MARCONI'S WIRELESS

Free Exhibition to be Given in This City by G. H. Munroe

Wonderful Success of This New Method of News Transmission--Strong Endorsement by Dominion Marine Department

Tomorrow (Friday) evening G. H. Munroe, of New York, will initiate the people of Nelson into the mysteries of the Marconi "Wireless."

Mr. Munroe will give two free exhibitions in the Success club rooms, on Friday and Saturday evenings.

He carries with him two instruments exactly the same as those used so successfully on the ocean liners. These instruments will be set up and practical demonstrations of the wonderful feats accomplished by this system will be given.

The workings of the system will be fully explained, and a talk will be given on the development since Marconi first announced his invention. Mr. Munroe has the entire endorsement of the dominion government, from which his firm carries an annual subsidy. Already the government has put in 19 stations and Mr. Munroe has just received an order for two additional stations of large size. Everybody is interested in Marconi and everyone will doubtless attend these exhibitions.

The Marconi system has been utilized since September, 1904, for the transmission of a daily summary of the London Stock Exchange news to the "Handelsbladd," a newspaper printed in Amsterdam. Not only the reading comment on the day's happenings, but the quotations of all stocks have been sent direct from London to the paper every afternoon. A harder test cannot be put on a wire or a wireless system than the transmission of figures and fractions; and, when it is taken into consideration that the Marconi operators are English, and the messages are written in Dutch, the severe test to which the Marconi system is put becomes obvious. The Marconi service has been perfect every day, and the absence of a single error under such trying conditions, is proof positive of the practical and commercial merit of Marconi's invention.

Messages have been transmitted across cities of millions of inhabitants, cities containing countless tons of metals and using and liberating vast quantities of elecricity, without interference from those sources.

In transmitting long distance and transoceanic messages, no interference has been caused by or to ships and places occupying points between and communicating meantime from one to the other.

Different instruments and equipments are used for long distance and for short distance, or special communication, and these may be either tuned or untuned.

The simple instruments, for ordinary distances and purposes, are generally untuned, and they may communicate with any other such stations. Their communications may be intercepted, and they are used for calling stations and in other cases where privacy is not a factor.

The tuned, or syntonized, stations are those specially equipped and adjusted to act only with others similarly adjusted. The attunement may be changed at will. Communications by the secret or tuned equipment have in no case been intercepted.

The variation in vibrations, or wave lengths, at any point between which extremes two instruments may be attuned, may be anywhere from about 400,000 to about 2,500,000.

Several messages may be transmitted between the same stations at the same time Messages in different languages have been simultaneously transmitted between the same stations. Between syntonized stations multiplex transmission may be employed.

A speed of transmission of 35 words per minute has been attained as the average present practice. Appliances and improvements in hand and in process of patenting for obtaining substantially 100 words a minute. More than 8000 words have been transmitted from a ship to shore within a few hours.

The company has made co-operative commercial alliances with the established telegraph systems, and Marconi messages are now received at every Western Union, Postal Telegraph, Great Western, C. P. R. and Dominion Telegraph office in the land, and every such office is a receiving and distributing agency for Marconigrams.

The Marconi system has been adopted by the Commercial Cable company and installed upon the cable repair ship, Mackay-Bennett, whereby the cable vessel may go from point to point on the ocean in connection with regular work and thus avoid the loss of time and expense involved in putting into port for instructions as to breaks in the cable.

The Marconi system has increased its sources of revenue and field of effort with such rapidity as to exceed the expectations of its founders and to call forth words of warning from leaders in the world of telephone and telegraph who can no longer close their eyes to the inroads which it is making, and the danger which it presents of supplanting them.

The following letter from O. G. V. Spain, commander of the Canadian Marine service, testifies to the value set upon the Marconi system by the dominion overnment:

To the Deputy Minister of Marine and Fisheries, of the Dominion of Canada, Ottawa:

Sir,—I have the honor to submit herewith, the following report in connection with the Marconi stations erected in the river and gulf of St. Lawrence, during the present season.

The stations are situated at the following points:

Fame Point, Quebec.
Point Armour, Labrador.
Heath Point, Anticosti.
Belle Isle, Quebec.
Cape Ray, Newfoundland.
Cape Race, Newfoundland.

They have all been working very successfully for some months before the close of navigation.

The station at Fame Point was finished on June 25th, and on that date held communication with the Allan line R. M.S. Parisian, outward bound. A large number of messages were exchanged between this vessel and the land station.

In the official test made by the government, communications were exchanged ment, communication was held 130 miles to the eastward and 101 miles to the westward. The latter distance might have been improved upon, but it was deemed inexpedient to continue the test owing to the fact that the government steamer was ordered elsewhere.

The Heath Point station was completed on July 21st, and on that date held communication with royal mail steamers, inward bound, for periods of six hours. The official test of this station showed it to have an efficient range of about 130 miles, but on several occasions it has held vessels even farther.

The Point Armour station was completed on August 10th, and on August 11th had its first communication with an outbound steamer. This station in the official test made by one of the government steamers showed a range of 115 miles.

The Point Amour station was completed on September 1st, has also shown by its official test that it is fully up to the standard of the other stations. It was in constant communication with the Point Amour station which is situated some 66 miles to the westward, from the time it was opened until the close of navigation.

The station at Cape Ray, Newfoundland, was completed on October 7th. The official test of the station showed it to be entirely satisfactory, having an efficient range of about 100 miles.

The Cape Race station was completed on November 17th, and the official test of this station was also satisfactory. the range of communication was fully up to that of Cape Ray station.

Both the Cape Ray and Cape Race stations were utilized by the late governor general to send messages to the government and people of Canada on the occasion of his departure by the R.M.S Parisian. The Cape Race station was also made use of by the dominion government to communicate with the present governor general upon the occasion of his coming to Canada by the same steamer..

All of the above stations have reported shipping and shipping intelligence to Lloyd's agent, as Quebec.

The Belle Isle and Point Amour stations have proved exceptionally valuable in communicating to steamers coming through the Straits of Belle Isle, news as to weather conditions prevailing in the straits.

In many instances vessels have been in communication with shore stations when enveloped in thick fog, and have found the Marconi system an invaluable supplementary aid to the fog signal service already existing.

News of current events have been furnished by the stations to all vessels equipped with the Marconi apparatus. This has not only proved a boon to the passengers, but will undoubtedly tend to popularize the St. Lawrence route with the travelling public.

The important aid to navigation rendered by the Dominion of Canada in the matter of wireless telegraphy, has been very greatly appreciated by the shipping federation of Canada and the shipping interests generally.

Stations at Sable Island and on the mainland, probably in the neighborhood of Canso, which are to be built under contract, will be commenced as soon as weather conditions permit.

It was not intended in the first place to have these stations inter-communicate, but it has been pointed out by ship owners that the value of the system to shipping generally would be enormously increased if these stations were able to establish intercommunication. For this reason the government has decided to increase the power of the St. Lawrence stations so that communication may be had by means of the Marconi system from Fame Point to Belle Isle or Cape Ray.

