WEEK'S ORE SHIPMENTS

Changes at Greenwood Smelter Account for Reduced Tonnage

When Improvements Underway are Completed Boundary's Output Will be Largely Increased

The most interesting mining news during the week just over, came from the Boundary country, where unusual activity is evident.

For the first time this year the British Columbia Copper company does not appear in the shipping list or in the smelter receipts for the week, but this is owing entirely to the closing down of the company's smelter at Greenwood preparatory to greatly enlarging the plant, the work on which has already commenced and will be rushed to completion probably within the next three months, when the shipments for the balance of the year will easily more than make up for the present silent period. Development work at the company's mines is being continued vigorously meanwhile, and there will be no decrease in the payroll pending the improvements and enlargements.

The railway construction work in the Boundary has created a labor shortage, it being impossible to get sufficient men to do the work called for, and both mines and smelters in the district feel the scarcity of labor, as well as the railroad contractors. Efforts are being made to obtain men from outside sources, and if these are successful the labor situation will settle itself quickly.

A New York syndicate has taken a bond on some 20 well known properties, including the Marshal, Monte and Forty groups, all located just to the north of Phoenix and adjoining the properties owned and worked by the Dominion Copper company and the Granby Consolidated.

J. L. Martin, of Phoenix, who negotiated the deal, states that the syndicate in question is composed of wealthy Americans who are quite prepared to spend a large sum in thoroughly developing the several properties, and, if sufficient ore is discovered, to at once proceed with the erection of a smelter of their own. It is stated that the properties in question have great known ledges of ore and these are to be thoroughly tested at once by means of diamond drills. This proving satisfactory, the work of development will follow and later the building of the smelter. Competent mining men state that the properties will make large producers with adequate development, hence the importance of the deal to the district.

Allowing for the falling off in the shipments and smelter receipts of the B. C. Copper company, above referred to, the shipments and receipts all over southern British Columbia for the past week are well up to the average and show a slight but steady increase over the average of those for the past few weeks. Although but five and a half months of the year have passed the total of the Rossland output is well over the 150,000 ton mark and the latest information from that camp points to increasing weekly shipments for the balance of the year.

In the Slocan-Kootenay output this last week two new shippers appear, and the total shipments are a little higher than the previous week.

General manager Riondel, of the Canadian Metal company, whose head office is in this city, returned a week ago from Frank where he inspected the company's zinc smelter, which commenced operations on May 26, turning out the first zinc ever made in Canada. As stated at length in these columns, Mr. Riondel expressed great satisfaction at the way in which the smelter was running. Only one furnace has been in operation but the three others will shortly be lighted up and the manager looks for an eminently satisfactory run for the plant. He also stated that the company had about arranged to erect a large 200 ton up-to-date concentrator at the Blue Bell mine at Ainsworth, as well as a magnetic separator. His expressed opinion, that after a very careful expert examination of the Blue Bell property the company are satisfied they have a great mine, is worthy of more than passing mention.

Appended will be found the ore shipments and smelter receipts in detail for the week and year to date:

ROSSLAND SHIPMENTS

Will Materially Increase Before the End of the Year.

Rossland, June 16.—The mines of the camp have now well passed the 150,000 ton mark in the first five and a half months of the year. The mines are going ahead steadily and producing at the rate of 6000 to 7000 tons a week. All of the larger mines have good sized reserves of ore in sight, and with several of the smaller mines as prospective shippers, the outlook is that there will be a material increase in the weekly shipments before the end of the year.

ON CARPENTER CREEK.

The North Fork of Carpenter creek is receiving a god deal of attention from leasers, says the Sandon Mining Standard. Kelso and Barbour are taking out some fine ore from the Jo Jo; George Clark is developing the McAllister group while McPherson, working across from the Jo Jo, is extending development on his property. For a hard worker, commend us to McPherson. Alone, he has driven over 450 feet of work, has packed his grub from Three Forks on his back, and worked hard all last winter. If this gentleman strikes a pocket worth several millions, he certainly is entitled to it. He furnishes a striking example to the leasing "profesh."

The antimony claims, near the head of the creek, will receive attention very soon, and it is expected that considerable shipments will follow. Antimony, according to the last quotations, is selling for $700 per ton, and from the sharp rise in prices, it must be a rather scarce article.

The North Fork camp is a dry ore section, in which the silver values run very high. It is nothing to get thousand ounce ore, which also carries gold. There are many claims staked, and this should be an exceptionally good spot for leasing Thorough prospecting is needed.

BATCHELOR AND COLONIAL

Sandon, June 16.—Work is progressing favorably on the new tunnel at the Batchelor. Sixteen men are at work developing and stoping out ore.

A big body of ore has ben struck on the Colonial. The size of the vein assures another big shipping mine for Sandon in the near future.

PHOENIX OPERA HOUSE OPENED

(Special to The Daily News)

Phoenix, June 16—Last night the formal opening of the new Phoenix Miners' union opera house was held, the spacious auditorium being filled by an audience of several hundred persons. The program of 16 numbers was entirely by local talent, vocal and instrumental, together with a farce comedy, "Dr. Gertrude Mason, M.D," and was well received.

The new opera house is a building 45x85 feet and three stories high. Some months ago the two upper floors were completed and occupied, being used as lodge rooms, large banquet room, kitchen, office for the secretary, etc., with the finest ball room in this section. The opera house itself is on the lower floor, and will be capable of seating 500 or 600 persons. It has a large stage with several dressing rooms and several sets of scenery have recently been painted and added to the equipment. The lighting arrangements are modern in every respect, and the house can be quickly emptied in case of fire or panic. Altogether, when the final touches are put on the building will have cost Phoenix Miners' union No. 8 close to $25,000, and is believed to be a credit alike to that organization and to the city.

VOYAGE WAS TOO LONG

BROTHERS ATTEMPT TO SWIM FROM SHIP TO LAND.

ONE IS DROWNED, OTHER PICKED UP UNCONSCIOUS.

New York, June 16.—Rather than take a voyage to China as seamen on a Standard Oil vessel two brothers, John and Louis Lonsberg, of Brooklyn, jumped into the lower bay nearly two miles off shore from the bark Arrow today and attempted to swim to Staten island. John was drowned. Louis was picked up unconscious and revived after hard work. The young man who was saved, told a strange story that approaches a tale of crimping. He accuses his own father of forcibly putting him and his brother aboard the Arrow for the trip to China. Young Lonsberg says that his father met the captain of the Arrow, who needed several sailors, and completed a deal with him whereby the two youths were to work their way to China and back. They were taken aboard the Arrow by a subterfuge, according to the boys story, and were then informed that their father had signed them for the long voyage. The young men protested but the captain refused to release them, and they decided to desert the ship and swim to Staten island. They made a miscalculation as to the tide, however, and when they jumped overboard side by side, the water was racing out through the narrows at a terrific speed. The boys soon found that they could make no headway towards shore and called for help when they were about half a mile away from the Arrow. Members of the Ocean Yacht club and the crew of a tug boat heard the cries for assistance and hurried to their aid. They rescued Louis just as he was about to give up the struggle. The other fugitive was not found as his body was probably swept out to sea.

Louis refused to give his father's address.

PAYMENT OF FIRE LOSS

INSURANCE COMPANIES MUST DEAL FAIRLY.

WILL BE DRIVEN FROM CALIFORNIA OTHERWISE.

San Francisco, June 16.—In the name of the city of San Francisco and the state of California, it was learned today that notice has been served on 61 insurance companies that they are accused of endeavoring to dodge their obligations of full settlement to the people of San Francisco who lost property by the fire in April.

A telegram signed by mayor Schmitz and governor Pardee has been sent to the home offices of the 61 companies that voted in Oakland to cut all payment of losses 25 per cent. The wording of the telegram is kept secret but it is known that the message is a warning to the concerns addressed that they must deal fairly and honestly with the San Francisco public or be driven from California. Before the message was sent it was submitted to insurance commissioner Wolf who gave it his approval.

A number of companies that hold large amounts of re-insurance in other concerns would sign stipulations extending the time for filing proof of loss were they not prohibited from doing so by the insurance companies.

YMIR NEWS NOTES

Ymir, June 16—Hary Wright, M.L.A. for the riding, yesterday, chaperoned by Midge Talt, visited Salmo and spent last evening here.

A telephone line is being installed between the Ymir general hospital and Dr. Elliott's house. This will be of great convenience in case of a hurry up call. Heretofore when the doctor was needed during the night one of the nurses had to make a trip down town.

Ymir will have four pupils try their entrance examination at Nelson next month. Principal J. N. Macdonald has been giving a great deal of his time to the pupils and it will be through no fault of his if they do not pass.

Two Salvation army lassies had a trying time this week while on the way the Relief mine. The horses were frightened by a bear that appeared on the road and they experienced a bronco busting lesson.

The mill boys gave a dance Thursday evening in the Miners union hall which was well patronized.

