From all accounts there will be a general reorganization and an immense saving in course of time. Lord Strathcona remains in office. BOAT CLUB HOLDS OPENING REGATTA

Some Fine Rowing in Four-oared Race—Canoe Tilting Also—Dance in Evening.

That the Nelson Boat club possesses some very promising material in this year's crews, was plainly evident by the excellent showing made by the youngsters in the first regatta of the season, yesterday afternoon, when, in spite of choppy water, the shells were handled in excellent fashion, and good time was made. A couple of close finishes in the heats lent excitement to the fours event, while the canoe tilting provided the comic touch. The condition of the water compelled the cancelling of the canoe races. With a bright day, and a gay crowd, the regatta was a complete success from the point of view of a spectacle. The dance in Lindsay's pavilion in the evening was a fitting crown to the regatta program.

Four-oar Race

The main event of the regatta was the race for the lapstrake fours, somewhat under a mile, two heats and a semi-final being rowed, while the final goes over to tomorrow. In the starters launch were, P. Jey, D. H. Dick and George Stead, while W. S. Pearcy acted as judge at the finish line. All the heats started up toward the sampling works, the finish being directly in front of the club house.

The first heat was between crews stroked by R. R. Robinson and Alex. Cheyne, the former crew being composed by A. A. Perrier, bow; R. Murphy, 2; H. Brett, 3; E. E. Robinson, stroke; while the latter's composition was, Dr. W. B. Steed, bow; P. Griszelle, 2; D. Hartle, 3; Alex. Cheyne, stroke. Cheyne got the south berth, and receiving the full force of the wind, which was a little north of west, was blown out of the course before the fact was realized, giving Robinson the race when it was only half over.

The second heat was comparatively close, and was a good contest nearly all the way, the crews being made up as follows: R. Ball, bow; R. Newitt, 2; D. Wade, 3; R. Sharp, stroke; and G. Swannell, bow; F. Donenney, 2; B. Scott, 3; R. M. Balmer, stroke. Balmer had the inner side, and the two shells were even for a long distance, Sharp gradually forging ahead, and winning with a good margin at the finish.

Robinson and Sharp, the winners of the two heats, drew for the semi-final with Guille, who had a bye. Robinson being the choice. Guille's veteran crew was composed of W. F. Mawdsley, bow; R. Grubb, 2; F. Ladd, 3; E. E. Guille, stroke. Guille, on the outer side, had a slight lead when the two crews, coming at a lively pace, arrived at the stretch. Here Robinson quickened in a splendid spurt, while Guille's bow lost his seat and missed three strokes. With both crews urging their shells through the water with every trick of oar and ounce of weight, Robinson overhauled and passed Guille, winning by a bare length. Both crews were heartily cheered.

The final heat, between Sharp and Robinson, will be rowed tomorrow.

The tilting contest afforded loads of amusement, taking place immediately before the club house, where, to the delight of the crowds on both balcony and grille, each tilt ended in one or both crews being precipitated into the water.

The first tilt was between F. Ladd and R. Grubb, who stood in canoes, padded lance, consisting of a stick ending in a pillow, in hand, their seconds, who wielded the paddles, being respectively R. Ball and B. Scott. After a good deal of manoeuvering and countering, Grubb succeeded in putting Ladd into the water, and a moment later all four, principals and seconds, were struggling in the icy current.

E. Wright, wielding the paddle, and E. E. Guille, the padded lance, next fell victims to R. Sharp, paddler and Alex. Cheyne, lancer, the shock of the combat sending the former pair into the water immediately, the victors getting back to safety without getting wet.

The two victorious crews now clashed, but in the case of the Grubb-Scott pair, the partners changed places, Scott doing the sparring, while Grubb managed the canoe. A short contest ended in Scott's upset, and a general bath for four followed, the Cheyne-Sharp pair being the winners.

A couple of high dives closed the program.

The next regatta has been fixed for July 1, when, in addition to fours, there will be races for doubles and singles, canoe races and other events.

Flannel Dance.

One of the most pleasant social events of the season was the flannel dance of the Boat club, which took place in Lindsay's pavilion last evening. About 50 couples chased the hours with flying feet, to the music of Wilkinson's orchestra, refreshments being served at midnight.

The committee of the Boat club, which managed both the regatta and the dance, consisted of W. S. Pearcy, R. M. Balmer, Dr. W. B. Steed, R. Sharp, R. Ball and Alex. Cheyne.

SOUTH AFRICAN NATIONAL PARTY

General Botha Issues Manifesto—Clean Sheet and Dissolution of Old Party Organizations.

PRETORIA, June 15—In declaring his policy General Louis Botha, premier of United South Africa, said there was no other way possible than to form a government from the governments already existing. Any other step would have been most fatal to South Africa as investigations had clearly proved that the majority did not wish for a coalition ministry. The time had come, he said, for starting with a clean sheet and he hoped that old party organizations, especially his own, would be dissolved and amalgamate into a great party with broad and wide principles and named the South African National party.

The Premier's Policy.

General Botha read a manifesto on the varied questions confronting the government, foremost among which is the task of welding the different races into one great people by applying sympathetic treatment to the natives and colored people. It should also aim at the encouragement of the white population, he said, and the propagation of scientific immigration and a broad educational policy suited to the needs of the country's workers and to perform its duty to the empire in regard to defence and the development of its industries, the mining land settlement, the encouragement of foreign capital and the opening up of foreign markets.

The president of the Canadian Northern will visit Victoria again in a few weeks. During the visit just concluded he met Hon. Richard McBride, premier of British Columbia, and discussed railway matters with him. He could say nothing regarding the projected route of the Island railway pending the receipt of the engineer's report. W. L. Coulson, general manager of the Canadian Collieries, the name of the company which will operate the properties acquired from Hon. James Dunsmuir, is in charge from today on.

MOYIE GENEROUS TOWARD CELEBRATION

Dominion Day Festivities Now Assured Success—Baseball, Football, Aquatic and Caledonia Sports.

(Special to The Daily News.)

MOYIE, June 15—After having collected $775 in two days, or an average of almost $2 for every man, woman and child in the camp, the finance committee of the Dominion Day celebration here presented their report to a public meeting held in Miners' union hall on Monday evening. The lists are still in circulation and several hundred dollars more may be added before they are closed. Thus it will be seen that from the financial viewpoint the celebration is an assured success.

At last night's meeting the appropriations for the various sports were made and much other important business transacted. Following is the official list of prizes for the various events as given to a correspondent for The Daily News by E. O. Kamm, secretary: Aquatic sports, $175; baseball, $150; football, $150; Caledonian sports, $100; children's sports, $100. A substantial appropriation has been made for the services of the Cranbrook city band and the grounds at Aldridge will probably require a little fixing.

Ben Evans was appointed marshall for the day.

TORONTO WARMLY WELCOMES BORDEN

Opposition Leader Addresses Monster Picnic at Long Branch—Concrete Cases of Maladministration

TORONTO, June 15—The Conservative stronghold of Toronto, which will always cheer for Sir Wilfrid Laurier but will never vote for him, gave Mr. R. L. Borden a right royal welcome today. The opposition leader addressed a monster picnic crowd at Long Branch and the splendid reception he received was convincing in its wholehearted spontaneous nature.

Although today's meeting was held under the auspices of wards 5 and 6 and Long Branch is in the riding of West Toronto, there were large delegations from the various ridings of Tork and Peel and upwards of 2000 people heard the Conservative leader criticize the past and present work of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The feature of the tour so far has been the original matter of the addresses delivered by Mr. Borden and his chief lieutenant from St. Annes. The speeches have been not a mere reiteration in a general way of the misdeeds of the government. Concrete cases of the wanton manner in which the money of the people is being spent and wasted by a "band of wastrels and profligates" as Mr. Borden puts it, are given and in a quiet and logical way. The audience is made to see that the present administration are unworthy stewards of Canada's heritage with a record of unbusinesslike transactions which would be sufficient to sweep them from power were the country only to seize the real facts of the case.

(Special to The Daily News.)

VICTORIA, June 15—Editor W. J. Clement of the Penticton Press, has been deprived of his commission as justice of the peace in consequence of a disloyal and contemptuous article which he wrote in connection with the late king's death, entitled "Mock Loyalty and Mock Mourning."

CONTRACT LET FOR FERNIE'S NEW CATHOLIC CHURCH

(Special to The Daily News.)

FERNIE, June 15—Building operations have taken on a spurt the last few days several structures having been commenced. The largest contract is that for the erection of a new Catholic church, the excavation for which began today. The provincial building and court house is nearing completion, the roof being now put on. The brick work of the Baptist church is finished and the roof of that edifice is also being built. Altogether there is considerable activity in the building trade owing to the number of private residences and other structures that are being rushed to completion.

Though every effort is still being made to recover the body of the little daughter of J. Lyons, no trace has been found. It is probable that the child fell into the river and not the sluice, and in that event it may be weeks before recovered. The family have the sympathy of the whole community in their deep distress.

The directors of the Fernie-Fort Steele Brewing company held a meeting in the city today in connection with the construction of new bottling works.

The returns show 85,037,055 bushels of wheat inspected 28,611,403 bushels of oats, 4,242,000 bushels of barley and 2,732,000 bushels of flax seed, a total of 119,204,055 bushels for nine months.

BASE BALL FANS SEE THINGS DOING

Nip and Tuck During Seven Innings—Sensational Break-up in Fifth Gives Colville Long Lead

The spectators at yesterday's game got the worth of their money and saw all kinds of ball,—at spots it was very good and in spots it was the other thing. The bad spots totally disfigured the score, which stood at the end 11-3 in favor of Colville. In six out of the nine innings the visitors failed to score, but errors in the fifth gave them a bunch of two, and while the home team was temporarily absent from earth in the seventh Colville proceeded to pile up eight more. Nelson scored in the third, sixth and eighth.

The hard luck began before the game, Craymer and Lapointe collided during the preliminary warm up. Craymer came out with a broken collar bone and Lapointe won a spiked foot. Craymer played three and a half innings before he decided that an investigation was needed and found out what had happened. The spike got in its work more promptly and Phillips went to Lapointe's place. The line-up was changed again in the third, Craymer going to the bay and Daschbach coming to short stop, in the beginning Salters took the place of Craymer who had then retired.

Possibly these unavoidable changes had something to do with the disastrous fifth. The short stop was not in his usual place, and there was at critical times an uncertainty as to who should field the ball which was demoralizing. That is where most of the damage was done but errors were costly at other points. At times some of Daschbach's play was gilt edged and elicited deserved applause. The Colville line shirts put up a steady game throughout.

The pitching was good though the batters were able to hit both men. M. Wright and Grady did almost faultless work behind the bat though neither shone at throwing to second. Grady's three bagger was one of the features of the game.

The Score.

Notes.

