MILLION DOLLAR MINING SUIT

Failure to Deliver Title to Sterling Mines

CLAIM JUMPERS COMPLICATE CASE

Ontario Mine Now Worth Millions—Culmination of Four Years Litigation

MONTREAL, July 3.—William Marshall, mining commissioner of the Toronto & Grey Siding Development company, through his assignee, today entered a million dollar suit against Robert Leckie Gilmour and the Montreal Street Railway company for breach of contract and failure to deliver the title of the Sterling mines, Ontario. The damage suit is the culmination of four years' litigation, during which the case ran the gamut of the Canadian courts and finally went before the privy council. The original option which Mr. Marshall obtained on the mine, then in a prospective state, was for $250,000 but it is now worth several millions.

The case of Mr. Marshall was that his opponents in the present suit did not live up to the terms of the option and in allowing the option to pass into other hands than his own, acted illegally. This opinion having been upheld, he now sues for damages which he suffered during the years of litigation. The case is rendered all the more complicated because during the years of litigation "claim jumpers" have appeared on the scene and staked out portions of the property.

HAMILTON JOCKEY CLUB GRANDSTAND BURNED

WINNIPEG, July 3.—The toll of Dominion day accidents was heavy. At Winnipeg Donald McCrea, a sergeant in the Fifteenth, was killed when stepping off the car at the Sturgeon creek rifle range, while two young men sitting on the car steps were injured when a Winnipeg-Selkirk car swept past a siding and crushed their dangling legs. At Hamilton, Ont., a child was killed by a train, while three railway employees were injured in a freight wreck at Drumbo. At Toronto a trolley collision occurred causing the porter to be injured. Two more mishaps were reported from Toronto in which, however, no one was injured, but which spoiled the Dominion day pleasure of many sportsmen. One was the destruction by fire in the early morning of the Don Rowing club's quarters, in which were housed the shells of aquatic bodies of the city, the regatta having been scheduled for the Don club's course. At 3 a. m. the $125,000 grandstand of the Hamilton Jockey club was also burned to the ground. Later reports tell of a runaway during the celebration at Moosomin, in which a child and two girls were injured, one of the latter seriously.

SITUATION IN MOROCCO.

MAGADOR, Morocco, July 3—The Agadir district is calm. The Kaids recently refused all their lands there to the Germans as the Algeciras agreement made the consent of the sultan necessary to such a sale.

WASHINGTON, July 3—Germany has advised the United States government of sending the gunboat Panther to Agadir, Morocco. While this government is watching the progress of events in the African empire, it is not vitally interested in the political phase of the situation. This country so far has taken no action in the Sultan's present dilemma except to make strong representations some time ago in regard to the capture of an American missionary by rebel troops. This country was signatory to the Algeciras convention but its interests centre in the development of American commerce and the protection of lives and property of its citizens. This fact was stated in the reservation with which the American delegates signed the convention and emphasized in the senate's resolution of ratification. The latter declares that this country's participation in the international conference at Algeciras was "without purpose to depart from the foreign policy which forbids participation by the United States in the settlement of political questions which are entirely European in their scope."

CHARGE OF MURDER.

VANCOUVER, July 3.—John G. Taylor, a resident of this city for the past 18 years, now in his 76th year, a veteran of the police, is facing a charge of murder.. The dead man is Eli McCutcheon, a logger 30 years of age and unmarried and formerly of Nanaimo.

CANADA CONSUMES MORE ALCOHOL AND TOBACCO

GERMANY WILL ACCEPT UNRESTRICTED ARBITRATION

WASHINGTON, July 3—That Germany will not be far behind Great Britain in her acceptance of the principal of the unrestricted arbitration of all issues, including those involving national honor, is regarded here practically as a certainty in view of the developments of the past few days. When Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, leaves for Berlin in the immediate future it is said he will be charged with a new presentment of the question that will insure favorable consideration.

UNITED STATES ATHLETES REPORT IN LONDON

LONDON, July 3—The Harvard and Yale athletes who will meet the best men of Oxford and Cambridge in the international collegiate meet at Queens club grounds on July 11 reported here today and will proceed to Brighton in the morning. They will go into strict training immediately.

SIX MONTHS IN JAIL FOR COVELLO

Italian Charged With Assaulting Dutch Creek Davie Found Guilty—Misunderstanding, Says Judge.

Sentence of six months in jail was imposed on Toney Covello, who was found guilty by his honor Judge Wilson yesterday of inflicting actual bodily harm upon Duck Creek Davie, an Indian, at Duck Creek, near Creston, on June 4 last. The sentence dates from the time of the Italian's arrest. Accused was represented by Fred C. Moffatt and C. R. Hamilton appeared for the crown.

The evidence for the prosecution was substantially the same as that adduced at the preliminary hearing with the addition of that of Dr. G. B. Henderson, who attended the wounded Indian. He described the injuries as being deep gashes on the head and face.

Covello said that he was chopping wood when the Indian arrived near the shack where he, the accused, had slept the previous night. He said "Hello," and asked Davie what he had got. The Indian was carrying a rifle over his shoulder and the Italian asked him to sell it. The Indian, said Covello, answered in the affirmative and was offered $10, accused pulling out a roll of bills from his pocket. The Indian then refused to sell.

"He was looking at me pretty bad," said Covello, who explained that he thought Davie was about to attack him. A struggle ensued for the possession of the rifle, during which Covello succeeded in jerking a loaded shell out of the breech. He said that the Indian then pointed the gun at him and the struggle continued. "I was afraid to let him have the gun and he was afraid to let me have it," said Covello, who described how the rifle was exploded four times.

The Indian, in his testimony, explained that he fired the rifle with the object of emptying the magazine.

Covello then told how he and the Indian struggled on the ground and how he pounded Davie's head with the rock, which he claimed he pulled out of the Indian's hand.

His honor, in inflicting sentence, said that it was clear that the two men, with their different points of view, had misunderstood each other. The Indian thought he was in danger of being shot and the Italian feared robbery. The time when the actual crime was committed was when Covello picked up the stone, while the rifle was on the ground 15 or 20 feet away, and beat Davie on the head.

TORRID IN TORONTO.

TORONTO, July 3.—All previous records for torridity were shattered on Sunday by a heat wave which kept Toronto sweltering from early morning till midnight. Since the official temperatures were first recorded, in 1842, the highest previous thermometer range was 99.2 degrees on Aug. 24, 1854. Sunday's maximum was 101 at 4 o'clock, with 98 at noon and 99 at 2 p. m. A 12-mile breeze, which produced puffs of hot air, only emphasized the discomfort of the day. Stone Cliffe, on the Mattawa river, was the hottest spot in Canada and in fact on the North American continent, with a temperature of 109 for several hours.

OTTAWA PASTOR RESIGNS

TORONTO, July 3—Rev. A. A. Cameron, for 25 years pastor of the First Baptist church, Ottawa, has resigned. He may take another less onerous charge.

TO REGULATE STREET ORATORS

City Council Brings in New Bylaw

SECOND UNIT TEST IS SATISFACTORY

Mayor Produces Further Figures on Cost of Education

At last night's meeting of the city council a bylaw to regulate street speaking by giving the police power to arrest person blocking crossings or streets was introduced; the mayor produced some further figures regarding the increase in the per capita cost of educating Nelson children, and it was announced that last month's test of the repaired second unit at the power plant had proved entirely satisfactory, City Electrician Brown's first report when the breakdown occurred, to the effect that the trouble was in the shaft or shaft coupling, having proved correct.

The report on the power plant was signed by R. A. Brown and G. W. Templeman, the representative of the Allis-Chalmers-Bullock company. The total cost of the coupling and its installation was given at $4,209, of which the Allis-Chalmers-Bullock people, according to the agreement with the city in February last, pay one half.

To Prevent Obstruction.

The bylaw to regulate street preaching was fathered by Ald Gilker and will be an amendment to the bylaw of 1900. It was explained that it was not directed against the Salvation Army, but was primarily for the purpose of preventing itinerant street speakers from causing an obstruction to sidewalks, streets or crossings. It does not in any way prevent street oratory so long as there is no obstruction to pedestrians or vehicles. After its passage the police will have power to move street speakers on and to arrest them if they refuse to do so. The bylaw was read three times.

Discussing a tentative statement of the city's position at the end of the half year, which was presented by the city treasurer but which was laid over until the next meeting on July 17, in order that certain accounts might be included, the question of further expenditures on public works arose, the mayor remarking: "That all depends upon the action of the school board. It comes down to that."

Cost of Education Here.

His worship stated that he had no information as to the progress of the legal action threatened by the school board. He then read out a list of comparative increase showing the increase in the cost per capita of education in Nelson during the past four years. In 1908, he said, with an average attendance of 482 children and with an estimate of $19,350, the cost was $40.14 per head; in 1909 with an average attendance of 498 and an estimate of $22,000, the cost per head was $44.18; in 1910 with an average attendance of 518 and an estimate of $23,500, the cost increased to $45.31 per capita. For the present year the mayor said that as far as he had been able to estimate from the published attendance list the average was 535 pupils. The estimate was $30,000 and the per capita cost would figure $54.02, over $8 per head greater than last year.

"If the courts decide against the city," concluded his worship, "we will be compelled to lay over all public works projected."

Public Works Improvements.

On the recommendation of the city engineer it was decided to build a road to the English church plot at the cemetery and not extend the one inch water pipe on the cemetery road. The fortnightly public works payroll, amounting to $799.95, was passed. An application for improvements to the road and sidewalk to his new jam factory from J. A. McDonald was granted, and an application from Fred Coomber for permission to erect a refreshment booth at the tramway park in consideration of keeping the park in good order was referred to Ald Madden, chairman of the park committee.

A request from the street railway company that the city council give them the rights to let concessions at the park in return for having it kept in shape was filed. The street railway company also made a request that the city band should play at the tramway park instead of on Vernon street, and it was decided that the band should be asked to play there once a week until further notice.