The enormous advantage which will follow from having this system of intercommunication will be better understood when it is known that the captain of a steamer will be able to know just what weather conditions prevail along the entire St. Lawrence, a few hours after leaving Quebec and can direct his course accordingly.

Three government ships, the Canada, Minto and Stanley, are fitted with the Marconi apparatus.

I have the honor to be sir, your obedient servant,

O. V. G. SPAIN,
Commander Canadian Marine Service.
Ottawa, December 12, 1904.

FORMALLY SEPARATED

Storthing Dissolves Union Between Norway and Sweden

King Oscar Protests but Norway Willing to Offer Crown to House of Bernadotte or to Waldemar of Denmark

Christiania, June 7.—King Oscar's refusal to sign the bill passed by the storthing providing for a separate consular service for Norway culminated today in the passage of a resolution by the storthing declaring the dissolution of the union of Sweden and Norway and that the king had ceased to act as king of Norway. Although the action was anticipated it caused considerable excitement in this city on account of the anxiety as to what action the king would take.

The situation became acute on May 26 when his majesty, after three months' rest during which the regency was conceded to crown prince Gustave, took the reigns of office. The council of state immediately submitted to him the consular bill which he on May 28 refused to sanction, arguing that any action must receive the sanction of the council. The Norwegian council of state thereupon resigned and the king refused to accept their resignations as in view of the state of public opinion it was impossible to form a new government. Demonstrations were held throughout the country endorsing the action of the council of state.

At the opening of the session the government informed the storthing that it relinquished office from today. The storthing thereupon unanimously and without debate passed the following resolution:

"Your Majesty:—

"Whereas, all the members of the council of state have laid down their offices; and

"Whereas, his majesty, the king, has declared himself unable to establish a new government for the country; and

"Whereas, the constitutional regal power thus becomes inoperative, the storthing authorizes the members of the council of state, who retired today to exercise until further notice, as the Norwegian government, the power appertaining to the king in accordance with Norway's constitution and existing laws, with those changes which are necessitated by the fact that the union with Sweden under one king is dissolved in consequence of the king having ceased to act as a Norwegian king.

"The course of developments which have proved more powerful than the desire and will of individnals, has led to this result. The union, entered upon in 1814, has from the first hour been differently interpreted by the two nations, both with regard to its spirit and letter. Efforts have been made on the Swedish side to extend the union and on the Norwegian side to confine it to the limit laid down by the act of union, and otherwise to assert the independent power of both states in all their acts.

"The difference of principle in the interpretation of the character of the union has provoked much misunderstanding between the two peoples, and has caused much friction in the interpretation, which, during the recent negotiations between the two countries has been laid down by Sweden, as against Norway. The Norwegian people were bound to perceive the injury to their constitutional right, their independence and their national honor. The union was justified so long as it could contribute to the welfare and happiness of both peoples, while maintaining their independence as sovereign states. But above, there stands for us Norwegians our Norwegian fatherland, and for the Swedes their Swedish fatherland, while more valuable than the political union are the feeling of solidarity and voluntary cohesion of both peoples.

"The union has become a danger to this feeling of solidarity of the Norwegian and Swedish peoples, which should secure the happiness of both nations, and constitute their strength abroad. If the union is now severed, the Norwegian people have no other wish than to live in good harmony with all, and at least with the people of Sweden and the dynasty under the direction of which our country, despite many and bitter disputes, affecting the union, has attained such important, intellectual and material development.

"As evidence of the fact that the work and struggle of the Norwegian people for the full independence of the fatherland has not been founded on any ill-feeling towards the royal house, or the Swedish people, and has not left behind any bitterness towards either of these, the storthing respectfully solicits your majesty's co-operation to the end that a prince of your majesty's house may be permitted, while relinquishing his rights of succession to the throne of Sweden, to accept election as king of Norway. The day on which the Norwegian people elect their own king to ascend the ancient throne of Norway will open up an era of more tranquil conditions in Norway, of good and cordial relations with the Swedish people, and of peace and loyal co-operation in the north, for the protection of the culture of the people and their freedom and independence. Convinced of that, the storthing ventures to express the confident hope that what has now been done, will turn out to be for the good of all, as well as for your majesty, for whose person the Norwegian people will retain their highest respect and devotion."

After the storthing had adopted the resolution, president Berner, in a speech, emphasized the serious importance of the step taken. He concluded with saying: "May God protect the fatherland."

The whole assembly joined in the president's devout wish. Perfect order prevailed throughout the city. Crowds assembled all day in front of the storthing buildings, and cheered the members of the government when they left. When M. Berner appeared a military band struck up the national anthem, and the people, uncovered, formed in a double row and saluted him respectfully as he passed.

M. Michelson, the retiring premier, accepted in behalf of the government, the "honorable and difficult task with which the storthing had entrusted him."

King Oscar has sent a telegram to premier Michelsen as follows:

"Have received the communication of the council of state, and record the most decided protest against the method and action of the government."

An address to the king was then adopted by the storthing declaring that no ill-feeling was entertained against him and his dynasty, or the Swedish nation, and asking his majesty to co-operate in the selection of a young prince of the house of Bernadotte, to occupy the throne of Norway.

It is anticipated that king Oscar will consent to any prince of the house of Bernadotte accepting the Norwegian crown. Should the king refuse, however, there is a probability that the throne will be offered to prince Waldemar, third son of king Christian of Denmark. The people of Denmark largely sympathize with the Norwegian demands.

At its meeting today the storthing adopted a proclamation to the Norwegian people in which is given a detailed account of the events preceding the passage of the resolution. This proclamation concludes: "The storthing hopes that the Norwegian people will succeed in living in peace and on good terms with all, and not the least with the Swedish people, to whom we are linked by so many natural ties. The storthing is sure that the people will join with it and with the government in maintaining the full independence of Norway and with firmness and dignity tranquilly submit to the necessary sacrifices and is further sure that all subjects will approve ordinances and specifications from the government."

The proceedings throughout the momentous session of the storthing today was marked by supreme good order and by the utmost dignity. That the feeling was intense was evidenced by the great gatherings of people outside the storthing during the early session. There was not the slightest evidence of excitement, the people seeming to realize the responsibility placed upon them.

It has been arranged that the storthing will send a deputation to convey the address adopted by it to the king.

The storthing will, if necessary, defend the step taken today by force of arms.

If the prince of the house of Bernadotte should consent to ossupy the throne of Norway he must give up all idea of succession to the Swedish throne.

Crown prince Gustave will return immediately from Berlin.

It is understood that an extraordinary session of the Swedish riksdag will be called June 26th, if not earlier, as a result of today's action of the storthing.

Stockholm, June 7—King Oscar has telegraphed to M. Berner, president of the storthing, informing him that he has telegraphed to premier Michelsen emphatically protesting against the action of the council of state.

The newspapers of Stockholm, commenting on the action of the storthing, declare that a revolution has been accomplished but that the union is not dissolved, as Sweden's sanction is necessary in order to complete the disruption.

Copenhagen, June 7—The announcement that the Norwegian storthing had declared that it could no longer acknowledge king Oscar as king of Norway, was received here with no surprise, but with the same spirit of approval and determination that prevailed in Chritsiania.