The Colville team includes many of that city's eminent citizens. Among them are a leading banker, the sheriff, the county treasurer, the county clerk, the city marshall, the N.P.R. freight collector acting at Spokane. A leading hardware merchant, Mr. Shannon, is captain of the team, and a leading dry goods merchant, Mr. Millspaugh, is manager. All this speaks well for the sportsmanship of Colville, as does also, for that matter, the conduct of the team on the field.

Referee C. D. Blackwood referred the game with impartiality, and though some of his decisions might have been open to question there was no kicking and no disputes. The scorers were: Nelson, D. Chapman; Colville, Shannon.

For seven out of the nine innings the spectators were treated to a game well worth seeing, and were well repaid for their attendance.

Tonight's Game.

Tonight's game should be well worth seeing. The loss of the two disabled players is to be regretted, but despite yesterday's score the local boys showed that they can put up a good quality of ball. To hold the visitors down to one run for seven innings to not too bad. If they can cut out the breaks that did the business in the other two innings, they will have a good chance of winning. In any event there will be lots of excitement.

The line-up for Colville is unchanged. That for Nelson will be: C. Blue, P; H. Grady, c; F. Gould, 1b; L. Tice, 2b; F. Salter, 3b; F. Daschbach, ss; H. Bishop, lf; R. Crister, cf; D. Chapman, rf; G. Rattell, utility. Umpire, Al Gibson.

Play begins at 8.30.

INSTITUTIONAL CHURCH IS PLANNED FOR VANCOUVER

(Special to The Daily News.)

VANCOUVER, June 15—Plans are being seriously discussed by prominent Methodists of the city for the foundation of an institutional church of that denomination in the city. The scheme has advanced so far that Dr. W. J. Dawson, the noted English preacher, recently here, is said to have been approached concerning taking charge of the work if it was carried out and his assent to the arrangement is practically secured. The plans of the promoters are ambitious, aiming at the ultimate expenditure of half a million dollars for the site, building and equipment. A prominent realty broker has already provisionally offered an eligible site on Georgia street, in the centre of the city.

ROYAL EDWARD ESTABLISHES NEW TRANS-ATLANTIC RECORD.

QUEBEC, June 15—What is believed to be a trans-Atlantic record has been established by the steamer Royal Edward of the Royal Steamship line, which arrived in this port at 3 p. m. today. The Royal Edward left Bristol at 7 p. m. on Thursday last and by reaching here at 3 p. m. today constitutes a record which is 50 minutes ahead of the best time yet made, which was by the Empress of Ireland. After discharging Quebec passengers and freight here the Royal Edward left for Montreal.

GOATS COMING

Number of Orders Justify Importation

Consignment of Blooded Animals

Nelson Fair Board May Offer Prize

PROVINCIAL LIBRARY

About a dozen ranchers have paid their antes, and signified their intention of staying in the game, with respect to the proposed shipment of purebred Anglo-Nubian goats. The fund in the hands of W. R. Haldane, general freight agent of the C. P. R. at Nelson, has grown to $130, which, at $10 a goat, means that deposits have been paid on 13 goats. In addition to this, the matter of the billies has been settled to a certain extent, H. H. Clough, of Castlegar, and F. G. Fauquier, of the Needles, each being willing to make the investment. Whichever one of them is nominated, will take the billy, and in settling this point, the convenience of the ranchers participating in this shipment will be the consideration. So matters are now at a fairly advanced stage.

Replies Wanted.

There are, however, a number of the outlying ranchers who originally corresponded upon the matter, who have not been heard from since the $10 deposit was called for, and it is desirable that those intending to order should do so at once. The announcement is authorized that if a man orders a goat and decided not to take it when he sees it, he can get a refund of his $10 deposit. There is no money in it for any of those who are promoting the enterprise.

This number of goats having been ordered, the projected importation is now assured and Holmes Pegler, secretary of the British Goat society, is awaiting the instructions of Henry Hincks of Hoveker, to purchase, assemble and ship the goats. The Anglo-Nubian is one of the two famous milch breeds of goats, and each animal in the shipment will be pedigreed, will have a certified bill of health, and will be inspected both on leaving England and on arriving in Canada. Those who participate in the enterprise can rest assured that no advantage will be taken of them by bringing inferior goats.

Those who take goats will have choice of the shipment in the order in which their deposits were received. It is obvious that the more goats are ordered, the smaller will be the transportation charge on each goat.

Kootenay Source of Supply.

It is generally agreed that this country wants only blooded goats. If this policy is followed with succeeding importations, every Kootenay goat will be blooded, and Kootenay kids will command a premium. From the Kootenay as a source of supply, the Anglo-Nubian purebred milch goat will, in the opinion of those behind the movement, eventually spread into every part of the province where the peculiar needs of the rancher call for its invaluable aid.

There is a strong sentiment in favor of there being a section for goats at the coming Nelson fair, the live stock section of which is always far lighter than the directors would like to see. It is suggested that this year prizes be offered for the best imported Anglo-Nubian goat, and that in future years classes be provided for those bred in the Kootenay. It is probable that a strong effort will be made along this line.

TO PLACE INVESTORS IN TOUCH WITH OPPORTUNITIES

(Special to The Daily News.)

CRESTON, June 15—The C. P. R. have appointed John F. Sweeting industrial agent at Winnipeg, who will report to F. W. Peters, assistant to the second vice president of the C. P. R. The idea of this new office is to place investors throughout the west in touch with opportunities. W. R. Haldane, district freight agent at Nelson, is helping this good work along and only this week recommended Creston as an opening for a business not already represented here.

Mrs. Rose Reil left here a few days ago for Moyie where she will visit friends for a short while.

O. J. Fleming, American customs inspector at Port Hill, Idaho, left for Banff, B. C., where he will remain for the next four months inspecting the baggage of tourists. He will also bond baggage from Banff to any American points.

A. Okell has a hen which industriously sat on one egg that brought forth one chick. Any one can adopt it on application to Mr. Okell.

THANKFUL FOR SMALL MERCIES.

CHICAGO, June 15—The first change made in dressed beef prices in three weeks by wholesalers went into effect today and it was a reduction of half a cent per pound.

MARKET CONDITIONS ON THE PRAIRIE

Second Report from Commissioner Metcalfe—Supplies Received in Leading Centres.

Following is the second report from J. C. Metcalfe, market commissioner:

Moose Jaw, June 6 ,1910.

W. E. Scott, Esq.,
Deputy Minister of Agriculture,
Victoria, B. C.

Dear Sir,—I have the honor to report as follows:

Moose Jaw, May 31—Idaho cherries are coming into this point now. Mr. Symington, manager of the Rex Fruit Co. here, informed me they cost, laid down this point: Per case of 10 pounds $1.85; California cherries per case of 10 pounds $2.15; selling retailers, Idaho cherries 10-lb. case $3.50; Idaho cherries 10-lb. case $2.60.

Further stated Wenatchee peaches are being quoted them f.o.b. there, per case 45 cents, and reports from that point indicate heavy crop of all varieties of fruit, and the same from California.

Regina, June 1—Mr. Anderson, manager for the Vernon Fruit Co., here, stated their company was putting four men in the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan, located at each of the following places: Calgary, Edmonton, Regina and Saskatoon, and will be in a much better position than formerly to look after the company's output of fruit. Hood River strawberries are coming in here now and selling to retailers at $4.50 per case. These berries are brought through by express in carloads to Winnipeg, and distributed from there. The express rate from Hood River to Winnipeg is $1.80 per 100 pounds, minimum 20,000 pounds. Seattle express rate in carloads to Winnipeg $2 per 100 pounds, minimum 15,000 pounds. No B. C. strawberries have arrived at this point to date, June 1.

Mr. Smith, manager Macpherson Fruit Co. here, stated from present reports received, all indicate a heavy crop of the different varieties of fruit from California, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and Ontario, and looked for prices to rule low for all kinds of fruit, and especially for peaches.

Winnipeg, June 4—McNaughton Fruit Exchange here, auctioneers and fruit brokers, reported having received this season four carloads of rhubarb from growers at Mission and Hatzic, B. C., on consignment: First car of 616 cases arrived April 29th; second car of 540 cases arrived May 9th; third car of 735 cases arrived May 16th; fourth car of 650 cases arrived May 26th.

Stated it would net growers and shippers an average price of 74 cents per case, on the four carloads. Freight rate from Mission 53 cents per 100 pounds. Freight rate from Mission Junction 65 cents per 100 pounds, apparently there seems to be a great discrimination in this rate, they being situated about one mile apart, cars averaged about six days in transit. A few crates of strawberries arrived here on the 4th, from the lower mainland, B. C., arrived in fair condition, but poorly graded and packed, somewhat green and baskets not full.

The following is a report of fruit received and sold by auction by the McNaughton Fruit Exchange, Winnipeg, for the year of 1909.

Ontario Shipments via Freight.

One hundred and fifty-four thousand, nine hundred and seventy-eight baskets of grapes, 8919 baskets of pears, 1485 cases of pears, 524 baskets quinces, 5005 baskets apples, 581 cases apples, 99 baskets egg plants, 221 cases cabbage, 27 baskets nuts, 51 baskets cherries, five baskets onions, 15,227 baskets peaches, 3641 cases peaches, 16,378 baskets plums, 27,206 baskets tomatoes, 438 baskets peppers, 1133 cases strawberries, 360 cases cukes, 979 dozen corn, 32 baskets muskmelon, five baskets gooseberries. Showing a total number of 237,333 pieces.

Of the above total 190,483 pieces came from the St. Catherines Storage company, St. Catherines.

B. C. Shipments via Express, 1909.

Six hundred and thirty-three cases strawberries, 1266 cases plums, 851 cases raspberries, 91 cases pears, 29 cases apples, 246 cases cherries, 5 cases rhubarb, 77 cases gooseberries, 42 cases red currants, 10 cases cukes, total of 3265 cases.

This report does not include apples in barrels received from Ontario.

R. Thompson, manager St. Catherines Cold Storage Co., has been here at Winnipeg and completed arrangements with the McNaughton Fruit Exchange to sell their fruit for this season. The following is a copy of a report, or circular, received from the St. Catherines Cold Storage Co., St. Catherines, Ont., by the McNaughton Fruit Exchange, Winnipeg:

"The danger from frost is now over in the Niagara peninsula and prospects are for a fair crop. Strawberries are coming along fine and promise a full crop. Sweet cherries full crop, sour cherries a medium crop. European varieties in plums look well and will be better than last season, pears have set well, peaches promise a full crop, grapes will be a medium crop of very fine quality; all fruit will be a little earlier than last season."

The company shipped over 100 cars to Winnipeg in 1909 and will likely send a larger number this season, they are preparing to pack their pears, peaches and tomatoes in the western packages and use the same methods. The Winnipeg people can look forward to getting a good sample of Ontario fruit from this well known company."

