NO REDUCTIONS IN REPARATIONS FRANCE'S FINAL

Poincare Definitely on Behalf of Nation Stands on Treaty Clause

ONE OBJECTOR CAN BAR A REDUCTION

As Long as Present Cabinet Lasts, That Will Be France's Policy

PARIS, Oct. 28.—An official communique, written by Premier Poincare and issued at the French foreign office this evening, reiterates the French government's determination to refuse to agree to any reductions of the German debt as fixed by the London conference in May, 1921.

New Body a Mere Wing

The communique insist that a commission of experts, organized within the scope of the reparation commission to investigate Germany's capacity for payment, has no authority to make any reduction in Germany's debt. It says it considers that such a commission will practically be a mere addition to the present staff of experts of the reparation commission.

In quoting the Versailles treaty the communique says the reparation commission itself has no power to grant any reduction, the treaty stipulating such a measure must be decided by the unanimous vote of the nations interested.

The text of the communique follows:

"The French government, in its reply to the British government, covering the creation of a committee of experts, bases its authority upon paragraph 7, annex 2 to part 8 of the Treaty of Versailles, permitting the constitution of such committees.

Commission Has Full Power

"This paragraph empowers the commission to nominate all functionaries, agents and employees necessary to the execution of its functions, to create committees, the members of which are not necessarily chosen from the commission, and to give such functionaries, agents and employees full powers and authority.

"Thus the reparation commission, acting within the limits of its powers, may designate such experts, the help of which appears necessary, in order to obtain the information it requires.

"Thus this in no way implies on the part of the commission any abandonment of its powers, which it retains integrally.

"On the other hand, paragraph 9, annex 2 to part 8 of the treaty, permits the commission to hear all arguments and testimonials presented by Germany upon any questions relating to the latter's capacity for payment.

"The above paragraph interprets that part of article 234 in which it is said that the commission must study from time to time the resources of Germany and, after having given the representatives of that country equitable facilities to be heard, has full power to extend the period or modify the methods of payments fixed by article 233.

"Thus Germany, although not represented upon the committee of experts, may be heard by them and present all arguments and evidence, the latter not necessarily from Germany, but also neutral and even allied sources. The experts, or a group of experts, can in no case infringe upon the powers of the commission, which are fixed by article 234, which specifically states that the commission alone can extend delays and modify the mode of payments to be made in conformity with article 238.

Cannot Cancel Debts

"Article 233 itself stipulates that in the event Germany should fail to meet her obligations and payments as scheduled by the commission all the balance remaining unpaid must be carried forward to be received in following years, according to decisions of the commission, but with this the powers of the commission end.

"Furthermore, according to article 233, the allied and associated governments may even intervene in the settlement of the yearly balances remaining unpaid, and, although the commission has the authority to carry such balances to following years, it cannot cancel such debts, such action being determined by the allied and associated governments.

"The results of the interpretations of the above text are that although the commission may determine the methods of payment of German debts, extend the periods and modify the methods of such payments it cannot make any reduction whatsoever, such reductions only being granted by the unanimity of the creditor nations.

Will Accept No Changes

"Thus France will not accept that a committee of experts make any changes in the amount of the debt as fixed May 1, 1921, and will give its consent to no reduction whatsoever in the amount of the obligations of Germany as determined by the reparations commission in May, 1921."

The above document was written entirely by M. Poincare in his own hand and turned over to the foreign office. It was intended as a definite and final statement concerning the French government's position in regard to the forthcoming meeting of the committee of experts, and it is said there is certain to be no alterations in it as long as the present cabinet remains in charge of France's foreign policy.

BREWERS MAY CONSOLIDATE

Proposition to the Governmen Stated to Be a Likelihood

VICTORIA, Oct. 28.—British Columbia brewers are expected to appear before Attorney-General A. M. Manson with an amended plan for the consolidation of all breweries within the province.

The brewers have been holding a series of conferences since their last visit to Mr. Manson and, while there are still a few points that have to be straightened out before all of them will be thoroughly satisfied, a fairly definite proposition will be ready to submit to Mr. Manson and the liquor board before the legislature meets next week. After the first conference with Mr. Manson a split arose between the brewery interests and for a while it seemed as though it would be impossible to restore harmony, but the course seems smooth again, and when the consolidation plan goes before Mr. Manson the next time it will probably bear the assent of all the brewers.

It would surprise no one if someone came forward during the session of the house with a proposal for the government to take over all the breweries. Such a measure would have the support of not a few influential interests who have the ear of the government, according to reports in circulation here during the past week.

If the government did take over the breweries and run them itself, absolute control of beer distribution would be effected. Such control might be obtained just as effectively through the consolidation plan that the brewers have been working on; but then again it might not, and for that reason the contention that the government should buy or lease the breweries has gained support.

Inquiry last night revealed the fact that the Nelson brewery, in fact all the breweries in the province, would be affected if the above scheme is carried out. George Hawthorne, manager of the local brewing company, states that this is a matter which has been under consideration by the brewers for some time.

VICTORIA, Oct. 28.—Lieutenant-Governor Walter Nichol will address a house composed of 25 Liberals, 14 Conservatives, three Independents, two Labor representatives and one Socialist when he delivers the speech from the throne tomorrow afternoon at the opening of the fourth session of the 15th parliament of British Columbia.

J. B. Clearihue, member for Victoria City, will move the speech from the throne and Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith will second it.

Boy Scouts Unearth Watch and Revolver of Slain Traveler

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 28.—Buried in freshly-fallen leaves, 40 feet over the mountainside, directly below the spot on the road where his hat was found, Homer Lindsay's watch and the revolver believed to have been used to slay him 10 days ago were discovered yesterday by boy scouts.

The important discovery, police claim, satisfies them that Lindsay was robbed and shot by a highwayman, as stated by the police who interviewed the murdered man on his deathbed, and the crime will be investigated from other angles if the officials' suspicion of a motive can be confirmed.

CALGARY, Oct. 28.—A harbinger of winter with much grain unthreshed in Alberta came tonight when the mercury at the local weather bureau registered 8 degrees above zero.

CHILDREN DRUNK ON PAVEMENTS OF DUESSELDORF

Plundering and Violence Throughout Ruhr Includes Liquor Stores

SEVERAL ARE KILLED; MOBS OPEN PRISONS

French Order Officials to Function Under Separatist Government

DUESSELDORF, Oct. 28.—Plundering and violence have suddenly become so general and menacing throughout the Ruhr that both the French and German authorities are beginning to realize that something drastic must be done to remove the economic causes immediately.

Police vs. Armed Mobs

The pillaging of stores continued Saturday night in the suburbs, regardless of the curfew law, and the mobs were so rampant today that the Duesseldorf police, who have been disarmed, dare not enter the district to face the looters, who carry modern rifles, pistols and hand grenades.

Several were killed or wounded overnight.

The plunderers emptied a large liquor store in Knellerstrausse in the night, and dawn found dozens of men, women and children scattered along the streets, apparently dead. An examination disclosed that all of them were suffering from a severe form of alcoholism.

The systematic pillaging of a large sugar plant in the suburb of Flingern began about noon.

Raid the Jails

Early this morning several hundred men broke into the jail at Goreshem, another suburb, and released 14 criminals.

Similar instances of lawlessness are reported in almost every town in the Ruhr.

The French superior delegate of the Rhineland high commission, according to a report, has issued a formal order to the town officials that they must continue to function under the new government, as the Separatists have been recognized as the de facto administrators of the town of Trier, and all attempts to change the present form of government would be repressed by arms.

French-Belgic Troops Guard

French and Belgian troops continue to guard the public buildings in all the towns where Separatists are installed, and the maintenance of order has devolved largely upon them in some cities, particularly Coblenz, where the green-capped Separatist police have been withdrawn entirely.

A republic has been proclaimed in the villages of Kirn, Nonsenger and Honderheim, in the Coblenz district.

Officials Seek Sanctuary

COLOGNE, Oct. 28. — The city officials of various towns held by the Separatists are flocking to Cologne for safety. Owing chiefly to Premier Baldwin's Plymouth speech, disapproving of any dismemberment of Germany, word has gone out from official British circles that the Separatists here in the British zone are classed as what might be termed "undesirables."

Berlin government officials have arrived, it is said, and are holding conferences with those exiled officials, in an endeavor to determine on a plan of action for the future.

Farmers Repel Raids

MAYENCE, Oct. 28. — The Separatists, who have repeatedly endeavored to capture the Mayence city hall, but were repulsed, have been raiding the farms and requisitioning cattle, potatoes and other food stuffs for their forces. Many raids were successful, but when the raiders entered Bousscheim they encountered armed resistance.

In the fight which ensued six Separatists were killed by peasants. Three other raiders were beaten to death in the fields. Eighteen Separatists were wounded, and two of them will probably die.

The Separatists retaliated, setting fire to haystacks.

Krupp-French Agreement

DUESELDORF, Oct. 28. — An agreement has been reached between the Krupps and the French economic authorities for the continuation of the operations of the Krupp plant, and the delivery of reparations coal to the allies.

The French, although extremely reticent, admit that the agreement is well under way, if not actually concluded.

HOME BANK HEADS IN DOCK TOGETHER

Ten Directors and Officials Will Be Tried Collectively; May Make Inquiry Unnecessary

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—Conspiracy charges launched in the assizes Friday against the directors and officials of the suspended Home Bank of Canada will result in the trial of the 10 men collectively. Had the proceedings been kept in the police court, they would have been tried individually.

It is also probable that the investigation of the affairs of the bank will be carried to such lengths that there may be no need of a further inquiry into the failure.

CHIEF AND HOTELMAN ARE FREED BY JURY

In Ten Minutes They Are Found Not Guilty of Conspiracy and Robbery by Violence

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28. — Alexander Martin, a former chief of police at Selkirk, and Robert Ramsay, proprietor of a Selkirk hotel, were found not guilty by a jury here yesterday afternoon, on the charge of robbery with violence, and conspiracy. The jury was out less than 10 minutes.

