(Special to The Daily News.)

PHOENIX, Aug. 13—The following telegrams have passed between Ernest Miller, M.P.P, and Premier McBride:

Ernest Miller, Phoenix.

Message received. If any distress kindly wire at once and we will be glad to afford immediate relief. Convey to management of mine the great regret of myself and colleagues also to the mayor and citizens and miners my sympathy with them on the occasion of such a dire calamity.

R. McBRIDE.

Hon. Richard McBride, Vancouver:

Phoenix appreciates your message. Have been delayed in replying awaiting arrival of the Granby officials to ascertain the seriousness of loss and am happy to report no necessity for charitable relief to citizens. Granby expects to be in full operation within ten days.

Fire Disastrous

(Special to The Daily News.)

PHOENIX, Aug. 13—The town of Phoenix experienced on Friday the severest fire in its history. At 3:50 p.m. the fire started in the No. 3 oil house of the Granby Consolidated company. Instantly the alarm was given but the fire spread with terrible rapidity. It followed along the snowshed leading to the No. 3 ore bin and soon it was a mass of flames. The fire department had now the equipment in operation and all the men of the Granby and mines adjacent to the town were soon fighting the flames. First the machine shops of the company caught and soon were in ruins. The fire continued along its course until the No. 3 ore bins, the two Granby cottages, one occupied by O. B. Smith, superintendent of the mine, and the other known as the "mess" were wrapped in flames, enough time being allowed, however, to save the greater part of the property contained in the Smith house.

The workers were now fighting to keep the fire from spreading and by heroic and almost superhuman efforts saved the Ironsides hotel from destruction, though it caught fire time after time. The same statement holds good regarding the Granby office building. A fire caught under the old Wynhop-Stevens block and was quite advanced before noticed but by prompt action was extinguished.

Horses Saved

In the meantime, while one half of the fighters were working hard around the company's buildings another squad was fighting with determination the fire in the other direction. The little cabin behind the Methodist church quickly caught and soon the church itself was in the grasp of the fire, nothing being saved. The school house near by was soon a mass of ruins and the Palace livery stables, occupied by McElroy Bros. in quick order shared the same fate. Fortunately the horses were removed in safety, though many valuable rigs were destroyed, among them a hearse valued at $800.

Another Church Goes

But the end was not yet. The Presbyterian church was now in the path of the flames and quickly was reduced to ashes. A small amount of the fittings were saved. The office of the Pioneer was now in danger and no efforts of the firemen could save it. Some of the printing equipment was saved. During all this time the Miners' union hall was in extreme danger but by the excellent work of the men and the possession of a tin roof it stands today. The postoffice was also in the zone of danger and again the work of the men showed itself in saving the building.

More Fires Break Out

Fires caught in various parts of the town but by careful lookout there were promptly dispatched. The care of the department as far as centre town was concerned was directed for the most part on the block occupied by A. E. Black for therein lay the key of the situation, if the whole of the business portion of the city was to be saved and again the fight of the men was successful. The fire was allowed to spread no further but a strict watch was kept over the town.

Rapid Progress

The rapidity of the progress of the flames is largely accounted for by the fact of such a dry season placing the buildings in such a condition that they caught and burned like match wood and once the flames got a grasp it was almost impossible to extinguish them.

Fell From Roof

Fortunately, however, only one home was burned and no accidents occurred

REPAIR FLUMES AT WHITEWATER MINES

Nelson Engineer Describes Scene After Bush Fire—Work Already Busy at Mines.

R. W. Hinton of the Nelson Iron Works, has returned from a trip to Whitewater which was recently wiped out by bush fires. Mr. Hinton's trip was for the purpose of making an estimate of the damage done to the property of the Deep Mines Limited, for A. A. Richardson of Vancouver, adjuster of fire losses.

A Clean Sweep.

"It is the cleanest sweep made by a bush fire that I ever saw," said Mr. Hinton. "The scene around the Whitewater Deep mines and Deep mines is indescribably desolate. Nothing is left but gray ashes and the almost valueless wreck of the mill. Even the tree stumps, which usually remain after a bush fire, are burned to a level with the ground."

Clearing up Commences.

A gang of men are already at work under Foreman Street repairing flumes and putting water pipes in order. It is expected that new buildings will be erected shortly. The assay offices and buildings above the Whitewater Deep mine escaped the flames owing to being located in the centre of a patch of open ground.

Transportation Troubles.

The main difficulty likely to be experienced will be in getting in lumber and mining material as the railroad is out of commission for a distance of five miles from the mines, all the bridges having been eaten up by the fire.

Possible New Railroad.

There is an expectation among residents of the Slocan that the K. & S. railroad will be remodelled and changed from the present inadequate and inconvenient narrow gauge to the standard gauge. If such is the case the trouble of transferring all freight at Kaslo and also, to a large extent, that of car shortage will be obviated.

The Whitewater last year shipped between 700 and 800 cars of ore and it is thought that the railroad will consider the freight and passenger traffic in the district sufficient to justify them in adopting modern means of transportation.

BIG BUSH BLAZE THREATENS SALMO

W. F. Teetzel leaves City With Eighty Men on Special Train to Fight Flames.

A dangerous bush fire raging last night around Salmo resulted in Government Agent W. F. Teetzel and Fire Warden A. McDonald leaving on a special train at 9:45 with a force of 80 men to assist in getting the blaze under control.

Ask for 200 Men.

The first intelligence of the outbreak was received in a wire addressed to Mr. Teetzel by the Kootenay Shingle company at Salmo asking for help and saying that 200 men were required to fight the flames. Other telegrams indicated that the new government bridge over the Salmon river, built at a cost of $10,000 and the town itself were in serious danger of being wiped out.

More Reassuring.

A later telegram, however, from Fire Warden Jake Sierson and sent in answer to a message from Mr. Teetzel asking for information, indicated that the situation, though containing elements of danger, was not as serious as first thought. This telegram was as follows:

"The fire is bad. The wind now favors Salmo, but if it changes town may be in danger. Fire now extends north of Salmo. I think you had better send whatever men you can. I will stay here to report."

Special Train.

Mr. Teetzel immediately collected a force of 80 men and equipped with 60 shovels and a number of mattocks, to assist in beating out the flames, the party pulled out of the depot for the scene of the blaze.

Fire at Deer Park.

Earlier in the evening Mr. Teetzel sent 15 men to fight a bush fire at Deer Park, on the Arrow lakes, in response to a telegram from Fire Warden Lucas. This outbreak is not considered serious.

STUDY CONDITIONS AT FERNIE MINES

Expert on Explosives to Investigate Possibilities of Explosion From Dust—To Visit Bankhead

(Special to The Daily News.)

VANCOUVER, Aug. 13—Capt. Desborough, an expert on explosives from the imperial arsenal at Woolwich, and J Hudson of the dominion department of mines are in the city after having made an inspection of powder manufacturing plants at the coast. They leave tonight for Fernie where they will study conditions of the mines there with regard to the possibilities of explosions from dust, then going to Bankhead for the same purpose. As a result of the trip a report will be prepared which will probably be the basis of instituting government regulations covering the fields inspected.

GERMAN JINGOES AGAIN ON TOP

Big Navy Men Triumph Over Economy Policy

NAVAL SECRETARY WILL NOT RESIGN

Bill Providing for Expansion of Fleet Will Be Laid Before Reichstag

BERLIN, Aug. 13—An official communication states that Admiral von Tirpitz, imperial secretary of state for the navy, will not resign, but will continue to hold office for a further indefinite period. This statement has reference to reports which were current in Berlin as to this minister's imminent retirement. The announcement, which is couched in unusually emphatic terms, means not only what it says, but also that the policy of efficiency favored by Admiral von Tirpitz will triumph over the policy of economy demanded by Herr Wermuth, imperial secretary of state for the treasury; in other words, that the influence of the "big navy" party outweighs that of the "little navy" group in high quarters. Moreover, it almost certainly means that a new Navy bill providing for a further expansion of Germany's fleet will be laid before the Reichstag within a year or two.

Vossische Zeitung, in an officially-inspired article, defines candidly the line beyond which Germany will refuse to go in regard to an understanding with Great Britain concerning the limitation of naval armaments, and reveals the futility of the hopes entertained by peace enthusiasts on both sides of the North sea regarding the possibility of a friendly arrangement for the limitation of the respective shipbuilding programs. The existing German laws lay down Germany's shipbuilding program till 1917, and it is definitely declared that no modification can be introduced until that date.

Agreement Impracticable.

The Tagliche Rundschau admits that there have been sharp conflicts between Admiral von Tirpitz and Herr Wermuth regarding the scope of the naval estimates, but declares that the imperial chancellor has never contemplated the removal of Admiral von Tirpitz from office, because such a measure would be equivalent to a complete change in Germany's naval and foreign policy. Germany, declares this patriotic organ, can never accept an arrangement with England regarding a limitation of naval armaments, because any such agreement would be incompatible with her dignity and vital interests. The Deutsche Tageszeitung also denounces all attempts to bring about a naval agreement, and declares that Admiral von Tirpitz would be justified in resigning if anything of the kind were contemplated.

Simultaneously with these announcements that Germany's policy of naval expansion is to be continued the Vorwarts states that a new military bill providing for a large increase in the standing army will be presented to the Reichstag during the session which begins in November. The present standing army numbers 529,000 and some military experts demand its immediate increase to 650,000, in order that Germany's standing army may reach the same proportion to the population of the country as the French standing army holds to the population of France.

IS CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTED MURDER

Austrian Lies in Jail as Result of Shooting Affray—Strange Course of Bullet.

