VOL. 9 NELSON B. C., SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 18, 1910 NO. 51

CITY'S CLAIMS

Placed Before University Commission

Mining and Climate Two Chief Factors

University Club Presents Its Views

The university commission, constituted of leading educationists of eastern and western Canada, and charged by the provincial government with selecting the locality where the provincial university is to be located, held the final session of its three weeks tour of British Columbia, yesterday at Nelson. The morning was devoted to the public session, which was stated to be the most interesting of the commission's tour. The first part of the afternoon was consumed in visiting a possible university site, as the guests of the city council. A jaunt on the lake to Aid. Rutherford's ranch and back, as guests of the University club, completed the day's program.

Today the commission will go to Trail, by way of a holiday, where they will inspect the smelter of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting company.

It is understood that they will attempt to arrive at a conclusion as to the locality they will recommend, before they finally disperse, as it would be difficult for them to come together again after once separating and returning to their homes.

Chairman States Object.

The public session of the commission was held at 10 o'clock in the morning in the court house. The chair was held by Dr. R. S. Weldon, dean of the Dalhousie law school, the secretary being Dr. W. C. Murray, president of Saskatchewan university, their associates being Dr. C. C. Jones, chancellor the University of New Brunswick, Canon Dauth, vice-rector of Laval university and Dr. O. K. Skelton, head of the department of economics in Queen's university. Representing the city were Mayor Selous and Ald. Rutherford, and representing the board of trade were F. A. Starkey the president, and W. B. Farris, while Dr. E. C. Arthur, and Dr. J. T. Ferguson represented the University club. Among the spectators, some of whom gave testimony in the course of the session were Rev. J. P. Westman, C. McL. Fraser, Dr. N. Wolverton, A. M. Johnson, J. O. Patenaude, W. H. Jones, and others.

Dr. Weldon, in opening the proceedings, stated that the commissioners would be glad to hear any views that the people of Nelson might have to express, on the question of the locality in which the university should be placed. It would be their duty to listen carefully to what was said and also to observe. It was not the province of the commission to choose the site upon which the university should be placed, but to choose the locality. If, after the session was over, anyone felt that any important factor had been overlooked, the commission would still be glad to have the matter set before them, and anyone desiring to avail himself of this opportunity should mail his communication to Dr. Murray, secretary of the commission, at Victoria.

Mayor Selous on Nelson.

Mayor Selous extended a cordial welcome to the commission on behalf of the citizens, adding that he took pleasure in drawing the attention of the commission to some of Nelson's claims to be considered as a possible seat for the university. He would confine himself to three points.

The first was that, though this was the mountain country, the city was not without sites in every way suitable for a university. Immediately south of the city was a large tract of land, some of it recently put on the market by the C. P. R., the land also being suitable for agriculture. This site would do if the university were to be placed in the immediate vicinity of Nelson. Going further afield, the number of good sites multiplied with distance. The mountain character of the country was thus no detriment.

The second point was transportation, Nelson now being accessible to a vast amount of tributary territory by rail and by water. In addition to the existing lines of railway, through which Nelson was accessible to all parts of the province, the C. P. R. was about to carry through its southern line to Vancouver, opening up the south and giving a quick, direct route to the coast. Cheap fares removed the objection of distance.

The third point was that of health, health depending on climate, and having a very direct relation to the presence of large bodies of water. In this regard, the situation of Nelson was ideal. He commended these three very mundane and material points to the consideration of the commission. If the commission desired, he would be glad to conduct them to the particular site of which he had spoken.

Dr. Weldon, on behalf of the com-

BODY CLAIMED BY TWO FAMILIES

Dispute as to Identity of Corpse Recovered From Herald Ruins—Both Families at Funeral

MONTREAL, June 17—A dispute took place here this morning as to the identity of a girl burned in the Herald building. One family claims the remains as those of Olive Hart while the other claimed they were those of Irene Merriman. Both families want the body for burial. The Harts finally convinced the coroner and secured the body. The remains are being buried this morning with Protestant rites. The Merrimans who are Catholics, attended the funeral. All was orderly and decorous but the Merrimans at the last claimed the remains as those of their daughter. The body of Miss Merriman has since been recovered from the ruins.

Contractor Takes up Search.

MONTREAL, June 17.—The men employed by the city to delve in the ruins of the Herald building were taken off tonight, and tomorrow morning a contractor engaged by the Herald company will take up the search for the four bodies known to be still entombed in the wreckage. But little more can be done until some of the heavy machinery is moved, and this requires facilities which they did not possess. Of the 28 bodies taken out, all have been identified and claimed with the exception of one, that of a man.

One Not Identified.

As the bodies last taken out were not so badly defaced as those first removed, it is expected that when the others are recovered it will be possible to identify the unfortunates by means of elimination. The bodies claimed today were those of May Butler, Rene Littlejohn, Clement Borrmans, leaving the four missing the body awaiting identification, those of John Wade, Gustave Lippe, John Cunningham, John Cloutlier and Reuben Merrion.

Funeral Today.

The funeral of 20 of the victims, who were members of Typographical union No. 176, will take place tomorrow. It will be a joint funeral, 20 hearses being in the line. The inquest will be resumed in the morning and an attempt will be made to close it up tomorrow evening.

CONGRATULATES SIR HOMAS

HALIFAX, June 17—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy arrived at Windsor today and the mayor of that town presented an address congratulating the Canadian Pacific on acquiring the Dominion Atlantic railway and the Midland railway. Sir Thomas said legislation was necessary before the roads could be formally taken over and may take about a year. In the meantime the road would be run on the same lines, with suggestions from this side of the Atlantic instead of from England.

STRIKE BREAKERS INTIMIDATED

HALIFAX, June 17—Judge Drysdale in the supreme court today continued the injunction in the case of the Cumberland Coal company of Springhill vs. McDougall and said he was satisfied there had been intimidation of those engaged to work on the company's property, where a strike is in progress.

SUPREME COURT NOT FOR TRIVIAL CASES

Judge Clement Objects to Trying Minor Actions—Should go to County Court.

(Special to The Daily News.)

VANCOUVER, June 17.—Judge Clement this afternoon voiced in a practical manner the disapproval of the supreme court bench of lawyers bringing minor actions to that court rather than the county court, thus loading the supreme court calendar and causing delay of important cases. In rendering his decision in a case for damages for the collision of an auto and hack he ordered the plaintiff's costs to be taxed only on the basis of county court fees, and made a set off of the difference between supreme and county court costs in favor of the defendant. This means that the plaintiff's solicitor was practically fined for bringing the action in the supreme court.

Governor General Besieged by Reporters

Speaks in Warm Terms of the Dominion

Sir Henry Dalziel Criticises Roosevelt

BRISTOL, June 17.—On Earl Grey's arrival yesterday he was immediately surrounded by a band of eager press men, but held his own against the fire of questions with frank good humor and subtle avoidance of controversial topics.

"I had a delightful voyage on a most comfortable ship. Development of Canada is going on as strong as it can. The maritime provinces are as good for immigration as the northwest, and the country's prospects were never brighter."

Come and See Canada.

Continuing, he said: "Why don't you come and see the country. You cannot understand it until you see it and visit it. When you have visited it once you won't be happy until you have seen it a dozen times." Earl Grey added that Canadians were pleased with the present class of immigrants. He was finally asked about the imperial spirit in Canada and said: "The imperial spirit is all right in Canada. Why, they are more imperial than you are. I wish you would come to Toronto and see an Empire Day celebration as I saw it, you would know what I mean. The people of Canada believe in themselves and their future as part of the empire."

Says So Too.

LONDON, June 17.—Alf Twigge of Bristol, who arrived home on the Royal George yesterday, says every business man ought to go to Canada and then they would realize the greatness of the country, and how eager Canadians are to deal with British houses.

Speech Still Discussed.

LONDON, June 17.—Sir Henry Dalziel, not being appeased by Sir Edward Grey's explanations of Mr. Roosevelt's Guildhall speech, has given notice in the commons of a resolution deprecating the delivery of public speeches in this country by prominent foreign politicians on matters of British political concern as "calculated to violate respected and time-honored traditions and affording opposed to the best interests of the state."

Unionist Unopposed.

LONDON, June 17.—W. R. Champion, Unionist, was returned unopposed today for the Essex seat, rendered vacant by the death of Col. the Rt. Hon. Sir Henry Fletcher, who won the seat in the Conservative interest at the recent general elections from Basil Williams, Liberal, by 606 majority in a poll of 13,700.

Conference Non Sectarian.

EDINBURGH, June 17.—The non-sectarian character of the world's missionary conference was emphasized by the reading of a letter from Monsignor Bonomelli, Catholic bishop of Cremona, Italy. The communication inviting the bishop to contribute a message to the conference explained that the gathering was merely a conference on how all Christians of every name may better understand each other and better combine to make Christ and his church known to all men. In his reply, Bishop Bonomelli expressed his approval of the conference. "It proves," he said, "that religious feeling ever exercises a supreme influence over the entire life of man, and that the religious factor in our day throughout all time stimulates and urges on human activity toward new conquests in the path of civilization."

Canadian Catholics Overjoyed.

LONDON, June 17.—Archbishop Bourne has received the following cable message from Archbishop Bruchesi, Montreal: "Canadian Catholics are overjoyed at Mr. Asquith's announcement, and confident that the house of commons will finally alter the king's declaration, and hope that the Eucharistic congress may acknowledge the event."

BUSY DAY FOR WIRELESS MANAGER

Manitoba Manager Unable to Give Any Explanation of Affairs of Company—Heavy Investor

WINNIPEG, June 17—Wireless stockholders made this a busy day for R. A. Grant, Manitoba manager of the United Wireless Telegraph company. During the morning hours investors in the stock of this company, the head officers of which are under arrest by orders of the United States postal authorities, thronged the well furnished office of the company here, seeking information as to the status of affairs.