This company ships all fruit by freight in carloads by Grand Trunk and across lake, then via Milwaukee, St. Paul to Winnipeg, avoiding Chicago with its congested yards and delay there, cars 4 1-2 days in transit. They pre-cool all fruit and ship in iced cars.

The following is an extract in part of a letter dated May 14, from a North Yakima grower and shipper giving estimates in carloads of different varieties of fruit at that point this season, and received by one of the jobbers here, was handed me to read it: Peaches, 100 carloads; pears, 360 carloads; prunes, 200 carloads; apples, 2000 carloads.

He reported prospects for a very heavy crop. Idaho also reports the same.

Quality Wanted.

Allowing for over-estimation from present reports the indications are for a good crop, and it will be necessary for our growers and shippers to get their quotations into the hands of wholesalers, and retailers, giving quantities, varieties, and date of their being ready for shipment, for the purpose of inducing dealers here to wait until our fruit comes in. There is a danger that these markets may be glutted to some extent, interfering with the sale of our fruit products from the fact of our fruit being later in ripening and shipping, it will be further necessary for our growers and shippers to use the greatest care in putting up their fruits in every respect, as the better product will find a readier sale at a higher price. The marked aggressiveness of Ontario and American shippers this season in pushing the sale of their fruit products throughout these provinces will necessitate you as growers and shippers of being even more so, by all legitimate means and methods at your disposal.

FRANCE FEARS A NEW ALLIANCE

Will England and Germany Unite?—Edward Firmly Opposed Such a Plan.

A Paris correspondent of the United Press says:

French statesmen are greatly exercised over the suggestion that King Edward's death may open the way to a combination between England and Germany.

Not much loud talking is being done concerning the situation. The outlook is too serious to be discussed noisily. Nevertheless, the best authority exists for the statement that it is being gone into very gravely.

Edward was Germany's enemy and France's friend. He had his reasons for this, too. He considered Germany as the strongest continental power, dangerous to England. Of France, on the other hand, he was not at all afraid. He liked to have the French as independent as possible of German influence and, from a military standpoint, as strong as they could be made. This he considered a valuable check upon Germany.

Helped France at Germany's Expense.

He realized, too, that Germany was more powerful than France and consequently he opposed a war between the two powers. At least once he prevented the outbreak of hostilities between them. Altogether, he was constantly working, under cover but none the less effectively, to help France at Germany's expense.

It is pretty certain that Germany would have been glad for a long time to have ended this continual checkmating of its plans and its ruinous competition with England by such an understanding as France is afraid of now. But the leaders of the Berlin government never believed Edward would permit such an agreement to become really effective. An agreement, indeed, it might have been possible for the two governments to have made. But with Edward everlastingly working, and unquestionably working successfully, to set it at nought, what good would it have been to Germany? For that matter, wouldn't it have done Germany a great deal of harm? Wasn't it safer for Germany to have England as an open and above-board rival than for the Fatherland to lower its guard on account of an official government agreement and then to be knocked clean off its legs by a jab from King Edward in his unofficial capacity?

Yes, the Germans answered, open rivalry was preferable.

Agreement Always Declined.

So there was never any Anglo-German agreement while King Edward lasted. English politicians and business men suggested one occasionally, but Germany always declined—politely, but firmly.

Hence, King Edward was a very valuable asset to the French government.

"Now that Edward is dead, how about an Anglo-German agreement?" the French statesmen are asking one another.

Germany Favors Alliance.

Does this mean that England and Germany will get together? Maybe not, but it is more than possible. The overtures influential Britons have made to Germany in the past show a strong English sentiment in favor of an agreement. And Germany would certainly favor one if it thought the agreement could honestly be relied on. Germany is not afraid of England. It has long thought, indeed, that England was getting ready to attack the fatherland, and has been preparing for the struggle accordingly. But the Germans do not care to fight. They think they are capable of beating Great Britain at the game of expansion by peaceful means—superior organization and better business methods. So if they fight the English they will only do so because the English insist on fighting.

Thus it is clear enough that if England offers terms to the kaiser and the kaiser thinks they are offered in good faith, the kaiser, will probably accept them. The French statesmen are much afraid that the offer will be made.

Nation's Strength in Doubt.

An agreement between England and Germany would be the worst thing that could happen to France. With England as its ally, France is comparatively safe from German aggression.

It is hard to tell whether England or Germany is the stronger. England is far stronger than Germany at sea; Germany is far stronger than England ashore. With this difference between them, it puzzles even the greatest experts to decide what would be the probable result of a struggle between them. It is certain, however, that Germany hesitates at starting trouble with England at present. This hesitation alone is responsible for France's immunity from German attack for so long. No disinterested military man doubts that German troops could get to Paris almost as rapidly as they could travel there. But while they were doing it the English navy could be smashing the Germany navy, blowing up the Kiel canal, demolishing the kaiser's dockyards, blockading Teutonic ports, playing destruction with the fatherland's commerce and gobbling up the colonies the Berlin government is trying to establish in Southeast Africa.

No Danger of War Yet.

So a war between Germany on one side and England and France on the other, isn't to be thought of, from a German standpoint—at least just yet.

But suppose Germany managed to get England into a compact with itself to rule Europe. They could partition the continent if they chose. France would fall naturally within the German sphere of influence. It isn't likely that the kaiser would care to take and keep the entire country. It would be too troublesome to hold. But France has territories along its eastern frontier which would fit conveniently onto the Fatherland. It has North Africa possessions that Wilhelm has long coveted. It has others in the Far East that he would like. And he would particularly enjoy dominating all of France's governmental policies.

There is absolutely no reason why this program should not go through if England can be convinced that it will not suffer by it. And naturally the Germans would give the English some kind of compensation for the former's freedom of movement. There are many things they could offer. Germany stands in England's way in numerous directions and is a danger, if not an actual obstruction, in others.

Eventualities Will Be Slow.

The combination has too many advantageous features to both England and Germany not to be regarded favorably on both sides of the North sea if only each country can convince the other that neither has anything to fear from it.

It is too big a program to be pushed through in a hurry, but it is also too threatening to France for the Paris government not to begin worrying about in plenty of season. Other countries would be endangered, too, but France more than any of them.

UNDERSTANDING BETWEEN GERMANY AND ENGLAND

Advocated by Sir W. M. Ramsay—Evils of Discord—Situation in Turkey and in Asia—Pulling Opposite Ways.

Sir William M. Ramsay writes from Constantinople, on May 12, to the Manchester Guardian:

What Hangs on Peace.

"If," he says, "I repeat once again that the progress and success of the movement toward freedom and good order in Turkey depend on the establishment of harmony and concerted action between England and Germany, it may appear that I am in these letters harping on one string. But the fact is that this concord is overwhelmingly important, and everything else sinks into insignificance in comparison. The discord blocks the way for everything. You inquire into almost any matter that is hanging in suspense, as most things are hanging month after month; and if you go beneath the surface you find that at the bottom lies the same cause for the delay. England and Germany are pulling in opposite ways.

Evils of English and German Discord.

"I have now been in conversation and communication with many people of many opinions and many differences both in Germany and in Constantinople, and the result has only been to deepen and render more intense my profound conviction, already strongly expressed in my book on 'The Revolution in Turkey' (both in the Preface most explicitly and in the body of the book) in a more intense way, because I was not expressing my own opinions there, but reporting the words, thoughts and acts of others; that this discord is the great evil and danger of the present moment, and that nothing can be done to cure the superficial symptoms of disease until the deep-lying cause is removed.

The Significance of the Bagdad Railway

"It would be safe to go further and to declare that this disagreement is the greatest danger to peace in Europe and in the world. Until it is healed there can be no confidence about the continuance of peace, and the present state of anxiety must continue indefinitely. What is the way to cure the discord? What is the cause? Where lies the sore which can first and must first be treated? As to that there cannot be a moment's doubt. The Bagdad railway scheme is the point where a beginning must be made. Nothing can be done, no cure is possible, until that difficulty is removed. England has barred the way to the achievement of this great work, as formerly she barred the way to the cutting of the Suez canal. In this case, as in that, the work will finally be completed in spite of her if she persists in her opposition; but the ill-feeling engendered by her opposition will last for years; it may postpone the completion of the work for a long time, and it certainly causes constant friction and difficulty in the execution."

In another letter Sir W. M. Ramsay says:

Germany's Plans.

"I do not, of course, pretend to know what is the whole plan in the minds of those who are guiding German development. But one thing is certain—a definite plan is being worked out with clear and far-seeing view; that no one who lives in Germany can doubt or dare doubt. One part of the plan, however, is very evident. The great outlet abroad for German energy at the present time is in Turkey. To keep that outlet safe there is one thing absolutely necessary.

Why Germany Wants a Fleet.

"Two years ago a friend of mine said to a high German official much interested in Turkey, 'Why don't you come and take hold of the machine, and run Turkish business on proper lines, as we do in Egypt?' The answer was, 'We can't do it without a fleet.' That puts the whole Turkish situation in seven words. Germany is not conterminous with Turkey. She can exert power there only by means of a fleet; and when all is said you come back to the one fundamental fact, that in Asia one must rest on the power to compel. Under the last sultan, German influence in Turkey rested ultimately on its powerful army; but the sultan knew that the army was far away and could not touch him; he was pleased to consort with the most powerful sovereign in Europe; but he was very far from being controlled by Germany as Turkey of old was controlled by 'the Great Elchi,' the ambassador who had a fleet behind him.

A Dangerous Situation.

"Germany, then, cannot exercise power in Turkey without a fleet. But, worse than that, Germany feels that her schemes in Turkey always remain in a position of danger without a fleet strong enough to resist interference on the part of England similar to that which smashed French influence and Ismail Pasha. There is a dangerous situation. That, and not the landing of a German fleet on our eastern coasts, is the critical point. The German fleet is not wanted to fight at a purposeless war in the North Sea. It is wanted to be of use in a wider policy. The most that could be expected from a war with England would be the destruction of both fleets, and German affairs in Turkey would be worse off than before.

The Way Out.

"The solution of this great danger lies in one way alone. English, German, and Turkish interests are really identical, if the various parties could or would only see it. There is a country once rich to be made rich once more. This result cannot be achieved unless there is a common policy agreed upon. That is the first fact in the Eastern situation, and until that is firmly grasped no great progress is possible toward peace or toward Turkish prosperity."

AMERICAN VIEWS OF ROOSEVELT

The Predominant Factor in American Politics—Opinions by Papers of Various Parties and Places

"During the past month the dominant theme abroad as well as here at home, has been our ex-president," says Current Literature. "Halley's comet, with its cyanogen tail has been approaching the earth at the rate of three million miles a day. It has hardly been heeded. The cost of living has continued to rise, but the discussion of it has for a time almost ceased.

