ITY PAYS THE BLOMBERG COSTS

otal Expense Runs Over Six Hundred Dollars

AYOR SUGGESTS ALDERMEN PAY IT

arm Discussion Follows—Police Commissioners Are Endorsed

Blomberg vs. City of Nelson.

account of Davis, Marshall, McNeill & Pugh $150.00
costs 476.55

Total $626.55

The legal expenses accruing against e city in connection with the action John Blomberg, which resulted in e quashing of the bylaw intended to olish saloon licenses in Nelson, were e prominent feature at last night's uncil session. From the date on ich Chief Justice Hunter handed wn the judgment, the city had three onths in which to appeal and the eater part of that interval has yet to n. Some weeks ago Ald. McDonald pressed a desire to appeal, but it was vised then by Mayor Selous that onty of time be taken to consider the uation, especially as the judgment, d the solicitor's comments on them, d not come to hand. These documents arrived later, and were filed. othing was said last night about appealing the case, but the council order- the bills to be paid. Then Mayor lous sprung a sensation by inviting aldermen who had voted to defend case, to foot the bill and reimburse city treasury. At this point a difence of opinion arose.

Accounts Ordered Paid.

A. M. Johnson, city solictior, wrote: enclose you herewith copy of Messrs. vis, Marshall, McNeill & Pugh's account, counsel fee for their Mr. Davis, argument in Blomberg and City of lson. I would be obliged if you uld have check made for this amount d send to me so that I can send it to m." The account showed $125 as unsel fee for services at Victoria, d $25 as cash expended.

red C. Moffatt, solicitor for John mberg, wrote: "I beg to advise you t the costs of John Blomberg, the plicant in this case, have been taxed allowed by the district registrar Nelson in the sum of $476.55. I uld be obliged if you would have a ck for this amount made out and warded to me." At the taxing by the istrar, $559.05 was presented as mberg's costs, but the registrar taxoff $82.50, reducing the amount to 6.55.

ld. McDonald asked how the bill of ts was made up and the city clerk icated two or three of the main ms, from the lengthy itemized bill. n motion of Aldermen McDonald Rutherford, both accounts were ored paid.

Mayor Springs Suggestion.

Mayor Selous—Now that you have ored these accounts paid, it is for you tlemen who ran the city into this exse against the city solicitor's ad, to consider whether you are not ally responsible for these costs and ther you should not reimburse the for them.

ld. McDonald said, as the man who ught the measure in, he did not feel ally bound to pay the bill. The had put them in to put the saloons of business and he desired to state would go out of business at no ant time.

ayor Selous—That is not the point. city solicitor told us this bylaw uld not stand attack. He is our citor. But you wandered off in rch of some solicitor who favored r view. In such a case, your only uible ground for claiming not to be onsible, would be complete success. it is, I, and the majority of the ple, believe the responsibility is on t this point Ald. Rutherford took diissue with his worship, attacking mayor's statement of the facts. city solicitor, he said, brought in law. It was defeated. Then some gs in it were made plainer. It was city solicitor's bylaw.

ayor Selous said it was Mr. Some's bylaw, as no one knew who pred it. The original bylaw was only city solicitor's to the extent that he mechanically drafted it, following ructions.

d. Rutherford continued that if the solicitor's bylaw was good, then ainly the improvement upon it was , as it was not altered in principle. city solicitor had told them most nctly that his bylaw was workable, he made only one exception, which that if the license commissioners ted licenses, and the city refused to them, the licensees would have a case against the city. Ald. Rutherford recalled that he had answered Mr. Johnson with the remark that if they had a board of license commissioners in sympathy with the council on this matter, it would be all right.

Ald. Mackenzie stated that Ald. Rutherford was perfectly correct. The city solicitor had not raised any question as to the bylaw being workable, but only as to whether, in the particular instance given, the saloonkeepers would have recourse against the city.

The Bylaw's Parent.

There was also a difference of recollection between Mayor Selous and Ald. Rutherford as to the circumstances under which the bylaw was originally drawn. Ald. Rutherford said the members of the council did not know how to draw bylaws and it was the place of the solicitor to draw the bylaw and draw a valid one.

Mayor Selous—He drew the bylaw for some of you gentlemen.

Ald. Rutherford—Excuse me. He refused to draw it for Ald. McDonald, and said he would not draw it unless the council instructed him by resolution. He was accordingly instructed.

Ald. McDonald stated he had seen Mr. Johnson at his office, and the latter had said the simplest way to effect the object was to change the act.

Mayor Selous said a chat in a man's office was one thing, and his legal opinion, written deliberately after he had looked up authorities, was another. There was no question but that the city solicitor considered the original bylaw unworkable, for he had told him personally and also the council. When the aldermen traversed his opinion, Mr. Johnson wrote to a K. C. in Vancouver, who completely upheld his view.

The mayor caused the city clerk to get Mr. Johnson's letter from the files, and he read it, claiming that it supported his contentions all through.

Aldermen Rutherford and Mackenzie, from the same paragraphs, found complete vindication for their statement of the case. They contended that its purport was that the bylaw was valid unless quashed under the provisions of the act. Ald. Rutherford said they did not know the bylaw would be quashed.

Ald. McDonald said that Chief Justice Hunter's opinion was a very different thing from a judgment by the full court.

A Point of Order.

Mayor Selous (smiling)—Well, the suggestion I am putting up to you is an invitation to foot the bill.

Ald. Rutherford (amid laughter)—

NOTE IS SUBJECT OF LITIGATION

Evidence in Interesting Case Heard in Chamber Yesterday Morning by Judge Forin

Before his honor Judge Forin in chambers yesterday morning H. C. Hall for the defendant in the action Bank of British North America vs. Smith, conducted an examination of John Henry Brookes, manager of the B.N.A. at Kaslo. W. H. Bullock-Webster for E. A. Crease, represented the plaintiff.

The suit is of considerable legal importance. It appears that W. T. H. Smith of Creston purchased from the Kettle Valley Nurseries, of which G. E. Ehle is proprietor and manager, a selction of nursery stock. In payment he gave a note for $231.70 which is the amount claimed by the bank. Mr. Ehle was credited with this sum but Mr. Smith refused to pay the note on the ground that the stock had not been delivered by the Kettle Valley Nursery.

The defence contends that the note presented and accepted by the bank was merely a part of a contract from which it had been detached. The contract and note were in one piece but could be detached by tearing at a perforation mark. It is further contended by the defence that the bank should have noticed the note had been torn off at the perforation mark and been thereby warned against accepting it without investigation. Legal arguments will be heard by his honor at the next session in chambers.

SPENCER INDIGNANT BECAUSE SAILORS GOT LIQUOR

(Special to The Daily News.)

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 28—Because two swords and one revolver were stolen on Sunday from H. M. C. S. Rainbow by souvenir hunters, the after end of the ship may hereafter be closed to visitors. The liquor question and its application to men of the Rainbow is still a live subject. The city council made an early regulation against beer or whiskey at any civic functions, this rule being observed at the opening reception, but at Friday evening's smoker at which the mayor presided, liquor flowed in plenty. On Sunday Dr. Spencer secretary of the local option league, took the officials to task for this alleged breach of the early arrangement. The wireless operator and one recruit who signed on the Rainbow at Victoria have been dismissed because they flagrantly broke leave regulations.

EXPLOSION DESTROYS EYESIGHT.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 28—The explosion of a steam heater in the Rat Portage Lumber company's factory early this morning completely destroyed one eye and seriously endangered the other eye of Charles Bradford, a veteran employe. Flying splinters did the damage.

ULSTER READY TO TAKE UP ARMS

Belfast Holds Demonstration Against Home Rule

REFUSE TO PAY TAXES TO DUBLIN

Subscribe to Buy Arms and Organize Regiments--Referendum on Tariff Reform

LONDON, Nov. 28—With the dissolution of parliament today all formalities preliminary to the election of a new parliament were completed. The proclamation of dissolution summons the new parliament to assemble Jan. 31, 1911.

Predict Reduced Majority.

Among the first of its members to be elected unopposed will be Arthur J. Balfour, the opposition leader, the Liberals having decided not to contest his seat for London. On the stock exchange where regular dealings have been instituted in bets on the election the feeling today seems to anticipate a reduction in the Liberal majority.

Ulstermen Arm.

In Ireland the struggle is growing more bitter. A meeting of delegates representing every Ulster constituency was held in Belfast today at which was a resolution was adopted on the motion of a Presbyterian minister to draw up a solemn declaration refusing to pay rates or taxes imposed by a Dublin parliament or obey its decrees, while $50,000 was subscribed on the spot to organize the Ulstermen into regiments and purchase arms. At night a monster union demonstration was held at Ulster hall, Belfast, an overflow meeting of 20,000 persons being held in the open air, which aroused the greatest enthusiasm. Lord Londonderry declared that American dollars enabled John Redmond to hold Asquith in the hollow of his hand. If a Home Rule parliament were established, he said, it might be found that Ulster would utterly decline obedience to the law.

Sir Edward Carson, formerly solicitor general and Conservative ex-M. P. for Dublin university, said they would never consent to their country being sold for American dollars. Walter Hume Long, Unionist M. P. for Strand, spoke in the same strain and other speakers advocated stern resistance to the law if home rule was forced upon Ulster.

Woman Suffrage Candidate.