In the Dark

Manager Grant did nothing but inform his anxious callers that he was as much in the dark as to the real situation as any of his visitors. Mr. Grant who says he is a heavy investor in the stock of the concern., has not received a single line of information from the head offices of the company in New York in reply to his repeated telegrams of inquiry as to the condition and method of dealing with stock holders in view of the crisis in the United's affairs.

No Satisfaction

But Mr.Grant did hear from C. C. Wilson of the company's New York offices, via Seattle. Mr. Grant explained that the telegram over Wilson's signature, was probably sent to Seattle and from there duplicated by Mr. Parker, the Seattle manager, to sub agencies in Canada, of which Winnipeg is one. Wilson's telegram was to the effect that the United would come out on top eventually, but ventured no explanation for the action of the American government official.

The local manager said this morning he would take no chances. "I am as deep in this matter, financially as anyone in Manitoba. I trusted Wilson as you would trust your own daddy. I am standing pat on my instructions to my sub-agents in Manitoba not to take money for shares in the United Wireless until this thing clears up."

"Mr. Grant was plainly worried. "Every letter in every file in this office is open to callers who have invested in stock in the United," he said. "I don't want to appear as having swindled or consented, knowingly to the swindle of anyone in my district who has bought this stock."

GAVE UP EMPLOYMENT TO GO TO CANADA

Hosiery Workers Were Deported—Engaged in England and Fares Paid to Paris.

LONDON, June 17.—In reference to the deportation of hosiery workers from Canada, the men, in an interview, complain that their detention was like that of convicts at the immigration hospital, without any explanation. When a week had elapsed they were told they were going to Paris and were ordered to enter the carriages. Two officials went with them and subsequently two policemen with drawn staves joined the party. They declared they had no idea they were being deported until they reached the steamer. The men stated that they had as much as £40 between them at Quebec. One yesterday stated that on their arrival at Liverpool, the Allan officials took poly on them and paid their railway fares to Nottingham. The men are still hoping to return, and say they had sold their homes and given up their employment to go to Canada.

Ottawa Persisted.

PARIS, Ont., June 17.—There is considerable comment here on the circumstances of the deportation of the hosiery workers who were brought to Canada by a local manufacturing firm. The men had been picked out as skilled hands by representatives sent to England and their fares paid to Canada. The matter of detention was taken up by the firm and every effort possible made to have the party sent through. The required $25 was offered for each man but the department at Ottawa was obdurate and would not move. The fact of the scarcity of special help, that these people were all assured work, that their passage was paid to Paris, and that the required amount would be sent, were all laid before the Ottawa authorities, but nothing was done.

KAISER STILL LAID UP.

POTSDAM, Germany, June 17.—Emperor William was housed up at the New palace with the troublesome fight knee today, but received visitors and attended to official business as much as though nothing had occurred to hamper his movements. Inquirers at the palace were told that the affection of one of the tendons at the knee joint, officially stated to have been caused by over exertion in the saddle, was running its normal course. Crown Prince Frederick William and the crown princess, with their children, left today on an automobile for Kiel, where they will represent the emperor and empress during the yacht regatta week.

MUTINY THAT FAILED.

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—A mutiny on board the British steamship Highland Monarch, outward bound from Auckland, New Zealand, was followed by a dash for liberty by a dozen Chinese members of the crew, resulting in the drowning today of four and the narrow escape of three others. The men rescued are in a police station, while those who did not get away from the ship are in irons on board the ship.

MILLION AND HALF IMMIGRANTS IN LAST TEN YEARS

OTTAWA, June 17—Immigration into Canada in the last ten years totals 1,445,288, according to statistics contained in a pamphlet to be issued by the department of immigration. The fiscal year just closed eclipsed all others in the volume of immigration, the arrivals numbering 208,794. Of the grand total about 565,000 came from the British Isles, 394,000 from the continent and 480,000 from the United States.

STILL RAGING

Forest Fires Devastate Port Arthur District

Licking Up Forests and Endangering Settlers

Deaths Added to List of Disasters

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., June 17.—Death has now been added to the crop of destruction reaped by the forest fires, which have been devasting this district for several days. Mrs. Christopher Evans, of O'Connor township, was smothered in the burning of her home while her husband was away with others fighting the advance of the flames, believing his own place to be in no immediate danger. Fred and H. Winslow, brothers, who lost heavily by the destruction of logs in the vicinity of Kakabeka, have not reported to any of the villagers for a couple of days, and while there is no certainty they have been lost, it is feared to have been the case.

Still Licking up Forest.

Flames are still licking up the woods and timber and endangering settlers. The heavy thunder storm which burst over Port Arthur this morning does not seem to have been general. Though there was a heavy rainfall here there was practically none even as close as Fort William. Kakabeka district got a little, but according to telephone reports only enough to lay the dust. Hymers section fared better, getting copious rain which has put an end to the serious fires there at least for a time, and has given settlers and villagers a chance to rest from the labors which have been exhausting their energies for several days past.

The indications tonight are again for rain.

Carl Lindow has returned from the coast, after spending the past month enjoying a well earned holiday.

J. O. Patenaude, the well known jeweler of Nelson, has made a purchase of some fruit land in this district, which goes to show that outside capital is beginning to look around through this district, as this is one of the best known valleys in southern British Columbia.

Geo. Matheus gave his ankle a very bad sprain, which will lay him up for several days.

The new floor being laid in the skating rink for the grand masquerade ball, to be held on July 1, is about finished.

The celebration committee for July 1, report everything favorable. There is already over $400 subscribed, which now assures that the celebration will be a success.

REAL ESTATE MEN EXCLUDED FROM SEARCH OF TITLES

New Regulation Due to Attempt to Tamper With Records—Solicitors Have Free Entry

(Special to The Daily News.)

VANCOUVER, June 17—Attorney General Bowser today made a statement concerning the recent order allowing only solicitors free entry into land registry offices, thus excluding real estate men. He said the action had finally been decided upon as the result of a discovery of an attempt to tamper with records by the abbreviation of pencilled notations made by officials. Mr. Bowser said the result of the order had been that the office staff was able to handle a far larger amount of work because of not being hampered by so many men about the office. It is understood another reason for the order was the practice of realty brokers paying for only one search but making several.

REVOLUTION SPREADING.

WASHINGTON, June 17—Revolution in Nicaragua is spreading throughout the country. Word has reached the state department that the revolution is manifesting itself in parts of the republic other than those controlled by Estrada. According to advices from Managua the report is current there that armed revolutionists are greatly increasing in number in the vicinity of Granada. Considerable manifestations of a revolution also are evident in West Nicaragua.

BRIDGE AT THE PAS

OTTAWA, June 16—The department of railways has called for tenders for the construction of a bridge over the Saskatchewan at Pas Mission, where the Hudson's bay railway is to start from. Tenders must be in by July 1.

At the last session of parliament $300,000 was voted for the purpose.

HERO APPROACHES NEW YORK PREPARES

Roosevelt Nearing Shores of United States—Will be Welcomed by Great Naval Parade

KAISERIN AUGUSTE VICTORIA, via Marconi Wireless, June 17—This steamer which is carrying among its passengers former President Roosevelt, homeward bound after more than a year from home, was 433 miles east of Ambrose Channel lightship at 6 o'clock this morning. If the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria maintains her speed she should be off Sandy Hook at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning. However, if the prevailing fog keeps along the coast the steamer will probably be somewhat delayed.

Weather Frowning

NEW YORK, June 17—The weather forms the only cloud on the horizon of the elaborate arrangements now completed for the return home tomorrow of former President Roosevelt. The day opened with a continuance of yesterday's rain without a sign of blue in the sky and no wind.

At Quarantine

The Kaiserin Augusta Victoria is expected at quarantine early tomorrow. Col. Roosevelt will be taken on board a revenue cutter where breakfast will be served. He will remain aboard the cutter until the great water parade up the harbor starts. Col. Roosevelt will be guarded during the celebration as carefully as if he were still in the White House. The police are taking unusual precautions both on land and water. In the line up there will be about 2000 Spanish war veterans in addition to the Roosevelt Rough Riders, bringing the total numberof soldiers and police on guard to well over 4000. The soldiers are to act as Col. Roosevelts escort and guard. The chief work of the police will be to keep the crowd in order, but they will also look to the protection of all out of town visitors. Four hundred detectives began to scour the city last night for every crook they could recognise. All those gathered in will be held under lock and key until the celebration is over.

Admiral Will Lead

The rear admiral commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard, will command the warships detailed to the naval parade. They will lead the line, with the South Carolina in advance, followed by five torpedo boat destroyers, four revenue cutters and four police boats. Then will come in 13 divisions the fleet of chartered steamers reserved by clubs from all over the country and the excursion steamers, plying for chance fares.

The warships under command of President Taft will first greet the Kaiserin when she comes in sight off Sandy hook and after firing the salute of 21 guns, due a former president they will form an escort of honor for the German ship and escort Col. Roosevelt into quarantine.

CLOSED CONTRACTS FOR THOUSAND BOXES

Cranbrook Firm Secures Share of Creston Apple Crop—Will Pay Top Price.

(Special to The Daily News.)

CRESTON, June 17—Mr. Fink of the Fink Mercantile company of Cranbrook whose firm last season purchased a good portion of the apple crop of the Creston district, heard that there was a likelihood of this season's apple crop falling into other hands so last Saturday Mr. Fink took the train for Creston and on his arrival interviewed the local fruit growers and closed contracts for 1000 boxes of this season's apples for which he will pay the top price.

Richard and Payne the local contractors, have nearly completed the erection of a large barn for J. M. Burton. They are also making extensive improvements at the residence of R. O. B. Fitzgerald in the way of putting in an extensive bay window and veranda.

It is stated that Fort Hill, the little town on the Idaho state line only eight miles from Creston which is noted for its enterprise, is going to hold a grand celebration on July 4 next. Quite an elaborate program is being prepared and there is no doubt but that all who attend will greatly enjoy themselves. Of course Creston will be well represented on this occasion.

