Wild Scenes at Nominating Convention—Irregular Delegate Hooted Down

(Special to The Daily News)

Vancouver, Jan. 3.—Sixty delegates comprising the conservative nominating convention, tonight choose as the Vancouver candidates of the party for the provincial house, Messrs. Tatlow, Macgowan, Garden, McGuire and Bowser, in the order named. Mayor Buscombe and T. E. Julian also ran. Delegate Pellsey protested that the body was not representative, and that its action should be confirmed by a public meeting, but he was shouted down.

A written, cast-iron pledge to support the party and the nominees of the convention was demandd of each nominee. Messrs. Cowan and Seymour, whose names were entered, refused to sign without a proviso that the ticket be ratified by a general meeting. The convention refused to accept such a pledge, claiming that the primary rules were final.

Macgowan added to his pledge "as in the past." This was accepted, the chairman stating that the pledge did not demand the support of every measure introduced.

Seen after the meeting, a prominent independent, asked for his opinion of the ticket, said he thought the meeting Friday night would have something to say.

ROW IN THE STREET.

(Special to The Daily News)

Vancouver, Jan. 3.—In a special interview accorded your correspondent tonight, judge Henderson stated that he would decline the liberal nomination for the provincial house when officially notified on Friday morning. This would leave P. A. Gilchirst in line for the candidacy and, if W. W. B. McInnes elects to run elsewhere, G. Tossell will fill up the list.

The indications are that the independent conservatives mean to stand by their guns to the last. Chairman Williamson stated today:

"We are tired of this 'hole and corner' method of foisting men on us of whom we know nothing. We don't care who wins, we want clean men. We may endorse McLennan and a mixed ticket."

Williamson and Dr. McGuire, a candidate for the fifth nomination of the regulars, had a heated street altercation today, nearly ending in blows.

"Wait until Friday night and you will see where we stand," was the message a prominent independent gave your correspondent tonight.

REVELSTOKE LIBERALS

(Special to The Daily News)

Revelstoke, Jan. 3.—The Revelstoke liberal nominating convention yesterday selected Robert Caley as its candidate to contest Revelstoke riding in the coming provincial election. Mr. Caley is popular, is a strong man and is looked upon by liberals as a sure winner.

BIG RALLY IN VICTORIA.

(Special to The Daily News)

Victoria, Jan. 3.—The itinerary of premier McBride, who left for the mainland this morning, for the next week, is; Kamloops, Monday; Field, Tuesday; Golden, Wednesday; Revelstoke, Thursday.

The Victoria theatre has been secured by the executive of the local liberal organization for Monday evening next. A demonstration in honor of J. A. Macdonald, the liberal leader in this province, and W. W. B. McInnes will be held. Word has been received that these two gentlemen will reach the city by Sunday next. John Oliver will be with them

CARIBOO

There is little doubt that Mr. Charles Wilson, K.C., of this city, will be the candidate in the conservative interest for Cariboo. He left yesterday afternoon for that district. Mr. Wilson has been one of the members of Vancouver city during the term of the legislature just dissolved, but has on a former occasion represented Cariboo.—Vancouver News-Advertiser.

NOT ALL HARMONY.

The conservatives of Grand Forks riding held their convention at the Yale hotel last Saturday afternoon and nominated Ernest Miller, the local barrister to contest the riding. The Miller delegates say the gathering was very harmonious, while those opposed to him claim that the Phoenix delegation practically walked out of the hall.—Grand Forks Sun.

FATAL MONTREAL FIRE

Montreal, Jan. 3.—One man was killed, six firemen injured, and half a million dollars worth of property destroyed as the result of a fire which started at 2 o'clock this morning on St. Antoine street. The death of H. Gagnon, a carter, and the injury of six firemen was caused by the collapse of walls. The firms which suffered total loss are: Gorham company, silversmiths; Canadian branch Smith, Patterson & Co., wholesale jewellers; Canadian branch Gillette safety razor; Stewart and Macdonald, drygoods manufacturers, Glasgow, Scotland; Wodburn, Sons & Co., manufacturers of novelties; Thomas E. Doyle, manufacturers' agent; Dodge Manufacturing company, clothiers. The above named companies are, so far as present stocks and machinery is concerned, wiped out of business. There are also some other firms more or less damaged.

Gagnon lost his life in rescuing his son. He resided within the burning zone and, believing his boy to be imprisoned, went back to save him. Gagnon was caught by a falling wall and buried beneath it. The son, as it happened, was not within the danger zone at the time. The six injured men were on ladders when a wall crashed in, and fortunate it was for them that they fell out in a line in place of into the fire, where they would have been roasted alive.

KILLED AT COAL CREEK

Fernie, Jan. 3.—(Special)—Joseph Kluzcaritz, a miner, working in No. 2 mine, Coal Creek, was crushed by a fall of rock while at work today and instantly killed. An inquest is being held tonight.

LIBERAL LEADER CHEERED BY ELECTORS

J. A. Macdonald's Incisive Attack on the Government and Masterly Review of the Political Situation Delighted Big Mass Meeting--Conservative Candidate Refused to Appear

Notwithstanding the stormy weather, there was a large and thoroughly representative audience in the opera house last evening, including several ladies, to hear Dr. G. A. B. Hall fire the first gun in his campaign, and to listen to a thoughtful, clearly worded and dispassionate address from the leader of the liberal opposition, J. A. Macdonald, K. C., of Rossland.

In addition to many liberals quite a number of conservatives were in the audience as well as some socialists, and the latter, not remembering some of the addresses made in the legislature by leader Hawthornthwaite last session, objected to Mr. Macdonald's denunciation of the "Red Revolutionaries," who were prepared to lower the old flag and run up the red one.

A special invitation to be present and address the audience had been extended to the conservative candidate, John A. Kirkpatrick, by letter and in the advertisement calling the meeting, but the tory candidate, instead of seizing upon the opportunity, sent a characteristic letter of regret that was read to the audience and received by them—in silence. No conservative being willing to rise from the body of the hall, R. J. Clark gallantly laid down his reporter's pencil and did his best to fill the breach, doing it very well.

After the meeting, it was a matter of general comment that the local conservatives had failed to send a properly accredited representative and that their candidate had refused an excellent opportunity of at once addressing the electors.

Mr. Kirkpatrick's letter read to the audience by the chairman was as follows:

Nelson, Jan. 3, 1907.

"D. H. Proudfoot, Esq., Secretary Liberals, Nelson, B. C.:

"Dear Sir,—I have to acknowledge your letter of this date received only at noon today. As you are aware I was nominated in the conservative interest only last evening at a meeting of delegates chosen to represent the conservative party here in the choice of a candidate and, unfortunately, my arrangements for this evening are such as to prevent the possibility of my being present at your meeting tonight. I shall, however, take the earliest opportunity of holding a public meeting of electors for the purpose of appealing for their support. Yours respectfully, JOHN. A. KIRKPATRICK."

Mr. Macdonald was listened to most attentively and he unquestionably made a most excellent impression upon the large audience, who applauded many of his utterances unstintedly.

Dr. Hall, the liberal candidate for Nelson, on stepping to the front, was greeted with a round of cheers and applause. He was delighted, he said, to have the honor of firing the first gun in the campaign. He had only accepted the nomination after very careful consideration, but once in the field he had lost no time and had so arranged his professional affairs as to properly devote all the necessary time to his political duties. The speaker then took occasion to refer to the malicious report that he intended selling his practice and leaving the city, adding that if the story was circulated deliberately and with the intention of injuring him personally, it was a mean and contemptible mode of attack. He explained that the fact of his being unable to get on the municipal voters list this year was the result of the bad law passed by the McBride government, and showed how the law worked in one particular instance.

"My home is here," continued the speaker, "and so is nearly all I own in the world. I have no intention of leaving you." (Applause).

The doctor explained further that he had made a purchase of property in Victoria and had sold it again to advantage within two weeks. "I own no property except in Nelson and its vicinity," he added.

Then the speaker attacked the government's record and charged that in railway matters McBride was still without a declared policy to submit to the electors although from the opera house platform he had promised the Nelson electors three years ago that, if returned by the country, he would declare his policy forthwith. The government's whole record was one of shirking responsibility and of delay, and several instances were given, notably the school act, surveying of public lands, and the management of the civil service. The court house was at last underway—on the eve of an election, but the appropriation had been passed years ago and allowed to lapse until now, when the building was given as a bribe to the constituency to return a McBride follower.

Turning to his opponent, the doctor said: "Mr Kirkpatrick is one of my most intimate friends in Nelson and no matter what is the result of te election, he will still be one of my best friends. (Applause.) I want only good, clean, politics, and may the best man win. (Applause). I do not want to buttonhole any man, but I'll do my best to see each elector before February 2, let him know where I stand, answer any question put to me, and see if I am the better man or not. (Applause). If you will elect me, I will do my best; and if you will give me your support I will not betray your trust. (Applause.) I will do my duty by the city and by the province and aid in every way I can the advancement of both. We should have our share of the prosperity that is in evidence all over Canada and I will do my utmost to se that we get that share." (Applause).