On Monday next the council will go down to the power plant with the city electrician in order to make an inspection of the repaired second unit.

The mayor announced that W. F. Teetzel, for the provincial government, had seen him with a view to obtaining permission for the building of a road through the park behind the hospital to connect with a thoroughfare being constructed to the east in the Hume addition, and the council agreed to the proposal.

Those present were the mayor, Ald. Hume, Ald. Gilker, Ald. Madden, Ald. Ferguson and Ald. Gallagher.

Kootenay Flashes

MIDWAY, B.C., July 3—An unknown Italian employed at the Kettle Valley railroad camp several miles from this place attempted to cut his throat on Saturday and a hurry up telephone call was sent to this city for assistance. Constable Penitcos left for the scene and found the man lying in a pool of blood surrounded by an excited crowd of his countrymen. The constable took the wounded man to Greenwood where he was given attention. For a time it was thought that death would result from the enormous loss of blood. His condition this morning, however, seems to have improved. The exceptionally heavy rains throughout this district for the last 48 hours have started the water rising rapidly. W. E. Rogers, chief accountant for L. M. Rice & Co. Kettle Valley railroad contractors, will leave on Wednesday for his home in Tacoma on a vacation.

FERNIE, B.C., July 3—A baseball game held here yesterday afternoon between a team from Hosmer and the local junior team resulted disastrously for the local youngsters. Two mishaps were the result of a collision and medical attention was required for both cases. July 2 was reserved by the Oddfellows of this city as Decoration day and a parade headed by the city band marched to the cemetery where services were held. The brewery workers of this place are going after better wages and better working conditions. As yet there has been no agreement reached in the method of presenting schedules but it is said that unless the companies grant their demands a strike is not improbable.

GREENWOOD, B.C., July 3—Alex Stewart who was brought to the city hospital here a fortnight ago with a serious case of pleurisy, has left for his home in Eholt. Mrs. Stuart Palmer is rapidly recovering. Clifford Russell, whose hip was fractured in a game with Chesaw is resting easily today.

HALCYON, B.C., July 3—A severe electrical storm visited this place at an early hour this morning but no serious damage was reported. Mrs. P. Kimmerley left this morning to join her husband at Calgary.

GRAND FORKS, B.C., July 3—G. Johnson arrived from Fernie today to accept a position in the grocery department of N. L. McInnis and company's store. G. A. Spink, manager of the Royal Bank, and Mrs. Spink, returned today from a vacation trip. Mrs. N. L. McInnis left this evening for a short stay on Kootenay lake. O. E. Evoy, Dominion surveyor, and H. G. Cannon are here on a business trip from Franklin camp.

NEW DENVER, B.C., July 3—Owing to the recent downpours the strawberry crop here has been reduced considerably. Before the rains started the outlook was very promising for this fruit. The first consignment of this seasons' fruit was shipped to Maple Creek this morning. The consignment was cherries which were of good quality. F. Robinson, manager of the Slocan Lake Lumber Co., was in the city today on business. W. Donnnan, principal of the local public school left for a vacation at the coast.

CRANBROOK, B.C., July 3—Rev. C. O. Main, returned from the general assembly at Ottawa. Among the arrivals today were George Allen of Burlington, Ont.; H. H. Doherty from Calgary and Mrs. F. Sommerville. Miss H. Fleener of Kaslo arrived Saturday and will give a concert in Knox church this evening, she is a recent graduate of the Ladies' college, Minneapolis.

CASCADE, B.C., July 3—The Oddfellows ran a special excursion from Phoenix to Christina lake yesterday and the affair was well attended.

MOYIE, B.C., July 3—Thomas Gardner, who is employed at the Porto Rico Lumber company while on his way home about 11 o'clock Saturday night was struck by a hand car in charge of a gang of track laborers and sustained several bad cuts about the head. One leg was badly cut and bruised necessitating conveying him to the hospital at Cranbrook. Being deaf he probably did not hear the car approaching. R. Campbell left last evening for Calgary to take in the exhibition at that place. G. Holland who has been employed at the C. M. & S. company's shops, left for Kimberley to accept a similar position with the same company at the Sullivan mine. A. C. Bowness came in today from Cranbrook.

SIR WILLIAM WHYTE AS HIGH COMMISSIONER

OTTAWA, July 3.—The information here is that the government has not finally decided upon the man who is to be Lord Strathcona's successor. The knighthood of Sir William Whyte, vice-president of the C.P.R., and his almost immediate departure for England has strengthened the belief that the Winnipeg railway magnate is the man for London. According to a statement by a member of the Canadian government Sir Daniel McMillan, lieutenant governor of Manitoba, has been mentioned for the position.

SEAMEN'S STRIKE COMES TO END

Strikers Gain Recognition of Unions

ATLANTIC LINERS OBTAIN CREWS

Seamen to Have Advance of Wages—Do Not Gain All Demands

LONDON, July 3.—Tonight saw the practical end of the shipping strike which, so far as its international character was concerned, was a failure from the first. Nevertheless in Great Britain it developed a very serious character and dislocated commerce and trade in many directions.

Substantial Victories.

The strikers have not gained all their demands, but have obtained substantial victories, including the recognition of their unions, the chief obstacle to a settlement in Liverpool, Glasgow and other parts, which led to the holding up of numerous Atlantic liners. These steamers have now obtained crews, which enable them to sail at an early date.

In Hull, where the struggle was most bitter and the strikers were obdurate, a third conference between the board of trade representative, George Askwith, and the representative of the disputing parties was held today and proved successful. A meeting of the strikers tonight unanimously confirmed the agreement. In the event of any dispute the terms of the agreement are to be interpreted by the board of trade. The agreement, which was signed by nearly 40 ship owners, gives the seamen an advance of half a crown (60 cents) weekly, and the dockers an increase of a half penny per hour, with a weekly half holiday to all, and other minor concessions. These benefits accrue to all the men, whether they belong to the union or not. The discharging of perishable goods was resumed tonight and work will be generally resumed tomorrow.

In some of the other ports it is said that the settlement will be arranged immediately, while in London the president of the shipping federation and other influential shipowners tomorrow will meet representatives of the National Transport Workers' federation to discuss the situation. Conditions tonight, therefore, are hopeful, and it is understood that by the end of the week the shipping industry will resume its normal course.

FORESTS SAFE FROM FIRE FOR THIRTY DAYS

SPOKANE, Wash., July 3.—Timber owners, and rangers in Washington, Idaho, Oregon and Montana, declare the forests are safe from fires for at least 30 days, as a result of the recent rains, and announce that plans have been completed to prevent a repetition of last year's destruction of life and property in the government reserves and private holdings.

Judge Albert L. Flewelling, president of the Northwest Forest and Conservation association, which takes in the states of Washington, Idaho, Oregon, California and Montana, reports that the associations in Idaho are working together and that private holders are cooperating with the federal government and the state forces to protect government and other properties throught the season, as well as assisting in enforcing the forest laws to the letter in the several commonwealths.

"Every precaution is being taken to protect the timber holdings," said Judge Flewelling, "and in doing this we are also looking out for the settlers. The organization is complete in every way so far as it can be with the means at our command and if the war department premits the use of soldiers to patrol the forest we will have the most effective fire fighting force ever gathered together.

"Lumbermen operating in the north Idaho forests are confining their work to cutting the fire-killed timber and it is expected that several billion feet of logs will be cut there during the next two or three years. While the loss by last season's fire was enormous, it was not as heavy as reported, because of the fact that much timber will be saved. The great loss was in the lives of firefighters.

"We have reports of only one small fire this season. It was started by a careless camper in northern Idaho. Prompt investigation was made with the result that the man was arrested and convicted."

PROSTRATIONS FROM HEAT IN ONTARIO

Mercury Climbs Above Hundred Mark—Moulders and Iron Workers Unable to Work.

TORONTO, July 3.—The temperature at 8 o'clock this morning was 87 and has continued to rise. A strong northwest breeze has alleviated the almost intolerable heat which had compelled moulders and iron workers to suspend operations. The mercury rose in Nipissing to 109 on Sunday. A thunderstorm and cooler weather is predicted for tomorrow.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the thermometer at the observatory stood at 103, nearly a degree higher than the hottest recorded yesterday. From all parts of the provinces came despatches telling of the intense heat prevailing. St. Catherines claims 109 in the shade, while at Hamilton this evening the thermometer climbed to 105, with many prostrations in the latter city. In Toronto half a dozen people were removed to their homes or to hospitals overcome by heat.

ENGLISH OFFICERS LENT TO CANADIAN MILITIA

DECLINE TO ACCEPT TERMS

Both Sides Reject Proposal of Dr. Gordon

CHAIRMAN LEAVES FOR WINNIPEG

Protest at Manner in Which Proposal Was Submitted --Brief Replies

BANFF, Alta., July 3—At a meeting of the conciliation board held this morning both parties positively refused to accept the proposals of Chairman Gordon made Saturday afternoon and made public this morning. The operators submitted a brief written rejection of the proposals stating that they contained terms and conditions to which they could not assent. Mr. Stubbs on behalf of the miners said that they had no written statement to make but were ready to state verbally that the mine workers could no consider the offer made as a basis of agreement.

The board at once went into session, instructing the two parties to return in a short time to meet again with the board. Later the board announced that the final report would be taken up at once and Chairman Gordon hopes to leave for Winnipeg tonight.

VANCOUVER BUSINESS MAN DROWNED IN SECOND NARROWS

VANCOUVER, B.C., July 3.—Marcus Weston, 24 years of age, a son of the Rev. Weston, a Baptist minister of Toronto, and manager of the Vancouver branch of Taylor & Taylor safe works was drowned in the second narrows of Burrard inlet late on Sunday afternoon. Weston, in company with Miss Bradon of 1020 Burnaby street, was spending the afternoon on the inlet in a small racing cat boat. At the second narrows the tide currents carried the boat against the side of a barge and while endeavoring to push off with an oar the young man lost his footing and fell overboard. The body was not seen again and has not been recovered. Miss Bradon was rescued from the sailboat by men on the barge and conveyed to her home in a hysterical condition. Rev. Mr. Perry, of the First Baptist church, has received instructions from Toronto to conduct the funeral services and interment in Vancouver.