VETERAN ACTOR'S DEATH

New York, June 16—Edmund Lyons, a veteran of the stage and a noted representative of the old school of acting, died today in the New York hospital after a brief illness. Mr. Lyons' best character acting in recent years was as Nero in Quo Vadis. A Scotchman by birth he had lived in America for 20 years.

TERRIFIC THUNDERSTORM

Syracuse, June 16—A terrific thunderstorm, which amounted to almost a cloudburst passed over this section late this evening. West of the city there was heavy hail which was reported to have done considerable damage to crops. Lightning struck a dozen places in the city but no serious damage was done.

SIGNAL FOR REVOLUTION

Proposed Adjournment of Parliament While Czar Goes Yachting

Would Amount to Practical Declaration of War--Reign of Terror Continues in Bialystok According to Reports

St. Petersburg, June 16.—The Associated Press is reliably informed that emperor Nicholas has definitely decided to declare a recess of parliament on June 28 and that his majesty and the royal family will immediately thereafter leave on a tour of the Finnish fjords on board the imperial yacht Standard, which is being fitted out for that purpose.

Such a decision seems to tempt fate for if it is executed it will be almost certain to be the signal for an immediate and bloody struggle. The group of toilers, as an outcome of its open declaration against a recess, passed a resolution declaring that neither now or in the near future can parliament be recessed; that at no time will the members leave their posts and that so long as the arbitrariness and outrages of the government continue and the terrors of impending "pogroms," and the sufferings of the peasantry and workmen reign, parliament must continue to work until it has achieved "A land of freedom," or exhausted all means to this end.

Black Hundreds, as well as revolutionists, are said to be mustering their forces for an impeding conflict at Moscow. Their value to legions of the reactionaries, if it comes to an actual conflict is doubtful, however, as the dreaded Black Hundred in the December revolt, though mustering and combative before the event, showed the white feather and took little part in the actual fighting.

Warsaw, June 16.—A band of thirty revolutionists today attacked a branch post, which was guarded by a small detachment of military, killing or wounding several of the soldiers and wounding two officers. One of the wounded soldiers succeeded in escaping and summoned help. After a further fight the band was driven off but seven of its members were captured. A second sergeant of police was killed in the streets here today and a policeman and a soldier were wounded.

Moscow, June 16.—While the bands were playing in the square and boulevards today, several attempts were made to start red flag processions. The populace rallied and attacked the revolutionists and a serious conflict was averted only by energetic action on the part of the troops and police. The prefect of police has issued a warning that persons starting a procession will be arrested and sentenced to three months' imprisonment.

St. Petersburg, June 16.—An official statement concerning the trouble at Bialystok, but adding little to information previously received except the statement that a complete restoration of order is impossible immediately owing to the difficulty of hunting down and capturing the disorderly element in the maze and tangle of streets and houses in the Jewish quarter, is the only news from Bialystok.

Late advices say the present massacre may be regarded as ended, but that roving bands are still assaulting and otherwise maltreating unfortunate Jews wherever they see an oportunity.

On account of a lack of direct information the status of the situation is in doubt. Members of parliament continue to receive telegrams from Polish correspondents, denying the details given in the official explanation of the disorders, some of them declaring that fighting did not begin during the procession and that the shots, instead of being directed against persons in the procession, simply were signals to begin exercises. Tomorrow probably will bring the preliminary report of the investigation committee sent to Bialystok, which will go far toward fixing the responsibility for the rioting and giving the approximate number of dead and wounded.

Bialystok, via Warsaw, June 16.—In order to revenge the victims of the massacre, Jewish revolutionaries hidden on the roofs of houses and behind fences and the draperies of windows, have fired the whole day long with revolvers and rifles at the government building and the workmen and peasants passing in the streets. One band, ambushed in a factory, fired on the passenger train.

The exact number of victims is not known, but it is estimated that 100 persons have been killed. Two hundred persons are lying wounded in two hospitals of the city. Martial law has been proclaimed and fresh troops are arriving constantly.

Berlin, June 17.—The Alliance Israelite has received a telegram from Bialystok saying the massacres continue in a frightful manner there and also in Grodno and that panic and terror have seized Grajewo.

The Lokal Anzeiger prints a special despatch from Warsaw saying that minister of the interior Stolypin has telegraphed the governor of Grodno to restore order at Bialystok at any cost. The despatch adds that although the 16th division is at Bialystok, it has been impossible to restore order. Many anarchists have barricaded themselves in certain houses from which they fire on the military. Infantry answer with salvos upon the house from which the firing comes. Regular scenes of siege are being enacted within the town.

The correspondent says many Jewish families are leaving under military escort to take refuge across the nearby Prussian frontier.

Fifty armed persons in a house in Suwbrow street refused to surrender and the military stormed the place and killed many of the inmates. The despatch concludes by saying that patrols of Cossocks and dragoons traverse the streets continuously and prevent the movement of traffic.

WASH AWAY THE DUMPS

SPRING FRESHETS ON BONANZA AND HUNKER CREEKS.

GREAT DAMAGE DONE TO FLUMES AND SLUICE BOXES.

Seattle, June 16.—Word has reached here from the northern goldfields that the high water of the spring freshets is doing considerable harm to mining interests, especially on Bonanza creek and Hunker creek. On the latter two dumps estimated to contain $10,000 each, were partly washed away by the breaking of a large dam on the N. A. T. & T. claim. Many miles of flume have been washed out and all hydraulicking ditches have been filled with water, thus preventing the further operation until the water recedes.

The Klondike river is a roaring torrent and on Bear creek properties the entire camps have been out day and night hauling material for a breakwater. Several of the large dredges have been considerably damaged by the water and two on the Bonanza have listed at an angle of about 40 degrees and will be useless until repaired, which will take several weeks.

On El Dorado all the dams have been washed out, while the Pacific Coast Mining company has suffered the loss of all its flumes and sluice boxes.

NEW LAW IS TOO SEVERE

OLIVER'S BILL TO REGULATE IMMIGRATION

TRANSPORTATION COMPANIES ARE ALARMED.

Ottawa, June 16.—Representatives of the Allan, Dominion, Reford and Donaldson steamship lines, the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific railways, have interviewed the minister of the interior, regarding the bill he has introduced to give the government fuller authority to order the deportation of diseased, insane, pauper, criminal and other undesirable immigrants. At present the law compels the steamship companies to carry back to port of embarkation any immigrants who, after medical examination, are refused admittance by the immigration authorities. The bill now before the house, however, would compel the companies to carry immigrants back if it were shown that they belong to the criminal class, or become incapacitated through sickness or accident to earn a living, or become an inmate of a jail, hospital, or other charitable institution. This would apply against railways as well as steamship companies, and both submit that the law proposed by the minister is unfair to them. They profess a sincere desire to cooperate with the government in seeing that none but a desirable class of settlers are brought into the country.

WILL BE WELCOMED BACK

Pollard Lilliputian Opera Troupe's Engagement Closed

Making a record for a week's stand at the opera house here, the Pollard kiddies closed their local season last night and will leave for Calgary at 4:30 this morning. They have been a great success here and have many friends, both socially and on the stage. Last night they presented as a farewell bill Lady Slavey, which is perhaps better known as The American Millionaire. The attendance was good although not quite up to the mark of other nights.

The greater portion of the work last night fell on Teddy Macnamara, as Roberts, the sheriff's officer, and as usual he made the most of the role and kept his audience in tears of laughter when he was on the stage. The title role was in the hands of little Daphne Pollard and she did it ful justice. He duet in the second act with Teddy brought forth numerous encores, and these were so numerous that Teddy had to inquire "if you folks have brought your blankets."

Miss Nellie Shedden and Miss Merle Pollard took the parts of the major's two daughters and were favorites with the audience. A new song introduced last night was "Nothing," sung by Jack Pollard and the chorus.

The members of the company were well pleased with their week in Nelson and hereafter this city will be a regular stand on the Pollard tours.

BEAVER CLAIM BONDED

H. W. Warrington of the Kettle Valley Line, Secures another Property

(Special to The Daily News)

Grand Forks, June 16—The latest deal of importance that is chronicled here is the bonding of the well known Beaver property by H .W. Warrington, superintendent of the Kettle Valley railway. The former owner of this claim was C. Mix. The exact terms and conditions of this deal have not yet been made known but it is announced that it is for a good sum. Mr. Warrington who recently bonded the Maple Leaf property, also in Franklin camp, will work these two properties together.

George Tierney, who will act as local manager of the construction of the Kettle Valley railway extension up the North Fork, is busily engaged in getting his various grading outfits at work. The construction work thus far started is being done by contractor Tierney himself, and subcontracts will be let in a few days for sections of from one to five or six miles.

Frank Hartinger, proprietor of the Columbia brewery, who was recently notified not to sell any more beer in this city without taking out a city license, has openly defied the civic authorities and refuses to respond to their demand. Mr. Hartinger contends that whereas he is now paying a brewery license to the dominion government, the city has no right to demand a license from him. The civic authorities will likely take action against Mr. Hartinger and make a test case in the courts.