The chairman explainted the invitation sent to Mr. Kirkpatrick and then read his letter in reply, published above.

"Is there a conservative present who would like to speak. We will all be glad to hear him," said the chairman. There was an awkward pause for a few moments and then someone called 'Dick Clark", and the scribe dropped his pencil and came to the front, saying he was of Irish descent and could not refuse a challenge. Mr. Clark spoke briefly, eulogizing McBride as the founder of stable government in B. C., and elaborating his speech with references to the past political history of the province.

J. A. Macdonald, the liberal leader was then introduced amid cheers and rounds of applause, and for over an hour he held his audience deeply interested. The honor and the pleasure of addressing such a large and representative meeting was all his, the speaker said, and then he pointed out Mr. Clark's error in attributing the founding of party government in B. C. to McBride. "For the last three years, I am sorry to say, we have not had party government. The premier threw down, in order to get office, not only liberals, like Oliver and Smith Curtis, who had helped him to defeat one of the most scandalous contracts ever known, but Hon. Charles Wilson, a life-long conservative. McBride was returned by the country without a majority and to keep office he formed an alliance with Red Revolutionary Socialists, who were, and are now, prepared to lower the old flag and to replace it by the red one. He, the speaker, had no quarrel with real socialists but had no sympathy with the revolutionaries. (Applause). McBride had not been carrying on a conservative government and the majority of conservatives do not approve of his alliance.

The McBride government never had any fixed principle except to retain office.

It was elected on party lines, but it broke those at once by the alliance with Hawthornwaite. This is shown conclusively by the conduct of these two men, Hawthornthwaite and McBride, commencing with the settlers' right bill and ending with the C. & W. bill.

That the government was without a single guiding principle except the retention of office, at any sacrifice of the interests of the province, was further exemplified in its hesitation to do anything beyond tampering with existing legislation.

Before the election of 1903 McBride had it heralded abroad that he had a magnificent policy regarding railways, which would give sections of the province which were being held back, for want of them a chance to expand. It was asserted that 2500 miles of railways were to be built under this grand scheme. In every platform the progressive policy of the government was proclaimed and the people thought that at least on this subject the McBride government had some definite plan of action.

The first session was held. The government said they would place their proposals before the house. The time of the session dragged along. The ministry made excuses, from day to day for its failure to do something. But they did nothing. They were between the devil and the deep sea; their promises on the one hand, their utter incapacity on the other.

Then a bright thought struck the premier—he would hold a summer session. The Colonist and the News-Advertiser asserted that this was the really wise and statesmanlike course. It was a question, they asserted, requiring immediate action and its importance required a special session.

No summer session was called. The government deceived the legislature and the people utterly, and, apparently without shame, these solemn assurances were unblishingly broken.

Another session came, and again the government promised to let the house and the people know what they intended to do in fulfillment of their broken promises. This time the government had a railway policy. It was a policy prepared by the Canadian Pacific railway company and you may be sure it was not conceived with an eye to the interest of the province. The proposal was to give the C. P. R. a bonus of $1,600,000 to help that wealthy corporation to build a railway south from Spence's Bridge. This huge graft was only abandoned by Mr. McBride and his ministry after a long struggle with a couple of his more conscientious followers, who absolutely refused to stand for it.

That this bonus was not required but was to be so much found money for the C. P. R. is shown by the fact, that a few months after this attempt of the C. P. R. and the McBride government to despoil the people of $1,600,00 in cash, construction was commenced on the road in question without any bonus at all. But if the McBride government is sustained the railway company will come again; don't make any mistake about that.

In the session of 1906 Mr. McBride further developed his railway policy. Again the C. P. R. assumed the reins of government in this province, whipped the socialists into line with their allies, and, in spite of the opposition of one or two honest conservatives, succeeded this time in getting what they wanted, or at least the first instalment of what they wanted, 800,000 acres of land, in payment, forsooth, for broken promises made by the railway company to build the Columbia & Western railway right through.

But the C. P. R.-McBride-Hawthornthwaite government had yet another railway string to their bow. It would be too bad to make this poverty striken railway corporation pay its taxes. Government by the people had given place to government by the C. P. R., and their willing tools. So why should the C. P. R. pay taxes when it holds the reins of power? No—let the people pay. And that was what happened. The people had to pay. The railway corporation escaped to the tune of over half a million dollars.

Then there was the Kaien island transaction. The great terminal townsite was a splendid asset. This asset belonged to the people. There was no other point having equal advantages; yet, by secret dealing with speculators, this great asset was turned over at the price of $1 per acre. Mr. McBride said the land was poor, only third class, not good for crops. Hence the bargain was a good one. Wait till the lots are put on the market next summer and see what price British Columbians will have to pay for these third class lands—not fit for crops.

McBride said in an interview a year ago that he never had any doubt but that the G. T. P. would go to Kaien island; that the officials of that road considered it by far the best place. Why then did he give away three-quarters of this splendid asset?

Yes, the province is indeed prosperous, and a province which can prosper notwithstanding spoilation such as the Kaien island deal, the Columbia & Western grant and other equally deplorable transactions, is one of which we should indeed be proud.

The premier had said that he did not deal with a band of adventurers in the Kaien island land sale; that he dealt, not with the Andersons and the Larsens, but with the G. T. P. direct. Well, it was astonishing to find that, weeks after the deal was said to have been closed the adventurers were found in Montreal selling to the G. T. P. people their own lands—according to McBride—for the trifling advance of $40,000. It had been stated that Mrs. Anderson's name had been unfairly dragged into the controversy, but that was not so; she had come into the story easily and naturally. Hon. R. F. Green had stated at the parliamentary investigation that the terms of this secret order in council which had been held back from the people's representatives, and the whole deal, had been discussed by him with Mrs. Anderson on the street corners and, naturally, Mrs. Anderson became a party to the enquiry.

McBride and his remarkable following, having nothing to offer themselves, charge the opposition with having no policy. The charge is absurd. Just as the acts of the government constitute the policy of the government, so the record of the oposition in the house constitutes its policy so far as the measures introduced into the house gave scope to the opposition to express in a tangible way its views.

The government loan bill is a declaration that the government believes in making the present generation pay for improvements to be enjoyed by future generations. The opposition's attitude on that bill declared its policy of making future generations bear their fair share of the costs of permanent improvements.

The conservatives declared their policy on the great question of the education of the young when they tampered with the public schools act in order to squeeze a little more in taxes from the ratepayer. The liberals declared their policy on that subject by a strenuous opposition to the bill and in pointing out that in addition to its viciousness in principle it was unworkable. A year's experience with the new act has borne out to the letter the liberal position. We said plainly: "Give us the old act with its principle of state education of children and not the new one with its inequality of taxation and unfitness to conditions in B. C."

The McBride government declared its policy when it increased taxation and cut down the expenditures for roads, bridges and other public works absolutely necessary to expanding industries.

The opposition declared its policy when it said that increased taxation was not necessary, notwithstanding that the finances of the province were not in a satisfactory condition. We pointed out that with our lands, timber, minerals and other sources of revenue, taxes should be low and not high in B. C., and that in any case what was wanted was the collection of taxes from those who were dodging them, for instance, the C. P. R., on over three million acres of subsidy lands.

The better features of the government's timber legislation were forced upon it by the opposition and it was by the efforts of the opposition that it is now possible to ship manufactured poles to eastern markets.

Every constructive piece of legislation, and they are few indeed which the government attempted, it failed in.

The school act was a lamentable failure—and the attempt to patch it up at the following session was little better. The assessment act was so bad that a commission had to be appointed to find out what was the matter with ... The timber laws have been amended and reamended, while one of the great essentials, the protection of the forests from fire has been neglected—and this too in the face of repeated protests from the opposition.

The government's whole school legislation was so ordered as to increase the burden of the taxpayer, quite unnecessarily. (Applause). "Personally I believe that the state should see that children are educated free, but McBride's policy is to destroy free education. The government has thrown away, has refused to collect from the C. P. R. and the large ranching concerns, $250,000 yearly in taxes, which if collected would have made it unnecessary to demand the increased taxation you have now." (Applause.)

Dealing with the question of "Better Terms," the speaker said McBride had been turned down not by Ottawa, but by the provincial premiers themselves, some of whom were conservatives. The question—better terms—should be kept out of party politics, and if a liberal government were returned, they would demand, and obtain, satisfactory better terms where McBride had signally failed.

Turning to the question of eight hours for smeltermen, Mr. Macdonald told of his stand in the matter and how, as a result smeltermen had obtained shorter hours, not only without a strike or lockout, but much sooner than they would have had had the Hawthornthwaite bill been passed when first introduced. He believed in industrial peace being maintained wherever possible and here the smeltermen had got relief without a protracted struggle. He would leave them to say if he had acted fairly and rightly or not.