ONTARIO'S FIGHT FOR WATER POWERS

Demands Payment of Hundred Thousand Dollars a Year From Dominion Government.

TORONTO, July 3.—Ontario's fight for water power rights has started on a new phase. The Whitney government has challenged the right of the Dominion government to control and dispose of the water powers developed by the canals. The provincial contention is that if the water belongs to the province before it enters the canal it belongs to the province after it leaves the canal, and except for purposes of navigation the water belongs to it when it is in Canada.

The Whitney government has determined to fight in support of this contention all along the line, and the Dominion government has been notified that the Whitney government proposes to assert the provincial right to control all water power grants in the canals and to demand the payment of the $100,000 per annum which the Dominion government now derives from such grants.

Builds Business

The business that does not advertise, like the sail boat without any wind, will never break any speed record

—Rusty Mike's Diary

The Antediluvian Doubter

Around every city and town there is at least one business oracle, who will smoke tobacco, spit and tell you that advertising does not pay. It seems that "The way it used to be done" germ gets into this man's system and creates such havoc with his ideas of business methods that he simply won't listen to a heart to heart talk about this, the greatest of all business building forces.

Recently there was celebrated the first trip of the first successful steamboat in the history of the world. One can, in fancy, almost hear the comments of the doubters and the gossips of that time, and yet Fulton did run that steamboat, and today its improvement is the recognized method of transportation of the world. It is a fact that Fulton's achievement was the basis of argument for every promoter of a perpetual motion machine for years to come, and those who picked the steamboat and rejected the perpetual motion machine merely showed the same kind of good business judgment that the man of today displays when he picks the genuine advertising and scorns the spurious article.

The Women's Trade

The women folks have learned to watch the papers. Funny magazines, litceurers, would-be humorists have belittled the woman in her effort to make the weekly allowance go as far as it will, but the fact is constantly before the student that the woman is the real economizer.

When once you start your advertisment in the paper, the women of the community become your best friends or your worst enemies. Your first announcement, if it contains prices, brings them to inspect quality, and if your advertisement is truthful, to buy—but woe unto him who insinuates through his newspaper advertisements that women are fools.

A Lesson in Proportion

The merchant who sells an article at a profit of 10 cents and sells 20 of them makes more money than the merchant who sells four articles at a profit of 25 cents. Certainly it is easier for a merchant to sell 20 articles at a profit of 10 cents than it is for a merchant to sell four at a profit of 25 cents if the first merchant lets the whole town know of the bargain.

The Right Medium

There is a time, certainly when a man must decide for himself whether he is merely a sheep following a bell, or keeping to a well defined, successful business career. The bill board, the program, etc., are condemned and frowned upon by successful advertisers of today. Yet there are men who use these forms of advertising occasionally and because of failure to get profitable returns, decry advertising, advertising men and those who use it to build up their business.

More and more is the wonderful value of newspaper advertising becoming known and the almost unbelievable successes due to its use are being brought to light. Think, if you can, of a dozen of the world's greatest mercantile successes, and in that number you will find twelve users of newspaper advertising—a remarkable record, when you stop to think about it, regarded from two standpoints; one, that the public should be hoodwinked at times by the wailing of the non-advertiser, that owing to the fact that he did not advertise, he could sell his goods cheaper; and the other that any merchant should attempt to do business without taking up one of the most essential helps in business building, newspaper advertising.

IN VIEW of these facts, which are very apparent, what argument can be made in favor of any advertising medium that it even distantly competes with the daily newspaper? The storekeeper who has enough business ability to buy goods right, and keep store profitably, must see the light, and realize that the telling of these facts to people through the daily newspaper must bring success

Comment of Radio Active Menthol Iodine in Cure of Tuberculosis —Opsonic Theory.

The publication of an account of the new preparation of radio-active menthol iodine which has been discovered by Dr. de Szendeff, of Budapest, and is said to have cured numerous cases of pulmonary and other tuberclosis, naturally excited great interest among the members of the medical profession, says the London Times.

Use of Injections.

The first attempts to treat tuberculosis conditions by the injection into the body of remedies destructive to the bacillus, either by their direct operation or by virtue of changes which they produce in the condition or activities of the blood, were those of the late Professor Koch, who, in 1890, introduced the preparation which he called "tuberculin" as an agent for this purpose. It unfortunately happened that the announcements made with regard to the efficacy of this preparation were somewhat premature; and, in the early experiments, it was administered in larger doses than subsequent experience was found to justify, with the result that it fell greatly into disrepute, and that further reasearch concerning its properties was much retarded. It was soon rendered plain, however, by the concurrent work of many observers, that noxious bacilli introduced into the system was not necessarily productive of the diseased conditions ordinarily associated with them, but that they were frequently rendered harmless and destroyed by something contained in the blood of the infected person.

"Opsonins" and "Opsonic Index."

Sir Almroth Wright discovered that an injection into the blood of killed bacterial cultures greatly increased the power of the person so operated upon to destroy living bacteria of the same species; and he traced this increase of power to an increase, produced by the action of the injected material, in the absolute quantity of the anti-bacterial substances always present in sufficient amount to overpower an unexpected invasion. He described the chief anti-bacterial agent as an "opsonin," and devised a means of ascertaining, by what he called the "opsonic index," at least an approximation of the resisting power of any given patient at any given time. Guided by this knowledge, he has for some years been successfully treating a large number of cases of tuberculosis affecting various parts of the body by injections of killed cultures of the tubercle bacillus; his work in this direction having been mainly surgical, and concerned with tuberculosis of joints and glands, and of the skin, rather than with the form chiefly affecting the lungs, to which, however, the principals involved are equally applicable.

In a general way, it may be said, that the tubercle bacilli invading the joint, for example, are more or less imprisoned within certain boundaries from which they have little tendency to escape during quiescence of the affected part, but from which they may be released so as to enter the general blood stream by active or passive movements. The principle adopted by Sir Almroth has been to administer a dose of killed bacilli sufficient to raise the "opsonic index," or measure of the killing power of the blood, to a sufficient extent, and then to move the affected joint sufficiently to liberate, and to throw into the general blood stream, a certain proportion of the living bacilli, there to meet their fate. This process repeated with the necessary frequency and at the proper intervals, would in time kill all the bacilli concerned, and leave the patient in a condition to recover. The method is, indeed, only a utilization of the natural methods of defence, increased and systematized by art, and it is being carried on with regard not only to tubercle, but also with regard to many other diseases, and with regard to the various bacilli, productive of pain, inflammation, and staphylococci, which complicate many other diseases, and not least among them cancer.

As far as can be judged from the reports already received, the action of the "radio-active menthol iodine" will be different from that of the killed "cultures" employed by Mr. Almroth Wright, and the drug will itself poison and kill the bacilli in the circulation instead of merely stimulating the blood to do so. If this be so, the principal concerned seems to be that underlying the value of "606" in syphilis, rather than that underlying the protective influence of the various forms of "vaccination," the general term under which, although cows are no longer the sources of the material employed, the application of bacterial cultures is now commonly expressed. The researches of Sir Almroth Wright renders the work of Jenner intelligible, and established the principle on which it rests.

Criticism by a Hospital Physician.

A senior physician to one of the principal chest hospitals in London expressed himself yesterday to a representative of the Times as being, on the information already presented, very sceptical of the new treatment. His views are fully endorsed by one of the leading pharmaceutical chemists of London. Referring to the composition of the new preparation, he said:

"Peptonized iodine is unknown and quite impossible; iodine in combination with an albuminous base is known and in use at the present time. It is conceivable that this might be digested or "peptonized," and thus a combination of iodine with a peptone be produced. But this is not "peptonized iodine."

The internal administration of iodine—that is, iodine as a metal and not in combination as iodides—is also well known. But its administration by the subcutaneous method has been practically impossible. It is conceivable, however, that a combination of iodine with peptone could be so administered and that the pain of the injection could be diminished by the use of menthol.

Radium barium chloride is unknown. But there is a barium chloride "method" of separating radium from uranium ores, and possibly a radium salt so extracted may be thus referred to. A radium salt so extracted can be obtained at a price of 15s per gramme, but anything which can really be relied upon would cost quite £20 for a milligramme.

My scepticism is based on the following points: Many separate new methods are involved in what has hitherto been published, none of which are necessarily concerned with tuberculosis; the subcutaneous administration of iodine; the use of peptonized iodine; and the use of a radio-active body subcutaneously. Why have these methods not been disclosed as the research proceeded? Why have all the steps been delayed publication until the special application to pulmonary tuberculosis had been discovered? Why was the radio-activity method not tried for cancer, in which disease the effect of radium is now under investigation? Why is the announcement made in Paris, when the discovery was made in Hungary?

PEER INDIGNANT AT FANCY DRESS JEST

The fancy dress ball organized by Lord Winterton and F. E. Smith at Claridge's hotel has roused the ire of "A Peer," who writes to The Times practically cursing with bell, book and candle the whole affair.

Apparently the correspondent is a peer of note, for the letter appears, not in the ordinary correspondence, but in a prominent position on the leading artical page. News of the ball, he says, has come to him as "an unpleasant shock." He continues:

"Amid the surroundings of a London hotel, two prominent Unionist politicians, one of whom aspires to high cabinet rank, and presumably, to the confidence of his fellow countrymen, gave a fancy dress ball which was attended, not only by young people out for a harmless evening's amusement, but by many of those engaged at the present time in what they, themselves, have chosen to describe as the greatest political crisis since the Great Rebellion.