SCARCITY OF LABOR

Progress of Construction on V., V. & E. Delayed By Lack of Men.

Midway, June 16.—Increasing activity in the V., V. & E. yard has marked the past week. The numerous parts of the tracklaying machine, which have been lying on flat cars for the past week or two, were unloaded on Monday and strung out along the track at the western limit of the yard ready for assembling. The locomotive for use with the machine will probably arrive in a few days from the shops, where it is being put in a good state of repair. Some 20 men of the steel gang have arrived, and they are engaged in making final preparations for tracklaying, which will be commenced about the 20th.

The shortage of men to work on the western sections of the grade is becoming serious, so much so that a special agent has been despatched to Europe for the purpose of securing the necessary additional help. It will be quite impossible to complete the road by the specified time if the supply of labor is not greatly augmented. With an abundance of work everywhere, men are rather independent just at present, and this adds greatly to the troubles of the contractors.

EMPRESS OF BRITAIN'S TRIP

New C. P. R. Steamer Beats All Previous Records by an hour and Three Minutes

Quebec, June 16—Ehe Empress of Britain docked at Quebec today at 12:50 noon, after making a record trip from Moville to Rimouski via Cape Race. The steamer left the former port at 10 o'clock last Sunday morning and arrived at Rimouski at 2:47 this, Saturday, morning, thus making the trip between the two points in 5 days, 16 hours and 47 minutes, and adding to this the difference in time, amounting to 4 1-2 hours, completes a record voyage of 5 days 21 hours and 17 minutes. The previous record for this route was 5 days, 22 hours and 20 minutes. It will thus be seen that the Empress has broken all records. It is confidently expected that the vessel will accomplish greater things during the present season, this being only her second voyage.

JUSTICE FOR DREYFUS.

Decision of Rennes Courtmartial May Be Quashed Without Further Trial.

Paris, June 16.—The supreme court today completed its examination of the secret documents concerning the Dreyfus case. The public sessions will begin Monday, when the attorneys for the prosecution and defense will sum up.

A rumor gained circulation this afternoon that a majority of the court was in favor of quashing the judgement of the Rennes courtmartial without further trial or proceedings.

DITCHED IN A WASHOUT

Ballston, N. Y., June 16—Relief trains which were sent to the assistance of the Boston & Maine railroad passenger train, wrecked near Schuylerville today, are stalled several miles from the scene of the wreck. There are several washouts on the line and railroad men estimate that fully 36 hours will be required to restore the tracks to a condition which will permit the the relief trains to proceed to their destination. The passenger train which was due to reach Saratoga at 6:40 a.m. today was ditched in a washout.

MEAT INSPECTION BILL

Washington, June 16—A conclusion was reached late today by the house leaders, whereby the Meat Inspection bill, the Pure Food bill and the Immigration bill are all to be passed next week and in the order named. This understanding was arrived at as the result of a demand for a republican caucus to decide whether the Pure Food or the Immigration bill should have the right of way. No caucus will now be necessary and the legislation will be expedited if necessary by special rules limiting debate.

NAVAL SHAM BATTLE.

Dover, England, June 16.—A great naval sham battle began in the straits of Dover today, between the "Blue" fleet (the enemy), and the "Red" (British) fleet. It is reported that some of the enemy's torpedo boats were captured. The enemy attacked Plymouth this morning but the early cessation of firing indicated that the attack was repulsed.

GREEN MAY HAVE TO GO

Dunsmuir Unwilling to Accept Him as One of His Ministers

Judicial Enquiry Into Pendray Land Scandal Deemed to be Move on Part of Premier to Save His Colleague

(Special to The Daily News)

Victoria, June 16.—For some time past, particularly on his recent tour, premier McBride has been urged by members of his party to drop the chief commissioner from the government on the ground that he was a source of weakness. Now it is said a hint has come from a source which the premier cannot disregard, it was reported that one of the first steps of the new lieutenant governor was to intimate that the government was not a clean one and that he could not accept Green as one of his ministers. His alleged reason was the undue knowledge which the Andersons, male and female, had of matters in the lands and works department, which constituted a scandal.

The government request for investigation by a supreme court judge of charges in connection with the Pendray property is believed to be due to the desire of the premier to rehabilitate his minister with whom he will part only if retention means loss of power.

The Pendray case will be a difficult one to establish by witnesses and hence the premier hopes to be able to fight it successfully, and by a favorable decision from the judge to prove the department clean.

Dunsmuir, however, is very obstinate, and if he has decided that Green must go he will insist on his wish being obeyed.

RELEASE OF BROTHIER

Ottawa, June 16.—Macpherson again brought up the Brothier matter in the house yesterday. He accused a man who was once minister of justice of the dominion of using his influence with the department to get Brothier liberated. This man was sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, said Mr. Macpherson. He (Mr. Macpherson) was never consulted in the matter, and he considered that he ought to have been. He never knew of it until the man was released. He spoke of the crimes of which Brothier was guilty, and said that he would move that all papers be brought down.

Hon. Mr. Aylesworth said that nothing would be proved by this. Hon .Mr. Fitzpatrick was the man who was responsible. He did not believe the department was influenced by sir Charles Hibbert Tupper as stated.

Mr. Foster defended sir Charles but attacked the government for releasing Brothier.

CANNERS UP IN ARMS

New Westminster, June 16.—Fraser river canners have just tumbled to the fact that the proposed Lord's Day Observance bill, if it become law, will hit them hard. Fishermen, also, realize that they will suffer severely by the arbitrary provisions of the bill. The enforcement of the bill in its present shape would mean the loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars to the canning interests, without benefitting anyone. Fishermen, in particular, would be great sufferers. Urgent appeals have been sent to Ottawa to exempt the canning industry from the provisions of the bill.

OKLAHOMA REACHES STATEHOOD

Washington, June 16—Another star was added to the union today when president Roosevelt signed the bill admitting Oklahoma and the Indian Territory as one state. The measure also provides that Arizona and New Mexico may be admitted to statehood as the state of Arizona, provided the people of the territories vote in favor of the admission on the terms submitted by congress.

HURRICANE RAGING

St. Johns., Nfld., June 16—A furious hurricane has been raging along the Newfoundland coast for 48 hours, causing serious damage to the shipping. Two vessels with fourteen men on board have been blown out to sea. Tugs have been sent in quest of them.

HAVERFORD EXPLOSION

Liverpool, June 16.—There was another death this afternoon as the result of the explosion of June 14 on board the steamer Haverford bringing the total deaths to 11. Several others of those injured are in a serious condition. The cause of the explosion is still a mystery.

NELSON'S NEWS OF THE DAY

James Meighan announced last evening that he had arranged with the Coleman footballers for a game with Nelson here on the afternoon of July 3rd, the second day of the Dominion day celebration. The Coleman team is one of the best in the Pass and a great match may be looked for.

Editor Webster of the Kaslo Kootenaian, was in town yesterday.

The city band will give a concert in the tramway park this afternoon, weather permitting, lasting from 3 to 5 o'clock. Both cars will be run during the afternoon.

CANADIAN MEAT—FRESH—CANNED

The Chicago packing house disclosures have naturally directed attention to the meat trade generally and as Canada carries on an extensive meat packing business, the eastern papers are asking whether there be not need for more thorough inspection of the products of the canning facories on this side of the line.

The Maritime Merchant says we may now ask ourselves if every pound of meat killed and sold in this country is what it ought to be. The provision exists for inspection, but how much inspection is actually done?

This paper goes on to say that the main part of the packing business in Chicago and in every packing community is the fresh meat trade and it is this that the inspection system is designed to serve, perhaps more than the preserved meat trade, for presumably if the former was adequately protected, there would be little need for special protection in the latter case as it only uses the less marketable product of the former. But to come back to the fresh meat trade at home, which must concern us as intimately as it concerns the people of the United States, let us ask ourselves what inspection is securing for us here? Let us not forget, either, that there are meat packers in Canada, and that it is just as important for their product to be absolutely wholesome as it is that the imported article should pass every test.

Be it observed, however, that we do not insinuate anything regarding the product of Canadian packers. Nevertheless, we would like to be satisfied about the severity of the inspection to which it is put. We can imagine it possible that packers might be putting diseased meat on the market without knowing it. We feel, too, that they would not put such meat on the market if they could help it, and would approve the inspection which would aid them in supplying the very best article possible.

But how about the fresh meat suppy? Once in a while we hear of small quantities of meat in butcher shops being destroyed as unfit for food, and if enquiry were to be made as to the way in which these movements come about, we dare say it would be found to be the result, not of careful and persistent inspectoral oversight, but because of reports which have set the inspectors busy. We cannot think that the system of inspection which prevails here is so good that there is not considerable meat finding its way into consumption which should not. What guarantee have we that the slaughtering done all over the provinces is of animals that are in a perfectly sound and wholesome condition? After an animal is converted into shape for retailing purposes, its meat may have a good enough appearance to the unexpert and still be infected. Who is going to say whether it is really fit for food, unless it be an examiner who goes through all places where meats are exposed for sale and makes careful examination of everything on the premises? Are there such officials in the provinces?