Mr. Macdonald advocated a separate department of labor and immigration, pointing out what good work such a department could do under existing conditions. "I am opposed to the Orientalism that is sweeping over the province. I am against the Hindu. He can never assimilate with the dominating, with the only race that ought to be here in B. C. (Applause). We only want the best class of people, those who can take care of themselves and not those who have to be taken care of by the state." (Applause).

The government should have parcelled out and surveyed the best of the public lands and have provided maps and the necessary information which is wanted by settlers and which, as all knew very well, could not now be got. Applause.)

The question of better protection from forest fires should be taken up seriously, as should also the question of irrigation. A commission should be appointed to go into the whole matter.

Mr. Macdonald closed with a request that his hearers make up their own minds, draw their own conclusions and mark their ballots on February 2nd accordingly.

SUCCESSOR FOR YUKON

Ralph Smith Will Get Governorship if He Wants It

Prominent Victorians Injured in Overturning of Wedding Coach During a Storm

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 3.—The Yukon commissionership will not be filled for some time. Mr. Lithgow is at present acting. Mr. McInnes, when leaving, did not intend to return to Dawson for two months, so arrangefents were made for Mr. Lithgow to carry on his duties for some time. There is accordingly, no urgency for the appointment of a successor to McInnes. Only one name is mentioned for the position—that of Ralph Smith. If he desires it, without doubt he can secure the appointment.

A Wedding Coach Overturned.

(Special to The Daily News)

Victoria, Jan. 3.—Numerous minor accidents are reported as the result of last night's gale, in which all small shipping was harbor-bound. Grave fears are entertained of disasters on the west coast. All wire communication therewith is down. During the storm a stage conveying a wedding party at Westholme was overturned through the falling of a tree. Among the injured were Mrs. Innes, archdeacon Scriven, Jesse Longfield (the composer), Miss Scholefield, M. W. Clayton and Basil Prior, the latter the eldest son of Hon. Col. Prior. In Victoria Mrs. Bligh, official stenographer, fell on the icy walk, breaking here right arm.

Murder in Vancouver.

(Special to The Daily News)

Vancouver, Jan. 3.—An unknown Chinaman was found dead in a cellar of the B. C. Telephone building this afternoon, and two compatriots are tonight in jail on suspicion of murder. The suspects occupied a shack opposite the building and in an inner room was found a pool of blood, while the floors and walls were covered with coagulated gore. The dead man must have been carried from this room to the spot where he was found. A long knife was found sticking in the abdomen of the dead man and the body was warm when discovered. The arrested pair deny all knowledge of the murdered man, saying they never saw him before. It is thought the tragedy is the outcome of a tong war, though the police think there is a possibility of suicide.

At the municipal nominations held today, alderman Bethune and ex-city clerk McGuigan were placed in nomination for mayor. Alderman Heaps, W. Hepburn, James Ramsay and W. A. Cavanaugh were elected to the council by acclamation. A poll was declared in four wards, with four candidates in each. A poll is also called for school trustees and license commissioners.

Manitoba's Legislature.

Winnipeg, Jan. 3.—The legislature of Manitoba convented today at 3 o'clock. The reply to the speech from the throne was moved by G. Ashdown, of Morden, seconded by Glen Campbell of Gilbert Plains. The important references in the speech from the throne read by sir Daniel McMillan were:

"The government, in the recess, has been pressing upon the government of Canada the justice of Manitoba's claim for an extension of her boundaries. A conference has been held at Ottawa, consisting of representatives of Ontario, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, with members of the federal government, but, I regret to inform you, with no substantial results favorable to our province. Strong protests have been made also as to the methods, delays, and costs in selecting swamp lands that properly belong to the province under agreements made between the dominion and the province in 1885. The results of such protests, however, have not, so far, been of any effect and as a consequence we not only suffer direct financial loss but are losing large blocks of land that probably belong to Manitoba. The recent vote taken on the principle of a public owned system of telephones has been accepted as a declaration of approval, and my government has already taken the necessary steps to construct at least 1000 miles of long distance lines in the coming summer, which is a guarantee of greatly reduced rates for that very important section. A bill for the purpose of amending the public schools act will be submitted for your consideration. The main feature will consist of provisions for the flying of the Union Jack upon all the public school houses in the province."

SOMEWHAT ASTRAY.

In a review of Mr. J. A. Macdonald's recent epitomized address to the electors (a review as superficial as it is lengthy) the Victoria Colonist makes an entirely indefensible blunder. It enlarges upon the opposition leader's alleged proposal for a department of "labor and information," and contends that the idea is not a new one, since the government has long since devoted its attention to each of these important administrative branches, though without having created a separate department for the purpose. The Colonist is wrong on two counts. In the first place, Mr. Macdonald did not urge a department of labor and "information," but one of labor and "immigration." And, in the second place, the government's chief and only serious journalistic defender errs seriously when it says that attention has already been paid to any of these subjects. If there is one thing the McBride government has not done, it is to give the slightest consideration to the interests of labor. Where, throughout the whole course of its sterile legislation, is there an act the tenor of which is either calculated or intended to serve the interests of the workingmen as opposed to those of corporations? Such an act cannot be found, for it does not exist; nor, indeed, could it well be expected to exist, since a government owned body and soul by so wealthy a railroad as the C. P. R. is not at all likely to play such a trick on its master as to enact labor legislation.

And as for immigration, the government never even so much as gave it a thought until commissioner Coombs recently appeared on the scene with an offer to dump London's poor on British Columbia, provided sufficient of the money wrung in taxes from the people already here were appropriated to meet transportation expenses. Like a shot, the offer was accepted on the spot, because, poor as it was, it was many times better than anything the government could think of doing for itself. It was at the very least, doing something—even if that something were against the interests of the province. This single incident comprises the government's whole immigration record.

No wonder, rather than talk of what has been done for immigration, the Colonist preferred to discuss "information!" But is it on any safer ground here? Let us grant that the Colonist was honest in misquoting Mr. Macdonald's words and that it really thought he did propose a department of labor and information. Would its defence be any better in that event? Would its statements hold any more water? If there be a person sufficiently credulous to believe they would, let him make a practical test, and he will soon be disillusionized. Let him apply to the government for information which will enable him, as an intending homesteader, to find land open for location! What response will he get? A tourist association booklet, a C. P. R. land guide, and a blunt letter telling him that if he wants land he had better go and find it, for the government has no records or maps to show where it is. Answers like this have been returned in scores, yes hundreds, of cases; and the documents themselves can be produced to prove it.

What, then, becomes of the boasted department of information which the chief government organ urges is really in existence, although it is conducted without putting the province to any expense? It vanishes into mid-air, there to keep company with many other fairy castles the imagination of the government and its hangers-on have conjured up in times past. The department of information is like every other thing that costs nothing—it is worth, exactly what it costs! The department of lands and works at Victoria is absolutely at sea; its affairs are in utter confusion, and the information it only vouchsafes under pressure is well known to be absolutely unreliable. A laughable incident in support of this statement is reported by a gentleman living no farther away than in the confines of Nelson itself. He had been corresponding for several months with the department concerning an application to purchase certain lands when, much to his astonishment, in response to a final letter of his own, he received a curt note informing him that the department had no knowledge whatever of the subject with which he was dealing, and instructing him, if he wished it to take cognizance of his case, to send all details!

It is to Mr. Macdonald's credit that he is sufficiently far sighted and broad in his views to urge the creation of a department of labor and immigration. It is to the government's discredit, and to the discredit of its organ, that in replying to him, it first seeks to twist his words so as to convey a false impression; and then builds up a fictitious case to prove that the thing it has made him say is something it has itself conceived and already put into execution. In spite of these deceptive practices, the people will not be fooled; for too many of them have had first hand knowledge of the incompetence of the lands and works department, and of the worthlessness to intending settlers of the bureau of information, to take its words seriously.

