British subjects. Christopher Robinson is anxious that the law officer of the crown in this province, who is naturally familiar with every aspect of the case, should join him and give him the assistance of his knowledge and advice in the appeal. If Mr. Eberts can conclude his business, he will get away tonight.

NEW PLACER DISCOVERY.

Town of Valdes Is Shut Up Owing to the Rush.

Seattle, June 21.—The discovery of rich placer diggings on the Nizini river, Alaska, has caused a stampede from the Valdes country that surpasses anything of the kind since the Nome excitement. Valdes is depopulated, and stores and saloons are closed. Horses are bringing exorbitant prices. Many have started out on foot with only their blankets, pan and pick. News of the find was brought to Valdes by M. T. Rowland and E. C. Van Brunt. Rowland is a Montana mining man. He has had considerable experience in the Yukon valley and at Nome. He brought with him a considerable quantity of coarse gold. Many of the nuggets were as large as beans. The placers are yielding from 20 cents to $2 a pan under adverse circumstances, and bedrock is only three feet down. Rowland says he believes that the Nizini and Koizina country will prove to be one of the richest mining camps in Alaska.

"We know that just beyond this new discovery are the richest copper properties in the world," said Mr. Rowland, "and we are certain that a railroad will be built to this property. I believe that before the road is built one of the richest placer gold districts in Alaska will be opened up, and the railroad will go through the centre of it."

COMPLETE SUSPENSION

Will Be the Last Card of the Striking Miners.

WILL AVOID IT IF POSSIBLE

PRESIDENT MITCHELL ISSUES A STATEMENT TOMORROW.

Anthracite Miners Round Out the Sixth Week of Their Great Struggle With Very Little Lawlessness.

Wilkesbarre, June 21—The anthracite mine-workers' strike rounded out its sixth week today without incident. The strike of 1900, when the men won a 10 per cent. increase, lasted exactly six weeks. In that struggle the lives of several persons were sacrificed, but in this strike, the worst that has happened was the shooting of a boy two weeks ago, who is now slowly recovering.

President Mitchell had a conference with district president Nicholas Duffy and Fahey this afternoon. Among the business considered was the public statement which Mr. Mitchell will issue to-morrow for publication in Monday morning's newspapers. The national president declined to say anything regarding this statement. It will be a complete review of the miners' side of the controversy. Nothing developed at strike headquarters today bearing upon the question of involving the bituminous men in the anthracite strike. Daniel J. Keef, of Detroit, national president of the longshoremen's union, arrived here late this afternoon, and called on president Mitchell. Both said it was a social call.

Wilkesbarre, June 21.—The great barrier to be overcome in the campaign for a national suspension is the yearly wage scale agreement that many of the soft coal miners have with the companies. These agreements are looked upon as contracts, and a large percentage of miners in the west are rather averse to breaking them.

The principal bone of contention in the anthracite region is for a yearly wage agreement. Those who are opposed to a general strike use the argument that if the soft coal miners break these contracts and go on strike to help the anthracite men, they would be losing in the west what the hard coal miners are fighting for in the east.

Some of the national leaders who have discussed the subject with the Associated Press correspondent at strike headquarters say that if the life of the organization was in danger the convention would not hesitate for a moment to call for a strike. It is admitted that the real object of the anthracite coal operators is to break up the union in this part of the country at least.

It is not improbable that the conservative men in the convention will be able to prevent a general suspension and carry through the convention some sort of a compromise. One plan that is talked of is to have only the central Pennsylvania and West Virginia men help the anthracite workers, and another plan is to have all the soft coal miners work only a certain number of days each week. Failing to gain anything by either of these two moves, then as a final card stop the production altogether. All the coal that is now coming east is from central Pennsylvania, West Virgina and Maryland.

There will be about 1,000 delegates in the convention. Each local union will have one vote for each 100 members or fraction of that number, and an additional vote for each majority fraction. Ten delegates can be sent to the convention, yet the delegation may have but one vote among them.

Clearfield, June 21.—Patrick Cilday, president of the district miners' union, issued an official order to-day reciting that bituminous coal is being shipped to points east to aid in breaking the strike in the anthracite region. In order to prevent this it is ordered that the output of northern and central Pennsylvania be restricted, and the miners are notified to not work more than four days a week.