The charge grew out of a liquor deal, whereby Gaston Gatin and George Conley agreed to sell to Ramsay a quantity of liquor. According to police information, the men delivered the liquor to Ramsay's hotel. While in the act of unloading the liquor, Chief Martin appeared and arrested the three, taking them to the lockup. Gatin and Conley were put in the cells. An hour and a half later they were released, but the liquor was gone.

The crown charged the two men with the theft of the liquor.

TEN MEDALS TO THIS PROVINCE OUT OF SIXTEEN

British Columbia Makes Almost Clean Sweep in Empire Apples

CLEANS THE BOARDS AT MANCHESTER SHOW

Associated Growers Behind Prize-Winning Exhibit; Wade Cables Barrow

VICTORIA, Oct. 28. — British Columbia apples made pretty much of a clean sweep at the Imperial fruit show, Manchester, which opened yesterday, it was announced today in a cable to Hon. E. D. Barrow, minister of agriculture, from F. C. Wade, K.C., agent-general for British Columbia in London.

British Columbia fruit captured 10 out of the 16 gold medals, in competition with apples from every part of the British Empire. There were 112 boxes of fruit exhibited by the province alone in the competition in this class.

Beside taking most of the gold medals, British Columbia has taken the gold medal for having the best apples of dessert variety exhibited by any part of the British Empire, including Great Britain, Mr. Wade cabled.

Wins Cups Also

British Columbia fruit also today won the Daily Mail medal at the Manchester show, and the Goodwin silver cup and the Poupart special prize in the overseas section.

One hundred boxes, showing five varieties, are also shown at the exhibition as a noncompetitive display.

The prize-winning shipment, consisting of 232 boxes altogether, was sent to Britain and entered by the Associated Growers of British Columbia.

Seven Firsts to Canada

OTTAWA, Oct. 28.—The awards to Canadian entries at the Imperial fruit show which opened Friday at Manchester, England, were received by cable by the minister of agriculture Saturday. In the overseas section, four first prizes were awarded to British Columbia growers, and two to Nova Scotia growers, while one first prize went to Quebec.

The prizes won by the Associated Growers of British Columbia, limited, were: First in Wealthy, McIntosh, first in the groups composed of Jonathan, Cox's Orange, Spitzenburg, Newton, Wagener, King, Spy and Greening; also first in the group "any other variety."

In the British Empire section the first place for "any dessert variety" went to the Associated Growers of British Columbia. In the same section, for any cooking variety, the first three prizes went to English exhibitors, while the fourth position went to the Associated Growers of British Columbia.

Best in Overseas

Three special prizes were won by the Associated Growers of British Columbia. The Associated Growers secured the Daily Mail overseas gold cup, £50, for the best exhibition in the overseas section; the Goodwin, limited, silver cup, £15, for the best entry by any British Columbia cooperative organization; and the Poupart, limited, prize of £10 in gold for the best British exhibition in the overseas section.

The Coldstream ranch of Vernon, B.C., got third place in the class of late culinary variety.

FISHING SCHOONERS OPEN SERIES TODAY

Will Sail Out of Halifax Harbor and Then Do a Triangular Thirty-four Miles With Windward Beat

HALIFAX, Oct. 28.—At 9 o'clock tomorrow morning Bluenose, international champion of the Canadian and United States fishing fleets for the past two years, and Columbia, Gloucester challenger for that honor, will be at the starting line to get away over the Halifax race course for the first of the series to decide the ocean classic for the fourth time since its institution in 1920.

The only thing that might interfere with tomorrow's race would be lack of wind. The Columbia was given a tryout today, but there was little wind, and at times absolute calm.

The course for the races starting tomorrow will consist of six miles straight out of Halifax harbor, and about 34 miles of a triangular course, chosen to give at least one leg of windward work under the wind prevailing at the start of the race. The time limit will be six hours.

The championship goes to the vessel winning two or three races.

SHIPPERS MUST AGREE TO INDEMNIFY OWNERS

Chairman Boyd of Grain Board Makes Satisfactory Agreement With United States Association

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28.—Satisfaction with the arrangements they had been able to make with the United States vessel owners regarding the carrying of Canadian grain under the provisions of the Inland Waters Freight Rates act, was expressed by Leslie H. Boyd, chairman of the board of grain commissioners, who returned today with Commissioner M. Snow from Cleveland.

It only remains for the Canadian shippers to acquiesce in the agreement made at Cleveland, Mr. Boyd said, when all the United States boats that can be utilized will be available. The commissioners were assured of reasonable rates.

The two items of the agreement which require the assent of the Canadian shippers are:

Two Items of Agreement

1. That should the Canadian shipper fail to register with the board of grain commissioners a copy of his charter of any United States boat at the time that charter is made, he will indemnify the United States owner for any loss which might arise from the nonfiling of such charter.

2. Having filed the charter at the time it was made, the Canadian shipper undertakes to indemnify the United States owners, through the board of grain commissioners, for any loss which might occur through any proceedings which might be taken against the boat.

Mr. Boyd said he expected a meeting of Canadian shippers would be held tomorrow afternoon. He had already seen some of the larger shippers, and they were quite satisfied to sign the agreement, he said.

DICTATORSHIP FIRES OPENING GUNS FOR RULE

Saxon Premier Called Upon to Resign, Claims State Diet Is Supreme

BERLIN WILL APPOINT NEW CIVIL GOVERNOR

Bavarian Answer Has Not Yet Been Reported to Order to Reinstate Military

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—The Ebert-Stresemann government fired the opening guns last night, in its battle for unchallenged authority within the federation of the German states, by dispatching an ultimatum to Dresden, demanding the immediate retirement of Dr. Zeigner's Socialist - Communistic government, and simultaneously demanding of the Bavarian government the restoration of the Berlin government's military authority within that state.

Zeigner Recalcitrant

DRESDEN, Germany, Oct. 28. — Premier Zeigner tonight notified the central government at Berlin that the Saxon ministry had voted to disregard Chancellor Stresemann's ultimatum calling for its immediate resignation.

The Saxon government's reply sets forth that the Berlin government's procedure is wholly without foundation in law, and not warranted by the political situation. It declares that the Saxon diet is the sole tribunal to determine the issue, which is now to be put up to it. Its findings will then be communicated to the Berlin government.

The Manifesto

One of the manifestos issued by the Saxon Communist party, with the approval of the Communist ministers, which was partly responsible for Berlin's action, contained the following:

"We Communists declare that we whistle at the prohibition of the centures by General von Mueller, and that we whistle at any other decree that may be issued. We summon the workers to reply to the prohibition of the centuries by forming innumerable centuries. We will mobilize the workers, and if the generals of industry want to fight, the workers will be ready."

Ebert's Decree

BERLIN, Oct. 28. — Immediately on receipts of Dr. Zeigner's reply refusing to comply with the central government's ultimatum, Chancellor Stresemann announced that the government would appoint a civil governor for Saxony. He will be empowered to administer Saxony's civil affairs until the present Communist-Socialist ministry is replaced by a parliamentary government acceptable to the federal authorities.

It is semi-officially stated that the appointment of an imperial civil governor for Saxony was made by virtue of a decree issued by President Ebert today authorizing the chancellor to dismiss the Saxon government, and, if necessary, any other Saxon officials.

Five members of the O-5 were reported missing. The Abarangez was undamaged.

In the belief that the five men missing went down with the submarine divers immediately began efforts to recover their bodies.

HOME-BREWED WINE MAY HAVE TO BE SEALED

Rude Shock Is Threatened for Housewife Who Makes Her Own Drink

COURT CASE SHOWS UNIQUE SITUATION

Anything Over One Per Cent Should Be Sealed by Liquor Board

Sad, sad news is threatened for the householder who is in the habit of laying aside just a little cherry wine or other unorthodox beverage for the Christmas dinner or the wedding anniversary, or anything of that kind—of course just for friends.

In fact, the whole fundamental principle of home winemaking throughout the province is in jeopardy, with the prospect that all makers of wines or other beverages must in the near future have a government liquor board seal placed on every bottle, or jar or can.

Landed In Court

So acute has become the situation that a conference has been called between Hon. Jacques Bureau, minister of inland revenue in the Dominion government, and Hon. A. M. Manson, attorney-general for British Columbia.

Some time ago the department of inland revenue issued an order that householders in any Canadian province could manufacture liquor and beer for their own consumption by notifying the department to this effect in writing. The idea was largely to protect the householder who makes her own rhubarb wine or the citizen who has his own recipe.

Then Comes Police Raid

Japanese at Vancouver immediately sent the required notices, and sake, the Japanese pride in drinks, was made on a large scale. But the police raided the places where it was being made. The circumstances gave the police department a real problem, and the matter was referred to the attorney-general's department. The result was an order to arrest the parties concerned for keeping unsealed liquor. Fifteen were arraigned recently, and one, to make a test case, was fined $50.

In the trial it was stated that had the accused Japanese, after having notified the minister of inland revenue of their intention to make sake, also notified the British Columbia liquor board the latter would have seen that seals were placed upon it.

Anything Over One Per Cent

The seriousness of the situation is seen in a statement by Police Inspector George Sutherland of Vancouver police. "The same rule applies to the housewife making rhubarb wine," he asserts. "As soon as any homemade brew attains a strength greater than 1 per cent alcohol the liquor board must be requested to come and seal it."

Unless the coming conference between Hon. Jacques Bureau and Hon. A. M. Manson changes things, it looks like a busy time ahead for the liquor board.

Police Chief Long, asked about the situation last night, stated that he had been apprised of it, but had as yet received no communication from the provincial authorities.

FINDS THIEF IN STORE AT CASH REGISTER

Daring Attempt to Rob a Baker Street Shop Made Yesterday Afternoon

PROPRIETOR GIVES CHASE IMMEDIATELY

Burglar Escapes in Alley and Manages to Make Good His Escape

A daring attempt to loot the Hipperson hardware store on Baker street was made yesterday afternoon, shortly after 1 o'clock.