Both Mr. Balfour and Mr. Asquith attended the ball, and "A Peer" who "notes with a sense of painful surprise" some of the costumes, says:—

It would be interesting to know what were the real feelings of these two statesmen upon the arrival of a peer in his robes, with the number "499" attached to his tinsel coronet, which appears to have been the costume adopted at this juncture, in such happy and excellent taste, by a young Unionist member of parliament.

It Was Mr. Astor.

The mock peer was Mr. Waldorf Astor, who wore the red tie of Socialism. On one side of his coronet was "499," and on the other "Down with the Peers," had been crossed through, and the words written, "Still one Vacancy." The Times correspondent asks:—

"What are people all over the country to think who read the account of last night's proceedings? Are the realities of the situation to be guaged by the respected figure of the Archbishop of Canterbury addressing an assembly which has been led in the past by Lord Beaconsfield and Lord Salisbury, or are they to estimate by the vagaries of a mock peer in tinsel, at what is called in one of your contemporaries a "novel assembly of both parties," in the presence of the prime minister and the leader of the opposition?"

FASHIONS.

Shoes with pointed and round toes are alike quite out of favor. The present style resembles that worn by Louis XIV., with high, straight heels, cloth uppers to the ankles, and large, straight buckles. Ancient buckles are in very great demand.

There are many novelties in shoes for the afternoon, which are very striking. All black patent leather shoes are surrounded with a narrow band of red, green, violet or grey kid, and the wide ribbon fastening the shoes and the silk stockings are the same color as this band.

Parasols with sherred chiffon covers are shown in a large variety, printed chiffon being used over white and colored foundations. Sometimes the chiffon is sherred over the upper part of the cover only, and sometimes the shirred portion is used at the lower edge of the border.

Wonderful Progress in Burnaby

Half of This Year Has More Than Doubled 1910 Record

Edmonds, June 26—A statistical report from the municipal wiring inspector which was presented and received by the members of the Burnaby council last night gives a striking illustration of the wonderful wave of development which is surging over the municipality of Burnaby. In six months this year the buildings erected irrespective of public buildings has considerably more than doubled that of the whole of 1910.

The report stated that 165 dwellings had been erected at a total value of $192,250, which shows the value of these houses to average in the neighborhood of $1,200 each. The total building for 1910 was placed at the sum of $130,000, making an increase for the current year of nearly 200 per cent.—Columbian, New Westminster, June 29, 1911.

About 18 months ago we sold to Mrs. E. J. Bangs of Cascade, B.C. two lots on Third avenue, Burnaby, for $400, on which she agreed to pay $20 per month. Before the time for payment had expired the lots were sold for $1400 cash and a handsome residence is now being built on the property. Figuring the time the $400 was invested the interest on the investment would be 315 per cent. All the lots in this subdivision were sold by us to residents of the Kootenays and great as these profits are they will no doubt be able to secure a much larger price in the near future as all this property is now in great demand for building purposes.

Our new subdivisions are no further out and are just as desirable now that the new car line via Burnaby Lake is in operation and judging from the way building is progressing the profits will be still greater.

There is very little ground now left for subdivision between Vancouver and New Westminster. As soon as the lots pass into the hands of people owning only one or two lots the price advances from 30 to 50 per cent and there is no monthly payments nor extension of time. Every day the chance to secure lots, bound to occupy a central position in one of the world's great cities, at ground floor prices and easy terms is becoming less. To the young man or woman on a salary to whom a couple of these lots means a sure competence for the future, the opportunity will soon be gone forever. See our guarantee protecting you against losing the money you have invested if you find it impossible to carry out your agreement for purchase of lots. We know of no other company offering the same protection to small investors.

AMERICANS TO MEET ENGLISH BLUES

International Inter-Collegiate Contest Opens at Henley Next Week—Men Compared.

NEW YORK, July 3.—Seventeen athletes, the pick of the track and field men of Yale and Harvard, sailed on the Vanderland for England, where they will meet the best men of Oxford and Cambridge in an international intercollegiate meet on July 11. The men were in high spirits as their friends and the crowd on the pier waved a last goodbye and shouted "Good luck."

The American teams were made up as follows:

100-yard dash—Reilly and Thatcher of Yale.

Quarter-mile run—Kelley of Harvard, and Stewart of Yale.

Half mile run—Preble of Yale, and Jacques of Harvard.

Mile run—Lawless of Harvard.

Two-mile run—Withington of Harvard and Ryan of Yale.

Running high jump—Barker of Harvard and Canfield of Yale.

Running broad jump—Holden of Yale and Kilpatrick of Yale.

120-yard hurdles—Chisholm of Yale, and Cummings of Harvard.

Hammer—Childs of Yale and Cable of Harvard.

Others in the party were Captain Foster of Harvard, Floyd and Soule, managers, respectively of Harvard and Yale, and Coach Donovan, trainer at Harvard, and Johnny Mack, trainer at Yale.

Arrangements have been made for the men to continue their training while crossing the ocean.

By a comparison of the records made this year the Americans have the advantage in six events. In one the performances are the same, while in the others the Britons are superior. It will not be safe, however, to rely too much upon the table of records in picking the winner. This table is based upon the performances of Oxford and Cambridge in their dual meets last March, while the American records are those made in the Harvard-Yale dual meet in May and the intercollegiate championships two weeks later.

The conditions under which the two meets were held were totally different. The Englishmen held their games on a raw March day with a strong wind blowing up the track. The conditions were not in the least conducive to good performances, either on the track or in the field. Harvard and Yale, on the other hand, were at their best when their games were held, and the chances are much against their either equalling or excelling their mark. The Englishmen, however, should be in far better form than heretofore, and with the added advantage of competing on the home grounds may have an advantage over the Americans.

It will be the fourth international meet between these universities. Of the three previous meets the United States has won two and England one. Only first places count, each victory registering one point. England won the first meet and the Americans the next two.

BOMBARDIER WELLS READY FOR MISTAH JOHNSON

LONDON, July 3.—Ladies and gentlemen—Bombardier Billy Wells. Billy—your American cousins.

Folks, Billy has challenged John Arthur Johnson to a contest slam-slam with him for the championship of the world. The event may come off—in London, most likely. Anyhow, Jack tells Hugh McIntosh he will fight Wells any time that suits the Bombardier.

It may seem to you that this British soldier—who was in the novice class two years ago—is all-advised to take on the conqueror of Jeffries and Tom Burns. But he is a much improved Wells, and McIntosh says he is the best heavy boxer he ever saw.

Jim Maloney, Wells' trainer, figures it this way: "Johnson is a defensive fighter. He coaxes the other man to plunge in, and then hands it to him.

"Wells couldn't plunge if he wanted to. He's a long range fighter, and the fastest boxer alive.'

Certainly Wells made a monkey of Porky Flynn in their 20-round go at Olympia, and Porky is a useful man. He is the only man who ever lost to Wells on points; it was a K. O. for the rest.

Maloney says Wells' abnormal reach—79½ inches—should help in fighting a man like Johnson. There is a knockout in his left hand, if he cares to put his shoulder in it, but he prefers to prod and prod with that long left until the other man is disorganized; then he whips the right across. He has an awful punch.

He's built on long slim lines, but take a look at his shoulders.

HUGH JENNINGS TELLS ABOUT GINGER AND COACHING

Hughey Jennings works harder on the coaching lines when the Detroit Tigers are playing the tailenders than he does when the Tigers are clashing with the pennant contenders. He shouts louder and oftener to pepper up his men when they are playing Washington or St. Louis than when they are tackling the Athletics.

"My boys are on their mettle when we play a team of nearly the same strength or as strong as we are," says Hughey, "but they let down when they meet a tailend team, which, on form, *is inferior. Then I must supply arti*ficial ginger to make my players grit their teeth and dig in.

"If a team could keep their ginger at the popping-off point all season it would win the pennant in a walk. Ball players let down, unconsciously, and then is when the tail-enders beat the first division teams. A good team seldom shows its real form against a poor one.

"The umpires sometimes object to my working hard. Now and then, not often, I am chased off the coaching line. That riles me, especially if the Tigers are one or two runs behind. Then the fans think I have lost my nerve.

"Ty Cobb is one of the most alert and aggressive players, but Ty has his days when he is not up and on the bit. Ty always tries, but sometimes that little extra effort is lacking. It's only natural. I don't think I ever knew a ball players who didn't, in some way or other, let up now and then."

MANAGER CHANCE IS OUT OF BUSINESS

CINCINNATI, O., July 3.—Following a collapse on the local National league field Saturday Frank Chance, manager of the Chicago National league team, was ordered by physicians to quit playing ball for the rest of the season. Chance had seemingly recovered from the immediate effects of his heatstroke last night, but his condition was pronounced serious.

MOTOR BOATS IN BIG REGATTA.

DUBUQUE, Ia., July 3.—With the expectation of witnessing one of the greatest aquatic events of the year, thousands of enthusiasts of the sport came pouring into Dubuque today to attend the regatta of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat association, which will be held on the Mississippi river during the three days beginning tomorrow. In two squadrons, one from the north and one from the south, the fleet little craft that will compete in the races arrived today and found the city in regatta garb.

Tomorrow the 44-foo t class, which includes boats with a speed of 50 miles an hour or better, will race for the championship and prizes of $1,000 cash and the Webb $1,000 cup. Boats of the 20-foot class will also engage in speed contests during the day. In the evening an illuminated boat parade will be held.

The 32 and 26-foot classes will have their innings Wednesday, and on Thursday will come the handicap for winners and a race against time by the champion. The contestants in the several events will include the fastest power boats of America, such as Dixie IV, Red Top III, Yankee and Vita II.

MIDDLE STATES TENNIS TITLE

ORANGE, N. J., July 3.—Play in the annual middle states championship lawn tennis tournament began today on the courts of the Orange Lawn Tennis club at Mountain Station, and will continue through the greater part of the week. There are many entrants and they are almost without exception well known players, whose high standard of play gives promise of good competition.

ROYAL HENLEY REGATTA.