McDERMID & McHARDY

VANCOUVER'S TICKET

The telegraphic despatches from Vancouver, which yesterday announced the nomination of the Terminal City liberal ticket for the approaching elections, indicate that there is little probability of another solid Tory five being sent to Victoria. The men who will contest the first riding of the province in the interests of the opposition are men of prominence in commercial and professional life—men who have already won the confidence and respect of their fellow citizens, and whose appearance in the electoral field will evoke the enthusiastic and active support of a host of friends. The ticket is nominally headed by W. W. B. McInnes; but whether or not Mr. McInnes will consent to stand in Vancouver is not yet known. Leaving him out of the reckoning for the moment, the first figure is that of R. P. McLennan, one of the most substantial business men in the city. The head of the big wholesale and retail hardware firm of McLennan & McFeely, long a member of the school board and the present chairman of its building committee, president of the board of trade and active in every field to which a public spirited citizen might be expected to devote his energies, his time and his money, Mr. McLennan is one of the most prominent personages in the terminal city. His reputation for personal integrity, for firmness of character, for business ability and for intellectual foresight will strengthen his hands in the coming fight; and, backed as it will be by the enthusiastic loyalty of a united liberal party, will make him so formidable an antagonist that it is difficult to see how he can be defeated. Mr. Neelands, too, is a candidate not to be despised, for in mayoralty contests he has more than once in the past demonstrated his hold on the electorate; and, when in office, was generally conceded to be the safest and best mayor Vancouver had ever had. Mr. J. W. DeB. Farris, the city prosecutor, is young in years; but he has had political experience of more than ordinary variety and is gifted with a ready and eloquent tongue which will win him many friends and enable him to hold up the end of the young liberals of Vancouver with credit both to himself and to the association. Mr. Gilchrist is one of the senior teachers on the public school staff—a man of wide reading, and an old time resident of Vancouver. As for judge Henderson, his presence on the ticket would have rounded it off without a weak link; for he has in years gone by loomed large on the public horizon. His wide connections, keen wit, judicial bearing and excellent record would have enabled him to run neck and neck with Mr. McLennan for first place on the ticket. Unfortunately, however, judge Henderson has declined the nomination, making room for the next man on the waiting list (always presuming that Mr. McInnes does not intend to run in Vancouver) C. Tossel.

In their selection of candidates the Vancouver liberals have done well. They have set a good example for the rest of the province and their action will tend to inspire increased confidence in the party workers of every riding. Liberalism vigorous and triumphant is the key note of the hour; and that note will increase in precision, volume and intensity as February 2 draws nearer and nearer.

THE NEW MINISTER.

Premier McBride has taken a new minister into his cabinet. The man is William Manson, of Alberni—the conservative who succeeded to the seat left vacant by the resignation of W. W. B. McInnes on his appointment to the governorship of the Yukon. In selecting Mr. Manson, the premier has made a tactical mistake as a politician. He has called to his council a novice in public life, a junior in his own party ranks; and in doing so, he has passed over the heads of many older, more experienced and weightier supporters whose claims to preferment, everything else being equal, are far superior to Manson's. Trouble, as might have been expected, has resulted. Neither as a parliamentary debater nor as an orator on the hustings has the new minister been of any strength or service to the government. The best that can be said of him—and we grant that it is a great deal—is that he is a thoroughly clean and honest man in his own actions. But he is so weak that his party loyalty leads him to become the willing follower of more designing men. He is of a type dear to the McBride heart—quite pliable, absolutely dependable, and very serviceable as a shield to put forth when a storm of protest is raised by any questionable action on the part of the government. To picture Manson rebuking the wiles of his companions in caucus and boldly standing forth as the champion of public rights is to challenge reason; but to picture him as the chief clerk of McBride is to read aright the tale told between the lines of his appointment to office.

For Mr. Manson The Daily News has every respect—as a private citizen. But as a legislator he is one of the weakest of the weak—a good man without the strength of conviction requisite to successfully mingle with and hold his own against companions of the coarser grain.

FERNIE MILITARY SCHOOL

One for Instruction Will Open on March the 14th

(Special to The Daily News)

Fernie, Jan. 3—By order of the district officer commanding a temporary school of instruction will be opened here on March 14 next, when officers of infantry battalions will be able to qualify for their commissions. Major and brevet lieutenant colonel J. C. McDougall, R.C.R., will be in command. Drills will be held in the evening so as not to interfere with the business or professional duties of those availing themselves of the instruction. The difficulty in finding suitable quarters for the school emphasizes the absolute necessity of the erection of an armory at this point for the accommodation of the Kootenay Rifles and for future schools of instruction.

NOW WORTH MILLIONS

B. C. MEN STRIKE IT RICH DOWN IN NEVADA

JOHN McKANE OF ROSSLAND, IS ONE OF THEM

"Little more than two years ago without funds, today a millionaire—this tells briefly the story of Col. G. H. Hayes, who will be remembered in Victoria because of his dealings in connection with the Alberni mines," sad J. A. Aikman, who arrived at Victoria from the Tonopah and Goldfield mining districts in Nevada to spend the Christmas holidays with relatives.

"The colonel, they tell me, has squared all his accounts in this neighborhood and has over a million to the good," continued Mr. Aikman. "He made it all on a lease taken by himself and four others for a year on the Mohawk mine in Goldfield. The lease expires in a few days and there is no probability that it will be continued. The mine has proven too rich for that. But Hayes has enough

"He left Victoria with nothing, or practically nothing, and landed in Goldfield where he and three others on Jan. 7 of last year leased on the Mohawk mine. They were to work the property and get a quarter interest in the output. They went up against it hard at the commencement; they were in such straits that they wanted the men in their employ to take a share in the lease in payment of wages. The men would not do this and things looked bad.

"A few days later colonel Hayes struck into one of the richest veins the world has ever seen. This is no boom talk; it is one of the richest veins ever heard of. Why, they shipped a carload of ore from the mine valued at one million dollars.

"Hayes' lease will run out in a few days, but he has been working the mine for all he is worth. He had a hoisting engine and plant shipped in from the east by express at an immense cost; but it meant the earning of considerable more money for him. The shipments of the mine have netted fabulous sums and each of the four men interested in the lease is reputed to be a millionaire. This I know, and know positively—the Mohawk Mining company has over $2,000,00 deposited in the bank at Goldfield and an idea may be formed of the value of the mine when it is considered that the lease holders get only 25 per cent.

"Other British Columbians who have become very wealthy in the Nevada goldfields include John McKane, who hails from Rossland. He was a candidate for the dominion house to represent the Kootenay some years ago, being defeated. Well, McKane is a millionaire today. He got his start in Tonopah in the Tonopah Extension Mining company five or six years ago and then got a lease on the Jumbo gold claim in Goldfield. Dr. Bowes, also from Rossland, who has now retired, a wealthy man, and taken up residence in Seattle, was interested with him in that lease, and he must have several hundred thousand dollars to the good."

Why Low-Priced Teas Are Really Extravagant

Because so much more of them is required to the cup than of a high-grade tea like

Blue Ribbon

As a rule it takes about a third more cheap tea than of Blue Ribbon Tea. In other words, three pounds of Blue Ribbon Tea will go about as far as four pounds of the 30c or 35c tea. So Blue Ribbon Tea is really the most economical.

And as for flavor, there is no comparison. Cheap inferior teas can never have the rich smooth flavor and refreshing fragrance of Blue Ribbon Tea. If you have been using "cheap" tea, try one pound of Blue Ribbon and notice the difference. Lead packets, and 50c a pound.

MINES AROUND NELSON

YEAR'S REVIEW OF THE LOCAL MINING DIVISION.

WORK ACCOMPLISHED DURING THE YEAR JUST CLOSED.

The following summary of mining in the Nelson division during 1906 has been carefully compiled for The Daily News from authentic sources:

Molly Gibson mine—Owned by the La Plata Co. of British Columbia. The company was organized to take over the Molly Gibson and Achilles mines situated at the head of Kokanee creek about 30 miles from Nelson. The property consists of some twelve claims upon which a considerable amount of development work has been done. Prior to the present company taking over the property the mine had paid the owners $100,000 in profits. In the early part of this year the company confined themselves to doing development work, only awaiting the complete installation of the plant ordered. This plant has now been completed and consists of a concentrator capable of treating 100 tons of ore per day. The process mainly being connected by jigs and the finer concentrates collected on Wilfley tables. At the present time the company is also installing a large compressor for the purpose of running drills and ventilating the mine, this compressor will also furnish power for electric lights in the mine and buildings adjacent. Owing to the low prices of silver and lead this property has not been a dividend payer for several years past but at the present time is more than paying expenses. The management have over seventy men at work and four four-horse teams hauling concentrates to the landing, about 300 tons are shipped per month. These concentrates show an average profit of over $700 per car.

At the present time work is being pushed in No. 5 tunnel which will give 1000 ft. depth on the vein; it is now in 2000 ft. and there is a large body of rich ore in sight.

The Prince George is situated on Six Mile creek, and, perhaps, is the most important of the recent strikes made in this vicinity. This group consists of two claims which are about six miles from the lake and about 4000 ft. from the government wagon road. The claims are owned by J. S. Johnston and Henry Reichert. There is an inclined shaft of about 80 ft. on the ledge from the bottom of which some drifting has been done. The pay streak is about 16 in. wide and from the surface assays have been obtained giving returns of $65 per ton in silver and gold while at a depth of about 60 ft. an average assay taken went over $212. The owners are making arrangements to thoroughly develop this property and ship ore. Johnston and Reichert also own the Boston and Belcher claims, about 9 miles from the lake up Kokanee creek. Considerable work has been done this last year to prove the ledges running through these claims. The pay shoot of solid mineral two feet in width has been developed, assays from which will average 30 per cent zinc, 10 per cent lead and 80 oz. in silver. There is another ledge running through these claims carrying about 3 per cent copper with nickel gold and silver.