Mr. Hipperson had occasion to visit his store, and when he opened the front door he found the thief at the cash register. He had left the back door open when he entered, and promptly made a hurried exit with Mr. Hipperson hot after him. The chase was fast and—brief. For the pursued man, who had evidently carefully judged the surroundings before he entered or else was quite familiar with them, dodged in between two buildings and disappeared.

Saw Him Again

Undertaking a search of the vicinity Mr. Hipperson saw the individual at the Strathcona hotel a few minutes later, but the burglar had also been keeping an eye on him and, though he was promptly chased, he again got away.

Police Chief Long was notified and several suspects considered. One of them tallied remarkably well with the description given by Mr. Hipperson, but the latter was unable to identify him. The suspect stated that he had come here late yesterday afternoon from a nearby center, and his story is being investigated.

So rapidly did the burglar get away when Mr. Hipperson entered the store that he failed to secure anything, and that makes detection very difficult.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 28.—(By Canadian Press Cable, via Reuters.)—King Albert of Belgium Saturday received the members of the Canadian economic mission which is now completing a tour of France.

The king said Belgium was sympathetically grateful to Canada, which had contributed much to the success of the allied armies in the war. The Canadians were good soldiers, he said, and held even the most difficult Arras regions.

Belgium was compelled to import most of its grain, added King Albert, who commented on the possibilities of Canadian trade with Belgium. He was happy to realize that the Canadian exhibition train would enable Canada to cement by business relations the ties between the two countries.

Senator Beaubien, chief of the Canadian mission, thanked King Albert for the honor accorded the Canadians and dwelled on his majesty's heroic part in the war. The senator also testified to the gracious and generous hospitality received everywhere in Belgium.

FRANCE CANNOT ALLOW CHANGE IN COMMISSION

Reparation Body Must Not Be Replaced or Have Powers Lessened

ANYTHING NEW MUST BE GOVERNED BY IT

Poincare in Sunday Oration Welcomes States—but No Reduction!

SAMPIGNY, France, Oct. 28. — Premier Poincare, in a speech here today, declared that France would refuse to allow the reparations commission to be divested of its functions or replaced by some other body. He said that France could not agree to any reduction in the German debt.

The premier asserted that he welcomed United States representation on a committee charged by the reparation commission to investigate Germany's capacity to pay, but that every act of the commission must remain within the terms laid down by the Versailles treaty.

The premier, who delivered a long speech at the unveiling of a monument to the war dead of the village in which his country residence is situated, said:

Commission Good Enough

"We constantly are being asked to proceed to fresh estimates of Germany's capacity to pay. What does that mean? If it means by a roundabout way to reach a diminution of the German debt, that is a consummation we are resolute not to favor.

"If it means an estimate of what German can pay tomorrow and in the near future, nothing is more unnecessary than such an exchange.

"The commission on reparations is charged by the treaty with such a task, and there are no grounds to take one of its most important functions from it."

M. Poincare said the commission was above suspicion; it had shown itself competent and impartial; it was obliged to give Germany, with each decision, a fair opportunity to present her observations.

"It has the good fortune," the premier continued, "to have at each meeting a semi-official representative of the United States, who is a man of the highest sense of justice and absolute integrity. Its British, Italian and Belgian delegates are most distinguished men, and its president — none could say it lacked justice and experience.

"Germany has just resumed contact with the commission, and the reich delegates will undoubtedly soon be heard by it. Let it work and fulfill its mandate."

Baldwin's "Supplication"

Having thus stated what he considered the position and value of the reparation commission, M. Poincare took up the "invitation and supplication" addressed to him by Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, the British prime minister—"a courteous invitation to an international conference, or a commission of experts placed under the commission on reparations, and a friendly supplication to reflect thrice before rejecting these propositions."

"As Mr. Baldwin's speech dates over thrice 28 hours," M. Poincare continued, "I have taken time to meditate upon it—more than thrice.

"We also, like Mr. Baldwin, hope that the United States consents not to keep itself completely disassociated from the affairs of Europe. We believe the stronger the conference, the financial and moral solidarity between the old and new continents, the better will the cause of humanity be served.

"But what could such an international conference discuss? How would it be composed? What relations of collaboration or dependence would it have as regards governments, or the commission on reparations? What would be its powers?

Extend Present Machinery

"If, in truth, the British government is not thinking of asking us to make Germany come and sit at the conference of which it speaks; if it has simply, like ourselves, a desire for obtaining the cooperation of the United States, it is easy for us to reach an understanding on the idea already considered at Paris, at Washington, Brussels and Rome.

"The commission on reparations is there. It makes investigations, experts make inquiries daily; it can, without the slightest innovation, ask the semi-official delegate of the United States to nominate as many experts as he desires, to examine, with the French, English and Belgians, the present capacity for payment by Germany, and to demand that the reich draw up a program of financial restoration, and a detailed plan of reparations, without going outside the treaty."

Here the premier seemed to have reached the point he desired to emphasize.

Cannot Reduce Influence.

"We cannot," he said, "accept that the commission be dispossessed of its functions, or replaced by any organism in which our share of influence, already inferior to our interests, would be still further reduced. We have reached the limit of our concessions. We shall go no farther."

M. Poincare denied that France had been instrumental in arousing internal troubles in Germany.

"We have always scrupulously remained outside the internal affairs of Germany," declared the premier, "and the allegations of the German government, scandalously spread in Europe and the new world, will not obscure the truth from impartial spectators. Whatever Germany's future constitution may be, whatever may be the relations between the states composing it, we shall never think of violating the conscience of the population. We nourish no plan of annexation, but we shall never renounce our claim to permanent guarantees for security."

Right to Security

M. Poincare then dealt with Germany's war preparations in aviation and other ways, saying France would not sacrifice her rights to reparations any more than her claims to security. He defended the occupation of the Ruhr, saying that without that, Germany today would be able to refuse payments, and continue to enrich herself through her factories using Ruhr coal, whereas it was now to her interest to pay her creditors at the earliest possible time in order to hasten the evacuation of the Ruhr.

"All we ask of our allies," said M. Poincare, "is observation of the treaty they signed as well as we. The schedule of May 5, 1921, is definite, and it cannot be modified without our consent. The treaty lays down no reduction that can be granted Germany without unanimity on the part of the creditors, and France is too much tried to adhere to any reduction."

Question of Gratitude

The premier declared:

"Each of the allies, struggling for the others, struggled also and above all, for himself. We have given as much as we have received, and we can claim gratitude equal to that we owe our friends. * * * * * We will no longer remain exposed to fresh aggressions on our eastern frontier, which President Wilson one day very justly called the frontier of liberty."

MAY CARVE NEW KOOTENAY SEAT

Trail Riding May Furnish the Material; Many Kootenay Changes

VICTORIA, Oct. 29.—Fast as government members arrive they are called into caucus to determine the course of action for session which opens tomorrow. The first evidence of a difference of opinion is on the personal property tax, for the abolition of which the Conservative opposition is said to be unanimous. Some Liberals would like to meet wishes of their constituents in getting rid of the tax, but the government needs money, and can offer no alternative to replace the loss of revenue if the personal property tax is abolished.

The chief topic of discussion is the redistribution bill, which also does not please quite all government followers. It is hinted that it is the objective of some to gerrymander even further than the new bill goes, so as to put out of the way certain Labor members who jeopardize the prospects of Liberal ridings. Up to the present there has been a tacit understanding that no Labor or Independent member would vote against the government in a want of confidence. But as this is probably the last session, it is hinted they would show their teeth. The government is not enamored of Sam Guthrie of Newcastle, and he enjoys baiting some of the cabinet ministers.

Of chief interest to the interior is the combination of Trail and Rossland, and Kaslo and Slocan—which incidentally will eliminate Lister and Esling—and the creation of a new riding known as Kootenay, composed of the portions of Trail riding which gave a Liberal majority at the last election.

While one of the purposes of redistribution may be conceived to be to lessen Conservative seats, it is said the government's chief aim is to get rid of Pooley of Esquimalt and Esling of Rossland, the foomer of whom was active in probing the liquor administration, while the latter specialized on the Pacific Great Eastern administration. Pooley's seat is to be thrown into Victoria. The cabinet would like to get rid of Colonel Lister, too.

MacLean for Oak Bay?

It is said Dr. MacLean will run in Oak Bay, feeling confident that Henniger can carry the combined seats of Grand Forks and Greenwood.

Commenting on redistrbiution, W. K. Esling, the Rossland member, said: "The government may change the geographical boundaries of electoral ridings, but it cannot change public opinion against its reckless and unwarranted expenditures, which have resulted in taxes so high as to discourage the farmer and stifle mineral and industrial activity, which is the life of the Kootenays."

MAY MAKE SMUGGLING WITHIN EXTRADITION

Conference Next Month May Be Widened to Take In the Whole Problem of Border

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28—The week of November 26 has been agreed upon as the date for the Ottawa conference of Canadian and United States officials on prohibition.

It was indicated yesterday that the conference would be broader in scope than originally planned. Treasury officials desire a discussion of the whole border problem of smuggling, and probably will propose that the smuggling of either liquor or narcotics be put on the list of extraditable crimes.

BRITISH LINES CHARGE CANADIAN FLOUR MORE

Grain Inquiry Hears Evidence of Discrimination Between Canuck and Yankee Grist from States Ports

MONTREAL, Oct. 28.—Discrimination by British steamers against Canadian flour exported overseas when such flour was milled in Canada and when shipped out of American ports, as compared with flour milled in the United States from Canadian wheat, was a complaint which S. C. Cornell, secretary of the Canadian National Millers' association, made to the royal grain inquiry commission sitting here yesterday.

The flour shipped out of Montreal was charged at a rate of 27 cents a 100 pounds, against a 18-cent rate out of New York. Even if the Canadian miller sent his flour to New York for shipment from there he would be charged 21 cents.

This, he said, was done by the steamer agents in New York representing British boats at the request of Montreal shipping interests. He added that the matter was being taken up at the Imperial conference.