Held on a charge of attempted murder at Trail, Mike Barovich is awaiting trial at the fall assizes, in the provincial jail, where he was consigned by Noble Binns, J.P. At the preliminary examination it was brought out that the accused became involved in a quarrel with Eli Vladetich, on Aug. 10. The dispute ended in Barovich pulling a gun on his opponent, who received the bullet in his forehead. The prisoner made an attempt to fire the gun a second time, but the hammer snapped harmlessly and gave some bystanders an opportunity to take charge of the belligerent Austrian.

Queer Course of Bullet.

An unusual feature of the case was that the bullet, which hit Vladetich in the centre of the forehead, glanced upward and passed under the scalp, coming out at the back of the head.

This is the only case, as far, for trial at the fall assizes, to be held here in October.

Forger and Jail-breaker.

Another new resident at the provincial jail is James McKinnon, who was sentenced at Fernie by Judge Wilson to six months' imprisonment for forgery and six months for jail breaking, both terms to run concurrently. McKinnon was arrested and first confined in the Fernie city jail, but succeeded in making a getaway. After a few days of starvation in the bush he was recaptured without much difficulty.

CHILDREN'S CHORUS FOR SIR WILFRID.

The committee of entertainment in connection with the coming visit of Sir Wilfrid Laurier has decided that it is desirable to have a children's chorus for that occasion. All the public school children of Nelson who took part in the chorus "O Canada," at the public school concert, all the children of the Convent school, and all the children of the Hume school, are accordingly desired to attend at the Nelson public school building, the use of which has been granted by the trustees, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock for the first practice, entering and leaving by the Carbonate street fire escape. A number of capable persons have volunteered to assist in the training of the children. The co-operation of all parents is requested by the committee and the trustees.

STRAYING COW IS EXPENSIVE LUXURY

James Balding Must Pay $100 for Allowing Animal to Run Wild on Silica Street

James Balding was summoned yesterday morning in the city police court before Mayor Selous and fined $100 and $3.25 costs, or in default of payment sentenced to 30 days in jail for allowing a cow to run astray on Silica street on Thursday last. The defendant had been summoned on a similar charge earlier in the week but the case was dismissed with a warning on a technicality.

The city police have been instructed to take steps to prevent damage to gardens and other private property by straying animals and the city ordinance prohibiting the running loose of animals on the streets will be strictly enforced.

FINES FOLLOW TRAIL FRACAS

Sent up for Trial for Attempted Murder—Heavy Fine for Attempted Stabbing—Wild Time

(Special to The Daily News.)

TRAIL, Aug. 13—Wednesday afternoon was a wild day at the Union hotel on Victoria street in which beer glasses, chairs, a knife and a revolver played conspicuous parts and that a murder was not committed is more a matter of good luck than good marksmanship. The fracas was a culmination of a feud of several months standing and the sequel in the police court yesterday afternoon before Magistrate Binns created more than ordinary interest and as a result Mike Barovich was sent up for trial on a charge of attempted murder and Joe Idocavich, Eli Benick and Joe Brakage each contributed liberally to the city exchequer. From the evidence at the preliminary hearing it appears that Mike Barovich, an Austrian, had some previous trouble with his countrymen and on the day mentioned they met in the Union hotel. A fight started and Barovich was forcibly ejected from the house. On recovering himself he drew a revolver and fired point blank at the open door in the bar room. Eli Vladetich, an onlooker, came out to see what was the matter and Barvich took a shot at him, the bullet grazing the top of his head and making a wound several inches long and about a quarter of an inch deep. He pulled the trigger again but the cartridge failed to go off. At this juncture C.P.R. Constable R. H. Devitt happened along and attracted by the shooting arrested Barovich before he had time to do further damage. A number of witnesses were examined and Magistrate Binns considered the evidence sufficient to send the accused up for trial at the Nelson assizes. C. R. Hamilton of Rossland represented the accused and E. S. H. Winn of Rossland acted as counsel for the crown.

Attempted Stabbing

The fight waxed fast and furious on the inside. Joe Idocavich struck Joe Brakage with a beer glass and attempted to stab Steve Teticia. For this he was assessed $150 and $42.50 costs or 12 months in gaol; he paid. Eli Benick and Joe Brakage also locked horns. For this privilege Benick was assessed $100 and $21.25 costs, or six months, while Brakage was let down for $75 and $21.25 costs or four months. Both paid their fines.

MAYOR'S CONDITION STILL SATISFACTORY

Physicians' Statements Characterized by Optimism—Rumors That Greater Danger Still Exists

NEW YORK, Aug. 13—The same optimism that has characterized the statements regarding the condition of Mayor Gaynor, since he was shot last Tuesday prevailed in the last bulletins issued at St. Marys hospital tonight. Another consultation of the physicians in attendance, which lasted half an hour was followed by a bulletin issued at 9:30 this evening which said: "Mayor Gaynor's condition this evening continued to be satisfactory. He has passed a restful day without pain or discomfort and no untoward symptoms have developed."

Dr. Arlitz supplemented this official announcement in reply to a question as to the patient's condition by saying: "He is doing fine." Other information states that the hopeful statements of the physicians had nevertheless their undercurrent of feeling that the mayor is in greater danger than indicated in bulletins from the sick room.

NEW SETTLEMENT GROWING AT BROUSE

Fifty Families Already There and Population is Growing Rapidly—Choice Fruit Land.

BROUSE, Aug. 13—The settlement at Brouse is doing remarkably well. Two settlers named Paul Keller and J. Janson, came in from Lethbridge, Alta., and bought some tracts of choice fruit land from J. J. Morrison. They engaged at once in building their homes. This deal brings up the number of land buyers and actual settlers at Brouse since Jan. 1, 1910, to more than a dozen, the total number of settlers now being well over fifty families, an increase of more than forty families in two years. Messrs. Keller and Janson are the forerunners and a number of their friends will settle at Brouse after selling out in Alberta. They all intend to make fruitgrowing their business. Today a farmer from Oklahoma purchased land for the same purpose and will settle down at once. Half a dozen other arrivals from Saskatchewan are expected in September and there is not any doubt that the settlement will number at least one hundred families next year. At present there are considerably more than 300 acres under cultivation which number is increasing almost daily. Most of it is planted to fruit trees.

Charles Ehl is doing a very good business in his store opposite Brouse siding.

Since the first of August most of the settlers have been busy improving the government's road between Brouse and Nakusp under Foreman J. J. Morrison, a gang of thirty men and several teams being employed. As soon as these improvements are finished, work will be continued on the government's road from Brouse to Summit and it is hoped that a good part of it will be built this fall.

CHARGED WITH ROBBERY FROM RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT

BOSTON, Aug. 13—The robbery of about 180,000 rubles (about $50,000), in government notes from the sub-treasury at Tiflis, Russian trans-Caucasia, in 1907, is charged against Andrew Rudow, who was taken before United States Commissioner Carlington here today and held for a hearing. Rudow is a music teacher.

DISAPPOINTMENT IN LOVE CAUSE OF SUICIDE

ELPASO, Tex., Aug. 13—Disappointment in love prompted Miss Rosie Romero, 18 years old to commit suicide by swallowing carbolic acid at Benson, Ariz., last night. The young woman was a descendant of a notable Spanish family.

CROP CONDITIONS ON PRAIRIES GOOD

J. H. Logan Expects Big Demand for Lumber This Fall—Moose Jaw Grows Fast.

J. H. Logan, right of way purchasing agent for the C. P. R., stationed at Winnipeg, has been spending a few days in Nelson as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Toye. He is accompanied by Mrs. Logan. They are on their way to the coast cities for a short vacation.

Mr. Logan spends a very large part of his time travelling in the prairie provinces and is thus able to speak with authority regarding the crop and general financial conditions of that country.

Crop Conditions.

Seen last night by a representative of The Daily News Mr. Logan stated that the crops in the north were good, but that they were somewhat lighter in Southern Alberta. The feeling generally was extremely optimistic and although money had been tight as far as the banks were concerned, he did not anticipate that there would be any depression in the fall, the period of the year when British Columbia lumbermen rely upon selling material to their customers east of the Rockies.

Moose Jaw.

Mr. Logan is much struck with the solidity and generally prosperous state of Moose Jaw. "My opinion," he said, "is that Moose Jaw is going ahead more rapidly and in a more satisfactory way than any other city in the prairies. There is nothing in the nature of a boom, real estate is not "away up" in price, but the growth during the past five or six years has been as remarkable as it has been substantial. Moose Jaw has an excellent body of progressive business men who have done a great deal the last few years towards the progress of their delightfully situated city. The well known Robin Hood flour mills at Moose Jaw have lately been enlarged so that the capacity is doubled. It is now 2500 barrels a day.

Lethbridge Progress.

"Lethbridge is another extremely progressive city and one which undoubtedly is destined to a great future. I think that the prairies generally will consume more British Columbia lumber this fall than in any other year of their history."

FISHING SEASON AT ITS HEIGHT

Lake, River and Creek all Yield Finny Spoil—Good Char and Trout Caught at Narrows

The fishing season is now at its height and good catches are reported from all quarters regularly.

H. E. Dill, fishing at the Narrows with minnows Friday evening and yesterday morning, got a string that included three fish over two pounds in weight, one being a 4 1-2 pound char and another a 3 1-4 pound rainbow trout.

Harry Gibbs brought in 100 mountain brook trout yesterday from Kokanee creek, the string including several very good fish.

David Wightman, the veteran angler of London, Ont., landed 13 beauties of rainbow trout in an hour and a half at Granite yesterday equalling the local record, some weighing up to 1 1-2 lbs. Constable Wightman proposed to show his father over the pool at Slocan Junction today, but Mr. Wightman objects to Sunday fishing. Near the Granite mill Messrs. Wightman, father and son encountered a 400 pound black bear. Each party was willing to relinquish the road to the other and take to the trail, and the bear got there first.

FERNIE TAX RATE IS TWENTY MILLS

Forger Receives Sentence of Six Months in Nelson Jail—New Anglican Church.