In the district lying immediately west of Nelson a large amount of development work has been done during the past 12 months. Besides the amount of work done upon the principal mines, several of the chief claims have been extensively developed.

The Eureka mine is owned by the Eureka Mining Co. of Nelson, B. C., of which J. J. Malone is the president. During the past year about 200 tons of ore have been shipped to the Trail smelter giving smelter returns of about $22 per ton in copper, gold and silver. At the present time the company are taking out on an average of ten tons per day which will be shipped as soon as the smelters are in a position to take it. The company have during the past 12 months extended the shaft from the 150 ft. level, 55 ft., besides various amounts on the upper levels, and have done over 800 feet of drifting on the 200 ft. level. The company has installed a 30 h.p. hoist with two boilers connected, and employ from 17 to 20 men at present.

The Granite-Poorman mine—In the early part of 1906, T. Gough purchased the lease upon this property from Messrs Fowler and Davys, and since then has been continuously operating it, chiefly by working the old stopes and by small extensions to the drifts. During the latter half of the year some 60 tons of concentrates (the proceeds of milling over 1000 tons of rock) have been shipped to the Nelson and Trail smelters, netting the lessees about $32 per ton. The figures for the bullion during this perior were not available. The lessee has installed a large boiler for power to operate the mill when the water supply is insufficient, has also added to the plant three machine drills and intends from now on to extensively develop the property.

The Central mine adjoins the Eureka. It has been operated continuously by the owners Le Gault and Niven of Nelson, who have taken out two car loads of rich copper ore which has been shipped to Trail smelter.

The properties and plant of the Reliance Mining & Milling Co. are situated on 49-Creek about 9 miles west of Nelson. About 2500 ft. of underground work has been done exposing large bodies of low grade gold ore and the company recently started No. 3 crosscut tunnel, which will be about 300 ft. in length, and will cut the lead at a depth of between 400 and 500 ft. This work is being actively pushed.

The plant consists of a fully equipped Chilean mill and cyanide plant, capable of treating 50 tons per day. The company is now planning the further installation of additional machinery to effect a more complete saving of the gold values. The mine and mill are connected by a Riblet aerial tramway, 1700 ft. in length with a capacity of 200 tons per day.

The Royal Irish group, situated in Sandy creek basin, two miles above the Granite mine, is owned by the O'Driscoll estate. There is 110 ft. of crosscut tunnel, and 60 ft. of drifting from it. A small shaft has been sunk on the ledge which at this point is about 4 ft. wide. The ore is chiefly composed of copper pyrites and quartz, assaying about 3 per cent copper, 20 oz. silver and $2 gold. A good cabin and blacksmith shop have recently been put up on these claims. One shipment has been made to the Hall Mines smelter.

The Queen Victoria mine consists of a group of four claims: Victoria, Emma, Kiruna and Kiruna fraction. The first two claims were located in 1889 by Burr and Baker, and are two of the oldest mineral claims in the district. Having been staken under the old mining laws they have extra-lateral rights which other claims in the neighborhood do not enjoy. Early in the present year J. P. Swedberg, of Nelson, obtained a lease and bond upon these claims which, within the last few weeks, has been transferred to Jas. Cronin and associates, who purchased Swedberg's interest. The ledge is an immense body or outcrop of copper pyrites, iron pyrites and malachite, in a gangue of garnetite, the foot wall of which lies upon a dyke chiefly composed of porphyretic material. The hanging wall, where visible, is a mica schist. The vein runs directly north and south, almost fit, but with a slight dip to the east. During the last few years this property has been bonded to several different local parties who have done varying amounts of work, but all of who failed to trace the vein, usually doing their work on the foot-wall.

Mr. Swedberg, working higher up the hill, came across the rich pay ore or outcrop, where work is now being done. This has led to the present owners of the bond taking over the property. It is found by operating at this point that the only development work which will be necessary prior to shipping is the stripping of the surface. When this is completed, the ore can be quarried and large quantities of it shipped. For this purpose an aerial tramway 2500 ft. in length is now being erected, ore bins will be placed at the upper terminal almost on the site of where ore will be quarried, and the lower terminal will be at the C. P. R. track. The ore found on this property is what may be termed a fair grade of copper ore. It is hard to estimate an average of the sample taken, but it is estimated that many thousand tons of ore can be shipped, running over 3 per cent copper besides the gold and silver contents. Though these values are not high, they are quite sufficient to bring large returns on the money invested. A large force of men have recently been put to work erecting new cabins and other buildings which are badly needed. As soon as these are completed a large force will be put on and it is estimated that by the middle of February the mine will be a shipping one.

A. H. Kelly and T. Brown are joint owners of the Black Prince, an easterly extension of the Queen Victoria, and have taken a bond on the adjoining claims, viz., Rio Tinto, Queen Victoria fraction, Orinoco and Orinoco fraction. These properties are very conveniently situated for working and show strong ore veins similar to the Queen Victoria, and Messrs. Kelly and Brown purpose doing a large amount of work as soon as buildings can be erected and work done to advantage. Shipments will be begun in the early summer and a large tonnage is expected to be handled. The grade of ore already exposed will average about 4 per cent copper and small value is silver and gold.

The Copper Clown group of three claims is located one half mile east of Beasley Siding, and is owned by J. Sturgeon and associates. A tunnel, beginning at the railway, has been run a distance of about 145 ft. About 20 ft. of drifting has been done and a shaft has been sunk in the tunnel about 16 ft. These workings have exposed a body of gold-copper ore, assaying from 4 to 18 per cent copper and from $2 to $31.80 in gold. It is believed that with additional work this property will prove to be one of the most valuable in the camp.

The Molly Gibson and Manchurian claims situated in Burnt Basin, Arrow lake, have recently been bonded by Ralph Slye of Nelson from the owners, J. B. Singer and Charles Schwartzenhaur et al. It is one of the richest gold smelting properties in the country, average assays having been obtained running from $60 to $80, whilst a trial shipment of 800 lbs. sent to the smelter for testing purposes gave over $50 per ton in gold. The ore is chiefly a pyrrhotite, in a quartz gangue and is solid for six feet wide. These claims were only recently located and the amount of work done has been chiefly confined to open cuts to prove the continuity of the vein. Mr. Slye has made all arrangements to start operations in the early spring.

Placer Claims—D. McKeirnan, of Nelson, has a lease of a half mile square for placer digging on 49-Creek. The lease extends for 10 years. The owner has been continually at work on his claim for the last eighteen months and though he has taken out some coarse gold the claim up to the present has not been profitable owing to the losses in the fine gold. To prevent these losses, Mr. McKeirnan has recently put in a patent amalgamator which is attached to his flume. The flume runs 300 ft. down from the creek. Towards the lower part of this numerous riffles are inserted to catch the coarse gold. At the end there is a box, dropped over which a 1-4 in. mesh screen is placed, so that all coarse material may pass over whilst the finer stuff passes through the screen. From this box a side channel runs, 2 ft. in width. To this the patent amalgamator is attached. The amalgamator is made of cement and has a half pipe riffle 1¼ in. wide running from the top to the bottom in a zigzag fashion. At the head of the amalgamator there is a box to hold the quicksilver. From this it runs down the riffle, collecting the fine gold as it goes, to another box at the bottom right hand side. In the latter box, or trough, there is a wheel which is worked by the water passing over the amalgamator. This wheel elevates the quick silver to a further box from which it runs back to the head of the machine, all the amalgam being left in the trough. It was not until late this fall that this machine was operated, when it was found that the incline of it from 7½ in. drop was too great and as the amount of work necessary for alterations will take considerable time, it was deemed advisable to hold it over until the spring.

The Dandy group, consisting of two claims, the Dandy and the Ollie, situated on Toad mountain, about 4½ miles from Nelson, is a westerly extension of the Silver King, owned by the Dandy and Ollie Consolidated Mining Co. A crosscut tunnel about 240 ft. in length has been run cutting the lead at a depth of about 100 ft. and an easterly drift of about 225 ft. has been driven on the lead all in ore. Another tunnel has been run on the ledge on the third level 200 ft. showing the same character of ore as above. Seventy tons was shipped last summer, giving a net profit of $30 per ton in all values. This ore was taken from the workings on the claim next to the Silver King. The company is perfecting arrangements to carry on work on an extensive scale during the coming summer.

The North Star, Starlight and Great Western groups are situated on Toad Mountain about four miles from Nelson. These properties are owned by A. H. Kelly and others. Many of these claims have had sufficient work done to show up large and valuable bodies of gold-copper ore. Considerable underground work has already been done and it is the intention of the owners to commence active operations in the early spring. These is already considerable shipping ore on the dumps.