The people of Norway expect that the king will accept the proposition to appoint a member of his family as king of Norway.

London, June 7—The Stockholm correspondent of the Standard says that king Oscar has refused the Norwegian crown for his son.

MEDIATOR ROOSEVELT

Czar Wires Washington for Particulars of Japan's Peace Terms

Expectation of Peace is Not Disturbing Europe for Vienna Says Russia is Still Anxious for War

Washington, June 7.—Preliminary peace negotiations between Russia and Japan are generally believed to be under way, and it is conceded that president Roosevelt will act, not as a mediator ,but as a "friendly channel of communication." There is, as yet, no official admission that Russia has accepted what count Cassini ,in his cablegram to count Lamsdorff described as the "offer of the good will of the president," although instructions to the ambassador are believed to have reached here tonight in a long cablegram which reached the Russian embassy late and was laid before the ambassador after he had started to retire. After reading the despatch the ambassador retired for the night, an hour earlier than usual.

All that can be authoritatively said in regard to this cablegram is that it concerned count Cassini's cablegram of last week.

St. Petersburg, June 8.—With United States ambassador Mayer's delivery to the emperor yesterday afternoon of president Roosevelt's message tendering his good offices, the prospects of the president's efforts to bring the belligerents together in peace negotiations, is believed to be distinctly brighter. It is equally evident that the situation is an exceedingly delicate one. Ambassador Mayer, when seen tonight absolutely declined to say a word regarding his visit to Tsarskoe-Selo, the mission with which he is charged to the emperor.

Interest is again transferred back to Washington. Count Cassini has doubtlessly received instructions from the emperor. However, it will probably require some time to finally decide whether success shall crown the president's efforts to end the war.

The fact of ambassador Mayer's visit to Tsarskoe-Selo is thus far known only in the higher circles, many diplomats even, being entirely unaware of this important event, but where it is known it has created intense interest.

In the meantime there is not the slightest surface indication of a change in the situation regarding a continuation of the war.

Preparations to send additional troops to the front continue. A further mobilization in the province of Moscow is sanctioned.

Washington, June 7.—Diplomatic Washington was tonight aroused to a point of expectation unequalled since the war began in the far east by the news from St. Petersburg, of the czar's wish to know Japan's peace terms. This interest was heightened by a call which M. Takahira, the Japanese minister, made at the White House by appointment, during the evening. He called shortly after 9 o'clock, and immediately went into conference with the president. They remained together about 20 minutes. When the minister left he declined to answer any questions about his call. The Associated Press bulletin announcing the cabling of a message to the Russian ambassador at Washington and Paris that Russian wished to know Japan's peace terms, was immediately communicated to the diplomats interested.

It was not long before the Russian embassy was besieged with callers, but the ambassador was without advices on the subject, though for several days he has been anxiously awaiting an acknowledgement of his cablegram regarding his conversation with the president last Friday.

Diplomats now recall the statement of Mr. Takahira some days ago to the effect that if Russia really wants to know Japan's peace terms she could easily find them without communication direct with Tokio. This is taken to mean that with such official intimation in his possession, the president can obtain from the Japanese minister at Washington a general statement of Japan's terms for transmission to Russia. It is declared on good authority that thus far no circular note has been addressed to the ambassadors abroad, but that there instructions have been informal though dictated directly from the White House.

Vienna, June 7.—It is learned here tonight that the Russian government has informed its diplomatic representatives abroad, including count Cassini, ambassador at Washington, that the time for Russia to conclude peace has not yet come, and when it does arrive, Russia will open peace negotiations with Japan without foreign intervention.

HEROISM OF A MOTHER

Sherbrooke, June 7—Mrs. Buzzill, Cherry river, was instantly killed last evening while attempting to save one of her children. A team of horses ran away and her child being in the path of the runaway team, the mother made a dash to get it out of the way, but before she reached it one of her sons had got the child to a place of safety. The mother was struck by the pole of the wagon, killing her instantly. She leaves a family of six.

EDUCATE THE CONVICTS

Ignorance Evidently Thought to be the Root of all Evil

Albany, June 7—For the purpose of putting into effect the plan of prison education outline in his last annual report, state superintendent of prisons Collins today asked the department of education to assign one of its inspectors to supervise the work. Teachers have been selected from among the convicts themselves, some of whom are highly educated, and active work will begin next week. The inspector from the educational department will organize the prison classes by grades, and after that it is hoped that the system will operate automatically.

In discussing the work today superintendent Collins said: "At present each prison has its own system. We intended to have one system for all the prisons. The foreigners who cannot speak English will be separated from the American prisoners. These foreigners will be taught English. The other prisoners will be taught to read, write and figure."

GOES TO AN ALDERMANIC FEAST AT THE GUILDHALL

London, June 7.—Under improved weather conditions, king Alfonso of Spain, made an official visit to the city today, and was entertained at luncheon at the Guildhall by the lord mayor and the corporation of the city of London, where an address was presented to him by them. At the conclusion of the presentation of the address, king Alfonso escorted the lady mayoress to the ancient hall where luncheon was served to a most brilliant company. The lord mayor, John Pound, toasted the king, who expressed his deep gratitude for London's reception, and proposed the health of the lord mayor. The royal party immediately afterward returned to Buckingham palace.

The processions, both going to and coming from the city, were of the most imposing character and afforded the people an opportunity of giving a hearty welcome to the young monarch. Later in the afternoon, king Alfonso and king Edward went in a motor car to Ranelagh, where a special polo match had been arranged. Lord Lansdowne, secretary of state for foreign affairs, tonight entertained some the gentlemen in waiting of king Alfonso. After the dinner the Spanish ruler was present at a brilliant ball given by the marchioness of Londonderry.

The only unpleasant incident of the day occurred in Bond street early this morning. His majesty and three other persons were the occupants of a motor car and had passed through the shopping districts without attracting unusual attention, when the car was discovered to be on fire. The king at once alighted and returned to Buckingham palace in another motor car provided by detectives from Scotland Yard, who were in attendance on his majesty.

WEAKENS ALLIANCE

Premier Rouvier Favors Kaiser Rather Than Great Britain

Dismissal of Delcasse Deemed by Diplomats to Mean Platonic Friendship Only With Russia and England

Paris, June 7.—M. Rouvier's first meeting with the diplomats today, brought out much discussion among them concerning the effect of the change in the French cabinet upon European politics. The prevailing view is that Germany will be the gainer by the alteration as against Great Britain and Russia. The policy of M. Delcasse made the Franco-Russian alliance, first, and the Anglo-French alliance, more recently, the central features of his action. Recent tendencies among the powerful socialist element have been against the Russian alliance and toward a strict interpretation of that with the British. M. Rouvier's strong personality makes him independent of the socialists, yet the diplomats incline to the view that the policy of France will no longer show a strong sentimental attachment for Russia or for Great Britain. This is not expected to make any marked immediate expression, but to be a gradual development of the present situation.

It is considered as settled that minister of public works, Bauden will probably succeed M. Rouvier as minister of finance.

