KOOTENAY ORES WIN MOST PRIZES

Carry Off All Except One at Vancouver

BEST DISPLAY SEEN AT COAST

List of Honors Includes Silver Cup and Seven Diplomas

The remarkable strides that have been made during the past few years in the development of the unparalleled mineral wealth that lies in pine-covered mountains of East and West Kootenay is very clearly shown by the success of the exhibit sent to the Vancouver fair by the Nelson board of trade. As announced yesterday, Nelson carried off the silver cup, presented by the directors of the exhibition for the best mineral display and, with the exception of a ribbon of merit won by the Portland canal district, gained all the other prizes offered in the mining section of the exhibition.

Long List of Honors

The Nelson specimens were under the charge of E. W. Widdowson and William Burnham. To a representative of The Daily News yesterday Mr. Widdowson gave the following list of successes in addition to the silver cup mentioned above:

Diploma for best display of gold ores—The Summit Gold Mines, Limited, Sheep Creek.

Diploma for best display of free milling gold ores—Nugget Gold Mines, Limited, Sheep Creek.

Diploma for best display of silver-lead ores—The Kootenay Silver-Lead Mines, Limited (The Highland mine at Ainsworth.)

Diploma for copper ores—The Eureka Mines, Limited.

Diploma for asbestos—The Asbestos group, Poplar, B.C.

Certificate of merit, molybdenum ores—The Devlin group at Sheep Creek owned by A. R. Poole and J. G. Devlin.

Mr. Widdowson said that the management of the exhibition set aside the whole of one end of a large balcony and that the ores were displayed on tables decorated in an effective manner in blue and red, setting off the samples in striking relief. The space occupied was 3 feet by 8 feet.

Giant Specimen from Perrier

In the centre of the display was placed the large specimens, the largest coming from the Perrier mine. This weighed about 500 pounds. Another piece of ore from the St. Eugene weighed 300 pounds. Big specimens from the Arlington, Athabasca and California were also shown in the centre of the table.

Rich Copper Ore Amazes

At one end were grouped the samples from the Ymir district that from the California attracting much attention and being the cause of a great deal of comment owing to the heavy percentage of copper in it. Specimens of free silver ore from the Yankee Girl and of gold bearing ore from the Dandee and Hunter V mines were all displayed in this collection.

Sheep Creek Excites Interest

At the other end of the table was the Sheep Creek exhibit and it was before this that the greatest crowd was always congregated. On the second day the crowd was so immense that a third man had to be engaged to assist in looking after the exhibit. The fame of the camp and its wonderful possibilities seemed to have spread, said Mr. Widdowson, among miners and laymen alike. Thousands of questions were asked concerning the ore, the mines and the camp generally. In the centre of the Sheep creek exhibit was a magnificent display of free milling ores from the Summit mine, which carried off first prize, the Nugget, the Mother Lode the Queen, the Emerald, the Golden Fawn, the Golden Belle, the Clyde-Bell group, the Kootenay Belle, the Aitkens group, the Galena Lady, the Pipe Dream, the Searchlight, the Bonanza, the Echo, the Joint group and some dozen other properties, all representative of the Sheep creek mines.

Good Galena Exhibit

Among the samples of galena ore those from the Highland mine at Ainsworth showed in greatest prominence. From this property was sent a large block of crude ore and arranged about it were 12 bottles showing the different grades of concentrates from the Highland mill. The other mines exhibiting fine galena specimens were the St. Eugene, the Lucky Jim, the Ruth, the Payne, the Whitewater and a number of other properties in the Slocan country.

Rare Minerals

On the other side of the table were shown the special board of trade exhibit, a list of which has already been published. On each side of this were displayed specimens of rare minerals such as molybdenite, antimony and asbestos. The asbestos exhibited from

The young counts thus admonished emigrated to Canada where they are now prosperous under the firm name of Alvo von Alvensleben of Vancouver and Victoria. The emperor takes great interest in the firm and rejoices in the success of his protegees.

SASKATCHEWAN ADOPTS BOY SCOUTS

Address From Hero of Mafeking Makes Impression—Boy Scout Council Formed

REGINA, Aug. 25—An enthusiastic reception was accorded today to Lieut.-Gen. Sir Robert F. S. Baden-Powell and the Boy Scouts movement has arrived in Regina to stay. Gen. Baden-Powell spent the greater portion of the morning at the Royal Northwest Mounted Police barracks and in driving around and seeing various points of interest in the city. He was the guest of honor at a luncheon given under the auspices of the Greater Regina club at the Kings hotel at which over 200 sat down. During a half hour speech the hero of Mafeking briefly outlined the scope and ideals of the Boy Scout movement which so appealed to those present that before the gathering broke up a local provisional committee of five was appointed with a view to encouraging the movement. Through the following proposed council of Boy Scouts for Saskatchewan it is hoped to popularize the idea and make it thoroughly provincial in character: Lieut.-Col. Frank Ford, Regina; Lieut.-Col. F. J. Gwynne, Greenfell; his honor Judge Farrell, Moosomin; Major H. Tuxford, Moose Jaw; Major H. A. Cheeson, Saskatoon; Hon. Senator Prince, Battleford; Capt. E. S. Shannon, Prince Albert; his honor Judge Rimmer, Arcola; William Sharpson, Yorkton; Lieut-Col. Gordon Baker, Regina. Following the luncheon the general addressed a crowded public meeting at the city hall.

TWELVE KILLED IN GRAND TRUNK WRECK

Engine Crashes Into Car Filled With Sleeping Passengers—Burned Beyond Recognition.

FLINT, Mich., Aug. 25—In a rear end collision between passenger trains Nos. 4 and 14, both east bound on the Grand Trunk railway, two miles east of Durand late last night, eight passengers are known to have been killed, three were probably fatally injured and five were seriously hurt. It was reported early today that four passengers are still missing.

Leading Train Stopped.

Train No. 14 stopped to repair a defective brake when No. 4 crashed into the sleeper of the standing train. The engine of No. 4 ploughed half way through the sleeper, crushing to death some of the sleeping passengers. The wreckage caught fire and others of the passengers were burned or scalded. It is said there were 18 passengers on the ill-fated car when the forward train stopped. A brakeman was sent back to signal the train following, but the explosion of the torpedo which was placed on the track as a warning was heard too late by the engineer of No. 4 to stop his train.

Identification Impossible.

As fast as they were recovered from the ruins of the burned sleeper the bodies of the dead were taken to Durand. Some of the injured were taken to the village and others were brought to the hospital in the city. The dead bodies recovered during the night are two unidentified, one about fifty years old, and the other about sixty and six passengers whose bodies were so badly scalded and burned as to make identification difficult if not impossible.

Edmonton Man Injured.

The following are at Hurley hospital very badly injured: Bert Mitchell, Battle Creek, engineer of train No. 14, head crushed, condition critical; Mrs. Lester Splitz, Chicago, aged 28, scalp wound and bruises; Arthur Watt, Edmonton, Alberta, aged 35, face and hands burned; Mrs. Kate McBean, Chicago, aged 65, right leg fractured; Mrs. Lester Dochler, Livestock, aged 14, fractured leg and bruises. The injured who were taken to the hospital at Durand and Geo. Nelson, Battle Creek, fireman on No. 4, badly scalded will probably die; Clinton A. Davis, Montreal, probably fatally scalded. Mrs. N. Stovitry, Dubuque, Ohio, cut and badly bruised; Bert Mitchell, of Port Huron, engineer on train, injured about head. The body of one of the two dead women may be that of Mrs. Davis, mother of Clinton A. Davis of Montreal, who was injured, one of the bodies corresponds to Mrs. Davis' description as to size. Mrs. Davis was an invalid, travelling with her son and a nurse. Charles Spencer, of Battle Creek, engineer is stated to have been badly injured. His name does not appear on the list given out by the railroad officials as being taken to a hospital at either Durand or Flint.

Twelve Dead.

DETROIT, Aug. 25—The Detroit Journal estimates the number of dead in last night's wreck on the Grand Trunk railroad near Durand as 12, and gives as a list of dead, Mrs. Davis, 226 Stanley street, Montreal; Mrs. Lucy E. Gilpin, 643 East 45th street, Chicago; three unidentified women, an unidentified man, small child, and five bodies believed to be in the wreck.

Accident at Galt

GALT, Ont., Aug. 25—John H. Hurlouit, C.P.R. engineer, was instantly killed here last night at 7 o'clock. Hurlouit was running freight No. 5 going east and stopped at Galt for orders. When he tried to start the train he found he could not do so as the engine had stopped on the dead centre. The yard engine was brought up to give the train a start, but on account of the projecting pilots the two engines could not be coupled up. A big tie was then placed in a horizontal position between them. Then the engine was started. The pressure broke the tie and one of the flying pieces struck Engineer Hurlouit on the side of the head.

Gave Proper Signals.