George Caserta and William Dunnett are the names of two young men who have been billed to hold a sparring match on the evening of the 25th inst. in the Mercantile hall. This contest will be for six or eight rounds. It is stated that Caserta is very handy with the gloves, being well known in Spokane, while his opponent is also regarded as a hard man to beat. Much interest in this contest among the sporting element of this district is now manifest.

PEACEMAKER FALLS DYING RIDDLED WITH BUCKSHOT

PARRY SOUND, June 17.—A quarrel, attended with fatal results to a peacemaker, occurred at Footes Bay last night in a lumber camp. An Italian named Joseph Pisani became involved in a quarrel with a compatriot and Raphael Domenale stepped between the two men to separate them. Pisani had a shotgun loaded with buckshot in his hand, which was discharged and Domenale received the greater part of the charge in the body, dying from the wounds. As soon as Domenale fell Pisani, still carrying the gun, fled and escaped. He has been surrounded and it is thought that his ultimate capture is only a matter of hours.

FILING CLAIMS

Board Inspects Midway & Vernon Route

Valuators Will Apportion Price for Grade

Call for Accounts Against Railway

(Special to The Daily News.)

MIDWAY, June 17—The valuators chosen to appraise the value of the old grade built by the Midway & Vernon railway between Midway and Rock Creek, met at Midway on the 15th inst and organized. The board consists of R. P. Green of Victoria, Judge Forin of Nelson and I. M. Rice of Seattle, a well known railway engineer who had charge of construction on the Kaslo & Slocan railway and assistant engineer on the Columbia & Western railway.

Mr. Green was appointed by the provincial government, Mr. Rice by the purchasing railway interests and Judge Forin was agreed on as third valuator by the other two. The board organized with Judge Forin as chairman and Mr. Green as secretary.

President Attends

In attendance are J. J. Warren, of Toronto as president of the Kettle, River Valley railway; A. McCulloch of Montreal, as advisory engineer for the railway company and H. B. Smith, an experienced railway engineer, as advisory engineer for the government.

Duties of Valuators

Under section 3 of the act the duties of the valuators are to appraise the grade between Midway and Rock Creek and apportion the money among the persons orfirms or their assignees who did work or supplied material in connection with the actual construction of the grade between the two points. The provincial government makes the payment of this money a condition precedent to the payment of any bonus to the railway which will build the new line from Nicola to Midway and which will give the Kootenay and Boundary districts direct railway connection with the coast via Spence's Bridge. The act provides that the wages and team hire shall be paid in preference and priority to all other claims.

Authority Limited

There may be a misconception abroad as to the scope and powers of the valuators under the act. Surveys of an extensive nature were made between Rock Creek and Vernon, but the valuators have decided that they have no authority to entertain any claims for work done or material including goods and merchandise supplied for surveys beyond Rock Creek, as section 3 of the act reads: "Did work or supplied materials, including goods and merchandise in connection with the actual building of said grade (between Midway and Rock Creek)"

Inspected Grade

On Wednesday the valuators and engineers inspected the grade between Midway and Rock Creek and on Thursday the advising engineers, Messrs. McCulloch and Smith spent the forenoon in taking measurements for estimating the amount of unfinished work but were driven in by the heavy rains which are so welcome to the Boundary district, which needed rain very much.

The board has prepared a notice calling upon claimants to file their claims, properly verified, with the secretary, Mr. Green, which will appear in the coast and interior newspapers for one month, thus giving all those holding checks for wages ample time to present their claims.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL IS BEING ERECTED AT FERNIE

(Special to The Daily News)

FERNIE, June 17—The city authorities in conjunction with the provincial government are erecting an eight thousand dollar isolation hospital here. The site chosen is a high plateau overlooking the city, and the building, which is now under construction will be modern in every particular.

An old and respected employee of the Elk Lumber company named Monkwitz who was injured in the abdomen on Monday night while adjusting some belting at the mill, died in the hospital at noon today. He was one of the oldest employees and very popular with all classes.

As the greens of the Fernie Bowling club are not yet in condition for play, H. W. Herchmer has kindly granted the use of his splendid lawns.

Water Pan Is Correctly Placed In The Sunshine

Few people realize the importance of the water-pan. Yet, without the moisture evaporated from the water in the pan, the warm air passing through the registers is harsh and dry. It is hard on your lungs and on your furnishings.

Now, the water-pan must be correctly placed to be of any real use. If it is placed near the bottom of the furnace (see lower illustration) the moisture has a long route (see arrows) to travel before it reaches the pipes leading to the rooms. It must pass alongside the fire-pot and radiator, and the terrific heat from these dries out nearly every particle of moisture ascending from the pan. Very little reaches the pipes or passes through registers.

Now, notice the location of the Sunshine water-pan. It is placed over the fuel door. The moisture takes the short, direct route to the pipes leading to the rooms. You can always have moisture-laden, healthful air passing through your registers, provided you keep the Sunshine water-pan filled with water.

If you value your health you'll have our local dealer install the Sunshine, with a guarantee to heat your house to your entire satisfaction. 46

REMINISCENCES OF EARLY KASLO

Writer in Los Angeles Mining Review Tells of Days of 1892—Well-known Characters and Their Doings.

The Los Angeles Mining Review publishes the following:

A few days ago I met an old friend who passed through the boom at Kaslo, B. C., when the early reports of fabulous silver-lead strikes attracted 5000 men to that little burg on the shores of beautiful Lake Kootenay, and we indulged, pro and con, in recalling the little episodes that made life bearable while we awaited the spring thaw and what we supposed was fortune for us all. My friend reminded me of an event that had almost slipped my memory, but which now comes back with all its humor. It is no good that I shall convey it to paper for the benefit of those who, like me, were there and for the further edification of those who escaped one of the most spectacular booms of the Northwest.

In the Coeur d'Alene.

In those days, 1892-3, the world had been startled by the terrible outrages in the Coeur d'Alene in Idaho, when men were shot down by union labor and when others, prominent citizens at that, were conducted over the rough mountain trails to the Montana line and told to hike and keep hiking indefinitely. Matters came to such a pass that the troops were called upon and after a few weeks a decided hegira of the troublesome leaders took place and the great majority of them found their way to the Slocan, where Eli Carpenter, the pathfinder; the Hennessey boys, the Seatons, the McGuigans, and other pioneers on his trail, had brought in wonderful specimens from the beautiful wooded mountains skirting the south fork of Carpenter creek.

The Expatriates.

This was the condition when I arrived at the front in the winter of 1892-3 and I confess to you that I had some misgivings as I looked over the crowd that swarmed on the beach to welcome the incoming boat, and made ribald ejaculations of welcome or derision. But I soon found that the roughest expatriates of the Idaho camp were good fellows if one could but gain their confidence, and in the subsequent months I numbered among my friends Jack Lucy, Jack Davis, and a host of others of the same stripe, who had caused not a little of the commotion in Idaho and who were then passing the time away in the north until the efforts of the soldiery had become less personal. Jack Lucy was a particularly good fellow, generous to a fault and full of real humor, but with an uncontrollable desire to indulge in practical jokes that were not always funny to the victims upon whom they were played.

Graham.

At that time the entire crowd at Kaslo (and I tell you, it numbered some of the toughest characters in the Northwest) was controlled by one police officer, a former regular soldier in the British army, named Graham, who has since risen to the dignity of gold commissioner at Revelstoke. Single handed and alone this man kept the crowd in check and it can truthfully be said that in spite of his successful efforts, every rough in the district became his warm admirer and most of them his firm friends.

Principal Amusements.

During the long winter the principal forms of amusement were watching the daily boat arrival, drinking at the dozen saloons that dotted both sides of Front street and, best of all, the occasional arrest of some obstreperous citizens who had momentarily forgotten the majesty of British law in the courageous dregs of too much of the stuff that inebriates and makes fools of us all. On those occasions Graham was the central figure and it was very seldom he was compelled to call for help in his work of shackling and conveying his prisoner to the little log cabin that did duty as temporary jail just on this side of the Growling Kaslo river.

Struck Amidships.

On the occasion I have in mind, Graham was making a particularly strenuous effort to subdue a big Swede who had gone upon a vociferous rampage and, when I arrived on the scene, had just succeeded in hog-tying his quarry without the aid of any of the two hundred men who were standing around in a well-regulated ring. In that crowd were Jack Luck and his Fidus Achates, Jack Davis, the latter a long, lank, shuffle-gaited Missourian, who perhaps to greater extent than any other man in camp, held the majesty of the law, as exemplified by Graham, in the greatest awe. As Graham scuffled with his man, who now lay sprawling on his back, he stooped down to adjust an ankle bracelet and just when his anatomy was in the most receptive posture, he was struck clearly amidships by a rock about the size of a pigeon's egg. I had seen Lucy reach for something a few seconds before I knew from whence the missile came, but I said nothing and waited for the fun. Graham straightened up with a look of passing anguish on his face and demanded the name of the man with the temerity to strike him while in the performance of his duty. No one spoke, but murmurs of disapproval arose on every hand. Graham was mad clear through and, after taking his prisoner to the dungeon, returned up town and again pursued his inquiries with the threat that he would see the culprit got two months at Ainsworth jail.

The Conspiracy.