The meat supply of the country should be under control. Instead of there being numerous small slaughter houses there should be a few centrally located abattoirs, where cattle would be thoroughly inspected before killing and immediately after killing while the organs are still intact, and everything should be so arranged that diseased animals would be charged back to the people who supplied them. This is the time to inspect, not when the meat is distributed to numerous stores. Imported meat should come in only under guarantees and should be inspected before going on sale, and the inspection should be thorough.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Despite the denials of premier McBride and chief commissioner Green, the feeling prevails on the coast that there is to be an appeal to the country before another session of the house. Discussing the situation, in connection with the recent stormy gathering at Salt Spring island, presided over by former sanitary inspector Wolley, the Victoria Times remarks: "We cannot believe that the premier would attempt to deceive the ally to whom he owes so much, comrade Hawthornthwaite. The latter gentleman, we are convinced, understands thoroughly the intentions of the government, and the information he has received is such as to warrant him in taking the stump. Nor can we believe, despite the methods comrade Hawthornthwaite has adopted for raising a campaign fund to maintain himself while on his tour of the province, that his party has not received its fair share of the proceeds of the various deals the government has put through the house—and which could not have been put through without its assistance—at the expense of the people of the province and on behalf of male and female adveturers and great corporations. Taking one consideration with another, with those two notable extremists comrade Hawthornthwaite and poet Wolley working together in the sacred cause, is it not evident that unless some untoward circumstances intervene, it is the intention of the McBride government to take an appeal to the people at an early date and at what appears to it the most opportune season?"

The Naval and Military Gazette discussing the situation in South Africa says: "But the real trouble of South Africa, the evil which prevents the quiet she needs, the sore which checks all legitimate individual initiative and natural expansion, is the fact that the so-called 'gold-bugs' run South Africa. They pull all the strings. They have the power to get everything done as they wish it done. They can and do stifle trade in which they are not concerned, while their tentacles are so far reaching that it is difficult to start any business with which, directly or indirectly, they have not something to do, and to prevent interefference they will stick at nothing. A case in point. A small speculator lately brought through from the Kalahari some 2000 sheep and goats, took his flock through to Pretoria and sold them to local butchers, receiving orders for 3000 more. But the 'gold bugs' of Pretoria and Johannesburg hold large shares in the 'cold storage' and the enterprising shepherd had not been back a week in the Kalahari, when an order was issued closing all the western drifts, and directing that all stock coming through was to be taken to a drift below Mafeking, there to be dipped three times at sixpence per head per dip, with a week's interval between each dip. And this with no scab or other disease in the country. Therefore it may be seen that the country 'bought by blood, and by blood restored,' if a country for the white man is not a land for any white man. The Dutchman thinks it is for him; the renegade means, if he can, to make it his. The Johannesburger means to make what he can out of it. But it would seem that so far as making South Africa a land for the settler, for the virile surplus of the Anglo-Saxon race, is concerned, the blood of our readers and of their comrades is likely to have been shed in vain."

UNION OF THE CHURCHES

IMPORTANT STEP FORWARD BY THE PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY

CHURCH OF ENGLAND NOW PREPARED TO CO-OPERATE

Once more is the great question of church union brought forward by the Presbyterian general assembly. A deputation from the Anglican church, headed by the bishop of Huron, visited the assembly and announced that the church of England was prepared to discuss the subject, although last year the synod had pronounced against church union. This was supposed to settle the matter so far as the Anglicans were concerned, but the words uttered by the bishop of Huron indicate that the desire for union is stronger than ever, and that, though the obstacles in the way are great the church of England is ready to join in a movement that shall determine whether they appear more formidable than they really are.

There can be little doubt of a general desire on the part of the majority of Protestant churchgoers to effect a combina*tion or union if a satisfactory* basis can be arrived at, but there is another body of thought that considers church union undesirable even if feasible. Bishop Elliott of Kilmore, Ireland, a distinguished church man, takes this view. He says: "Let each religious body pursue its own course, according to its light, and fulfil its destiny in the spirit that thinketh no evil. Then in good time, still far off, it will come to pass that natural selection will lead to the survival of the fittest—a method of union more effective than any synod can artificially and permanently attempt." It would probably be just to describe the church of England as doubtful of the possibility of union, but extremely desirous that it should be brought about.

Methodists, Presbyterians and Congregationalists are not more desirous but more hopeful. They have already come to a base of agreement through the efforts of a special committee, containing representatives from the three bodies, whose report has been considered by the assembly, as later on it will be considered by the conference of the Methodist church and Congregationalists. Should it be approved by all three the union will become a fact. It is interesting to note that the United Brethren have become united to the Congregationalists quite recently. If the larger union takes place, an impetus would be given to the movement that aims to join the church of England to the great federation of Protestant churches.

It is encouraging to advocates of union to observe that, so far as Methodists, Presbyterians and Congregationalists are concerned, their points of doctrine are plainly susceptible of unification, says the Toronto Mail and Empire. Glancing over the report of the committee, we observe harmony in the belief in the character, nature and purposes of God, of Creation and of Providence, of sin, of man, of faith and repentance, regeneration, Sonship and justification, the doctrine of the Trinity, free will, and sacraments of baptism and comunion. "We acknowledge one holy Catholic church," says the report, "and we receive it as the will of Christ that His church on earth should exist as a visible and sacred brotherhood, consisting of those who profess faith in Jesus Christ. . . . . and we acknowledge as a part more or less pure of this universal brotherhood every particular church throughout the world which professes this faith in Christ and obedience to Him as Divine Lord and Saviour."

The sub-committee on polity recommended that the United church should have four governing bodies: The general assembly, the annual conference, the district council and another body not named. The first is to be the supreme court, and the others to have special functions of less importance. The sub-committee on the ministry recommends a system combining the best features of the settled pastorate and the itinerancy. Pastoral service shall be without a time limit, but at the end of a year a change may be made at the re*quest of either minister or congregation.* The sub-committee of administration presents a condensed report to the effect that obstacles to union are not apt to prove more difficult than many that were dealt with in former union movements, and can only be removed if approached in a spirit of mutual concessions and with a due regard to existing interests.

After considering the reports of the sub-committees, the joint committees on church union met and passed the following resolution:

"That this joint committee. . . . rejoices to find the substantial unity existing among the negotiating churches, and feels encouraged to continue further negotiations for the union."

It appears then that the outlook for union is bright, but it will be well for those interested in the work not to imagine that they can now or at any time settle the matter until eternity. It is not within the power of man to establish a permanent structure and the more latitude that is permited now, the more individual liberty that is respected, the more chance is there of union enduring through the centuries that are to come.

OF INTEREST TO MINERS

This week is continued the article commenced last week on Iron. As we drew particular attention to the iron minerals in last week's introduction, and have further mentioned the subject at the end of the mineral limonite in today's issue we will not go further into the matter.

Attention should be drawn though to the correspondence notes, in the reply given to H. T. today that some delay has been caused by attention not being fully paid to the instructions so frequently given. In sending on samples for examination the fullest possible particulars should be given, such as the district from which the sample came; the different wall rocks, and where any particular question is required to be answered it should be directly asked, and not left in a vague sort of a way. Should an assay be required the full amount of the fees must be forwarded with the sample, as The Daily News does not run an assay office, but simple places the samples for assaying with a competent assayer.

If the foregoing instructions are followed a prompt and ready reply will be given to every communication received.

IRON

Native iron, magnetite and siderite having been given last week, under the chief minerals of this metal, we now come to the most important of the iron producing minerals

HEMATITE. Hematite besides being the most important of the iron producing ores, is the most abundant ore in nature. It occurs in many different forms each distinguished by a special name and which will be treated separately. Hematite is an oxide of iron (ferric) containing when pure 70 per cent iron. It often contains titanium and magnesium as impurities, owing to which it gradually changes into ilmenite or titaniferous iron. Hematite has a metallic luster sometimes splendent, and often earthy. Its color varies from a dark steel gray to an iron black; when it is earthy its color is red. Its streak varies from a cherry red to a reddish brown. It is usually opaque but when in very thin crystals it has a fine blood red color and is transparent. Its fracture is uneven. Occasionally hematite is slightly magnetic, due probably to a small amount of magnetite, or some partially decomposed pyrrhotite being present.

There are a number of separate varieties of hematite characterized as follows;

Specular hematite or specular iron, with a lustre that is always metallic or splendent, from whence it obtains its name.

Micaceous hematite, when the structure is foliated (leaf like) or micaceous; this variety of specular iron is nearly always soft and greasy to the touch of the fingers.

Compact columnar hematite, or fibrous, is found in long radiatory masses, has either a metallic or semi-metallic lustre, and a color varying from a red-brown to an iron black. This mineral is sometimes called red hematite, sometimes kidney ore on account of its shape.