LONDON, July 3.—More than ordinary interest is manifested in the annual Henley regatta, which takes place this week over the usual course on the Thames. No college eight from the opposite side of the water figures this year in the English aquatic derby, but an eight from the Ottawa Rowing club is going to have a try for the Grand Challenge cup, while a four from the same club will complete for the Stewards' Challenge cup. All of the events are filled and it is expected some records will be broken. The regatta will open Wednesday and continue until the end of the week.

SPORTING SPOTLIGHTS.

Pitcher Crandall has been filling in at short for the Giants and making good.

Esmond, Cincinnati's new shortstop, is making a good showing, both in the field and with the stick.

Frank Laporte is playing good ball for the St. Louis Browns, and is leading the team in hitting.

This season it is Fred Clarke instead of Honus Wagner who is doing the heavy hitting for the Pirates.

Manager Mack of the Athletics has signed Pitcher Long, the sensational twirler of the Lafayette college team.

The Pittsburg club paid $2,500 for Shortstop Sovelin, who comes from the Erie O. and P. league team.

Baseball fans in several New England league cities have been handling the umpires pretty roughly this season.

MONTREALERS FACE BATHING PROBLEM

Water Famine and Proposal to Instal Meters Starts Discussion of Daily Dip.

MONTREAL, July 3.—To bathe, or not to bathe, promises to become an important municipal question in this city as the result of the threatened water shortage and the proposal to instal meters in all Montreal buildings and to impose a tax for all water consumed above a certain fixed amount. Mayor Guerin, who has a supply of original opinions on all questions that arise to vex the popular mind, has gone on record against the proposal to measure the water supply. His view is that the thought of the water meter busily clicking off each gallon consumed would cause the heads of families to become peevish whenever their wives or children took a bath. Apparently his worship holds to the opinion that the daily bath is a habit confined chiefly to the families and juvenile elements of the population. On the other hand a distinguished editor has made the assertion that one bath a week should be sufficient to satisfy the most fastidious, and medical authorities have arisen to point out that excessive bathing is injurious to the body because it removes the protective covering of the skin and gives readier access to the dangerous microbes that are blown about with the dust of city streets. In support of this position statistics are adduced to show that causes of extreme longevity are almost invariable found among nonbathers. Meanwhile, with a daily consumption of water far greater in proportion to its population than that of any other city in the world the ordinary citizen is wondering whether civic patriotism compels him to forego his desire for cleanliness. One prolific cause of waste is being ended by orders requiring the repair of all plumbing leaks, and the plumbers wives are planning lavish summer vacations in consequence. The question is not so pressing as it might be otherwise in view of the fact that the severe rainstorms which have surprised the metropolis on 12 of the past 14 days have given most of its inhabitants involuntary and unwelcome baths.

Killed Good Story.

What looked like the ushering in of the golden age was contained in an announcement from Winnipeg regarding a practical scheme of co-operation, which is said to have been entered into between the Canadian Northern and the Canadian Pacific railways.

It is stated that the Canadian Northern, instead of building a single track railway on a route of its own through the wilds of Northern Ontario, between Sudbury and Port Arthur, to link up its western lines with the eastern ones, and make the company a trans-continental system, would build a single track all the way alongside the present single track of the Canadian Pacific throughout the rocky country on the north shore of Lake Superior.

This, it was pointed out, would make the Canadian Pacific a double track railway, and both tracks, it was added, would be used jointly by the two companies. The announcement of such a practical demonstration of brotherly love and mutual helpfulness between the two railways was very skeptically received by local railway officials, and Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, when questioned on the subject, promptly gave denial to the supposed project.

"No such arrangement is contemplated," he said.

Would Drive Trade Away.

"Montreal should hesitate before attempting to strangle the commerce of our port by such a backward step," declared Major G. W. Stephens, president of the harbor commission, talking about the city's proposal to impose taxes of $200,000 a year on harbor property.

Major Stephens, who has just returned from Europe, declares that if this civic tax is imposed it will necessitate the re-imposition of tonnage dues on all vessels, the raising of wharfages to more than double their present level, and an increase in rentals charged for spaces and privileges on the water front.

This, he says, would destroy Montreal's competitive position and would drive our trade to New York, Portland and Boston. Major Stephens declares that Montreal will first of all have to show what right it has to tax property, which the commissioners held to be federal property.

The major has just returned from Europe where he has been negotiating with Lloyd's for better insurance rates for vessels on the St. Lawrence route.

Votes for Women.

A reader of Dr. Johnson has stumbled on this bit of wisdom, which he thinks applicable to the suffrage question: "Nature has given woman so much power that the law very wisely gives them little."

This is interesting and timely now as it has just been learned that suffrage societies througout Canada are preparing a reorganization scheme with a view to prefecting and strengthening their several clubs and starting a hot campaign for women's votes next winter.

DR. GORDON AND THE BOARD OF TRADE

The Rev. Dr. Gordon, chairman of the board of conciliation at present inquiring into the differences between the mine owners of the Crow's Nest Pass and Southern Alberta and the miners employed in those districts, has apparently taken umbrage at the resolution of the Nelson board of trade urging that everything possible be done to bring about a resumption of work with the least possible delay, even to the extent of the government taking over the mines and operating them under a guarantee until such time as a settlement might be reached. Judging by his remarks Dr. Gordon appears to resent the fact that the Nelson board of trade should have suggested that there was necessity for the hastening of a settlement and takes the resolution passed as a reflection on the manner in which he has discharged his duties as chairman of the board of conciliation.

With all due respect to Rev. Dr. Gordon, The Daily News believes the board of trade was entirely justified in the action which it took. At the time the mines had been closed for going on to three months, the possibility of a coal shortage was growing stronger with every day's delay and little progress appeared to have been made toward a settlement. This was two weeks ago and still the mines are idle.

In view of the feeling which has been displayed by Dr. Gordon in reference to the matter it might not be out of place to again quote the resolution passed by the board of trade. In the preamble reference was made to the dangers which threatened if the non-operation of the mines were to continue and to the delays which had taken place in the conduct of the inquiry being conducted by the board of conciliation, the resolution itself reading as follows:

"Resolved, that the attention of the government be at once called to the seriousness of the situation with a view to preventing further loss of time by the board of conciliation and that the government be asked, should further delay not be avoidable, to cause the opening of the mines under guarantee to the workers so that the danger and loss above referred to may not be incurred; and, be it further

"Resolved, that this board strongly recommends that as far as possible publicity of all the proceedings should be given and that the board place on record its appreciation of the efforts already made by the hon. the minister of labor to bring about a speedier settlement."

The Daily News believes that this resolution was quite in order. It particularly believes that it would have been in the interests of the public had full publicity been given to the evidence produced before the board, although in this matter The Daily News believes that the board was more or less in the hands of the two parties to the dispute under the terms of the act under which it was constituted. For some reason or other the operators refused to allow certain evidence to be presented and the men, as could then only have been expected, adopted a similar course.

But while this may relieve Dr. Gordon and the board of conciliation of any blame in connection with the non-publication of the evidence, it does not explain away the delay there was in connection with the board's work, nor will it appease the desire of the public for searching inquiry into the whole question of coal production in the Crow's Nest Pass and Southern Alberta with a view to locating the responsibility for the present high price of coal in this country. Had the evidence been published the public would have got some idea of the facts in regard to the matter. Either it is costing far more per ton to produce coal in the Crow's Nest and Southern Alberta than it is under similar conditions elsewhere, or the coal companies or someone else is making an excessive profit in the marketing of it or the railways are charging unduly high freight rates on this commodity. In the public interest an inquiry into this whole question should be instituted with the least possible delay.

RE PRICE OF STRAWBERRIES

To the Editor of The Daily News:

Sir—We observe in today's issue and in the local news column you state that Mr. J. A. McDonald had raised the price of strawberries from Saturday last from 5 1-2 cents to 6 cents per lb. It may interest the public to know that our company on issuing a price list for the season on May 19 last offered 6 cents cash in addition to paying freight etc.; or in other words an equivalent of approximately 8 cents per lb. We think it right to mention the above facts in case the misunderstanding might arise that Mr. McDonald governs the fruit market prices.

BARES ROMANCES OF HEALING ART

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle Tells How Ailments Have Changed History — Napoleon's Career.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, speaking to some London medical students, says the Lancet, told several stories illustrating what he called "the romance of medicine."

The fashion of wearing wigs, for instance, was due to a skin disease which produced bald patches on the august head of Francis I. of France. He got a wig and his courtiers followed suit, just as they all whispered when he had an attack of laryngitis.

"One can trace for many years," says the same authority, "certainly from 1802 the inception of that disease which killed Napoleon at St. Helen, in 1821. In 1802 Bourrienne said: 'I have often seen him at Malmaison lean against the right arm of his chair, and, unbuttoning his coat and waistcoat, exclaim, 'What pain I feel!'"

"That was perhaps the first allusion to his stomachic and hepatic trouble, but from then onward it continually appeared, like Banquo at the banquet. He could scatter the hosts of Europe and alter its kingdoms, but he was powerless against the mutinous cells of his own mucous membrane.

"Again and again he had attacks of lethargy, amounting almost to collpase, at moments when all his energy was most required. At the crisis of Waterloo he had such an attack and sat on his horse like a man dazed for hours of the action. Finally the six years at St. Helen furnished a clinical study of gastric disease which was all explained in the historical post mortem examination, which disclosed cancer covering the whole wall of the stomach and actually perforating it at the hepatic border.

Napoleon's Career Examined.

"Napoleon's whole career was profoundly modified by his complaint. There have been many criticisms—not unnatural ones—of his petty, querulous and undignified attitude during his captivity; but if his critics knew what it was to digest their food with an organ which had hardly a square inch of healthy tissue upon it they would perhaps take a more generous view of the conduct of Napoleon. For my own part, I think that his fortitude was never more shown than during those years—the best proof of which was that his guardians had no notion how ill he was until within a few days of his actual death.