Meanwhile I had been walking around with Lucy and when we met Graham the former immediately opened the conversation by saying that he liked a joke as well as anyone, but that he thought it was carried too far when a man whom we all respected was struck in such an undignified portion of his anatomy with a rock. Said he, "I am going to tell you who did it, to show you that I deplore such treatment and because I believe the man who did it needs a lesson to show him that he cannot trifle with the law as he did in the Coeur d'Alenes." Still smarting with pain, Graham said, "If you know, Lucy, you had better tell me at once or it may be the worse for you." "Well," said Jack, "I hate to peach upon a friend, but it was Jack Davis, I saw him." With that Graham darted off to make his arrest, but Lucy knew Davis was safe for an hour or so and meanwhile put his cronies "wise" to the game on foot. One after another they went to Davis and told him the jig was up, that Graham knew who threw the rock, that he was being sought for at that very moment and that he had better get into safe hiding. Davis strenuously denied his guilt, but after ten or twelve of his friends had given him the same advice he began to think that the cards had been "stacked" anyway, and that, innocent or not, he was elected for a considerable term in the district jail at picturesque old Ainsworth further down the lake. And so he permitted the conspirators (led by Lucy, of course) to hide him away for the night and next morning made his "get-away" under a tarpaulin in a lumbering ore wagon, to the Fifteen-Mile house, then kept by old Jim Sproul. There he remained for two weeks, receiving disturbing daily bulletins of the progress of events in Kaslo and eating his heart out away from his friends and the oases of Front street. Then a wayfarer, with more compassion than the rest, told him just how matters stood and Davis shot off to Kaslo to find Lucy and chastise him within an inch of his life. It took several men to hold him when he eventually ran him down in John Ward's saloon, but he subsequently saw that the laugh was upon him and made the best of a bad situation by buying the drinks all around.

When I last heard of Lucy he was mining in the Boundary country in British Columbia, but I suppose 'ere now he has gone on his way with the rainbow chasers, and is either in Patagonia or Timbuctoo. Wherever he may be look out for him. He is one of the best fellows in the world, but his brand of practical jokes is sometimes a trifle disturbing to his friends.

GREAT BRITAIN WILL LAUNCH MILE A MINUTE AIRSHIP

Two Hundred Yards Long—Will Remain in Air for Days and Travel at Mile a Minute Rate

A London dispatch says: In a few week's time the largest, fastest and most powerful airship in the world will be launched at Barrow.

This leviathan is the first airship ever constructed for the British navy and it is the forerunner of a fleet of airships which are to be the Dreadnoughts of the air.

The same inviolable secrecy that was maintained during the rapid construction of the sea Dreadnoughts at Portsmouth is being preserved in the case of this vessel, which Messrs. Vickers Son & Maxim are building at Barrow for the admiralty.

Only half a dozen people in the country possess knowledge of the entire design, and knowledge of sections is confined to the smallest possible number of officials and workmen, any of whom would be liable to penal servitude if he divulged any of the precious secrets connected with the vessel.

New Ship's Duties

This airship is intended to be a battle ship of the air. It will be manned by a specially trained crew and its duties will consist of thoroughly and quickly exploring the upper regions in search of the enemy's airships, overtaking them and dropping explosives on the decks of warships below.

To carry out these duties effectually Britain's airship will have to remain in the air for several days on end and have a speed superior to that of any foreign ship, whether on the sea or in the air.

So far as can be learned both these vital conditions will be fulfilled. When completed the ship will be nearly 200 yards long.

The gas envelope alone will be of enormous size, far greater than that of the famous Zeppelin airship, while the vessel itself will be fitted with not only powerful engines but with sleeping accomodations for the crew and a number of special guns and mountings.

In regard to the speed, it is said on good authority that it is hoped to maintain a rate of 60 miles an hour under favorable conditions.

Propeller Testing

Experiments are now being made with the object of finding out which is the best type of propeller to use. A curious looking structure has been erected in Messrs. Vickers' engineering yard at Barrow for carrying out these experiments. It rather resembles the section of a steel suspension bridge, through the middle of which has been run a mast. At one end of the bridge a propellor is fixed on a shaft, a motor is set going and the whole of the heavy structure is carried round and round at a terrific speed by the force of the revolving propeller.

This testing structure can be seen from the roadway and when it is working many people try to figure out the speed at which it is whizzed round by the rapidly revolving propeller. The airship is now built in sections in the engineering shops. When completed the sections will be taken to the shed and assembled.

Trials on an extensive scale will be conducted and the ship will afterwards leave for her permanent station which no doubt will be on the east coast.

As soon as the trials are completed a fleet of airships will be built embodying whatever improvements on the original design are thought to be necessary.

HUNGARIAN ELECTION RETURNS

The latest returns from the Hungarian elections indicate a substantial working majority for the government. Coupled with the complete defeat of the various coalition parties, including that of Julius Justh, who was responsible for the downfall of the Kossuth coalition cabinet, the results of the polling are taken here to indicate that the Hungarian people desire a policy of peace and moderation, that they are weary of the constitutional quarrels and turmoil of the past few years and that they are anxious to see parliament devote its energies to the material development of the country.

With the new parliament there will probably begin a new and better relationship between the two halves of the monarchy, free from continuous wrangling over questions relating to the use of the Hungarian language in the army and an independent state bank for Hungary.

Count Khuen Hedervary's first urgent task will be to insure a meeting of the delegations to provide for the common finances of the monarchy.

Both the Austrian and Hungarian national exchequers are depleted. The Austrian budget deficit is $15,000,000, while the military authorities are demanding $30,000,000 with which to build dreadnoughts and increase the army and navy. Hungary's finances are in an even worse condition.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

SPORTING NEWS

Looks as if Reno Would be Home of Big Championship Mill

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17—Unless an unforeseen shift occurs in the fight situation a definite statement that Jeffries and Johnson will come together for the championship battle at Reno, is expected today from Promoter Rickard, who said today: "It is safe to say that the fight will take place in Reno. I am not going to spend any more time or money in California, but Jeffries and Johnson will meet on the Fourth of July even if I have to take them on the desert to hold the fight and even if it breaks me."

No Fight

That there is no intention on the part of the state authorities to retract from their position is clearly indicated in the latest announcement of the governor and attorney general. Governor Gillett says: "I understand that many men have arranged to come to California to see Jeffries and Johnson fight. To them I want to say that they need have no doubt of the situation. There will be no fight between Jeffries and Johnson in California."

Attorney General Webb says: "There will be no fight between Jeffries and Johnson, nor between Kauffman and Langford. The latter fight, which is scheduled for Saturday will be stopped by force if the principals and promoters make such action necessary. My intention is to file a petition today asking for a restraining order."

Will be in Reno

Arrangements are under way for the erection of a mammoth arena in Reno. According to Rickard's statement he will leave on Sunday morning if the local situation has not cleared and take personal charge of the preparations there. "As everyone knows," he said, "the laws of Nevada are explicit and in that state there is nothing to prevent a dozen fights a day taking place, as long as a regular permit is obtained. Aylesworth, a Reno man, in whom I have the greatest confidence, has wired me that Reno people will build us an arena free of cost and that they will provide us with a license. They say the arena can be erected wherever necessary in ten days. It will not be as big as the one we have in San Francisco, but it will be big enough. It will hold 20,000 spectators. I had word from both Jeffries and Johnson that they will fight anywhere I want them to. Jeffries says on a barge if he has to."

Hotelmen Want Fight

The San Francisco hotel men's association has adopted resolutions condemning the efforts to prevent the fight. The resolutions read that for many years boxing contests have been permitted in California without interference and that it will work a great hardship to stop the present fight on account of the large number of visitors it would draw to the city.

Jack Johnson seems to be worrying more over the attachment of his automobile by George Little, his deposed manager, than over the fight muddle.

HUNT MILLIONS ON OCEAN BED

Company Formed to Salvage Thirty-Two Wrecks—One is Worth Five Millions

Anybody who likes to take a sporting chance in a scheme to recover $10,000,000 from 32 shipwrecks can do so by becoming a shareholder in a venture which is just now taking shape in London. It is not a hunt for lost Spanish galleons. The promoters describe it as an exploration of 32 known wrecks, 16 of which have been located and surveyed.

They are mostly on the South African coast, along which richly laden transports and East Indiamen had to sail before the Suez canal was constructed. The archives of Cape Colony alone have records of more than 7000 vessels that have been wrecked along the Cape route, and now a syndicate has acquired licenses from the Cape government, granting authority to recover the contents of the 32 known wrecks and also the exclusive records and charts containing information concerning them.

Wreck No. 1, says a report drawn up by the prospective salvers, had a cargo including 720 gold bars, 1460 silver bars, nine boxes of precious stones and specie, the aggregate value of which is estimated at over $5,000,000. The wreck is in from 3 1-2 to 4 1-2 fathoms of water, hull intact and contents easily recoverable.

Wreck No. 2 is valued at $1,000,000, No. 3 at $3,500,000, No. 4 at $4,000,000 and so on. Two of the wrecks are in sand, the others lie in kelp. With modern centrifugal pumps it is expected to clear the vessels of the accumulated sand and the salvage can be completed, the promoters hope, in about six months time, at a cost of from $10,000 to $40,000 in each case.

THE MEMORY OF DOLLARD AND THE NEEDS OF TODAY

Some people are inclined to say that Canada has no history. On the contrary, says the Toronto News, our annals are a veritable mine of romance and heroism. This deed of Dollard and his immortal 16 may rank with that of Horatius on the bridge, with Thermopylae, with the sea fight of the Revenge. It is eminently fitting that all Canadians should remember the portage of the Longue Sault and the men who died there. For that reason it is to be hoped that the enthusiasm which prompts the erection of a permanent artistic record of Dollard des Ormeaux and his sacrifice shall spread beyond the confines of Montreal and awaken the interest of Canadians in other cities and other provinces. The monument should be not only civic, but national, an heroic memorial, worthy in splendor and beauty of the golden deed which is to be commemorated.

Let us quote the lesson which Dollard brings to Canadians of the Twentieth Century as expressed by Mr. Omer Heroux, writing in Le Devoir: "Because 17 young men, unknown to the world, cast in the balance the weight of their life blood, the future of one part of this continent was modified, and destiny changed her course. The sacrifice of Dollard was an heroic sacrifice, inscribed in letters of fire and blood in the annals of a people. But it was an exceptional act which the nation rarely demands of its children. What it daily requires is the sacrifice of their time, of their interests, of their petty passions; the daily burning away of hate and rancor. However modest and simple it may appear such devotion is as necessary to the life and stability of a nation as the glorious act of a Dollard."