The order is the result of an interview between president Gilday and national president Mitchell.

HE FAVORS SUBSIDIES.

London, June 26.—Testifying before the house of commons committeee on steamship subsides today, lord Brassey, a former civil lord of the admiralty, said he favored the policy of subsidizing ocean liners for use as armed cruisers. Undoubtedly it would be to the public advantage to have a number of auxiliary war vessels, but it could not be accepted without subsidies. The owners of the Cunard line now remained as the only British champions in the Atlantic traffic and it would be a national disaster if the line was transferred to a foreign flag. If the Cunard line could not hold its own unassisted, the government ought, from patriotic motives, to render the assistance necessary to retain the company under the British flag.

THE SESSION.

The provincial legislature, after a session lasting four months, has at length, to the unbounded satisfaction of the country, shut up shop for a season. Since the opening ceremonies on February 20th up to the very last the government have admirably sustained their reputation for instability and vascillation. This reputation, though not an enviable one, is the only thing they have earned since they took office, always excepting the righteous indignation of an outraged people. With few exceptions the session has been barren of good work. It has been marked by repeated attempts to thwart the expressed will of the people, and the persistent efforts to force the inquitous measures granting land subsidies through the house are instances of this disregard of popular opinion. By reason of the vagaries of the government, the name of British Columbia has almost become a bye-word in other parts of the Dominion, and the ill effects have not been restricted to Canada. Several good measures have been passed during the session but, as a rule, these have not been government bills, but have been fathered by private members. The railway policy, the so-called progressive railway policy, about which so much was heard before the session began, did not materialise but in its stead there was given to the world a most disgraceful exhibition of instability. Instead of having a crisp policy to present to the house the government betrayed their incapacity and general unpreparedness by entering into arrangements with subsidy hunters without regard to the interests of the people whom they are supposed to serve. When defeat stared them in the face, they cut and shuffled and made an entirely new deal, ending at last by succeeding in framing bills to whose passage the majority of members would and did consent. The measures so passed have no semblance to the originals and the government have departed from the policy they outlined at the time of the Victoria by-election, without giving any reason for the change of front. Then there was the attempt to dispose of the foreshore rights for trap fishing. They took a stand only to recede from it again, in order to obtain a longer lease of their precarious existence. But there is one stand they took to which they have adhered with a pertinacity worthy of a better cause. For months the electors of North Victoria have been deprived of any voice in the affairs of the province. The late speaker Booth was removed by the hand of the grim reaper when the session was yet young. Time and time again the government were urged to bring on the by-election to fill the vacant seat, but as often as the request was made the government refused to accede to it. An act of the very gravest injustice has been perpetrated upon a long suffering people by this arbitrary disregard of the constitutional rights of the electorate of an important section of the province. All through the session, from start to finish, North Victoria has been as though it were not.

To turn to another and pleasanter side of the picture, perhaps the most, ray, undoubtedly the most, important measure of the session was the redistribution bill, which while not perfect is nevertheless a fairly satisfactory step in the right direction. Many of the unjust disabilities under which some of the constituencies labored for so long have been removed by the new act and its enactment is a bright spot on a dark background. Some of the amendments to existing statutes and a few bills introduced by private members give promise of meeting requirements, but as has already been said, the session has not been a very productive one, and the feeling is one of intense relief that the farce has been brought to a close. The programme outlined in the speech from the throne has not been carried out, and possibly, judging from what has transpired, it is better so. The succeeding sitting of the house may be attended with better and more wholesome results.

PRINTERS' INK PHILOSOPHY.

It is scarcely necessary to point out to the shrewd and successful business man the necessity of advertising in dull times.

It pays to advertise at all times, but it is during the dull season that the best returns are secured, all things considered.

The period of prosperity creates its own business, but this incentive ceases when dullness comes on. Not so with the merchant's expense.

Every dollar's worth of trade that is created through special inducements during the dull summer season is a distinct gain.

The returns may turn loss into profit; they "turn over" the stock in trade, instead of allowing it to remain idle on the shelves. This means fresh goods and later styles.

Trade inducements in dull times attract a very desirable class of customers—a class that knows the value of money, people who are determined to get their money's worth, but who have the money to pay for what they buy.