MONTREAL, Aug. 25—A further official statement regarding the train wreck at Durand, Michigan, last night, shows as a result of preliminary investigation, that the flagman went back a little over half a mile and gave the proper signals to stop the New York train. It was a clear night, and around the station at Durand could be seen plainly where the Montreal train stood. The flagman gave stop signals with his red lamp until the approaching train exploded the two torpedoes which he had put on the track, and the flagman had to get off the track to keep from being run over. Further investigation is being made as to why the New York train did not respond to the signals. Markers on the rear of the Montreal train were properly displayed, and after the accident occurred the one on the left hand side was found on one side still upright and still burning. The conductor, who was standing on the rear of the Montreal train, heard the torpedoes explode and saw the flagman giving the drop signal. There were also passengers on the Montreal train who were standing on the ground and heard the torpedoes explode and saw the drop signal. Passengers on both trains, other than those on the Pullman Nebrasca, sustained a few slight injuries but nothing of a serious nature, and only slight damage was done to equipment other than the sleeper.

WILL ALLOW FIRES TO BURN OUT

Ordered Not to Risk Life to Save Timber

MOST EXPENSIVE BLAZE EVER KNOWN

Appalling Loss of Life Takes Heart Out of Foresters—Finding the Dead

SPOKANE, Aug. 25—The mystery of the bodies being found in St. Joe county, Idaho, probably will be cleared up today when the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound road runs its first passenger train to Avery. One hundred and six men living in the St. Joe valley are missing. Twenty-two bodies, supposed to be of settlers were found yesterday. Several days ago twenty bodies were discovered, scattered over an area of over a mile and it was assumed they were forest employees. Supervisor Weigle, including them in his list of dead employees. Last night, however, he declared they were not rangers, of the number of dead rangers the total is 142. This is without taking into account the 135 rangers imprisoned on the head waters of the St. Joe. The appalling loss of life among the forest employees has taken the heart out of the survivors of the foresters and an order has been issued not to risk life to save timber.

Allowed to Burn Out.

The little fires are being extinguished but the great fires to fight which might result in more loss of life will be allowed to burn themselves out until the rains extinguish them. In the Coeur d'Alene mining country the fires have exhausted their fell force as they have in the Pend d'Oreille valley and in the Clearwater country. In the thickest timber of the Coeur d'Alene natural forest, however, the flames are hungry and active as ever. No lumbermen or forester will give an estimate of the timber losses, even after the fires are out it will be difficult to reckon them. It is believed, however, that the present fires are the most expensive the United States has ever known. A prominent railroad builder estimated the loss of the Chicago, Milwaukee and Puget Sound railroad at $2,500,000. The Spokane chamber of commerce has begun the raising of a large relief fund.

Condition Hopeless.

There are 189 men surrounded in the mountains between Lolo Pass and St. Mary's and Major Fenn has sent three guides to pilot them out. Conditions in the Clearwater reserve are hopeless and Major Fenn has received instructions from the forestry headquarters at Missoula to recall all the fire fighters from the interior of the stricken region and set them to work on the outskirts of the fire zone. The message said "Save the lives of the men and let the timber go."

Forty-six Burned.

SPOKANE, Aug. 25—Sixty-five laborers arrived from the St. Joe country today and reported that 46 of their comrades were burned to death on Big creek last Saturday, all of the men were recruited in Missoula.

LUMBERMEN ARE NOW OPTIMISTIC

Latest Crop Reports From Prairies Indicate Good Demand in Fall, Says W. A. Anstie.

"The prospects for a good demand for lumber from the prairies this fall," said W. A. Anstie, secretary of the Mountain Lumbermen's Manufacturers' association last night, "have been greatly improved by the latest crop reports. The latest information on this question indicates that the total wheat production will be approximate ly 101,000,000 bushels as against about 120,000,000 bushels last year.

"Of course the area of land under cultivation this year is greater than in 1909 but I think that on the whole the demand for lumber this fall will be comparatively good. The output and sales for the first six months of this year were the greatest in the history of our organization and I anticipate that the year's results will be highly satisfactory."

Mr. Anstie has just returned from a trip to Vancouver and stated last night that although the air at the coast was heavy with smoke, the bush fires there, as in Kootenay, had done very little damage to merchantable timber.

WEALTHY LUMBERMAN DIES AT PORTLAND

Deceased Was Relative of A. H. Kelly and Owner of Kootenay Timber Lands

A. H. Kelly returned to the city last night from Portland, Ore., where he was called by the news of the sudden death of his nephew, David L. Kelly, a well known lumberman in the Columbia river metropolis. The late Mr. Kelly was the owner of 4000 acres of first class timber land in East Kootenay and also had extensive holdings of timber in other parts of this province and in Oregon and Washington.

The late Mr. D. L. Kelly was born in Blissville, Sunbury county, New Brunswick in 1862. In 1889 he left New Brunswick for Stillwater, Minn., where he engaged in the logging, timber, mining and real estate business. He came to the coast in 1901 and bought timber lands in British Columbia, Washington and Oregon. With his brother, F. G. Kelly, he opened in 1902 a logging camp at Knappa, Ore., which he continued until his death.

Mr. Kelly leaves a widow residing at Portland and three brothers, John B., of Woodinville, Wash; F. R. of Warrenton, Ore., and T. G. residing at Clifton, Ore. He left three sisters, Miss Louise S Kelly of St. John, N.B., Mrs. T. B Roberts and Mrs N. J Dibble both of Blissville, N.B.

The late Mr. Kelly was well and favorably known to the timber and logging interests of British Columbia and the west generally. The body has been shipped to Blissville, accompanied by the widow and the deceased's two brothers, T. G. and F. G. Kelly. Mr. Kelly leaves a large estate, consisting of timber lands, real estate and other property

DEATH FOLLOWS KICK IN MATCH

Feud Between Football Teams—One Player Dead, Another Probably Fatally Injured.

HATCHLEY, Ont., Aug. 25—Residents here are greatly wrought up over the death yesterday morning of J. Savage, the son of George Savage of here, and the serious condition of a young man named Robinson. Both young men figured in a football match at a picnic held at Morriswoods on Friday last between Harley and Hatchley. There was an old time feud between the players and Savage was severely kicked by one of the Harley team, succumbing to his injuries yesterday. Robinson was kicked by the same player and has slight chances of recovery. The county authorities commenced an investigation today into the affair.

TO SEND EXHIBIT TO OLD COUNTRY

Entire Display at Vancouver App'e Show May be Shipped to Vancouver

(Special to The Daily News.)

VANCOUVER, Aug. 25—Promoters of the national apple show are considering the suggestion to send the entire exhibit to the old country as a standing display. Should the plan be favored the provincial authorities will be asked to assist. The management has received a letter from Gorrie, Jacobs and company, large fruit merchants of London, stating that one of the firm will be present at the coming show especially to look into British Columbia as a source of old country supply.

GREAT EXHIBITION TO BE HELD AT ST. JOHN

ST. JOHN, Aug. 25—The greatest exhibition that has ever been held in the Maritime provinces will open at St. John on Sept. 5, and continue until Sept. 15.

This is the Dominion exhibition for 1910 for which there is a federal grant of $50,000 besides provincial and civic grants. St. John has had splendid exhibitions before, the first being held the year after the opening of the Crystal Palace in London. But this year's event is in a class of its own. The grounds have been enlarged to embrace 20 acres. The number of buildings has been increased and some of the old ones enlarged. The new cattle barn, with stalls for 500 animals has no superior on the continent. It is built on a gentle slope, giving a perfect drainage, has water at every stall and is lighted at night by electricity throughout. As there are entries for several hundred cattle even this great barn is not large enough and other quarters are to be provided for 200 animals.

METHODISM AND CHURCH UNION

Question Under Discussion by General Conference

DIVERGENT VIEWS ON BASIS OF UNION

Chancellor Burwash Moves for Approval of Terms—Dr. Patten Opposes

(Special to The Daily News.)

VICTORIA, Aug. 25—The debate on church union opened at the Methodist general conference tonight. From the trend of the discussion which has been adjourned it is evident that while the ideal desired is favored by a great majority of the delegates, there is a widespread divergence of opinion as to the basis upon which it should be consummated. The discussion arose through presentation of the report of the committee on church union which has had the consideration of the proposed basis of union under advisement for some time past.

Recommends Adoption.

Chancellor N. S. Burwash of Victoria university, who is chairman of the committee moved the adoption of the first recommendation as follows: Your committee recommend that the general conference declare its approval of these documents agreed upon by the joint committee of the churches which it is proposed to unite, as a basis upon which the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches may unite.

Speaking to his motion Chancellor Burwash said he supposed all the delegates were familiar with the terms of the basis of union. The church seemed now to have arrived at almost the final point of a chain of providential circumstances in which in his opinion the hand of God was clearly visible. The church in Canada by a peculiar combination of circumstances was in the forefront of the movement. In the spiritual life the churches were drawing together. Why Canada occupied an advanced position was because here the people were laying the foundations and building the structure of a new nation. This was true of nowhere else. Now upon the Methodist church here lay the responsibility of taking the next step in the great movement the question before the conference was that of the fundamental principles upon which the basis of union should rest.

Union in the Air.

The motion was seconded by J. A. N. Aikens of Winnipeg, who, speaking as a lawyer said he believed that the basis had been drawn with accuracy. The church should bear in mind that there was a spirit of union in the air. In this respect he quoted the confederation of Canada, South Africa, Australia and the general proposals for an imperial confederation which he trusted would ere long be consummated.

Opposed to Terms.