GREAT FORTUNES IN CALIFORNIA OIL

More Men Have Amassed Wealth from Oil Investments than from Any Other Securities

THIS advertising announcement will appear in this publication but once. It contains a message for men who have money to invest, in small or large amounts, in a proposition which at the same time embraces the maximum amount of security for the money invested, and promises greater profit than any other form of investment in the Western field.

If you will take the time to review the history of the oil fields, both in the Eastern and Western portions of this Continent, you will find that the men who have amassed fortunes are the men who invested originally very small sums of money in oil shares.

Do you know that $100 invested at the inception of many an oil company, frequently multiplied in profits and actual worth until the holding today represents from $1,000 to $15,000.

Take for instance, if you had invested $100 in the following companies, on the following basis, you would have made:

Silver Tip	$ 600
W.K.	1,000
Sterling	1,000
Premier	1,100
Monte Cristo	1,120
Record	2,000
S. F. & McK	2,400
Sourdough	4,166
Lucile	5,000
San Joaquin	5,700
Peerless	6,350
Kern River	9,500
Central Oil	15,000

"Final" shares sold at 25 cents; they are now selling at $25 and paying monthly dividends of 15 per cent, an income of $60 per month on an investment of $100. When the "Silver Tip" came in, the stock jumped over night from 66 cents to $4 and has been paying monthly dividends of 10 per cent ever since.

Similar opportunities are open to you but you must think for yourself, have the courage of your convictions and ACT.

Coalinga is a district situated in the state of California, which is now so generally known as the greatest producer of high grade petroleum that it is unnecessary for us to take up much space in describing the geographical construction of the field, or the actual results of operations of the many companies who control property in Coalinga.

This company, the Coalinga-Eureka Oil Company, Inc., is a limited liability corporation, the shares of which are non-assessable and have a par value of $1.

As development progresses the price of stock will naturally advance. Even now trading in Coalinga-Eureka shares is very active. The limited block to be sold at 25 cents per share should, we estimate, be taken up on or before July 16th. We have therefore set set this as the closing out date for the unsold shares in this company at 25 cents each.

This means that it will be impossible for you to buy a share in this company at 25 cents after July 15th, 1910, and we give this notice that the price of stock will be advanced to at least 50 cents on the morning of July 16th. Should there then remain any portion of the block at 25 cents, the same will be immediately withdrawn from the market.

Stock May Be Advanced Any Day

The company reserves the right to advance the price of shares at any time prior to July 16th, should the block of 100,000 shares at 25 cents be taken up in the interim.

We have recommended our most intimate friends to reserve their stock by wire and not delay in writing by mail. On receipt of the reserve order we will immediately set aside such stock, allowing the applicant the necessary time for the remittance to reach this office by mail.

The very fact that the stock of this company will be sold for 50 cents on July 16th, should warrant the reader in reserving by wire as many shares as possible forthwith.

You will readily see if you purchase a block of 500 shares today, on easy terms, at the present price, 25 cents per share, you could sell one half of your holdings when the price advances to 50 cents and thus have the other half free of cost to yourself.

The trading in the stock of this company will naturally be more active when the price is 50 cents than at the original price, 25 cents.

There is every indication of the stock being worth and selling for $1 in 90 days' time. Do not delay in making your application.

No application received for less than 200 shares.

The stock may be purchased on an all cash basis, in which case certificates are issued at once, or on an easy-payment plan, as per schedule herewith

CRESTON SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC IS GREAT SUCCESS

(Special to The Daily News.)

CRESTON, June 17—A farewell party was given on Tuesday afternoon last by Mrs. J. M. Barton in honor of Mrs. A. B. Attwood on the eve of her departure to Merle on a visit and from thence to the coast.

The drawing room was prettily decorated with roses and Oregon grape. An amusing feature of the afternoon was a contest in dressing peanuts at which Mrs. P. C. Hayman won the first prize, being a handsome cup and saucer, while the booble prize was captured by Mrs. Henderson, being a jack in the box. Vocal and instrumental music was participated in by many of the guests. Dainty refreshments were served, ample justice being done to the ice cream and strawberries. Mrs. Barton assisted by Mrs. Darbyshire and Miss Howarth proved herself a most admirable hostess and a most enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of "God be With You Till We Meet Again." Among those who were invited were the following: Mrs. A. B. Attwood, guest of honor, Mesdames Elliott, Cartwright, Hyde, Stocks, Arrowsmith, Young, M. Young, A. Miller, Rose, Watcher, Hayman, Henderson, Dow, Mallandaine, McCreath, Darbyshire, Brown, Bevan, Coulter, Reid, Hobden, Ranford, Rutherford, Wilson, Huscroft, Cameron, Speers, and the Misses Cartwright, Howarth, Johnson and Dunard.

Picnic Success

The union Sunday school picnic held last Saturday afternoon in the beautiful grove on George Huscroft's ranch by the Presbyterian and Methodist Sunday schools, proved a great success. Although the day was a little showery it did not interfere with the games, the children enjoying themselves to their heart's content playing games, swinging and running races. The committee having this affair in hand deserve all kinds of credit for the successful way in which the program was carried out.

Contract for Apple Boxes

An enthusiastic meeting of the fruit growers' association was held on Monday afternoon last when the matter of the local association affiliating with the B. C. Fruit Growers' association was taken up. At this meeting a contract to make apple boxes was awarded to Messrs. Cartwright and Hyde, while it was decided to order the raspberry crates from New Westminster. This meeting throughout was most interesting and much other business of minor importance was transacted.

AN EXPERIMENTAL FARM FOR THE KOOTENAY

In Alberta the Dominion government maintains two experimental farms. In British Columbia, with about twice the area of Alberta, it maintains but one.

The reason given for establishing two farms in Alberta is the undoubted difference in climate between the country one hundred miles south of Calgary and that one hundred miles north There is a much greater difference between the climate of the lower Fraser valley, where the sole experimental farm in this province is situated and that of the Kootenay three hundred miles distant.

Further east on the prairie the Dominion has one experimental farm at Indianhead and another at Brandon. Yet the distance is not so great, and the difference in agricultural conditions not nearly so great as that between Agassiz and Nelson.

What is supposed to be the object of the experimental farms at Ottawa and in other places where these are situated? Is it not to obtain and distribute information and to furnish practical demonstrations to the farmers of the Dominion. Why should nothing of this sort be furnished by the department to the interior of British Columbia.

There is if possible, even more reason for such a farm here than in most places where farms have been established, for there is probably more to be learned by experiments scientifically conducted of the special agricultural possibilities of the district.

Let us have an experimental farm for the Kootenay.

THE TEHUANTEPEC MYTH AGAIN

What may be termed the Tehuantepec myth appears again in a recent issue of the Vancouver Province where a writer attempts to demonstrate that the Tehuantepec railway has some chance of competing with the Panama canal. Of the reasoning by which this conclusion is supported the following is a sample:

> On paper, of course, water transportation can put the railroads out of business with one hand tied. It has been demonstrated beyond the possibility of successful contradiction again and yet again that a steamship or a steamboat or even a canal boat, can haul freight so much cheaper than a train that the latter cannot even earn interest on its bonds. As a matter of prosaic history, however, it will be remembered that the railroads even in their crude days of undevelopment, simply took all the traffic away from the canals, which had had some years the start of them, leaving the canal boats to rot and the canals themselves to degenerate into dock ponds.

It is not the fact that even on paper any kind of water transportation can put the railroads out of business, or that any canal boat can haul freight cheaper than a railway train. Freight can now be hauled more cheaply by rail, both in theory and practice than on the sort of canal boat which is hauled by horses and which was put out of business by the railways.

As compared with the cost of operation on the best modern railways, freight cannot be hauled economically even by the large steamboats through long canals where they must travel slowly. Advocates of the Georgian Bay canal are using misleading comparisons when they assume that the cost of shipment, distance for distance, over their proposed route would be much the same as that on the great lakes.

But where freight can be placed on large vessels and taken at a fair rate of speed for long distances, the cost of transportation is very much lower than by rail. Even if for a small portion of the distance the vessel has to travel very slowly through a canal or river route, there is still a great saving. That is the theory and it is proved to be correct when put to the test of practice. All shipments from Lake Superior ports to the east have to pass through the Soo canal and the St. Mary river, yet no railway attempts to compete with that route while navigation is open on the lakes.

From Chicago eastward to Lake Erie freight is hauled by rail at perhaps as low a cost of operation as anywhere else in the world. From Chicago to Toledo and other ports on the west end of Lake Erie the distance by rail is about one-fourth the distance by water. Yet so long as navigation is open the railways cannot compete with the water route.

It should be added that even the canals in use at the time of the introduction of railways were at an additional disadvantage because their freight came or went largely to points at more or less distance from their banks. The cost of transshipment and of teaming overland had to be added to the cost of the water haul. Even so they were not finally put out of business until they were bought up by the railways.

In the case of competition by the Tehuantepec railway for part of the haul from the Pacific coast to the Atlantic or to Europe, it is the railway route which will involve the extra transshipments. And the canal will be only a comparatively small part of the rival water route. Even across the isthmus of Panama a comparatively small part of the distance will be through what is usually thought of when a canal is mentioned. Most of the Panama "canal" will consist of what might more properly be termed a lake.

mission, accepted the mayor's offer.

Wanted in Interior.

F. A. Starkey, president of the board of trade, formally welcomed the commission on behalf of that body. He said it would be pleasing to the business portions of Nelson to see the university here. As president of the associated boards of trade, he would state that if the university could not come to Nelson, other portions of the Kootenay had good sites. Failing Nelson, they hoped it would at least be located in the interior. He trusted that the commission would see that the interior had claims. The university should not be set apart from the business affairs of the country.

Case for Kootenay.