Grain Is Changed

James Carruthers, one of the leading grain men of this city, testified that Canadian hard wheat was substituted in shipments going through the United States in some mysterious manner and the Canadian good wheat used for bread while the inferior United States grain went overseas from American ports as being first-class Canadian wheat.

APPRECIATE THE BANK PUBLICITY

Coal Creek Depositors of Home Bank Write Thanking The Daily News

Coal Creek, B.C., Oct. 27, 1923.

To the Editor of The Daily News:

Sir—At a meeting of the depositors of the defunct Home bank, held at Coal Creek on Thursday, October 25, I was requested to write to you conveying our appreciation and thanks for the space and publicity you have given to our meetings and reports.

We fully realize that without the services of the press, we would have extreme difficulty in impressing upon the general public the gravity, not only of the situation in which we find ourselves, but of the position of all depositors in all chartered banks in Canada, and we fully appreciate the services you have rendered us in this regard.

Most depositors, like ourselves, place deposits in banks for safe keeping, and it comes as something of a shock to be now informed that savings deposits are investments, with preferred guarantees, it is true, but still evidently with such risks attached as are not fully appreciated by the average depositor until forcibly impressed upon him by such a national calamity as the Home bank failure may yet prove to be.

Again thanking you, and expressing the hope that you may continue to broadcast information affecting Home bank depositors,

R. JOHNSTONE,
Secretary for Coal Creek Home Bank Depositors.

SEVENTEEN POUND SALMON IS LANDED

A salmon weighing 17¼ pounds was caught on Saturday by L. F. Gilbert in the main lake. In addition, Mr. Gilbert landed four smaller ones, and had the disappointment of seeing two even larger than the big one he caught, get away. One of the two getting away took 350 feet of line with it, while the other got away with 150.

The big salmon has been presented for a dinner by the Rod and Gun club.

PUPILS SHOULD BE TAUGHT TO THINK RIGHTLY

High Schools Not Functioning; Pupils a Product of Process, It Is Declared

PUBLIC SCHOOL COURSE CROWDED

"Why Raise a Race of Human Parrots?" Asks Principal Rogers

"I would state after an experience of 11 years, that in the high schools as institutions we are not functioning and cannot function because smothered between an overloaded public school system an a tyrannous university," declared L. V. Rogers, principal of the Nelson high school, in his address to the teachers at the West Kootenay Teachers' conference on Saturday morning. He was speaking on the subject "What We Ought to Expect of Pupils Entering the High School."

The public school course was overloaded, he stated, and it was non-functioning, because of the difficulty arising through the distinguishing of utilities and non-utilities. It seemed as though the schools were trying to give something of everything to everybody. Every subject must be taught or some budding genius would be missed. Nature study, for instance, must be taught lest a new Burbank be lost. The whole result of the above plan, it was contended, was that nothing was given, and instead of tapping a new spring a reservoir was being filled which would ultimately become stagnant.

Game of Chance

The pupil continued for three, four or five years, stuffing and cramming, and the course developed into a game of chance, in which the question was one of hearing and reading facts and then—"How many can you spread on paper." The course, stated Mr. Rogers, was loaded up with everything. If anything in education was worth while, it was worth striving for, and the effort was as valuable as the result.

The high school should be an institution for mental development; for inculcating habits of right thinking; for the laying of a foundation which, with a university training, would enable the building of a life suitable to what circumstances and experience might possess.

Professional Courses

Mr. Rogers did not think that the courses of the public school or the high school specifically prepared the pupil for work in the community or any public work. These trainings were for the professional courses.

What should be expected of a pupil entering the high school, he declared, was an ability to think, combined with a certain mental alertness—a desire to accomplish something, a craving for progress, and a desire for mental pursuit. The high school was justified in expecting these things. Mr. Rogers stated that he was not fault-finding, and that the members of the educational department were not infallible. They were striving for the best and were victims of circumstances. The age seemed one of flux or chaos, where all were drifting to follow a principle of least resistance.

Public School Course Unchanged

The primary thing for a pupil entering the high school was an ability to think, and at present it was possible after much effort to get the pupils in a form of mind to study a problem of arithmetic. Mr. Rogers emphasized that he was not fault-finding with the public school teacher—he was formerly one himself. The public school course 30 years ago, he said, carried just the same number of subjects as at present, and they were thrown at the pupils in the same manner today.

Mr. Rogers, as an instance, spoke of the Constitutional act and the Quebec act which were forced upon the students in the public schools. He told of his struggles when first learning these acts, which were eventually drilled into his head. "Today we are still endeavoring to feed that stuff to seven, eight, nine, 10 and 11-year-olds. We do not expect to find pupils entering the high schools with an ability to think. An endeavor should be made to give every boy and girl an education, so as to have better men and women, but if the educational system is not attempting to make the pupils think, if it continues to bring up a race of human parrots, what better will the common people be?"

Urges Mental Arithmetic

J. C. Robson of Rossland supplemented the remarks made by Mr. Rogers, and stated that the latter had struck the keynote when he had stated that the boys and girls should be made to do their own thinking. A remedy for the poor arithmetic showing could be found in daily mental arithmetic practice.

George E. Sparkes of the Hume school stated that the public school course was just as overcrowded as was the high school course. Arithmetic, he stated, was given more time than any other subject in the public school courses.

Need Parents' Assistance

R. Smillie of the Nelson high school asserted that all teachers knew it was their duty to make the children think. They were, however, forced to teach classes of divided abilities. The public looked for big successes. It took time to make pupils think clearly and well. The public wished good pass lists, and for this reason classes were drilled, with the consequence that they traveled in a circle. As soon as the public appreciated the fact that all pupils were not of the same intelligence, then the teachers would be glad to spend more time in teaching instead of in drilling.

W. Garner of Trail stated that one of the main causes for lack of achievement was that the program was entirely overloaded. In trying to keep up with the times, the boys and girls were put through high and public school much too young.

Motion Pictures Detrimental

Motion pictures and dances, he held, were detrimental to the students. Today 90 per cent of the stars in movieland could be named by school children, he contended, and the pictures were absurd, giving a wrong ideal of life. Their minds were filled with trash, and it was thus impossible for them to make progress. Parents of pupils were to blame for failures, and it was impossible for teachers to obtain successes without the sympathy of the parents shown in the home. One hundred per cent passes were an excellent thing, and were possible to get if the intelligent character of the student was neglected.

Miss E. Hanna of Central school, Nelson, stated that there was necessity to appeal to the honor of the children at the start of he term, and if it got "their square, square," the efficiency of the class would be raised mentally, physically and morally.

Claims Course Not Too Big

"Some say that the public school course is overloaded; some, that the pupils' brains are not of the right variety; but there is no such thing as a non-thinking child," said H. McArthur, principal of Nelson Central school.

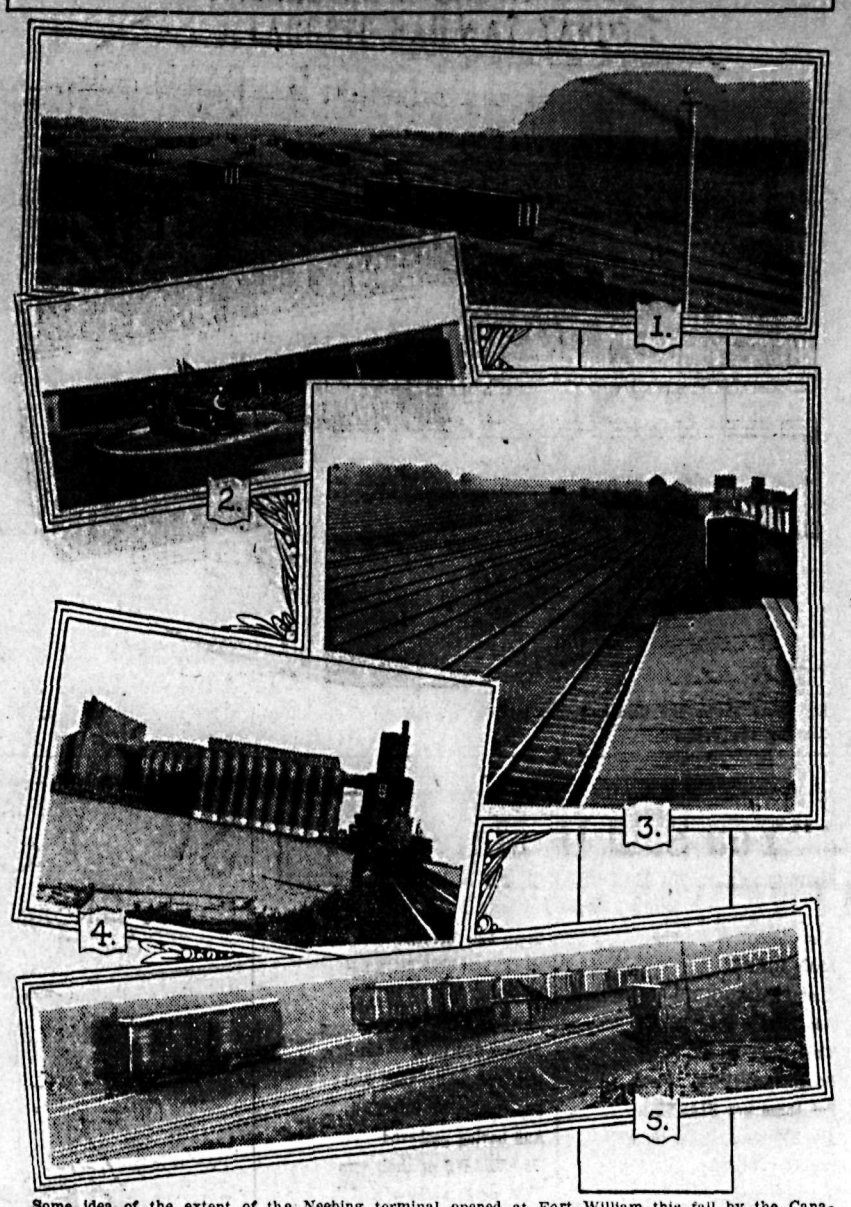
Teachers in trying to teach a pupil to think take on a great undertaking. Intelligence tests had shown a non-educated child equal to an educated child, according to the psychologists. The public school course was not overloaded at present. A few years ago it had been overloaded, and if it was overloaded today in a graded school it was the fault of the principal. As to the cramming process, this should be avoided. Constitutional history was necessary in the higher grades. What was necessary was that the high school teachers get in touch with the public school teachers before making any criticisms.