Others, whose custom is none the less desirable, wait for dull season bargains because they must make their money go as far as possible; with them every nickel and dime saved counts.

These and other classes of bargain hunters have come to depend upon the daily newspaper to learn what the merchant has to offer.

Such are the conditions that prevail during the dull summer season in many lines of business. The merchant who creates trade is so much ahead of his rival who does not.

NEW YORK FASHION LETTER

TIPS FOR THOSE WHO WOULD KEEP TO THE FRONT.

BEWILDERING TALK WHICH THE WOMEN ALONE SAVEY.

New York, June 21.—The song of the summer girl is blithesome and free, for her heart is light with the gladness of new-found joys. Advance midsummer fashions are upon us only to add to the confusion of the woman who wants to be well-dressed, for though many are shown, few are chosen save by her whose purse-strings are never ending.

A little feature that is playing an important part in the accessories of fashion is the waist band, and one has to be very careful when glittering belts assail one on every side. Black and white elastic bands, decorated with cut steel paillettes are still being worn, but they are somewhat giving place to satin and glace bands, boned and fitted as carefully as a bodice. Then there are all sorts of attractive, pale-colored kids and leathers arranged with gold buckles; others in suede are allowed to fasten at their own sweet will, and are finished with straps and buckles like a saddle girth.

Pompadour designs are very fashionable among thin materials, and make up into the most elegant looking gowns. A dainty muslin which has the skirt made with a shirred yoke, is figured with tiny pink roses on a white background. These flowered materials are as varied as the designs, ranging from stately pompadour brocades for the dowager, to the crisp, fresh organdy for the little maid. The very latest summer fabrics are really so decorative looking themselves that they require little trimming.

Next to the mulls and lawns for ordinary wear ,are the linens, piques and ducks. A very smart jacket and skirt costume of pale blue butcher's linen, trimmed with strappings of the same material, piped with butter colored batiste forms a charming summer gown. The points of the strappings are held down with tiny gold buttons, and the jacket with Eton fronts has a tiny postillion back which makes the ensemble exceeding chic. Under the jacket a tucked white silk blouse is worn, gathered in at the waist with a narrow gold belt.

Pongee silks are cool and comfortable, deliciously so. They are not only worn for smart summer frocks, but constitute a neat and smart travelling gown. A bewitching design is made with seven-gored skirt, having two broad, shaped bands down the front seams, these showing many rows of stitching. Five tucks flare around the foot.

The blouse is laid in tucks and plaites with a band of pongee embroidered with blue and red down the front and down the shoulder seams. The collar is of the pongee, tucked and set off with an embroidered turnover. The sleeves are likewise tucked and gathered into a band at the wrist of embroidered pongee. A distinguishing feature of the whole affair is the belt of black velvet ribbon running through a pearl buckle, the velvet being appliqued with coarse hand-painted lace.

Pongee has one advantage in that it is becoming combined with almost any color. Never is it more fashionable than when associated with black, if the latter material be taffeta or peau de soie. Mourning gowns of pongee and black are delightfully chic and afford great relief from the black and white combinations, which must inevitably become monotonous. Lined with black they are more beautiful still.

For a light weight silk and woollen goods voile is a la mode. In fact it is one of the dominant features of the summer's modes. Dame Fashion's latest fancy is to have them made in one color over a lining of another. A twine-colored voile over green is one of the most successful designs of the year, and nothing is prettier unless it be a shot voile in green and lilac draped over heliotrope silk. Green is one of the most fashionable of the season's colors and it is seen in very bright, vivid shades. All are extremely clear, however, and this renders them more harmonious in getting up effective color schemes.

The freshness and daintiness of organdie make it ever welcome to the woman of fashionable pretensions, and besides, it is appropriate for evening as well as day wear. One of the well-known Fifth avenue establishments is exhibiting some artistic evening toilettes in different tints of color, made of silk foundations, and trimmed most elaborately with lace appliques, insertions, strappings or embroideries, put on with a prodigal disregard of expense. The number of yards now required by the dressmakers to trim summer gowns is somewhat dismaying, but fortunately there are leagues of fancy patterns with meshes as fine as those real designs, that are everywhere in use, and at prices ranging from the lowest to the highest prices.