"History abounds with examples of what I call the romance of medicine. Look at the men, for example who were the prime movers in the French revolution. They were a diseased company—a pathological museum. Was Marat's view of life tainted by the loathsome skin diseas of which he was taking hot baths when Crarlotte Corday cut him off. Was the incorruptible but bilious Robespierre the victim of his own liver? Was Couthon's heart embittered by his disfigured limbs?

These are the problems in which medicine infringes upon history, and these are the illustrations of the philosophy which is only to the medical thinker. How many times do the most important historical developments appear to depend upon small physical causes? There is, for example, the case of the revocation of the edict of Nantes. By this measure the whole history of France has been profoundly modified, because by that action there was given forth the Huguenots.

"Now, how came Louis XIV., who had always held out upon the point, to give way at last to the pressure of Mme. de Maintenon and his clerical advisers? The answer lay in one of his molar teeth. It is historical that he had for some months bad toothache, caries, abscess of the jaw, and finally a sinus which required operation, and it was at this time, when he was pathologically abnormal and irritable, that he took the step which has modified history. Great results may be depended upon a king's jaw or a statesman's digestion."

LOVE LETTERS TO AUTHORS

Even the Most Famous Writers Rarely Do Themselves Credit.

The love letters of authors, however famous, are usually the least admirable part of their literary productions. Swift, for instance was an admirable letter writer, but who can say that his epistles to Stella Johnson were not often ludicrous with eternal baby talk.

It is well known that the love epistle to Fanny Brawne, of that great poet and admirable letter writer, John Keats, were so peculiar, to put it mildly, that even portions of them when published produced a small scandal. With all his witchery, his mastery over the English language, the author of "Endymion" has left only one unworthy piece if literary baggage—his communications to the young woman he adored.

The love letters of Shelley, too, are possibly the worst things he ever wrote. Byron, on the other hand—who could not write an insipid letter if he tried, so that some people are inclined to think his fame will ultimately rest upon his correspondence—did not lose his literary cunning, his incomparable case of style, even when inditing letters to the temporary owner of his heart.

One must critize, too, the letters of another famous personage in that illustrious little circle in Italy, namely Edward John Trelawny, the Cornishman and adventuer, the man who arranged the dramatic funeral pyre of Shelley at Viareggio and who accompanied Byron to Greece in the struggle for Hellenic freedom.

Few writers have surpassed Trelawny in vividness of style, in clearness of expression, in the use of the word which illuminates, and the letters which have recently been published only add to his renown. And yet the only epistles in these volumes which reveal him as a somewhat vacillating philander, an incoherent and untrustworthy person, are those to the woman to whom he was attracted for most of his life, the beautiful and unhappy Claire Clairmount, the half sister of Mary Shelley.

Far from revealing himself as the virile humorous, dare devil, generous creature that he was, in his letters to Claire he is a querulous sentimentalist, demanding all and giving little and proving singularly cold and calculating when the time arrived when he could have made good his eternal protestations.

Then in a more recently published correspondence between illustrious lovers, that of Robert and Elizabeth Barrett-Browning, it is the woman's pen which soars, which expresses the intimacies of a radiant soul far more delicately than is possible for the great poet her husband. It is moreover an admitted fact that all the greatest love letters of the world have been written by women. Even in the classic case of Abelard and Heloise it was the pupil and not the professor who emerged with more lasting fame from the duel of love.

For intensity of passion I suppose the famous "Love Letters of a Portuguese Nun" have never been surpassed and it is not impossible that these outpourings of a woman's soul inspired Mrs. Browning with her little "Sonnets From the Portuguese" for that exquisite series of verses in which she expressed her passion for the poet whom she married and which will forever make her famous when her other writings are forgotten. Then, too, we have the amazing self-revelations of Mlle. de l'Espinasse in her letters to the handsome but doomed young Spaniard and also to Gilbert, her soldier lover. It was the intensity of her emotions, joined to a rare personality which attracted so many young and famous men to a woman who was neither young, beautiful, rich nor married. And we must remember that the state of spinsterhood in the French society of the 18th century was so rare as to be all but eccentric.—Lady's Pictorial.

FIND THE JEWEL IN TOAD'S MOUTH

Is Heart Stimulant Called Befagin, According to the Experimenters—Chinese Tradition.

Chinese physicians are upheld in their contention for centuries that there is a medicinal property in the skin of toads. Elaborate experiments made at John Hopkins university have resulted in the introduction of a new heart stimlant, bufagin, which is derived from the poisoinous secreation from the creatures parotid glands just below the ears.

By which token it is also shown that the legend that the envenomed toad may carry a precious jewel in his head is figuratively true, for the agent is said to be more efficacious than digitalis in its action.

Details of the development of the new remedy are set forth in the current number of the Journal of the American Medical assiciation by Drs. John J. Abel and David L. Macht, of Baltimore, and have been read with much interest by practioners and scientists everywhere.

The studies on which the announcement is based began in the autumn of 1910 and the discovery might be termed accidental, for at that time the physicians were looking into the effect of certain dyestuffs derived from coal tar, by administering small quantities of the substance to a tropical toad obtained in Jamacia, known as Bufoagca. The species is spoken of as a bullfrog by the natives of Jamacia, but this popular designation is incorrect. The administration of the chemicals angered the toads and the handling they received enraged them all the more. It was observed that in their rage a milk secretion exuded from the partoid glands. Some of it was scraped off with a knife, and immediately the blade was covered with a bluish-green discoloration.

A few tests soon convinced the experimenters that they were dealing with a powerful agent.

The Tradition of the Chinese.

The tradition of the Chinese, which was followed by the apothecaries and leeches of the midle ages, were called to mind and the experiments have now definitely established that there was good ground for the belief of the Orientals that the skin on the toad had medicinal properties. One of the favorite examples adduced to show that the Chinese system of medicine was almost entirely empirical is the fact that it described toad skins as having therapeutic qualities. The remedy which the Chinese derive from the skins is called senso, and a Japanese scientist, Dr. Hyashi, asserts that it is similar in its action to the herb foxglove, or digitalis, one of the favorite heart stimulants used in western medicine.

Drs. Able and Macht extracted the contents of the glands from 60 toads, catching the scretions as they spurted in a large glass bowl, a process which they called "milking." The crude venom which is obtained in this way was formerly used by the Indians as an arrow poison. It was maintained by the ancient physicians that dried toad skins were efficacious in treating dropsy, and now that this venerable remedy is being studied the investigators e xpect further discoveries, possibly with results of great value to medicine.

"The marked action of bufagin on the heart," continued the authors of the paper, "its vaso-constrictor action, and its powerful stimulating action on the cardio-imhibitory centre compel us to classify this drug with the most effective members of the digitalis series."

It is announced by the investigators that a more detailed comparison of the effects of their newly discovered drug with other members of the digitalis group will be made known to the medical profession by them.

JOHNSON SEES THE KING.

By R. S. Beck.

Jack Johnson arose from his cramped London bed
'Twas the day before king's coronation;
He grabbed for his paper and closely he read,
And great was the smoke's consternation.

The long-waited honors were published at last,
And many new knights were created;
Through the list Johnson scanned, then muttered agast;
"Mah name wasn't even debated."

Now Johnson was sore, so he shoved on his lid,
And set off for old Windsor castle;
"Ah'll jest see dat king; Ah'll say; 'See here, Kid,
"'Ah'm Johnson—Ah ain't any vassal.

"'Ah think Ah'm entitled to some of dis fame,
"'Ah'm peer of de white combination;
"'And Ah want a handle stuck on to mah name
"'Widout any procrastination.'"

The king sure was puzzled; he nodded his head,
And sent for his high muckymucker
Woh came, looked at Johnson, and hastily said:
"We'll make him the lord high chief chucker;

"Your duties will be too keep back the hoards,
"And knock out the unseemly curious;
"You'll examine the passports of ladies and lords
"And reject those that look to be spurious."

Then Johnson arose and he spat on the floor,
And glared at the king's chief assistant;
"You can do your own chucking," he said; Ah'm real sore—
"You don't hand out honors consistent;

'Ah'm one of the main guys at this here parade,
"King George and me's the attraction,
"But Ah ain't no chucker—Ah'll get off the grade,
"And Ah'll get my pal Taft to take action."

So it's plain Mr. Johnsing—same Jack as of old,
The prize ring is still his big glory;
Old England has lost a chief chucker-out bold,
And the "white hope" still makes a good story.

For economy in bedroom curtains, I have carried out this idea with great success: Make the curtains, whether sash or long ones, of material with no "up and down" in the figure, and put hems of equal width at top and bottom. After the curtains have become soiled and have had their first washing,rehang them the other way up, with the rod slipped through what was formerly the bottom hem. This equalises the wear and tear, so that curtains treated in this way survive several turnings without losing their first freshness.

Sit in a low rocker with the board placed on two chairs or something that will bring the board just high enough to allow the knees to slide under easily. Don't have it any higher or there will not be room enough for pressure from your arms. The rocker will give with every motion you make, and is altogether better than an ordinary chair. Just plan where to put your board and get into the habit of using it so you will save your strength wonderfully. In this way you can iron when too tired to stand up, and for those with sore and aching feet, especialy in hot weather, it is a wonderful help.

If the pocket usually placed on an ordinary house apron is put on the underside, a little way from the outside edge, it will be found a great improvement over the usual manner of putting it on the outside. Keys and other articles will not drop from the pocket if you stoop over. The pocket will not catch upon door knobs and other places that often tear both pocket and apron, and dirt cannot find a lodging place so readily. If a deep pocket is put on in this manner, much can be carried in it for the convenience of the worker, and it does not show the fulness as when a pocket is sown on the outside of the apron.

If one has some cherished table linen and it shows decided signs of wear, place it smoothly on a sewing table wrong side up; over the worn part baste neatly a piece of fine net; darn it down through the holes (of net), using fine flax thread for the purpose; remove the bastings.