An Astonishing Phenomenon

"Here is an astonishing phenomenon says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, a Democratic paper. "A private citizen of the world is seen to be of more interest to the world than any ruler of any great nation. His mere opinion on present American affairs is held of more importance than anything that may happen in America. . . . America has never before seen such a situation. But, then, America has never before seen such a man!" "No other American," says the New York Times, a Democratic paper and anti-Roosevelt, "ever so greatly interested the people of his time. Not Washington, Jackson, Webster, Clay, Lincoln or Grant ever absorbed so large a share of attention or held so continuously a place in the public mind."

The New York World fears that an effort is being made to idolize him and it foresees a Republican party reduced to ineptitude by this Roosevelt idolatry in much the same way as the Democratic party has, in its opinion, lost its vitality because of the Bryan idolatry.

Henry Watterson in the Louisville Courier admits that Roosevelt has captivated the universe," and that every true American heart glows with pride and "exultant admiration" at the way he carries himself. The ex-president is described as altogether the most . . . ing figure that has appeared in the world since Napoleon Bonaparte."

The Roosevelt Peril

"If such a man goes back to power," says the veteran Louisville journalist, "let there be no mistake about the terms of the new commission which he will receive. If the government of the United States under our written constitution of checks and balances, be a failure, as many think it, and if there be needed for its executive head a strong man, having the courage to take all the bulls of corruption by the horns and, regardless of obsolete legal restraints, to shake the life out of them, then indeed Theodore Roosevelt would seem one fitted by temperament, education and training for the work.

"If the people," Mr. Watterson goes on to repeat, "are sick and tired of the slow process of constitutional procedure then is Mr. Roosevelt the man for them to choose, for he comes directly from the family of the kings of men and is a lineal descendant of Caesar and Cromwell.

"We may be sure that his return to power will be construed by Europe as an admission by Americans that representative government is a failure and that the only cure for its evils is the one-man power." All these utterances by Mr. Watterson and the rest, that we have been quoting, were made before Mr. Roosevelt was out of the jungle three weeks. Even before he had emerged Ray Stannard Baker was writing in the American Magazine that nowhere in the country has he found anyone arguing that any obstacle whatever stands in Mr. Roosevelt's way today if he desires to become again a candidate for the presidency.

A Predominant Feature

"Five thousand miles distant in the heart of Africa," writes Mr. Baker, "without knowledge of what is going on here at home, without having uttered so much as a word of advice (or command) for over a year, Roosevelt is today the predominant factor in American politics. A sort of absent Caesar listening at the lips of the Sphinx, with distant Rome plotting and counterplotting, awaiting news from the Upper Nile."

A RECORD FOR THE PASSAGE TO CANADA

All records to Canada have been broken by the Royal line steamer Royal Edward, of the Canadian Northern steamships, Limited. She left Bristol on her maiden voyage on Thursday, May 12, for Quebec and Montreal, and reports which have since been received from her show that she has made a wonderful passage across the Atlantic. Nothing like it has ever before been done in the history of the Canadian trade, and her performance has created a sensation in shipping circles. Every day until noon, Tuesday, May 17, the Royal Edward steamed 480 knots. On her best day's run she made an average of 20 4-5 knots per hour, and this speed would have been maintained had it not been for fog, which caused delay and consequent loss of time. From Avonmouth to Father Point, on the river St. Lawrence, she occupied five days 22 hours 41 minutes. This constitutes a record for the southern and longer route, and the commander of the vessel, Captain Roberts, declares that she will obtain even better results under more favorable conditions.

OXFORD SPEECH OF ROOSEVELT

Fuller Report of Interesting Portions of Address—The Foundation of National Danger

Following are portions of Roosevelt's Oxford speech omitted from telegraph reports:

What Unites Nations

"The anthropologist and the historian of today realise much more clearly than their predecessors how artificial most great nationalities are, and how loose is the terminology usually employed to describe them. The northern Frenchman is in blood and physical type more nearly allied to his German speaking neighbors than to the Frenchman of the Mediterranean seaboard, who in turn is nearer the Catalan. But in essential characteristics, in the qualities that tell in the makeup of nationality these Frenchmen feel keenly that they are one and are different from all outsiders. Why do great artificial empires, whose citizens are knit with a bond of speech and culture much more than by a bond of blood, show periods of extraordinary growth and again of sudden decay?

"In some cases we can answer readily enough. The minute that the spirit which finds its healthy development in local self-government, develops an inability to combine effectively for the achievement of a common end, then it is hopeless to expect great results. Poland and certain republics of the western hemisphere are standard examples of failures of this kind.

Luxury a Source of National Danger

"So the growth of soft luxury after it has reached a certain point becomes a national danger patent to all. Again it needs but little of the vision of a seer to foretell what must happen in any community if the average woman ceases to become the mother of a family of healthy children, if the average man loses the will and the power to work up to old age and to fight whenever the need arises. If the homely, commonplace virtues die out, then the nation has lost what no material prosperity will offset.

"But there are plenty of other phenomena wholly or partially inexplicable. It is easy to see why Rome trended downwards when great slave filled farms spread over what had once been a countrysideof peasant proprietors, when greed and sensuality ate like acid into the fibre of the upper classes. The fall of Rome before the barbarians is quite sufficiently explained by the mere fact that the average citizen had lost the fighting edge—an essential even under a despotism and therefor far more essential in free, self-governing communities such as the English speaking peoples of today. But this does not explain why the forward movement has stopped at different times as regards literature, architecture and city building.

"For a period covering the 17th century Holland stood on the dangerous heights of greatness beside nations so vastly her superior in territory and population as to make a fall inevitable. Her fall came, but it came far quicker than it needed to come, because of shortcomings on her part to which Great Britain and the United States would be wise to pay heed. Her government was singularly ineffective, the decentralization being such as to rob the central authority of all efficiency. This was bad enough. But the fatal weakness was that so common in rich, peaceloving societies. The Dutch were very wealthy. They grew to believe that they could hire others to do their fighting for them on land; and on sea, where they did their own fighting, and fought very well, they refused in time of peace to make ready a fleet so efficient as either to insure the Dutch against the peace being broken or else to give them the victory when war came.

Races Which Fall May Rise

"It is therefore easy to see why Holland lost when she did her position among the powers, but it is far more difficult to see why at the same time there should have come at least a partial loss in the world of art and letters. Some spark of divine fire burned out of the national soul. But in Holland as in Rome, it was not death but transformation which came. Both teach us that races which fall may rise again.

"In the world of antiquity each great empire rose when its predecessor had already crumbled. The great expansion of England had occurred on the contrary during the centuries that have seen mighty military nations rise and flourish on the continent of Europe. The empire of Britain is vaster in space, in population, in wealth, in wide variety of possession, in a history of multiplied and manifold achievements than even the glorious empire of Rome. Rome fell by attacks from without, only because the life within her own borders had grown incurable. What is true of your country, my hearers, is true of my own. While we should be vigilant against foes without, yet we need never really fear them so long as we safeguard ourselves against the enemies within our own households; and these enemies are our passions and our follies. We and you need ever to keep in mind that qualities indispensable to a great democracy, and second only to a high and stern sense of duty, are self-knowledge and self-mastery. You, my hosts, and I may not agree in all our views. Some of you think me a very radical democrat—as for the matter of fact, I am; and my theory of imperialism would probably suit the anti-imperialist as little as it would suit a certain type of forcible-feeble imperialist. But there are points upon which we must all agree if we think soundly

Form of Government Only a Tool

"The precise form of government, democratic or otherwise, is the instrument, the tool, with which we work. It is important to have a good tool. But, if it is the best possible, it is only a tool. No instrument can take the place of the guiding intelligence that wields it. A very bad tool will ruin the work of the very best craftsman but a good tool in bad hands is no better. In the last analysis the all important factor in national greatness is national character.

"There are questions we are ever tempted to ask of the future. Is our time of growth drawing to an end? None can tell. The growth in luxury, in love of ease, in taste for vapid and frivolous excitement, is both evident and unhealthy. The most ominous sign is the diminution in the birth rate, in the rate of natural increase, now to a larger and lesser degree shared by most of the civilized nations of central and western Europe, of America and Australia; a diminution so great that if it continues for the next century all the more highly civilized peoples will be stationary or else will have begun to go backward.

"There is much to give us concern for the future. But there is much also which should give us hope. No man is apt to be more mistaken than the prophet of evil. The fears of the followers of Malthus, the prophecies of Carlyle 70 years ago, have proved groundless. I believe with all my heart that a great future remains to us, but whether it does or does not, our duty is not altered. We belong to peoples that have not yielded to the craven fear of being great. In past ages the old nations have grown old and weakened, but so have the nations whose only though was to avoid all danger, all effort, who would risk nothing, and who therefore gained nothing. The torch has been handed on from nation to nation, from civilization to civilization throughout all record of time. It dropped from the hands of the coward and the sluggard, of the man wrapped in luxury or love of ease, whose soul was eaten away with self-indulgence. It has been kept alight only by those who were mighty of heart and running of hand."

MEN AND WOMEN

It is worthy of note that the late Prof. Goldwin Smith's death should so shortly follow that of King Edward, who was a former pupil of his. Here is his description of the then young prince as related to an interviewer: "A little class was formed for this scion of royalty. I used to examine him after the lecture and I have no doubt that I bored him to extinction. But he never let me see that he was bored. From this I gathered that he would successfully discharge the most arduous duties of royalty. He would never lose his self command or, like one of his predecessors, knight a town clerk in mistake for the lord mayor."

"Wales, Missus."

"Queen Mary has loved little children ever since she was one herself," said Mrs. Kendal, the well known actress, in opening a maternity hospital at Leeds, and after mentioning that her majesty, as Princess of Wales, has for years been president of the Children's Happy Evenings association of London, she told an interesting story. While the princess was among the poor children of Lambeth she said, one of the youngsters persisted in replying to her observations with "No, Missus," or "Yes, Missus." This led her to enquire "Now, my little girl, do you know who I am?" For some time the child hesitated and then blurted out "Wales, Missus." Mrs. Kendal presented to the institution framed pictures of the Queen Mother and Queen Mary.

Prince Edward's Humor

Prince Edward, heir apparent to the British throne, has a sense of humor, says M.A.P. On one occasion he was talking to his tutor about what to buy his parents for Easter gifts. The tutor suggested that books would be a very appropriate present, but Prince Edward shook his head. "No," he said, "I don't think I'll give them books. Last year I bought them some chocolate Easter eggs. They didn't eat them, but gave them back to me. I think I'll give them chocolate Easter eggs again this year." Another amusing story is told of his royal highness' first visit to a battleship. He was much interested at what he saw and continually asked questions of his guide. At last they came to a closed door. "What's in there?" asked the royal visitor. "Oh, that's where we keep the powder," was the reply. "Do you have to take powders too?" asked the little prince sympathetically, with unpleasant memories of a recent indisposition.