The care taken by M. Rouvier of French finances is considered to be one of the causes of the bankers refusing further loans to Russia. During Japan's protests against admiral Rojestvensky's alleged violation of neutrality of the waters of French Indo-China, M. Rouvier insisted on a rigid application of the neutrality rules against Russia. This leads the diplomats to believe that his policy towards Russia will be straightforward and practical, rather than sentimental. They forsee that this may exert considerable influence toward peace as Russia is likely to learn that French policy is determined by French interests instead of the desire to uphold the alliance.

Concerning Great Britain, M. Rouvier is credited with being her firm friend but indication are that the Anglo-French understanding will receive a practical interpretation as a platonic bond of friendship instead of the broad construction heretofore given that it amounted to a virtual alliance. The friends of M. Delcasse, therefore claim that the conciliation of Germany tends to lessen the ties with Great Britain, and Russia. The diplomats also incline to the view that the Moroccan issue which heretofore has been between Germany and France may enter a new phase between Germany and Great Britain, if the latter is indisposed to accept the effect of Germany's diplomacy.

The semi-official Temps this evening says: "Today, as yesterday, France can and should preserve the Russian alliance which is a political expression of geographical necessity. Equally we should strengthen our relations with Italy, and thus weaken the offensive character of the Triple Alliance. We should continue to support the cordial understanding with Spain, and should affirm that our friendly relations with Great Britain permit our interests to remain in effect without being in conflict."

PEACE AND AFTER.

There seems to be very little doubt in the minds of foreign diplomats and journalists in touch with Russian affairs that hostilities in the far east will not be continued much longer, despite the essentially selfish efforts of the bureaucrats at St. Petersburg to persuade the czar that peace would bring with it internal dissensions even more menacing to the welfare of the empire than the disastrous trial of strength with Japan.

With the near prospect of peace it is interesting to consider the probable terms that will be demanded by the victorious Japanese and the subsequent relations of the two nations.

In regard to peace terms some idea of Japan's probable demands may be gleaned from an article in the North American Review, written by a Japanese, Mr. Adachi Kinnouske.

He asserts that the retrocession of the island of Saghallen will be a sine qua non, and, on this point, remarks:

"For many a year it has been no secret with us, the people of Nippon, that there is one wish somewhat dearer to the heart of his majesty the emperor than others. On the day when he received the dais from his imperial father, the empire of Nippon contained the island of Saghalien; on the day when he will vacate the dais in favor of his heir, he would see on the map of Nippon at least every inch of the soil which had known the gracious rule of his august father. And, today, a wish of his majesty—I do not care how slight or remote it be—is nothing short of a passion with the people of Nippon."

As to the disposition of Manchuria, the writer says:

"Through the weary months that have fertilized its plains with her blood Nippon's wishes have never been altered. She wishes Russia to evacuate Manchuria; she has not the slightest desire of remaining in it herself. In making a present of Manchuria to China, Nippon in all fairness might be permitted to ask China to furnish a joint guarantee from three powers—namely, America, Great Britain, and Nippon herself—that the territory thus turned over to its rightful owner, China, shall not be leased or ceded to a foreign power; that is one requirement. And the other boon she would be likely to ask it this: That, in consideration of the return of the province wherein is the imperial mausoleum of the reigning house of China the Chinese empire would consent to open a number of her provinces, ports, and towns to the commerce of the world. This, of course, is important, commercially, to the interest of Nippon. The chief end in view, however, is to waken our neighbor to her national consciousness."

Further, the Chinese Eastern railway from Harbin to Port Arthur and Dalny will have to be turned over to Japan. A demand will be made for the cession of Siberian territory east of the Amur river, which would include Vladivostok.

As to cash indemnity, the writer thinks that depends solely on the duration of the war.

Another Japanese writer,- Mr. T. Hayakawa, a member of the Japanese house of representatives, deals with the question of Russo-Japanese relations after the conclusion of peace negotiations. This writer appears to believe a Russo-Japanese alliance neither improbable nor undesirable.

His views are summarized in the concluding passage of his article, which reads as follows:

"It is neither possible nor wise to entirely drive the Russians out of Manchuria. An attempt to expel them from northern China would mean the tremendously greater task of wiping them out entirely from Siberia, a task which no sane man would ever dream of accomplishing. So long as Russia holds Siberia, it is but natural that she will attempt to force her way to the eastern seas. The danger of the Russian advance in the far east lies, not in the fact of the advance, but in its military nature. If this advance should be of a peaceable nature, aimed at the promotion of her commercial interests, without jeopardizing the sovereignty of China and Korea, there is no reason why Japan should not respect Russian rights in Manchuria. The present war is waged because Japan was forced to deliver Manchuria and Korea from the oppression of Russia., When Japan's protectorate over Korea has been universally recognized, and when Manchuria has been returned to the Chinese government, Japan's aims have been well-nigh accomplished. If she insists on curbing Russian influence entirely in the far east, time, we believe, will tell that Japan has blundered. But if generously casting aside hostile feelings after the peace treaty, the now belligerent nations enter into an alliance, together they might prove the strongest force in preserving the peace of the far east. Russia is now fully aware that as an opponent Japan is very formidable, but as an ally she could be made a strong and reliable friend. If Russia will renounce her ambition for military aggrandizement, and will extend her hand in friendly relationship to Japan, with the view of promoting her own commercial interests in eastern Asia, we Japanese will gladly welcome her as our friend and ally."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The announcement that the Japanese government has decided to issue a copper coinage for Korea will be welcome to those engaged in copper mining. This should mean a continuation of the Chinese demand for American copper even after the closing of the Russo-Japanese war, as the bulk of the output of the Japanese mines will now be required to supply the proposed Korean coinage.

The demand for fruit and vegetables in the Kootenays is still far in excess of the local supply. Just east of the mountains, easy of access, there is a constantly growing market on the plains of Manitoba and the Northwest territories for an enormous quantity of fruit and garden produce. In the Kootenays there is abundance of good land suitable for fruit growing and market gardening. To have this land settled up, local requirements in the way of fruit and vegetables supplied by home grown product, and to establish a big export trade in these products, are objects calling for the earnest and persistent efforts of every person concerned in the permanent prosperity of the Kootenays.

In an interview with William Whyte, second vice-president of the C. P. R., published in yesterday's issue, a remark of his relative to the extension of the C. P. R. branch line westward from Midway, was so worded as to permit of the inference that Mr. Whyte referred to the Similkameen district and said that there was no development in that section to warrant railway construction. His remarks had reference only to the section of country between Midway and Penticton. Mr. Whyte fully appreciates the necessity for a railroad into the Similkameen and did not intend to convey the impression that the C. P. R. did not favor extending the line, now under construction from Spence's Bridge to Nicola, through the Similkameen district.

STRUCK DEAD AT PRAYER

SUDDEN DEATH OF A CHRISTIAN BROTHER AT MONTREAL

DEATH CAUSES CONSTERNTION IN THE COMMUNITY

Montreal, June 7—The sudden death of a Christian Brother, named Sylvin, whilst teaching school this morning caused much consternation among the scholars of the school, as well as in the neighborhood. He was the superior of the community and had charge of the school at Point St. Charles, and was engaged in teaching the catechism when he dropped lifeless to the floor. The death was the cause of still greater surprise because brother Sylvin was in vigorous health.