The Exchequer group consists of two claims, the Exchequer and the Cleopatra, and is owned by the Exchequer Gold Mining & Milling Co., Ltd. This property is situated on Toad mountain about three miles from Nelson. There has been considerable work done. A 300 ft. tunnel has been run, also a number of drifts on the lead, showing up a large quantity of high grade ore. Sixty tons have been treated at the Hall Mines smelter, 20 tons of which went [illegible] in gold per ton. No work has been done for several years but it is the intention of the company to commence active operations in the early spring as they are satisfied that this is a valuable property.

The Fern mine has been under lease and bond to Mr. Wm. DeWitt during most of the year. The greater part of the work done has been taking out ore from the old stopes. Some work has also been done near the surface where a good pay shoot has been found. About 600 tons of rock have been milled and two shipments of concentrates have been made to the Hall Mines smelter.

On the Ymir mine during the past twelve months a considerable amount of development work has been done; over 2500 ft., all told, on the different levels. During eight months of the year the stamp mill was in operation dropping on an average 20 stamps per day of 24 hours. The highest number running at any one time was 40. During this period 11,450 tons of ore were milled, from which the bullion obtained was valued at $26,800 and concentrates, amounting to 1256 tons, valued at $31,400. At the present time the company has over 400 tons of concentrates on hand for which they are unable to find a market. It is the intention of the company to effect a reorganization and active steps are being taken now in London with that object in view. After the reorganization is effected, operations will be resumed at the mine and the plan is to develop very extensively west of the 1000 ft. level and also sink from that level. A diamond drill plant will be put in operation and the old workings will be thoroughly explored by crosscutting the foot and hanging walls in the different levels. An attempt will also be made with the diamond drill to find the vein, on the hill above the mine, from which the float that has led to so much prospecting, comes. This float, some of which is in pieces weighing a ton, is lined out across the hill for over 1000 ft. and it is a very hard matter to believe that it ever came from the Ymir vein.

For sometime past the Wilcox mine, which is situated on Wild Horse creek, Ymir, has been in liquidation. In the early part of the year it passed into the management of liquidator Bywater, and several shipments of concentrates were made to the Nelson smelter. Since then no work has been done on the property. A. H. Tuttle, the newly appointed liquidator, intends to re-open the property as early as he possibly can.

Columbia Flouring Mills Company, Ltd.

The Mack mine has been doing aggressive development work during the past 12 months, working from 3 to 5 men steadily. The property is situated at the head of Clearwater creek, and is a free milling property carrying some very rich ore. The management have under consideration the installation of a compressor plant to be run by water so that machine drills may be used. During the year some 400 ft. of tunnel work hase been done and men are now driving the long tunnel and anticipate cutting the main pay ledge very shortly.

The Yankee Girl mine adjoins the Dundee mine, Ymir, and during the year has been surveyed and crown granted, and there have also been about 400 tons of ore shipped, smelter returns giving $22 per ton above freight and treatment rates. The property is now under option and no doubt before spring will once more be shipping.

The Yukon Fraction adjoins the Dundee and Yankee Girl. The work done during the year was mostly confined to the upper tunnel. A great amount of work has previously been done and the property is well opened up by numerous tunnels. As this property is also under option with the Yankee Girl, a large force of men can work the combined claims from these tunnels to great advantage.

The Queen mine is by far the most important property in the Salmo district, as well as the one which has the most development work done upon it. Early in the year Wm. Waldie, the owner, bought the Yellowstone mine and mill, and since that time has made many improvements. During the past 12 months 6900 tons of ore have been milled, yielding $32,245 in bullion and $15,712 in concentrates. There have also been shipped 74 tons of crude ore valued at $2932, a total production of $50,889.

The Kootenay Belle mine comprises five claims, and is located on Sheep creek, Yellowstone mountain, about 10 miles east of Salmo, on the S. F. & N. railway. It is owned by Billings and Bennett, of Nelson, and is under lease and bond to Bell Bros. & Donaldson of Salmo. At present about 10 men are employed doing development work and stoping. There are two distinct fissure veins running through this property in a quartize formation. The larger vein, averaging some five feet in width, has been traced for a distance of 3500 ft. by open cuts. Assays as high as $170 have been obtained in open cuts. A shaft has been sunk 60 feet on the vein and out of this shaft some 17 cars of ore have been shipped to the Trail smelter averaging $54 per ton. A crosscut tunnel has been run 215 ft. cutting the large vein at a depth of 150 ft. A drift to the west on the ledge about 60 ft. from the point of crosscutting gives an average width of the vein of seven feet. A 90 ft. upraise has been made from this drift to the shaft. Assays taken along this drift and in the upraise give an average value of $21 taken along the full width of the vein. A mill test of 184 tons gave a brick valued at $3400 and 3300 lbs. of concentrates valued at $296. The smaller vein has been traced some 400 ft. by open cuts and tunnels. It runs parallel with and about 100 ft. north and east of the large vein and shows an average width of 15 inches. A drift runs 40 ft., out of which two cars of ore have been shipped giving returns of $83 per ton. The ore in both these veins is a distinctly free milling ore, only two samples out of over 40 showing sulphides. The principal values are in gold. Out of 17 cars shipped, the highest returns in silver were 2.10 oz. per ton.

The lessees have mapped out a considerable amount of development work for the winter to open up the ore body in anticipation of putting in a stamp mill in the spring.

Until recently the Mother Lode mine, Salmo, was under bond to A. F. Dixon, of Nelson, who shipped four cars of ore, three to Trail and one to Nelson, the first three cars netting over $120 per ton whilst the last one gave $66 per ton clear of freight and treatment. There has been a shaft sunk on the ledge about 20 ft. and a crosscut tunnel has been run in 75 ft. to tap the vein some 35 ft. below the shaft. The property is now under lease and bond to F. P. Drummond and D. McVicar.

The Columbia group consists of four full sized claims commonly known as the Devlin group. They are situated on Sheep creek about 11 miles from Salmo, and are owned by Amas, Pool and Devlin of Nelson, but are now under bond to C. Olmstead of New York. Since July last six men have been working steadily, taking out ore. Cabins, boiler house and ore bins have been erected and a good trail built from the wagon road to the claims. There are two strong veins running through the property parallel to each other and about --- ft. apart. The ore is quartz with a certain amount of oxided matter present. Average assays run from $12 to $20, but in parts the rich bunches and streaks give values up to $250. The ore has been proved to be free milling and it is intended to erect a 10-stamp mill near the Queen mine mill. A tunnel has been run on the lower vein some 45 ft. but work on it has been stopped until the boilers and machine drills are installed. These are already on the ground and will soon be in working order. It is estimated that this tunnel will crosscut the ledge at a depth of about 250 feet. On the upper vein the tunnel has been run in over 100 feet and raising to the surface has already commenced on it. This will connect with the shaft which is 12 feet in depth. It was intended in the first place to ship the ore from this property to the smelter, but since then it was found that only a small margin of profit would be left to the owners if this were done. At the present time all the ore taken out is placed in the ore bins awaiting the erection of the mill and tramway.

The Emerald group consists of four full sized claims and is owned by John Waldbeser of Salmo, and C. M. Wilson of Seattle. It is situated about six miles west of the Queen mine and about four from the wagon road. The ore is principally galena and lead carbonates, running high in lead and low in silver. During the year a 100 ft. shaft has been sunk; a 160 ft. crosscut tunnel has been run to tap the ledge at 120 ft. depth. The ledge lies in contact between schist and lime with a lime gangue, and there are tremendous bodies of ore in it. Ten cars of ore have already been shipped, averaging 62 per cent lead and 2 oz. of silver for the galena, and 45 per cent lead and 2 oz. silver for the carbonates. Contracts have been signed with the smelters to take large quantities of this ore, it being one of the easiest lead ores possible for smelting. Development on this property has been greatly delayed owing to the present government being unwilling to assist the owners in building a wagon road. After being put off from time to time by promises, the owners have at last completed a road for themselves connecting the mine with the Queen wagon road, a distance of four miles.

The King Solomon mine adjoins the Emerald mine and is owned by a Pennsylvania company, which has done very little work upon it this year. Large bodies of ore have been exposed but owing to the lack of transportation facilities the company suspended work, after obtaining a crow grant for their claims. Now that there is a wagon road within a short distance, it is hoped that work will again be started.

The Nevada group lies about three miles from the Emerald mine, between Lost and Sheep creeks. Three tunnels have been started, on running in on the vein for 150 ft., the other two being crosscuts. Altogether more than 400 ft. of tunnels have been run. The ore is a fair grade gold-silver ore averaging about $16 gold and 40 oz. silver.

The Zero Vert and the Silver Creek mineral claims are about 13 miles from Salmo, 5 miles south of the Emerald, in a country in which very little work has been done. To open up this property the owners have run in a cross cut tunnel for 130 ft. which taps the ledge at 120 ft. in depth, where there is good pay ore in sight. The ore is principally galena, assaying 40 per cent lead and 80 oz. in silver. The property is under lease to M. Collins of Erie.