Red ocher, otherwise called reddle or ruddle, is hematite in its earthy form. It is red in color and has a similiar colored streak. Usually it contains more or less clay.

Clay ironstone is a hard brownish black or reddish brown hematite; sometimes it has a semi-metallic luster but more often than not it is un-metallic. It is a mixture of the oxide of iron with clay and sand, sometimes containing other impurities as well.

Martite is another form of hematite usually occurring in 8 or 12 sided prisms. In color it is iron black with a reddish brown streak. Usually it is slightly magnetic, and owing to this feature is supposed to have been formed from the oxidization of magnetite.

LIMONITE or brown hematite is very similar in many respects to ordinary hematite. The greatest difference being that it contains 14.5 per cent of water and only about 60 per cent iron when pure. It is one of the most abundant iron minerals found, and is often confounded with hematite in some of its forms, and can sometimes only be distinguished from it by an analysis being made. It varies from hematite in the facts: that it is never found in a crystalline form; it has a brown color (of various shades); its streak is always a yellowish brown, it is never as hard; and upon being heated gives up its water.

Limonite is usually found massive or compact, having a fibrous structure, occasionally it is found earthy. It has a silky luster, often submetallic, though now and again it is dull and earthy.

Like hematite, limonite has several different varieties the chief of which are:

Brown hematite which includes all the compact forms and are either silky or submetallic in luster.

Ocherous or earthy, brownish yellow or ocher-yellow, often impure from the presence of clay or sand, occasionally loose and finely powdered earthy varieties.

Bog iron ore. An earthly brown-black hematite obtained from marshy places, often containing petrified wood, leaves, etc.

Brown clay ironstone is similar in composition to hematite clay ironstone (see above), from which it is distinguished by its brown, instead of red, streak.

The foregoing iron minerals are those from which practically all the iron of commerce is obtained. The sulphides of iron to which we now come are important, not so much for the iron they contain, but on account of the sulphur, gold, silver, etc., that is present in them. In this province they are the chief sources of the gold in quartz mining, the iron is very useful for fluxing, and the sulphur for matting in smelting the various ores. In other parts of the world these sulphides are used in the manufacture of sulphuric acid; the pyrites being burned and the sulphurous fumes being collected and eventually turned into sulphuric acid. Occasionally the resulting oxide of iron, obtained by this process is smelted for its iron contents.

PYRITE or iron pyrites occurs both crystalline and massive, sometimes in fine graulations, and in many other forms and combinations. It has a pale brass yellow color with a greenish black or brownish black streak. Its luster is metallic from glistening to splendent. It is quite hard and will strike fire with steel. It is brittle and has an uneven fracture. Nickel and cobalt often replace part of the iron present in pyrite. Gold is frequently present in this minerly, being distributed invisibly through it.

Iron pyrites are distinguished from copper pyrites by the greater hardness of this mineral, as it can be easily scratched with a knife. It is also paler in color than the copper mineral.

Marcasite or cube iron is pyrite when it is crystallized in the form or cubes. It very rarely contains any gold or silver.

PYRRHOTITE, or magnetic iron pyrites like magnetite is a combination of ferrous and ferric iron salts, only in this instance the mineral is a sulphide of iron. Usually this mineral occurs massive, though occasionally it is found crystalline. It has an uneven fracture; is brittle, has a metallic luster. Its color varies from a bronze yellow to a copper red, and it speedily tarnishes upon exposure to the atmosphere. Its streak is always a dark grayish black. It can readily be detected from other sulphides of iron and copper by its magnetic properties.

Pyrrhotite in combination with copper pyrites or arsenical iron often contains gold and silver in appreciable quantities, viz., the Rossland district in B. C. with copper pyrites present; and the Porto Rico and Second Relief mines in the Nelson mining district where arsenical pyrites is in combination with it. Nickel and cobalt are also frequently present in this mineral; the great nickel mines at Sudbury, Ontario, contain great quantities of this mineral in which the nickel values present vary from 2 to 15 per cent.

ARSENOPYRITE or arsenical pyrites, is frequently called mispickel, especially by the Cornish and German miners. It is usually found crystalline or granular, rarely compact. It has a metallic luster with a color varying from a silvery white to a steel gray, its streak is a dark grayish black. Its fracture is very uneven.

In British Columbia the mineral is one of the most important gold bearing minerals; in other parts it is an important ore for carrying cobalt and nickel as well as being one of the most important sources of arsenic known.

CORRESPONDENCE

J. McN., Kaslo—The rock you submit for examination is apparently an oxide of zinc; probably the orange yellow variety of zincite mentioned in these columns a few weeks ago. Regarding your queries, we believe it is customary when a silver assay only is asked for to weigh any gold that is present in with the silver, the whole being returned as silver. Should gold and silver results be desired the two are separated. With regards to platinum or osmo-iridum they would be included in the gold values, unless a separate assay was paid for. The rare metals mentioned are found in such small quantities that no allowance would be made for them at the smelters, so the best way has been found to include them with the gold, or rather not to separate them out, leaving the latter to the refiners to do. We believe the smelters are only allowed for them, if present at all, upon the basis of their being gold. Of course, should you find any appreciable quantity of either platinum or osmo-iridum in your ore a ready market can be obtained for one or both.

W., Nelson—The small sample you sent us is apparently a hematite. This we find to be magnetic, which is probably due to the fact that the original mineral was either a magnetite or a pyrrhotite and that decomposing has not proceeded far enough to eliminate all its magnetic properties. We believe that there is an appreciable amount of sulphur present in the sample and that it will most likely be found to turn into pyrrhotite when depth is gained.

A. T., Ymir.—There are no indications of any tellurides present in your No. 1 sample. No. 2 is a combination of zinc blende, pyrrhotite and galena in a blue quartz. No. 3 pyrrhotite (see today's article on this mineral).

N. W., Kamloops—We have enquired into the matter about which you write, and you will be written to personally about it.

A. V., Moyie.—Asks for a definition of "slimes." Slimes is that portion of the crushed ore that mixed with water is so unpalpable (or fine) that it floats away. At times slimes contain quite a considerable amount of gold, silver, and in you instance lead, and consequently slimes are saved by the water being led into settling tanks. The slimes are then precipitated, gathered and treated again.

C. P., Cranbrook.—No. 1, quartz; No. 2, calcite; No. 3, barytes, or heavy spar.

H. T., McGuigan—We have received your letter with the balance of assay fees. You should have received your assay certificate prior to the 14th inst., as it left Nelson on Monday last. Please make enquiries and if not received up to date we will have another certificate posted to you.

PROVINCIAL UNIVERSITY

RESOLUTION ADOPTED BY LOCAL UNIVERSITY CLUB

PAPER READ BY A. L. McKILLOP ON SOCIOLOGY

The University club meeting last night was well attended and the meeting proved to be a very interesting one as there was a discussion of the report from the committee on the university question and a very interesting paper by A. L. McKillop.

The report of the committee which was read by Mr. Clark, and adopted, was as follows:

Whereas, It is not consonant with the dignity of the largest and potentially the richest province of Canada to refuse to its own sons facilities within its borders for obtaining sufficient learning to fit them for learned professions, nor economically expedient that the task of scientifically developing the material resources of the province should of necessity be entrusted to experts from other provinces, from the mother country of from foreign countries.

"Ie is desirable that a provincial university should be established and endowed as early as possible.

"The existing arrangement with McGill university while valuable as a temporary expedient cannot be permanently satisfactory because it is incomplete and subordinate to external authority, and its existence may be a source of danger in the encouragement it offers for the beginning of small centers for partial university work and its disturbance of the high school system of the province.

Arrangements are being made by the church of England for the establishment of a theological college in the province and similar steps have been considered by the Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist churches. Such training colleges will, in the absence of other facilities for education almost inevitably develop around themselves small arts colleges, thereby scattering and weakening the educational efforts and interests of the people, as has been done by the same means in other provinces of Canada, notably Nova Scotia.

"That the present needs of the province may be provided for, and the danger of educational disunion averted, we would urge that endowment for a provincial university in land or money, or both, be provided at once, and that steps be taken as early as possible for the establishment of a university and the beginning of its work. And we request the co-operation and support of all friends of education., organized and unorganized, in pressing this important question on the attention of the provincial government.

The committee received instructions to take any further steps necessary in securing cooperation from other sources in keeping the matter before the government.

Mr. McKillop gave the paper of the evening, which was on Sociology. The writer gave a general though comprehensive review of the various attempts that have been made by sociologists to invent a system by which the ills of humanity may be removed, showing that in all cases these have been visionary and ineffectual. He showed that the basis of the difficulty rests in the nature of man, inasmuch as he does not act in accordance with fixed laws. For this reason the writer concluded that no exact science of sociology can be framed.

A lengthy discussion followed which was participated in by Messrs, Ferguson, Graham, Clark, Hart, Fraser, Arthur and Baird.