He had just finished praying, and as he repeated the words "Jesus Mercy," he fell to the floor. It was at first thought by the children that the teacher had only fainted, and efforts were made to revive him with water, but after working with him for a short time, without result, the alarm was given and medical aid summoned. When the physician arrived he found that life had already passed away.

SPECIAL SYNOD SERVICE

Choral Evensong at St. Saviour's Last Evening—Priesthood of the Laity

The special service for the synod of the diocese of Kootenay, which took place in St. Saviour's pro-cathedral last night was well attended for a week day service, and was marked in its character.

Evensong was conducted as usual, the only difference being the unusual ornateness of the simple ritual, evinced in the character of the singing and the infrequent number of priests of the Anglican church present. These included not only the venerable bishop of Kootenay and New Westminster, but also the archdeacon, together with nearly all the clergy of the diocese. The sermon, also, preached by Rev. T. Greene of Kelowna, was remarkable for a novel attitude taken to the laity.

The singing of Mendelssohn's beautiful anthem "How Lovely are Thy Messengers," together with the rendition of the canticles, set to Simper's service in D, was remarkably fine, a couple of male altos, a rare voice, blending with the occasional intricate harmonies wonderfully.

Rev. T. Greene preached on the priesthood of the the laity and their relations to the home life and the religious education of the young. Premising that the priesthood of the laity, conferred upon them at confirmation was no new doctrine, being as old as the fourth century, the preacher went on to explain that the unit of the church was the family, not the individual, that the Book of Common Prayer was a book for the laity and priesthood alike, matins and evensong being merely the church's daily prayers. Hence it was incumbent on heads of the family to conduct family worship in his own house and so see that the children of the household were each truly educated in the religious sense. Were this done, the preacher maintained, there would be less heard about the laxity of the observance of the Sabbath, or the neglect of the Bible or of the religious life.

We had several doctors but they did him no good. One bottle of this remedy cured him as our neighbors will testify. I thank God for so valuable a medicine." For sale by all druggists and dealers.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

We have used "Sunlight Soap," and we want to tell you that it is the best soap made, that's why we are writing. We found out that the Sunlight way is the best way to wash with "Sunlight Soap." At first we used to wash with Sunlight Soap in the old way as we did with common soap, but after we washed according to directions printed on the package, we would never wash the old way again. We first soap the articles, leave them to soak and then rub out lightly on the wash board. Not much to do and it makes the clothes white as snow.

LACROSSE MATCH TODAY

NELSON AND ROSSLAND TO MEET ON RECREATION GROUNDS

SEVERAL OLD PLAYERS WILL BE IN EVIDENCE

The first lacrosse match of the season here will take place this afternoon on the recreation grounds, commencing at 3 o'clock sharp, when the Nelson and Rossland teams will cross sticks.

As there will probably be a very general observance of the first of the summer half holidays this afternoon, there should be a large attendance to witness the opening lacrosse match.

The local lineup will be as follows: F. Greyerbheil, goal; A. Jeffs, point; C. Jeffs, cover point; W. H. Deacon, 1st defence; J. Fox, 2nd defence; R. Sharp, 3rd defence; Joe Thompson, centre; A. Perrier, 3rd home; W. Steed, 2nd home; F. Bell, 1st home; W. Davison, outside; B. Bell, inside; R. Ball, spare man.

It will be noticed that some of the veteran players have come forward to help out the team and Nelson people will be delighted to see today, old time players like Joe Thompson, A. and C. Jeffs, Deacon, Fox and Perrier, handling the stick once more.

The Rossland team will arrive here on the morning train today.

THURSDAY HALF HOLIDAY

Most of the Retail Merchants in this City Will Close This Afternoon

A. J. Kerr and Harry Amas, who are at the head of the movement for a summer weekly half holiday during the months of June, July and August, said yesterday afternoon to a representative of The Daily News that they thought the movement would prove a success. As far as they knew there would be but two or possibly three exceptions to the closing. They admitted that there had been objections raised to closing on Thursdays, some being in favor of another day being selected. The objection raised was founded on the arrival of the C.P.R. steamer down the lake early on three afternoons in the week, these afternoons being Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. On these days the boat gets in, if on time, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. This is met by the argument that after all, this scant hour, the hour between 5 and 6 in the afternoon, does not permit of shopping being done to advantage. Moreover that this shopping could be done equally well on Tuesday and far better on Saturday, when the stores remain open to a late hour in the evening instead of closing their doors at 6 o'clock as usual. Further that the International gets in each morning of each day at 10 o'clock and does not leave the city until 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

As to who the people are who are not going to close, neither Mr. Kerr nor Mr. Amas were willing to mention any names. They said that practically everybody in the city, with two exceptions, had agreed, or had raised no objections. They wished to coerce nobody, but Mr. Amas stated positively that if nobody else closed, he would. They agreed that possibly Thursday was not the ideal day but Saturday shopping had become in this city a habit which was only second to nature, and therefore, in the interests of the public, they did not wish to press too radical a change, especially at the outset. The practice was common in eastern Canada, it was by no means unknown in the province, Rossland having recently followed suit in the Kootenay, and was a practice that was observed in various parts of the empire more or less generally and was a common custom in Europe.

COUNCIL OF BOARD OF TRADE

Will Receive a Representative of Trades and Labor Council

There was a meeting held yesterday afternoon of the council of the Nelson board of trade at which the only subject coming up for discussion was the admission to membership of a representative of the Trades and Labor Council of Nelson. This was first mooted by the letter written some time ago to the board of trade, emanating from the Trades and Labor Council, objecting to the interference of the board of trade in matter affecting labor. This objection was met by the board of trade proposing that labor be represented by a delegate or representative or representatives. Some correspondence ensued and the matter was finally adjusted by the Trades and Labor Council proposing that it should be represented by a delegate at the meetings of the board. The council yesterday agreed that this would be suitable, the representative of the Trades and Labor Council being an ordinary member just as is the representative of any mercantile house in the city.

The matter of a reception to the visiting American engineers was not considered by the council as the engieers of this city thought that nothing was necessary at the hands of the board of trade.. They themselves had arranged for the entertainment of the visiting engineers.

Some of the members of the board of trade, however, are of the opinion that while nothing bearing the semblance of interference with the engineers of the city could be possibly entertained, yet it would be as well, in the public interest, to take in some manner or another formal notice of the visit.

ANGLICAN SYNOD MEETS

RELIGIOUS TEACHING KEYNOTE OF BISHOP'S CHARGE

CLERGY AND LAITY WANT UNIFORM CHURCH HYMNAL.

The sixth annual synod of the Anglican diocese of Kootenay opened in St. Saviour's mission hall yesterday morning. Yesterday's proceedings consisted of three church services and two business session. Many important matters were discussed. The bishop's charge introduced such subjects as religious education, modern critical thought, the function of sermons, and the requirements of the diocese Two other questions that came up on resolutions were the desirability of a uniform hymnal, and of uniformity of practice as to the remarriage of divorced persons.