The most striking speech of the evening was delivered by the Rev. Dr. W. H. Patten of the Wesleyan theological college Montreal. While in sympathy with the aim he stated he was opposed to the proposed basis of union. It was the basis and not the aim which was before the conference. The position which Methodism occupied was that she must ask for a better means of doing God's work than she now had. Methodism had been high and strict in its doctrines, and efficient in its results. It was the most spectacular of all the churches as well as the most evangelical and ethical. These attributes of the church would be weakened not strengthened by union on the lines proposed. In this basis there were no strict rules of conduct. It proposed a weaker faith than that of Methodism on themes which were the very marrow of Methodism's faith and teachings. It dogmatized on things which the Methodist church had seen fit to leave untouched. Theologically speaking the basis was weaker than the one which Methodism now had. If the new basis became operative it would be held with no amount of conviction and with little respect, and he was afraid with some degree of shame. It could only be looked upon as a concession to human weakness. Any such policy was something new to Methodism. Was his church to throw away the efficient instrument it had in exchange for that which would guide no man's conscience. In the proposed basis any doctrine could be changed every two years. Methodism said that the doctrines of the church were unchangeable. The basis made revolutionary changes in minister's positions. If Methodism acquiesced in shackling the free and responsible actions of her ministers then she could not look to the great masses of her people to do the work that has been done in the past. The polity of the basis touched the most vital part of Methodism in weakening the sense of responsibility in her ministers, curtailing their initiative and putting an end to aggressive activity, hence the problem was a particularly serious one to the Methodist

GERMANS SWARM INTO PALESTINE

Gradually Monopolizing Trade and Absorbing Most of the Land.

JERUSALEM, Aug. 25—It is an open secret here in Palestine that the Germans during the last fifty or sixty years have planted themselves firmly in the realms of the Ishmaelites, and are gradually monopolizing the trade and absorbing much of the land.

The steady and persistent German influx into the Holy Land is the result of a well meditated plan of campaign, cleverly organized by influential syndicates composed of great financiers, princes, manufacturers, military officers, and last, but not least, the emperor, who presides over the meeting of the principal syndicate à huis clos!

The migration began in the early fifties of the nineteenth century on a very small scale, when a body of Germans calling themselves Templars left their native land for Palestine. They were plentifully supplied with means, but came presumably on a pilgrimage to the Holy Land. Not to provoke the suspicions of the Ottoman government, which at that time looked upon all foreigners as spies and enemies of Turkey, they settled in Haifa, and at once each member of the party began to establish a home for himself, buying land and building his own house, acting even as his own carpenter and blacksmith. In less than three years a colony of 200 well built houses, of European style, graced the slopes of Mount Carmel. Once firmly rooted there little by little they branched out to Jaffa, Jerusalem and other places.

Fever of Expansion.

Each German was, as it were, inoculated with the fever of expansion, and attracted from the fatherland many of their compatriots, who were equally actuated by the same principle of German imperialism. In the year 1842 the German proprietors could be counted by thousands, and then these established Teutons, with almost heroic tenacity and concentration of purpose, endeavored to open up a market for manufactures, and find an outlet for articles of German production. Inducements of all sorts, unheard of facilities, cheap prices and long credits were offered to merchants, that by all means their patronage might be secured.

During all this time one commercial traveler after another appeared upon the scene; some of them remained as commission agents in Haifa, Jaffa and Jerusalem, and very shortly became important personages, to whom the merchants looked up as saviours, because they offered their wares at very low prices and were willing to wait long for payments. The ice broken, the Emperor Frederick's visit soon followed, and this event greatly raised eGrman prestige and brought about a more friendly feeling between Turkey and Germany.

William II. and Abdul Hamid.

When his majesty William II. ascended the throne he prosecuted the policy of his father with a determination that almost amounted to mania. He lavished favor upon favor, and made promises of all kinds to his "cher et tres grand ami," Abdul Hamid, which diplomatically created for his subjects in Palestine a formidable stronghold, and this became still more impregnable when the Emperor and Empress paid their visit to Jerusalem in 1898.

The Germans made all possible capital out of this wave of enthusiasm in their favor. Immense tracts of property were acquired in all parts of the country. From Haifa to Tiberias, from Tiberias to Safed, from Safed to Damascus, from Damascus to Nablous, from Nablous to Jerusalem, the mighty influence of Germany may be felt by any observant traveler.

Only recently, immense churches and colossal fortress-like institutions have been erected in Jerusalem, inaugurated and dedicated not long ago by Prince and Princess Eitel Freidrich. The institutions and establishments of other nations dwindle into insignificance when compared with those of Germany. It is a well known fact, and has become a truism here, that there is nothing too difficult for Germany to obtain from the Ottoman government.

From the highest to the lowest, the officials cringe before the German consul, in contradistinction to some other diplomatic agents, who are trifled with by the authorities on important points until the matter is referred to Constantinople, and this means considerable loss of time in a country where postal communication is irregular and telegrams are sometimes longer en route than letters.

To Conquer Palestine.

It is evident that Germany is endeavoring by every means to strengthen her position in the east. If, for instance, she perceives that a foreign subject possesses a parcel of land of strategic importance, she will not rest until, by importunity or persuasion, or other means, she has obtained possession of it.

The Germans flock in on every side; their manner of entrance is original, and proves that behind this emigration there is a clever chess player directing the movements of the pawns. Many come as tourists, others as pedestrians calling themselves globe trotters; but the greatest number remains in the country. If they are well-to-do, they at once buy property, cultivate it, and build houses upon it. If poor, the "Templar Casses," powerfully subventioned by political syndicates, advances money, with the command: "Be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth and subdue it." Indeed, in prolificness the German transcends the Jew, at least in Palestine.

The German post office officials, school masters, archeologists, geologies, topographists, etc., are all military men and invariably stanch imperialists. In the German schools most of the reading books are histories of wars, studiously prepared to inflame the young Teuton with the fire of Chauvinistic patriotism.

The Germans are a compact body politic of great power, whose ambition appears to be to conquer Palestine in one way or another, but by all means to do it!

ACCIDENT AT AINSWORTH.

(Special to The Daily News.)

AINSWORTH, Aug. 25—What might have been a very fatal accident today resulted only in seriously injuring the left hand of Robert Sheridan. While placing the explosive detonator cap on his fuse, before shooting, the cap exploded, tearing the centre of the hand and fingers very badly, almost blowing one of the fingers off. It was immediately bandaged and Mr. Sheridan left tonight for Kaslo to have it tended by the doctor.

REBUILDING OF TRAFALGAR SQUARE

Would Make It Noble Memorial in Heart of Empire to King Edward.

Many distinguished and representative men have been enrolled on the committee which is to meet in London to erect in the heart of the empire a worthy memorial in honor of King Edward. Among these are the Duke of Fife, Lord Rothschild, Lord Alverstone, Sir Ernest Cassel, Sir James Gilder, Sir Herbert Tree, the governor and deputy governor of the Bank of England, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the president of the Royal College of Physicians, the president of the Royal College of Surgeons, the president of the Royal Academy, the president of the Law Society, the president of the Chamber of Shipping, the Chief Rabbi, and Lord Iveagh.

Trafalgar Square.

Perhaps the most interesting of all the suggestions that have yet been made with regard to the form of the memorial, says the London Observer, is that of Mr. William Woodward, one of the foremost English architects, who considers that Trafalgar Square should be re-built and re-named after King Edward.

"I shall not die contented," Mr. Woodward remarked on one occasion, "unless I see this gloomy asphalted waste, with its two squirts, made worthy of its description as the finest site in Europe." Now is the opportunity, he thinks and we publish a plan showing how he proposes that the square should be laid out.

The main idea is to form in the square in stone and bronze a complete naval history of Great Britain. Thus, on each side of the four great piers—north, south, east and west—would be placed sculptural groups, representing respectively the naval victories of the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, culminating in 1805 with Trafalgar.

The Nelson column would, of course, remain untouched. The larger piers on the east and west walls would be adorned by minor groups and the smaller piers by bronze electric lamp standards, the intervening space being filled with wrought iron railings with gilded spearheads.

The Great Harry.

The present fountains would be replaced by others of better design. In the centre of the fountain to the east would be placed a bronze group of Neptune and sea gods, emblematic of the four oceans, and in that to the west a bronze group of Britannia and mermaids, emblematic of the four members of the United Kingdom.

The entrance to the Tube station at the southeast part of the square would be covered by a circular domed temple of pierced wrought iron work and a corresponding temple would be placed at the southwest corner, under the dome being a drinking fountain. One of the domes would be terminated by a model in iron of the Great Harry and the other by one of the Victory.

Removed, too, like the present fountains, would be the awkward flight of steps at the northeast and northwest angles of the square. The angles would be squared and the terrace balustrade carried across; and in the centre of the north front would be a grand staircase equal in length to the portico of the National Gallery.

Upon the two main piers of the staircase allegorical figures standing on gilded globes would be placed, one with palms, representing Peace, the other with laurels, representing Honor. On the side walls of this staircase would be bronze bas-reliefs, similar to those on the Nelson column, representing individual gallantries, such as John Davis forcing the North-West Passage; Drake, first navigator rounding the Horn; the famous game of Drake at Plymouth; Sir Richard Grenville and the Revenge; Raleigh's offer to King James; death of Blake; Lord Sandwich blown up with his flagship; Benbow's bravery, Admiral Byng's famous record; and the exploit of the Monmouth.