NELSON'S NEWS OF THE DAY

W. J. Blewett leaves for his old home in Cornwall, England, this morning.

A Whaeller and Rex. Macdonald, barristers-at-law, have entered into partnership.

Today and until further notice the Baptist Sunday school will meet at 12:15, following the morning service.

W. C. Wells, M.P.P., is a guest at the Hume, having arrived last evening from Victoria, and will spend several days in town.

C. S. Rashdall, a well known resident of Kootenay, who recently has been engaged with the Canadian Metal company, will hereafter act as ore shippers' agent at the Hall Mines smelter.

There will be a special children's service at the Baptist church this evening. Songs and recitations will be given by members of the Sunday school and the choir will render special music, including a solo by Mrs. Shanks.

The tent mission at Kaslo under the management of pastor Shanks of this city is gathering headway. Rev. H. W. McKinnon of Coleman is preaching today and Mr. Shanks will go up tomorrow for the remainder of the week.

A. B. Sloan, formerly of this city and Ymir, is now conducting the Windsor hotel at Grand Forks. Under his management the Windsor will be first class in every respect, and will be entirely conducted by white labor.

The regular weekly shoot of the Nelson gun club was held yesterday afternoon at the grounds on the water front, at the foot of Stanley street. The following were the scores in four events of 25 birds each: No. 1—Ink, 17; Goepel, 24; Irwin, 3; Wells, 17; Young, 5. No. 2—Blackwood, 23; Ward, 8; Young, 3; Hunter, 13; Gordon, 10. No. 3—Wells, 20; Ink, 15; Goepel, 23; Hunter, 13; No. 4—Blackwood, 20; Ward, 16.

Several of the boy members of the Pollard Lilliputians went on a boating excursion yesterday afternoon after the matinee was over. The lower waters of Cottonwood creek were explored by Jack Pollard and E. F. Chester who were amused at the great number of frogs in the water. The boys were in a rather cranky canoe and not being used to it, tipped over and got a ducking. When they reached the Hume they found their other clothes had been sent on to the next stopping place and they had to strip off in the laundry and get their garments dried before they could make their appearance for dinner.

Provincial constable Joe Wilson of Creston, arrived last evening with Harry Grant in charge and lodged his prisoner in the provincial gaol. Grant hired out at the Lisk sawmill on Goat river, early in the week, but after working four days began acting very queerly and foreman Meader brought the man before magistrate J. W. Dow who ordered that he be sent to Nelson to be medically examined as to his sanity.

Fred J. Lynch, proprietor of the Beaver cigar factory at New Westminster, arrived in the city last evening and is registered at the Hume. Mr. Lynch is a former Nelsonite, having lived here several years ago. He was one of the star members of the New Westminster lacrosse team last year, but his business now demands his undivided attention. It is quite probable that Fred will be found near the lacrosse practise at the recreation grounds this morning.

The performance at the opera house last week materially affected the attendance at the rehearsals for the Kirmess, but all has gone along as merrily as could be desired. There will be a practice of the flower drill tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock and in the evening those participating in the minuet will rehearse at 7 o'clock. Dress rehearsals for the tambourine dance will commence at 8 o'clock and the sextette will practice at 9 o'clock in costume. The full dress rehearsal for the grand march will take place on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock sharp when all participating are expected to be present.

Sugar Diamonds are made from pure Cane Sugar, grown on our own plantations, and crystalized to resemble Rock Candy. The grains sparkle like uncut diamonds: it is the most delicious Sugar made for Tea or Coffee:—Sold Everywhere...

The "Semi-ready" franchise in a town is as valuable as a public utility franchise: It gives the monopoly of merit in men's clothes.

Only one dealer in a town can sell the real "Semi-ready."

Dealers who did not get the franchise for the prosperous towns are sorry, though they declined it seven years ago on the ground that the profit fixed by the makers was a small one. They argued they could make bigger profits selling ordinary ready-mades.

The real profit in Semi-ready tailoring is the many sales made and the ease with which goods can be sold when the maker gives the guarantee bond found in every pocket of every Semi-ready garment. New customers of Semi-ready are regular patrons.

SUNDAY AFTER TRINITY

PARABLE OF THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS

SERVICES ANNOUNCED IN ALL THE NELSON CHURCHES

From now on until the coming of the Advent season the Sundays are dated from Trinity Sunday, and today is the first Sunday after Trinity.

In the gospel for the day is told the parable of a certain rich man who was "clothed in purple and fine linen and fared sumptuously every day" and the beggar, Lazarus, who desired to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table. The point in the parable is told in the answer given to the rich man's appeal after death, when he asks that a message be sent to his five brethren still in the flesh, so that they may repent and avoid the torment he finds himself in, alleging if one appeared from the dead, they would be convinced, and is told in the closing sentence of the story: "If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead."

The services announced for today in the churches of Nelson are as follows:

Anglican—St. Saviour's church, corner of Ward and Silica streets. First Sunday after Trinity; holy communion, 8 a. m.; morning prayer and holy communion, 11; children's service, 2:30 p.m.; evensong, 7:30. Rev. F. H. Graham, rector.

Catholic—Church of Mary Immaculate, corner of Ward and Mill streets. Low mass, 8 a.m.; high mass, 10:30 a.m.; evening service, 7:30. Rev. Father Althoff, priest.

Salvation Army—Barracks on Victoria street, west of Josephine. Special services will be held today. Knee drill, 7 a.m.; holiness meeting, 11 a.m.; a praise meeting at 3 p.m.; Salvation meeting, 8 p.m.

Baptist church—Stanley street, near Mill. Morning service, 11 a.m.; evening service, at 7:30; Sunday school, 12:15 p.m.; Rev. E. H. Shanks, pastor. Morning topic, "The 'I ams' of Jesus"; evening, Children's day.

Presbyterian church—St. Paul's, corner of Victoria and Kootenay streets. Morning service, 11 a. m.; Sunday school, 12:30 p.m.; evening service, 7:30 p.m.; Rev. J. P. Ferguson, pastor.

Methodist church—Corner Silica and Josephine streets. Morning service, 11 a.m.; evening service, 7:30 p.m.; Sunday school, 8:30 p.m. Rev. R. N. Powell, Pastor.

STOCKS FOR THE WEEK

TRADING HERE AND IN THE EAST HAS BEEN ACTIVE

CANADIAN GOLDFIELDS AND COAL STOCK CHIEF FEATURES

The mining stock market has been very active during the past week. The report from Montreal says: "The market here has been fairly active with large trading in Canadian Goldfields and International Coal. There has also been some trading in White Bear."

From Spokane we are advised that there was a good demand for all active stocks, but in most cases sellers are holding for higher prices. Of the Coeur d'Alene, Stewart was the leader.

From the curb in New York we are told a midsummer like dullness prevailed, with very little trading except in copper stocks, which were strong and active.

On the local market Rambler-Cariboo was the leader, having advanced almost four points during the past week.

White Bear of Rossland, has been fairly active; the demand for these shares coming from the east. There seems to be a tendency among western shareholders to unload.

International coal continues very active and the tendency seems to be upward. Although certain interests made a determined effort to bear this security prices remained unchanged.

Pathfinder has been in good demand with very few sellers. Encouraging reports from the property and the feeling that the bond will be taken up has caused considerable trading in these shares.

The copper market as reported from Boston has been even better during the past week than it has been for some time. Our correspondent says in part: "General business conditions are in such good shape that there is every reason to believe that 18 cent copper has come to stay for some time. The public generally are buying dividend paying shares, although there is a market for shares in any company that is actually producing the metal."

The following are approximate prices for the week as furnished by Sharp & Irvine.

HOW TO BREAK UP A COLD

It may be a surprise to many to learn that a severe cold can be completely broken up in one or two days' time. The first symptoms of a cold are a dry, loud cough, a profuse watery discharge from the nose, and a thin white coating on the tongue. When Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is taken every hour on the first appearance of these symptoms, it counteracts the effect of the cold and restores the system to a healthy condition within a day or two. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE AGITATORS GO FOR HERBERT ASQUITH

RIOTOUS SCENES AT MEETING AT NORTHAMPTON

London, June 16.—The woman's suffrage agitators carried out their threat to attack and show their aversion to Herbert Asquith, chancellor of the exchequer, in a political speech which he made at Northampton, yesterday. The demonstration, however, ended in the discomfiture of the agitators after a furious tussle, but the police had eventually to protect Mr. Asquith from the violence of a street mob. The chancellor had hardly begun his speech when three well known women suffragists, Misses Kenney and Billington, and Mrs. Eawood, arose among the crowded seats allotted to the women, screaming denunciations at the speaker as the ministerial opponent of their claims, and making the usual demand for votes. The hall was instantly in an uproar, the bulk of the audience shouting "Turn them out." Stewards rushed to remove the women but they shrieked above the din and waved flags inscribed "Votes for women." These were snatched by women around the demonstators, and after a desperate struggle were torn to pieces. Meanwhile the stewards reached the disturbers, but they had no sooner laid hands on Miss Billington than she drew a short whip from beneath her cloak and lashed wildly at the men's heads and shoulders. Three of them, however, seized her, and fighting like a tiger, she was bundled down the steps screaming, while her companions remained and continued shouting. More men hastened to oust them, and with the help of other women, who were not suffragists, they were hoisted upon the shoulders of men and bundled out, still shrieking. As soon as they were gone a party of socialists in the body of the hall started an uproar on behalf of the ejected women. It took longer to deal with them, and the uproar and struggle lasted for half an hour. Mr. Asquith then began to speak again, but he had hardly started when Mrs. Parkhurst, another suffragist woman, came to the front of the women's gallery and started repeating their demands. The audience was less tolerant of her than of her predecessors, and her utterances were drowned in shouts of "Throw her out." The stewards ultimately carried her out like the others.