Holy communion was celebrated at 7.30 and at 9.15 a.m., the bishop and archdeacon respectively, officiating. The morning session opened at 10 o'clock. The following clergymen were present : F. H. Graham, Nelson; J. A. Cleland, Rossland; H. A. Solly, Arrowhead; G. Cook, Kaslo; C. F. Yates, Golden; T. Greene, Kelowna; C. A. Procunier, Revelstoke; A .Stoney, Morrissey; F. V. Venables, Enderby; L. Amor, Greenwood; H. Steele, Grand Forks; E. A. St.G. Smyth, Windermere; J. S. A. Bastian, Cranbrook; E. R. Bartlett, Fernie. The following laymen were present: H. Bird, F. Irvine, Nelson; C. W. Busk, Ymir; W. A. Jowett, Morrissey; E. A. Crease, Arrowhead; F. Fraser, Revelstoke; T. Sterling, T. Taylor, Kelowna; G. E. Martin, Kaslo; W. M. Frith, Greenwood; A. W. Tegart, Windermere; C. Cock, E. Elwell, Cranbrook.

His lordship in opening his charge to the clergy and laity acknowledged the kindness with which he had always been received, and the attention given his suggestion. He thanked the laity for the interest taken by them in parochial and diocesan work. He suggested that all lay delegates unable to attend the synod should resign in time to permit others to be elected.

After noting that in spite of some failures, the diocese at a whole had raised its quota for the M. S. C. C., he said:

"I need scarcely emphasize the truth that every Christian man should feel interested in the extension of Christ's kingdom. The greater his faith and love the greater will be his interest in the work, the more strenuous his efforts in forwarding it. I sincerely hope that in future every organized parish, indeed every mission, will strive to do its part." His lordship reminded the synod that the diocese received from the missionary socety of the church in Canada more than it contributed. He suggested more frequent efforts than at present to interest the laity in the cause. He told also of an effort being made jointly by the diocese of Columbia and New Westminster to maintain services on the islands and shores of the Gulf of Georgia.

After referring to a rule of the American church, requiring communicants removing from one parish to another to produce certificates of standing, which he described as "sound and wholesome," his lordship asked that records of communicants be kept in every parish. "The strength of the church will always be found in those who are living in close communion with their Lord, and whilst our duties towards the careless and indifferent cannot be neglected, yet it is supremely important that we should seek to deepen and strengthen the spiritual life of those who are striving to live above the world." Classes for young communicants were recommended as aids in the formation of religious habits, as small literary societies have proved an aid in promoting habits of study. The Brotherhood of St. Andrew was highly recommended as a model for organizations of adult communicants.

"Such guilds in our parishes in connection with lending libraries would go far towards counteracting what I believe is an increasing evil ,namely, demoralizing magazine literature. I would earnestly call the attention of the synod to this matter. It is said, and I believe, with truth, that there is a widespread desire among our people for systematic instruction in holy scripture. Such a spirit should certainly be fostered and encouraged. Owing to the utter neglect of religious education in schools, and to the stress of life which interferes with home training, regular instruction in church is absolutely nessessary."

Various means of instruction were discussed; more frequent use of the catechism was recommended.

"I would say that we ought to aim, more than we generally do, at giving instruction in our sermons. The unexhaustible variety of scriptures, and the circumstances of our people, will always supply and suggest new matter. History should be made known, lessons drawn from the lives of scriptural characters, parables explained, miracles vindicated, doctrines unfolded, difficulties in lessons and psalms made intelligible. Some hearers may perhaps, object to such teaching because they miss appeals to the emotions, but we have to ask ourselves not what will give our people pleasure for the moment, but what will be of permanent benefit to them. And if we thus aimed to instruct our people, to build them up in our most holy faith, they would not be so ready to listen to theories which tend to sap the foundations of Christian doctrine. A man who has learned to value his Bible and prayer book, who has the witness in himself, is proof against danger from infidel speculations.

"But let no one suppose that it is an easy, common-place matter to give such instruction. People well educated in other respects are often ignorant of the very elements of Christian doctrine."

His lordship then emphasized at length the duty and the wisdom of constant study by the clergy. He quoted Dr. Haak's warning: "Use all your influence that the ministers of our church may never cease to be what they have always been esteemed to be, a learned clergy."

The bishop then spoke of the need of more clergy for newly settled districts especially in Okanagan and East Kootenay. "It is not difficult to build suitable wooden churches, but it is difficult to provide clergy. The root of the difficulty is in raising adequate stipends. This is a laymen's question. Missionary societies have helped us all they can. Are our own people doing all they can?" He reminded recent arrivals from the mother land especially that the church in Canada is not endowed. He is hampered by securing new clergy by the uncertainty of maintenance. He regretted that there is no theological college in British Columbia and intimated that an English lady contemplates founding such an institution in Vancouver.

Referring again to religious education his lordship spoke of the impossibility of its being imparted by parents in all cases. "It may be, and is, objected that the school curriculum is already so full that there is no time for anything more. But what comparison can there be between giving the elements of a few 'ologies and imparting the knowledge and principles which lie at the root of all right action. The first thing we have to do is to get people to realize the position. It is misleading to speak of an utterly Godless system as 'non-sectarian.' Are we so enamored of the system prevalent in the United States that we are doing our best to copy and extend it? We may not be aware that it is viewed with profound dissatisfaction by many throughout Americans. A committee of 62 representative men in Washington recently urged the board of education to provide for the systematic study of morals based upon the Ten Commandments. They resolved that the only foundation of good citizenship was in morality based upon belief in God, and that it is the duty of the state to incorporate such teaching into its school system. An American has lately written: 'One great lesson that America teaches Englishmen is that education apart from religious training lowers the standard of national life. We excel other countries in the phenomenal corruption of our city government and legislatures.' This should be a warning note to us."

Means of giving religious instruction in schools were then discussed. Two plans were suggested: separate schools, and opportunity for religious teaching in state schools. "Of course there would be difficulties. There always are in effecting any improvement." Reference was made to the successful religious instruction in the schools of Germany.

The charge closed with a brief summary of confirmations, consecrations and ordinations during the year

A committee was then appointed to prepare a report on the bishop's charge, which will be discussed today. Archdeacon Beer was elected clerical secretarly, and E. A. Crease lay secretary.

The archdeacon then read his annual report on the diocese. Nine churches are now wholly self-supporting, namely, those of Nelson, Rossland, Revelstoke, Greenwood, Kaslo, Vernon, Cranbrook, Grand Forks and Kelowna, the last two being recent additions to the list. New churches have been built at Fernie, Arrowhead and Morrissey and one is being built at Salmon Arm. Rev. C. A. Mount, of New Denver, W. A. Robbins, of Greenwood, and H. Beecham of Cranbrook, have left the diocese within the year. Trout Lake and New Denver are now vacant. Reference was made to the small stipends of missionaries and the lack of funds for increasing them. The dues of the diocese to various missionary societies have all been paid, and the general financial condition is greatly improved since last synod. The archdeacon strongly recommends the building of parsonages, and generally the overtaking of all arrears, so that the synod may be free to encounter new work when the northern part of the diocese is opened up by the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway.