The first independent woman suffrage candidate is announced in the person of William Mirrlees who will contest a division of Glasgow. The Socialists have decided to run a third candidate in Battersea thus seriously endangering John Burns chance for reelection. Suffragists created a serious disturbance at a meeting at Lambeth tonight at which Winston Churchill was speaking. After several men had been thrown out Mr. Churchill strongly denounced the suffragist tactics and said: "I am told that individuals are to be singled out for violence, if that is their language, there is only one answer and that is: Come on."

Referendum on Tariff Reform

LONDON, Nov. 28—A feature of the election situation worth noting is J. L. Garvin's suggestion in the Observer that the Unionists should promise a referendum on the question of tariff reform if returned to power. Then Garvin opined they might sweep Lancashire. The main organ of the militant tariff reformers scouts the suggestion.

Another White Flag

Lord Cromer this morning asks all Unionist free traders to support their party because he little doubts that the force of circumstances at any rate will compel the party to put forth larger issues than the fiscal question. Another Unionist white flag, is the way the Liberals describe the proposal to send tariff reform to referendum if the Unionists are successful at the polls.

Predicts Increase

The News which in January estimated that the result would be "as in 1906," publishes an estimate giving the government an increase of 12 seats.

CONSERVATIVE REORGANIZATION IS ALMOST COMPLETE

OTTAWA, Nov. 28—Reorganization of the Conservative party for the sessional work is almost completed. One or two committees only remain to be remodelled. Today J. F. Lambton of East Lambton was appointed chairman of the postoffice committe and Houghton Lennox, South Simcoe, chairman of the committee which will study the affairs of the National Transcontinental railway.

Hon. G. P. Graham when asked tonight if any decision had been reached regarding the Quebec bridge said that it would be some time yet before tenders were let. "It's a long bridge you know," he added.

FOUR MORE SUITS FOR SUPREME COURT

Two Cases Against N. & F. S. Railway—Action for Personal Injuries—Lumber Company's Suit

Four additional cases have been set down for trial at the next sittings of the supreme court here on Dec. 6. Two of these, Ryan and Donelly vs. the Nelson & Fort Sheppard railway, and Clarkson Bros. vs. the Nelson & Fort Sheppard railway are actions for damages to timber caused by forest fires.

Gillis vs. Van-Roi, postponed from the last sittings of the supreme court, is an action for unspecified damages for personal injuries received by the plaintiff through falling down a shaft at the Van Roi mine.

The fourth case, the Wattsburg Lumber company vs. the W. E. Cooke Lumber company is an action for loss of logs on the West Arm of the lake which the plaintiffs allege was caused through negligence of the employees of the Cooke Lumber company.

Before his honor Judge Forin in chambers yesterday morning E. C. Wragge for the plaintiff in Compton vs. Miller was granted an order for payment of moneys out of court. In Snow vs. Black E. C. Wragge for the plaintiff made a successful application for leave to serve defendant by posting summons in the court house for the period of two months.

MINERS BURNED BY EXPLOSION

Dynamite Prematurely Explodes at the Rawhide Mine—Phoenix Miners Bruised and Burned

(Special to The Daily News.)

PHOENIX, B.C., Nov. 28—George Gill and Joseph Christian were victims of a premature explosion at the Rawhide mine this afternoon. Christian will recover but Gill's chances are very doubtful. They were setting off a blast in the mine and the fuse when lit ran very rapidly to the dynamite, which was discharged prematurely with the men but a few feet away. Both men were badly burned and bruised by flying rocks and now lie in the hospital in a precarious condition.

MORE AMERICAN DOLLARS FOR HOME RULE CAUSE

United Irish League of America Makes Appeal for Funds—Important Part in Election

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 28—The members of the United Irish league of America det rmined to meet squarely the issue of American dollars, raised by the Unionists in the campaign for the election of a new parliament, today issued an appeal for funds to be sent to Ireland to assist the home rule party. This action was taken at a meeting held here today. In its appeal the committee says: "Ireland's claim for home rule stands in the fore in what is destined to be the most memorable general election in th history of the last two centuries in Great Britain. The campaign cry that American dollars are about to wreck the British constitution is of course simply meant as a catch cry for the purpose of defeating the forces of progress. But the fact remains that American dollars contributed to sustain and strengthen the Irish party in this contest are going to play an important part in the result of the struggle."

INVESTIGATING GRIEVANCES OF STREET RAILWAY MEN

WINNIPEG, Nov. 28—The first public meeting of the board of arbitration on the differences between the street railway company and its employees was held this morning. Motorman Dunn, one of those dismissed on a charge of being on licensed premises in uniform, was called. He denied being guilty of any misdemeanor on the specified date and stated he was aware of being watched as it was so obvious. He attributed the action of the company to his action as a union official in forcing an inquest on Motorman Mackay who died as a result of an accident and to his part as played as a delegate to the Congress of Labor at Fort William.

EXPENSIVE INVESTIGATIONS

OTTAWA, Nov. 28—The special committee which investigated the operations of various race tracks in Canada last season cost the country in witness fees and reporters fees no less a sum than $1242.80. Legal expenses in Lumsden investigation involved expenditure of $9117.80.

SILENCE GREETS NEW MEMBER

House Shows Little Cordiality to Nationalist

DEBATE ON ADDRESS STILL CONTINUES

Martin Burrell Criticises Government's Failures--Medical Act Amendment Bill

OTTAWA, Nov. 28—This was the sixth day of the debate on the address in the commons but the end is not yet. Several speakers are on the list for tomorrow and it would not be at all surprising if a division is not taken until Wednesday or perhaps Thursday. The speakers were Martin Burrell, Dr. Sproule and Blain on the Conservative side, and Hon. William Paterson, Neely and Kyle for the government.

Received in Silence

The debate followed the usual lines excepting that Mr. Paterson indicated the line of ministerial criticism of the Borden amendment. There was some little excitement when the house opened, it having been whispered that A. Gilbert, Nationalist member for Drummond-Arthabaska would be introduced. Curiosity as to how he would be received was rather pronounced. The introduction, however, was quite devoid of sensational features and the applause which usually greets a new member from one side of the house or the other was entirely lacking. Mr. Gilbert, appeared at the door opposite the speaker between F. D. Monk and Dr. Paquet, member for Lislet. Mr. Monk introduced him with the usual formula. He advanced and shook the hand of the speaker and while making his way to the back bench assigned to him, the house resumed its interrupted business without a single cheer or handclap. The silence was almost painful in its impressiveness and members of the house seemed to breathe a sigh of relief when the business was resumed.

Martin Burrell

Resuming the debate on the address Martin Burrell of Yale-Cariboo said the government was open to a strong indictment both on its naval policy and its maladministration of public affairs. He said the charge of disloyalty against the Nationalists was advanced merely to cover up the premier's loss of prestige in Quebec. Liberal speakers had been more unpatriotic than the Nationalists. Mr. Borden's amendment to the address redounds much to his credit. It did not call for a plebiscite but a general election from a constitutional standpoint.

Dr. Neely of Humboldt said the government had been consistent all through in its naval policy and it was only a waste of time for Liberal members to discuss it. The opposition can never convince the people that they had not broken faith in departing from the joint resolution on the matter passed on March 29, 1909. On matters of interest to the west R. L. Borden had handled them like hot potatoes, but he was glad to see he had said the two parties were of a like mind in the matter of the construction of the Hudson Bay line. Even a colonization line he concluded, would justify its construction at an early date. The west would be disappointed if it did not prove a success as a route to the markets of the world. As a route it would relieve congestion and have an enormous effect on the regulation of rates etc. Dr. Neely declared that Alberta and Saskatchewan are better off without the administration of their own lands. At present they are getting a subsidy but if they got the lands there would be no income from free homesteads.

Dr. Sproule, East Grey, contended that the navy matter should be submitted to the people. Such is the policy of the Conservative party. Mr. Brodeur had accused him of raising a religious cry but the minister himself was the greatest sinner in this respect.

Shortly before recess Hon. William Paterson, who followed Dr. Sproule, recalled the proceedings in the house leading up to the resolution of 1908. Mr. Borden had suggested that a word be inserted in the resolution indicating that the government was to act promptly and now the whole tone of the opposition is to delay and go to the people. The opposition under the Borden amendment is willing to let the whole matter stand for two years until a general election is held. What would the imperialist friends of the Conservative party think when they learned that the party is neither for building a navy nor giving a contribution to the imperial government. He could not understand what had brought out such a change, neither did he know whether Mr. Monk had compelled it, but it was in his (Monk's) line to drop it. He had never known a party to appear in such a bad light on any question. If there was danger to supremacy last year it was worse this year for it was 12 months nearer to war and to be consistent the opposition should suggest two instead of one Dreadnought. At any rate why drop the $25,000,000 contribution proposal. He asked: "Was it out of deference to Mr. Monk, almost leader of the combined Conservative-Nationalist party?"

Amend Medical Act

Dr. Black of Hants introduced a bill to amend the Medical act. He explained that it contains at least one provision of more than ordinary importance viz., placing in the federal laws an enactment giving to medical practitioners qualified to practice in any Canadian province the right to practice in any other province.

R. L. Borden urged upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier the necessity of the public accounts committee getting together at an early date.

Elevator Resolution

Sir Wilfrid Laurier promised that the committee would be organized not later than Wednesday. Dr. Schaffner has given notice of the following resolution: "That the present method of operating terminal and transfer elevators is detrimental to the interests of the western grain producers and that the government should take immediate action to operate terminal elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur and the transfer elevators between their terminals and the Atlantic seaboard."