Y. Z. Manning, inspector for the Cranbrook district, delivered a paper on "Teaching by Project," illustrating his remarks with samples of project work by public school pupils.

On Saturday afternoon Dean Coleman of the University of British Columbia addressed the teachers, as did Inspector Sheffield.

Following the afternoon's addresses W. Garner of Trail extended an invitation to have the sessions in the smelter city next year. The invitation was received and accepted.

CANADIAN NATIONAL OPENS ONE OF WORLD'S LARGEST RAILWAY YARDS FOR GRAIN



Some idea of the extent of the Neebing terminal opened at Fort William this fall by the Canadian National railways is given by the above pictures, showing part of the 43 miles trackage with capacity for 2000 cars. This new terminal is doing much to minimize the possibility of grain car congestion on Canadian National lines at the head of the lakes; expedite delivery of grain to elevators for shipment down the lakes and also the movement of other "loads" and "empties" both east and west and thus further improve the transportation service provided. Views shown are as follows:

1. Classification yard looking eastward from the "hump."
2. Twenty-four-stall round house, with electrically equipped turntable in the foreground.
3. View from center of the classification yard, showing car coming from "hump."
4. Eight and one-half million bushel elevator at Port Arthur, owned by Canadian National railways, the picture showing grain going into elevator from cars at one end and being loaded on boat at the other.
5. The "hump," where the force of gravity is the only power used in placing cars in the classification tracks assigned to them. Two cars have just been released and are shown on their way to classification yard.

SCOUTS ENJOY LENGTHY CLIMB

Two Parties Held Strenuous Hikes on Saturday Afternoon

Two parties of boy scouts enjoyed an outing on Saturday. One party consisting of members of No. 3 troop, under the leadership of Troop Leader Billie Brown, made an all-day hike to the Athabasca mine, the other, made up of scouts belonging to No. 1 troop, under the supervision of their scoutmaster, hiked up Anderson creek in the afternoon. The first party left Nelson shortly after 10 in the morning, and proceeding by way of the Venus trail arrived at the Athabasca mine at noon. Arriving there the boys made fires in order to thaw themselves out and also to cook their lunches. After spending some time at the mine they next hiked to the mill, and inspected the plant, lit a fire and ate the balance of their lunch. Leaving the mill they went by way of Give Out creek to the California mine and inspected the ruins of the buildings which were recently destroyed by fire. The party returned by way of the Silver King and Ymir roads, arriving in Nelson at about 6 o'clock.

They thoroughly enjoyed the outing, though they found the going during the first part of the hike rather heavy. Further on the going improved, as the ground was frozen hard. Between the Athabasca mine and the mill a heavy snowstorm was encountered, and at the California a dense mist, while at Give Out creek there was considerable ice.

The second party left the mountain station and proceeded by way of the Great Northern railway tracks to Anderson creek. Going up the creek for some distance they halted and made preparations for the various tests they were given. As the weather was threatening it was decided to have the fire lighting and cooking tests first. On account of the rain which had begun to fall the boys had considerable difficulty in getting their fires going.

The boys were out to pass their tests and have an enjoyable time, and they were determined that nothing would upset their program. Supper over, and dishes washed, the next test was tracking, but owing to the being so wet this test was not made as difficult as it would otherwise have been. The final test of the day was the scouts' pace, which was undertaken on the railway tracks. The boys felt a little more comfortable after going through the scouts' pace, as it warmed them up, and after picking up their various belongings they set out for home, arriving in Nelson at 6 o'clock.

The party that hiked to the Athabasca consisted of Troop Leader Bill Brown, George Campion, Clare Bennett, Wallace Scott, Tom Halsey, Brian Moss, Penrod Baskin, Harry Corble, Westley Negus, Willie Gallicano, Ronald Hodges and Victor Walker.

The scouts who went up Anderson creek were Buster Taylor, Rankin Hanna, Bobbie Burns, Victor Burns, Ralph Olson, John Hunter, George Radwick, Elmore West and Jimmie Orr.

Eversharp is a worker, a business pencil—the world's favorite. It keeps going day after day with no other attention than an occasional loading. Many people carry two—one with black lead, one with the new colored lead.

Eversharp is comfortable to hold. It never tires the hand because it is perfectly balanced. The lead never wobbles—the exclusive rifled tip grips it like a vice. You know when to put in a new lead—the automatic index tells how much is left in the barrel. New leads are found under the cap. So is the handy eraser. Eversharp features can't be copied.

The all-metal Wahl Pen is a writing innovation, a fountain pen improvement that makes it a worthy companion for Eversharp. The barrel holds more ink. Wahl Pen cannot crack or split. It is beautiful. It is durable. Wahl Pen will last a life-time.

Wahl Pen and Eversharp are matched in gold and silver. Buy both. Eversharp, $1 to $10; Wahl Pen, $4 to $10. Solid gold at higher prices. Look for the name on each. Wahl Pens in rubber are the finest rubber pens made. $2.75 up.

British Columbia Apples Again Win Highest Honors

British Columbia has made a magnificent showing at the Imperial fruit show at Manchester, England.

To have carried off four first prizes as against two for Nova Scotia and one for Quebec, four out of a total of seven for Canada, is a performance in which the people of this province can justly feel pride.

But in addition to this, British Columbia won the Daily Mail gold cup for the best exhibit in the overseas section, while the Associated Growers carried off the silver cup which was offered for the best British Columbia exhibition.

British Columbia apples have won many prizes in the past, and the victories at the Manchester exhibition prove that this province is maintaining its proud position as a producer of the best apples in the world.

Great Britain in recent years has been developed as one of the important markets for the apples of this province, and the success which has been won at Manchester is bound to give British Columbia fruit valuable advertising, which will further increase the opportunities for the sale of our apples in the old land.

Criminal Courts No Place for Scopolamin

Scopolamin, the new drug which is said to have the effect of making anyone answer truthfully any question, is now declared to have been used successfully as a means of curing some forms of insanity.

When under the influence of scopolamin patients have been found to be suffering from delusions, and physicians, on discovering what they were, have been able to show the victim that they were imaginary and to effect a cure.

If the drug can be used in the treatment of mental cases the discovery is of immediate practical value.

Its use in criminal cases is another matter. It is a well-founded and desirable principle of British justice that no man should be forced to convict himself. For example, if a prisoner make a statement to a policeman after arrest, it cannot be used against him in a court unless the policeman shall first have warned him that anything he might say might be used against him. For the same reason the "third degree" methods which have disgraced some police forces are banned. Third degree is only another name for torture, and under torture men have confessed to crimes they never committed.

But the great danger of scopolamin, if existing methods of trial of accused persons were wiped out in favor of this so-called "truth-telling drug," is indicated by the experiments which have been carried out on insane persons. The drug has been useful in establishing the nature of insane delusions. If this is the case, how could any court be sure that the accused when under the influence of the drug had not merely told of a delusion, the delusion in this case being the imaginary commission of a crime. There have been many instances in which several persons confessed to having committed a crime with which they had nothing to do.

Scopolamin probably has its uses in medicine, but in criminal procedure in courts it will be safer to retain the present practice of insisting upon reasonable proof of guilt before conviction and punishment.

The Educational Conference

Teachers of West Kootenay who organized the conference which took place in Nelson Friday and Saturday are to be congratulated upon the success of the meetings.

The papers which were read and the speeches which were delivered were of an unusually high order of merit and, dealing as they did with such a vital question as education, they made the conference of real public importance.

Such conferences should be held as frequently as possible. They enable the teachers to get together and discuss the problems of education as they meet them face to face from day to day, and also to deal with more general questions such as the principles upon which a successful educational system must be founded. The conferences serve yet another purpose, and that is to create deeper public interest in education.

On "Flighty Women.

Some WOMEN are like
Little BIRDS
That FLY AROUND
And have a good TI..E;
They FLIT from
Bough to BOUGH,
For these are FLIRTS,
And NO man pleases them
For very LONG;
But they are so
Piquant, soft-looking,
Bright-eyed and
TANTALIZING,
That they never lack
Admirers, and they HOP
From one flirtation—
Or is it SENSATION?—
To ANOTHER.
To them LIFE is Always SPRING,
But, eventually, they feel
The coming of WINTER,
And having gathered
No STRAWS of their own
That would build a NEST,
They marry themselves to
An unsuspecting MALE
And keep HIM
On the HOP
For the rest of his life.

There's no outdistancing the petite flapper. Here she it, in our own three-piece, the fashion we have until now regarded as primarily belonging to the grownup. And as in the nature of flappers at any age this one goes us one better, for there is a hat to complete the charming little costume.

Note in the sketch how simple are the lines of both the frock and coat. Both are cut on straight lines, with black velveteen as the foundation and French blue velour for the bodice. Gray, white and black wool are used in the embroidery.

The same simple stitching is applied to narrow bands of blue on the coat and hat, thus bringing every bit of the costume into a harmonious whole.

Here are some jolly games for a Halloween party:

Foolish Fortunes—Have a paper "cauldron" suspended from a chandelier with a cardboard witch standing near. Each guest steps up to the cauldron and draws from it a folded slip of paper bearing a fortune such as the following (which you can make up yourself):: (1) You have the knack of brightening things up immensely—especially silverware. (2) There is a sudden trip in store for you—possibly down the cellar stairs. (3) Good luck will follow you all your life—but will never overtake you. (4) You will shine in the world—if you use enough soap. (5) The future holds grater things for you—in any hardware store. (6) Checks innumerable are coming your way—on your neckties, suits and vests.