The report was discussed at some length in relation to different parishes. The archdeacon promised that detailed statistics would be presented today.

Archdeacon Beer and Rev. F. H. Graham were appointed clerical delegates to the general Canadian synod, with C. A. Procunier, C. F. Yates, canon Welch, J. A. Cleland and H. A. Solly as substitutes. The lay delegates are C. W. Busk and W. A. Jowett, with E. A. Crease and C. R. Hamilton as substitutes, and the bishop is authorized if none of these are available, to appoint others. The general synod meets in Quebec early in September.

Committees were then named as follows: Discipline, Revs. T. Greene, T. Lambert and G. Cook, and G. E. Martin, E. A. Crease, F. Fraser and W. Armstrong; on religious education, Revs. F. H. Graham, C. A. Procunier, H. A. Solly, T. Greene, E. R. Bartlett, J. A. Cleland and A G. Galt, T. Sterling and T. Taylor;on canons, E. A. Crease, archdeacon Beer, Rev. C. A. Procunier, Rev. J. S. A. Bastian and G. E. Martin, H. Bird and C. R. Hamilton

No temperance committee was elected as the last recommendations have not yet been carried out in full by the synod. The church depository committee was asked to remain in office and dispose of the stock on hand.

A motion by Rev. F. H. Graham for a committee to prepare a memorial to the general synod recommending a uniform hymnal for the church in Canada, evoked much discussion. It was finally adopted by 12 votes to 9.

Another motion by Rev. F. H. Graham for a committee to prepare a memorial asking for uniformity of rule throughout Canada as to the remarriage of divorced persons, was adopted without division.

Many other resolutions will be offered today, including one by Rev. F. H. Graham on the subject of religious education.

From 1 to 2 p.m. was spent pleasantly by all members of the synod in the dining room of the Queen's hotel, where a luncheon provided by the ladies of St. Saviour's church, was served. The same function will be enjoyed today.

The synod will convene this morning at 10 o'clock.

CHICAGO PEACE PROSPECTS

Chicago, June 7.—Peace prospects in the teamsters' strike took a new lease of life today, the teamsters' joint council having agreed to accept the employers' conditions for another conference. The action was taken in the absence of president Shea.

A TERRIFIC ORDEAL.

Russian Batleship Knocked to Pieces Above the Water Line.

Tokio, June 7.—The correspondent of the Associated Press has been permitted to inspect the Russian battleship Orel, now lying at Maizura. The Orel received a terrific battering. Her hull shows forty gaping holes pierced by large shells, and many smaller ones where she had been hit, while the superstructure of her upper works and upper decks were riddled by shells, steel fragments and splinters. The starboard forward 12-inch gun was smashed ten feet from the muzzle, either by a shell or an explosion. A fragment of the gun went over the bridge, smashing the rail and ,after carrying away the breech of a 12-pounder, buried itself in the signal locker From the mine deck upward the condition of the vessel was terrible to behold. Steel partitions were smashed, the gangway was broken, and stanchions wrecked. Gear of various kinds covered the decks, and the state of the alley-ways shows that the ship was on fire several times. The mark of the flames increased the scene of desolation. The main armor belt is intact. The turret,armor generally withstood the battering from the shells, although two of the six-inch turrets were rendered unserviceable by shots which struck close to their base. Several smaller guns were dismounted and smashed. A gruesome sight was a bulkhead, bespattered with blood, and fragments of flesh and hair. The Orel is sound structurally, although it will be necessary to practically reconstruct her from the water line up. The condition of the ship shows that the crew underwent a terrible ordeal before they surrendered.

GRAND FORKS COUNCIL.

Have Troubles of Their Own Over City Officials Discharge.

(Special to The Daily News)

Grand Forks, June 7.—A very heated session of the city council was held last evening over the dismissal from office of city electrician W. Waterston. During Mr. Waterston's recent absence from the city he was discharged, and the matter of his re-appointment was introduced at last evening's meeting. Mayor Jeffrey Hammer, and alderman Brown got very excited and many uncomplimentary remarks followed. It was finally decided not to deal with the appointment until alderan Clements should return to the city.

Judge W. W. Spinks, of Vernon, was here yesterday, holding a session of the county court. There was only a small docket to be disposed of.

All difficultuies over the license of the Province hotel are now ended, the license commissioners having finally decided to give that hotel a license.

The largest gathering of the F. O. E. ever held in the Boundary district has just concluded its labors here. Delegates were present from nearly every town in the province, over 500 visitors being present. The entire convention left on yesterday's Great Northern train for Phoenix where an appropriate reception was given them. The Grand Forks contingent returned home by special train early this morning.

ARE ASKED TO RESIGN

ALDERMEN ANNABLE AND MACDONALD MEMORIALIZED.

GATHERING OF PROGRESSIVE PARTY PASSED RESOLUTION.

Mayor Houston's stand against the council was approved, and the actions of aldermen Annable and Macdonald were condemned, at a meeting in the Success club hall last evening attended by about 135 members of the "Progressive Party." Numerous speeches were made and a resolution was adopted calling upon aldermen Annable and Macdonald to resign.

S. S. Taylor was in the chair. Among those present were: Mayor Houston, aldermen Malone, and Kirkpatrick, J. H Matheson, S. M. Brydges, A Lean, J. J. Chambers, H. D. Ashcroft, R. Weir, R. E. Lemon, G. L. Marquis, F. E. Hebden, J. Bradshaw, A. Benson, J. Thompson, J. A. Irving, F M Chadbourn, E. C. Traves, M. S. Parry, W. Brown, W. Shackleton, W. E. McCandlish, T. J. Scanlan, B. B. Mighton, E. J. Robinson, G. Motion, W. J. Murphy, F. Bosquet, Fred Smith, P. Nipou, H. Houston, Mr. Chesley, J. J. Walker, T. Powell.

S. S. Taylor opened briefly, by recounting the circumstances that led to the meeting. He said that there could be but one "boss" in any business.

Mayor Houston spoke next. He referred to his request for a majority in the council made at the first meeting of the last municipal campaign. He said the tenure of office by individuals was at once made an issue. He quoted his official pledge as:: "No city official who is efficient and whose services are required by the city shall be discharged." He claimed that he had not violated that pledge. He then said: "If ten men who voted for me, will, over their signatures, say that I have broken my pledge, I will resign and never seek reelection." He suggested that alderman Annable had rebelled because he (Houston) would not let him be mayor. He submitted that it was significant that the revolt of two aldermen was coincident with the application for an injunction by the W. K. L. & P. Co. He declared his intention of "staying with the fight."

Aldermen Malone and Kirkpatrick spoke very briefly about the record of the party and the advantage of a caucus in saving time.

T. J. Scanlan accused aldermen Annable and Macdonald of misstating that he approved their course. He told of the latter's consulting him. He declared his disapproval of the dismissal of any man merely for voting against the winning party. He had urged that the fight be confined to the caucus, and had advised the letter to the mayor.