King Theodore

The presence of so many rulers at King Edward's funeral prompts the question as to whether any foreign king has ever been interred in London says the London Chronicle. St. Anne's, Soho, contains the dust of one who was known in his day as King of Corsica. A bold adventurer of the name of Newhoff, he was invited by the Corsican insurgents to become their monarch and was duly crowned King Theodore. However, an empty exchequer compelled him to go abroad to seek supplies and in London his majesty was imprisoned for debt. Liberated at last his friendless and penniless condition excited the compassion of a Soho tailor who befriended the unlucky monarch, took him into his house and there he died on Dec. 1, 1756.

"G.B.S." as an Italian Scholar

In spite of Mr. George Bernard Shaw's apology to the universe for living in it, he possesses a wonderful knack of adapting himself to circumstances, says M.A.P. This fact was aptly illustrated a year or two ago at Milan, where Mr. Shaw found himself with a party of English folks. They were dining at a railway restaurant and the waiter knew no language but his own. When the moment came to pay and rush for the train, no one was able to make him understand that what was wanted was not one bill but 24. Here Mr. Shaw's friends insisted that he must know Italian, and to act as interpreter he racked his brains for chips from Dante, but in vain. All of a sudden a line from the opera "The Huguenots" flashed to his brain—"Ognuno per se; per tutti il ciel" (Every man for himself; Heaven for us all.) Mr. Shaw proclaimed it with triumphant success. "The army of waiters," relates the dramatist, "were doubled up with laughter; my friends applauded wildly, and my fame as an Italian scholar has been on the increase ever since"

OTTAWA, June 15—Little credence is placed here on the report from Edmonton, that Hon. Frank Oliver is to resign as minister of the interior in order to become a member of the railway commission. It is regarded as unlikely that he would be going to the Yukon in the interests of the interior department if he intended resigning.

NORWICH, Ont., June 15—The authorities are investigating the death of Mrs. Riddell of Norwich who was found dead in her home about a week ago. When Dr. Riddell returned home in the evening he found her dead on the dining room floor. A bruise on the forehead gave rise to suspicion that she had met with foul play and there was also some talk of poisoning having been the cause of death.

OTTAWA, June 15—A few days ago a deputation visited Ottawa representing fishing companies on Lake Winnipeg, to ask that the prohibition of summer fishing on the lake, recommended by the commission should not be enforced. While no official decision was given to the deputation, it is understood that they were advised that as the commission had not yet completed its work the department will take the matter under consideration. Meanwhile the prohibition of fishing in lake Winnipeg in summer remains.

MONTREAL, June 15—It was announced at the headquarters of the Canadian Pacific railway today that the system of numbering the vice-presidents of the road has been abandoned and henceforth they would rank as vice-presidents in charge of specified duties. David McNicoll is vice-president and director, William Whyte is vice-president in charge of western lines, I. G. Ogden, vice president in charge of finances and accounting and G. M. Bosworth, vice-president in charge of traffic and all eastern steamship lines.

OTTAWA, June 15—Construction on the National Transcontinental railway has made good progress in the past year, according to the figures of the annual report for the fiscal year ending March 31. The mileage of track totals 789 miles and of sidings 166 miles. A total of 365 miles is graded. The expenditure is $71,137,993 of which $53,850,000 was spent in grading $7,501,000 in rails, $8,237,938 in engineering expenses. On the Winnipeg workshops the outlay has been $485,000.

(Special to The Daily News.)

ROSSLAND, June 15—Last evening at the Baptist church an informal reception was tendered by members of the congregation and friends to the Rev. John Hawkins who has taken temporary charge of the church in place of the Rev. D. M. Thompson. The latter resigned a few weeks ago to take up work in the lake district and his headquarters will be at East Robson. Addresses of welcome were given by the Rev. W. P. Being of the Methodist church, Ensign Lambe of the Salvation army, the ex-pastor, and the Rev. J. A. Dow, Presbyterian. An anthem and a trio were rendered and a reply to the addresses made by the new pastor. Refreshments were handed round and an enjoyable evening spent by a large gathering.

ZAM-BUK SAVED THIS BABY

Mrs. M. Barrett, 600 Stevens St., Montreal, says:

"A horrid rash came out all over my baby's face and spread until it had totally covered his scalp. It was irritating and painful, and caused the little one hours of suffering. We tried soaps and powders and salves, but he got no better. He refused his food, got quite thin and worn, and was reduced to a very serious condition. I was advised to try Zam-Buk, and did so. It was wonderful how it seemed to cool and ease the child's burning, painful skin. Zam-Buk from the very commencement seemed to go right to the spot, and the pimples and sores and the irritation grew less and less. Within a few weeks my baby's skin was healed completely. He has now not a trace of rash, or eruption, or eczema, or burning sore. Not only so, but cured of the tormenting skin trouble, he has improved in general health."

* Zam-Buk is sold at all stores and medicine vendors, 50c. a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 3 boxes for $1.25. A certain cure for all skin diseases, cuts, burns, etc., and for piles.

PHYSICAL TRAINING IN THE SCHOOLS.

The provincial government, it is understood, has decided to accept the terms of the Strathcona fund under which a certain sum of money is given to any province establishing physical training as a part of the regular course in its public schools, accompanied by the formation of military drill and the formation of cadet corps.

Of the desirability of physical training there can be no doubt. Military drill has its opponents, but viewed only as a means of education it has proved its value. It improves the carriage and bearing of boys and girls and trains individuals in the habit of concerted action. The discipline also is beneficial. Where it has been introduced it has won favor for these reasons from those who would be otherwise opposed to it. It is interesting to find that the improvement in erectness and freedom of bearing which results is said to be particularly noticeable in rural schools.

But of course there is a further object and this is emphasized by the formation of cadet corps. A state whose men have been trained so that if necessary they can render effective service in the defense of their liberties and of their nation is in a better condition than one whose male population is not in a similar position. In Switzerland, a peaceful republic where the people govern directly by means of the initiative and the referendum, all male citizens are required to take part in military training. Military drill in the schools is not only good as a part of physical training; it also renders it possible to impart a much higher degree of efficiency during the brief annual training in which young men take part for two or three years.

What is proposed here is no experiment. The maritime provinces have adopted the plan for some time, and for a still longer period military drill has been given in the cities of Ontario and Manitoba.

GENERAL BOTHA'S POLICY.

General Botha's manifesto sustains the reputation he has gained since the war for broad-minded statesmanship. Unable to form a coalition government, he is resolved that his administration shall not be regarded as representing the old racial programme of the various Boer parties. He declares for a party confined to no race, and representing no one race more than another.

His programme is in accord with the view thus set forth. In advocating a vigorous immigration policy and an efficient system of education, he is speaking on behalf of two things which are very much in the interest of South Africa but which have hitherto appeared in the platform of the progressive rather than of the Boer parties. With a good system of popular education and an inflow of immigration, the population of South Africa will become English speaking in no distant future.

Speaking English and reading English, of much the same popular religion as that which is general in other English speaking countries, the Boers may be expected to become fused together with their neighbors into one British nationality more rapidly than would be the case were they divided by religion and language as French and English have been in Canada. After all Dutch and English are of much the same original racial stock, and a racial union presents fewer difficulties there than have been experienced in most countries.

THE ALBERTA INSURGENTS.

The Alberta insurgents took high ground. They were Liberals and they attacked the Liberal premier and the Liberal government not for any personal or unworthy reasons but to save the province from the Waterways deal.

If as reported Premier Sifton goes on with that deal, what will the insurgent members and the insurgent press do?

If they support him in such a course they will make good all that has been said against them by the Rutherford-Cross regulars.

What was wrong in Rutherford—so wrong that they were forced as a matter of common honesty to attack the government they were elected to support—cannot be right in Arthur Sifton.

EDITORIAL NOTE.

There is food for reflection in Nelson in the following paragraph from the Spokesman Review:

> Walla Walla is not the only city in the Inland Empire that may profit from the fact that its publicity fund in 1910 is approximately $16,000 only, as against $20,000 in 1909. There is encouragement for other communities in the fact that after a start has been made and the habit of having a publicity fund created its amount can be lessened without loss.

How much does Nelson give. The population of Walla Walla, by the way is estimated to have doubled in five years.

SHACKLETON SAYS FAREWELL WORDS

Will be Back as Soon as he Can—Review of Experiences in Canada—Anecdotes

The members of the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht club entertained Sir Ernest Shackleton on the eve of his departure for England, at a banquet in their club house at Dorval and the gathering, made up largely of yachtsmen, was a great success. Sir Ernest, in a spirit of happy reciprocity took his part in the entertainment and the assembly enjoyed a speech from him which was marked by his irresistible humor and by characteristic modesty, when he referred to his own exploits, for he preferred to reflect honor upon his comrades in their dash for the south pole rather than dwelt upon the part he had himself played in the successful and world famed expedition.

"We each felt a desire to express to Sir Ernest Shackleton the admiration that we have for the spirit that he has exemplified," said Commodore R. C. Smith, in proposing the toast of the guest of the evening. "Sir Ernest represents that characteristic which above all other things, has made the empire great—that intrepid, persevering and dogged determination, undaunted by difficulty, and going forward in all parts of the world—I say that is the characteristic which has carried the commerce of our empire and which has established the government of our empire in all parts of the inhabited globe.

"We have all followed Sir Ernest Shackleton's career. It has been one of great distinction and honor. He has reflected honor upon our nation and upon our flag, and tonight we desire by this informal gathering to express to him something of our sense of appreciation and admiration for the great work he has accomplished."

The toast was received with great enthusiasm, the cheering being renewed when Sir Ernest Shackleton stood up to respond. Mr. Smith had told a story of a banquet once given to Mr. Joseph Chamberlain. The company was having a very good time, and the chairman turned to the guest and said: "Mr. Chamberlain, shall I let the enjoyment go on—or shall I call on you at once?"

"Your chairman," said Sir Ernest, who addressed the assembly as "brother sailors," "has made a political allusion and one, shall I say to our own party? This has brought to mind another party which was not long ago brought into some relation with polar exploration. An explorer went to Mr. Lloyd-George and asked him for financial aid for his expedition.

"'I know I am chancellor of the exchequer,' replied Mr. Lloyd-George, 'but I cannot help you. Why don't you go to the stock exchange and ask them for money?'

"'We have already been there,' said the explorer, 'and they will give us only £50.'

"'Is that all?' asked Mr. Lloyd-George.

"'No, it isn't all,' answered the explorer. 'Just wait a minute while I tell you all. They said that if I would take you along with me they would give the expedition £20,000 and £50,000 if I would leave you down there.'

"I would like Mr. Lloyd-George to hear you," remarked Sir Ernest, commenting on the applause and laughter which greeted his story.