Mr. Armstrong, Conservative member for East Lambton, has given notice of questions regarding the Sheldon affair. He asks if the government has done anything to put a stop to the use of the mails for the furtherance of get rich quick schemes, such as Sheldon's and inquires further if the government had made any effort to prosecute the parties.

Richard Blain, Conservative for Peel, said that the people of Canada would never call the Liberal party speedy in fulfilling promises. He criticized the minister of customs in not preventing a merger of agricultural implement manufacturers which he thought might come about.

George Kyle, Liberal member, did not agree with those of the opposition who wanted to anathematize reciprocity and said it was the duty of the government to do all in its power to reduce the present high cost of living which is now becoming a vital problem in the United States. He expressed astonishment at the appearance of Mr. Foster as one of the Conservative leaders after it had been declared by Conservative speakers during the past summer that the party could not afford to carry him any longer.

W. B. Northrup moved the adjournment of the debate.

ATLANTIC RATES NOT TO BE REDUCED

Agreement Between Steamship Companies Likely to be Renewed—Minimum Rate Unaltered

MONTREAL, Nov. 28—The agreement, which was arrived at about three years ago between the several British and continental steamship companies expires in April next. So satisfactory has it worked that no question is being raised respecting its renewal in due course. Montreal steamship managers state that they are quite satisfied with the condition of things under the conference. No change is to be made in minimum rates, though at one time it was thought to be necessary to make certain modifications. The question is not likely to come up in concrete form until next season's steamers are ready to be put on the route.

MINERS' BODIES BLOWN INTO AIR

Five Bodies Recovered—Fourteen Killed or Entombed—Gas Probable Cause of Explosion

ANTLERS, Okla., Nov. 28—Fourteen miners were killed or entombed in a mine 20 miles north of here today. Five bodies have been recovered. Nine men were entombed in the mine and Secretary Thomas of the mining company, says there is no doubt that all were killed.

The five men whose bodies have been recovered were thrown from the mouth of the mine more than 100 feet into the air. The cause of the explosion has not been determined but it is believed to have resulted from gas formation. The mine is the property of the Choctaw Asphalt company of St. Louis.

BANKS REFUSE TO PART WITH MONEY

Further Complications in Great Waterways Muddle—Banks May Disregard Premier's Legislation

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 28—It is stated here today on good authority that the Royal Bank acting on legal advice will refuse to hand over the $6,000,000 lying in its vaults to the credit of the Alberta & Great Waterways railway to Premier Sifton, even though the legislature may pass the Alberta & Great Waterways bill now before the house. Although no official statement has yet been made by the bank, still the above is declared to be a fact. It is likely that the Imperial and Dominion banks which have the balance of the money will take similar action.

CONFERENCE IS NOW ARRANGED

Negotiations for Restoration of Kaslo Slocan Line

DECISION EXPECTED IN PRESENT WEEK

Premier McBride Will Meet Representative of Great Northern Railway

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 28—An appointment with Premier McBride has been made for A. H. McNeill, representing the Great Northern railway company, who is to be in Victoria during the present week and who will then take up with the first minister the question of the restoration of the track from Kaslo to Sandon and the resumption of the operation of the Kaslo & Slocan railway between these Slocan centres of population. The mines of the district have suffered heavily as a result of railway suspension and it is both hoped and expected that something will now be done by the American road owning this British Columbia short line to bring about the result so greatly desired by interested residents of the district.

CROSS VICTIM OF POLITICAL INTRIGUE

Public Meeting at Edmonton Protests Against Sifton Policy—Want Railway to North

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 28—A meeting of 2000 citizens was held tonight as a protest against the reported intention of Premier Sifton to use the money from the bonds of the Great Waterways for public works of the province. The principal speaker was ex-attorney General Cross who said he was the victim of as big a political intrigue as was ever in Canada.

J. K. Cornwall, member for the Peace River and J. H. Hyndman and A. F. Ewing, Conservatives candidates in the last election were other speakers. All emphasized the need of a railway to the north and endorsed the attitude taken by Mr. Cross.

Ald. Garlepy protested against the meeting which he said was hampering the hands of the premier in making a settlement of the question, but the audience would not endorse his views. The resolution of the board of trade, passed last week, was endorsed.

DAMAGE TO BUILDING CAUSE OF LAWSUIT

WINNIPEG, Nov. 28—The action of Grace & Co., of Toronto, contractors, against Asler, Hammond & Nanton today came before Chief Justice Mathers in the Kings bench. The plaintiffs claim $48,000 balance for construction of the building wherein defendants are carrying on business and the latter claim $100,000 damages. The dispute arose from the subsidence of walls which occurred after a heavy rainstorm when in course of construction in 1907, which endangered the building until remedied and strengthened. The defendants allege that this was due to non-compliance with the terms of the contract, while the latter claim that it was caused by defective designs and plans of architects, Darling & Pearson. The case will be highly technical.

DR. SHEARER WILL APPEAR AT INVESTIGATION

WINNIPEG, Nov. 28—Features of this morning's inquiry into the Shearer charges were communications from Rev. J. G. Shearer to effect he will appear, and requesting the commission not to close until he is able to appear, probably within a month, and the evident intention of Justice Robson not to let the enquiry become too general. The justice disallowed the question of comparing conditions in old Thomas street district with conditions subsequent to its breaking up, nor would he allow Ald. McDonald to be questioned as to his opinion of keeping resorts in the present situation, the justice taking the stand that he was not required to report on the motives which caused the establishment of the segregated area but simply to report on the state of affairs existing. Several aldermen were examined but nothing essential was brought out except the admission that leaving the affair in the hands of the chief of police virtually meant the establishment of segregation.

PROHIBITION DEFEATED.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 28—Prohibition was defeated at the election by 218,125 according to the official count. It received 207,820 with 45,406 against it and carried only 37 of 115 counties.

MARYSVILLE PAYS TRIBUTE TO DEPARTING CITIZEN

(Special to The Daily News.)

MARSYVILLE, B. C., Nov. 27—A very pleasant evening was spent at the Falls View hotel, Marysville, on the 18th inst. Over 50 invited guests sat down to a banquet to E. J. Clayton, late general merchant and postmaster of Marysville as a farewell on his departure from town. Mr. Clayton has been in business here and held different public service positions for the past nine years and it is with regret that one chronicles his coming departure. The dining room at the hotel was handsomely decorated with British flags, and the places at the table were taken at 8 p. m. with L. A. Meachan officiating as chairman. Mr. Meachen made a neat little speech, which was humorous and appropriate, after which vocal selections were given by Mesdames Kennedy, James, Bidder, also Ernest Bidder. Mr. Clayton was then called on for a speech which he ably responded to, mentioning his regret at leaving so many friends at Marysville, but adding that he was not leaving on account of dull times, but to the contrary, he held very optimistic views as to the future of the town and its district. He closed his remarks by thanking those present for their many kind words that had been said by the preceding speakers and for the hospitality that had been extended to him. An illuminated address was then read to Mr. Clayton by H. L. Webb, presenting him with a valuable travelling case as a token of remembrance of his sterling worth, by the citizens of Marysville. A suitable reply was made by Mr. Clayton, after which the balance of the evening and early morn was enjoyably spent in games and dancing.

BRITISH COLUMBIA FRUIT IN ENGLAND

Account From Bath Newspaper of Exhibit of Missionary Baynes at Chrysanthemum Show

When E. Baynes, often referred to as Missionary Baynes, left Slocan for the old country, he was furnished by the Nelson publicity bureau with photographs and pamphlets dealing with Nelson and the Kootenay, and he has received supplies of them from time to time.

The following account of the sixth annual chrysanthemum show of the Bath Gardeners' Debating society is from the Bath Herald of Nov. 9:

"Quite a special feature of the show was the display of apples by the government of British Columbia. The government of the country has recently lost no opportunity of making known to those at home the advantages to be gained by those who venture upon a life across the seas. The authorities realize that more often than not people are deterred from taking the initial step owing to ignorance and therefore they have taken steps to bring the country more under the notice of everyone in general. For that purpose missionaries have been sent to England for the purpose of lecturing upon the conditions of life in British Columbia and also upon the principal industries. Mr. E. Baynes is the missionary attending Bath and this afternoon he proved a centre of attraction. There were animated pictures of the life in British Columbia and the way in which farming and the fruit growing industry are carried on, but prior to that Mr. Baynes gave a short but very interesting talk upon the land and the government on whose behalf, and in whose interest he is travelling through England. This, however, does not exhaust the enterprise of the authorities. By means of a wonderful collection of apples they demonstrated in a manner far more striking than any words could be, what a paradise British Columbia is for the fruit grower. Tastefully arranged and decorated the hall was one mass of beautiful shining fruit of all varieties. Connisseurs declared that the shape and color are par excellence, while several who had the opportunity of testing the actual substance of the apples stated that they were marvellous examples of the fruit growers' art.

"The British Columbia government, Mr. Cypher of Cheltenham, Mr. Godfrey of Exmouth and Messrs. Blackmore and Langdon were awarded gold medals. Messrs. George Cooling & Sons, A. A. Walters and W. H. Coles silver medals; J. Milburn a bronze medal; C. Walker, silver medal; J. Carpenter and Rich and company first-class certificates.