Fashion clings persistently to the long flowing outlines that lend so much grace and willowness to the figure. These will be maintained throughout the summer, not only for the reasons aforesaid, but also because of their apparent simplicity which to the initiated eye reveals consummate care and taste on the part of the designer. Plain tucks are less in evidence, having given place to the tiny piped or hair-cord tucks, which are particularly effective.

Novelties are numerous and pretty. Something new in French designs is a white India mull necktie, tucked in points at the ends and trimmed with medallions and one deep frill of lace. A turn-down collar and narrow turnback cuffs to match are added to the tie. Black and white batiste sets are also shown, and draped stocks and undersleeves, with fine real Valenciennes lace, gathered at the edges of both neck and wristbands, are among the dainty things worn by Parisiennes, the foreign writers tell us.

Decorations which are really one trimming applied to another appear to be very popular in almost any manner in which that result can be accomplished. One method is shown in the hand-painted laces which are used in motif designs, flowers and leaves. The beauty of this idea is that it can be employed in utilizing pieces of lace left over from the decorating of various gowns. The flowers or other devices are cut away from the net foundation and these bits of lace painted in natural colors.

The echo of the prophet who prophesied that women would soon adopt the Panama hats so fashionable among men has not died hardly, before his word has come true. The fedora in its masculine stiffness is tabooed, for only the feminine is admissible this season, and our friend the Panama is being turned and twisted into all kinds of shapes for travelling and everyday wear. The entire ensemble of this design is simplicity itself, for a band of plaid silk or foulard is all that is required as a trimming. There are a few models twisted into fanciful shapes and piled with roses and ribbon, and these are delightful, but such treatment requires the genuine article, and when it is considered that a real Panama in the rough costs in the neighborhood of $25, one pauses before investing so much in a bare bit of head gear.

MAUDE GRIFFIN.

PLAYING CORONATION PARTS

CEREMONIAL BRINGS TO LIGHT OLD TRADITIONS.

A FEW DEPARTURES PRODUCE PRESS COMMENT.

London, June 21.—Such illuminations, festooning and flagging as will mark coronation day, on Thursday next, have never before been in London. Scarcely a house along the principal streets of the route of the procession but has electric or gas devieses, while a profusion of gay cloths and flags interspersed with mottos and representations of the royal arms have already hid most of the outer wall. Some of the streets, are already roped with dazzling festoons of fairy lamps. Even the abused stands, which for weeks have made London so hideous with their bare boards, are now rapidly being draped in rich purple or other suitable colors. The United States embassy has oined in the general jubilation, and is erecting an illumination surrounded by a crown, and a similar devise tops the Morgan's city office. Throughout London American firms and individuals are not a whit behind the British in decorating their premises.

London, June 21.—Now that the main outlines of king Edwards' coronation procession in Westminster Abbey have been made known it is evident that while historical precedents have been faithfully respected there are certain departures of great interest. The temporary structure at the west front of the abbey carries out, upon larger scale and in shppier detail, an annex that was made for the crowning of queen Victoria. It is in this hall that the procession will be formed, and here will be in waiting the prebendaries and the dean of Westminster, with the regalia brought from the Jerusalem Chamber, where they will have been kept, under guard, for the night.

Tapestry has always been extensively used for decoration at coronations, and the pieces to be employed on this occasion will include some of the finest existing examples of the old Gobelins work. The prebendaries will be vested in their new and specially made copes of bath red brocaded velvet, with the device in gold of St. Edward's crown and the Tudor rose upon them. The dean, however, is expected to wear by special permission the cope made for lord John Thynne, who, as subdean, officiated for dean Ireland at the coronation of queen Victoria. This is of royal blue silk, with a close, scroll like design in gold brocading.

It is noticeable, The London Daily Telegraph points out, that the standards of Scotland, Ireland and England are to be borne by commoners, which was not the case at the coronation of either George IV. or queen Victoria. Mr. Henry Serymgeour Wedderburn successfully maintained his rights before the court of claims as hereditary standard bearer of Scotland. Mr. F. S. Dymoke, who carries the standard of England, is the hereditary champion, but, as the picturesque formality of defying the king's enemies is not being fulfilled, the king himself suggested that the undisputed right of the lords of the manor of Scrivelsby should be recognized in this happy and dignified manner. The flag of Ireland will be bore by the right honorable O'Connor Don. The banners will be beautifully painted and emblazoned, but not embroidered.