The Second Relief mine is owned by the Second Relief Mining Co., of B. C., with A. B. Cooper of Nelson, as president and managing director. It was purchased from Finch and Campbell, who operated for some years. It is situated at the head of the north fork of Salmon river, 13 miles wast of Erie. The company owns six full sized crown granted mineral claims and a half interest in the Ida D. claim, in all about 200 acres, the company owning the surface rights as well. There is a 10-stamp Allis-Chalmers mill, also a Huntington mill and cyanide plant with 8 vats, water compressor for 20 drills, and recently there has been added a steam compressor for three drills to assist the other when water is low. The company has also recently installed a steam heating apparatus for heating the mill and other mine buildings; also a full electric light plant with a capacity of 150 lamps. During the past 11 months (up to Nov. 30) the mill has been run, steadily crushing on an average 600 tons per month. The total production for the 11 months was 2230 oz. of bullion, for which was obtained $39,739.76 in gold and $199.89 in silver. During the same period the company shipped 529 tons of concentrates valued at $17,133 in gold and 350 oz. silver. The company is considering the advisability of adding to the mill capacity some five stamps, also of improving the cyanide plant. During the past 12 months a profit of $18,000 has been made besides $3000 expended in permanent improvements. The company which is a recent organization, is capitalized at $500,000 in one dollar shares, all of which have ben issued, the whole of the stock being held by five persons. During the year the company has done in development 280 ft. of tunnelling and about 300 ft. of exploration work on the veins. The mill, though small, is one of the best equipped in the country, having two Wilfley tables and two frue vanners, the tailings from which are passed through the Huntingdon mill and run over copper-silver plates, thus saving any losses that may pass over the tables.

The Arlington mine, Erie, is owned by the Hastings (B.C.) Exploration Syndicate of London, Eng., and is under the management of Leslie Hill, of Nelson, with W. J. Barker as foreman. During the year over 1000 ft. of development work has been done on the property besides the necessary amount of work entailed in taking out the ore. In the past 12 months 57 cars of ore have been shipped from this mine, a gross production of 2,623,740 lbs., the average assay of the whole being, gold 2,398 oz., silver 6.23 oz., lead 3.62 1-10 per ton.

This gives a gross value of $65,152.84 or an average return of $49.66. The company has had about 30 men steadily at work all the year round. Some few months ago this company took a lease on the adjoining mine, the Canadian King, as it was found necessary to go through this company's property to get a greater depth on its own claims. In doing so it has taken out and stored several tons of good pay ore which will be shipped in the future. It was though that when the Canadian King ledge was opened up at depth under the shaft, the latter would be drained but owing to some faults in the vein this has not been effected.

The Henry Clay and Nellie M. claims, adjoining the Arlington group, are owned by A. Stostad of Nelson, and associates. It is one of the coming properties. A tunnel about 250 ft. in length has been run exposing a large vein of gold bearing quartz from which very satisfactory assays have been obtained. It is also confidently believed that the famous Arlington lead crosses this property, as workings have been carried down very close to the line. Further work will be done to prove this and if correct will make it a very valuable property.

ANOTHER WONDER OF SCIENCE.

Biology has Proved that Dandruff is Caused by a Germ.

Science is donig wonders these days in medicine as well as in mechanics. Since Adam lived, the human race has been troubled with dandruff, for which no hair preparation has heretofore proved a successful cure until Newbro's Herpicide was put on the market. It is a scientific preparation that kills the germ that makes dandruff or scurf by digging into the scalp to get at the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality; causing itching scalp falling hair, and finally baldness. Without dandruff hair must grow luxuriantly. It is the only destroyer of [illegible] Sold by leading drug[illegible] in stamps for sample [illegible] cide Co., Detroit, Mich.

ULCERS FOR 60 YEARS!

Medical Science has reached its highest pinnacle in the discovery of Zam-Buk. The healing power of this herbal balm is absolutely unprecedented. A case has just been reported to the proprietors, in which Zam-Buk has closed and healed ulcers which for 60 years had defied every remedy known. 60 years ago, the lady in question was bitten on the leg by a dog and intervals the place broke out in bad ulcerated sores: Zam-Buk has ended the mischief once and for all. This case and that which follows, should convince all sufferers from skin disease or injuries that Zam-Buk is on an entirely different plane to ordinary remedies. Send one cent stamp for free sample box and test it at our expense.

Mrs. W. E. Rice, of London Junction, (Ont.) says:—"I cannot be thankful enough for the day Zam-Buk came to Canada. For nine years I had been a sufferer from running sores on my legs caused by blood-poisoning. I had tried every kind of ointment and salve that I had heard of, but none of them seemed equal to my case. Last winter I was worse than ever, and could not bear to stand on my feet for five minutes. The pain was so acute that I could not bear to have my slippers on.

"I heard of Zam-Buk and decided to give it a fair trial. From first commencing with it it did me good, and it has now cured me. Whereas before I could not stand on my feet for five minutes at a time, I can now not only stand but walk about without feeling any pain whatever. I feel like a new woman. I have waited to see if the cure was permanent before making any statement, and now I am very willing to give my testimony. I shall be pleased to answer any inquiries and if any one cares to come and see me, I shall be pleased to tell them what Zam-Buk has done for me."

HEALED FINALLY BY

GOOD OLD HOCKEY DAYS

HAVE GONE WITH THE STALWARTS OF LONG AGO

SO SAYS FORMER EXPERT, NOW A SPECTATOR

Winnipeg, Jan. 3—Welford Beaton, late managing editor of the Seattle Star and formerly sporting editor of the Free Press when hockey was at its height in Winnipeg, is here. He wrote accounts of many of the historical games of a decade or so ago. Until last night he had not seen a hockey game for eight years and at the request of the Free Press he attended th Strathcona-Ottawa game, and wrote the following comparison of the new hockey game and the old:

"It may be that a man must keep in training to enjoy hockey, as he must to play and that eight years without seeing a game renders him unfit to catch all the fine points of the modern game. If that is so, the hockey of today, taking last night as a sample, may be as good as it was eight years ago. If, however, I can catch a play now as I did then (and the playing did not seem to be too fast for me) then hockey has improved none with advancing years. It was a rattling good game last night, especially during the second half; but I believe if Whiting, Morris, Fred Higginbotham, Jack Armytage, Tote Campbell, Dan Bain and Atty Howard had been in their prime last night and gone on the ice, they could have defeated the whole fourten players that were there. There were none there who could make the miraculous dashes of the brilliant Bain; none who could shoot like Howard; no such defence as that of Higginbotham and Flett; no stonewall like Merritt, and no such playing as we used to have when the Victorias of Winnipeg shared with their namesakes of Montreal, the honor of being the best teams in the world. I could see little change in the game itself. There is a rover now, but he was coming in as I went out. The players are now apparently a little more careful at offside plays and I never saw a referee who made such fine decisions as did the gentleman who officiated last night. There was a noticeable absence of body work. It is true that the men of today have no such stalwart bodies to do the effective work with, but there should be no very great difference between a man weighing 140 pounds bumping into another of the same weight, and one of 160 pounds, as in the old days, tackling another of similar generous proportions. Less body checking should tend to a faster game, but I do not see that such was the result. The game was certainly not as swift as it used to be and there were far more misplays last night, more muffs and examples of poor judgment than we used to see in a game in what I suppose my fellow pioneers call the good old days. No; I do not think that hockey has improved any. It could not. But even in spite of the strictures I have put on last night's exhibition, it was still a great game and I yelled like an Indian a dozen times when there were samples of brilliant rushes."

FIFTY YEARS SERVICE

DR. ROBSON PREACHES HIS JUBILEE SERMON

A PIONEER PASTOR KNOWN ALL OVER B.C.

Princess street Methodist church, Vancouver was Sunday the scene of an interesting service, when Rev. E. Robson, D.D., the veteran missionary pastor of British Columbia preached his jubilee sermon, he having completed 50 years in the Methodist ministry. Though the worthy doctor is 72 years old, he is still vigorous and at a little distance might be taken for but little over 50. There was much more snow outside the church than there was of the snows of age on Dr. Robson's head; both his hair and his closely cropped beard retaining much of the color and crisp curl of early manhood. A man of compact frame built up into sound usefulness by his early days in the lumber camp and the forest, he exhibits none of the adiposity of age, and despite a little shortness of breath, he kneels down and prays or stands up and preaches, with the activity and energetic gesture of a young probationer. Quick in his utterance, and with a bright eye that sparkles occasionally with native humor, Dr. Robson held the attention of his congregation from first to last.

NELSON CRICKET CLUB

Local Players Made an Excellent Record Last Year.