PLEA FOR DOMESTIC SCIENCE IN SCHOOL

Mrs. Virginia Green Prepares Statement on Subject at Request of Technical Commission.

When the Dominion royal commission on industrial training and technical education were in Nelson, the commissioners invited any who might have further facts at their command than were given evidence, to formulate them in the form of statements and forward the statements to the secretary of the commission at Ottawa. Mrs. Virginia E. Green, B.A., who conducts the Nelson kindergarten, indicated to the commissioners that she could prepare special evidence on the subject of manual training and domestic science, and the commissioners requested her to prepare and submit it. Mrs. Green prepared a statement, and it has gone off to Ottawa, the following being its text:

Plea for Future Generation.

"It was with keen pleasure I read the invitation of our worthy commissioners, the Rev. George Bryce and Mr. Forsyth. The wording of this invitation has a directness of purpose that thrilled me. 'We wish to meet,' it read, 'a couple of leading educators, two or three manufacturers, also two or three employers of labor, and two or three workmen in the industries, the president of the board of trade, and a few agriculturists and fruit growers.' Between its lines I read a most eloquent plea for every citizen's child in this wonderful province, so rich in her natural resources, and limitless in her possibilities. It means that this commission, appointed by the Canadian government, does not think merely of the city boy and girl, but of every boy and girl within the boundaries of Canada. Why should a province such as British Columbia, with her incomparable hordes of wealth lying undeveloped, take time to think of her boys and girls at all? Because her boys and girls of today are her men and women of tomorrow, who must stand at the head of her government, her manufacturies, industries and her fruit ranches, her wheat fields and stock farms.

Big Business Before Them.

"This province and her rulers realize that there is a big business before them to educate and prepare her future citizen to know and understand the manifold possibilities of British Columbia, when once her natural resources are touched by the skilled hand of the workman, and spring into commercial life and financial values. To prepare the rank and file of these future citizens, the boys and girls, the Dominion of Canada does not establish a great university and say to the boy or girl, 'Go and sit at the feet of these great educators and learn all the mysterious secrets that modern education holds so tightly within her grasp, which she will only exchange for time and money,' because the Dominion of Canada knows that only a small percentage of her boys and girls can afford the money for the treasures, that these university courses offer, and cannot spare the time from the process of breadwinning. Therefore, the Dominion of Canada has come down the trail past the universities, the high schools, to the door of the grammar schools, and has said with her finger on the pulse of the public schools, filled with boys and girls, who are eager and feverish to get down to doing something, 'we will give you manual training for the boys.'

Scope of Manual Training.

And I hope manual training in British Columbia means more than wood work and bench work. I, as a representative of the Women's Council of Nelson, ask that it may mean fruit growing, gardening; I hope it means experimental stations, where our boys, yea even our men, may take the products of their soil, whether it be fruit, vegetables or grain, to be examined by experts, who can tell the how and why failures are reckoned with. I hope the Dominion of Canada will provide a lecturer now and then to talk of the great granite mountains that stalk about us so silently, hiding away in their great pockets, treasures of such vast wealth that it is beyond human conception to estimate them. I also hope that each boy will be taught of the mighty water power of British Columbia, that must some day be harnessed and brought into activity, turning the giant wheels of great industries.

Train Canada's Fairest Flower.

"But really I want, as a representative of the Women's Council of Nelson, to put before you the theme that is closest our hearts, and that is a plea for Canada's fairest flower,—her girl—who, with direct and proper training, may become the happy mistress of a well-regulated household, the buoyant helpmate of the wonderful British Columbia boy, when he comes into the rich fulness of manhood. When I use the word helpmate, I mean in the broad sense of the word, the homekeeper. She will be a refined, cultured woman, who will know how to provide good, wholesome food, on a small income, as well as good food free from indigestion and dyspepsia on a large income. She will know that if her husband is an accountant at the desk, he will not require the same food as her neighbor's husband enjoys, who tills in the soil or works in God's out-of-doors, or rears grand structures pointing skyward.

Scope of Domestic Science.

"Domestic science, such as the Women's Council wants, such as every sensible man and woman wants the world over, does not stop at cooking, but permeates every phase of the household, adding comfort and luxury to every home, and subtracting expense and worry. Domestic science does not begin at cooking, but goes with the pupil to the markets, and the shops, and trains her judgment to skilful buying of the right kind of meats for a roast, a steak or a stew, what vegetables go with certain meats, what kind of fruits to buy, what kind of products are the most perishable and thus advisable to buy in small quantities. It enables her to know the proper cloth to purchase for strength and endurance or for warmth without extreme weight, or for daintiness and beauty. It trains her to be punctual with her meals, and how to get up a palatable, attractive meal in a short time, so that she is not a household slave to her family's appetite, and that much of her day, aside from her household duties, may be given to her music, her books and her friends, and when evening draws her mantle across the busy stage of the financial and commercial world, she will sit with her own family around the cheerful fireside of her home and give to them the sweet communion that comes always from this lovable specimen of well developed, cultured, loving womanhood. She will be a companion to her husband and a jolly chum to her sons and daughters, who will rise up and call her blessed. This mother, who has learned the joyful art of being the household's mistress instead of the household drudge, will never advise her daughter to escape home life and take up a business course, that she may earn a living as an accountant or a stenographer. May I say that I have never known a good bookkeeper or stenographer who did not entertain an idea of matrimony and most of the dears realize their ambitions along that line.

"You ask how long will it take to bring about this delightful change. Allow me to answer, from knowledge which personal experience and observation of five years with my finger on the pulse of the schools of the United States has given. It has been my good fortune to meet every class and caste of society in this brief space of five years. I have seen the rich man's daughter's cheeks grow rosy over the same fire, and her eyes sparkle over the same achievement of producing a tempting morsel that the poor man's daughter's face flushed over, and the dimples played close to the surface of a rounded cheek, as the latter noted that her dish of delicious food looked quite as tempting, and she knew would taste quite as well. You say why should the rich man's daughter take domestic science. Because, I answer, the rich man's daughter may fall in love with the poor man's son, and may she in that event have courage enough and love of the good and noble to marry him and become a poor man's wife.

Make it Obligatory.

"You ask what can Nelson do to help the girls, while she gives the boys manual training. She can do what her sister country across the border has done, and is still doing. She can make domestic science an experiment for a while. Some schools have made domestic science elective, but the Women's Council ask that, in the event of it being placed in our public schools, it be made obligatory. This course will not lessen their school work, nor burden it. It can be used as a recreation period, so to speak. After the girl has been pouring over a hard lesson in arithmetic, it is not easy to pick up a history and plough her way through that, so let her run away to the domestic science rooms, where she can diligently work out with her hands the problem of taking care of silver, washing cut glass or cooking, or of cutting out a garment, or putting a room in order, dusting and sweeping. She will come back to her class room a brighter, more apt pupil, and history will go down without a sigh.

"Whenever I have stopped in the United States to take data, I have found that statistics show, since domestic science and manual training have been established in the schools, the average attendance and scholarship have increased at a splendid percentage. Another capital feature of the work is that, in these strenuous times of high food prices, the price of living has been reduced one-third in the families which have children in the domestic science classes. Go with me into every land where domestic science is not known, and I will show you the crying need of it in the waste in the cooking, the laundering, the sewing, and the care of clothing, not wilful waste of one who does not care, but the pitiable waste of one who does not know.

"I want to cite you a few points wherein girls, through domestic science, can keep themselves in school throughout the course, and girls too that must have left school before they had finished, had not some older head supervising, a Women's Exchange, allowed them to bake cakes and pies and bread for the trade. Others have done sewing, others still have learned the art of cleaning and caring for silver and cut glass, and are kept busy on Saturdays, doing this kind of work in the neighborhood. Some have made money catering, preparing and serving luncheon at the homes of society ladies.

Needed in Nelson.

"As a representative of the Women's Council, and as a woman who has had much experience in getting manual training and domestic science started in many cities of America, I ask that you note the number of girls above the age of 10 years, who are to become the women of British Columbia. Do not, we pray you, leave out the girls when you consider Nelson. The average cost of the domestic science need not exceed $1.75 per capita. We, as citizens of Nelson, want everything that is worth while for our boys and girls. We do not want our children to rise up and say, 'Our fathers have eaten wild grapes and set our teeth on edge,' by exercising old prejudices, and old rules that have long outlived their usefulness.

"We want our girls, from the kindergarten, which is the first step in manual training, to the time they finish in our Nelson schools, to have their home training in housekeeping, in all its various phases. Then, if our girls want to leave their homes for the avenues of the business life, let them pay for their instruction as our boys do, if they will to compete for wage with the sterner sex."

ENGLISH RUGBY FOOTBALL SCIENCE

English International Gives Some Valuable Hints on Successful Attack and Forward Combination.

J. E. Raphael, English International, writes in the Pall Mall Gazette on rugby football tactics:

In order to develop a successful attack the various players that are going to participate in it must be very careful to be in their proper positions. One of the chief reasons why ordinary attacking movements so frequently lack sting and definiteness is that people do not have the courage to stand sufficiently far back.

Naturally it is better to take the golden mean, but of the two faults, to be even an absurd distance behind the man with the ball, is far less serious than to be only a foot too near on a level with him. A moment's consideration will make it plain why this is the case. It is quite impossible for the man who is to take the ball to be going at full speed unless he has been able to have got up his space. There must obviously be a check if the pass has to be taken anywhere but right in front.