Black patent leather shoes with white tops are worn with tailored suits.

There is no decrease in the popularity of long, V-shaped hoods on short coats.

One piece dresses and suits of cream-colored serge are seen everywhere.

Old coffee grounds, if thoroughly dried, make the best filling for pincushions, they are better than bran, which attracts mice, or hair, which attracts moths; besides, they don't sift out as sand does.

PARIS ABOUNDS WITH TRAGEDIES

Not a Day Passes But Some Sad Event is Placed on Record—Auto Nuisance.

PARIS, June 16.—People who flock to see uncanny spectacles for the sake of the emotion they afford might save their money, and take a little healthy exercise as well in strolls through this city, where a promenade is rarely unattended with some excitement. Thus, loungers on the Boulevard de Margenta the other afternoon noticed a middle-aged individual, apparently intent on the goods exhibited in a shop window, but when a certain smart man came along with a cigar between his teeth he whipped out a revolver and blazed away. He would have had another shot at his victim as the latter lay on the ground if passersby had not wrested the weapon from his grasp. While the wounded man was being conveyed to a private hospital at Passy, with a bullet in his body, the assailant was examined by the police commissary, to whom he said that his only regret was that he had not killed his victim outright. They were both in business and were old acquaintances, and the trouble is attributed to a quarrel over some transaction.

Later in the day a gastly scene was witnessed at the Palais Royal station of the Metropolitan railway. A young woman, decently but poorly attired, was on the platform, when an unkempt and ragged creature walked up to her and tried to enter into conversation. As he met with no encouragement he left and seated himself on a bench, but as the next train was approaching he rushed forward, put his arm around her, and flung her, with himself, on the line. The two were under the wheels of the third carriage before the train stopped. The man was the first to be extricated. His head was a mere pulp, and he was stone dead. The young woman was still breathing, although shockingly mutilated, and when she was examined at the Charite hospital an amputation of both her feet was pronounced unavoidable. She is a very respectable person, and was employed as a waitress at a restaurant, where her assailant sometimes took his meals. He wanted to marry her, but she would not hear of such a thing. After annoying her with his attentions he had followed her to the Palais Royal station, and in a fit of mad fury had tried to kill her as well as himself.

The Automobile Nuisance.

Many automobiles, as they dash along, are a terror to pedestrians, who often make any number of futile and risky attempts to cross a thoroughfare. The popular feeling toward the average automobilist was significantly illustrated when a man who, after having been nearly run down, pulled out a knife and plunged it into the back of the driver of that particular motor car, was greeted with loud and approving cries by the spectators of the incident.

The dangerous consequences of the thoughtless throwing away of lighted matches and cigarette ends have once again been illustrated by the accident which has befallen Madame Dubost, sister-in-law of the president of the senate. She was driving along the Boulevard Haussmann in an open cab, when she heard a crackling noise in her hat, and putting a hand up to it, she found, to her dismay, that it was on fire. The lady's screams brought the vehicle to a halt, and a kind-hearted gentleman, who happened to be near, realizing what was amiss, divested himself of his coat and laid it on the hat, thus extinguishing the incipient conflagration. Madame Dubost got off with a little damage to her hair, which a coiffeur is repairing, and with a burn on one cheek and on the hand. But for the gentleman's presence of mind the mischief would probably have been very serious. She thinks that a match or a cigarette must have been carelessly thrown from the window of a neighboring house.

As the result of a difference between M. Bourceret and M. Jourg over some private matter, M. Bourceret sent his seconds to M. Jourg, and a duel with swords, under the usual conditions, was decided upon. It took place at the Grand Roue and was very exciting. There were six encounters, and the two combatants being apparently well matched; but in the sixth M. Jourg was wounded in the forearm. The wound was a penetrating and painful one, and put an end to the combat; but the two antagonists refused to be reconciled when it was over.

So Near and Yet So Far.

A strange story has just come to light of a detective who was guided about in a foreign country by an alleged murderer whom he was sent to arrest. A man named Valesi is accused of having shot the director of an asylum at Aix, in Provence, last September. He fled to Buenos Ayres, and the police, having traced him, sent a detective to secure his arrest. As the fugitive was a Corsican, the detective at once sought out some Corsicans on his arrival in Buenos Ayres to help him in his search. He found one man who was exceedingly complacent, and who for days piloted him about the city in quest of the alleged malefactor. Suddenly this amiable guide disappeared, and the detective greatly regretted his loss. He will probably regret it more now when he learns that his guide was the very man he wanted. In a letter written by Valesi, from Buenos Ayres, to someone in France, and intercepted by the police, he relates with great delight how he led the detective about in search of himself. But fearing that sooner or later he might be detected, he thought it safer to vanish.

A girl of 18 threw herself in the Seine this week. She left a letter to her mother saying that she preferred death to life without the man she loved. On receipt of the letter and news of the girl's death, her mother went mad.

Marthe Schumacher, a young German, shot herself dead in the Bois de Boulogne. She has been in Paris some months studying French, and a love affair is believed to have been the reason for her suicide.

A returned convict who was the other day arrested in Paris, informed the police that a large quantity of linen found in his room had been given him by Joseph Chicos in payment of a debt. The police went to Chicot's house and found in his absence an immense store of linen, silver, clocks, watches and 15,000 in gold and silver. Chicot was arrested and confessed with the utmost calm that he took up burglary as a business, and that he had 1,500 burglaries to his account, and pointed out that the estimated value of the stolen goods was in each case noted against the address and the date. "For the last five years," he said, "I have committed a burglary every night with the exception of Saturday night, when people have a way of being at home." He added that he had a comfortable sum of money and some valuable jewels in a safe place where the police would not find them, and that therefore he "went to prison happily."

A landscape alleged to be by Cuyp and bearing his signature, was recently sold at the Hotel Drouot for $29,0000 to M. Stettiner, acting on behalf of the manager of one of the great Paris millinery stores. The picture, which was entitled and which represented "Cows on a mound in a meadow," was described as identical with the number 149, registered by Smith, in 1834, as being in the Perkins' collection. M. Gross, the Dutch expert, who has been invited by the purchasers to pronounce upon the picture, now demonstrates that it is an old and extraordinary clever copy and that the signature is a forgery. The picture No. 149 noticed in Smith's work, remained in the Perkins' collection until that collection was sold in 1893. At that time it was pointed out by the vendors in their sale catalogue that at the sale of the Dalessert collection in 1869 a mistake had been made in attributing the picture of "Cows on a mound" to Cuyp. The genuine picture in the Perkins collection was bought by the late Mr. Salting, who bequeated it with his collection to the National gallery in London.

A movement has been set on foot by 150 members of the French senate for regulating the importation, sale, and consumption of opium in this country. The authors of the project point out that police reports show that the number of opium dens at the chief naval arsenals are on the increase, and that they exist even in Paris. The ravages caused by the consumption of opium constitute, it is declared, a social evil of international importance, and it is proposed to restrict the use of the drug to purely medicinal purposes.

ROSSLAND AGENT WILL REPORT

To Investigate Magisterial and Police Requirements of Tete Jaune Cache District.

(Special to The Daily News.)

VICTORIA, July 3.—A telegram has just been received by the acting premier, Hon. Dr. Young, from John Kirkup, the veteran government agent stationed at Rossland, accepting the commision to go into the Tete Jaune Cache district and report at once as to its necessities in the way of magisterial and police representation. It is stated that there are already in the country between Tete Jaune Cache and the Yellowhead Pass, no fewer than 3,000 men, following construction either of the G. T. P. or C.N.R. This number it is expected will be increased to 10,000 during the ensuing twelvemonth. Mr. Kirkup, who has had long and eminently practical experience in the handling of conditions of the frontiers of advancing civilization, will proceed to the front at once. It is probable that upon his report and recommendations, appointments will be made of local men to act respectively as justices of the peace and constables.

FESTIVITIES AT MOYIE.

(Special to The Daily News.)

MOYIE, B. C., July 3.—Although Moyie departed from its usual custom of celebrating Dominion day by holding a joint celebration, there were lively times here. The morning was devoted to children's sports. The Knights of Columbus from Cranbrook joined the local members in celebrating the day across the lake, while the Scandinavian Society held a successful picnic at McBeth's ranch. At 9:00 all the children formed in procession and paraded around the town, carrying banners and boughs of maple leaves, halting opposite the Catholic and Presbyterian churches to sing "The Maple Leaf For Ever." Skipping contests, tug of war, races and baseball followed, every child receiving a prize. The children were then given a launch ride around the lake. While these sports were in progress , the train arrived from Cranbrook, with about 75 Knights of Columbus and their friends. A large number of launches were in waiting to carry them across the lake, where a very enjoyable time was spent. The Scandinavians also report having a splendid time. Although the weather looked a little doubtful in the morning by noon conditions improved. No rain fell to mar the day.

MARKETS

ABRUPT DECLINE ON NEW YORK EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, July 3—The long expected ruling of the interstate commerce commission on anthracite freight rates was the chief of the depressing influences which brought about an abrupt decline today in the prices on the stock exchange. The outcome was especially disappointing to the railroads most affected since they had expressed themselves as quite certain of a decision in their favor. It was said that the order for a reduction of the Lehigh Valley's rates might be followed by corresponding reductions by the other anthracite carrying lines. Stocks of all the coal roads were depressed although Erie showed the effect of the support which has been given constantly for several weeks and yielded only a small amount. The weakness of the coalers spread to the remainder of the list and most of the leading stocks lost from 1 to 2 points. Traders showed some genuine concern as to crop prospects today on account of reports from many agricultural districts which told of damage to grain from the intense heat. The greatest damage was reported from the west and the character of the reports was a factor of importance on shaping speculative opinion. Although the weather advices from Washington suggested more hopeful conditions in the near future bear traders declined to yield their ground. Another indirect influence that could hardly be accounted as encouraging is the latest phase in the so called Moroccan affair. All the European exchanges were oppressed by the situation. London's price for American shares reflected absolute weakness for the first time in many weeks. American shares were lower there with a decline of a point or more in Canadian Pacific, Northern Pacific, Union and Erie. Paris reported a decided break in rates and in Berlin the Bourse was quite unsettled. London's sales in the market were estimated at 20,000 shares and pressure from this was to some extent responsible for the heavy opening in the New York market..