Interviewed by himself

Sir Ernest went on to say that this was his last public appearance for at least three months in Canada. He would like to thank them all on that wet and stormy night—at any rate it was wet outside—for their presence that evening. He felt he would like to tell them something about his expedition, and perhaps he would do so before he sat down. First of all, however, he would like to say that he had had a very enjoyable time in Canada. Before he came he had been told of the enthusiasm of Canadians, and he found it to prevail everywhere throughout the country. He had also to thank the Canadian press for their invariable courtesy towards him, and for the accuracy with which they had reported his lectures. There was only one exception in regard to accuracy.

"In one of the cities out west,' he said, 'a reporter came to me and said: 'I am not the regular reporter, but I have got to interview you and I don't know how to do it. I suppose it was pretty cold down there where you went' he added in an undecided way.

"'Well,' I remarked to him, 'since you are not up to date in the matter of interviewing, I will just tell you what questions to ask me and then you can put down the replies. Your first question should be, what do you think of the Cook-Peary controversy?'

"'All right,' he said, 'what do you think of the Peary-Cook controversy?'

"I replied that I would not tell him anything about it. Then we began to talk of literature.

"'Ah,' he said, 'I am right at home here.' And we went on talking about the poets. He said Byron was his favorite poet (although he looked a quiet, harmless sort of an individual) and that he liked Tennyson. But he did not seem to know Browning. He said he had only heard of the 'browning ol' pastry.'

"'I can say then,' the reporter remarked, 'that you admire Byron, Tennyson, Browning and Keatings?'

"'Keatings?' I said. 'Keatings isn't poetry. Keatings is a flea powder.'

"That was the only occasion upon which I did not meet intelligence in the Canadian reporter."

Sir Ernest also told of his experience in one place where he had to go to his lecture in a funeral coach, because that was the only conveyance in the town.

Referring to the work of exploration, Sir Ernest told of the fact that George III had offered a prize of £5000 to the first British explorer who should reach 89 degrees N. This reward had not yet been claimed, though he considered Capt. Bartlett might have claimed it had he been allowed by Commander Peary to accompany him to the north pole.

Comparing the south with the north, the speaker thought that if there was anything interesting in these regions the north had it; for it was certain that nothing could be more dreary and dismal on the face of the globe than was to be experienced in the Antarctic regions. There was no sign of life whatever, neither animal or vegetable, and he was ready to advertise the small lots which he had on his hands down there and he would guarantee that there would be no Lloyd-George's there.

Disclaims the Credit

In accepting the honors conferred on him, in relation to his expedition he said that he desired to stand only as the representative of those who had reached the point farthest south. The credit was not his alone. He felt that whatever success had been achieved was due to the loyalty and co-operation of the men who were with him, who were of all ranks, one being an able seaman and another a young baronet. While they were together they had become comrades indeed and it had been agreed since the expedition was over that they should meet together once a year. One such reunion had taken place, and he was glad to say that each and every one of these men was doing good work in different parts of the world.

"This will be my last speech in Canada for some time," concluded Sir Ernest, "and when I leave here tonight I want you to remember that it was my comrades who helped to make the expedition successful. In honoring me you are honoring them. When I return to meet them I will tell them of the farewell I received in Montreal which has been just as sincere and just as enthusiastic as at every other place I have visited in the Dominion, which country, it seems to me, is even more British than my own."

On resuming his seat Sir Ernest said that he would be glad to reply to any questions which the company might be pleased to put to him.

Mr. S. A. Finley remarked that what they most wanted to know was when Sir Ernest would return to Canada.

"Just as soon as I am allowed," replied Sir Ernest amid applause.

PURIFIED HIS BLOOD

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Healed Mr. Wilson's Sores

When the sewers of the body—bowels, kidneys and skin ducts—get clogged up, the blood quickly becomes impure and frequently sores break out over the body. The way to heal them, as Mr. Richard Wilson, who lives near London, Ont., found, is to purify the blood. He writes:

"For some time I had been in a low, depressed condition. My appetite left me and I soon began to suffer from indigestion. Quite a number of small sores and blotches formed all over my skin. I tried medicine for the blood and used many kinds of ointments, but without satisfactory results. What was wanted was a thorough cleansing of the blood, and I looked about in vain for some medicine that would accomplish this.

At last Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were brought to my notice, and they are one of the most wonderful medicines I have ever known. My blood was purified in a very short time, sores healed up, my indigestion vanished. They always have a place in my home and are looked upon as the family remedy."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cleanse the system thoroughly. Sold by all dealers at 25c a box. 6

Delay Is Dangerous

There is nothing in which delay is so dangerous as in eye trouble. Glasses which are not fitted right will cause strain and a tendency to produce double sight.

A word about the spectacle frames—The bridge or nose piece should fit so well that wobbling would be impossible and should bear equally at all points. The right way is just as easy as the wrong. I fit the frames as well as the lenses, so do not delay as it is dangerous.

BRITISH COLUMBIA VENDETTA RECALLED BY FINDING PISTOL

A Kamloops dispatch says: A gruesome relic was picked up on the open range at Usher lake this week by a man in the employ of J. R. Mitchell. It was one of the pistols which fired a bullet into Government Agent Asher, who was murdered by the notorious McLean band of outlaws some 36 years ago.

The weapon was an old pattern six-shooter with four of the chambers still loaded and two discharged. The old-fashioned percussion caps were intact on the four loaded barrels and even on one of the discharged ones. Even after resting for over a quarter of a century on the open ground without even the protection of a straggling sage brush the brass mountings and deadly steel barrels and chambers are well preserved and the wood work of the handle, although still intact, is badly weather worn.

Even if the weapon had not been found on the scene of the battle between the dauntless officer of the law and the bloodthirsty gang of outlaws the initials of one of the four who suffered on the gallows at New Westminster for the murder in which the ancient pistol played so sinister a part, deeply engraved in the brass mountings of the butt, would have sufficed to identify the ownership of the weapon.

Although Vancouver was still a forest as yet undisturbed by the roar of the iron horse, there are many of its citizens who still remember the circumstances leading up to and surrounding the murder. It was a case of blood for blood, with an innocent man, fearless in the discharge of his duties, as one of the victims, Donald McLean, an old Hudson Bay factor, who had retired and settled down for the remainder of his days on the Bonaparte. When word came of the Chilcoten outrages in 1864 the old man, aroused by the prospect of Indian slaughter, headed a posse to take part in the punishment of the tribe responsible for the massacre of the Waddington party, left his retreat, and with his followers joined another party under the leadership of Judge Cox.

McLean was notoriously rough with the Indians and was moreover a man of absolute fearlessness who pooh-poohed any idea of danger. While scouting one day he declared that no Indian could harm him. He fell dead, shot by one of the very men whose fear of him he had boasted would keep him safe. The sons of the old man, when a little older and after they had brooded for some time over the death of their father, commenced a vendetta which they declared would never cease until at least a hundred Indians had been sent to the happy hunting ground as a sacrifice to their father's memory. After several outrages against Indians in the upper country the government placed a price on the heads of the McLeans and a companion who was supposed to be implicated with them.

The then outlaws took to the hills about Kamloops and for a long time evaded arrest. When the local government agent had been cruelly shot during a parley the pursuit became too hot and they were finally brought to bay, tried and convicted. Three of them were hanged at New Westminster, the younger, a lad of 16, was reprieved on account of his youth.

TO UNITE TRINITY AND WYCLIFFE

Negotiations on Foot Looking to Single Anglican College for Ontario.

It is asserted in Toronto that the often-discussed question of the amalgamation of Wycliff college and Trinity University, the two Anglican divinity schools situated in Toronto, will again be brought prominently forward for consideration by the clergy and laity of the Church of England in Canada. The subject, it is said, may indeed be raised at the meeting of the synod of the diocese of Toronto, which is soon to be held. While it is difficult to obtain any precise information upon the subject, it is authoritatively stated that definite proposals for the union of the two colleges have been made, but that no conclusion has been reached. Representatives of the two colleges have met together and have discussed the terms of the proposed amalgamation, but no committees have been appointed to formally carry on the negotiations. The authorities of Trinity university are prepared to endorse the proposition heartily.

Many prominent laymen are of the opinion that the existence of two theological colleges is unnecessary, and creates a rivalry which is undesirable. One churchman, whose name is not disclosed, is said to have promised that, in the event of an amalgamation taking place, he will contribute $250,000 to the maintenance of the new institution. This gentleman would not seek to impose any theological conditions in making this gift. All he would ask would be that one building and one staff of professors should do the work now being carried on by the two colleges.

In regard to the offer of the layman in question, Provost T. C. S. Macklem, of Trinity university; Principal O'Meara and Dr. N. W. Hoyles, president of the corporation of Wycliffe college, all declined to make any statement. Dr. Hoyles and Principal O'Meara would say nothing respecting the proposed amalgamation. "A proposal for the union of the two colleges has been made," said Provost Macklem, "and it would be heartily endorsed by Trinity university. There have been some informal meetings, although they could hardly be called meetings of regularly appointed committees."

Trinity college was founded by Bishop Strachan when King's college, now University college, became a non-denominational institution. Wycliffe college was established first as the Protestant Episcopal Divinity school in 1877, and it was incorporated in 1879, with the late Dr. Sheraton as its principal. Wycliffe college was the school of the Church of England, and it was founded because it was declared that ritualistic tendencies were becoming evident in the church in Canada.

CADET CORPS FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Provincial Government Accepts Terms of Strathcona's Fund for Physical Training.

Word comes from Victoria that the government of British Columbia has signified its acceptance of the conditions attached to provincial participation in the advantages of the Strathcona Trust, and Mr. W. P. Argue, M. A., of Vancouver, Dr. E. B. Paul of Victoria and Inspector David Wilson of the department of education have been named to form a committee to act with the militia department authorities in consideration of the various details of applying the trust plan in British Columbia.

The action taken is largely on the strength of favorable reports by Dr. Mackay of the education department of Nova Scotia as to the results observed by that province, in addition to which New Brunswick and Ontario have also "come in" under the trust provisions, while Prince Edward Island is preparing so to do, and Quebec has sent delegates to Ottawa to discuss the trust plan with the militia authorities preliminarily.

The Strathcona donation amounts to $10,000 and is invested by the finance department of Canada at a special rate of 4 per cent. making the amount earned annually for utilization approximately $12,000, divisible by the number of sharing schools. It is thus roughly estimated that between $300 and $400 will come to British Columbia yearly, in addition to which the department of militia supplies instructors and inspectors free of charge and pays bonuses to male teachers according to the work performed by them in the promotion of physical training. In the cadet corps, which are likely to be largely recruited from the public schools under the Strathcona plan, the department also provides such arms and equipment as are requisite.

Lord Strathcona's object in the formation of the trust is officially stated to have been two-fold—the improvement of the physical and intellectual capabilities of the children while at school, by means of a proper system of physical training calculated to improve the physical development, and at the same time to inculcate habits of orderliness, alertness and prompt obedience; and the fostering of a spirit of patriotism in the boys, leading them to realize that the first duty of a free citizen is to be prepared to defend his country, to which all boys should, as far as possible, be given opportunity of acquiring while at school a fair acquaintance with military drill and rifle shooting. The conditions attached to participation in the trust benefits by any province are:

(a) Physical training to form an integral part of the curriculum in every educational establishment at which a teacher holding a certificate other than that of the lowest grade is employed.