(Special to The Daily News.)

FERNIE, Aug. 13—James McKinnon appeared before Judge P. E. Wilson in the county court this morning charged with having forged a check at Michel some days ago and also with having escaped from the Fernie jail. He pleaded guilty to both charges and was sentenced to six months in the Nelson jail.

At the meeting of the city council last night the tax rate was struck at 20 mills on the dollar. When it is remembered that a heavy debenture charge was necessary to meet the large expenditures due to the reconstruction work since the fire, the amount of money spent on civic improvements and the heavy quarantine expenses, the rate is extremely low.

On Tuesday evening next the corner stone of the new Anglican church will be laid. W. B. Ross, K. C., will officiate and it is expected that there will be a large gathering of the clergy from neighboring towns. The building when completed will cost in the neighborhood of $20,000.

Secretary A. J. Carter of the United Mine Workers of America has left for the coast to meet George Heatherington president of the Western Federation of Miners, when they will discuss matters of interest to both organizations.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Turner who have been spending a month at Seaside, Ore., returned to town last night.

SHEEP CREEK CAMP AMAZES

Mr. Duscheney Inspects Four of the Properties

REPORT WILL BE FAVORABLE

Coast Cities Are Becoming Aware of What This Gold Camp Is

"The coast is just becoming awake to what the Kootenay possesses in the Sheep creek camp. The strongest interest is being manifested in this remarkable gold camp by Vancouver. Yet but recently the name of Sheep creek was hardly known on the coast. This interest, one may prophesy, is but in its infancy."

The speaker was H. E. Duscheney, of Vancouver, who spent two days this week making an inspection of the Sheep creek camp and particularly of the Summit, Nugget, Golden Fawn and Searchlight properties. This inspection will be the basis of a report on the four properties named, which Mr. Duscheney will make to certain financial interests at the coast. That the report will be of a favorable character may be gathered from Mr. Duscheney's remarks quoted below.

Expectations Exceeded.

"I found," said Mr. Duscheney, "that the actual facts of the case went far beyond our expectations. Outsiders do not realize as yet the actual conditions in Sheep creek.

"Speaking of the properties which I particularly inspected, the Summit mine on Vernon mountain is undoubtedly a most promising property. Work is being pushed on three levels, on the main vein and the vein has considerably widened under development. A force of 12 men is at work on this property.

"The Golden Fawn is showing up well under development. The Searchlight property is at present a prospect, with excellent showings, and the Sheep Creek Development company is prospecting it thoroughly, with a view to early development.

"The Nugget—well words will hardly describe the Nugget mine. It is a wonder. The new tunnel from the east side of Nugget mountain, to meet No. 5 on the west side, has lately been started, and is now in some distance, following the vein. This main Nugget vein is certainly a remarkable one. The third and fourth levels, which are drifts, are connected by a winze, on which a room has been stoped out 18 feet square, without either wall of the vein being reached. The whole vein seems a big ore shoot. In fact, the Nugget upsets all preconceived ideas about the camp."

The following are the returns for the ore production and movement the past week:

An interesting feature of the week is the advance of the Snowshoe mine of Phoenix,

PARIS IN LONDON TO BE REALITY

City Fathers First Feared for Morals of Community, but Pleasure Spot Now Decided Upon

The so called primeval forest in the Strand is doomed at last and "Paris in London" ere long will find a site in this vacant spot in the heart of the metropolis. The forest grew on the big island site along the Strand, for which ever since the construction of the new thoroughfares known as the Kingsway and Aldwych began, the London county council has been unable to find tenants owing to the prohibitive price it put upon the ground rents, says a London cable.

Left to itself the island site was over grown by all manner of shrubs, hybrid plants and flowers to which even the botanists could not put a name, a mystery and a wonder to every one—a wonder because of the wealth of color that was produced; a mystery because no one could understand how they sprang up from the ground upon which for centuries had stood a bit of the oldest part of London.

Now it has been definitely settled that "Paris in London," a scheme which some years ago was thrown out by the county council because it feared for the morals of the younger generation, is to be proceeded with, for the latest crop of advertising boards announce that the site has been acquired by the French Development Syndicate, Limited which is to erect on it a Palace of French industries and building operations are to be commenced in the fall.

Miniature City

But the title Palace of French Industries does not by any means adequately convey the extent of the scheme which is so comprehensive that it includes a restaurant, a theatre and a club. In fact it will be a miniature of Paris set down in the midst of London.

The area to be covered is a pretty large one, being no less than three and a quarter acres, a space which might well inspire any architect and Mons. Ernest Gerard, to whom the commission has been given, may be relied upon to make the most of his opportunity. The style chosen is the French Renaissance and the elevation fronting Aldwych will be the most important architectural feature of the building.

The scheme was originally suggested by the entente cordiale between the two countries which came into being about six years ago. This will be commemorated by a sculptured bas-relief in the tympanum over the central entrance, which will represent King Edward welcoming President Loubet and grouped around the central figures will be portraits of other famous people, including King George and the Duke of Connaught.

Permanent Exhibit

The Aldwych entrance will lead to the grand hall, with marble pillars and other decorations and the ceiling is to be decorated with paintings by eminent French artists. In this hall also there will be a permanent exhibition of French art and industries—permanent but ever changing.

The restaurant and cafe is to be conducted on the most approved Parisian plan. A patisserie is to be established in the courtyard and garden surrounding the hall, with a band close by. The bijou theatre will have a seating capacity of 800 persons, and here French plays will be given for at least a part of the year and at other times variety entertainments.

There will be room in the building for more than 100 shops and many famous French firms are expected to take advantage of the opportunity offered them to make their London headquarters here. Above the shops will be reared four or five stories to a height of 80 feet, this being the limit allowed by the building regulations and they will provide accommodations for some 800 suites of offices many of which have already been bespoken by tenants who are taking time by the forelock.

Local Wholesalers and Local Fruit

To the Editor of The Daily News.

Sir—In the issue of your paper dated Aug. 12 a letter was published signed "Robert Main, Thrums," dealing with the fruit growing situation in this district. As one of the wholesalers dealing in fruits, I must take exception to Mr. Main's letter as he is certainly misinformed as to the facts. He states among other things that one of the foremost wholesalers in Nelson when interviewed concerning the buying of local fruit, replied: "We do not care to handle local fruit; we prefer American grown fruit. It is better packed and suits our trade better." I can state that for myself I have made no such statement, and I have interviewed the other wholesalers in this city and they have informed me that they have never made a similar statement. I cannot understand, apart from these facts, why any wholesaler would make such a statement, as such a statement would be absolutely inconsistent with the present existing conditions. If the writer of the letter I have referred to would carefully go into the full situation he would see that his arguments, to say the least, are faulty. American apples in Spokane at present are quoted at from $1.25 to $1.50 per box. The freight and duty for apples coming from Spokane is 40 cents per box, making American apples cost, delivered in Nelson $1.65 to $1.90 per box, while local apples are today being retailed at $1.35 per box, thus showing that under existing conditions it is impossible for American apples to compete with American fruit. Personally instead of having a preference for American fruit, I am strongly prejudiced in favor of the fruit grown in our own district. First, for the reason that such fruit is fresher, and secondly, that the quality is generally of a superior nature to that of the fruit shipped by the American shippers.

I quite agree, however, with Mr. Main that we should patronize home industries and this has always been one of my aims and I think that the other wholesalers of Nelson are not unlike myself in regard to this.

There are times, however, when it is impossible for the wholesalers to patronize our local grown fruits and vegetables. An instance of this was shown last spring, when seven carloads of potatoes were imported by the various dealers in this city, while at the same time there was a large quantity of potatoes throughout the district. The reason of this importation was that the ranchers were under the impression that potatoes were going to the spring price of 1909 and they were holding them for those prices, the result being that the dealers could import potatoes, pay the freight and duty on them and have them delivered in Nelson much cheaper than they could buy them from the local parties, although at the same time the potatoes imported were costing at that time nearly double the average rate paid for potatoes.

GENERAL CONFERENCE MEETS IN VICTORIA

Ninth General Conference—History of Methodism in Canada—Famous Names.

VICTORIA, Aug. 13.—Over 300 delegates to the Methodist general conference are assembling in this city, ready for the opening session today, when Rev. Henry Haigh, fraternal delegate from England, and Rev. Solomon Cleaver, D.D., of Toronto (formerly of Grace church, Winnipeg), will preach in the Metropolitan church. This is the ninth general conference of the Canadian Methodist church. The first met in Belleville in 1883.

Previous to this "the Methodist church of Canada" had held general gatherings in Toronto in 1874, Montreal 1878, Hamilton 1882. The Belleville conference included practically all the branches of Methodism in Canada.

In 1886 the meeting place was Toronto; in 1890 in Montreal; in 1894 in London, Ont.; in 1898 Toronto; in 1902 Winnipeg, especially marked by the inception of the church union movement, and the department of temperance and moral reform; in 1906 Montreal, and in 1910 Victoria was wisely selected as the place of meeting.

Historical Review.

A brief summary of the historical connection between this gathering and the past will be read with interest. Methodism owes its historical origin to a great spiritual awakening, in the lives of John Wesley and some others in London, England, about 1738. These men sought to reform the Established Church of England, but the disparity between their views and those of others made a line of cleavage between them and the church, which eventuated in the legal establishment of another denomination, now known and respected the world over as the Methodist or Wesleyan church.