Halloween memory contest—For 5 minutes all the guests are allowed to look at a table on which are spread numerous articles pertaining to Halloween, then the table top is covered with a cloth and each guest is given a paper and pencil so that he may write down all the articles he can remember, 3 minutes being allowed for this writing. A prize is awarded the contestant whose list is the longest. (The table articles may be a pumpkin, sheaf of corn, cat, witch, nuts, apple parings, a mirror, a paper hat, autumn leaves, a cobweb, broomstick, etc.)

Horror Game—Everybody sits on the floor around a sheet, each player holding the edge of the sheet with his left hand (quite near the floor). With the right hand the players pass around objects of horror, under the sheet, guessing what they are merely by the sense of touch, as they cannot see them. The hostess has previously prepared such things as the following for this purpose: A hot potato, a piece of ice, a piece of fur sewed into a ball and stuffed to represent a mouse, a shelled hard-boiled egg, a potato stuck full of toothpicks, etc. None may say aloud what he believes the object to be. The fun of this game lies in its noisiness.

Story Contest—Gathered in a darkened room, each guest in turn tells an original, extemporaneous ghost story. A judge decides which is the best when all have finished, and a small copy of a Shakespearean play is given as a prize to the winner with a card reading: "A book by one of your brother authors."

Dramatic Contest—Each guest must draw a witch's hat a and aeemstthr draw from a witch's hat a slip of paper. On each slip is written a Halloween emotion—such as "mystery," "fear," "stealth," "vengeance," "romance," etc. In turn each must act out the emotion written on this slip, while the rest guess what he is trying to portray.

Tomorrow— Dishes in This Week's Menus.

That Body of Yours

Why Take a Chance?

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act)

I heard an argument between two physicians one day, one a general practitioner and the other a lung specialist, that is worth recording.

It was a case of a tubercular suspect, a young married man with a responsible position.

After making the physical examination there were symptoms that would point to tuberculosis, such as a constant cough, and an occasional night sweat, a very slight rise in temperature, and a tired out feeling.

On the other hand, the man had a good appetite, was losing very little weight, if any, and was at work every day. No germ could be located.

The physician and the specialist were old friends.

The diagnosis of the specialist was that it was early tuberculosis.

The diagnosis of the practitioner was that the man was a bit run down and just needed a tonic and a rest outdoors.

The specialist easily clinched the matter in this way:

"If I'm right and he has tuberculosis, we've got him in good time, and he'll be a sure cure. Even if I'm wrong, what about my treatment? Will it be good for him or not?"

The general practitioner was silent for a minute, and then said:

"You're right. I have no right to have him take a chance."

The young man went to a well-known sanitarium for nearly a year, and came back strong and well.

That was nearly 10 years ago, and there has been no recurrence of his cough, temperature, night sweats, or "tired out feeling."

What's the lesson?

That every case of suspected tuberculosis should be treated as if it were really tuberculosis.

Even if the patient cannot or will not go to a sanitarium, the usual treatment for tuberculosis should be instituted.

It is simple enough—Fresh air all the time, good nourishing food, rest most of the time, and then light exercise outdoors as strength returns.

In any case treat the suspect as a real case, and never "take a chance" in the matter.

The Lighter Side

The ordinary British Columbia taxpayer isn't hard boiled. He is merely soaked.

The age of discretion is that at which one stops sowing wild oats and wheat.

Some people are impartial just because they are too indolent to form an opinion.

In politics the only side that realizes how urgently reform is needed is the outside.

As a general thing you can recognize Easy street by the number of bay windows.

A born leader is a man born in a neighborhood where people like to have somebody do their thinking.

Building up is the hard part. It takes three generations to make a gentleman, and only one little chorus girl to break one.

Slowly Russia becomes more reasonable as her spirit breaks under the continued annoyance of entertaining visiting statesmen.

If France gets anything, of course those who condemn her methods will refuse to share in the dividends.

Any fool can make war, as Curzon says; and it is also unfortunately true that fools sometimes make the peace.

The drop in prices noted by Fisher's index indicates that there are more delicate instruments than the seismograph.

We note with pleasure that highbrows who wish to rewrite the Bible still give their unqualified approval to the solar system.

Told in Rime

THE FLAG THAT GIRDLES THE EARTH

Only sea-girt isles on Europe's coast,
Small on the map but what deeds they boast.
Their flag unfurled has girdled the world
And marshals a mighty host.

To a fourfold race they have given birth,
Each with its pride and each with its worth,
And their common tongue as spoken or sung
Is heard all over the earth.

It may be the brogue of an Irish lad
In a song that's gay or a song that's sad
Or Scotch as broad as Newfo'n cod
Or a Cockney with accent bad.

But go where you will o'er the briny foam
Choose where you will on this earth to roam,
Some of the race have led in the chase
And the Briton is at home.

They did not go with the "mailed fist"
To strike to the earth all hopes that resist
But with tact so rare they sought to be fair
And the love of the subject enlist.

And now as the gathering war clouds break
And Britain perforce her share must take
They came from afar to join in the war
To die for Britiannia's sake

And over the world war's deafening roar
A voice is heard from shore to shore.
Wales gave the man that leads the man
Wee Wales the smallest of the four.

Oh! You who are British by right of birth
Hold it and prize it above all worth
On freedom's land united we stand
With the flag that girdles the earth.

CANUCK WHEAT SIFTS THROUGH YANK TARIFF

Minneapolis Millers Buy Large Quantities in Spite of the Thirty-cent Protection

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 28. — Canadian wheat began sifting through the 30-cent Fordney-McCumber tariff barrier here last week in quantities sufficiently large to indicate foreign competition will face the United States crop this year.

Friday, Canadian wheat was bought with alacrity for part of the morning, 350,000 bushels in Fort William and Port Arthur elevators, being purchased by local millers. This was a record amount. Saturday morning, buyers in the local pit waited a chance to get more Canadian wheat, but the price was a point or two too high.

Local dealers declare they will buy Canadian wheat whenever its price is such that they can pay the duty and get it here at a price equal to or lower than for United States wheat.

The Canadian grade bought here, Friday, was No. 3 northern, the Canadian grade corresponding, millers said, to No. 1 dark northern, United States grading. Some of the grain was bought by local companies for milling at their eastern mills, near Buffalo, a local buyer said.

British Settlement Delegate Arrives at Victoria From Australia

VICTORIA, Oct. 27.—Sir William Windham, Miss C. S. Sprott and H. F. Marriott, British overseas settlement delegates, returned from Australia and New Zealand aboard the Makura yesterday morning after nine months' sojourn in various states of Australia and New Zealand, in the interests of land settlement, and with the object of conferring with the state governors on questions of reception, welfare and allotment of British settlers. The party spent four months touring New Zealand and five months in Australia and New Zealand.

Sir William, speaking of various schemes for settling British immigrants, pointed out that the group system was by far the most popular. In general, the settlement of Australia and New Zealand included the group system, the apprenticing of young men, ranging from the age of 16 to 20 years of age, or by parents or relatives making application for the assistance passage privilege from the government, and holding themselves responsible for the finding of the new settler a job at least for the first year.

Help From Time to Time

He spoke in detail on the system by which immigrants were assisted to the various states and dominions. He pointed out that the British government had entered into an agreement with the Australian and New Zealand governments to grant £3,000,000 a year for the establishing of settlers. This was to continue over a period of 15 years. Not only is assistance given in the passage out to the dominion, said Sir William, but advances are made from time to time to enable the settlers to establish themselves properly in their new surroundings.

"Conditions are not the same here as in Australia. There are difficulties that have to be overcome even yet in Australia which might not be encountered in Canada. Each state in Australia seems to want a different immigration agreement," Sir William stated. "They forget that they should unite in one effort to settle the country. They worry about industry, but forget that development of resources is essential."

STOCK LEVELS TO NEW LOWS

Thirty-six Issues Go Through Floor for Year in Market That Is Unsettled

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Stock prices were again unsettled in yesterday's quiet trading, 36 issues breaking through to new low records for the year.

Selling pressure which recently has been concentrated largely in the rubber, sugar, copper and leather groups, spread over a somewhat broader list, suggesting the closing out of some weakened marginal accounts. The thin market for a few ordinarily inactive issues resulted in breaks of 3 to 7 points when they were pressed for sale.

The customary industrial leaders yielded slightly. Among those to sink to new lows were such issues as American Sugar common and preferred, Famous Players common and preferred, American Woolen common and preferred, International Harvester common and preferred, Coco Cola, Central Leather, Producers and Refiners, American Smelting and the Market Street Railway issues. Some of these recovered all or part of their losses in the sporadic short covering that took place just before the close.

Most of the high-grade rails held relatively firm, although Atchison yielded fractionally to a new 923 minimum price, as did Frisco common.

Selling of the American Tobacco Products issues was based on reports of a department of justice inquiry into the trade agreement recently announced by the two companies.

The brisk recovery in Famous *Players was based on a more favor*able interpretation of its recent decision temporarily to suspend the production of pictures. The General Motors corporation announced today that the old motor works of Lansing, Mich., has entered into a contract with Kelly Springfield for the purchase of a portion of its tire requirements, but that the contract does not include all the original tire equipment for the Oldsmobile and other general motive units.

Foreign exchanges held relatively steady, demand sterling being quoted at $4.49⅝, French francs around 5.92 cents and German marks at 1.6 cents a billion.

The weekly clearing house statement showed an increase of $9,268,000 in loans, discounts and investments and $929,000 in cash in own vaults. Reserve of member banks in the federal reserve bank decreased $10,392,000, net demand deposits decreased $2,501,000 and time deposits $1,108,000. Aggregate reserve totalled $519,849,000 leaving excess reserve of $21,991,020, a decrease of $10,109,710 below a week ago.