Marble seats would be placed along the east, west and north walls, and the whole of the present asphalt paving would be taken up and fine axed granite paving, grey and red, designed to suit the square, substituted. Shrubs in tubs would be dotted about the square, and water plants placed in the fountains. The statues at present in the square, which commemorate military heroes, would be removed to the Horse Guards.

CASTE'S HOLD ON INDIA.

Western Innovations Loosen It in Many Respects.

The Hindus will not touch water which has not been drawn by their own people, and they must not eat food cooked in water supplied by different caste. This fact for a long time hindered the use of the water works which the English have introduced into some of the cities, but by a special dispensation granted by the Brahmins they are now raising the ban as to water on tap. This is tending to modify caste.

Another is the railways and tramways. At first the Brahmins and others of the higher castes wanted cars of their own. They could not get them, and now all must travel together. The schools of the government admit pupils of all castes, and the Brahmin boys now sit with boys of the scavenger caste.

The Brahmins have also changed certain caste rules as to drink. The stores are full of new things from abroad, and these are desired by all castes in common. It is allowable now to use patent medicines and soda water without losing one's soul. A man is not damned if he buys ice made by a foreigner, and he can eat soda crackers, without being polluted. It is the same with ginger ale and other soft drinks.

It is different as to meats. The flesh of the cow is sacred, and any Hindu who would eat the liquid extract of beef would be damned, and a ham sandwich is a passport to hell.

A Hindu will not defile himself by even uttering the word for steak.

Every person who by himself or through the agency of another person packs fruit in a closed package intended for sale shall cause the package to be marked in a plain and indelible manner in letters not less than half an inch in length, before it is taken from the premises where it is packed.

(a) With the initials of his Christian names and his full surname and address or, in the case of a firm or corporation, with the firm or corporate name and address.

(b) With the name of the variety or varieties and

Such marks may be accompanied by any designation of grade or brand if that designation or brand is not inconsistent with or marked more conspicuously than the one of the said four marks which is used on the said package.

MINING NEWS

Rossland Man Describes Conditions in Skeena River Country—Predicts Big Boom—Freighting Costly

James Dyer, proprietor of the Centre Star hotel at Rossland has just returned from a visit to Hazelton and the Skeena river country. Although he was away for something like four months he did not see much of the country as he was busy at work all the time on the claims which belong to his partner Tom Stevenson and himself. Tom Stevenson used to work in the mines at Rossland and has been in the Omineca country about two years. There are, says Mr. Dyer, the makings of a rich country there. The ore is rich, the ledges are solid and go down apparently. It will be a great country and there is destined to be a great boom as soon as the railway gets in. But at present everything is very high. Freight is $50 a ton on the boat from Prince Rupert up the Skeena river. Living is very high also, although potatoes, cabbage and other roots can be grown. There was no land cleared yet so far as he saw. He did not visit the Bulkley valley, but his opinion is that there will be a great boom there as soon as people could get it. He met in that district many Rosslanders. His partner and he sold five claims and have retained four.

Make Strike

Frank Guindon, the principal owner in the Guindon group on the west side of Moyie lake, has made a lucky strike within the last week. He now has about 18 inches of ore in an open cut which he is driving on one of the claims. This open cut is in about 25 feet.

RECOLLECTIONS OF EARLY WIRELESS

At First Many Believed He Was Trying to Communicate With Departed Spirits

My earliest experment in wireless telegraphy was made in the grounds of my father's house in Italy, over a distance of about 100 yards, writes Signor Marconi in London Answers.

I was somewhat hampered in my preparations for making this initial experiment at establishing communication between two points without wires by the fact that an old and much respected servant on my father's estate viewed the whole proceeding with considerable disfavor and was firmly convinced that it was in some way or other an attempt on my part to get into communication with the departed spirits. He prayed of me earnestly to relinquish my terrible designs and even presumed so far as to remove stealthily at night a part of an installation I had set up near his house.

The First Message

Fortunately, however, my mother, who always took the greatest interest in all my experiments, bravely championed my cause and through her influence the old retainer was persuaded to let me carry on my work without hindrance, though he never ceased to warn me that it must quite inevitably end in some dreadful disaster.

For quite a considerable period I was unable to effect a transmission even across so narrow a space as the top of a little table; but after several years of incessant toil at the age of 24 I at last succeeded in sending a message from the station in the garden to my father's house. Of course the distance covered was only a few yards but it was a red letter day in my career for with that first triumphant message wireless telegraphy became a practically accomplished fact.

When I came to London after having patented my system I gave a demonstration of it to the general postoffice officials at their invitation.

The demonstration attracted some attention and I received a great many letters on the subject from people all over the country, most of whom were at pains to prove to me that I had embarked on an enterprise inevitably doomed to failure. One of these letters I remember very well. I forgot all about it at the moment, but it was recalled to my recollection in a rather singular way several years later.

Learning by Experience

The letter came from a gentleman who was engaged in business up in the north of England and he wrote to me to say that he was not a scientist but a practical man of affairs and as such, he could plainly see that however interesting my ideas were from a scientific point of view they were useless from a commercial standpoint as it would very clearly be impossible ever to rely upon the accuracy of messages sent by such a means as I proposed. Several years later the writer of the letter was on board a shipwrecked vessel the crew and passengers of which were saved owing to the fact that they were able to send a wireless message across the ocean for help, which reached a ship more than 160 miles away. The writer of the letter wrote afterwards to tell me of this and to recall to my mind the letter he had written some 12 years previously when my system of wireless telegraphy was in its infancy.

One of the most interesting landmarks in the history of wireless telegraphy's progress occurred eight years ago when the first press interview ever conducted by wireless took place between a reporter at our signalling station at Niton, in the Isle of Wight and myself, then a passenger on board the American liner Philadelphia.

Niton was "rung up" when the Philadelphia was 80 miles from port and I shall never forget the general wonderment the ease with which we were able to communicate caused among all on board. For in those days, wireless telegraphy being in its comparative infancy was considered far more marvellous than it is now. I must say, by the way, that although the general public seemed doubtful of my ever being able to establish a practicable system of wireless telegraphy, British scientists—and notably the late Lord Kelvin—gave me much encouragement during the early stages of the development of my system.

Eight Hours' Incantation

In establishing wireless stations in different parts of the world we have encountered all sorts of difficulties.

In China for example our workers were regarded as agents of the evil spirit and prayers were offered by the priests for our destruction. One memorable morning a Chinaman arrived where we were at work and began walking round and round some of the men muttering strange incantations. Of course, it would not have been policy to have interfered with the man but he was a terrible nuisance and hampered our operations considerably. Every now and then one of our men would stop work and swear at the gigantic Chinaman, who at last dropped to the ground completely tired out after he had been walking around in a narrow circle for over eight hours

One of the most difficult stations we ever erected was at Clifden, a place in the west of Ireland. When the engineers arrived at the point selected for the station, two of them suddenly sank up to their waists in the boggy land and were extricated with considerable difficulty from their most unpleasant and rather dangerous position.

It was a difficult matter to get a secure holding for the tall iron mast in such soil and was only accomplished after many months of very arduous and trying work.

"Wireless Weather"

In the early days of wireless telegraphy I think many people had a notion that the sending of messages in some way or other affected the weather. I received at any rate a great many letters on the subject—especially during the wet summer of 1903. Some of my correspondents asked me to desist from my operations; one lady—a proprietress of a boarding house at the seaside—declared that she had been simply ruined by what she described as "wireless weather."

EUCHARIST CONGRESS HONORS MONTREAL

First Held in North America—Dignitaries of Roman Catholic Church From Many Lands.

On September 3, the first Eucharist congress of the Roman Catholic church ever held on this continent will assemble in Montreal, and for nine days will deliberate on problems of the church. From a clerical point of view the event will be the most important in the history of Montreal. From all parts of the world will come delegates and visitors, and there can be little doubt that thousands of visitors drawn by the prospect of a gorgeous spectacle will attend. To calculate the mere numbers is very difficult, but already accommodation has been arranged in the religious institutions of the city for two thousand priests. Other thousands will go to the hotels or be billeted upon the faithful. Preparations are being made to receive about 50,000 visitors.

Many Distinguished Churchmen.

Every important and devout Roman Catholic in the country, lay and ecclesiastical, will be invited to attend. From Rome will come Cardinal Vannutelli, the representative of the Pope, and from Ireland, Cardinal Logue will come. This cultured priest paid a visit to New York a year or so ago, and on his departure hundreds of his faith fell on their knees to receive his blessing. Cardinal Logue is acknowledged to be probably the most distinguished English-speaking Roman Catholic in the world. The mere enumeration of the cardinals, archbishops and bishops who will attend would fill a newspaper column, and the opportunity to merely see so many distinguished churchmen should draw the curious and the pious from all parts of the country. When they are to be seen in the performance of some of the most impressive ceremonies of their church, the background probably the most famous fortress of Roman Catholicism outside of Italy, the occasion may well be considered as one of the most memorable in modern church history.

A Citadel of Roman Catholicism.

Montreal naturally is deeply conscious of the compliment done her by the selection of that city as the scene of the twenty-second congress. With the exception of 1893, when it was held in Jerusalem, the fathers of the church had never ventured away from Europe. It was felt, therefore, that the time had come when some special recognition of American Roman Catholicism should be made. Here there were conflicting claims. On the one hand stood the vast Roman Catholic population of the United States, outnumbering the similar population of Canada by probably ten to one. On the other hand, there was to be considered the fact that in Canada dwell the strongest of all adherents to the Roman Catholic faith, namely, the French-Canadians. A little investigation showed that the Roman Catholics of the United States would have no objection to the choice of Montreal, and this fact was laid before the Pontiff by Archbishop Bruchesi, with the result that Montreal was honored.