The ideal thing really is for the passe to have to stretch forward to take the ball at all, though he must not, of course, get out of his stride. This question of being right back has been discussed so often that nothing fresh can be said on the subject. It is one of those "bed rock" principles, and it is one of the conditions precedent to a higher standard of play.

Prevalent Mistake.

Another very prevalent fault is standing too far away to the side of the neighboring player. You cannot transfer the ball quickly to somebody else unless he is within easy reach. The essence of the four three-quarter system is that the passes should be sharp and straight. To give a long pass the passer is bound to steady himself, and to do this he has to "slow down," just at the wrong moment.

Where outsides are far away from each other there is usually a pronounced tendency to run across—a proceeding which not only gains no ground, but tires out the forwards in the most unnecessary fashion. How to bring back to "straight ahead," a movement that has too much bias towards the touch-line, is a difficult question to answer. It can be done, however, if people realize what is happening sufficiently quickly.

The first method that suggests itself is for one of the players who would eventually get a pass when he cannot possibly do any good with the ball, to cut in either right across or just behind the man in possession, and to take the ball practically from his hands. He will have to trust that the unexpectedness of his appearance will enable him to dash past the nearest defenders. In most cases there will be a very reasonable chance of his being able to do this as the defending side will be coming across, and he will meet them at an angle. Even if he is tackled, in all probability not much harm will have been done. It will simply mean that the forwards will not have so far to run to get into their next scrum.

Method number two is to pass the ball as quickly as possible along the line to the wing man, in the hope that he will get it before all the opposition are concentrated on him. He will then have time at any rate to see if anything can be done, instead of receiving simultaneously with the ball the attentions of one or two of the enemy. If he can kick across so that the ball will drop behind the defending three-quarter line, his forwards may have a fine chance of furthering the prospects of their side.

Some Risks.

In this event, he must run straight up the field to put his own team outside, and must never attempt to run directly for the ball himself. It is remarkable how even experienced players, in the excitement of the moment, forget this very simple and definite instruction. There are other alternatives that our wing may adopt; for instance, kicking into touch or passing in again, either at once or when he has run round an opponent. There is often a risk about passing immediately one gets the ball, because the man who has to take the transfer, may not be expecting it at the moment.

This is really a most feeble excuse for missing a pass. It means that the other player was not on the qui vive, as he ought always to be. The onus is certainly not on the man with the ball to see that his neighbor is ready to meet any ordinary contingency. He —i.e., the man with the ball—has quite enough employment in deciding what tactics can most advantageously be pursued. Whatever he may think of their wisdom or futility, it is the duty of the next player to be ready immediately and co-operate with his comrade.

When Defense Overlaps.

A wing especially should always be on the look-out for a pass that is apparently too soon. The centre may have noticed that there is very little chance of his outside man being able to get right through unaided, and that if he himself delays his pass till the ordinarily correct moment, he will be tackled and put out of further action in that special movement.

When an attack is going well there is one exception to the géneral rule that each participant should do his little bit towards making it more effective ere parting with the ball. When the defence is overlapped it will often pay to get the ball quickly to the wing and let him have a clear run in. This of course, should not be attempted every time there is likely to be an overlap, as it is generally necessary for each player to "draw" an opponent in order that the coveted positions may be secured.

I have digressed somewhat from the subject of how to correct the evil effects of running across. To punt towards either wing or straight up the field and make a dash for it, often are very effective.

CURLERS MEET TONIGHT

A meeting of the Curling club will be held in the board of trade rooms tonight at 8 o'clock All interested in curling whether members of the club or not are invited to attend.

NATIONAL HOCKEY SEASON OPENS NEXT MONTH

MONTREAL, Nov. 28—The National Hockey league has finally completed its organization. A schedule has been drawn up on a basis of doubling up home and away games for the five clubs the Wanderers, the Ottawa, the Renfrew, the Quebec and the Brockville Canadians.

The season opens Dec. 31, at Montreal. The president is T. E. Quinn. D. McGee, Ottawa; J. A. Barnett, Renfrew; A. Lecours, Canadians; Joe Power, Quebec, and E. J. McCafferty, Windsor, are on the executive.

SPORTING SPOTLIGHTS

How a system of fining players for committing fouls will work in professional lacrosse remains to be seen, says the Toronto Telegram. It will probably cost the club considerable money, and not be nearly so effective as the old "ruling out" system. In the heat of a game the club management don't care for a few dollars, and the orders re a dangerous opponent will probably be: "Get that man and never mind the cost" But even if the clubs permit the players to pay their own fines, what will the result be? If a player sees half a week's salary sticking out after a hard check that the officials might possibly consider a foul, chances are he'll cut out the check—and the manager's orders will quickly be changed to: "Go on and play the game, and we'll take care of your fines." That fining of players is no new idea. It has been discussed at many a lacrosse bee, and the conclusion arrived at was that it wouldn't work out. However, the committee had to do something—in addition to attending the football game —and they probably picked on the fining system as something the annual meeting could talk over and set to one side.

NEW HYDROPLANE.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Nearing completion at Dixon Bros. & Hutchinson's yards at Southampton, is an 800 horse-power hydroplane, which is being built to the order of the London marine motorist, who will send her to America next summer to win back the international trophy, which is now held there.

Although the owner's name is kept a close secret, it is believed the boat is being built for the Duke of Westminster, who has a passion for this dangerous form of racing.

The new craft is similar to, but more powerful and larger than Sir John I. Thornycroft's wonderful hydroplane Miander IV, and will be 40 feet long by nine feet beam, with a displacement of nine tons.

She will be a twin screw boat, fitted with two 12-cylinder motors, each of 400 horse-power. Reckoning on basis of horse-power per ton, the speed of the new boat should not be less than 62 miles per hour.

The Duke of Westminster had a hydroplane, or flying boat, built by Wolsey-Siddeley company, and nearly lost his life last July trying out the swift but cranky craft at Cowes.

KENORA CHANGES NAME.

KENORA, Ont., Nov. 28.—Kenora will be represented in the senior ranks of the Manitoba and Northwestern Hockey league this season by a team well managed, and considered capable of taking premier honors. The club unanimously decided at the organization meeting to discard the old and well known name of Thistles, and in future to be known as the Kenora Hockey club.

FRED QUINN APPROACHED

MONTREAL, Nov. 28.—It looks as if there were some serious intentions after all of running a professional hockey league in the lower provinces this season, for a business man from Halifax, who was here some days ago, approached Fred Quinn, brother of Messrs Percy Quinn, of Toronto, and T. Emmett Quinn, president of the National Hockey Association of Canada, to see if he would consider going down to Halifax and coaching the Crescent team there with a view to winning the lower province championship, and then challenging for the Stanley cup.

Mr. Quinn suggested certain terms, and the matter is now under consideration.

Mr. Quinn was at one time coach for the National Lacrosse club, and also coached some of the French-Canadian hockey teams that used to play in the Federal league, the league which brought about the strong position which the Wanderers hold at present in hockey in the Dominion.

If Henry John Nesham, who was in Nelson last spring, will communicate with D. Strickland, Nelson, he will learn of something to his advantage. If any person knows of his present address please communicate with D. Strickland. 189-3

NOT A SNAP VERDICT IN YALE

The Vancouver Saturday Sunset advances the absurd suggestion that unfair advantage was taken of the opposition in Yale because, as it alleges, they were not given sufficient time in which to prepare for the election.

As a matter of fact it has been known for more than a year that Hon. Mr. McBride was elected for two constituencies and that he must therefore resign one of them. It was not likely that he would resign the constituency in Victoria which he has held for so many years and where he resides. More than that, it was definitely announced some time ago that he would resign the constituency of Yale. There was every opportunity for the opposition to set its house in order, to chose its candidate, and to make all other preliminary arrangements.

Yale is, of course, the constituency specially concerned in a railway policy of which the Saturday Sunset is the proud inventor and patentee. That the people of Yale should take so little interest in this policy as not even to nominate a candidate who will espouse it, is, no doubt, cruelly unflattering. The Sunset is almost driven to find some explanation for this state of affairs other than that which will naturally suggest itself to most people.

IT IS THE COMMENT THAT IS MOST SIGNIFICANT.

When there is little public sentiment in favor of a particular policy anything which runs counter to that sentiment attracts little attention. But when there is a very strong and almost unanimous sentiment in favor of that policy anything which runs counter to that sentiment comes with something of a shock to the general public.

This abstract proposition, if applied to the much discussed Drummond-Arthabaska election and to the manner in which the result of that election has been received by the country at large, may lead to the conclusion that these things taken together are not so much evidence of the growth of anti-imperialism in the province of Quebec as of the growth of imperialism in the Dominion as a whole.

In the general election of 1896, the same sort of anti-imperialist appeal was made to the electors of Quebec by the Liberal party as has now been made by the "Nationalists." But it attracted very little attention. The Globe and other papers which are now horrified by such appeals had not a word of protest. There was very little protest from any quarter.

Yet in 1896 no one had proposed any contribution from Canada to the naval defence of the empire. The mere purchase of rifles for the Canadian militia then excited all the outcry. Today a great deal more money is spent upon the militia and its armament, yet not even the "Nationalists" of Quebec have anything to say against it. Even in Quebec there has been some advance in public opinion.