W. B. Farris stated that he had been chosen to present the case for this locality, on behalf of the board of trade, and regretted that inadequate time for preparation did not permit of his presenting it in the way he would like. As he understood the case, the commission was not looking for arguments on the merits of city or country location, and in his opinion it would be presumptuous for the board of trade or any other body to offer the commission views upon that point. He conceived that the commission had come to hear what advantages Nelson had to offer, as a location for the university.

The first essential of course was a suitable site, for without that, there would be no use in thinking of the university. The mayor had shown that Nelson had that suitable site, so on that point there was no need to go further.

Conditions for Sport.

The next point was the superiority of the climatic conditions here, Nelson and Kootenay lake having a climate that could not be excelled, and that in his opinion, could not be equalled, in Canada. It was neither hot in summer nor cold in winter, yet was cold enough in winter for the Canadian winter sports. It was desirable that students in Canada should be brought under Canadian conditions, and so far as British Columbia was concerned, the conditions for Canadian winter sports were only obtainable in the Kootenay. Summer followed on the heels of winter, and when the winter sports were over, the summer sports came in with almost no interval. A great factor in modern university life was aquatic sports, which were being taken up all over the world. The facilities at Nelson for these were a strong reason for considering this location. The suggestion had been made in some quarters that the climate of the Kootenay was conductive to study. Whatever the reason, climate, natural aptitude, or better instruction, the pupils of Nelson invariably led those of the coast. Personally, he attributed this superiority to climate, as naturally the coast cities ought to have as good or better teaching facilities than Nelson. Particular climatic conditions at a seat of learning often deterred parents from sending their children there for their education. Many people had an objection of this sort to the climatic conditions at the coast. No one had ever heard any criticisms of the climate of the Kootenay.

In college life one of the great essentials was competition, and if located here, the provincial university would be in a position to enjoy all the advantages of such competition. The speaker pictured the time when the prairie would blossom with institutions of learning, between which and the British Columbia university there would be friendly competition in the various kinds of athletic sports and in debate.

Centre of Population.

The speaker said a certain resolution had been passed by the University club, at a meet at which, though a member, he was not present. From that resolution, which favored the location of the university near the chief centre of population, he dissented, and he wished to say that in this case, the mayor and himself represented 95 per cent. of the people of Nelson.

It must be remembered that British Columbia was yet in its infancy, its great wealth and its great acreage had virtually not been touched. If the centre of population changed in five years, if it was necessary that the university be located near the centre of population, it was logical that the university would have to change too. The solution of the question lay in looking to the future, and not going by present conditions. The future of Nelson and of the Kootenay district, he believed, would be beyond the expectations of the greatest optimist of today.

Branches of Industry.

A trinity of factors, agriculture, mining and forestry, opened illimitable possibilities of wealth and development for this part of the province, and these three, the chief factors in the making of a great province, were here in greater perfection than in any other part. Every kind of mining, and every feature an expert in mining could desire for practical illustration, was here at hand, while in regard to the soil, the agriculture of British Columbia would be carried on in the interior. These two advantages could not be excelled. As for the forestry, vast interior forests presented themselves to the student wherein to make his training practical.

The smelting of zinc ores was now being taken up, and that theory would soon be solved, which would mean enormous wealth to the Kootenay, which was filled with zinc-lead ores. The Dominion government had made an appropriation of $50,000 for experiments, the provincial government cooperating in permitting the use of the plant and practical results were certain.

A few weeks ago Hon. Thomas Taylor, a member of the provincial government, estimated that within five years there would be 50,000 people in the Creston valley, where now there were 3000. To the eyes of visitors, the mountains seemed to come down sheer to the water, but investigation revealed a wealth of land. In a few years Kootenay lake would be lined with a thick population.

Origin of Students.

One argument made in favor of locating the university at the coast was that the student body would be largely drawn from the cities. Figures, however, showed that the great body of the students attending Canadian colleges were drawn from the country.

Mayor Selous had pointed out the projected new C. P. R. line to the coast. The speaker was informed that in four years the new line would be in existence, making the distance between Nelson and Vancouver, 18 hours. So the students from the coast would suffer no disability.

The interests of parents and friends of students, in the welfare of a university, was essential to its success. If located in the Kootenay, the provincial university, with its appeal to the aesthetic sense, and with its opportunities for sport, would attract frequent visits of those interested in the students.

Mr. Farris again warned the commission against drawing a distinction between a large and a small city, claiming that it was a moot point in the educational world as to which was a preferable location for a university. It was significant that many of the word's largest and most famous universities were, in their inception, located in small places.

Stating that he could go on interminably, but that he believed he had covered the main points of the case, Mr. Farris closed, leaving the arguments to the favorable consideration of the commission.

University Club's Views.

Dr. E. C. Arthur, president of the University club, extended a welcome to the commission on behalf of the club. Although the club represented but 1 per cent. of the city's population, according to Mr. Farris, yet it could claim a large measure of credit for the university about to be established. The University club of Nelson was organized in 1903, and at its second meeting it took up the matter of the establishment of a provincial university, and urged it, in season and out of season, during the ensuing years.

As representing the University club, he agreed heartily with all that had been said of the advantages of Nelson as a location, from the point of view of climate, and other considerations, and if the commission decided that the university should be located at Nelson, none would be more pleased than the members of the University club. In the absence of that expectation, however, the University club respectfully submitted the views that represented the concensus of opinions of its members.

Three years before, the University club adopted a resolution expressing the opinion that the university should be placed in or near the largest centre of population. At the last meeting of the club, two resolutions were adopted, one re-affirming the resolution referred to, the other expressing an opinion in favor of placing the departments of the university close together. Rev. Dr. Ferguson would discuss the first of these resolutions, and he would follow in support of the second.

Dr. Ferguson's Argument.

Dr. Ferguson submitted his argument in written form, as follows:

"Reference may be permitted to a letter of R. J. Clark, which appeared in the Vancouver Province of the 2nd inst., narrating the proceedings of the Nelson University club with reference to the establishment of a university for the province of British Columbia. It was there shown that the attention of the club having been called, in March, 1906, to the question of location, a resolution was adopted in favor of placing the university at or near the largest centre of population in the province. This remains the recorded and unaltered expression of the opinion of the members, so far as can be ascertained. (Dr. Ferguson here remarked that Mr. Farris had just disclaimed sympathy with the attitude of the club, and he took note of Mr. Farris' dissent). After due notice had been given, the subject was discussed so recently as the 11th inst., and the resolution then arrived at has been reported to the university site commission at its present sitting.

"In support of the resolution, it may be stated that a survey of the establishment of universities in more recent times seems to reveal a tendency to seek proximity to large centres of population. The present location of many of the older universities in comparatively small towns or cities, or in more sequestered localities, can be historically explained with reference to causes not in most cases inconsistent with this modern trend. The times in which we live are notoriously marked by the movement of population citywards; and some of the causes leading to this movement may be regarded as operative in connection with the location of universities.

Intellectual Stimulus.

"It is obvious that where a large mass of population exists, leading an energetic and varied life, and intellectually stimulated by the conditions of their existence, it is probable that a large proportion of persons who desire the benefits of university training will be drawn from that mass. The presence of a university itself has the effect of exciting the interest and arousing the ambition of youths of capacity. Their convenience is worthy of being studied in connection with the question of location. The university, moreover, is likely to derive benefit from the neighborhood of the large and complex interests of a comparatively dense population. It may be granted that the cloister and the grove have something to commend them in reference to the interests of teachers and scholars alike. But it is possible to secure the quietude proper to the aims and pursuits of the university without sacrificing the advantages of stimulation which have just been referred to.

"It is fairly to be considered also that in the neighborhood of a wealthy city, the university is likely to receive material advantage as presenting to prosperous citizens a worthy object of benefaction. Civic pride and local patriotism will link themselves with admiration of and respect for learning, and will suggest to the possessors of wealth the propriety of founding scholarships and bursaries, and possibly even chairs, in the university which constantly presents itself to the eye and the mind of the busy throng.

"It is important to point out that the churches, in instituting schools of theology with preparation in arts, colleges which are likely to become affiliated parts of the provincial university, have already shown that they regard the large centre of population as most suitable to their interests. In a province in such a stage of development as our own, many of the theological students are likely to be engaged during part of the year at least, in mission work, and a considerable number of these may be required to give such service even during the college session. Mission fields are likely to be numerous where the population is large. The churches have this aspect of their work in view in placing their colleges at or near the largest centre of population. Reference may be made in this connection to what has been done in British Columbia by the Presbyterian, the Anglican, and the Methodist churches.

Proximity of Opportunities.

"The advantage of a large population in the neighborhood of medical schools need scarcely be insisted on. Large and highly equipped hospitals are recognized as of supreme importance in the training of students for the medical profession. These as a rule can be most economically, conveniently, and efficiently maintained in districts where people in the largest number are born and labor, meet with accidents and fall sick, suffer and die. It is in such centres that clinical and surgical work can be most effectively carried on; and there, also, as a rule, the medical and surgical specialist takes up his abode.

"In the department of law, the large and varied business of the great centre of population provides opportunities for the student who is at once learning the practice of his profession and studying the theory and principles of law, opportunities such as cannot be found in small and secluded communities. Especially in this the case where commercial and industrial interests are actively represented, and where manufactures are extensively carried on.

"Similarly, in regard to the various branches of applied science, which are destined to be of increasing importance in modern universities, the nearness of the university to centres where industries and manufactures are largely developed will be found to be of benefit to professors and students alike. And it may be pointed out that, judging by the experience of many countries, it is probable that these will be developed especially at that part of our province which is contiguous to the sea, the accessibility of marine or water transport being of value to manufacturers and merchants. The opening of the Panama canal will certainly have an effect in promoting increase of population on our seaboard, and that increasing population will more and more become an industrial and commercial population.

Aesthetic considerations.