(b) A certificate of ability to instruct in physical training to form part of every teacher's certificate other than those of the lowest grade granted by the province.

(c) The education department to undertake to encourage the formation of cadet corps, including the practice of rifle shooting under suitable conditions, by the older boys in all educational establishments under its control.

(d) The system of physical training to be adopted to be that in force in the elementary public schools in Great Britain with such modifications therein as the local conditions of any province may show to be necessary.

(e) The education department to undertake to require, within a specified period, all teachers who are already in possession of its certificates, other than those of the lowest grade, to qualify themselves to instruct in physical training (subject to the exemption of such teachers as are physically unable to qualify, or are nearly at the end of their terms of service) so that in every school there shall be at least one teacher capable of imparting the necessary instruction.

COUNT ZEPPELIN IS IN AN AWKWARD PLACE

War Department Says Airship is Fizzle —Factions Are Fighting Bitterly Over Its Adoption

A Berlin News letter says: Count Zeppelin is the center of one of the bitterest controversies that Germany has ever known. It rages between one group that considers him a national hero and another which looks upon him as a profound failure.

The last smash of a Zeppelin airship, April 25, brought the conflict to a head. Until then the differences of opinion had been more or less academic. Average citizens had always followed the kaiser's lead in regarding the count as the "greatest man of the century." Most military men have from the first believed him a mere visionary.

The April disaster was seized on by the anti-Zeppelinites as a favorable opportunity for convincing the kaiser and people alike that the Zeppelin type of airship is a complete fizzle. They felt little doubt that they would succeed, but they reckoned without the count. Being a fighter he hit back hard and quickly. He publicly accused the military officers in command of the ship at the time of the accident of having wrecked the craft by gross negligence. If his orders had been carried out, he says, there would have been no trouble. In private he hints that the ship was deliberately demolished in the hope of ruining him.

Kaiser Due to Interfere

The general sentiment is that the matter cannot be permitted to rest where it is. Count Zeppelin and the war department must not be allowed to sling mud at one another forever. The kaiser must take a hand in the situation. It is his business to decide once and for all time, whether the Zeppelin airship is the success the country has believed it to be or a total failure. There can be no question that most Germans think the military authorities have been persecuting the count. They opposed him strongly from the first, resolutely refusing to accept his airship as a thing of any value for their purposes.

Added to this, disaster seems to dog the old aeronaut's footsteps. Time after time his ships broke down. It was not until he had lost his entire fortune that his first even moderately successful ship was built on borrowed money. Even after he had made trips of hundreds of miles the military authorities continued to oppose the army's adoption of his vessels.

As a matter of fact the war department has set its heart upon the Parseval and Gross types of air craft.

The Zeppelin is what is known as the rigid type. That is to say, the long cigar shaped balloon is tightly encased in a rigid aluminum frame of great weight. The Gross is semi-rigid. It has an aluminum frame, but only a light one, and there is not the same degree of stiffness as in the Zeppelin. The Paseval is non-rigid. It has no frame at all. The car is simply suspended below the balloon and upon the car is mounted a motor.

Appealed to Wilhelm

When Count Zeppelin found that he had no hope of recognition from the war department, his friends appealed to the kaiser on his behalf. They told Wilhelm that the military authorities were prejudiced in favor of Majors Parseval and Gross and against Zeppelin because the two majors were on the active army list while the count was a back number.

The kaiser traveled to Friedrichshaven for a look at the Zeppelin airship and was astonished. The ship sailed and manoeuvred above him with ease. His enthusiasm was unbounded. He proclaimed the count the "greatest man of the century" forthwith and pronounced the rigid craft the superior of any other class.

The war department was embarrassed, but sided its time. It thinks his majesty will have to eat his words now. After the last smash, it is asserted, he cannot help seeing the folly of his attitude. The officials consider the case against the count complete.

Zeppelin Ships Expensive

It is true that the Zeppelinites must answer some awkward questions. Each time the Zeppelin airship is filled it costs $2500. The ship cannot be taken to pieces and carried from place to place by train. It cannot ascend or even be filled in bad weather. It costs $250,000 to build.

The Parseval and Gross types can be taken apart, packed in cases and transported easily. They cost only $75,000 each. Owing to their portability they are not necessarily tied to any one spot by bad weather. They are small targets for hostile guns. In speed and dirigibility they equal the Zeppelin.

Nevertheless the German people continue to regard Count Zeppelin as a national hero and they are likely to continue doing so for a long time to come.

Eight More Bodies Recovered from the Ruins of Montreal Herald Building —Inquest Opens

MONTREAL, June 15—Eight bodies were recovered from the ruins of the Herald building today, making the total number of bodies recovered 15. These have been identified with the exception of two, both girls. The latest revised list of the missing makes the number still to be found 14 and brings the death list up to 32.

Inquest Opens

The inquest opened this morning but adjourned until Friday, after hearing the evidence of Mr. Archibald, the architect who executed the plans for the building of the collapsed water tank. His evidence was of a technical nature and advanced no theory as to the collapse of the water tank.

LOSES VALUABLE TEAM OF HORSES

Team and Wagon Swept Away While Fording Elk River—Teamster Saves Life.

(Special to The Daily News.)

NEW MICHEL, June 15—Ernest Lapsley, a rancher and trapper from the upper Elk river country lost a valuable team of horses and a new wagon on Friday last while attempting to ford the Elk about 40 miles above here. One of the horses fell while in the middle of the stream, pulling the other down with him. Unable to gain the ford, they floated down stream, Lapsley, wagon and team. Mr. Lapsley endeavored to cut the harness and partially succeeded when he struck a log jam which had formed in the river. Here the swift current sucked the team and wagon under the logs, drowning both horses. Lapsley saved his own life by jumping onto the logs and thus gaining the shore.

DECISIVE HOUR FOR MISSIONS HAS NOW ARRIVED

EDINBURGH, June 15—The delegates to the world missionary conference which organized yesterday got down to the real work of the meeting today. The session opened with much enthusiasm. The reports of missionary work among non-Christian people everywhere were presented. A feature of the day was the presentation of the report of the commission on "Carrying the gospel to all the non-Christian world." A warning to the Christian churches of the world that a decisive hour for the missions had come, was given in this report.

International Committee

The commission says that opportunities which have been neglected in the past are the reproach of the church. The church in Christian lands, says the report needs energising that it may carry on the work. The commission urged that an international committee be formed and that a great movement to carry Christianity into every region with increased force, be undertaken.

INDIAN WEIGHED 500 POUNDS

The biggest Indian in British Columbia has just been laid to rest in the native cemetery of the Cowichan tribe with all honors due to the great man among his own people. "Doctor Tom" was the departed brave—hereditary medicine man of the Cowichans, who in addition to being reputedly a maker of mighty medicine, weighed in life but 18 pounds under a quarter of a ton. Over 500 Indians were present at the funeral and nine stalwart braves were required to act as bearers of the pall.

One of the biggest potlaches held on Vancouver island in many years is now in progress at Cowichan. The widow of former Chief Bayne of the Quamichan tribe and three male members of the tribe are giving the entertainment, which is attended by nearly 500 from various island tribes, with visitors from the state of Washington. The potlach is in memory of Chief Bayne and will continue for several days more. It has now been in progress for almost a week and has been marked by Indian dances and other festivities which are to be abandoned for the future.

STRIKE SURPRISES YONKERS.

YONKERS, N. Y. June 15—This city awoke today to find itself tight in the grip of a trolley strike affecting, it is said, practically the entire system of the Yonkers Railway company numbering about 225 men. The stopping of the cars took the city completely by surprise, for at midnight there had been no intimation of trouble. Four hours later not a wheel was turning on any line in the city and thousands of people found themselves without means of conveyance.

SEARCHING FOR CHARLTON.

GENEVA, Switzerland, June 15—The police are keeping a sharp lookout for Porter Charlton, husband of the woman who was murdered and her body thrown into Lake Como, Italy. They believe he is hiding in Switzerland. It has been reported to the police that Charlton was seen at Lucerne last Sunday.

NELSON NEWS OF THE DAY

(Additional local news notes on page 8.)

Mrs. I. C. Schermerhorn will receive tomorrow afternoon.

Born, at Slocan, on June 10, to the wife of Henry W. Bathurst, a daughter.

Death, at Slocan, on Tuesday, June 14, Sophia Healy, the wife of Henry W. Bathurst.

The next run of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers will take place tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

The regular monthly meeting of the school board will be held next Monday evening.

"The canvass for the funds for the Dominion Day celebration is getting along well," said W. Gosnell of the finance committee, whose work is approaching completion. The next general meeting of the committees will take place next Monday night at 8 o'clock, at the board of trade rooms.

The regular meeting of the Sons of England will be held tonight at 8 o'clock. All members will kindly accept this notice.

The funeral of the late J. C. Hargreaves will take place this afternoon at 3 o'clock, from his late residence, corner of Josephine and Lallmer streets.

An interesting discussion is expected at the regular Socialist meeting at Miners' Union hall tomorrow evening, when a speaker from Great Britain will give an address on the subject, "World-Wide Socialism." No admission is charged, and everybody is welcome.

No further advices respecting the Nelson sitting of the university commission have been received either by W. F. Teetzel, government agent, or E. N. Beeston, secretary of the board of trade. It is assumed, however, that, as the commissioners are due to arrive in the city tonight, and to leave tomorrow night, the sitting will probably be held tomorrow morning, at the courthouse.

In the police court on Tuesday, E. H. Herbert of Fruitvale was sent up for two months, for disorderly conduct. He informed the magistrate he was from the United States. His arrest followed warnings covering a couple of days. It now transpires that Herbert is a rancher of Fruitvale, and that far from being a vagrant, he had a considerable sum to his credit at his hotel here, and also at the bank. In the police court yesterday, Frank Aiken was fined $10 and costs for incommoding peaceable passengers.

COMMUNICATIONS

MR. ORMSBY RETURNS TO THE ATTACK.

To the Editor of The Daily News:

Sir,—I have just received a marked copy of your issue of June 2nd, containing Mr. Waring Giles' reply to my letter regarding his evidence given before the royal commission.