Some Impressive Features.

The first three days of the congress will be occupied by the ceremonial of welcoming the distinguished prelates, the most important of these preliminaries occurring on Saturday, September 3, when Cardinal Vannutelli, the Papal Legate, arrives. He will land on the Bonsecours wharf, where Maisonneuve gave thanks to the Virgin for his victories, and where many another ancient worthy made triumphal entry to the city. The official opening will take place on Tuesday in St. James' Cathedral, and on the following day there will be a great civic reception to Cardinal Vannutelli in the city hall. Two of the most impressive features of the congress will be the mass sung at midnight on Thursday in the churches of Notre Dame, and the pontifical High Mass on Friday in the open air at the altar specially built at the foot of Mount Royal.

Two Great Churches.

In Notre Dame and St. James' Montreal has two churches not unworthy of the traditions of the congress. The latter, as is well known, is an exact reproduction, one-third size, of St. Peter's at Rome. Notre Dame is the largest and finest church on this continent, and is classed among the most imposing in the world. It has a seating capacity of 15,000 and on the occasion of its fardamed Lenten services not fewer than 20,000 worshippers are present. The church was built from plans drawn by James O'Donnell, the famous Irish architect, and its acoustic properties are probably unmatched among the world's great cathedrals. In its nine chapels and altars are to be found priceless relics and paintings, while the great altar is a masterpiece of Byzantine art. The congress will be divided into French and English sections for the hearing and discussion of papers by some of the most eminent lay and clerical scholars of the church.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 25—The minister of war has placed an order for artillery amounting to $1,450,000 with the Creusot works in France. COMPULSORY MILITARY SERVICE IN SOUTH AFRICA AND AUSTRALIA.

In Australia, ruled by a Labor party ministry, in New Zealand where state socialism has been further incorporated into legislation than in any other country, in South Africa where a Boer ministry is in power, compulsory military training is either introduced already or is about to be introduced. For this there are good reasons in each case apart from general considerations that apply equally in other countries.

In Australia, a small population finds itself in possession of a continent. It may have to defend this continent against Germany or against China or Japan. It has no neighboring population of ninety million English speaking people. New Zealand is in the same boat.

South Africa has also to face the possibility of some naval combination that would enable Germany to land troops and to attempt to win there the field for colonization she desires. South Africa has thousands of square miles, at present little occupied, which are suitable for settlement by the white race.

The oriental peril is less felt there than in Australia but it exists. In addition there is a black population outnumbering the white by twenty to one and including millions of men for every hundred thousand whites. What the future holds out with regard to the relations between these two races no one can say. A scattered, unarmed minority in the midst of a sea of semi-barbarians would occupy a perilous position.

WILL THE G. T. P. BEAT THE C. N. R. TO VANCOUVER?

When the C. N. R. contract was ratified by the legislature of British Columbia, a G. T. P. man remarked that his company would probably win the race to Vancouver despite the contract, by reason of the greater resources at its disposal.

For the C. N. R. to reach Vancouver the construction was necessary of some five hundred miles in this province and some two hundred miles in Alberta. The G. T. P. would have to build only from Fort George in addition to the main line already under construction.

But now we are told that the C. N. R. will have its line into Vancouver a year ahead of contract time; that is, in 1913. And Collingwood Schreiber asserts that if the G. T. P. is not allowed to use Oriental labor it cannot get its main line finished in 1914.

It begins to look as though the C. N. R. might be running into Vancouver not only before the G. T. P. enters the same city but even before the G. T. P. is running through trains into Prince Rupert. Indeed if the G. T. P. cannot finish its road in 1914 the C. N. R. may be running transcontinental trains from ocean to ocean before they are in operation upon the line that once loudly announced its intention to do great things in the way of record railway construction.

The G. T. P. will build to Vancouver. Of that there is no doubt. But if it is going to fulfill the boast that it will get there before the C. N. R. it will have to hurry.

OIL FOR LOCOMOTIVES IN TIMBER DISTRICTS.

The report of the chief fire warden for July is an interesting document, partly because of the information given and partly because of the suggestion made that locomotives running through forest districts should be required to use oil for fuel.

Possibly this suggestion is made because a similar practice is followed in the Adirondacks and elsewhere, during the season when fires are prevalent or are easily started. Conditions here, however, differ in one important respect.

In the Adirondacks and in Southern California, the railways are near sources of supply and the oil is cheap. Here we are at a long distance from oil wells and pipe lines. Oil piped from the wells is vastly cheaper than oil that has to be brought in in tanks. Even so the latter may be less costly than forest fires.

A still safer method of hauling trains than the use of oil as fuel is the use of electricity as a motive power. It has been suggested from time to time that the railways in this part of the country might find it cheaper to operate with electricity than with steam. If the cost of forest fires started by locomotives be included in the account, the balance would perhaps be decisively in favor of the proposal. While considering the advisability of requiring engines to use oil, the possibility of the use of electric power as an alternative should be considered. Meanwhile effective regulations governing the use of coal should be devised and enforced,—such regulations, for instance, as would ensure the use of screens in smoke stacks and the frequent inspection of engines along the line by authorized officers.

The Le Roi No. 2 mine at Rossland is now shipping regularly. The mine will ship for the first month 2500 tons. Later the output will approximate 10,000 tons monthly.

The Indian motto of the Rocky Mountain Rangers, "Kloshe Nanitch" has been interpreted to mean "look out" or "look sharp." It is a common expression in the Chinook tongue and is generally considered quite apt for a regimental motto. The Rangers is the only regiment in the Canadian service to have an Indian expression on the regimental badge.

Dr. Armstrong, the well known Nelson veterinary, has just returned from a shooting trip in the vicinity of Bayward. While hunting for a spring he discovered what he at first took to be water but which on closer examination proved to be an oily substance exuding from the rocks. He secured a sample of the ledge and was engaged in getting a little of the oil when he was unexpectedly interrupted by the appearance of a large cinnamon bear who jumped the claim and proceeded to take a much more lively interest in the doctor than that gentleman did in the coal. From the specimens secured by the doctor in his flight we should say that they would show a high percentage of coal. Dr. Armstrong, we are told, intends to return shortly to the scene of the discovery with an expert and a Rocky Mountain Gatling gun and hopes to be able to locate the claim.

Be sure and take a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with you when starting on your trip this summer. It cannot be obtained on board the trains or steamers. Changes of water and climate often cause sudden attacks of diarrhoea, and it is best to be prepared. Sold by all druggists and dealers.

PRINCESSES WHO NEVER MARRY

Princess Clementine of Belgium, who is now at the Moncalieri palace, near Turin, preparing for her marriage with Prince Louis Bonaparte, has waited long for this day. Just what reasons her father, the late King Leopold of Belgium, may have had for refusing his consent to a marriage that was in every way appropriate and even desirable, were never known to the world.

Wanted High Life.

There was so little reasonableness in his obstinacy that many take refuge in the explanation so frequently heard in his lifetime that he enjoyed too much his freedom in Paris, which was the result of his good understanding with the Republican authorities, to jeopardize that by any union with the Bonapartes.

If he were awaiting from the Princess Clementine the same sort of conduct shown him by his other daughters, he was mistaken. She remained faithful to her lover, but obedient to her father. She made none of the scandals connected with her other sisters and awaited her father's death to carry into effect the wishes so long delayed.

Reasons of State.

Princess Victoria, sister of the present King of England, is another royal princess who has never married. Prince Napoleon, son of the Emperor of France and the unfortunate Empress Eugenie, lived in his youth near the premises. They fell in love. Both mothers were in favor of the match, and even Queen Victoria's sympathy was won for the scheme.

But there were reasons of state why the marriage should not take place. The Prince Napoleon was a refugee from France. He was, like his parents, in banishment. In spite of the strong support of his suit, it was decided that the marriage could not take place. Germany could not be made distrustful of England's loyalty by such a union.

In the disappointment of the refusal, Prince Napoleon demanded that he be allowed to go at once into the world. He went to South Africa and fell before the assegais of the Zulus.

Rosebery Next.

The Princess Victoria put on mourning just as if she were a widow and spent much of her time with the Empress Eugenie. Then, after a while, she came to be friendly with Rosebery, who attracted her intellect rather than her heart.

It appeared after a time, that this match might be suitable, and the princess was not averse to it. Her father, then Prince of Wales, favored the union and Queen Victoria was not averse to it; but here the present queen mother intervened.

She refused to allow such a mesalliance with a commoner. Her will prevailed and a second time the Princess Victoria saw her marriage set aside for reasons of state.

A Balkan Romance.

The romance of the third unmarried princess has all the color of the Balkan region from which she springs. This is the Princess Xenia of Montenegro, the sister of the present queen of Italy.

Her romance is mixed up with the Kipsies, the fortune tellers of the old worst land in which she dwells. Once a blind prophet seized her hand, went into an ecstacy and foretold her fate.

"That is the hand of a princess," he is said to have told the young woman who had given him no hint of her identity.