The second season of the Nelson cricket club found the team taking in a wider field than it did on the first season of its career. It therefore came into contact with many better players than was the case in 1905, and in consequence did not enjoy an uninterrupted series of victories. To have played Portland and to have won, to have Vancouver resign its game, hopeless of victory, to lose a match with the combined cities of Seattle and Tacoma by only 11 runs is a record of which no young club need be ashamed. In the cricket tournament at Victoria the Victoria team, as the result showed was easily the best of all the teams participating. On that team, out of the 11 were seven who had played in the International team and Nelson was the only team at that tournament who succeeded in getting out of those indomitable capitals. When Victoria played an eleven made up of all the outside teams, Nelson contributed the captain, and the best bowler of the united team, Nelson men making up one third of the whole number of players. The tournament is to be held this year at Seattle and Nelson's team hope to make an even better record; second best last year, they hope to capture the cup, with luck, this year.

Early in the season, over confident of victory, the team went down to defeat before the Rossland and also the Ranchers' teams but later in the season more than retrieved its laurels. Among the ranchers, as among the city folk, there are several players of almost first class rank, some indeed having played in first class cricket. There is thus much good material to work up for the Seattle tournament of 1907.

The club played 12 matches during the season, winning six.

JUST MISSED DEATH

Ymir, Jan. 3—Tuesday morning's train for Spokane, while coming from the Mountain station to the Summit at a speed of about 20 miles an hour, and when rounding a sharp curve, engineer Smith noticed a man lying on the track. The emergency brake was applied and the train stopped just as it reached the spot. The man proved to be a section man from the Summit siding, who had been at Nelson celegrating and, becoming tired, had laid down on the track for a nap. Only the vigilance of the engineer saved the man's life.

The Ymir mine employees had a meeting Monday afternoon in the office of the secretary of the Ymir Miners' union, when it was decided to give the Ymir Gold Mines company five days' time in which to pay the November pay roll. After the expiration of that time, unless payment is made the men are going to place liens on the property.

WHEN A MAN FEELS GUILTY

A Distinction Without a Difference in the Moral Law

When a man counterfeits a bill issued by a bank or by the government the offence is punished by imprisonment. The trademark law is not as stringent, but the moral offence is of the same nature. A firm of manufacturers gives its best efforts to the building up of a good name by making superior goods. The man who seeks to sell the goods of other manufacturers by false representation or inference is guilty of an offence against the Patent Law.

The "Slater" shoe has again and again had to protect its well known trademark against infringers. With a generous hope that a knowledge of the offence would be sufficient to put a stop to the practice the civil law has been invoked, but the substitutors and imitators have only grown bolder. It is the intention of the Slater Shoe Co. to take more stringent measures against those who attempt to defraud buyers of shoes.

J. D. GILLIS' VIEWS

LOCAL SCHOOL INSPECTOR TALKS OF NELSON

TELLS VICTORIA PAPER KOOTENAY IS PROSPEROUS

"It's surprising the changes which have taken place throughout the interior districts of British Columbia within the past year or so," remarked J. D. Gillis of Nelson, public school inspector for the Kootenay and Okanagan districts, in conversation with the Victoria Colonist. Mr. Gillis recently made a tour of the country included in his jurisdiction, and is enthusiastic in speaking of the growth in population and the general development along the lines of industry within the period mentioned.

A short time ago, he says, business was somewhat slack, especially throughout East Kootenay. In the Okanagan and surrounding country the farmers were enjoying a moderate amount of prosperity. Now there was a marked change. All the agricultural country was being taken up by outsiders eager to enter into the fruit raising industry. Districts hitherto unoccupied were being rapidly settled up, and new sections which were before barren wastes, were beginning to assume the appearance of well kept and prosperous farms. At Nelson the influx was particularly noticeable. There it was exceedingly difficult for a stranger to obtain accommodation. All the hotels were always taxed to their utmost capacity.

In short, Mr. Gillis said, the trend of immigration appeared to be westward. It was being discovered that British Columbia produce would command a big price in the Northwest and trade, consequently was developing along those lines. This, he thought, was the principal reason for the rush for fruit lands and for the constantly increasing number of lumbering mills. He believed that the output of the latter product alone for the last 12 months would be much in excess of that of the previous year. It also was his opinion that a corresponding and perhaps, a still greater increase would take place during the ensuing 12 months.

GIGANTIC TASK

Work of C.P.R. at Cascade Just Completed Makes a Record

(Special to The Daily News)

Cascade, Jan. 3—The gigantic task just completed by the C.P.R. is a record one. It is what those well informed in railway work, claim to be the longest continuous cut ever taken out by a steam shovel in British Columbia. The length of the cut is over a mile along the base of the mountain. The dirt is used in filling in the big Cascade bridge. They intend to again go through the same cut, which will be a grand thing for the betterment of the road, as it has always been a source of bother to the C.P.R. in the way of slides. The work was commenced on July 26 and is just completed. It will take at least another year to complete the filling of the bridge. The work is under the supervision of C. S. Moss, resident engineer of the C.P.R.

CORONER'S VERDICT

Jury Inquires into Fatal Accident at Michel

At Michel an inquest was held on Sunday night by coroner A. W. Bleasdell of Fernie, over the accidental killing of Dick Eccleston in No. 8 mine a week ago. Immediately on the arrival of the coroner on the night train, the following jury was drawn and the session opened at the provincial police court: John Laurenson, foreman; Robert Taylor, J. Welch, Dan McDonald P. Gain and George Mitchell. After retiring for 30 minutes the jury returned the following verdict: "That Richard Eccleston met his death by an accident caused by falling off the motor. How he got under the motor is a question that we could not solve and we strongly recommend that the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. provide safer means for persons engaged as brakemen riding on the front of the motors."

Orders have since been issued by the company that the brakeman must ride at the rear of the motor.

WEDDED IN FERNIE

Daughter of Police Magistrate Carried off to Medicine Hat

Fernie, B.C., Jan. 3—A quiet but pretty wedding was celebrated Monday afternoon at the residence of W. H. Whimster, police magistrate of Fernie, when his eldest daughter, Miss Mary Whimster, became the bride of Mr. Thomas Hargrave of Medicine Hat, only the immediate relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties being present at the ceremony. The bride looked sweet and charming in a handsome gown of white silk crepe de chene and carried a magnificent bouquet of roses. Mr. Wm. Mitchell of Medicine Hat, supported the groom while Miss Muriel Whimster, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. R. Grant, assisted by Rev. W. R. Ross, after which the happy couple left on the C.P.R. express for Calgary and thence to the coast. The presents were numerous and costly.

Mrs. G. G. S. Lindsey left for Victoria by the G.N. express yesterday morning to be with her son who is suffering from typhoid fever at the hospital in that city. He is progressing as favorably as can be expected.

SHERMAN IN DANGER.

Frank Paper Says He Fears Personal Violence.

The appended article recently appeared in The Frank Paper, published at Frank, Alberta, and from it was copied into the Fernie Ledger. It is reproduced here for what it is worth:

The report has been circulated in Frank that as one result of the recent strike at Fernie and the manner of its settlement, district president Sherman, of the United Mine Workers of America, has been threatened with violence, and that when at home president Sherman is under constant police protection and his home is under guard to prevent the head of the miners' union from coming to harm. If a statement made to the Frank Paper by one intimately close to Mr. Sherman is a true reflex of the facts a startling condition exists at Fernie. According to that statement, soon after Mr. Sherman's return to Fernie after the settlement of the strike, reports reached him that certain parties had designs, and that he might expect personal violence. Mr. Sherman is said to have applied to the provincial police for protection, and after an investigation of the alleged threats by an officer of that organization, the protection asked for was granted. It was stated further that on one occasion a number of Mr. Sherman's friends remained at his house over night, all armed with Winchesters, expecting trouble.

President Sherman, it is stated, has instituted suit against the Nelson Daily News for $10,000 damages for slander, in consequence of the methods pursued by the News in opposing Sherman since the commencement of the strike.

One article of which Mr. Sherman complains appeared Thursday as a special despatch from Fernie, in which it is said the district board at its recent meeting at Lethbridge had voted to declare Sherman's re-election to the district presidency void because of irregularities in the election. President Sherman, when in Frank last Friday, stated that the allegations of the article were wholly false.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy Benefits a City Councilman at Kingston, Jamaica

Mr. W. O'Reilly Fogarty, who is a member of the city council at Kingston, Jamaica, West Indies writes as follows: "One bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy had good effect on a cough that was giving me trouble and I think I should have been more quickly relieved if I had continued the remedy. That it was beneficial and quick in relieving me there is no doubt and it is my intention to obtain another bottle." For sale by all druggists and dealers.

The contractor has got the building turned round so that it can be moved to the street and on down to the new site. To get the building off the foundation and in such a position as it is in now, occasioned a good deal of hard work. Some of the plaster in the interior has fallen but Mr. Gillett thinks he can now finish up the rest of the work without much trouble.

MONTREAL SWIMMING

Montreal, Jan. 3—Heavy losses and inconveniences has been suffered by the Monreal street railway during the last two days owing to the condition of the city streets since the thaw. No less than 150 cars were taken to the shops for repairs on Monday and as many more on New Year's day. Water entered into the motors and damaged them to such an extent that it was necessary to have the cars called in and given a thorough overhauling.