The first Methodist conference was held in London, England, in 1744. The propagation of Wesley's views had provoked very bitter opposition, often expressing it through rotten eggs, clubs, stones and mobs. Those were strenuous times, and the prejudices of a generally misinformed or ignorant populace seem to have fastened on Wesley. He was accused of being in league with Charles Stuart, the pretender, of being a Papist, a Jesuit, a Quaker, a glutton; was guilty of treason, was in prison getting his deserts, had hanged himself, and such like. The first conference grew from a desire for counsel and encouragement among a few like-minded men. Their deliberations lasted several days. The principles laid down lines for the guidance of individual members in assemblies is worthy of perpetual remembrance. "In speculative things each can only submit so far as his judgment shall be convinced; in every practical point, so far as we can without wounding our several consciences." They desired that every person speak freely what was on his heart, and that every question proposed may be fully debated and "bolted to the brain." A church founded by men of that stamp of common sense certainly deserved to succeed, as it did. "So may the bright succession run!"

Two leading questions were: What to teach? and what to do? Those who believed in evolution would find a forcible illustration of the hypothesis in the development of Methodism. The question, "Is it lawful to bear arms?" was discussed and answered in the affirmative. The question of providing a seminary for education of youth was considered. Such was the conference.

Methodism in Canada.

Methodism entered what is now known as Canada through the agency and labors of Black in Nova Scotia, in 1772. Lessee and Dunham in upper and lower Canada in the last decade of the eighteenth century. James Evans and George McDougall represented Methodism among the Indians of the plains near the middle of the last century, while Dr. Young, lately deceased, planted the standard of Methodism in Winnipeg in 1868 amid many discouragements. Browning, Robson, Evans and White were the pioneers of Methodism in and beyond the Rockies. The first Canadian conference was held in 1824. The war of 1812 had made a breach between Canada and United States Methodism too wide to be bridged over or filled up. Hitherto they had been united. The plucky Canadians formed a conference of their own and met at Hallowell, in Ontario, now called Picton. There were 10 ministers present.

These were days of individualism, and the cause of unity was not immune even within the pale of the Methodist church. Several divisions arose, working much damage. However, time and charity cure many things, and in 1874 there was consummated a union which we believe was but the first in a series that will yet embrace almost the whole of Protestantism.

First General Conference.

The first general conference was held in 1874, and included, in part, both east and west (the west meant Ontario then) but did not include all the branches of Methodism. The larger union by which the Canadian Methodism became one from ocean to ocean took place in 1884, after a long series of discussions and debates in which the giants of those days fully participated. Dr. Carman, the present general superintendent, was a member of the M. E. church, having its headquarters in the United States. He was a professor at and president of Albert college, Belleville, and had been elected a bishop in 1874. When the union took place in '84 he and Dr. Rice were elected general superintendents, thus Dr. Carman has held the high position of overseer of the church continuously for 36 years.

Some Famous Names.

It is interesting to note some of the names connected with the first general conference in '74, and the problems they had to deal with. Dr. Egerton Ryerson, champion of civil and religious rights, was president; Dr. George Douglas was vice-president, Dr. D. D. Currie (whose later life was a tragedy), was secretary. Dr. Rice and Dr. H. Pickard of New Brunswick were prominent members. Questions relating to the union, education and class meetings were to the front. The sociological era had not yet properly begun.

Higher Education.

The interest of Methodism in higher education is strikingly apparent from the first. Away back in 1836 when there were only 11,936 members and 45 ministers, the "Upper Canada Academy" was proposed, as "a seminary where youth may be trained up in the knowledge and obedience of God, and at the same time be faithfully instructed in the various branches of human learning which the present state of society render necessary in order to respectability and usefulness." How did they propose maintaining this school? The conference in 1837 passed a resolution requesting the ministers to give their marriage fees for four years! It was then only recently they had been granted legal permission to marry at all. This school developed in 1841 into Victoria university.

It is a far call from 1744-1824-1874-1884 (it looks like all forest!) to the present general conference, both in point of time, place, distance and personnel, yet how like and unlike, similar and dissimilar are all human problems when sifted into their essential elements. Probably there will be less real battle, passion and fire manifest here than at any of the above dates; yet so well are churches now organized and so evenly and unselfishly is power distributed, it would appear that the maximum good is being done with the minimum display of individualism and noise.

Problems Facing Conference.

That this conference has no easy task confronting it, a glance at the agenda would show. There are something over two dozen departments of work to be considered, fraternal messages from England, Ireland, the United States, North and South, and Japan, to hear, besides questions of church union, ministerial supply, election of general officers, the establishment of a western book room, with various incidental and continuous matters, including nearly 400 memorials. The present secretary, Rev. T. Albert Moore, D.D., has spared no efforts to have the program well organized, and with an executive officer of unequalled ability like Dr. Carman in the chair, schedule time will be made. Victoria's welcome is princely. Seldom has a young city had such a strain laid upon her as Victoria is entertaining the ministers of the "Cross" and of the "Crown" at the same time. The general conference has been invited by the British Columbia government to attend the reception to Sir Wilfrid Laurier and party on Aug. 17.

Dysentery is a dangerous disease but can be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has been successfully used in nine epidemics of dysentery. It has never been known to fail. WATER ACT 1909.

By direction of the board of investigation notice is hereby given that the board will proceed to adjudicate upon claims to water on the following streams and tributaries thereto in the Nelson water district, under authority of Part 3 of the Water Act, 1909:

NOT A NEW MOVEMENT.

British papers in referring to the delegations which have urged a free trade policy upon Sir Wilfrid, speak of it as an "uprising against protection." They are apparently under the impression that it is the beginning of a new movement in Canadian politics.

It would be nearer the fact to describe it as the remnant of an old movement. The delegations represent neither the people as a whole nor even one whole party. They represent the section of the Liberal party which broke away from Mr. Sifton.

Fourteen years ago the whole Liberal party in the west and a large part of the Liberal party in the east was demanding what these delegations are demanding now. When the party leaders attained office and had to face new responsibilities, they followed a different policy. Mr. Sifton accepted that policy as a member of the government. He also, in various ways incurred the hostility of the Joe Martin section of the party in the west, and this included a good many men of influence and one or two important papers. Of these the Winnipeg Tribune, edited by R. L. Richardson and largely circulating among the farmers may be instanced.

As one of the weapons to be used against Mr. Sifton they continued the free trade propaganda and accused Mr. Sifton and the government of which he was a member of betraying the principles of the Liberal party. When the Tribune was accused of deserting its party because it opposed Sifton and Laurier, it was thus able to reply that it still stood on the old Liberal platform and that it was the government which was the deserter.

It is largely this section of the Liberal party,—that is a section opposed to the Liberal government,—that is responsible for the free trade delegations. It is, so to speak, what is left of the Liberal free trade crusade of 1893, not a new uprising against the tariff nor the beginning of a new movement.

APPLES RIPENING.

Tens of thousands of apples are now ripening in the orchards of the Kootenay. Early varieties, indeed, are in many cases already ripe; but it is the later and finer sorts to which the growers particularly devote their attention. These are now gradually assuming the rich color that accompanies their delicious flavor.

Year by year new orchards come into bearing. Many are now bearing for the first time; a still larger number will come in next season, and ever increasing numbers will begin to yield in each succeeding summer. A few years ago the wheat crop of the great province of Saskatchewan amounted to but five million dollars. A few years hence the apple crop of the Kootenay will amount to ten millions.

The increase will go on with ever hastening rapidity. Saskatchewan was a good deal longer in attaining to a five million bushel crop than in advancing from that to a hundred million bushel crop. When the Kootenay is producing apples at the rate of five million baskets per annum, the success of her fruitgrowers will attract thousands of settlers who in turn will add to the annual production of wealth from the soil.

THE ROUND TABLE CONFERENCE.

The conference between the representatives of the two parties in Great Britain and of the two houses of parliament still drags its slow length along. Of what has taken place practically nothing has transpired. Guesses have been made and assertions ventured upon but these are so contradictory that it is impossible to believe them correct. Mr. Asquith has said that the progress made warrants the continuance of the conference and that is really all that has come out. Evidently a secret can be kept sometimes.

For the continuance of the conference there may be other reasons than the progress made and the prospect of accomplishing something further. Time allows tempers to cool and judgment to become more judicious. Last winter there was the prospect of a house of commons hot from the passions of a general election rushing to the task of making a great constitutional revolution.

That is not the way in which far reaching changes should be made. Mr. Asquith, one may be sure, does not want to embark upon them under such conditions. He will prefer to wait for cooler consideration of great issues, even though he may lose the confidence of Mr. Joseph Martin.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The mining interests, thanks largely to the work of Mr. Widdowson, have sent a capital exhibit to Vancouver,—one that will be of permanent benefit. It is now the turn of the fruitgrowers to do equally well.

News of the fire in Phoenix was received with much regret in Nelson and the word that now comes of the early resumption of work at the Granby will be received with corresponding pleasure. The ill effects of the fire, we hope, will prove but temporary and will even, as in some other cases, result in improved structures replacing those destroyed.

The building of the Balfour hotel is time for this year's travel has been out of the question for many months. What was causing alarm was the prospect that it might not be ready for next year. Mr. Peter's latest letter gives assurances on that point and is much more satisfactory than that which preceded it. If those assurances are implemented—and there is no reason for doubting that they will—the anxiety that has been created will be set at rest.

An Old All Star Nine

In the year 1900 Nelson was a ball town. Every citizen took an interest in the star nine which Manager Charles A. Waterman had gathered together. In June, 1900 two games were arranged with the Spokane amateur athletic club, to be played in Spokane. A band of rooters accompanied the Nelson team, at that time the champions of British Columbia. The amateur club of Spokane in 1900 were the champions of Spokane and the inland empire.

The two games were played at Natatorium park before a tremendous crowd of spectators. Nelson won the first game by 13-11. Nelson's battery in this game was Lou Waters and H. Houston. The second game was won by Spokane in an exciting contest by 7-5. Ikey Rockenfield was on the mound for Nelson, with Houston receiving. The Spokane battery for both games was G. Drehr, Olson and B. Connors. The Nelson lineup was as follows: Houston, c.; Waters, p.; Rockenfield, p. and s.s.; Partridge, 1b.; Dad Mills 2b.; Caverly, 3b.; Phair, Neelands, Emmerson, McLeod, outfielders. It was in this year that a fence was built around the ball grounds and a grand stand erected. The Spokane team played two return games in this city, defeating Nelson both times.