I did not propose to carry this thing any further, but it seems to me only fair that as I opened, I should have the right to close. Furthermore, since writing you I have received a copy of Mr. Giles' evidence in full and some of the statements he made are such that I cannot allow them to go uncontradicted. In Mr. Giles' letter in yours of June 2nd he draws attention to the fact that my firm received 40 per cent of the Ottawa's premiums for managing the company. This is absolutely true; we have never denied it and we certainly do not propose to. We own the company, practically every dollar that goes into it is ours, subject to payment of losses, and if we see fit to spend 40 per cent of our income in giving our clients inspections and looking carefully after their business, I do not see why Mr. Giles should criticise us for doing so. This, I think, your readers will admit, is a very different thing from simply paying commissions to agents, and I am quite content to leave it to our clients as to whether the money is well spent or not. The fact remains that we are giving our clients their insurance at a lower rate than the companies Mr. Giles represents, and this being so whose business is it if we choose to pay a larger percentages of our receipts out for expenses. I do not think the man who gets his insurance at a lower rate will quarrel with us as to how we spend what he pays us.

In the evidence given before the commission, however, I find Mr. Giles stated that when we bought the Ottawa, we froze out a number of old stockholders. This statement I wish to characterize as an absolute falsehood. When we bought the Ottawa, the stock of the company was divided into 900 shares, 467 of these we bought from two gentlemen who controlled it, paying them a price that they were perfectly satisfied with, in fact we paid them more than the stock could possibly be worth to an ordinary investor. We then sent a circular letter to every one of the other shareholders offering to pay them the same price for their stock, provided they decided to dispose of it within the next 60 days, and as a result we took 433 more shares up at identically the same price as we had already paid for the 467, thus giving us 900 shares out of the 900. Since then it is quite true that we bought 30 shares at a very much lower price. The gentleman who owned these shares had the same option of selling to us as every one else had at the time we bought control. In fact he was written to more than once on the matter, but did not take the trouble to attend to it. Later on he asked us to make him an offer for his stock, which we did, and he chose to accept our offer.

This, I think you will admit, was a perfectly fair proposition. We gave everyone a chance to take the same price all round and later on we were not anxious to buy any more and were perfectly at liberty to offer any price we chose for the balance.

Yours faithfully,
JNO. Y. ORMSBY.

Toronto, June 10, 1908.

VIGOROUS AT 84

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey keeps Mr. James L. Collier strong and healthy, though he is 84 years old. He enjoys restful sleep and has a fine appetite. Did you ever read a more enthusiastic letter from an old gentleman?

JAMES L. COLLIER, 84 YEARS OF AGE

"I have used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for the past ten years, simply as a medicine, as my general health has been very feeble; but its beneficial effects have been such that instead of being a helpless invalid I am about all day and sleep well nights; also have a good appetite. It is the only medicine I have taken for many years past.

"My age is over 84 and I want in all truth to say that I consider your Malt Whiskey a boon to me and will be to all who give it a fair trial, particularly to those who are lacking in vitality and are aging. I most heartily recommend its use as a tonic that is not debilitating in its effects. I will be pleased to answer any parties who may write to me for corroboration to any of my statements." James L. Collier, Athens, Greene Co., N.Y.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

Many men and women who have passed the fourscore mark, tell the same story as Mr. Collier about what Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has done toward renewing their youth and keeping them vigorous, hale and hearty and in possession of all their faculties. As a leading doctor says, the secret of the whole thing is that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, if taken as prescribed, assists in driving out all disease germs, invigorates the brain, enriches the blood, quickens the circulation, brings restful sleep and prevents decay and old age.

CAUTION—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It is an absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold IN SEALED BOTTLES ONLY—never in bulk. Look for the trade-mark the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Price $1.50 a large bottle. Write Medical Department, The Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N.Y., for illustrated medical booklet and doctor's advice, both sent free.

ONTARIO'S PROVINCIAL ELECTRIC POWER PROJECT

The project by which the province of Ontario proposes to supply electric power to the municipalities is on the threshold of reality.

Power is now available at the Niagara transformer station.

The erection of the towers to carry the power transmission lines, with the exception of the specially constructed units at the crossing of the Welland canal, have been completed. Within 12 days the work will be finished from Niagara Falls to Dundas, and thence to the Humber on the east and Beeton on the north.

Six companies are at work stringing the wires, operating respectively from Niagara to Dundas, from Dundas to Niagara, from Guelph to Dundas, from Guelph to Berlin, from Dundas to Toronto and from Dundas to London.

No difficulty is anticipated by the experts in charge in having power at the big interswitching station at Dundas, and thence along the transmission lines to Berlin, Toronto and London within six or seven weeks. The special towers necessary at the entrance to Toronto at Garrison Commons may cause some delay, but the commission expects to be supplying power to Berlin, Guelph, Galt and Preston not later than August 1.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR INDIGESTION

If you have indigestion, your food ferments in the stomach and bowels. It does more: it decays, and the nutritious matter which should go to make new blood decays with it, and this leads to an impoverished condition of the blood, to nervousness, biliousness, constipation, sick headache, bad breath which disgusts your friends, and other disagreeable and unpleasant conditions.

And all this trouble is caused by the food that doesn't digest, but ferments and stimulates rots in the stomach.

And fermentation is caused by the stomach not being strong enough and energetic enough to thoroughly mix the food with the digestive juices.

MI-O-NA is responsible for tens of thousands of cures. In fact, it is such a positive cure for indigestion and all stomach troubles that it is guaranteed by the Poole Drug company to cure or money back. The price of a large box of Mi-o-na tablets is 50 cents, and they are sure to promptly relieve the worst case of indigestion or gastritis. Try them.

The water, by the water gauge at Lindsay's boathouse, last evening stood at 22 feet 10½ inches above low water mark, a decline of half an inch for the 24 hours.

At 8 o'clock in the Nelson opera house, Friday, June 21, a pleasing program, consisting of a drama, musical selections, vocal trio and solos, recitation, drills by the senior pupils, and pleasing numbers by the tots and junior children of St. Joseph's school, will, it is hoped, be presented to the usual large and appreciative audience.

The members of the Maxim Gun section, 12th regiment, R.M.R., will parade at the armory this evening at 7.45 o'clock sharp. Every member is requested to be on parade prompt at the hour named. One or two recruits are required to bring the section up to full strength. Young men over 18 years of age are eligible to join, and can be enrolled this evening.

AT THE THEATRES

The opera house was crowded to the doors last evening by a very representative audience, every one being anxious to witness Arsulita's awakening out of her 20-hour hypnotic trance. The lady had been brought up from her bed in the window of the Standard Furniture company's store just before the house opened, and as the audience filed into the opera house the subject was seen asleep on a cot on the stage. After a preliminary statement that out of regard to the people of Nelson, the Albertus-Arsulita company had agreed to make way for the National Opera company on Saturday evening as that was the only evening that company could play here, a statement that was warmly applauded, Albertus, the younger, came off the stage and from near the entrance, by suggestion, awoke Arsulita, who came back to her normal condition very naturally and easily. After the lady had rested she again appeared and was placed in a hypnotic trance and for half an hour answered questions that had been written on cards by persons in the audience. She called out the name and the question in each instance and gave an answer, occasionally adding the calling or profession of the questioner or making some comment that provoked much laughter. The youthful hypnotist then asked for a committee from the audience to fasten on a lot of handcuffs and leg irons that have been publicly exposed for some days. Upon this being done, a sheet was drawn over the demonstrator who, in full view of the audience, proceeded to release his hands and legs, accomplishing this feat in less than four minutes and emerging from under the sheet quite free, but red faced and worked up, the effort, apparently, being a great one. Then some ten persons were taken from the audience to the stage and seven of these became hypnotized and for 30 minutes kept the audience in fits of laughter by their antics, being entirely under the influence of the demonstrator.

The performance will be repeated again this evening and tomorrow night again for the last time.

Lovers of classical music will have an opportunity such as never before has been afforded here, when the National Opera company presents "The Bohemian Girl," Balfe's tuneful opera, at the opera house on Saturday evening. No opera contains so many of the good songs that mother used to sing that have lived because of their musical merit alone. The opera belongs to the age of real music—and it is a relief from the modern trend that people of cultivated taste will not fail to enjoy. Miss Hemmi, who is a truly great prima donna, is at her best in the role of Arline in "The Bohemian Girl." Her singing of "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls" has been pronounced by critics to be among the best things she does, and all testify to the purity and power of her lyric soprano voice. She is supported by a company of 35 people, worthy of note for the large and efficient chorus and for the exceptional proportion of principals. The music director of the company is a composer of note, and all the members have been chosen from companies that have completed successful winter season engagements in the great cities. Frank Preisch, the leading tenor, as well as Miss Hemmi, were with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in its famous and triumphant tour of the cities of the United States. Seasonally the production will be elaborate. The costumes are faithful to history.

"The Game" is the title of the feature subject of the program at the Gem. This subject was filmonized by the Essan company and is full of excitement, showing the stock exchange in full swing. Other subjects are, "The Mills of the Gods," "Pranks," "Electric Insoles," and "The Old Maid and the Burglar." This program will be repeated tonight.

The program shown last night at the Arcade consists of the following subjects: "The Grand Sire," a fine Pathe art film, a well known work in Canada and England as well as in France; "Curing a Jealous Husband," "A Tax on Bachelors," "Haunted by the Cops." These last three items kept the audience in one continual uproar of laughter, some extreme comical and absurd situations being introduced in each subject. The above program will be repeated at this evening's performances.

A splendid program is on at the Empire theatre this evening. The subjects are: "A Trip Through Bombay," a splendidly colored scenic picture; "The Driver's Remorse," a tale of the bottom of the sea, and "The Bareback Rider," a story of circus life.

Don't miss "Arsulita" at the opera house this evening. She's a wonder.

SIX MONTHS SENTENCE FOR STEALING PAIR OF BOOTS

(Special to The Daily News.)

CRESTON, June 15—In the police court last Tuesday afternoon Samuel Scott Oprey and Westley Hall, two lumberjacks at the Canyon City sawmill were charged with the theft of a pair of boots before Stipendiary Magistrate Johnson. In this connection a rather clever arrest was made by Provincial Constable Jensen who while at Sirdar on Tuesday morning on other business received a wire from a citizen of Creston informing him that a warrant was out for these two men and giving a short description of the men. Constable Jensen shortly after receiving the message saw two men answering the description coming along the track at Sirdar and at once accosted them. The man Westley Hall denied to Constable Jensen that he was from Canyon City and said that his name was not Hall but Jones. The other man, however, gave his proper name to the officer and admitted that they had been in Canyon City. Constable Jensen then arrested the two men and brought them to Creston where they were locked up. At the trial, which was summary before the magistrate R. Jones, the owner of the stolen boots gave evidence as well as Constable Jensen and another man named Richard Roberts. The evidence of the three witnesses was conclusive as to the guilt of the man Westley Hall and in view of the fact that this man had given his wrong name together with the fact that he was guilty of petty theft, he was sentenced to six months at hard labor in Nelson gaol. As there was no evidence against Oprey he was given his liberty.

Situated as Creston is so very close to the American boundary line unless this class of petty thieves are severely dealt with the whole district would be overrun in a short time with this undesirable class of petty criminals. It is the intention of the Creston authorities to deal severely with this class of offenders whenever they crop up.