"Listen well to me, for although I am blind, I can see a crown in the air. A man brings it to you, and I can see that he is laying it at your feet, but do not touch it. I can see blood there on it. Do not touch it."

Fulfillment.

"Wait, I see a second crown. It is glorious and brilliant. It gleams as none other in this world. That is coming to you, too. Wait for it. It is pure, it is radiant."

The first suitor for the hand of the Princess Xenia was Alexander of Servia. The people of the country were opposed to him, so was the Princess Nicholas, and above all the Princess Xenia would have none of him. So he went back to Servia, married Draga, and met his fate. That seemed the fulfillment of the first part of the blind prophet's warning. So Princess Xenia is awaiting the king with the shining crown.

AT THE THEATRES

One of the best theatrical events of the season will be "The Burgomaster," which comes to the opera house next Thursday headed by that clever comedian, Gus C. Weinburg, the original Peter Stuyvesant, mayor of New Amsterdam. It is a well known fact that the music of "The Burgomaster" is far superior to any of Pixley and Luder's other musical events. One million copies of the "Tail of the Kangaroo" were sold the first season it was produced.

An entire change of pictures will be shown at the Gem tonight, the feature subject of which is a beautiful Biograph drama entitled, "The Bread of Wealing." The other pictures which will be shown are as follows: "The Cannon Enemy," "Love Drops," and "His First Valentine."

A splendid program is billed at the Empire theatre this evening and includes a most interesting film, "The Mystery of Temple Court." Other subjects are, "The Wreath," "Physical Culture," and a beautiful scenic picture, "The Storm."

the Asbestos claim at Poplar was one of the biggest attractions in the mineral department of the exhibition. People were so interested in the ore that a great part of it became broken up and scattered about the place.

Zinc and Copper

The showing of zinc ores by the Lucky Jim mine at Kaslo was also the means of attracting much attention.

Among the copper ores the specimens from the Eureka mine on Eagle creek were by far the best. From this property both sulphide and carbonate ores were exhibited.

Will Attract Capital

"We had," said Mr. Widdowson, "such a great number of enquiries from mining men and the general public concerning the samples exhibited and the properties from which they came and the exhibit cannot fail to result in the bringing in of a great deal of new capital to this part of the country. The exhibit as a whole was, I was told by a number of people, the best ever seen in Vancouver. Its only serious competitor was the Portland Canal district, the exhibit from which was confined almost entirely to galena ores with a few specimens of copper. As I mentioned before the Nelson exhibit carried off every prize with the exception of that won by the Portland Canal people.

Nelson Missed Chance

"As for the fair generally, it was a great success. It occurred to me, however, that Nelson would have done very well to have sent an apple exhibit as the pomological display at the exhibition was very poor. Only some 20 feet were taken up by the fruit display. Flowers were shown in abundance and far exceeded in beauty anything I have yet seen at Nelson."

The main part of the Nelson exhibit sent to Vancouver was left on display at the Vancouver mining exchange and a portion of it was sent to the Dominion mining exchange on Hastings street. A part of each specimen of the board of trade exhibit which carried off the silver cup, was presented to the Vancouver museum, the directors of which have made arrangements to give it prominence in the mining section and have ordered special tables for it.

Mr. Widdowson speaks in the highest terms of the courteous and thoughtful manner in which he and Mr. Burnham were treated by the management of the exhibition and states that J. J. Miller, president, James Roy, manager, together with the directors of the exhibition, afforded them every assistance possible in arranging the display. The judge in the mineral section was Prof. E. Odlum, a well known mineralogist.

MAN ROCKEFELLER FEARS THE MOST

English Capitalist Has Given Standard Oil Something to Think About in Mexico.

One of the most tremendous financial fights of recent years is now being waged over the control of Mexican oil between Sir Weetman Pearson (lately created Lord Cowdray) and Mr. Henry Clay Pierce, of the Waters-Pierce Oil company, a company that is under the control of Rockefeller's Standard Oil Trust.

Special interest has been aroused in the fight owing to the extraordinary tactics of the Rockefellers during Lord Cowdray's recent visit to New York.

No sooner had he arrived than his hotel was surrounded by seven detectives, who watched every exit night and day. As soon as Lord Cowdray appeared outside, two of the detectives started in pursuit, while another whipped out a notebook, noted the time and other details of his departure, and then rushed off to the telephone.

If Lord Cowdray spoke to any one or had guests at luncheon or dinner, their names and the hour of their arrival and departure were carefully noted, and every night a long telegram in code—presumably a narrative of his lordship's doings—was despatched to Mr. Piers in Mexico.

How the Trouble Started.

Some of the American newspapers got quite excited about the affair, and published long articles on the movements of the detectives; Lord Cowdray, however, refused to make any alteration in plans, and when someone asked him if he was annoyed, he replied calmly: "It is best not to speak of things of that sort."

The great fight may be said to have commenced only within the last year or two, but of course the foundation of all the trouble began when the great British contractor commenced to take a special interest in Mexican affairs.

He has long been convinced that Mexico is the country of the future, and the financial value of the contracts he has undertaken there is a staggering record of millions.

Among them are the drainage system of the Valley of Mexico; the Vera Cruz port works, which gave Mexico's chief port a safe and commodious harbor instead of an open and dangerous roadstead; The Tehuantepec railway, together with the port works at the terminal of the railway at Porto Mexico and Salina Cruz; the drainage of the city of Vera Cruz and the building of its water works system; and many other imposing public works.

So far, of course, the Rockefeller companies found little or no fault with the operations of the British contractor. All they wanted was to have the monopoly of the supply of oil in Mexico.

When, however, the Englishman commenced acquiring oil fields and building refineries, Mr. Pierce and Mr. Rockefeller began to feel nervous. They bombarded Lord Cowdray with telegrams urging him to join forces with them, but this Lord Cowdray refused to do.

A War Chest of Millions.

Then began the tremendous struggle that is still proceeding. The American out of the former gigantic profits had accumulated a war chest running into millions. Mr. Pierce's net profits in Mexico during the period of his monopoly were nearly $2,000,000 a year. Lord Cowdray has now annexed 60 per cent of the Mexican business, and he has in his employ about every member of the Pierce company whom he thought it worth his while to take over.

A strenuous campaign was conducted, too, in the press, and a "literary bureau" supplied articles and pamphlets "slating" Lord Cowdray and his works.

Lord Cowdray, on the other hand, took as his motto: "Say nothing but saw wood," and when somebody pressed him for information about the great fight, he replied rather tartly: "I never talk about my business, talking is a sign of weakness." Which was a beautiful smack at the Rockefeller chatterers.

Lord Cowdray is another of those tremendously quiet and irresistible forces who have been called, "Men about whom there are no stories." But there comes to mind a little incident connected with one of his greatest works.

The Mexican government arranged a contract with him for a protecting breakwater and harbor at Vera Cuzz, where the damage done by storms had for years been incalculable. The contract price was about five millions sterling, and it took five years to complete.

Soon after its completion the great contractor happened to visit Vera Cuzz with a party of friends. A tremendous storm was raging. Outside terrific seas were sending volumes of spray over the newly constructed mole. The waves roared and crashed and the wind was a cyclone. But inside the harbor all was still, and craft of every nationality and size were lying placidly at anchor.

Lord Cowdray left the others and stood alone for some time on the great wall. When he returned he said with an air of complete satisfaction: "This is the proudest moment of my life. It may be conceit, but I honestly feel that if I had to begin that work again from the very beginning I would not alter the position of a single stone."

A Word About the Eyes
Do not delay if your eyes need attention, and consult me at once, as you cannot afford to trifle with your eyes. I come in contact with people who have to use powerful magnifying glasses to read with. What is the cause of that? It is pure and simple negligence. Are you in a position to neglect your eyes the same way? Are you satisfied to let your eyes get to such a state that nothing can be done for them? Or are you going to have your eyes properly attended to, so as to preserve them the same way as you would preserve any other part of your body? Don't wait, but do it now.

SPORTING NEWS

Hundred in Nine Seconds

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 25—Representative Williams of Berkley school, New York, covered 100 yards in 9 seconds flat yesterday in an exhibition at Nyantic according to time reports.

Miners Win

LETHBRIDGE, Aug. 26—The Miners took the first game of the concluding series here this evening, score 3-4. The game was featureless other than a double play unassisted by Mackin in the 7th, which spoiled the chances of the Berry Pickers.

Calgary Wins from Edmonton

CALGARY, Aug. 25—Stanridge won the game for Calgary tonight in the first of the series against Edmonton by a score of 7-2. Dellar, Edmonton's crack twirler, was batted out of the box in the first, allowing six runs on six runs and two passes. Houlton was put in the box in the second and finished the game. Smith and Stanridge beat out home runs and Stanridge also lined a three bagger. Edmonton put over two in the seventh but could squeeze in no more. Stanridge held them down to seven hits. The game was errorless except for a wild pitch by Houston in the seventh which allowed Kellackey to take second. Great interest was taken in the game; 500 fans were present.

CRANBROOK TO KOOTENAY BAY

Great Northern Surveyors Looking for New Route—Road Completed to Pilot Bay.

(Special to The Daily News.)