Coming Baseball Games

Manager McLean's baseball team will play a number of games this month and next. The Nelson team has arranged a game with Rossland to be played in that city on Aug. 21. The Rossland team has not defeated Nelson this season. The club has recently been strengthened and the manager of Rossland team hopes to trim Nelson this trip. Nelson plays in Creston with the Creston and Cranbrook teams on Labor day, Sept. 5. The Nelson club expects a large number of supporters at the trip is through magnificent scenery and the fare only amounts to $3.50 return. Trail has a strong team and are arranging for an exchange of games with Nelson. Rossland and Trail play at Trail on Labor day.

Lacrosse Past and Present

The old bunch of lacrosse players that represented the city in the early days were the slickest and best stick handlers that could be found anywhere in British Columbia.

There was "Scotty" Williamson who played with Medicine Hat, Vancouver, Seattle and other strong teams. Scotty was one of the best fielders in the game. Dudley Blackwood was another old timer, who played not only with Nelson but in Winnipeg and other leading cities and was there with the goods as a home player. Next there were the Jeffs Bros. who learned the game in Paris, Ont., and it is enough to know that they came from one of the best lacrosse towns in Canada and two better players were hard to find. Jack Fox learned the game at Port William and was there with the stick handling, and shot like a cannon ball, always finding the net. There was the old reliable Joe Thompson, to whom all hats are taken off as being one of the best and cleanest players that ever went on a lacrosse field. A. A. Perrier was one of Nelson's swiftest players. He played in the east on several fast teams and was always ready and willing to help the team. Another one of Nelson's good players was Barney Archibald who learned the game in Kemptville, Ont., and who proved himself one of the best defense players Nelson ever had.

Among the older players who play the game regularly are Tim Dunne, Len. Steel, Ole Bell, T. Bell, A. Bishop and H. Bishop. Tim Dunne who accompanied the Regina team to Westminster to play for the Minto cup is a lightning home player.

There are in Nelson at the present time young lacrosse players who with good coaching would make as good a team as there was in the early days. The younger players who defeated Rossland a short time ago will play Rossland on Wednesday afternoon.

Vancouver Wins.

(Special to The Daily News.)

VANCOUVER, Aug. 13—By a score of two to one Vancouver today won the professional lacrosse match with New Westminster, their eighth game in the league series with the world's champions. In these Vancouver has now won two and New Westminster six. There are four more games to play in this series of twelve.

It was clean and fast lacrosse today with brilliant and even spectacular playing on both sides, Vancouver excelling towards the close. It was better lacrosse all the way through than in either of the two recent contests between the champions and the Montreal team.

Adams scored both goals for Vancouver while Wintemute scored the only goal for New Westminster. Logan also played well for Vancouver. In the first half Westminster had the best of the game and Vancouver in the second half.

Best Game Yet.

Many of the spectators declared it was the best game ever played in British Columbia and on wet grounds although the rain had ceased.

Score by quarters

Vancouver	0	0	1	1—2
New Westminster	0	1	0	0—1

If Vancouver wins the league championship the Minto cup automatically passes to Vancouver.

To do this trick Vancouver must win the remaining four games to tie with cup holders and also win the deciding game.

Junior Lacrosse Match.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 13—In the first of the home games for the junior lacrosse championship of the mainland the east end team of Vancouver junior champions of the city, won from the west end team of New Westminster by a score of 4 goals to 3.

The game was played as a preliminary to the professional lacrosse fixture at Recreation park this afternoon and teams will meet again before the seniors at Queen's park New Westminster next Saturday.

Winners of the round will play the north ward juniors of Victoria for the provincial championship.

The game was an interesting exhibition, the youngsters playing fast and determined lacrosse all the way. The Westminster team was playing the better game towards the close but they started too late.

Famous Cricket Village.

A Mitchamite writes to The Daily News as follows:

Re your account issued in Daily News of Tuesday, Aug. 2nd, regarding the Canadian cricket team (Zingari) in England.

You mentioned the latest victory (of the Zingari) that of Mitcham, is of course unimportant, compared with such redoubtable teams as the Gentlemen of Surrey, also of Sussex, and you think it odd that the Zingari fixture card should contain two such widely different clubs as the Gentlemen of the above counties and the town of Mitcham.

I must first state that Mitcham is not a town, but a village, and one to be proud of, considering there is no town or village in the cricket playing world, that has the reputation in cricket as that grand old village has.

Personally I think it more credit to the Zingari defeating Mitcham, than either of the above clubs mentioned, (and it is plain to see that the Zingari knew their fixture card would be incomplete without playing that renowned club Mitcham), for there are some hundreds of clubs in the county of Surrey.

I may state the gentlemen of the stated counties are independent, selected from various clubs of the said counties whereas Mitcham is a team of young blood, born, raised, and learning cricket on the famous old green.

It would give me great pleasure to mention a few of the past and present cricketers, who were born and learned their cricket there.

Famous Veterans.

Sherman, famous Surrey man with bat and ball; Sutherton, famous Surrey man with bat and ball; Caffery Bros., famous Surrey men with ball.

A few of the late ones: Richardson, famous Surrey bowler, the fastest bowler that ever took a ball in the hand; Harvey, played for Surrey and all England, late captain of Mitcham; Clarke, played for Surrey, late wicket keeper for Mitcham; Boxall, played for Lancashire, present day groundsman for Mitcham.

A few of the present ones: Shrudwick, Surrey's famous wicket keeper, the smartest man that ever stood behind the sticks; Harrison, Surrey bowler; Pearson, Worcestershire's famous all-round man; Turner, playing for Worcestershire 23 years of age, one of the finest bats of his age; Bale, playing for Worcestershire, a great man behind the sticks.

I could mention at least a dozen more who are just colts, but have already played in county cricket, and who, I hope some day will regain the laurels that Surrey have lost.

A famous cricket sport once wrote in a London paper: If your boy has any inclinations for cricket send him to Mitcham and if they don't succeed in making a cricketer of him there, no other place will.

Until late years the Australians made their headquarters at Mitcham for they claimed they had the finest practice grounds in England.

I could fill page after page, writing about this famous old village, which is only eight miles on the main road from the great city of London, also eight miles N.E. from that renowned race course Epsom. It is also the home of that world known perfume Lavender Water, the late Queen Victoria's favorite scent.

Wins Athletic Championship

CHICAGO, Aug. 13—F. C. Thompson of Los Angeles, today won the world's amateur athletic championship in the annual tournament here, scoring 6991. His nearest competitor, John H. Gillis of Vancouver, scored 6909.

Vancouver Policeman Second.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13—F. C. Thompson of Los Angeles, tonight is champion amateur all-round athlete for the world, winning that distinction at the annual tournament on Marshall field in this city. His score was 6991 points, 413 less than that which captured the championship last year.

His nearest competitor was John H. Gillis, a Vancouver policeman, who rounded up 6909 points. Gillis fought Thomson for the first place through every event. Approximately 3500 persons watched the bronze followers of Hercules test their vitality, agility and endurance in the various tests. The field and the weather were perfect.

No world's records were made nor were any of the existing records in danger in any event. The showing all around was mediocre compared with last year's results. Five of the original entrants withdrew, among them the New Orleans man, H. W. Fitzpatrick, who was looked upon as a possible champion. He refused to compete when he learned that C. P. White, a negro from the University of Pennsylvania, was entered.

All through the early part of the meet Gillis, who left his policeman's beat, to attempt to capture the championship battled tooth and nail with Thomson. At the end of the fifth event Thomson was only 15 points ahead of Gillis.

The best showing of the day was as follows: C. P. White, the colored athlete, beat the field in the 100 yard race and beat last year's champion Martin Sherridan's mark of 10 3-5 seconds by 1-5 second.

DIAMOND DRILL CUTTING BIG COAL SEAM ON PEMBINA

H. W. Sharp of the Sharp & Irvine company, Spokane, has been spending a couple of days in the city.

"Yes," said Mr. Sharp, replying to a question, "we have just recently taken over seven sections of coal land in the Pembina river district, 60 miles west of Edmonton, on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian Northern railroads. We have a diamond drill at work on the property and the last report from our superintendent states that he has already nine feet of coal and not through the seam yet.

"It is our intention," continued Mr. Sharp, "to rush development work so that the property will reach the shipping stage at the earliest possible moment.

Mr. Sharp expects to leave for Rossland the first of the week.

except slight injuries to one man, sustained in falling from a roof, but though no serious accidents, the town is full of tired men, many of them being well nigh exhausted. Many times it looked as though the entire town would be wiped out. The residents in all parts had their portable property ready for rapid transfer and in some parts the streets were lined with furniture, etc.

Grand Forks Offers Help

The C.P.R. considerately sent orders to their train crew to be in readiness to convey the residents to points of safety at a moment's notice should occasion require but fortunately their services were not called into action. The sister city of Grand Forks offered assistance and were prepared to send a fire engine to Phoenix by special train if occasion demanded.

Loss Heavy

Fortunately all the buildings destroyed were more or less insured, but in spite of this the loss will be heavy.

Though this is a heavy blow to the town and will no doubt tie up the Granby mine for some time as the whole power system is demoralized and the machine shop a total wreck, yet in view of the wholesale danger which threatened, the people breathe easier now that the fire is under control.

Worked Like Heroes

Too much credit cannot be given to the men who assisted in the disaster. As many men as were necessary were available and worked like heroes. At times the heat was intense but the proposition was a question of work or lose the town and the men chose to work.

BOY SCOUTS RETURN TO CITY FROM CAMP

Bronzed and Enthusiastic Embryo Defenders of Country Express Delight with Military Life.