"It need scarcely be pointed out that it is only in large centres that the best facilities can be given for the study of the fine arts, such as painting, architecture, and music. Public museums and art galleries are not likely to be established at remote points where comparatively few people dwell; and such institutions are indispensable to the student. The proper promotion of orchestral and choral music in such forms as are of advantage to students is possible only where numbers and wealth contribute to this end.

"Furthermore, the large centre of population alone offers in sufficient abundance, opportunities for students of coming into contact with the most prominent personalities, opportunities which are of subsidiary but real importance to students in their search for mental culture. The statesman, the lecturer, the preacher, the artist, find their largest and readiest audience amid an abundant population. And in such an audience, the university student finds himself receiving impressions and obtaining a vision and stimulus which form a part of his intellectual and moral discipline not to be disregarded."

Dr. Ferguson added that the representatives of the University club did not consider it part of their functions to enter into a debate with their friends. All that their friends had said as to the advantages of Nelson, the club would endorse. But the statement just given, and that which would be given, represented the views of the club, upon the general considerations they had had before them.

Concentration.

Dr. Arthur then took up the other resolution of the University club, stating that the club at its June meeting went on record as being in favor of concentrating all the faculties of the university as near to one centre as possible. This action was taken because many favored locating the university at or near the coast, the school of mines somewhere in this neighborhood and the agricultural college at some other point. In the opinion of the club, this would militate against economical management, as it would necessitate a certain amount of duplicating both in staff and other equipment. If all departments were grouped at one centre, for instance, one staff could teach chemistry to the students of all the faculties, whereas if scattered throughout the province, probably twice the number of lecturers would be required. This did not mean that the students of different faculties would require the same lectures, but the same lecturers could be utilized. While for hospital and clinical facilities, the most of the work in the faculty of medicine should be done in a large city, preferably a seaport, it would be a great advantage if the university were near enough so that the students in medicine could have access to the chemical and biological equipment of the university.

Great Student Body.

Dr. Arthur referred to the great area of the province, 332,000 square miles, and to the fertile valleys which accumulated the rich substance from the mountain sides. He believed the day would come when the population of British Columbia would be as numerous per square mile as that of the prairie states. Not very long ago in history, Illinois had 12,000 population, now it had 6,000,000. It possessed now three universities and 30 or 40 colleges. California, a state much resembling British Columbia, had a population under 2,000,000, and had two universities, one state endowed, and the other privately endowed. The student population everywhere had grown greatly in 10 years, and he expected to live to see it 4000 in British Columbia, while children now living would see it 10,00. Above all, a generous site should be chosen for the provincial university, and he hoped it would be from 1200 to 2000 acres in extent. He hoped the agricultural college would be located near the general university.

He did not attach great importance to the matter of climate, but considered it a matter worthy of being investigated by the commission. If conditions at the coast were detrimental, they certainly did not want the university to be placed there. However, Washington university had the same climate, and he knew that, whatever the cause, it was doing fair work.

Ald. Rutherford asked if this result must not be in spite of the climate.

Dr. Wolverton's Views.

Dr. Wolverton offered his views to the commission, stating that he had not been specially commissioned to speak, but had certain opinions which had grown upon him through practical experience in college work extending over a quarter of a century.

He expressed the opinion that it was a great advantage for students to be near a large population, where they could come in contact with able men, and stimulating entertainments, a large centre naturally drawing to itself these advantages.

Judging from present conditions, he would say, without thinking about it at all, that Nelson was not the place for the provincial university. But what of the future? There were great tracts of land to the south that would have a family for every 10 acres, and similar tracts to the north and the east. The mining would support a vast population. If the secret of treating zinc ores successfully was discovered, Nelson would become the centre of the zinc and lead production of the world. The question was, would the city develop in the near future so as to present the advantages of a big city.

Advantages and Disadvantages.

Dr. Wolverton discussed the argument that location near a large city would secure benefactions for the university. History showed, he said, that state endowed institutions were very seldom the recipients of such benefactions, wealthy citizens reserving their gifts for the denominational colleges. There was some advantage in having large hospitals near the university, but the practice was now to leave the hospital work in medicine for a post-graduate year, which was often taken in another city, if not on another continent. It was no advantage for the university to be located near manufactures, for that work also was better left to the post-graduate stage. It was not necessary to have the agricultural college near the university, in fact, from the acute difference in work, and in term of study, it was highly desirable that they be kept apart. All the other departments, however, should be near the university.

Department of Mines.

Nelson was intensely adapted for a department of mines. Where did the eastern mining schools send their students? To the mines of this district. They were here now—a carload of them.

No more magnificent field for athletics existed than the lake at Nelson, and from his experience he fully knew the use of athletics in college life. The commission should give weight to the considerations of climate and healthfulness.

Each university had its own constituency, from which it drew students, and within a comparatively small radius. He once received replies from the heads of 30 colleges and universities, to certain inquiries he made of them, and he found that 75 per cent. of the student body of those institutions came from within a radius of the institution of 50 miles. For this reason the university should be as close to the mass of the population as it could be got. The question was, where would that mass be in the early future. If Nelson was going to have a population of 25,000 or 30,000 in 20 years undoubtedly it possessed all the advantages necessary to a university. If its destiny, however, was to remain as at present, there was no question but that it was unsuited as a location for the university.

Evidence on Climate.

W. H. Jones, job printer, as a man who hoped to have his son have a college education, gave his experience of the coast climate, which was that under its influence, he himself, in his student days, was unable to do heavy reading. The trend of the climate was to make a man consult his bodily comfort, and become luxurious. When he moved to the upper country, he found an instant change, the climate being intense and stimulating. As to the arguments urged in favor of the coast, he believed that all the requirements of the university could be supplied anywhere. He did not want to see the university located by a city so large that the city would absorb its spirit, and have an overweening influence over it.

Rev. J. P. Westman, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, asked by Mr. Sturkey to give his views on the climate, said there was no doubt whatever, as he knew from having lived in both the upper country and the coast region, that the climate of the upper country was greatly superior to that of the coast. The tendency of the coast was that if a man lived there, at the end of a year his movements were less active, and he took life easier. From the climatic point of view, there was no doubt whatever that the Kootenay was better for the students than the coast, and four hours work here accomplished as much as seven hours work there. He mentioned the good showing made by Nelson pupils going to the coast. In respects to the advantages which a large city presents

MARITIME EAST HAS OUR CUSTOM

In Atlantic Provinces Drivers Turn to Left—New Brunswick Seen Through Ontario Eyes.

A special correspondent of the Toronto Star writes as follows from Moncton, N.B.:

It is curious that while the people of all the rest of America turn out to the right to pass others when driving the maritime provinces and British Columbia turn out to the left. The coach is at the door," is an expression used not by a flunkey at some function, but by the democratic hotel clerk a dozen times a day. What all the rest of Canada calls a bus or a hack they call here a coach. One of these vehicles is kept here in attendance at the parliament buildings during the session and it is called the "government coach."

The people here are proud of the past and of the things of the past. One of the things of the past is the Franklin stove. In fact it is something which has extended into the present, and with good reason. The Franklin stove is simply an iron fireplace, having all the cheerfulness and healthful effect of the open grate, while at the same time being available for any room and giving out more heat than the ordinary brick fireplace. Let no one imagine that they are used because the houses, being of wood, have no brick fireplaces. Most of the older houses have enough bricks in their fireplaces and chimneys to cover the outside of the house according to modern methods of building. You cannot pay a compliment that will be more highly appreciated by the lady of the house (or by the man for that matter) than to remark on the beauty and quaintness of this part of the house. And nine times out of ten the pleased owner will ask you to examine more closely to see that it was cast in Carron, or Glasgow, in 1820, or 1825, or whatever the date may be. The St. John fire, the Franklin stove, and the Saxby gale, are still standard topics of conversation. The gale was a big blow in the sixties, predicted by a man named Saxby. It blew down miles of timber, uprooted unnumbered buildings, and threw down chimneys and spires.

An Orthodox Lot.

That the people are religious is attested by the large number of handsome churches, and that they are intelligent is shown by the high order of preaching. New Brunswick is cast on orthodox lines. The old denominations are strong; the "fancy religions scarcely exist. On the east and north sides of the province there are large settlements of Acadians, descendants of many who were not driven out with Evangeline. A very good feeling exists between these and the English-speaking people of the province. With a large number of English-speaking Roman Catholics, they make the Roman Catholic church strong in the province. The Anglicans, Presbyterians, and Methodists are numerous, while the Baptists are probably stronger in proportion than in any other part of the Dominion.

Boston Seeks in Vain.

Regimental flags are to be seen in the older Anglican churches. In Trinity church, St. John, they show the visitor the British Coat of Arms carved in wood over the doorway, and they tell him with so little Canadian pride that that coat of arms was taken from the town hall of Boston, shortly after the year 1776. The reason for its removal was that the Loyalists did not choose to have it there to be spat upon and ground under the heels of the Revolutionists. And it is a choice morsel of news for the people of New Brunswick to tell the visitor that the people of Boston have tried by threats or cajolery to get back that piece of carved wood, but in vain. Trinity church was burned down in the great St. John fire, but this relic and the communion silver given by George III were rescued, and placed in the new church.

SAID TO BE IN NELSON.

Inland Herald, Spokane—Run to earth through the untiring efforts of her husband, whom she is alleged to have wronged to elope with a waiter, Mrs. Nellie Vermeer, wife of H. J. Vermeer, a teamster, is said to be with the waiter in Nelson, B. C.

After conferring with Chief of Police J. T. Sullivan Tuesday morning, the husband started for the prosecuting attorney's office to obtain a warrant for the man. Vermeer will insist that the man be extradited and forced to stand trial on the charge which, on conviction, would mean a sentence of two years in the Walla Walla penitentiary and the payment of $1000 fine.

Following the woman's disappearance Vermeer appealed to the police and detectives worked hard on the case. Vermeer devoted most of his time to the search and also employed private detectives. The only clue all had to work on was the fact that the woman had been seen in the waiter's company at Davenport's restaurant the day she disappeared.