The decline in stocks was largely the result of professional operations. There were indications of enforced liquidation and after the first sharp break the market was narrow and dull. Weakness of the Harriman stocks was ascribed to the decrease in the earnings of the roads for the year just closed compared with the previous period. It is not disputed, however, that both roads have earned their dividends with considerable to spare. In the industrial group there was pressure against United States Steel but that stock suffered less than other speculative favorites.

There was no sign of improvement in the bond market as a result of July disbursements of about $235,000,000. Prices were easier. Total sales, par value, $1,915,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

AN IMPORTANT CHANGE.

In the big conflagration which occurred in Toronto in April 1904, several hundred concerns, some of them large, were practically put out of business. In the former class E. W. Gillett company was numbered. A few months after the fire they moved into their fine, up-to-date factory which, at that time, looked to be sufficiently large for a good many years. The demand, however, for this company's goods has been so great that they are now forced to either erect a new plant or enlarge their present one. The latter could have been done as they owned adjoining vacant property, 50 feet frontage by 186 feet in depth, but even the additional space gained in this way would only likely be sufficient for the next four or five years. The managment of the company decided to deal with the question in a large way, and placed their property on the market. Within a few days a sale had been made to the old reliable W. R. Brock concern.

The Gillett company are now dealing with plans for a large, new plant which will be located somewhere on a railway, and this plant will likely consist of several buildings. Besides manufacturing Magic Baking Powder and their other well known specialties, it is the intention to manufacture boxes, tin cans, paper boxes and everything of this kind, as well as to grind corn and other raw materials used in the business. The company calculate it will take about 15 months to get their new plant into running order.

TRADE MARK DECISION.

British Columbia Court Ordered Delinquents to Change Name or Quit Business.

Half a dozen local men in Vancouver recently sought to secure a provincial charter under the name of Semi-ready, Limited, for the purpose of tailoring and selling high-class garments. The supreme court of British Columbia was promptly appealed to by the Semi-ready company of Montreal, and this judgment was recorded:

"This court doth order and adjudge that the name of the defendant be changed so that the name 'Semi-ready' do not appear therein and that until such change is made by the registrar of Joint Stock companies the defendant be restrained from carrying on any business in the province of British Columbia under the name of the 'Semi-ready, Limited,' similar to that carried on by the plaintiff."

The "Semi-ready" name covers articles of all kinds of men's wear, and for women's wear, and the registered rights are vested in the Semi-ready company, who tailor Semi-ready garments.

Alfred Wood, vice-president of the Semi-ready, Limited, and a director in other corporations in Montreal, said: "We got quick action. Most people do not. I am going to work hard for a business men's court, where transgressions against the honor and integrity of the moral business code will be dealt with by trained business men, by men of stainless business reputation. Every profession has such a domestic court, and the industrial or business profession is the highest type of occupation in any civilized country. Such a court would be business-like and quick, would be sound in its views and certain in its directions. It would not be hampered by hoary rules of practice and procedure, nor delayed by any admiration for the traditions of the kindergarden age of commerce."

HAMMER DRILLS

Probably no machine, from which such great results are expected and upon which so much depends, receives as much abuse and as little attention as the rock drill .

To successfully take the place of the rock drill, the hammer drill must be of such construction as to withstand a large part of the same kind of abuse.

The design of the Rand "B.C.-11" Telescope Feed Hammer Drill more nearly approaches rock drill construction than anything hitherto offered. The stroke of the piston is positive and powerful. There is no fluttering or sticking of the piston, it cannot reverse until it has completed a long, full powerful swinging blow with every oscillation of the valve.

This new tool is worth a trial.

WANY DISSENSIONS IN TURKISH CAMP

Free Masonry Causes Dsiturbance in Politics of Ottaman Empire—Jewish Control Now Issue.

Whatever may be the outcome of the dissention in the Young Turk camp, mainly caused by the real Turks revolting against those of Hebrew origin, one thing is clear—the old reactionary order of things will never return. There is considerable doubt as to the section that will eventually emerge on top in the perpetual scrimmage for power; but no matter which, the ideals on which the resulting government will act will be Young Turk ideals.

The retirement of David Bey from the ministry of finance has not wrecked the progressive movement. In fact there is greater calm since his departure. for he was in too great a hurry for a country that has hardly yet grown accustomed to a forward movement. Backed by the Jewish element and the force of the freemason organization, he had powerful support, but his self-aggressiveness made enemies where a more evenly-balanced minister might have produced more lasting results.

May Be Violence Yet

The upheaval has left oscillating movements within the Young Turk party, and there may yet be violence. But on the whole there are good results to show for the last few months. The cost of Arabian campaigning has been cut. For the future time and evolution will be relied on to Ottomanize the non-Ottoman tribes to a greater extent than force. Similarly, in Albania, there has been a modification of the policy of bulldosing the people with new ideas, and feeling is moderating in proportion, to the great advantage of administration. Compromise is at length entering into Turkish politics as into those of other lands.

Not that there is a lack of dangerous elements. There is ample confirmation for the report that Talaat Bey, ex-president of the Committee of Union and Progress and former minister of the interior, drew a revolver on a prominent opponent, but was overpowered by others in the nick of time. He is a leader of the extremists and has great influence among the freemasons whose principal lodges in Turkey are affiliated to Italian freemasonry and therefore aim directly at secret political influence and intrigue.

Free Masons Active

Refik Bey, a prominent member of the committee of union and progress which guided the revolution of July, 1908, freely bore testimony after that to the part played by freemasonry in the revolution. "It is true," he said, "that we found moral support in freemasonry, especially in Italian freemasonry. The two Italian lodges 'Macedonia Risorta' and 'Labor et Lux,' rendered us real service and offered us a refuge. We met there as masons, for many of us are freemasons; but in reality we met to organize ourselves.

"Besides, we chose a great part of our comrades from these lodges, which served our committee as a sifting machine by reason of the care with which they made their inquiries about individuals. At Constantinople the secret work that went on at Salonica was vaguely suspected, and police agents tried in vain to gain an entrance. Besides, these lodges applied to the Grand Orient of Italy, which promised, in case of need, to procure the intervention of the Italian embassy."

Engineered by Hebrews

That activity among the freemasons remains and is engineered by the Hebrew elements which, whether frankly Jews or professing Mohammedanism or freethinking, have all along been singularly and often unwisely aggressive in their desire for dominance. The real Turks mean to have a Turkish government, for though they will admit the able Jews in order to profit by their acumen, they are not more favorably disposed to Jewish control than Christian control.

And there is distrust of the freemasons because they, like most of the continental lodges, except a few in the north of Europe, are bent on republicanism, irreligion and what they call progress. There are cross-currents in places, but the statement stands good in the main.

Besides that, there is considerable distrust in certain Ottoman quarters, on the ground that Hebrew influence in the ministry will aid Zionism, and critical Turks believe the Zionists' real aim is to make their colonies in Asia Minor and Syria centres of foreign, particularly German, influence.

SANDOW'S MEDICAL ADVISERS LOSE DIPLOMAS

LONDON, July 3—British doctors are dividing into two camps on questions of professional conduct. It is an interesting situation for medical men in other lands, for the British doctor is more strictly hampered by rules and precedents than in any other country. Just as the British aristocrat considers every act in the light of "good form," so the doctor before doing anything compares it with his notions of "professional conduct."

British doctors are constrained sternly to shun advertisement as their British brethren, who are ruled by the General Medical council. The latest action of this powerful body is to try three members who had associated themselves with Sandow's method of physical culture. In the opinion of the council these men had been guilty of "infamous conduct," such as was unworthy of their profession, and must suffer accordingly.

Advertising Banned

Advertising, a virtue in commerce, is banned in the medical world here, and a particularly jealous eye is kept on all who come anywhere near practising it publicly. Besides that, the doctor is forbidden to work in conjunction with an unqualified man, or to carry on his practice in an open manner—that is to say, he must sit down and wait patiently for sufferers to come to him. But it is hard to define just where the line should be drawn, and few can say right away just what is "infamous conduct in a professional respect," but when a question arises—usually on the initiative of a jealous opponent—the council consider the facts, and against their decision there is no appeal.

These were the facts in this Sandow case. The three doctors found guilty of this "infamous conduct" examined and reported on the fitness of prospective Sandow clients to undergo physical treatment at the physical culture institute. Sandow advertised for clients, and claimed that his method tended to cure disease, so the medical council grew angry and descended on the three doctors who took a regular salary from Sandow's institute for their examination work.

One Struck Off

The result is one has been struck off the medical register and deprived of the right to practise as a regular practitioner; the other two have had sentence postponed. Also, Sandow now has to rely on advisers outside the registered and qualified man, though nobody denies that physical culture tends to cure some conditions of disease.

What annoys many British doctors under these circumstances is the fact that British hospitals may have a board of laymen and may issue advertisements or appeals for funds, claiming to cure diseases and naming the doctors engaged—which Sandow did not do—yet there will be no punishment.

My little girls wear bloomer suits, and I find the elastic corset laces better to use in the knees of the bloomers than the regular elastic.

Many do not know laces are often made with a straight thread at the top over which the lace may be drawn to make a scant ruffle.

Paste pieces of velvet soft side up, into the heels of your shoes, bottom and back, and you will find your stocking darning reduced by a big per cent.

Put a little borax in the water in which you will wash table covers, doilies, towels, etc., having red borders, as the borax keeps the red clear and bright.

Ether will remove perspiration stains, but should be mixed with ammonia and water. One fourth ether, one fourth ammonia and one half water is a good mixture. Rinse and place in the sun.