CANADIAN WHEAT PURCHASES BEAR

Chicago Price Slumps at Sight of Foreign Product Underselling Domestic With Duty

CHICAGO, Oct. 28. — Estimates that from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat, duty paid, had so far been bought, to come into the United States at 2 cents a bushel less than the price of domestic grain of equal quality, had a bearish effect on the wheat market here today.

MUCH MEAT ON MARKET

Frosty Weather Does Not Keep Buyers Away; Eggs Scarce

Despite the frosty atmosphere the usual Saturday market was well attended by local bargain seekers. An outstanding feature of the market was the presence of much fresh-killed stock. In fact, more meat handlers than usual had stalls.

There was a marked scarcity of eggs and the few appearing sold at 60c the dozen. Butter sold at 40c and 45c. The usual supply of fresh vegetables and fruits was on sale, and the vegetables in particular found customers quite early in the morning.

PORT ARTHUR WILL INCREASE ITS BINS

Up to Seven Million Bushels Additional Elevator Capacity is Now Being Planned

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Oct. 28.—Plans are said to be in course of preparation by elevator companies now located at the head of the lakes for the construction of an additional 3,500,000 to 6,500,000 bushel storage capacity in Port Arthur next summer. One company now operating at Fort William is stated to have sanctioned plans for a plant in Port Arthur with a capacity of 1,500,000 bushels.

The Gillespie Grain company, it is understood, intends next year to build between 20 and 30 more tanks to the plant now located here, and where a new workhouse is now in the course of completion.

Big Farmers' Company, Too

The Grain Growers' Grain company has plans prepared and arrangements made for an addition of 1,000,000 bushels to its present Port Arthur plant, it was stated today, and it is expected that this addition will be erected next year.

Another company at present operating a string of country elevators is said to be looking toward Port Arthur for the location of a terminal plant.

This company is said to be an American firm which, in addition to elevator operations, recently went into the manufacture of flour and cereals. If negotiations are successful it will build here a plant of 3,250,000 bushels capacity.

RAILWAY TREASURER LOSES LITTLE GIRL

It's a poor love letter that can't create a sensation when read in court.

DOMINION OF CANADA VICTORY LOAN BONDS

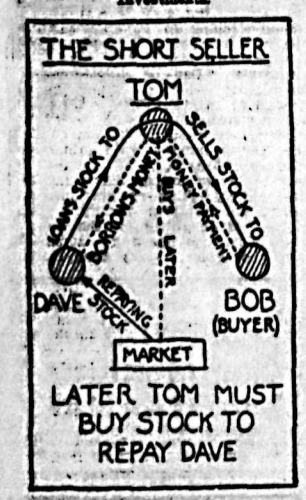
MATURING 1st NOVEMBER, 1923

THE BANK OF MONTREAL, under authority of the Minister of Finance, is prepared to redeem the above bonds in full at maturity, without charge, at any of its Branches in Canada.

For the convenience of owners of the bonds, the Bank of Montreal will accept the bonds at any time prior to November 1st, and will make payment in each case on November 1st, either by issuing a cheque or by placing the amount to the owner's credit in the books of the Bank, as the owner may desire.

Money AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.



The short seller is the man who makes money when stock prices fall. He does it by selling borrowed stock which he later buys back at a lower price. A typical short sale is diagramed above and described below.

Tom decides to sell short. He goes into the market and sells stock to Bob. But he hasn't any stock and he must deliver it to Bob the next day, according to the rules of the exchange. Consequently Tom borrows the stock from Dave and delivers it to Bob.

Dave is willing to lend Tom the stock because Tom will loan him money up to 100 per cent of its market value. The best loan he could hope to get from a bank would be 80 per cent of its value.

Everybody is happy: Tom is short, Bob has his stock, and Dave has borrowed money under favorable terms.

However, Tom is short, although probably no one except Dave knows it, and some day he must go into the market and purchase the stock to repay Dave.

Of course Tom, Bob and Dave do not actually trade with each other. All are represented by brokers who trade for them.

MANITOBA TOO GOOD FOR SASKATCHEWAN

In Gridiron Battle at Winnipeg the Home University Team Wins in Last Quarter

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28.—Manitoba university rugbyists triumphed over the Saskatchewan university team 14 to 10 yesterday afternoon, after the hardest and most exciting rugby game so far this season. The game was the first of a home-and-home series.

With little to pick between the teams, a warm battle was waged throughout. The local players were not sure of victory until the closing minutes of play, when clever kicking by Paisley added a number of points.

Spectacular runs by Curley Taylor, the little back of the Saskatchewan team, featured the game, which was marked by sensational play from start to finish.

Manitoba excelled in the back field, where Young, Boyd and Fleming were brilliant, while in the kicking Paisley had an advantage over Heffernan for the visitors. Manitoba went over in the first period and scored another touchdown shortly after the start of the second quarter. Taylor then broke through and picked down a kick, to run 25 yards for the first Saskatchewan try.

The visitors were only one point down early in the third quarter when Taylor ran 30 yards, and Blair went over on the first down. Manitoba piled up single points in the final period to win.

YANKEE SKATING TEAM FOR OLYMPIC CHOSEN

Jewtraw, Kaskey, Moore and Steinmetz Are Selections, Donovan and Bislis Alternates

CLEVELAND, Oct. 28—Skaters who will represent the United States at the olympic games next February were selected by the international skating union of America here today.

The speed skaters selected are Charles Jewtraw, Lake Placid, international outdoor champion; Harry Kaskey, Chicago, United States and Canadian outdoor champion; Joe Moore, New York, international indoor champion in 1922; and William Steinmetz, Chicago, last year's international outdoor titleholder.

Richard Donovan of Johnstown, N.Y., and Valentine Bislis, Lake Placid, were chosen alternatives.

ARGONAUTS BEAT OTTAWA IN END

After Capital Team Gets Two-Point Lead, Toronto Oarsmen Make Victorious Finish

OTTAWA, Oct. 28.—By overcoming a two-point lead, and defeating Ottawa 7 to 2 here yesterday afternoon, the Argonauts again showed they possess strong finishing powers.

They are still perched on the top rung of the Interprovincial Rugby league standing, with a one-point margin over the Hamilton Tigers and with one game still to play.

Ottawa secured their two-point lead in the last period of the game, which was the first of a senior double-header at the stadium.

The Argos, by a determined finish, emerged victorious, and once more it was the Stirrett-Munro combination that kept them in the running. Stirrett fell on a loose ball behind the Ottawa line, as he did in Montreal the previous Saturday, and Munro duplicated his performance against Montreal by converting the touch. This gave Argos the lead, and for the remainder of the game play was in Ottawa territory Hughes tried a drop kick soon after, but his effort was low and bounced to the dead line for the Oarsmen's seventh point.

Manitoba Tigers Doormat for Vics

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28.—The champion Victorias yesterday had a useful workout in preparation for the western Canada rugby final on November 10, piling up a 54 to 1 victory over the Tigers in the final senior game of the Manitoba rugby union series.

TIGERS STEAMROLL THE MONTREALERS

Hamilton Puts French-Canadian Team Out of Running for Either First or Second Place

MONTREAL, Oct. 28.—Hamilton Tigers remained in the running with the Toronto Argonauts for the 1923 interprovincial rugby championship when they blanked the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association squad in a listless game played here yesterday afternoon by a score of 8 to 0. The loss not only eliminated Montreal from the championship race, but also deprived the local squad of what chance they had of finishing in second place.

A record for a "Big Four" game, locally, attended yesterday's game, but the several thousand spectators who had anticipated a rare battle between the two teams were disappointed with the display.

The Tigers played good football, though they lacked the necessary finish to carry the ball across the line. The local players were away below the form they showed against Argos here the previous Saturday. Time and again they fumbled the ball, mussed up end runs, and generally lacked punch, with the result that the Hamilton squad controlled the play for the greater part of the game and their line was never in danger.

BILLIARDS CHAMPS OPEN WORLD PLAY

Hoppe and Five Other Noted Cue Artists Will Open Title Tourney in New York Today

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—New record runs and averages are expected to be established during the third annual tournament for the world's 18.2 balk line billiard champion, and five other leading billiardists as competitors.

Hoppe, generally favored to retain his title, will open the play with Enrich Hagenlacher, the German champion, as his opponent.

The tournament will consist of 15 games, a round robin of matches at 500 points each, continuing to Monday, November 5.

Besides Hoppe and Hagenlacher, the contestants are Jake Schaefer Jr., Welker Cochrane; Roger Conti, champion of France, and Edouard Horemanns of Belgium.

UNIVERSITY ELEVENS DRAW A SOCCER GAME

Alberta and Saskatchewan Play at Saskatoon Under Midwinter Conditions

SASKATOON, Oct. 28.—The University of Alberta played the Saskatchewan student eleven to a scoreless draw in a furiously-fought intervarsity match here Saturday afternoon. Midwinter weather conditions were far from conducive to good football, but the scattered few that attended the match were well rewarded for their loyalty. The students put up a splendid exhibition, in spite of a heavy wind that kept the ball in one end of the field most of the time.

Poor shooting on the part of the Saskatchewan forwards cost the green and white eleven a victory. The home club had several fine opportunities that went awry owing to faulty marksmanship.

This was the announcement given tonight by Professor E. A. Hardy of the University of Saskatchewan, president of the Western Canada Rugby Football union. The Manitoba champions are scheduled to go to the winners for a game November 10.

'IRISH GOLF' INTERESTING

Magazine Publishes Good Story by Lady Resident of Nelson

The following interesting golf story, by Mrs. J. A. Gibson of Nelson, appears in a recent issue of the Canadian Golfer, under the title of "Irish Golf:"

"Four golf lessons have I taken. At $2 a lesson it is undoubtedly money well spent. Already I know almost everything about the drive—that is, about the stance; the position of the hands, elbows and shoulders; the proper method of keeping the head down and the club up; the concentration, swing and follow through. True, this knowledge conveyed from brain to muscle has not yet resulted in my driver taking the slightest notice whatever of my ball, still the club (purchased from the pro) may be merely holding off a bit.