The only item of the queen's regalia carried by the king is her ring. This, as it is indicated, will be on the lines of those always assumed by the queen consort, and will consist of a table ruby, with an entire hoop of the same stones round the finger. Preceding the queen will be the archbishop of York, who subsequently will place the crown upon her head, while the bishops supporting her majesty will be the bishop of Oxford and the bishop of Norwich. The sovereign is always supported by the bishop of Durham and the bishop of Bath and Wells, who claim the distinction as the right of their respective sees, but no such limitations exist with regard to the king's consort.

Of the three last queens crowned, Caroline of Anspach, wife of George II., was supported by the bishops of Winchester and London; queen Charlotte by the bishops of Norwich and Lincoln, and queen Adelaide by the archbishop of Armagh and the bishop of Winchester.

The most notable innovation that queen Alexandar introduces is that of having her train borne by six pages, who will assist the mistress of the robes in that duty. Queen Charlotte had her train carried by the princess royal and the princesses Amelia and Caroline by princess Augusta and six daughters of earls, and queen Adelaide had also six daughters of earls.

The pages chosen by queen Alexandra are all young, the marquis of Stafford (son of the duke of Sutherland), and the earl of Macclesfield, both being just 14 years of age. The duchess of Buccleuch, as mistress of the robes, has, of course, the chief responsibility of this office, and will, in the words of the rubric, "constantly attend her majesty during the whole solemnity."

The details of the queen's robes and crown are not yet fully available, but the immense train will be of the richest imperial purple velvet, with ermine lining, and cape of the choicest fur, while the most sumptuous gold embroidery will adorn both dresses and train. The mistress of the robes wears the robes of her rank as duchess, but distinguished by rich gold embroidery of special design upon the kirtle and sides of her train. Queen Alexandra is giving places in the procession to her household, and the four maids of honor will wear white.

The pages who will bear the king's train are all minors, but peers in their own right. The marquis Conyngham and the earl of Portarlington, are both 19, the earl of Caledon is 17, and the duke of Leinster, lord Vernon and lord Somers are from two to three years younger. The cap of state is worn in the procession without any crown or circlet, but is laid aside with the parliament robes for the anointing.

The four Knights of the Garter who have been summoned to hold the canopy over the king during the act of anointing are earl Cadogan, earl Spencer, the earl of Rosebery and earl of Derby. The canopy itself is formed of cloth-of-gold, and worked with thedevice of the imperial eagle, according to past custom. The same canopy is used later for the queen, when it is borne by four peeresses. The ladies who have received Garter King of Arms' instructions to perform the duty are the duchess of Portland, the duchess of Marlborough, the duchess of Sutherland and the duchess of Montrose, who will wear the crimson velvet robes of their rank.

REDMOND DOES NOT LIKE IT

DENOUNCES MEASURES TO CURB THE IRISH LEAGUE.

MOST FORMIDABLE STEP TAKEN AGAINST AGITATORS.

London, June 21.—Aside from the coronation, the chief topic in London at present is furnished by the writ issued from the vice-chancellor's court in Dublin to restrain John Redmond and 29 of his colleagues from pursuing the land agitation in Connaught and for damages for alleged injury done to lord De Freyne by the United Irish League. De Freyne is the nominal plaintiff, but it is a government scheme advised by the attorney-general.

The proceeding has caused a big sensation both here and in Ireland. John Redmond, M. P., the chairman of the Irish party, gave the following statement in explanation of this suit:

"Chief secretary Wyndham having funked in suppressing the United Irish League in the ordinary way, now hopes to do it through the instrumentality of a notorious partisan judge. He has caused a suit for damages and for an injunction to restrain members of the governing body of the league to be brought in the vice-chancellor's court, a proceeding without a precedent. This judge, the willing instrument of the landlord party, will issue the injunction demanded. Then when any enjoined Irish member makes a speech he will have the member up for contempt of court, put him in jail without trial for an indefinite period and without appeal. He will also, under the law of contempt as it exists in Ireland, seize the papers and documents of the league, attach its funds and the private funds of the enjoined members.