From the time of confederation down to 1896 and for ten years later, the parliament of Canada and the people at large declined to make any contribution to the naval defence of the empire. But in public sentiment there was progress. Canadians came to feel more and more that it was unworthy of them to make no such contribution. Still parliament did nothing. That is to say, it took, tacitly at least, the position that Canada should not do anything for the general defence of the empire,—exactly the position that shocks us all now when still adhered to by a part of the Quebec electorate.

Since 1896, public opinion in Quebec has advanced far enough to sanction expenditures made for the armament of the Canadian militia; and in the Dominion at large public opinion has advanced far enough to realize how unworthy it would be of this Canada to make no contribution to the naval strength of the empire. It is not the growth of anti-imperialism in Quebec, it is the growth in the Dominion at large of imperialism and of a realization of what national self respect demands, that is most strikingly demonstrated by the Drummond-Arthabaska election taken together with the comment which it has evoked from the country as a whole.

This is indicated even by the recent speeches of the "Nationalist" leaders themselves. After the election of 1896 no such explanations and no such protestations of loyalty were thought necessary by those who had in that election raised the anti-imperialist cry. Quebec is moving. As it now accepts the expenditure on the militia which it then denounced, so we may hope that in a few years it will accept the naval duty to which it now seems to be opposed.

IS BLIND PIG AND OPIUM JOINT

Chinaman Fined for Running Dive on Front Street—White Man and Woman Implicated.

Der Ming, a Chinese living in a shack on Front street, near Cedar, was yesterday fined by Police Magistrate William Irving in the city police court $100 for selling liquor without a license; $50 for having opium in his possession for sale; and $50 for keeping a disorderly house. The alternative to the fines, which aggregate $200, was one year's imprisonment. In the same court W. H. King was fined $50, with an alternative of six months in jail, for an offence under the Vagrancy act, and a woman named Carrie King, alias Dolly de Swan, was ordered to get out of town within 24 hours.

The city was represented by A. M. Johnson in all three cases, which were directly connected with each other. J. S. Mackay defended King.

Complete "Hop" Outfit.

In the charges brought against the Chinaman, Constables Reid and McLeod stated in evidence that the shack where the accused had lived for some time had been closely watched for a considerable period. Women had been seen to go there and the place was frequented by Chinese. On Friday night the two officers went to the shack and saw Der Ming rush away. Inside they found the woman, King, who was arrested. Later they found a complete opium smoking outfit, which was produced, and included a tin vial filled with the noxious drug, and another one which was practically empty. There were also three opium jars, a pipe, seven bowls for the pipe, an opium knife, two opium needles upon which the drug is heated before being placed in the pipe bowls, a lamp filled with oil, small rags for wiping the needles, and a pair of scissors.

And Plenty of Liquor.

A large stock of spiritous liquors was also found in the shack, together with a number of glasses, a corkscrew and a beer opener. The liquor consisted of one partly filled bottle of Scotch whiskey; one bottle of sam suey, or Chinese whiskey; two bottles of beer, and a number of empty beer, whiskey, sam suey and gin bottles.

Sergeant Ellis proved the arrest of the Chinaman, whom he discovered on Sunday in a house in Chinatown. The man attempted to escape but was prevented by the officer, who handcuffed him and placed him in jail.

The evidence of Carrie Kink, who was called by Mr. Johnson, was to the effect that she had spent two day's in Der Ming's shack. During that time she had purchased some whiskey and smoked four pills of opium. Nine or ten Chinamen visited the place while she was there.

The case of the man King, who was sentenced under the Vagrancy act, was disposed of next, the evidence adding little to that already brought forward in connection with the opium dive and blind pig which the Chinaman had been running.

Women Ordered Out.

There were charges against the woman, Carrie King, but at the request of Mr. Johnson they were withdrawn. The woman was given 24 hours in which to get out of the city.

Both the Chinaman and King were in jail last night, none of the fines having been paid.

Yesterday afternoon Dr. Gilbert Hartin, city medical health officer, and Sergeant Ellis, together with Donald Guthrie, chief of the fire department, visited the shack in which Ming conducted his nefarious business and Dr. Hartin, without hesitation, condemned it as being a menace to public health. It will be burnt by the fire department as soon as practicable.

DISASTROUS FIRE.

OTTAWA, Nov. 28—Fire broke out in the home of William Cattrall, a gardener living on the Richmond road at an early hour this morning and as a result Cattrall, his sister Mrs. Maggie Strain, his wife and child are in the hospital suffering from injuries.

CITY PAYS THE BLOMBERG COSTS

Well, Mr. Mayor, I am trying to point out to you that your suggestion is out of order.

The discussion gave promise of being over, but it was immediately revived on Ald. McDonald making the remark that the saloon keepers were fortunate now, but they would not always be. The people had given their mandate.

Mayor Selous craved permission to follow out the mandate argument. He had often heard Aldermen McDonald and Rutherford say they had a mandate, having been elected at the head of the poll in their wards. Yet he himself had been elected over Mr. Irving. Had he not therefore a mandate? The mandate given to Aldermen McDonald and Rutherford simply directed them to do their task in a legal way, not an illegal way. If the city solicitor was no good, they should get a new one. They had travelled away to other lawyers, who had landed the city in these costs. They had no right to go away from the advice given them by their engineer, their electrician, or their solicitor, on the technical fields in which those officials were experts.

Ald. Rutherford expressed some impatience because the mayor was putting up a man of straw, and knocking it down, with a long lecture on the subject. They had asked the solicitor for a bylaw to accomplish a certain object, and he had given it to them. It was his bylaw.

The mayor expressed sorrow that he had been tedious. The city solicitor had given them the bylaw, but had told them it was no good. After a certain date in February, the city solicitor had been ignored altogether. Ald. McDonold had desired to employ Mr. Davis directly, but the speaker had got them to soften down the proceeding, and instruct Mr. Johnson to secure the services of Mr. Davis. "You know you gentlemen were travelling around with other local lawyers, and not with the city solicitor," said his worship, "showing a lack of confidence in him."

Ald. McDonald—I have no faith in him yet. It is absurd to say that the city cannot put those six saloons out of business. It was the city solicitor's business to show us the way.

Mayor Selous—It was the duty of Mr. Johnson, not to tickle your palate with the kind of advice that agreed with your views, but to give you sound advice, which is what he did.

Rutherford's Disclaimer.

Ald. Rutherford put in a disclaimer as to one of the mayor's remarks. He said personally he had not consulted any lawyer but Mr. Johnson, in whom he had complete faith. And it was Mr. Johnson's bylaw that they had voted to defend.

The mayor retorted that Ald. McDonald had taken his course, and Ald. Rutherford and the others had followed him.

This practically wound up the intensely interesting discussion, his worship making as the parting remark, "You have my suggestion. Do what you like with it, but don't say I didn't give you a chance to save your face."

Endorse Police Commission.

The session of the council, apart from the Blomberg case, was extremely brief. A communication was read from the board of police commissioners, reporting the appointment of Constable McLeod as a fourth member of the force, at a salary of $95 per month, and the advancing of Constable Ellis to the rank of sergeant, with an increase of $5 per month.

Mayor Selous said that, when the board considered the outlay that had been necessary the past year for special work, they found they would have been as well off if they had granted Chief Young's request for a fourth man at the first of the year. Ald. Rutherford said he had confidence in the chief and if he asked for another man he should have him. The point was raised about McLeod being started at $95 instead of $90, and the mayor explained that he had been five years on the Glasgow force. Ald. McDonald said the $5 was nothing if McLeod was a good man.

Ald. Rutherford asked if the board required endorsation of their action. The mayor replied that it was not necessary but it would be nice. The council accordingly did the graceful thing, on the motion of Aldermen Carrie and Rutherford, and formally endorsed the action of the police commissioners.

Board of Works Matters.

The account of Edward Kerr for earth, amounting to $370, was ordered paid.

J. T. Simmons wrote thanking the council for the prompt way it had extended the walk on Hoover street and asking that it be extended a few feet further. G. C. Mackay, city engineer, stated an extension of 10 feet would require grading for 50 feet, and the council simply filed the letter.

J. E. Taylor, president of the Nelson Street Railway company, wrote asking for a crossing at the north side of Innis street at its intersection with Stanley street. It was pointed out by the mayor that the car, by swinging around the corner, could deposit passengers on the present crossing. He said Latimer street was far worse off for crossings. The request was referred to the chairman of the board of works, Ald. Carrie.

On the motion of Aldermen McDonald and Rutherford, the city engineer was instructed to secure a supply of sawdust to put on the slippery sidewalks.

Ald. McDonald raised the question of expense in hauling to the present garbage ground. No one was able to suggest a better location and nothing was done.

Ald. Carrie inquired about moving picture machines brought in for one or two shows, and was informed that they had to be put up with the approval of the fire chief and the chief of police. A fee of $50 could be charged, if they showed in unlicensed premises.

Those present were Mayor Selous and Aldermen Rutherford, McDonald, Mackenzie and Carrie.

YOUNG THIEVES UP BEFORE MAGISTRATE

Released on Probation—But Must Report Each Week—Are Yet Liable to Sentence.

"I may point out to you that for the offence which you have committed you are each liable to a term of seven years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. I am not, however, going to sentence you now," said W. H. Bullock-Webster, stipendiary magistrate, yesterday, to the three boys who broke into a shack near the cemetery last week. His worship concluded:

"I release you on probation for one year, but during that period you must each report at 10 o'clock every Saturday morning to Mr. Black, chief of provincial police, or Constable Wightman, at their office here in the courthouse. On these occasions you must tell the officers what you have been doing during the week. If I hear that any of you have been breaking the peace or otherwise misbehaving himself I shall immediately deliver a sentence of two years in the provincial reformatory. You will not be tried again; I shall just leave a note here on my desk, and you will be taken the same night to New Westminster.