As children, Mr. and Mrs. Vermeer were sweethearts, playing about Amsterdam, Holland. When they grew up they plighted their love and Vermeer came to America to carve out a home. This done, he returned and married the girl about 10 months ago.

NELSON NEWS OF THE DAY

(Additional local news notes on page 8.)

The regular weekly shoot of the Nelson Gun club will take place at the trap, on the C. P. R. flat, this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

All connected with the coming Dominion Day celebration are reminded of the general meeting of committees, which will be held on Monday evening at 8 o'clock, in the board of trade rooms.

After falling inch by inch, for about 10 days, the water rose an inch in the 24 hours ending last evening, the reading by the water gauge at Lindsay's boat house being 13 feet 3¼ inches above low water mark.

The annual concert, consisting of drama, recitation, musical selections, drills, and songs, will be presented by the pupils of St. Joseph's school, in the opera house, on Friday evening, June 24, at 8 o'clock. Tickets for reserved seats may be exchanged at the store of the Poole Drug company.

The Eagles have postponed their observance of Decoration Day, which was to have taken place tomorrow. A joint observance of the Eagles, Knights of Pythias and Oddfellows will probably take place at an early date.

The Scandinavian picnic will be held this year at Ferndale park, on Friday, June 24. Three of Lindsay's large launches will be in commission, and after 11 o'clock a launch will leave Lindsay's boat house for the park half-hourly.

For Dominion Day, July 1st, the Canadian Pacific Railway company announce a rate of fare and one-third for the round trip. Tickets will be on sale June 30th to July 1st, inclusive, final return limit July 4, 1913. 53-7

HAVE YOU A BAD SORE?

If so, remember these facts—Zam-Buk is now the most widely used balm in Canada, yet four years ago it was unknown here! Why has it become so popular? Because it heals sores, cures skin diseases, and does what is claimed for it. Why not let it heal your sore?

Remember that Zam-Buk is altogether different to the ordinary ointments. Most of these consist of animal fats. Zam-Buk contains no trace of any animal fat, or any mineral matter. It is absolutely herbal.

Remember that Zam-Buk is at the same time healing, soothing, and antiseptic. Kills poison absolutely, and all harmful germs. It is suitable alike for recent injuries and diseases, and chronic sores, ulcers, etc. Test how different and superior Zam-Buk really is. All druggists and stores at 50c box. You are warned against harmful substitutes and imitations.

WILL C. P. R. SHARES GO UP TO 200 ON THE STOCK MARKET

Earning Fifteen Per Cent. in addition to Proceeds for Shareholders—Cutting Melons.

An English view of Canadian Pacific as an investment at the present market level is given in the London Financial News as follows:

The Canadian Pacific railway does not require anything that I can say to recommend it, and I write this only because I saw it stated very recently, in a certain quarter, that Canadian Pacifics over 200 are a "tall order." I venture to submit that there is nothing in the least "tall" about it, and I will state my reasons, for the benefit of the investing public, who are, no doubt, now looking out for something safe in which they desire to place their hard-earned rubber profits.

Earning 15 Per cent.

The surplus income of the Canadian Pacific, after payment of fixed charges, was in 1909 just a little over $25,000,000. The net earnings this year up to the end of April exceed those of last year by roughly $9,000,000. The months of May and June will, no doubt, add another million. We may take it, therefore, that the surplus income for the year ending June 30, 1913, will be at least $35,000,000. The dividend on the preferred stock will be $1,000,000, thus leaving over $33,000,000 for the ordinary shares, amounting at present to $150,000,000. The figures quoted for income are for round numbers, and are probably well within the mark. There is a very important item of income, which I am unable to discuss, because I have not the figures at my disposal—namely the income from the disposal of lands, which at present is considerable. But, entirely apart from this income, the figures quoted show that the Canadian Pacific is now earning fully 15 per cent. if not more, on its ordinary shares. It distributes six per cent out of this income and 1 per cent out of the income derived from the sale of land; total, 7 per cent. The balance of the income goes to improvements, etc.

Cutting Melons.

It may be replied that 7 per cent on a share quoted at 100 pens, is only 3½ per cent to the present investor. That appears so. But let me look beneath the surface. I bought my first shares in 1900 and have been buying them at odd intervals ever since. The Canadian Pacific is progressing as Canada is progressing. It requires fresh capital from time to time. Since 1900 it has increased its capital on five occasions; on the first four occasions the shares were issued at par. The last issue—one new share for every five held—at 125, was made in January, 1912, after being fully paid up, will rank as part of the ordinary capital of the company, which will then be about $255,000,000. Any one who wishes can easily calculate the value of the bonus when one share in five is issued at 125, the ordinary price being, as at present, 200. The bonus is roughly 42½ per share, and this has been given since 1900, at intervals of two years. How long this will continue I cannot tell; but it is quite certain that there will be further issues of capital.

Now let us see how the bonus and interest, together, work out in fact. Take, for instance, a holding of five shares. The interest received in two years would be 25 x 7 £70. The bonus is worth £75. Total, £145 in two years, or £70 10s per year, which is 14½ per cent on par value, or 7¼ per cent to a present purchaser at 200. I reckon, therefore, that for the past ten years I have been receiving a very handsome and increasing dividend on my Canadian Pacific shares, and my capital continues to increase in a most satisfactory manner. I do not know any investment on the market so safe as "Canadas," and which holds out equal prospects to a present purchaser.

W AK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES

Kidney Disease Causes Half the Common Aches and Ills of Nelson People.

Any one weak link weakens a chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency toward diabetes and fatal Bright's disease. There is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.

Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys and cure every kidney ill.

Mrs. Jane Fahery, of 569 Pacific Avenue, Winnipeg, Man., says:

"After suffering dreadfully with rheumatism in my right hip and terrible pains across my back for years, I am more than pleased to say that Doan's Kidney Pills have cured me.

"The rheumatic pains in my hip were so severe that I could not lie on my right hip at all and could hardly move in bed. My back was so weak and painful that after stooping over I could not straighten up for some minutes, and when I would attempt to do so, I could scarcely bear the pains that would shoot all through me. I had tried all kinds of remedies for this trouble, without finding relief. Doan's Kidney Pills have done their work well in my case, and I shall always have a good word of praise for them." For sale in Nelson by the Poole Drug Co., Limited. Sold by dealers. Price 50 cents. The D. T. Doan Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont., Sole Canadian Agents.

What We Give You That You Don't Pay For

Why does Caruso get several thousand dollars for each performance, while other tenors get perhaps ten dollars? Because he has a voice that nature gives to only one man in a generation. Why does one artist's picture bring thousands, another's only a few dollars? Because the great artist reaches a sublimity of touch and color that others can only dream of. By the same estimate, some tailors make a thousand dollars a year, others ten and fifteen thousand. Few men can afford the price that the artist designer would charge in his own shop, but as the head designer of a great organization like Fit-Reform, his capacity is increased a thousandfold. CITY'S CLAIMS

ed, so far as a university was concerned, Nelson had no advantages to compare with the coast.

Dr. Ferguson remarked that, as an illustration of what a part subjectivity played in testimony upon such a subject, a man of good intellect had told him he could not work effectively in this climate. Speaking for himself, recently at the coast he put in the hardest month's work of his life.

Diffuse Benefits.

In the discussions of the University club, Dr. Ferguson took the opportunity to explain, it was contemplated that as the population increased, the benefits of the university should be diffused over the province.

Mayor Selous again addressed the commission, characterising the written statement read earlier by Dr. Ferguson, as a very clever document, and he feared the commission would be disposed to give it great weight. In justice to the city, which he felt had been stabbed in the back, he would ask Dr. Arthur to state the membership of the University club, and the number who voted for the resolutions submitted.

Dr. Weldon asked Dr. Arthur to supply the information. In the absence of the books, and after consultation with Dr. Ferguson, Dr. Arthur estimated that the club had about 15 active members, and that eight or nine were present at the meeting in question, and voted for the resolutions. Later in the day the ascertained figures were given to Dr. Weldon, the paid membership for the current year at the present time being 16, excluding nominal members.

Canon Dauth asked Dr. Wolverton what his experience in college work was. He replied that he was in charge of Woodstock college seven years, was in charge of Bishops college, in Texas, seven years, was a member of the senate of Toronto university college seven years, and was a member of the senate of McMaster university seven years.

Renews Youth

Dr. Weldon invited further evidence regarding climate.

J. O. Patenaude, jeweler, said that he could do three times as much work as a watchmaker in Nelson as he could in Montreal. During his business career in Nelson he had employed 15 watchmakers, all of whom were physical wrecks when they came to him and all of whom went away well men. Of the six mechanics he had now, several had worked at the coast and claimed they could do far more work here.

Dr. Jones asked for statistics of Nelson's school population, which Dr. Arthur supplied.

Mr. Farris stated that he had spent six months at the coast, and found a spirit of depression in the air, and every one felt sleepy and slept long hours.

Ald. Rutherford said he had spent 14 years in British Columbia, coming from Ontario, and each year he was more enthusiastic for his province. He had great faith in the Kootenay and Nelson. The Kootenay had all the features of the coast except the fisheries, it had the base and the precious metals, it had great water powers and it would have a great population here when the members of the University club were forgotten. If the commission were looking for a location that would attract students from everywhere, they had found it in Nelson.

A. M. Johnson said he had lived in British Columbia for 25 years, coming from Cambridge university. For two years he was at Victoria, and could not work, forgetting in the morning what he had toiled to memorize the night before. He came to Nelson, worked more hours a day and passed with "remarks." Every night in the year one needed a blanket, and he could get along with five hours sleep. The Kootenay was the greatest fishing river in the world and on the Arm was the greatest rowing course in the world, five miles straightaway. He reminded the commissioners that England had been built upon rowing, cricket and football. Not because Vancouver or Victoria happened today should the choice fall upon them, but the commission should consider what was best for the future.

This concluded the session.