With skins bronzed from exposure to sun and wind and full of health and vigor the Nelson command of the Boy Scouts returned last evening after three weeks in camp at C. W. Busk's ranch. The youthful soldiers were brought down to the city upon a barge lent by Mr. Busk, which was hauled by a launch lent free of charge by Astley and Elford.

The boys all seemed delighted with their first experience of military camp life and have become as enthusiastic a body of scouts as can be found anywhere in Canada.

BRING-A-BASKET.

(By the Bard of Bring-a-Basket camp, on the West Arm.)

Tune, Yiddaddy-i-ay.

The Clan "Bring-a-Basket" is roused for the fray,
The slogan has gone through the land,
"Monday, August the first, has been named as the day,
Let each one of the bunch be on hand."
On the shores of the Kootenay, four miles from the town
The wigwams will spread in the sun;
While the swift-speeding launches will fly up and down,
Around: there is work to be done.

While all have their share in the project to bear
We feel sure there'll be never a rub;
The provision department will be in good care,
For we'll all look to Rege for the Grub.
And in order to give us more light, as they say,
When the shadows of evening draw night,
We'll endeavor to add to the length of the day
And have the Sun Cheyned to the sky.

When at last the Sun's horses descend in their climb,
We'll gladden the gloaming with tune;
While Emily Lizz round all the time,
Playing Roy's harp by the light of the moon.
And when we are tired and require something new,
When everything Ellis has been tried,
While others may Louis or Win Foot races too,
We can borrow Doc's Steed for a ride.

We must keep little Eva in good Humor too,
For perhaps she'll be feeling some peved;
But the portly professor returning to view,
We hope she'll be somewhat relieved.
Pauline will be there with a book An's Biel
While Ray Bawls his songs on the shore;
And Blaney-Great-Scott—you all know him well,
Will be there making breaks by the score.

But while we rejoice in the strength of our band,
Let us pause for a while to recall,
There are others we miss who cannot be on hand;
Here's a health to them, each one and all.
So come and all wheresoever you are,
The cry "Bring-a-Basket repeat;
And we trust that no troubles or discords will mar
The charm of that peaceful retreat.

CHORUS

Rip her loose, let her, her go,
Rip her loose, let her go.
We have motor boats, one, two, three,
Princess, Goldmite, Quimp—you see.
Rip her loose, let her go, her go,
Our speed will be nothing slow.
Be it daylight or dark, we'll miss never a spark.
'Rip her loose, let her go"!!!

GERMAN PRESS AND DISARMAMENT

Shipbuilding Concerns Are Feeling Some Alarm—Krupps Putting Up Fight.

A Berlin dispatch says: Considerable alarm is being felt by the large shipbuilding firms in this country at the prospect of Germany consenting to consider a British proposal for the arrest of armaments. The most unscrupulous methods are being employed to convince the public that the British offer is mere humbug or the result of funk.

The Berlin Neueste Nachrichten, a big navy organ, which is said to be virtually owned by the Krupp firm, publishes an article describing the English suggestions of a limitation of armaments to "pure funk," consequent upon England's knowledge of the superiority of the German ships and guns and bradside arrangements—a superiority which extends even to the giants of the Hercules class.

This journal proceeds to dilate upon the absurdity of Germany agreeing to a halt in armaments just when the Krupps are about to produce a 35-centimetre (14-inch) gun, i. e., a gun bigger than England's present biggest, and one moreover having double the life of English guns.

There can be no doubt that this revelation proceeds directly from Krupps, as no word of such an invention has hitherto been whispered in Germany. The article completely justifies the Verwart's warning that the big firms are fighting for their life against the real public sentiment in favor of an agreement.

THE "LEGITIMISTS."

Serenely undisturbed by royal deaths and accessions, the "Legitimists" of the Forget-me-not Royal club, in Bayswater, London, have brought out their "Legitimist Kalendar" for 1910, just as if nothing had happened. The cool way in which the present occupant of the British throne is ignored, and all usual conceptions of royalty set aside by this strange production, is really astonishing. According to the Legitimists, the real monarch of the British empire is an elderly lady resident on the continent of Europe, who, so far from occupying the throne, as she would be doing if all kings and queens had their rights, as "Mary IV. and III. of England, Scotland, France and Ireland," has to be content with the comparatively trumpery title of Princess Louise of Bavaria. The Kalendar devotes five pages in tracing her descent from Mary Queen of Scots, which it does very triumphantly by ignoring all the reigning monarch of these realms from William of Orange onwards, finishing up with Mary Theresa Henrietta Dorothea, the Bavarian lady's full name, in the heaviest black type at its disposal.

The most sensationally calm performance in the book, however, is the publication of the names of 1041 people "who have by strict hereditary right a prior claim to the throne of Great Britain and Ireland to that of its present occupant!" There are 18 pages of these poor suffering souls whom King George V. is supposed to be doing out of the throne. All sorts of odd people are in front of his gracious majesty in the true succession, according to the Kalendar—people scattered about in such unlikely places as Parma, Sicily, Sardinia, Urach, Asambuja, Arco-Steppeg and many other obscure resorts. Most of these ill-treated personages bear titles. But not all, for 932nd on the list is none other than plain Patrick Hennessy! Strangely enough, there are no Smiths or Browns among the true heirs to the throne. There is a great deal more in the Kalendar about other thrones of Europe now occupied by the usurper.

PORTUGAL MAY FOLLOW SPAIN.

Country is on Verge of Rupture With the Vatican.

A Lisbon dispatch says:

Portugal, like Spain, is almost on the verge of an open rupture with the Vatican, due to friction over the government's censure of the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Braga, for suppressing a Portuguese Franciscan newspaper without submitting the order to the Portuguese government for approval, and other incidents. Since the issue of the royal decree, July 12, nullifying the action of the archbishop, the clerical forces, inspired, it is charged, by Cardinal Merry del Val, the papal secretary of state, have been conducting a bitter campaign against the government on this account.

At the same time, the Vatican has been raising difficulties about refilling the diplomatic vacancy caused by the death of Senor Martins Datas, the Portuguese ambassador to the Vatican. The Portuguese government retaliated by declining to allow the post to remain vacant for the present, and the minister of justice has drafted a bill providing for all civic registers of births deaths and marriages to be kept by the civil authorities. As this threatens a big source of income of the clergy, a big meeting of ecclesiastics was held here today to protest.

Good Land
Better Price
Best Location

This is the way we used to be taught at school and it is a good way to size up fruit lands. The land must be good—the better the price taking other things into consideration the better we like it. But the location must be the best.

The soil is ideal for fruit growing. The roads are the usual good government sample. The wharf cost $5000. There is hotel store, postoffice, and express office. No block more than 3-4 mile from the waterfront or more than one mile from the wharf by road.

EDGEWOOD

The best orchard land available in the Kootenay country today and the price is lower than most other lands with lake frontage.

Situate at the mouth of the Fire Valley, its position guaranteeing a good live town. There is a double daily steamer service and we will arrange to show you over this property at any time convenient to you.

It costs you nothing to obtain further particulars. We are at your service

Kellogg's TOASTED

CORN FLAKES

At all grocers

The Kellogg factory is as clean as your own spotless kitchen. The Kellogg way is a thorough way, from the first motion to the last. Just as dirt is intolerable in your home, so it is at the modern Kellogg works.

Besides this, Kellogg's has nothing added for appearance. Nothing is spared to make Kellogg's the food of quality and strength. Puts vim in your body, and keeps it there.

"The Sweetheart of the Corn"

CONTRASTS ANCIENT AND MODERN ROME

Harold Begbie Writes of Old and New in Eternal City—Into the Mighty Catacombs.

It was almost noon and the tram was tight with humanity from end to end, says Harold Begbie in the London Chronicle. The pack was intensified by the immense circumference of the women's hats. The windows were down, but the spaces were filled by these grotesques of the milliner, so that no air entered from the street. One melted where one sat, and sighed for the antiquity of the toque.

Toward the rear platform, on which the conductor could dimly and occasionally be seen in a crowd of cigar-smoking Italians, sat the merest slip of a woman under the obscuration of a hat which suggested a parachute, or at least a Titan's lamp shade. One saw only her lips and chin. She might have been a Turkish woman or a nun shrinking from the gaze of a too sensual world, so utterly was the light of her eyes extinguished by this inverted colisseum.

And under the vastness of the hat one saw the flat and narrow chest, the thin and feeble arms, the paltry hips, the abrupt, poor legs of a true degenerate. Her hat advertised some abnormal personality, her diminutive body made one sad for the future of the race. In her manner, her dress, her silly jewelry, her mouth and chin, her foolish little feet, and the self-conscious movements of her baby hands one saw nothing but vanity, emptiness, futility and waste.

She rose from her seat, pressed the electric button, and made her way to the front platform of the car. Her jewelry tinkled as she alighted at a place where Octavia was carried to her tomb by the Emperor Augustus.

Pagan Atrocities.

We stood by the Obelisk of the Vatican in the great sun-lashed piazza of St. Peter's. A multitude of people and a ceaseless procession of carriages passed over the noisy stones on their way to and from the cathedral. Between the colonnades of Bernini encircling the gentle slope to the steps of St. Peter's you may hear the languages of twenty nations in as many minutes. And in the eyes of all these pilgrims you will discern either a like wonder or a like disappointment, as they gaze upward at the church which has drawn them thither from all quarters of the world.

The Obelisk was brought by Caligula from Heliopolis to Rome in a vessel which Pliny says was nearly as long as the left side of the port of Ostia. But now the chief interest of this monument, standing in the centre of the piazza where the tribes of the earth go up to what is called the capital of Christendom, lies in its relation to a fisherman from Galilee. For here, at the foot of this Obelisk, between the two metae of Nero's circus, St. Peter died for the master whom once he had denied.