"This is by far the most formidable step against this movement the government has taken in Ireland for many years, and the most cowardly. It means a national movement and that Dublin castle is once more in death grips. If it should succeed it would end in the personal ruin and imprisonment of all the leaders in the movement. But that would have consequences satisfactory to neither the government nor the landlords.

"It is evident that we are going to have stirring times for the coronation in Ireland."

NELSON'S NEWS OF THE DAY

News was received yesterday of the birth of a daughter to Rev. and Mrs. J. Young, Ymir.

The steamer International on Saturday brought in one car of ore from the Reco, for the Hall Mines smelter.

Robert Hood, of J. Y. Griffin & Co., was receiving the congratulations of his many friends and acquaintances yesterday, on the birth of a daughter.

The C. P. R. city ticket office will be open this afternoon from 4 to 6 p. m., for accommodation of those desirous to purchase excursion tickets to Vancouver, Victoria and reserve sleeping berths.

Architect McDonald, of Nelson, has in hand plans for the erection of a brick block at Fernie. The building is to be two storeys high and contain accommodations for four stores.

A dairyman named Harrison was brought before the mayor yesterday morning on the charge that his cows were creating a nuisance on the public streets. The case was adjourned till Monday to allow the accused to defend himself.

The fish were biting well yesterday afternoon, and a number of good strings were taken. At the city and C. P. R. wharf the fishermen were most successful. J. Coxhead at the latter wharf took several trout, the largest of which weighed two and one-quarter pounds.

The Great Northern offer especially quick service to Victoria for coronation day, leaving Nelson at 9.40 a. m., passengers arrive at Victoria at 3 p. m. on the following day, and Vancouver at 3.50 p. m. Fare, $19.30. Round trip tickets, good 15 days.

Work was commenced yesterday on repairing the bridge on Vernon street, near Stanley street, which had become unsafe fo rteams through the rotting of some of the planks.

Ten crates of local strawberries came in yesterday, and were disposed of immediately on arrival. The wholesalers have stopped importing berries, depending on the local crop, which, owing to the cool weather, is very backward.

The services of S. Williams have been secured for the lacrosse match on coronation day with Cranbrook. The Nelson team is practising every evening, as it is expected that the match will be a hard one.

The members of the Berkeley college baseball team are to be taken for a drive this morning over the Nelson-Granite road, to visit the Poorman-Granite mine and mill. Harry Wright and Dr. McLennan have the affair in hand.

A train of nine cars loaded with rock from the waste dump of the Le Roi mine came in yesterday. The C. P. R. are making considerable improvements in the appearance of the station premises at a number of points in this division, and Le Roi waste is being used for macadamizing the yards.

The steamer Moyie commences on the run between Nelson and Kootenay Landing this morning in place of the Nelson, which is to be taken to the shipyards for repairs. The Nelson had even a narrower escape in the big storm on the lake this week than was reported at first. It appears that the waves ripped off most of the boards of the lower forward deck, and then the water quickly filled the coal bunkers, when the boat was turned to run for shelter.

J. Whittemore, who was employed for some time at the Hall Mines smelter, but went to Fernie in the early spring to work in the mine, returned to Nelson this week. At the time of the disaster in the mine it was reported that he was one of the victims, but he escaped. On the day of the explosion he was taking the dinners in for the men. He had gone but a short distance along the tunnel when he was overtaken by another man taking in an empty truck. This man offered to take the dinners. This was accepted, and Whittemore went out, and had scarcely passed the portal of the tunnel when the explosion took place. The man who had been taking the lunches in was among the dead.

Manager Annable of the Nelson opera house this week received a letter from the manager of the Rossland opera house in regard to the Clara Mathes company, which has been playing a two weeks' engagement there, in which the writer says that they are the best repertoire company by long odds that has been there. The company is well balanced and everyone up to their work, and the costumes and scenery they have with them for staging the plays are very good. He also says: "I don't know where Clara Mathes has been since she was last here, but she must have worked hard, as she is much better than when last here." Of the plays, he considers Nell Gwynne, In the Reign of the Emperor, and Romeo and Juliet most worthy of special mention.