Mr. Asquith then delivered his speech, but meanwhile one of the suffragists had stirred up a crowd of socialists in the streets to back her in attacking Mr. Asquith as he left the hall. The news of the disturbance had spread, and soon Market Square had filled with a mob of roughs eager for a shindy. Extra police were hastily brought in from the suburbs. Their arrival and an opportune rainstorm thinned the crowd. A number of them, however, got into the hall, causing fear of a serious riot. By the time Mr. Asquith had finished the police were strong enough to hold the mob, but Miss Billington and her supporters desperately, though vainly, tried to assault the minister as he passed through a double line of policemen to his automobile, in which he whizzed away amid a roar of cheers and groans."

UNKNOWN FRIENDS

There are many people who have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with splendid results, but who are unknown because they have hesitated to give a testimonial of their experience for publication. These people, however, are none the less friends of the remedy. They have done much toward making it a household word by their personal recommendations to friends and neighbors. It is a good medicine to have in the house and is widely known for its cures of diarrhoea and all forms of bowel trouble. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

Fruit-a-tives
OR "FRUIT LIVER TABLETS"

Fruit-a-tives will cure the worst case of Chronic Constipation and Biliousness.

Because Fruit-a-tives are the true liver tonic. They strengthen and invigorate the liver—make the liver give up enough bile to move the bowels regularly. The bile is nature's laxative.

Fruit-a-tives are the finest Kidney and Bladder Remedy in the world.

Fruit-a-tives reduce inflammation and congestion—relieve the over-supply of blood—enable the kidneys to rid the system of waste—and thus prevent the formation of uric acid. Fruit-a-tives take away that pain in the back—and quickly cure irritated bladder.

Fruit-a-tives completely cure Headaches and Rheumatism.

Headaches and Rheumatism both mean poisoned blood. Either the skin, kidneys or bowels are not ridding the system of waste matter. Fruit-a-tives invigorate and strengthen these organs—start up healthy, normal action—rid the system of poisons—and purify and enrich the blood. That means away with Headaches and Rheumatism.

Fruit-a-tives are the ideal tonic for everyone.

Fruit-a-tives build up, strengthen, invigorate. They sharpen the appetite—steady the nerves—enable one to sleep well—and keep the whole system in perfect health. They are fruit juices, concentrated and combined with tonics and internal antiseptics.

Synopsis of Regulations Governing the Disposal of Dominion Lands Within the Railway Belt in the Province of British Columbia.

A license to cut timber can be acquired only at public competition. A rental of $5 per square mile is charged for all timber berths, excepting those situated west of Yale, for which the rental is at the rate of 5 cents per acre per annum.

In addition to the rental, dues at the following rates are charged:

Sawn lumber, 50 cents per thousand feet B. M.

Railway ties, 8 and 9 feet long, 1 1-8 and 1 3-4 cents each.

Shingle bolts, 25 cents a cord.

All other products, 5 per cent. on the sales.

A license is issued so soon as a berth is granted, but in unsurveyed territory no timber can be cut on a berth until the licensee has made a survey thereof.

Permits to cut timber are also granted at public competition, except in the case of actual settlers, who require the timber for their own use.

Settlers and others may also obtain permits to cut up 100 cords of wood for sale without competition.

The dues payable under a permit are $1.50 per thousand feet B.M., for square timber and sawlogs of any wood except oak; from 1-2 to 1 1-2 cents per lineal foot for building logs; from 12 1-2 to 25 cents per cord for wood; 1 cent for fence posts; 3 cents for railway ties, and 50 cents per cord on shingle bolts.

Leases for grazing purposes are issued for a term of 21 years at a rental of [illegible] cents per acre per annum.

Coal lands may be purchased at $10 per acre for soft coal and $20 for anthracite. Not more than 320 acres may be acquired by one individual or company.

Royalty at the rate of 10 cents per ton of 2,000 pounds is collected on the gross output.

Entries for land for homestead purposes may be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land to be taken is situated, or if the homesteader desires, he may, on application to the minister of the interior at Ottawa, the commissioner of immigration at Winnipeg, or the local agent for the district within which the land is situated, receive authority for some one to make entry for him.

A fee of $10 is charged for a homestead entry.

A settler who has received an entry for a homestead is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year during the term of three years.

It is the practice of the department to require a settler to bring 15 acres under cultivation, but if he prefers he may substitute stock; and 30 head of cattle, to be actually his own property, with buildings for their accommodation, will be accepted instead of the cultivation.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of any person who is eligible to make a homestead entry under the provisions of th Act, resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for by such person as a homestead, the requirements of the Act as to residence prior to obtaining patent may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements of the Act as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Application for a patent should be made at the end of three years before the local agent, sub-agent or a homestead inspector.

Before making an application for a patent, the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of his intention to do so. W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

NEW YORK FASHION LETTER

New York, June 16.—Simplicity is the first requisite for an ocean voyage outfit; and to have that which is absolutely necessary only will save our girl much worry and annoyance from custom house and railroad officials, to say nothing of expense. There are some things that are absolute requirements: a raincoat, a short lighter wrap, the travelling dress, a dressier costume, a fancy waist or two, for dinner wear on the steamer, another for wear at evening functions on land, such as theatre, concerts, etc., and also those odds and ends of travel comforts which make life easy when away from home resources—things we are apt to forget until we are made conscious of them by their lack.

Nothing has become so popular in fashions as the raincoat and separate waists for the traveller; and though they may vary in cut and trimmings they hold their own in popular favor, in spite of their years. The reason of their continued popularity is not far to seek; it is owing to their comfort and the many uses they may be put to.

For hard travelling, stormy weather, and deck wear, a tweed, cheviot, serge, or mohair is the most serviceable as to quality and warmth. The coat may be an Eaton, a short box coat, or one of half length. Skirts are short and have little if any trimming, the smartest having straight lines from the belt downward, with possibly a simple design at the bottom, done in braid, though many have bands of the material which end in points on each side of the front gore. If trimming is used upon the skirt, the coat is ornamented to match, but many suits are finished with machine stitching only.

Blue serge was used for a smart tailored costume consisting of a shaped skirt and Prince Chap coat. The latter in half length was cut with straight lines, the front and back had centre gores covered with bands of soutache braid; the fronts were closed with a fly in single breasted style. The notched collar and cuffs had insets of black velvet, and jaunty little hip pockets completed the garment. The skirt had five gores the seams of which were striped with soutache braid. The hat for wear with that costume was a close fitting little turban of blue straw simply trimmed with ribbon and quills; for on the water you must wear those things that will stand any amount of dampness. The gloves were a light shade of tan; but there was also provided a pair of heavy black glaces, also a little cap of black leather and a big veil for the rainy and windy days, when for comfort one wishes to know that everything is on tight and there need be no further thought on the matter. Of course, one must not forget the silk and linen umbrella of good and generous size and a black parasol a little more dressy in effect.

A short box coat was developed in a grey tweed of a not too heavy weight, by a design that is well adapted for long journeys. The plain short jacket is a most jaunty garment cut with centre side back, under arms and shoulder seams, the fronts are in single pieces overlapping in double-breasted style. The fastening is made with buttons and button holes and the neck is finished with a notched collar. The sleeves are of medium size, formed with one seam, in full length with turned back cuffs. The skirt was a variation of the circular skirt, the pattern showing a bias effect at the centre front and centre back seams, while the sides hang straight without any sagging. Side plaits all around and an inverted box plait at the back are stitched to yoke depth, producing a close adjustment about the hips, and below the skirt falls in graceful folds to the lower edge, where it measures six yards and three quarters. A wide bias trimming band in two sections overlapping toward the front, trims the skirt a short distance from the bottom.

A pretty little extra wrap could be constructed from black silk trimmed with insets, edgings, and applique of black lace. The jecket is cut on short box lines, closes invisibly at the front by means of hooks and eyes. The fronts and edges are finished with a lace heading and the corners are decorated with large insets of lace, the same ornamentation being used on the slashed bell sleeves and shawl collar. There could be, if desired, a skirt of the same material made in circular style with three folds about the bottom and the front gore trimmed with the lace insets of graduating size.