Our imagination created the scene of Nero's circus. In the shadow of the Obelisk we saw men and women and quite little children, because they worshipped an invisible god, smeared with tar and tallow and burned at the stake, or else, covered with the skins of wild animals torn to pieces by savage dogs. We saw the sickening line of rough-timbered crosses, and the hanging, thirst-tortured bodies of Christians, whose blood dripped from nail-pierced hands and feet to the sand below. We saw the black midnight sky redly lightened by the human torches set up by Nero for his revels. The agony, the bitter agony, of those early children of the Cross! So easily they might have kept faith in secret and preserved the blessed boon of life. But they chose death, of their own will they chose death, and this dreadful death of burning pitch by night, and by day the cross under the fiery glare of an Italian sky. Was ever such devotion to a beautiful idea? Was ever such heroism in all the long and ghastly martyrdom of man? Of a truth the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church. We returned to our hotel thinking of the abominable atrocities which paganism inflicted on those who would not worship its gods. At the next table sat a Jew, his wife, and their daughter.

Into the Catacombs.

To descend into the Catacombs is to lose all sense and all remembrance of the modern world, is wholly to forget that electric trams run through the streets of Rome, and that a cosmopolitan host of people sit down at night in luxurious hotels to the dinners of French cooks. The little taper which you carry lights up the earliest years of the Christian era, and casts a great darkness on all that has followed. You feel the atmosphere of the rarest piety of which there is record in human history. You breathe the air of a devotion which has exalted and dignified mankind. You are conscious, too, of the first glow of immortality. It was here in these cavernous tunnels that men, women and children were first laid in the grave without despair. And here at these little stone tables under the earth, how gladly bread was broken and wine drunken as symbols of the only nourishment which can sustain the soul! We touched the little hollowed spaces in the walls where babes had been laid to rest "in peace." We studied on those stone walls the crude drawings which expressed the Christians' hope and fortitude. We saw the earliest pictures of Christ, and Peter and Paul. We saw the exquisite Greek work which decorated the tombs of Roman nobles converted to the hope of Jesus, and the simple inscriptions marking the resting place of some devoted slave. Everything on which the tiny flame of our tapers fell lit up some fragment of the cradle of Christianity.

Back to the World

We returned to the surface of the earth and to the realism of the modern world. Along the Appian Way moved an almost unbroken string of carts from the Campagna. These carts, loaded some with wine and some with stone, were drawn by mules. As our carriage passed we saw the bleeding sores under the rough collars of those poor creatures, and heard the sickening thuds of blows from the muleteers. One driver, awaking from sleep on the top of his load of stones, and infuriated by some action of his beast, sprang up, seized a long-handled spade, and, standing on the jolting stones, his face like a devil's, struck the mule two frightful blows with the iron, at the second of which it stumbled and came nearly to its knees. On the hill which ascends to the Porta San Sebastiano we saw a muleteer on foot rash at his animal, which had two large open abscesses on a single shoulder, and kick it twice under the ribs with such force that we became blinded and dizzy with nausea. And police in their gorgeous uniforms, who swarm at these gates, looked on and continued their gossip. A party of cassock-clad students of divinity passed by without a word.

Only God knows whether the sufferings of the early Christians may be described as a single drop of water in comparison with the vast ocean of animal suffering which in Rome, alone surges up against so many churches, and hitherto in vain.

Caius Cestius.

At the great pyramid which makes the resting place of Caius Cestius, who died thirty years before the birth of Christ, we stood and followed in thought a procession of Roman soldiers which once passed by this pyramid and under the arch in the wall to the glare and dust of the road which leads to Ostia. In the midst of these soldiers was perhaps the greatest man that has yet influenced the human race, Saul of Tarsus, passing to his execution beyond the walls of Rome. His eyes must have rested on this pyramid of Caius Cestius, it was probably the last thing he saw of Rome, and perhaps thought, in the glorious enthusiasm of his noble soul that soon the great revolution and the sweet reasonableness of Christ would be regnant over all the earth, and that for every soul of man ever after death should have no sting and the grave no victory, that peace should reign, the human race become a universal brotherhood, and God be all in all.

As we turned from the monument the news came that, through some difficulty of etiquette, the Pope was unable to receive the ex-president of the United States.

Across Rome two palaces regard each other with implacable hostility. The king of Italy sees from one the sun setting behind the other, and somewhere in that other the Pope is a voluntary prisoner, and dares not show himself in the public streets. Both are guarded by soldiers.

A carriage passes down the Corso, between these two palaces. People turn to look. The occupant of the carriage smiles and bows to those who raise their hats. He has the ease and pleasantness of a national hero sure of his plaudits. He is the mayor of Rome, and he is neither a Roman nor an Italian. He is a Jew.

WENDLING WAVES HAND TO CROWD IN STREETS

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 13—Joseph Wendling, wanted here on the charge of murdering Alma Kellner, was placed in the city hall here this morning after a remarkable chase across the continent, in charge of Capt. John Carney, chief of the Louisville detective department. Wendling had no sooner been ushered into the chief of police's room than he took possession of one of the large windows and hanled himself by whistling and waving his hand to the crowd which had gathered in the street below. His everlasting smile was much in evidence.

Wendling touched Kentucky shortly after 8 o'clock this morning for the first time in many months. He and his captor took a train at Evansville and about 1 o'clock, handcuffed together Capt. Carney and his man occupied the drawing room of the Evansville sleeper. The train was an hour late when it pulled into the Union depot. A large crowd was outside waiting their arrival.

BARKENTINE SAILS THROUGH MILK WHITE SEA

Strange Phenomenon Reported by Sea Captain—Marvellous Scene of Marine Beauty.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., Aug. 12.—In a report made today to the United States hydrograph office here, is the statement of an inexplicable phenomenon that marine interests declare is without precedent. The statement is filed by Capt. H. Samuelson, of the American barkentine Aurora, on arrival from Callao, Peru. On June 17, in latitude 11 degrees south and longitude 86 west, according to the report, the vessel's course brought her into an area of snow white water. The expanse was so large as to require nearly a whole day's sailing to traverse. Its merging with the natural ocean was sharp and definitely defined in color, creating a marvellous scene of marine beauty. Investigation with every means available failed to show the phenomenon to be due to submarine volcanic eruptions or other upheaval. A bucket filled with the milk white liquid, when left an hour on the barkentine's deck, resumed a normal sea water color.

Officers of the Aurora sighted a derelict ship's life buoy on the track of vessels in the San Francisco-Honolulu trade, and report encountered a strong uncharted tide in 11 degrees, 15 minutes north latitude and 130 degrees 47 minutes west longitude.

EAST KOOTENAY

For canvassing for a newspaper without first having procured a traders' license, Fred Ogle appeared before Joseph Ryan, police magistrate in Cranbrook Wednesday. The case is one in which keen interest is being taken, more especially by newspaper publishers. It probably establishes the first case in the history of Canadian journalism that a canvasser for a newspaper has been summoned for not having taken out a traders' license before commencing to solicit subscriptions. Ogle was representing the Saturday Sunset of Vancouver. Judge Ryan has deferred his decision.

A switchboard for the handling of long distance business exclusively has been installed in the telephone office at Cranbrook.

Ald. J. A. McDonald of Nelson, spent several days in East Kootenay this week on business.

Arthur Sullivan, inspector of schools, has visited many of the schools in East Kootenay during the past few days, making arrangements for the reorganizing of the staffs and other matters preparatory to the re-opening of the schools on August 29.

Moyie's juvenile baseball team defeated that of Cranbrook Friday evening by a score of 6-5.

Some 300 tons of coal is being shipped to Nelson daily from the collieries of the Hosmer mines, limited, at Hosmer. That company is also shipping some 200 tons of coke daily to Trail.

More than the usual number of fire rangers are employed along the C.N.R. this year by the C. P. R., there being a man for every seven miles of road.

Eleven teachers constituted the staff of the Fernie public school when that institution closed for the summer vacation. It is expected that this number will be increased to 13 on the re-opening for the fall term.

Thomas Caven, M. P. P. for the Cranbrook riding, has returned to Cranbrook from Victoria, and will probably remain in his home town for some time.

The Cranbrook and Moyie football teams will play at Aldridge Sunday in the first round of a series of games for the Mutz cup.

Grading for the construction of the Kootenay Central railway is now in full swing. Work is at present being done near Wardner going northward, while another crew of men is employed near Fort Steele, and some 15 miles have already been graded south from Golden. It is not likely that the rails will be laid into Fort Steele before the snow falls, and possibly not before spring. When this branch of the C. P. R. is completed between Cranbrook and Golden it is said that it may be continued north along the Columbia river from Beavermouth to the Big Bend country. The latter territory has fine mica deposits and great mineral resources, besides immense timber areas. Sixteen C. P. R. surveyors left Revelstoke recently to meet another party that started from Beavermouth. They are to conduct and carry out a location survey for this proposed C. P. R. branch through the northern country.

In Cranbrook either advertising or boys are so scarce that a daily paper is carrying a half page advertisement for a youth to learn presswork.

William Gosnell, manager of the Nelson brewery, spent several days in East Kootenay this week.

WOULD TEACH YOUNG IDEA HOUSEWORK

Importance of Training Children to Honor Useful Domestic Labor and to Work Themselves.

Every English woman with children deplores the system by which our children are left to grow up without any experience of practical life. Some of us fight this system. But it is uphill work, because of the curious topsy-turvy notion inherent in English people of all classes, that to do anything with the hands, except for amusement, is degrading. This sentiment is not found over the border, but I am told it is even worse in Ireland, though I cannot speak from personal experience. It is, as far as a foreigner can tell, quite unknown in either France or Germany.

Begins in the Nursery.