The consolidation of Gentry Bros.' Famous Trained Animal Shows, which have long been the most popular tented exhibitions in the world, makes an important union of excellent performances by combining what have heretofore travelled separately. The exhibition is fully twice its former size; in addition to the augmented processional displays, the performance this season requires double the space and time that it formerly did. The famous shows united will exhibit here Saturday, June 28th.

THE DISTRICT MINING NEWS

The Sunset mine, near Cody, distributed to its co-owners on Friday, its ninth dividend of $6,000, making the total amount of dividends to date $54,000, of which $30,000 has been paid since the first of January, although no shipments have been made since the first of April. The average silver and lead contents of the ore shipped to date is 134.40 oz. silver, 74.3 per cent. lead per ton. Some shipments contained over 80 per cent, lead.

What promises to be one of the biggest concentrating propositions in the Slocan camp has been uncovered in the Whitewater district, about one mile below the town, says the Paystreak. W. H. Banting has been steadily prosecuting development on the Iron Hand and several othe claims, for the last five years. The ledge is about 35 feet wide, full of galena and carrying gold values of four dollars per ton. The silver values run from 80 to 120 oz. with 35 to 40 per cent. lead. The ledge is being worked on the quarry plan, every shot bringing down more or less galena from which clean ore is picked and the remainder put on the dump. Mr. Banting has about 150 sacks of clean ore laid by and a whole show room of samples showing many different grades of ore. The claims lie near where the Hall smelter at one time got their iron ore for fluxing and a spur (since taken up) goes right under the Banting properties.

PERSONALS.

W. A. Macdonald, K. C., who has been at Fernie for the past two weeks attending the inquest on the late mine disaster, returned to Nelson last evening.

C. S. Fraser, of St. Thomas, Ont., arrived on the Nelson last evening to visit his brother, J. A. Fraser, of this city, for the summer months.

O. Strong, representing the New West Trade, a commercial paper published at Spokane, passed through the city last evening.

S. S. Taylor, K. C., returned last evening from Fernie, where he represented the Western Federation of Miners in the Coal Creek inquest.

Mrs. Herbert C. Graham, wife of the collector of customs of Brandon, is on a visit to her niece, Mrs. James Lawrence, of this city.

"Dave" McBeath has returned from East Kootenay, where he has been engaged on railway work. He says he did fairly well with the work he had in hand. "Dave" has been at Frank, looking after a piece of the nine-mile spur which it is proposed to build to the mines from that point. He says, however, that the newspapers have given him the wrong classification. He is not "one of the prominent contractors," but is merely a "gunny sacker."

CHILDREN'S CELEBRATION.

They Will Have Every Reason to Remember Coronation.

The proposition which was launched a few days ago for the entertainment of the children of the city on the afternoon and evening of coronation day has been generously responded to by the business men of the city, and close upon $300 have been contributed for this purpose. The idea for something of this sort originated with the members of the local Sons of England society, and they met with a ready response from the general public. The Nelson boat club will have their smoker in the evening for the adults, and now that the youngsters have been provided for, there should be general satisfaction all round.

The programme for the celebration in the afternoon and evening will be issued early this week. It is the intention of those who have the affair in hand to turn it over to Charles A. Waterman, who has a faculty for managing entertainments for the little folk. The intention is that the children shall be gathered together at W. F. Teetzel's corner, where the roadway shall be roped off for them to compete in all kinds of sports. A band will be engaged for the afternoon to liven things up for them. In the evening there will be fireworks on the lake, and a monster bonfire will be built on a scow and sent down the river.

There was for a time a feeling that the celebration was of a different character, and that it was being promoted as a rival attraction to the smoker in the evening. This, however, is not the case, and the officers of the boat club are among the chief contributors to the funds of the little folks' celebration.

PRINCE OF WALES MINES.

Gold Properties Are Being Developed With Very Gratifying Results.