A Previous Case.

"You may not remember the case of that other bad boy who broke into a place here in Nelson and committed a theft some two years ago. I sentenced him to four years in the reformatory, and he is still serving this period. That I make a distinction between his case and yours is for the reason that he had committed other crimes previous to the one for which he was convicted. You have hitherto had good characters as far as I know, and I am therefore giving you this opportunity to escape a period in the industrial school at New estminster, which is generally known as the reformatory.

"Now remember: Go to school; be good boys; do as your parents tell you. And do not forget the narrow escape you have had from going to the reformatory, and the shame to which you have so nearly put your parents."

They Burglarized Shack.

With these words ringing in their ears, three very shamefaced boys walked out of the provincial police courtroom yesterday afternoon after having pleaded guilty to breaking into a shack near the cemetery, occupied by Stephen Robinson, and stealing about $5 in cash; a rifle; some carridges; a gold watch and a compass. The three boys, according to the evidence of the complainant and J. D. Wightman, provincial constable, broke into the place on Wednesday last and stole the articles enumerated. The loot was divided up among the young thieves, who ranged in age from 10 to 13. Three dollars of the stolen cash and all the articles were afterwards returned by the children to the police when they discovered that the powers of justice were on their track.

One boy was represented by Fred C. Moffatt, and J. S. Mackay appeared for another. The third boy was not represented by counsel.

Sureties of $500 were put up by the parents for the good behavior of each of the boys.

HELP FOR FLOOD SUFFERERS

PARIS, Nov. 28—The government has asked parliament to appropriate 8,300,000 francs for the sufferers by the recent floods. This includes 5,000,000 francs for the wine growers whose crops were ruined.

MUST MAINTAIN BRIDGES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—Just because a railway happens to be on the spot is no reason why it should not build and maintain bridges at street crossings, if a city should come along later and settle down on both sides of the road. Such in effect, was the holding today of the supreme court, in a dispute between the Cincinnati and Western railway and the city of Connersville, Indiana, over the construction of a street.

PUBLISH INDECENT LITERATURE.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 28—Colin Collings came before Judge Walter on a charge of publishing indecent literature asking permission to amend his plea, pleaded guilty, and was fined $10 on each count with the option of two months in jail.

JAIL GUARDS SUSPENDED

MONTREAL, Nov. 28—Three more jail guards, Robidoux, Lozo and Guerin, were suspended today after further investigation into trafficking in cocaine and other articles in Montreal's jail.

COMPROMISE SETTLES DISPUTE.

MONTREAL, Nov. 28—The dispute between the C. P. R. management and the conductors and trainmen re the operation of the new schedule, which was recently put into effect, has been satisfactorily settled and committeemen return home today. The decision, the particulars of which have not been made public, is understood to be in the nature of a compromise.

AFTER EFFECTS OF THE GRIP

It is fortunate that the Grip epidemic this year is milder in its action than in previous years. This does not mean that it is less dangerous.

The after results of the Grip are apt to be exceeding serious. Do not take any chances,—for the general weakness, and to allay all bronchial irritation after the fever has passed, nothing equals Vinol, which is a delicious combination of the health-giving properties of the cod's liver, with the grease eliminated and tonic iron added.

A lady from Long Branch, N.J., writes: "The Grip left me in a very nervous, weakened run-down condition. After taking three bottles of Vinol I am better and stronger than I have been for years, and I cheerfully recommend Vinol to all who have been ill and need strength." (Name furnished on request.)

After Grip or any severe illness try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not restore your vitality and strength. W. Rutherford, druggist, Nelson.

WINNIPEG MARKET STEADY

WINNIPEG, Nov. 28.—With only slightly lower Liverpool Cables and firmness in American markets, the Winnipeg market opened steady and remained steady practically all morning, except in the case of November wheat, which dropped ¾c. The slight decline in December was due to the fact that longs were selling out December and buying May, with the result that December went lower and May remained steady. No trouble was found in getting buyers for the December or sellers of May and it is estimated that a large amount was transferred. The decline in December was ¼c at the close, while May was unchanged. The demand for cash wheat was good for all spot grades as firms with boats were endeavoring to secure enough to load them as quickly as possible on account of official navigation closing at midnight on Nov. 30. After that date only a few boats will leave as the increase of insurance is cent per bushel hold space for the boats, cent per bushel on the grain itself, and in addition freight rates generally advance 1c per bushel; thus the extra charge will be approximately 2⅝c per bushel, which practically prohibits shipping except in special cases. Oats were fairly firm and at the close showed a decline of ⅝c to ½c for December and ¼c for May, with November unchanged. Bids for export were 2c out of line.

Winnipeg—Wheat, Nov., 92¾ to 92; Dec., 90⅝ to 90½-⅝; May, 95 to 95⅛. Oats, Nov., close, 33; Dec., 32⅝ to 32¼; May, 47 to 46¼. Flax, Nov., 2.36 to 2.35; Dec., 2.31 to 2.29.

HILL PESSIMISTIC

WINNIPEG, Nov. 28—Markets this morning at Wall street and at Montreal opened out rather weak, and during the first hour or two of trading developed further weakness. Opinions of various authorities were generally pessimistic and J. J. Hill gave another interview, in which he said that during the next year there would be more unemployed than during the current year. This interview is very largely quoted in financial circles.

LONDON MARKET FIRM

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Money was in good supply and discount rates were lower today. The stock market was firm. Home rails had a further rise on investment buying for the new account, and Mexican rails advanced on increased earnings. The Bank of England obtained $3,500,000 of the $5,000,000 gold in the opening market, and this helped consols. American securities were quiet and steady during the forenoon. Price level was maintained until late in the afternoon, when the market sagged on light offerings and closed dull.

NEW YORK STOCKS WEAK

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—A number of factors combined to cause the acute weakness of stocks today, some positive and some merely passive. The most significant fact of the day's greatly expanded dealings was that it was Union Pacific and Reading that held full and overwhelming preponderance of activity over the whole market combined, which has characterized these stocks for weeks.

This fact offered convincing evidence that a reversal of position by the small group of wealthy speculators and bankers who have practically carried the whole of recent markets, was in progress. The fact which seems to have most influence on this action by the leading speculative forces was the interview sent from St. Paul by Chairman Hill of the Great Northern. The picture painted by the great railway builder was a gloomy one of unemployment for large numbers, and a halt in profitable activities throughout the next year as a penalty for the wild past extravagances.

NELSON NEWS OF THE DAY

(Additional local news notes on page 8.)

Good progress is being made in the extension of the C.P.R. depot to the westward, and it is expected the work will be completed before the Christmas holidays. The new addition will provide increased accommodation for the C.P.R. local operating staff, and will also allow better storage facilities on the ground floor for baggage and express. The work is being performed by the company's own carpenters, under the direction of F. McCharles, foreman.

The members of the Y.M.C.A. Literary and Debating society are reminded that the executive committee are extremely anxious to receive from them suggestions for topics to be discussed at future meetings. This was the understanding at the meeting last Wednesday, and the written suggestions can be handed in at or before the next meeting of the society. Members are also requested to pay their membership fees to the treasurer, H. E. Dill, as soon as convenient.

WHAT MEN THINK OF ASSOCIATION

Work of Y. M. C. A. the Theme at Trinity Methodist Church—Cultivates All Sides of the Man.

The evening service at Trinity Methodist church on Sunday was held under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, and proved an interesting gathering. Will Anderson, the general secretary of the local association, presided, and was supported by Rev. M. Pike.

J. Laing-Stocks, president of the association, was the first speaker, and spoke on the spiritual aspect of the Y.M.C.A. work. "First things first" was the best axiom for this and all other organizations, and the speaker laid special emphasis on the religious side of the association's activity, and thought that so far as Nelson was concerned, it was in good hands. "Y.M.C.A." stood for "Young Men's Christian Association," and the word "Christian" should not be lost sight of. He advised the people of Nelson to expect good dividends from the investment they had made, dividends in the shape of young men, who were men in the best sense of the word.

Judge Forin dealt with the business aspect of the association, and his thoughtful remarks were given an attentive hearing. He referred to the great Y.M.C. convention in Toronto as an indication of the keen interest taken in the movement by the business men of the Dominion. The judge expressed the hope that the business men of Nelson would continue to appreciate the work of the association, and that everyone interested should do his share to place it on a permanent and self-supporting basis. He claimed that the Y.M.C.A. provided, as no church or other organization has done, a common ground on which men of all shades of religious belief could meet.

Joseph Patrick, in an address that at times provoked the risible faculties of the audience, gave a very clear and concise summary of the physical department work. He referred to each organized class, giving the numbers, and had a few remarks to make on each, their sum and substance being that they were good and all good, and that there was still room, considering the number of men in the city, for a large increase in the membership in these classes. In the course of his remarks, he noted the fact that the school boys in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium drilled with staves instead of "wooden guns," the former not being so liable to go off when least expected; also that he believed one could learn the noble art of self defence, if the healthful and useful exercise of boxing found favor with the members.

Young Men Speak.