I think to this factor may be traced a great deal of the degeneracy we hear so much about. The evil begins in the nursery. The old-fashioned nurse of 40 years ago took infinite pains to teach little Master or Miss to fold up their clothes, brush their own hair, turn down the beds, tidy the room, etc. The cottage woman of the same date, usually trained in a lady's house, brought up her children in the same way. What happens nowadays? The theory of the development of individuality having become rampant in all classes of the community, and the terror of being thought a prig having developed into a veritable disease, little Master and Miss are no longer worried to be tidy. Their mother says (attentually): "It is so unnatural for a child to be tidy." And the nurse—who is very different to her prototype of 40 years ago—would never dream of taking the trouble to teach them, even if she were orderly herself. Was she not brought up in a board school, and does she not know that a "real" lady spends her time reading novels, and a "real" gentleman playing games? The cottage woman inevitably copies her superiors, and the result is the hysterical, untidy, messy child of the present day, who develops into the equally untidy, equally hysterical, equally messy-minded man or woman.

Child Training.

It has been wisely said by the Jesuits, whose experience of teaching is somewhat wide, "Give us a child up to seven years old, and any one on earth may have him later. The child who has learned to help in the household work, to feel he is an integral part of the family, responsible in however small a way for his little share in the comfort and the well-being of the home, may drift into foolish path a later in life, for a time, but will inevitably return in the long run to right thinking and right action. And that is why I venture to plead for what to many seems a very trivial matter, but is really the bedrock of our national well-being. That mothers should insist on their children being trained to "do things about the house," or if they are so fortunate as to live in the country, "to do things about the place."

Good for Children.

The reform of relinquishing such education for children would be so far-reaching that I do not think I am exaggerating when I say that, combined with national service, it would absolutely regenerate England. First, the numbers of unemployables would be diminished to an incalculable degree. There are plenty of people to fill posts where reading and writing are essential. There are very few to fill posts of skilled workmen. And the quick, dextrous hand cannot be trained in later life. Secondly, national economy would be promoted; for the child who knows the cost of things, and the time and trouble they take to create, is not likely to grow into a wasteful man. Thirdly, the servant difficulty, so constantly discussed, would be eliminated; because that difficulty arises from two causes: the ignorance of mistresses, which puts them entirely at the mercy of bad servants, and makes them expect impossibilities of good ones. And the ignorance of servants who, reared in a badly kept cottage, and going on from one badly kept house to another, never get the chances of learning their business. Fourthly, the moral of the whole community would be raised. It is a degrading position to be dependent on people who are, in every sense of the word, inferior; to be afraid to send away an undesirable maid because one cannot do one's own hair; to be afraid to alter something in one's own nursery because the mistress is too ignorant to speak with authority; to be afraid to dismiss a dishonest bailiff because one cannot check the accuracy of his reports.

And it would bring a happier and more normal relationship between classes. We hear a great deal from the press about the antagonism between class and class, the relationship between man and man seems to me to be a simpler and better one; and the reason is, I think, that every one being on much poorer in England, the "menial" work is far more divided, and the upper classes take more share in it. Especially is this noticeable in Germany. I remember once paying a visit to one of the greatest castles there, of which a friend of mine is governor. He was a very brilliant and amusing person besides being a first-rate soldier. As we passed over the draw-bridge to get into the castle, the guard turned out and presented arms to the governor. And on the other side of it sat his darling old mother, calmly shelling the peas for our dinner. After we had eaten the peas (and other things) we sat in a room filled with wonderful family portraits, and she told me about them, and was witty and charming and a woman of the world to her finger-tips. I thought what a delightful combination it was, and how right, and in the best sense of the word, civilization. And what is the objection which nine out of ten people would raise? "Why should one shell peas, if there are people to do it already? Why should my child make beds, and do her own hair? She will never have to; she will always have servants."

The Home at Stake.

If I knew that my sons and daughters were all to marry millionaires and stay millionaires, I should still try to teach them how others less favored live, and how each home, whether that of a millionaire or a dustman, must be conducted on more or less the same principles if it is to be a home. We talk of "the home" being at stake because there are proposals to extend divorce. The home is far more at stake because the mothers of all classes do not take the trouble to train their children to realize that the home is a living, growing organism; that it is not composed of a house, and a staff of servants who work for people they rarely see, or, as in the working classes, of a house, and a mother who slaves all day with no one to help; but that it is a world in itself, in which everything and every one has its place, and where every one has to do their part, so that all may be comfortable. But this is Socialism. Yes, in a sense perhaps, it is Socialism; but Socialism of the kind that levels up, and not down. The Socialism that does not say, as most Socialism does: "Let us make every one wretched and famished and contemptible, and then we shall have real equality." But, "Let us make every one so efficient that we shall be willing to welcome each other on equal terms."—Annabel Jackson, in the National Review.

LAWYERS GREW RICH.

SULPHUR, Okla., Aug. 13—Lawyers' expense accounts running as high as $100,000 a single fee, already paid, amounting to $750,000 and contingent fees still pending that would aggregate about $5,000,000, figured today in the investigation of Indian land affairs by the special committee appointed by the house of representatives. It was pointed out that the Indians had never received large amounts of money due them without having "to come through" in the shape of fees and although they employed regular lawyers on yearly salaries, extra fees were constantly paid for the employment of special counsel.

Your Watch Needs Cleaning

Would the C.P.R. or G.N.R. allow an engine out of their yard without cleaning and oiling same? Well hardly. They must be absoutely clean and properly oiled to run perfectly. How about your watch? Is it clean? Is it properly oiled. Remember it's much more delicate, requires more attention to make it run accurately than an engine. Come to us with it, we are experts in watch repair work.

WOMEN'S WOES.

Nelson Women Are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over when to stoop means torture. They must walk and tend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys.

Mrs. Edward Caldwell of 123 S. Harold street, Fort William, Ont., says:

"I suffered with dull, miserable pains, soreness across my back and in my sides, for months. They would catch me so badly at times that I could scarcely move around. The kidney secretions had also been of a heavy color and contained a sediment. Then, I would have dizzy spells and altogether, felt generally run down. After using a number of remedies without finding relief, I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and am pleased to say, found them an excellent remedy. They have relieved me of the miserable pains and soreness in my back, and have also cured me of my other kidney trouble." For sale in Nelson by the Poole Drug Co., Ltd.

G. C. Groome and his brother, E. H. Groome, of Walla Walla, Wash., have been studying the prospects for fruit growing at Edgewood and have purchased a 15-acre tract of land from the Western Canada Investment company. They have already taken up their residence there with their families, and are now engaged upon improving the property.

W. J. Banting, proprietor of the store at Edgewood, has lately considerably enlarged his building as a result of a rapid increase in business. He states that his turnover last month was $2,200.

Owing to the death of Graham Macdonald, second son of A. Macdonald of Winnipeg, the local branch of A. Macdonald & Co. will be closed tomorrow. The deceased was well known in Nelson. The young man was 26 years of age.

W. F. Teetzel, government agent, last night received instructions from Victoria to commence work immediately upon the repairs to the Molly Gibson wagon road. A large force of men will start the work tomorrow. It is estimated that it will cost about $6,000 to put the road in good order.

The directors of the Street Car company have decided that the colors of the new cars shall be olive green with cream trimmings. It was first intended to use the Nelson colors, green and white, but the directors decided that the green and cream would be more serviceable.

The steamer Moyie will leave the city wharf at 9 a.m. and 2.30 p.m., and returning, will leave Proctor at 7 p.m. The several committees are endeavoring to make this a most successful and interesting outing. Tickets may be bought from the pupils or officers of the Sunday school.

QUIET STRENGTH IN STOCK MARKET

Conservatism of New York Banks Causes Spirit of Uneasiness—Gold Supply

NEW YORK, Aug. 13—There was the same show of quiet strength in the stock market today that developed yesterday. Organized support by strong financial interests was inferred from the manner in which stocks were absorbed and prices advanced. American Smelting turned with the rest of the market and the teasing of weakness in that stock proved a relief to the general list. The rigid conservatism of the New York Banks in conceding credit facilities and especially in the purchase of mercantile paper and in making time loans is said to have been begotten of a spirit of uneasiness throughout the country. There was some talk today of a change in this policy on the part of the New York money lenders and the talk had an effect on the tone of the stock market.

More Gold

New York is expected to secure more gold in London on Monday, the rise in the London exchange rate here lessening, however New York's command of the London gold supply. The discount rate has risen in Berlin and a demand for gold from Egypt and Brazil is expected in London. The consequence was the firmer tone of the discount rate in London today and a sharp fall in British consols to a low record price on the present government.

Money Market

Money on call, nominal time loans, steady, 60 days, 3 per cent; 90 days, 3 3-4 to 4 per cent; six months, 4 3-4 to 5 per cent.

FRECKLE FACED MAN IS STILL AT LARGE

SEATTLE, Aug. 13—Worn out from more than a week's efforts to capture the unknown "freckled faced man" who has kept settlers in the Coeur d'Alene reservation terrorized for the past two weeks, Deputy Sheriff Cole and Robertson of Colfax returned home today.

They state that the unknown who still parades his boast of murder was last seen at a government fire fighting camp where he was given supper. The men whom he talked to stated they did not attempt any arrest as he ate with his rifle at hand and kept close watch on their movements. The men stated he would "give the officers a shower of bullets" if they "started anything." He also told them he had only refrained from shooting down two of the posse because they didn't see him as they passed him in the underbrush. In a sack the man carried flour and bacon.

He was not fatigued in the least from his escape through the brush and timber between Emid and Harvard. The penitentiary blood hounds were taken by stage from Emid to Tekoa today as they could not follow the trail through the underbrush.

Sheriff Bailey and Deputy Sawyer also left for Coeur d'Alene worn out from the man hunt. The officers were informed that the desperado had been only a few feet from them several times and was prepared to kill if molested.