Seattle, June 21.—James L. Freeburn, a well-known mining expert, has returned from a tour of inspection of several large quartz properties on Prince of Wales island, especially the Constitution group on Karta bay, owned by Samuel Lichtenstadter and associates. Mr. Freeburn, who is a nephew of Henry Bratnober, the celebrated expert so long associated with the Rothschilds made an exhaustive examination of the Constitution. Of his inspection he said:

"I spent a good deal of my time at the property of Sam Lichtenstadter and his associates, who are all Seattle people. The property called the Constitution group is situated 12 miles back of Karta bay, on Prince of Wales island, about 35 miles from Ketchikan, Alaska, and quite a good deal of development has already been done. There are a number of men at work driving two tunnels on the ore, one of which is now in about 140 feet, and shows up a well-defined, perfect fissure vein varying from two and a half to four feet in width, and carrying gold values which assay as high as $168. Of course, I do not mean to say that the vein will average as high, but enough has been demonstrated to justify the statement that the ore will show splendid gold values, taken as a whole. I have never seen a finer and more promising prospect in all my experience as a mining man."

While on the island, Mr. Freeburn visited Robert Allison's property, on Twelve-Mile arm. Allison established a five-stamp mill in the mine while Freeburn was there, Mrs .Freeburn aiding in the installation ceremonies. The Allison mill is the first to be put in operation on Prince of Wales island.

D. BRYMNER DEAD.

New Westminster, June 20.—Douglas Brymner, LL.D., F.R.S.C., Dominion archivist, died here at 1 p. m., yesterday. The deceased was aged 79 years, and had long been known to the official world at Ottawa. A few weeks ago he was granted leave of absence and came here on a health-seeking trip and to visit his son, G. D. Brymner, manager of the Bank of Montreal, but he never picked up after the long journey, and, gradually failing, passed away as above stated. He leaves a daughter and three others sons, all resident in the east. It is likely that the body will be taken to Ottawa for burial.

SUICIDE AT ATLIN.

Attempted Wife Murderer Hemmin Makes Away With Himself.

Victoria, June 21.—A telegram was received today by the attorney-general stating that Hemmin, the Atlin restaurant keeper who attempted to kill his wife last winter, and who was awaiting trial, had committed suicide. No details are given. A special assize had been summoned for August to try the case.

Victoria defeated Vancouver at lacrosse today by a score of 5 to 2.

CHURCH AMALGAMATION.

Toronto, June 20.—A movement for the amalgamation of the Congregationalists and Presbyterians was begun here last night in the Presbyterian General Assembly, in an address before it by the Rev. T. B. Hyde, president of the Congregational Union for Ontario and Quebec. The speech was warmly received. Mr. Hyde said that the wall of division was not of Congregational erection or maintenance, and the young men were constantly breaking through.

PASSION PLAY.

Produced by the Indians of Penticton Last Week.

Penticton, June 20.—The Penticton Indian reservation was last Friday and following days the center of attraction for all the Indian population for miles around, and, too, for numerous white people from this and surrounding districts, the occasion having been the presentation by the Indians of a series of tableaux illustrative of the main scenes usually depicted in the Passion Play. This exhibition was given with the countenance and in the presence of right Rev. father Dontenwill, Roman Catholic bishop of New Westminster, who was on a pastoral visit to the Okanagan district. Fathers Le Jeune and Tavernier, of Kamloops, Cherouse, of Mission City and Coran of Penticton, were also present and assisted in the proceedings.

Owing to the shortness of the notice given to them the Indians who took part in the presentation had not time to perfect themselves in their parts, so they were appropriately dressed to represent the respective characters and suitable selections from the sacred narrative were read by one of the priests as each tableau was exhibited. Even under less favorable conditions the presentation was impressive, and it was witnessed by about a thousand Indians and a large number of white people as well. There being no building in the neighborhood sufficiently large to accommodate the numerous attendance a commodious marquee was erected, and in this 14 scenes illustrative of some of the chief events in the life and death of the Saviour were show. Outside the marquee a life size figure of the crucified redeemer hung on a large cross, and this was an object of especial interest to the assembled Indians in particular, renewing the feelings of veneration for the divine victim thus represented.

On Saturday evening there was a torch light procession around the reservation, and on Sunday another procession visited several schrines that had been erected. A confirmation was held in the Indian church and other religious services drew crowded congregations. Before leaving the bishop announced that the Passion Play would next year be presented with the Indians representing the characters speaking their parts and so adding to the effectiveness of the presentation. On Tuesday morning about 500 Indians rode down to the wharf to bid adieu to the bishop, firing a parting salute to him with their shotguns as the steamer left the wharf. The bishop has since visited Kelowna, Okanagan, Vernon and other towns.