J. A. Irving told of his experiences in the council and wondered why members of his party frequently joined the enemy, which "the enemy" never suffered desertions.

M. S. Parry, Mr. Chesley, E. C. Traves, S. M. Brydges, and J. H. Matheson also spoke.

T. Powell was the humorist of the evening. He roused considerable enthusiasm as he said: "All this fuss about a man being discharged. I have been 'sacked' a thousand times."

A resolution was then offered calling upon aldermen Annable and Macdonald to resign. Nearly all rose, no one opposed, and the chairman declared it carried unanimously. A committee was named to draw up a formal resolution to the same purpose.

NELSON'S NEWS OF THE DAY

The entrance to the recreation grounds today for the lacrosse game will be through the exhibition building, off Vernon street.

The attention of householders is specially directed to the closing of many of the local stores at noon today, and every subsequent Thursday during June, July and August.

Members of the launch club and all owners of launches are requested to turn out promptly at 10 o'clock this morning for the photograph parade which has been called by the commodore. The pictures will be taken at a point off the city wharf.

J. J. McArthur of Ottawa is at the Hume. He is in charge of the international boundary survey party, who are now busily engaged in placing bronze aluminum monuments along the international line between Waneta and Rykerts.

Many commercial travellers are now opening their goods in Nelson and sending trasportation to other nearby towns to their customers, finding that this pays better than taking their heavy stocks to places where there are perhaps not more than one merchant carrying their line of goods.

Wm. Whyte, second vice-president of the C.P.R., and the duke of Sutherland, returned last evening from the Boundary district. The duke had been desirous of inspecting the big Granby smelter and also of seeing one of the big copper mines at Phoenix. His desires were happily consummated, and his grace was properly impressed by the magnitude of both the smelter and the mine. After their return to Nelson the duke and Mr. Whyte spent some time at the Nelson club and later went on board the steamer Moyie.

F. Guernsey, engineer for the West Kootenay Power and Light company, was in the city yesterday over some business in connection with the pole line, the survey for which was recently completed by him through the Boundary country to Phoenix. Mr. Guernsey says he knows nothing of the proposed absorption of the Cascade Power company, and does not think that there is anything in the statement, as the West Kootenay company would not go to the trouble of duplicating the power line to Phoenix were such the case.

James Johnstone has returned to the city after a lengthy visit to eastern Canada and the old country. Mr. Johnstone has brought with him his son, Henry Johnstone, a young man, nearly of age, and his venerable father, Rev. James Johnstone, M.A., minister of the United Free church, Belhelvie, Aberdeenshire, who is now nearly 87 years of age. All Nelson people know Mr. Johnstone's height, and when the representatives of three generations of Johnstones stand in line there is not a fractio of an inch difference in their stature. Mr. Johnstone, senior, greatly enjoyed his trip out to the Kootenays and is very much taken with Nelson and its beautiful surroundings.

James Band, proprietor of the Grove hotel, Fairview, has had that favorite summer resort nicely fitted up. It is conveniently located within half a block of the street car line and good meals and the best of liquors and cigars make it a popular house of call. Drop in any time when passing and sample some of those choice thirst quenchers always on tap.

A portion of our cavalry drove the enemy northward to Chichiatzu, 15 miles north of Kwangping and to Machatan, seven miles east of Calpatun.

GOVERNOR M'INNES INDIGNANT

Very Emphatic as to Discontinuance of the Congdon Policy

Winnipeg, June 7—W. W. B. McInnes states that the article appearing in a local paper regarding the influence which Mr. Congdon will exercise in his administration of affairs in the Yukon in the future is entirely misleading, and that the statements made therein are untrue.

Mr. Congdon will not be a member of the Yukon council and will not have charge of government patronage. He will not be an element in Yukon politics in the future and the McInnes regime will not be in any sense a continuance of the Congdon rule, as suggested by the paper.

A FACT PROVEN.

Should Convince Even the Most Skeptical of Its Truth.

If there is the slightest doubt in the minds of any that Dandruff germs do not exist, their belief is compelled by the fact that a rabbit innoculated with the germs became bald in six weeks' time.

It must be apparent to any person therefore that the only prevention of baldness is the destruction of the germ—which act is successfully accomplished in one hundred per cent. of cases by the application of Newbro's Herpicide.

Dandruff is caused by the same germ which causes baldness and can be prevented with the same remedy—Newbro's Herpicide.

The name of Jacob Dover was inadvertently omitted from the list of those present at the meeting of the progressive party last evening.

Ben Hur Sanctorum of the order of Humility and Perfection met last evening and held a Moon Feast. There was a good attendance and a very enjoyable time.

Harry A. Small and Mrs. Small are at the Hume. They arrived from the coast last night. Mr. Small is rapidly recovering his health and strength.

T. D. McCallum, a noted horseman of Danville, Quebec, has arrived from the east and is at the Queen's. He is here to look into the possibilities of raising first class stock in British Columbia.

Harry McIntosh, the well known proprietor of the Hoffman house, Rossland, has leased the Halcyon Hot Springs Sanitorium for a term of years, commencing June 1 last, and is now in possession and managing the hotel.

A special meeting of the board of trade is called for this evening at 8:30 in the board rooms. The important business to be discussed includes the question of entertaining the member of the American mining institute, and the means of advertising the district.

W. S. Pearcy is now the owner of a flock of pheasants. He obtained 16 eggs from Fred Bosquet's vivarium and 14 of them have evolved into birds. Several others are raising pheasants to be liberated in the fall. They will add greatly to the sporting attractions of the district.

The charge against Chinese laundrymen for infraction of a city bylaw, came up before magistrate Crease yesterday morning. A. M. Johnson and P. McL. Forin, who appeared for the defence, contended that the bylaw contained an unreasonable regulation and was ultra vires of the city council. The magistrate reserved his decision.

LONDON HOPES FOR SETTLEMENT

Norwegian Question Likely to Lead to European Complications

London, June 7—The revolution in Norway though peacefully effected has come upon Europe with unexpected suddenness and the question is asked whether it will mean international complications. Had Russia not been involved in a difficult war in the far east, it is doubtful whether Norway would have taken the present momentous step, which is not likely to be regarded with approval by European powers. Emperor William's omission of his customary tour of Norway this year, seems to indicate his disapproval of the Norwegian policy, and the fact that the coup is not unlikely to eventuate in the establishment of a Norwegian republic, would alone be a reason why the step should not commend itself to the monarchial powers.

It is nowhere thought that king Oscar will consent to a junior member of his family becoming king of Norway. The proposal is regarded as an attempt to palliate the blow to the deposed king, and the opinion of the English papers is that the suggestion is quite impracticable. In their editorials this morning London papers comment on the extreme seriousness of the step Norway has taken, many expressing the hope that there may yet be time for the Norwegian people to reconsider their position, and endeavor to adjust the difficulty regarding the consular question by arbitration, or other means, so as to preserve the union. The prospects of such an adjustment, however, appear to be of the slightest.