KOOTENAY BAY, Aug. 26—The new government road between Kootenay Bay and Pilot Bay has been completed as far as French Bay and continued as a trail to Parker & Co.'s farm. The work reflects high credit on Mr. Luther, foreman of the construction gang. It is expected that the road will be widened to road dimensions this fall and continued to Pilot Bay. Next season the northern extension to Bluebell is anticipated. The entire road, some eight or nine miles, will, when completed, be one of the most picturesque and charming lake shore drives in America.

New Route.

Report comes from Crawford Bay that a party of Great Northern surveyors are out endeavoring to find a feasible route over "the divide" for a railway from Cranbrook or Marysville to Kootenay Bay. If such can be found it will reduce the distance between Cranbrook and Nelson some 70 or 80 miles as compared with the present Kootenay Landing route.

In spite of the unusually dry season young orchards are looking well. Mr. Langford has a two-year-old peach tree with eight beautiful red ripe peaches hanging on its slender stem. Peaches should do well here because of practical immunity from late spring and early fall frosts, due to the proximity of so large a body of water. Lake front lands appear to be specially favored in this respect.

T. H. Langston is justly proud of his fine new motor launch that he constructed a short time ago.

Eric Baker, one of Nelson's Boy Scouts, is spending his holidays with his parents at Wasnerdale Ranch.

George Noyes jr., of Winnipeg, is visiting his father, George Noyes, our respected postmaster. He and Mr. Langton spent a couple of days on an expedition to the glacier at the head of Coffee creek. They report an abundance and great variety of wild fruit and flowers right up to the line of perpetual snow, and the glacier itself, with its clear blue ice, a most beautiful sight.

Mr. Langford leaves tomorrow for Grand Forks to harvest his fruit crop. He estimates from 4,000 to 4,500 boxes of fruit on his 15-acre orchard. Mrs. Langford accompanies him.

DOUBT EXPRESSED AS TO LIGHTING

Arrangements Not Complete for Illuminating Streets for Laurier Reception—Big Display of Fireworks.

A number of men belonging to the city light department were at work yesterday upon the illuminated signs of welcome which are to greet Sir Wilfrid Laurier as he is driven up Baker street tomorrow night and were practically completed by nightfall.

What About Ward Street?

Doubt was expressed yesterday as to what the reception committee intend to do towards illuminating Ward and Silica streets along which the premier will be driven to L. B. DeVeber's residence at the corner of Carbonate and Hendryx streets. Neither has anything yet been done to light up Stanley street, which will be on the line of route to the rink for the speech which Sir Wilfrid is to deliver on Monday night. Nor does it appear that the arrangements for illuminating Baker street are at all adequate.

Fireworks Galore.

Frank Walsh, who has been arranging for the fireworks display, stated yesterday that a number of rockets and some 50 candle crackers would be set off on the C. P. R. flats directly the train, carrying visiting party, reaches a point about a mile from the depot. The Liberal reception committee who meet the premier at Robson will call his attention to these and a few moments later Sir Wilfrid will reach Nelson and will be greeted with the sounds of church bells pealing out a welcome, the strains of the city band, more fireworks and a reception committee composed of the mayor, the president of the board of trade and other citizens.

Large red Roman candles will be set off at points along Baker, Ward and Silica streets as the premier's carriage is driven uptown. There will also be a fireworks display when Sir Wilfrid leaves on Tuesday morning. Sergt. Markham of the R. M. R. will be in charge of this part of the program.

The streets outside the Hume hotel were yesterday decorated by a number of shrubs being placed on the sidewalk in readiness for the reception of the many visitors expected in town tomorrow, Sunday and Monday.

THREE MONTHS' TRIP IN THE NORTHLAND

Frank Oliver's Five Thousand Mile Trip in Country North of Edmonton.

Like a tale of the old days of the Hudson's Bay company in the far northern wilds of Canada, reads the story of the trip recently undertaken and successfully carried out by Hon. Frank Oliver, the minister of the interior, who, some three months ago, at Edmonton, Alta., packed a few belongings and set out, accompanied only by his secretary, Mr. Forbes, to follow the trail made famous by the pioneers of Service for a distance of 5,000 miles.

Sitting in his office, Mr. Oliver kindly agreed to recount his experiences, and gave in detail the story of his travels with enlightening comment upon the characteristics of the rugged country through which he passed.

"I wanted to see it for myself," is the sentence which gave one the best idea of the minister's idea in going so far out of the beaten track. "I had read much of this north country and I had talked with many men about it—but I wanted to see it for myself.

"Settlers are pouring into the western prairies," continued the minister, "and the question arises: 'What has Canada to offer the world after the prairies have been filled up?'"

To find out what Canada has to offer further north, and to establish in his own mind at least just what distance from the present limits of settlement the frigid blasts of Arctic wind save warning that further progress must not be made, this practical statesman set out upon his long journey, travelling on rough wagons, over rougher roads, shooting the rapids of the swift streams in a frail canoe, at times taking advantage of the better accommodation and speed offered by the river steam boats, and again learning the true western experience and "hitting the trail" on foot.

In Arctic Circle.

Inside the Arctic circle, 700 miles of which country the minister covered, the custom is to sleep during the hours of extreme heat and to work only at "night," as that time of day is called when the sun falls somewhat of its fierceness. Night proper was not experienced by the wanderers after they had crossed the Arctic circle.

"I have never felt the heat stronger than when on the portage crossing the Rocky mountains," said Mr. Oliver. "We slept in tents, which, of course, made it warmer. On this portage and on the upper Porcupine river we were bothered some what by mosquitoes, but they were not so bad this summer as they have been.

"All the way from Edmonton to Fort Macpherson the country, along the rivers at least, is level and forested. There is no prairie. On the upper part of the Athabasca river the banks are from 100 to 300 feet in length, and the country is well wooded. There is a considerable amount of spruce of good size, but the timber is chiefly poplar. The country had at one time been altogether under spruce, but fires have wrought havoc in it. The explanation of these fires is that all freight for the north country goes down the Athabasca river and the men who steer the scows down river walk back along the banks. They are careless with their camp fires and the result is a continual danger of further destruction by fire. Along the river where the banks are high the soil and climate conditions are perfectly good for agriculture. So far as Fort McMurray, conditions are entirely good for agriculture, judging from what I saw myself and from what people told me."

UPHOLSTERED FOR WEARY TOURISTS

Lovely Switzerland is a Sand-Papered Paradise for the Visiting Pedestrian

When the European goes away for summer holidays he is apt to go to Switzerland to one of the many Bad-ens or to the seaside. The latter resorts are by no means as popular as with us—nor are they so attractive so far as I have seen them. But we have nothing like Switzerland—that is not in eastern America. In the Alps, the holiday maker may walk, drive, boat or climb. And all these forms of diversion divide into many branches. To the pedestrian, Switzerland is a carefully prepared and even sand-papered paradise. All sorts of walks have been made through the woods, up the mountain slopes, down the deep valleys, along the tumbling rivers and the green Alpine lakes; and every one of them is carefully indicated by sign boards at each point of possible doubt. All abound in magnificent views, and at each view of the second class so to speak there will be a bench or a pavilion, while if the view be first class then a restaurant or hotel will command it, where you can eat, drink and rest while you enjoy it.

They know that no hungry or thirsty mortal can appreciate the finest natural beauty. The Rockies may be higher than the Alps, but I doubt if they are anything like as well upholstered.

But the Danger's There

Alpine climbing is a sport apart—as dangerous as aviation in its superlative degree—and the streets of most Alpine resorts are picturesque with men and women costumed for indulgence in it in some measure. When you see them with steel shod alpenstocks and hob nailed boots they are probably going to do nothing more dangerous than tramp five or ten miles along a mountain path; but when you see ice axes thrown up with their Alpenstocks then that means business. I stood behind a [illegible] one day at Murren and watch guides roped together and slowly cutting their way up the icy side of Eiger. The guide in front first carefully cut a foothold in the ice, then he stepped into it and cut another. When he had thus made progress of a foot or two, he stood still and the others advanced one by one in his footsteps. It looked very slow and very tedious, but I suppose the joy of reaching the top would repay it all.

But this is only one feature of the great playground of the Alps. You can do a lot of mountaineering by railway, climbing right up into the skies while seated comfortably in the carriage of your "rack-and-pinion" or funicular. You can reach the region of eternal snow in this fashion without adding a heart beat and get out and snowball your friends in midsummer. Or you can take boat trips on the lakes or baths in them, play tennis on courts that are close to the courts of heaven, play golf on links that are shaded by mountain ranges or go into the casinos and listen to the music or lose your money at the tables.

Taking the Cure

If you go to "take the cure" at some popular bath you have a much different time. We went over one day and walked about good old Baden-Baden, from which the gambler has been banished and all else that might disturb the placidity of a patient. Everything is soothing as a sweet dream. The schloss sleeps on its hill top in the midst of a garden of spreading trees and dense shade. The two public "baths" are buildings as solid as, say, customs houses and as quiet as a peaceful cemetery. The river ripples its way down a series of shallow falls opposite a row of palatial hotels, and would lull insomnia itself into a doze. The paths are carefully marked, showing which of them are level and which climb a bit, so that no invalid may be inadvertently decoyed into taking too trying a walk. The band plays drowsily at the Trinkhall or in the gardens and the encircling mountains shut out the rough winds. It is a "land where it is always afternoon." Here come people usually whose holidays are unlimited, either at the bidding of failing health or by the permission of unfailing wealth.