For a better dress, nothing is made more useful than a foulard, and an attractive example of such a gown in blue with white spots, consisted of a skirt having seven gores, plaited down each side of the front gore for a distance and trimmed with two clusters of crossways tucks divided with bands of insertion, while the back fullness is gathered under an inverted box plait. The waist which fastens at the centre back has an especially pretty front tucked in clusters of two on each side of the centre to deep yoke depth, and below this is a band of embroidery which heads three deep tucks. The sleeves are elbow length finished by a narrow band of embroidery. This gown would be pretty arranged for chemisette and long cuffs which with a few different sets would make some pleasing changes.

An evening waist of black China silk will be found an useful adjunct to the outfit, and the model I have in mind has a full front blousing slightly at the belt, and gathered into a yoke and stock collar. Around the outline of the yoke was a bertha of silk shirred to form a puff around the neck and having ends crossing in front and finished with jet ornaments just over the bust. The sleeves are prettily arranged to match the bertha having a full puff above and another small puff just below from which a shaped ruffe falls over the lace under sleeves.

For wear in travelling one of the new shirt blouses would be just the thing. Make it of some dark linen or nun's veiling that contrasts prettily with your suit. The waist is simply nothing more than a shirt having a plain back and fronts closed under a stitched band, while a yoke made after the style of a man's shirt is applied back and on the shoulders. The collar is a turn over finished with a bright tie. The shirt sleeves are joined to the waist without any fulness and are completed at the wrists with stiff cuffs fastened with cuff links. A breast pocket on the right side gives a chic touch while machine stitching is the only decoration.

Provide yourself with plenty of warm underclothing for on the water you will feel the dampness and change of atmosphere. Have instead of too many white skirts a number made of dark silk or other material. Have no more than you can put in your steamer trunk and bag. Have a large steamer rug which now come in Highland plaids and are as soft and beautiful as velvet. In this rug many things may be strapped.

Take with you all those little toilet articles you will need, some extra towels, a warm woollen wrapper and a pair of soft moccasins.

OFFICIALLY RECOGNIZED

OFFICE OF STATE ANALYST.

BERKELEY, July 18 1904

CERTIFICATE OF ANALYSIS.

Dr. N. K. Foster, Secretary State Board of Health

I have examined sample marked "A. B. C. Beer" St. Louis, received April 1904, and report as follows:

This analysis was made at the request of the "Hilbert Commercial Co." the sample having been bought by me in open market. The beer was in a good state of preservation and was clear and sparkling. The chemical analysis showed that it was free from adulteration, artificial preservatives and impurities.

St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Sirs:--

I have made chemical analyses of two samples of your Bohemian bottled beer. One of these was bought in the open market the other came from your brewery. I find both samples to be free from preservatives.

I find this Bohemian bottled beer remains bright and clear on standing, which shows thorough Pasteurization and it is free from all indications of mould both in taste and odor, thus indicating thorough cleanliness in all the vessels and apparatus used in its preparation.

When poured from the bottle into an open glass it produces an abundant and lasting foam which shows that it has been properly aged by storing or "lagering."

Yours very truly,

Edward H. Keiser

Professor of Chemistry.

PURITY IN BEERS of GREATEST IMPORTANCE TO ALL

Bottled beers as well as food products are often adulterated with chemical preservatives, etc., which temporarily keep them from souring, but are injurious to the stomach. It is therefore important to know that A. B. C. BEER is guaranteed to be ABSOLUTELY PURE and free from any adulterations whatever. It is never exposed to air (which is germ laden), but it is brewed, fermented and aged for nine months in air-tight compartments, piped in block tin pipes direct to air-tight bottling machines, where it is bottled, sealed, pasteurized and packed for shipment

A. B. C. The Only Beer Bottled Exclusively at the Brewery

Therefore the only Bottled Beer where PURITY can be ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEED.

TRAITOR FATHER GAPON

STORY OF HIS FALL AND BETRAYAL OF THE PEOPLE

WAS NEVER TRUSTED BY THE REVOLUTIONARY LEADERS

St. Petersburg, June 16.—The full confirmation of the execution of father Gapon by representatives of the people gives a certain dramatic effect to the demand of the duma for amnesty for the political prisoners. Some, at least, of the hundreds of people at present lying in the dungeons of St. Peter and St. Paul and other Russian prisons doubtless owe their incarceration to Gapon's treachery, and it is not unreasonable to assume that among these may be a few whom the Russian police have netted for "crimes" which are not crimes in any well regulated state.

One of the Polish members of the duma, father Trasum, mentioned that he had seen 400 hapless peasants in prison, and heard from them a recital of the brutalities of which they were the victims for no other crime than refusing "to pay toll to the police." That is a phase of the beaucratic system on which father Gapon threw considerable light in his remarkable autobiography.

For the sake of human nature one hopes that the singular book, with its strange confidences was written before the fall of its author.

It is impossible to believe that Gapon was a traitor from the first.

He was a very clever man, but it would require more evidence than is ever likely to be forthcoming to convince one that the immense influence which he acquired over the working classes of St. Petersburg and Moscow had its root from the beginning in treachery, or that he was a police spy when he marched at the head of the demonstration of January 22, 1905.

That he ultimately fell a prey to the temptations which the police departments are able to present with lavish hands is beyond doubt; but one would rather regard him as in a sense the victim of a base system than as a despicable creature who had wormed himself into the confidence of the people with the deliberate purpose, from the first of accomplishing their undoing.

One of his most intimate acquaintances is authority for the statement that Gapon was never a revolutionary; he never belonged to any of the revolutionary societies; he was never trusted by the revolutionary leaders; he never, indeed, had sufficient intelligence to understand the revolutionary propaganda.

His work among the poorer classes in St. Petersburg was also opposed by the socialists, and his teaching amounted to little more than the inculcation of the belief that trust in God and the czar was the only method for the betterment of the Russian conditions.

It was this belief that led him to proceed to the Winter palace on the ill-fated January 22, a date which will live in history as Vladimir's day, and there seems no doubt that the massacre that took place in the St. Petersburg streets destroyed Gapon's faith and left him, as it were, mere flotsam and jetsam floating rudderless through the world.

It should be noted that in his first appearance among the workers in St. Petersburg, Gapon was accused of being in the pay of the police, and that his organization was regarded as being a sort of counter move to the revolutionary society. But there seems little doubt that at this point of his life he was as honest as he was enthusiastic and ignorant.

After the sanguinary repressions in the Russian capital, Gapon fled to Paris, where the money he received from the writing of his life made him rich beyond his wildest dreams of avarice, and this sudden wealth finished the work of demoralization that his loss of faith had begun.

The money came quickly, and was spent quickly; much of it was gambled away, and the rest went in all kinds of vulgar dissipation, until a few months ago the ex-leader of the St. Petersburg mob found himself penniless.

He at once put himself in touch with the Russian police, suggesting that he might be useful to them as a spy, and although they must have known that his knowledge was exceedingly limited, he had some possibilities of usefulness, and last October a bargain was struck in Paris, and Gapon was furnished with a considerable amount of money and permission to return to St. Petersburg.

This arrangement appears to have been perfectly well known to the revolutionaries, from whom few government secrets are really hidden, and Gapon was given a contemptuous warning and practically disregarded.

He was sufficiently clever, however, to bluff the authorities, securing from them $15,000 as a fund for organizing a counter revolution, which sum, needless to say, went into his own pocket.

There was some trouble about this, although such a leakage is not unfamiliar among Russian officials, and it was apparently suggested somewhat forcibly to Gapon that it was time he really did something for his money.

Being quite unable to obtain knowledge of any secret of importance himself, he approached a prominent member of the terrorist party, whom he had known during the riots of a year ago, and suggested to him that he should betray his friends, and that they should divide the blood money between them.

In the selection of a possible brother spy, Gapon showed a fatal lack of judgment. The man was an engineer of some considerable standing, entirely incapable of the infamy suggested to him. He, however, pretended to be interested in the proposal, promised to think it over, and subsequently arranged to meet Gapon for further discussion at a little house at Ozerski, in the suburbs of St. Petersburg. This house was rented by a Terrorist society, and has been the scene of many secret revolutionary meetings.

Gapon and the engineer met here. The priest, who thought they were alone, repeated his suggestions. The engineer at first pretended to have certain scruples, certain fears of discovery, which Gapon assured him were groundless. They then wrangled about the division of the spoils, and Gapon promised if his companion was not extortionate he would provide him with many other opportunities for making money in a similar way.

At this point of the conversation four workmen, who had been hidden in the next room, burst in. A mock trial was held, and the shivering, cowering wretch was condemned to death on seven counts. He begged, implored, struggled, but the judges themselves were the executioners, and were inexorable.

The four men threw themselves upon him, passed a rope around his neck and strangled him, the engineer remaining a passive witness of the horrible scene. Then, after taking all his papers from his body, they hung the corpse to a hook in the ceiling, and went quietly away without taking any precautions.

It is characteristic of the small account in which he was held by his executioners that very little secret was made of his murder, and that it was common talk within a week of its occurrence.