G. S. Rees was the next speaker, and paid a tribute of appreciation for the benefit and assistance received from the organization in different parts of the world. He referred to Sir George Williams, the founder of the Y.M.C.A., also to the origin of the association work, and his references to the Y.M.C.A. institutions in the Far East bespoke the world-wide extent of the movement. "Self-respect," self-reliance" and "self-control" were three of the fundamental attributes of a complete manhood, and the association work, here as elsewhere, was carried on for the purpose of carving these important characteristics into the hearts and minds of the young men.

P. Benson, the last speaker, testified to the benefit the Y.M.C.A. had been and was being to him, and stated that if he was located in any city where there was a "Y" he would without fail be on the list of active members.

Miss Nellie Annable during the service rendered Sullivan's "The Lost Chord," and gave full expression to the words of this familiar song.

The Y.M.C.A. officials desire to express their hearty thanks to Rev. J. P. Westman, and the friends of the Methodist church, for allowing the association to conduct this service, and feel that it was an interesting and profitable gathering for the large number of people who were present.

There is generally a cold spot in every home—it may be a room or passage which the heat from the furnace or stove does not reach.

To place another coal stove with all its accompanying nuisances is out of the question; where and what is the remedy? Has it ever occurred to you that the temperature of that cold spot can be immediately raised by the use of a small gas heater. No dirt, no trouble, one match and a scratch and behold comfort reigns supreme.

Just think it over and then tell your trouble to the gas man.

A. B. Buckworth of Ymir is in the city on business.

P. Walsh, superintendent of the Kaslo & Slocan railway, arrived from Spokane last night after an absence of 10 days. He goes to Kaslo this afternoon.

Crescent Valley ranch shipped another carload of beef cattle on Saturday to Winlaw. Half the consignment went to W. H. Courtney, and half to Watson Bros. There were 19 head in the lot.

E. V. Buckey, manager of the Queen gold mine at Sheep Creek, arrived in the city last night.

The jewelry store of J. J. Walker is open in the evenings until 9 o'clock.

The officers and members of Queen City Rebekah lodge are requested to meet in the lodge room tonight at 8 o'clock, for practice.

There will be a meeting of the general committee of the Citizens' party in the rooms under the K.W.C. block at 8.30 o'clock tonight.

"Nothing but success" was the reply made by President Taylor, when asked yesterday as to the progress of the Street Railway company. The total number of passengers carried on Sunday exceeded all records, reaching the satisfactory figure of 978.

Thomas Parkinson, of Parkinson & Archibald, the well known Vancouver commission merchants, is spending a few days in the city as the guest of L. A. Larson and I. G. Nelson. Mr. Parkinson is an old-timer in Nelson, having been employed here for some years by F. R. Stewart.

A big crowd is expected at the mock trial at the Methodist church this evening, when Organist Roberts will stand at the bar in answer to a charge of chicken stealing.

Mrs. J. Marden of Taghum was in the city yesterday.

Ald. McMorris returned to Nelson on Saturday night, after an absence of over four months. He has just spent three weeks at the coast, following recovery from the attack of typhoid fever from which he suffered on Okanagan lake. Ald. McMorris has the wishes of all for a rapid return to his old state of health.

The "Travel Talks" which will be given in the Methodist church by Mr. Prince, will be given on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 5 and 6.

The C.O.C.F. will hold a meeting this evening at 8 o'clock.

At the Theatres.

Owing to the sudden indisposition of Miss Adelle Nickerson, the leading lady of the Sanford Dodge company, it was found impossible to produce "The Three Musketeers" at the opera house last night. Miss Nickerson's physician stated, however, that he felt confident that she would be sufficiently recovered to appear before the footlights tonight, when Dumas' masterpiece, postponed from last night, will be played. "Faust" will fill the bill tomorrow evening. The management of the Sanford Dodge company wish to express their regret that it was impossible to play "The Three Musketeers" as billed, but hope that those who purchased tickets for last night's show will make an effort to see the play tonight.

When William Yule and Violet Eddy and their supporting company of Shakespearean players appear here on Wednesday in the ideal comedy, "Twelfth Night," theatregoers will see probably the most elaborate and complete scenic production ever handled on the local stage. Manager C. P. Walker has furnished with a lavish hand an equipment sufficient to supply five acts, divided into 16 scenes. Every inch of scenery, every piece of furniture, every platform and stage brace is carried by the company, together with special lighting effects. The scenery has been built especially for this territory and can be readily adjusted to any stage. Manager Walker is particular in his instructions to his stage carpenters and insists that the scenery be used in each and every town. "Twelfth Night" will be put on in the public school hall on Wednesday.

An excellent program is being shown at the Gem theatre this evening, consisting of the following subjects, "The Prayer of a Miner's Child," a Bison feature; "A Touching Mystery," "Native Industries of Cochin, China," "Enchanted Skates."

The program at the Empire theatre this evening includes "Lucky Shot," "The Sheriff's Daughter," and "Grandad's Will."

A great treat is in store at the opera house on Thursday, Dec. 1, when Miss Eugene Fox, the famous dramatic reciter, will appear in her celebrated Dickens and Scotch recitals. Miss Fox has appeared at Queen's Hall, Steinway Hall, and St. George's hall, London, at the Crystal Palace and at the leading provincial and continental concert halls before illustrious audiences and has won the highest encomiums. Her recitals consist of telling the whole of each story as far as each can be compressed into the allotted time. Each character is clearly and carefully delineated and each scene made vivid by reproduction in verbal portrayal.

WILL TAKE ANOTHER DEGREE IN OPTICS

Mr. Walker Will Leave Nelson in February—Will Eventually Practice in Vancouver as Specialist.

J. J. Walker, the well known Nelson optometrist, who is closing out his business as a jeweller in order to pursue more closely the infinitely delicate art to which he proposes to dedicate the remainder of his life, that of optometry, explained yesterday his immediate plans. Mr. Walker now holds the degree of Optometrist from the American Optical college, and the degree of Doctor of Optics from the South Bend Optical college, Indiana. In February he will leave Nelson, and will take a year's course at the Northern Illinois College of Opthalmology, at Chicago, taking the degree of Doctor of Opthalmology. He will devote his future career to specialism in this delicate science, for which his success thus far has led him to believe he has special aptitude.

A Fascinating Study

"Few studies are so fascinating to the man of science, and few indeed are so useful and beneficial to mankind, as the study of the eye, and of the laws of vision," said Mr. Walker. "Not every beautiful crystal will stand the critical test of inspection under a high power microscope, and not every human eye that seems crystal clear escapes the penalty of suffering that is exacted by hidden flaws. The mission of the optometrist is to discover these hidden flaws, as well as the more obvious ones, and to correct the errors in vision that result from the distortions or flaws in this most delicate of mechanisms. Equally important with perfect mechanical skill in the handling of the numerous delicate instruments used in the practice of optometry, is the analytical faculty that enables the operator to make both a perfect diagnosis and a perfect prescription. For example, two persons of equal age, with the same flaw and with the same amount of error in vision, may require slightly different amounts of correction, if their constitutions are different. Many an optometrist never acquires this delicate faculty, while with another it seems a part of his native endowment. But the optometrist who unites perfect mastery of the theory and practice of optometry, with the faculty of judgment, is a master."

Mr. Walker has on file a collection of letters that is a revelation. One dated no earlier than Nov. 12 is from a man who once travelled as far as Hamilton for treatment for an eye out of which he had not seen for 35 years. This man was advised by a Nelson man to try Mr. Walker. Mr. Walker prescribed certain glasses, which were accordingly made in Toronto. The man wrote from Winnipeg, to his Nelson acquaintance, as follows:

A Grateful Patient

"Dear B—, —Just got a whole lot of mail for me here. I got glasses. Tell your friend they are just fine, and I keep them on all the time. Never had glasses to please me like them. I would not part with them for double what I paid for them now. Just shake hands (drawing to represent hands) with yourself and him on the deal. Yours aye, ——."

The set of instruments employed by Mr. Walker in diagnosing ailments of the eye is extensive and complete. The opthalmoscope, a formidable looking machine, is used for examining the retina of the eye, the retina being the interior membrane or curtain upon which the images are thrown. The operator sees into the eye while its owner gazes into a little mirror. The retinoscope is a machine for examining the retina with the shadow test. Astigmatism is a defect of the eye in consequence of which the rays derived from one point are not brought to a single focal point, then causing imperfect images or indistinctness of Nelson. Ordinary astigmatism is not hard to detect, but latent astigmatism can only be discovered by the finest instruments. The astigmatic lens is used to reveal this condition, but the old form of making the test was not very effective. The present finished process employs the opthalmometer, and latent astigmatism that is not otherwise discoverable is revealed by its use. Correct diagnosis of the trouble paves the way to its removal. When the muscles of one or both eyes are not developed proportionately, the victim suffers from being cross-eyed, the scientific name of this affliction being strabismus. The phoroptometer infallibly detects muscle weakness. The phoroptometer is also used for detecting cases of mixed astigmatism.

Needless to say, competency in the manipulation of these delicate instruments is one of the necessary qualifications of the finished optometrist.

Will Move to Vancouver

When Mr. Walker completes the course of study he has in contemplation, he will establish in Vancouver as a specialist in treatment of the eye. The Kootenay will not lose him altogether, as he will make periodical trips through this country.

The people of Nelson will particularly regret the impending departure of Mrs. Walker, who has been prominently identified with various of the ladies organizations, particularly those of an eleemosynary character.