OLD CASTLE OF WINDSOR

King George Contemplates Alterations in Many Parts Before Taking up Official Residence There

LONDON, Aug. 25—Before King George and Queen Mary take up their residence at Windsor Castle certain alterations and rearrangements of the private apartments will be necessary. These apartments which are never open to the public are situated on the east and south sides of the Grand Quadrangle and are connected by a corridor over 700 feet in length.

Many thousands of pounds were spent on the royal rooms when King Edward came to the throne in order to bring the palace more in accord with modern requirements and a sum was voted by parliament for the purpose. When King George was staying recently at Fogmore House he spent several hours going over the private apartments but his majesty and Queen Mary are to pay another visit before any definite instructions are given.

Rooms Unfurnished

Very few structural alterations are necessary after the work carried out by the lord chamberlain's department during the past ten years but a rearrangement of the furniture and ornaments will have to be effected. All the personal property of King Edward and Queen Alexandra will be moved to Sandringham, otherwise it would become the property of the crown. When this is done the rooms will be refurnished to suit the taste of their majesties.

It will of course be necessary to provide additional accommodation for the children of the King and Queen. The suite of rooms in the Chester tower has been set aside for the younger princes and here a nursery and school room have been fitted up with kitchen and every other convenience and a special staff of servants will look after the welfare of the children. These rooms were used by Princess Henry of Battenberg's children and adjoins the Victoria tower, which served as a nursery [illegible] Princess [illegible] command a fine view of the Long Walk and of Windsor Forest. There could hardly be a more ideal spot for children. The rooms are lofty and from every window can be seen a magnificent stretch of beautiful woodland scenery.

Just below the castle towards Frogmore is a cricket ground with a handsome pavilion which was constructed on the instructions of the late King for the use of his grandchildren. The Prince of Wales and Prince Albert have often taken part in most interesting and exciting games on this delightful pitch and in the near future their younger brothers will follow suit.

At Fogmore Now

For the time being the King and Queen will stay at Fogmore when the court is in residence at Windsor but the princes will have full access to the castle grounds, as the two residences are very near each other. Their majesties are very fond of Fogmore and it is here that their children in the last few years have been chiefly brought up, with the King and Queen take a keen interest in their children's games and [illegible] happy as when joining the younger children in their games on the Fogmore grounds.

When the digestion is all right, the action of the bowels regular, there is a natural craving and relish for food. When this is lacking it is a sure sign that you need a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They strengthen the digestive organs, improve the appetite and regulate the bowels. Sold by all druggists and dealers.

Acting on the suggestion of The Daily News of Aug. 23, concerning the working class and publicity, A. M. Oliver will open a discussion on this subject at the regular socialist meeting at Miners' Union hall tonight. The speaker will deal with the question from an economic standpoint. The meeting will be open to the public.

John Simpson, charged with being drunk on Baker street on Wednesday night, was sentenced in the city police court yesterday morning by Police Magistrate William Irvine to 60 days in the provincial jail. The case of C. McKinnon, held on a charge of having obtained money by false pretences, was adjourned until this morning. McKinnon has employed H. C. Hall for his defence and the city authorities will be represented by A. M. Johnson.

T. Underwood, of Calgary and manager of the Diamond Coal company near Lethbridge, is staying at the Strathcona. Mr. Underwood stated yesterday that he was in British Columbia on purely private business but that he hoped to commence shipping coal to Nelson in the near future. The Diamond coal mines have been producing for some time, selling the greater part of the coal to Alberta and Saskatchewan. A large new plant with a capacity of 1,000 tons a day, has, however, just been installed, and Mr. Underwood expects to make a big extension in the business of the company shortly. The coal is similar in quality to the mines at Galt.

Would the C.P.R. or G.N.R. allow an engine out of their yard without cleaning and oiling same? Well hardly. They must be absoutely clean and properly oiled to run perfectly. How about your watch? Is it clean? Is it properly oiled. Remember it's much more delicate, requires more attention to make it run accurately than an engine. Come to us with it, we are experts in watch repair work.

FASCINATING HAIR

Women Who Use Parisian Sage Have It and Keep It

You never saw a beautiful woman who didn't have beautiful hair. The charm of a beautiful woman lies in her hair.

Many women do not realize the attractions they possess because they do not give proper attention to the hair.

The women of Paris are famed for their beauty, not because their facial features are superior to those of other women, but because they know how to keep young by supplying vigor, lustre and strength to the hair.

Up to three years ago Parisian Sage could hardly be obtained in Canada, but now this delightful hair restorer can be had in every store in Canada. The Poole Drug company sell it in Nelson for 50 cents a large bottle, and they guarantee it to grow beautiful, luxuriant hair; to turn dull, lifeless hair into lustrous hair; to stop falling hair; to stop itching of the scalp. Understand, the Poole Drug company will give you your money back if it fails. Made only in Canada by Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle.

WINNIPEG MAN WINS BORDEN MATCH

Good Shooting at Ottawa—With Unfavorable Conditions—English Cadets Beat Canadians

OTTAWA, Aug. 25 — Unfavorable weather conditions prevailed at today's Dominion Rifle association meet. Heat and humidity were as trying as on Wednesday and winds swept across the range making it difficult to find the targets. Nevertheless the shooting was practically as good as on the corresponding day last year. The western marksmen figured more prominently in winnings than on any other day since the meet opened

A lance corporal of the 90th regiment Winnipeg, won the Harold Borden match and the team prize in the same match was captured by the 90th team. Western men figured quite prominently in winnings at all the matches. Carmichael of Alberta who has been finding the targets right along, now stands in fourth place in the Grand Aggregate, the winner of which gets the governor general's prize.

English Cadets Win

The matches between ten visiting English cadets and ten Canadians resulted in a win for the visitors who made 606 at the 200 and 500 yard ranges The Canadians were 37 points behind with a score of 569. Cadet Robb of Eton, a 15 year old lad, made the highest score, 67 out of a possible 70. His remarkable score under such conditions was the cause of a great deal of favorable comment.

Some remarkably good shooting was done in the extra series, five shots at 200 yards which was the concluding event today. Thirty-one possibles made in this match, got $3.90 each. The best target was that of Pte. Adams of the 95th regiment. Other western prize winners were Mr. Paruss of Medicine Hat, Sergt Marsden, 9th and Sergt. Hart 95th.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayter Reed of Montreal, accompanied by Mrs. W. Raleigh Kerr of Black Lake, reached Nelson last night and are staying at the Strathcona. Mr. Hayter Reed is manager of the C.P.R. hotels and intends to go up to Balfour today for the purpose of looking over the site of the tourist hotel there and of making final arrangements for its construction.

T. A. Love, editor of the Phoenix Pioneer, reached the city last night and registered at the Home. Mr. Love went away a short time ago on a trip east, but on reaching Toronto received the news of the big fire in the Boundary city, which destroyed his office and plant. He was consequently compelled to return west immediately.

C. W. Barringer, president of the State National Bank of Marcus, Wash., has written to W. B. Farris stating that he has been appointed on a committee, presumably for the citizens of Marcus, to act in co-operation with the Nelson board in the matter of the opening up of the Columbia river. Mr. Barringer is expected to arrive in the city in time to attend the conference with Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

As it is anticipated that the hotels during the visit of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and party and of the Columbia river delegations from Portland, Spokane and east and West Kootenay, will be overcrowded, persons in the city having rooms which they are willing to let for the accommodation of visitors are requested to send in their names to E. K. Beeston at the board of trade rooms. Mr. Beeston will then inform people inquiring for rooms where they may be obtained.

A. A. Richardson of Vancouver, adjuster of fire losses, is registered at the Home. Mr. Richardson leaves this morning for Salmo, where he will adjust the losses of the Kootenay storage cold which occurred during the recent forest fires. About the beginning of next week he will meet John L. Retallack of Kaslo and settle up the question of the extent of the loss incurred by the Drop Mines, Limited, in the fire at Whitewater some weeks ago. While here Mr. Richardson will also meet R. S. Lemmie and adjust the losses at the Silver King mine.

LIGHTS WENT OUT; PICKPOCKET MADE ESCAPE

ST. CATHERINES, Ont., Aug. 25.—Constable Book of Grimsby, who has been held responsible for the escape of a pickpocket at Grimsby on August 10 last, after he had been captured and handed over by a couple of St. Catherines butchers, states that he has sent in his resignation to Judge Carman. He insists he is not at home, but an investigation will be opened as soon as he returns from Muskoka. Book states that when the pickpocket was handed over to him he brought him into Manager Wyle's office. While he was there with the prisoner the lights went out and the pickpocket noised out of the office.

Dysentery is a dangerous disease but can be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has been successfully used in nine epidemics of dysentery. It has never been known to fail. It is equally valuable for children and adults, and when reduced with water and sweetened, it is pleasant to take. Sold by all druggists and dealers.

IMPERIAL SENATE MAY HAVE SOME DRAWBACKS

LONDON, Aug. 25—Josiah Wedgewood, M. P., president of the English league for the taxation of land values has been speaking in Staffordshire on the subject of an imperial senate. He says how nice it would be to unite India and the colonies in one great senate. When those representatives undertake to legislate for the English people and impose taxes upon them, while the English public have no voice in the government of colonies, the gilt comes off gingerbread. He thinks that the scheme of embodying federation of the empire by members of the house of lords one that it would be very dangerous to fight.