"Be that as it may, Clara came to spend the week-end with me. She was equipped with a new golfing outfit. 'Doctor says I've just got to reduce,' remarked she, 'so I'm going in for golf. Thought I'd make a start while I'm here.'

"'Very well, I'll take you around our course in the morning,' I told her nonchalantly. Next morning at the first tee I was feeling a trifle nervous, never having attempted a round before. When I glanced toward the first green the distance slightly took my breath. The flag seemed incredibly far off.

"'Will I start or shall you?' I asked, not being sure of the etiquet of the thing. 'O, I've never seen anyone drive; don't know a thing about it,' admitted Clara. 'You've had lessons. You start off, and I'll watch how it's done.' 'All right,' said I. I teed the ball. I grasped my driver. I reteed the ball and reclutched the driver. I addressed the ball. I could think of not one single instruction the pro had ever given me. O, yes; keep my eye on the ball! I fixed the ball with an hypnotic stare and swung frantically but hopefully. I, not only followed through; I followed almost completely around. The ball, however, rested serenely where my hand had placed it. With slight variations this effort was repeated about three times. 'Why don't you try your putter?' asked Clara. 'My what?' I panted. 'Your putter—you'd be nearer the end of it that hits, you know.'

"'O, you don't use a putter for driving,' I informed her with what dignity I could master. 'My club's all right, but I just don't seem to have the knack this morning. Perhaps you'd like to try.'

"'I'd like to,' cried Clara, carefully drawing her putter from the bag.

"'No, no, not that one.' I went over to her. 'This one, Clara, your driver.'

"'Not on your life, exclaimed Clara. 'I don't know anything about the others, but I can handle a putter. I got a prize last summer at a putting contest,' and, so saying, even before I could give her a word of instruction, she stepped out in front of my ball, still at rest upon its tee, and the next moment—whiz—it was bounding quite a distance up the fairway.

"'Hurrah,' shouted Clara, her face alight with the joy of hitting. (Thank heavens there were no spectators about—not even a caddie.)

"'O, you should have used your own ball,' I said, realizing how very little she knew of the game. 'But never mind—here.' I took one of her balls out of her bag and teed it up, then turned to my own bag.

"'I'll drive yours and—

"Whiz! I looked around quickly. Clara had driven the second ball a little to the right, but even quite a distance beyond the first, toward the green. 'Hurrah,' she shouted, but, on seeing me with my driver, 'O, I'm sorry,' she cried, 'should you have driven that ball?'

"'Did you say should or would?' I asked rather ruefully as I put my driver back in the bag. We found my ball in a small crevice. I selected my mashie, and swung vigorously, quite vigorously and quite a number of times. I scattered pebbels, I scattered sticks, I scattered turf. I made, no doubt, a fair understudy for an earthquake, but nary a budge did I get out of that ball. 'Why don't you try your putter?' said Clara. 'I'll do nothing of the sort,' snapped I. 'I wish you'd go and find your ball; it's ahead there somewhere.' I pointed with my mashie, and Clara marched off.

"Quickly, I looked around. Stooping, I picked up my ball and threw it as far as I could toward the green. O, well—

"When I came up to Clara she was swinging her putter wickedly. She dubbed a few times, but finally sent the ball flying, and dashed after it. In two strokes she was ahead of me, well onto the green. I found my ball, and plied my iron in vain. I was beginning to hate the game. 'Do try your putter, you'll do splendidly with it, I know,' called Clara.

"'Thanks for those kind words,' I shouted back, shaking my iron maliciously into my bag and taking out my putter. I lacked the spirit to try a swing like Clara's. Holding the putter close to the ground I shoved. Thus, by a series of more or less uncertain shoves and scoops, I eventually reached the green. I turned to Clara. She had her driver.

"'For heaven's sake, Clara, you're not going to use your driver here!' I gasped. 'Why, this is the putting green. This is the place your blessed putter was made for.'

"'Well, I don't care—I'm going to use this club here,' affirmed Clara. 'I don't mind using a long club like this in an easy place where you just have to roll the ball around.' So saying, she sank her ball in two shots.

"I putted beyond the hole. I putted back. I putted beyond again. I putter to the edge of the hole, and kicked the ball in.

"Fearing I might brain Clara if she again suggested the use of my putter I decided to forestall any such unpleasantness by using it exclusively on the tees and fairways. Clara whacked her ball joyfully off the various tees with her putter, and I shoved my ball niftily off with mine. True, my ball never went far, but it did go, which was something, and really at times I made most remarkable progress on the fairways—of course, I've played croquet.

"As Clara insisted on using her driver at the putting greens, I did likewise. I grew quite enthusiastic over our frankly Irish game. Anyone who finds the Scotch game too gruelling should try it.

"Clara won, 10 up and 8 to go. However, she has never taken golf lessons, so it was hardly a fair contest."

QUEENS OVERWHELMS THE McGILL SQUAD

Score Is Nineteen to Three and Montreal Institution Only Scores as Whistle Blows

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 28. — Pep Leadley's booting and running, the like of which has seldom been seen on a local gridiron, proved too much for Shaughnessy's McGill team yesterday and Queens emerged victorious by the score of 19 to 3. It was not until the last 3 seconds of play that McGill managed to get within striking distance of the scoring column and Hughes sent over a field goal just as the whistle blew.

McGill lost because their line was weak. At one stage of the game Queens bucked three times for wards, carrying the ball through the center while Leadley and Batstone ran wide.

Hughes, however, was the redeeming feature of the Montrealers, his kicking and running being sensational.

ESKIMOS DEFEAT CALGARY ON GRID

CALGARY, Oct. 28.—Calgary lost to the Edmonton Eskimos, western Canada champions of rugby, 7 to 13, in the first of the home-and-home games in the Alberta union finals here yesterday. Superior condition and wonderful line plunging told the tale.

The return game will be played in Edmonton next Saturday.

HAZEL KESSLER CUTS TIME FOR CENTURY

Brilliant Winnipeg Swimmer Clips Two Full Seconds Off Her Own Record; McGill Wins Relay

MONTREAL, Oct. 28.—Miss Hazel Kessler of Winnipeg capped a series of brilliant local performances by clipping two full seconds from the Canadian women's century mark at the national A.A.A. tank here last night. She swam the 100 yards in 1:11 2-5, against her own record of 1:13 2-5 seconds in 1920. She was ahead by 20 yards at the finish. This win gave Miss Kessler a clean sheet for the two-day meet.

Only two teams competed for the 200-yard relay event, McGill and M.A.A.A., and the former won in 1:45 4-5, which breaks the intercollegiate record.

The 220-yard breast stroke for men was won by Larendeau of the National, and the fancy diving competition was won by Stafford of the Montreal Swimming club.

HUGO STINNES PASSES UNNOTICED IN CROWD

Great German Industrialist Works Eighteen Hours a Day; Dresses in Simple Style

Hugo Stinnes, who figures so largely in the German reparations news these days, works 18 hours a day and takes almost no recreation. Occasionally he may be seen in the theater with his wife or some other member of his family. But they are always so simply dressed and occupy such inconspicuous seats that few persons know who they are.

Stinnes can walk the streets of Berlin without being recognized by the public. There are scores of bearded middle-aged men in every German city who resemble him in appearance and there is never anything about his dark gray business suit and overcoat and black derby hat to distinguish him from scores of other German business men.

Although Stinnes has his offices and living quarters in the Esplanade hotel, which is the most luxurious of Berlin hotels, and is Mr. Stinnes' property, few of the guests recognize Germany's most-discussed financier and industrialist when he passes through the lobby. He generally dines in the public dining room with members of his own family and men who belong to his various business organizations. He and his dinner companions are never in evening clothes, and the meal is generally simple.

Business Is His Life

Business is Stinnes' life, and it is the life of his family. His oldest daughter is with him much of the time, frequently driving his motor car and assisting with his secretarial work. His two older sons are associated with him in business. One of them lives in Hamburg and is in charge of the Stinnes shipping interests. They are often in Berlin for conferences when their father is there and there are often several grandchildren in the family group which dines at the Esplanade.

Muelheim, on the Ruhr, is really the Stinnes home, and Mr. Stinnes stays there much of the time in his simple villa, which is quite unlike the dwelling a coal king usually erects.

Much of Stinnes' life is passed in travel. His interests are so widely scattered that he cannot direct them from one center, and spares himself no hardship. He is constantly making excursions into all parts of Germany and its neighboring states. The Stinnes interests are closely interwoven with Dutch, Scandinavian, Austrian and Czechoslovakian business, and he keeps up personal contact with all these countries.

He generally travels with a secretary who is as inconspicuously dressed as the German coal baron. They are very apt to rush into a sleeping car carrying their own baggage.

A new fancy in Paris was a deep Puritan collar and also cuffs, on a black crepe frock of close-cropped white rabbit fur.

TODAY'S YOUTH FINE AS ANY, STATES DEAN

No Cause for Alarm in "Yes, We Have No Bananas," Says University Head

NO PERIL EITHER IN THE NEWEST POETRY

Sparkling Address Is Delivered at Closing Session of Teachers' Convention

The youth of today found a warm, eloquent and experienced defender when, on Saturday night, Dean Coleman of the University of British Columbia delivered a remarkably comprehensive address at the closing session of the West Kootenay Teachers' association convention.

"The young man and young woman of today," he declared, "are much finer and much better behaved than is generally understood. I am not holding them up as models of propriety, but, compared to the college people of my own day, I know that they are paragons of virtue."

The advent of new things was not at all disturbing to the dean. He quite appreciated, he asserted, that there was a new music of which "Yes, we have no bananas," was apparently the marching song. Also a new poetry. The new education he dealt with in a most interesting manner. But the new conditions in Europe he deplored, and declaimed that the wave of unrest there could not help but reach the shores of this continent.

The world, he asserted, was growing better, and in this connection he paid a warm tribute to the work of the church.

The event, held in Memorial hall, was largely attended, and the speaker was accorded a vote of thanks by Dr. E. C. Arthur and Rev. F. R. G. Dredge, both of whom spoke appreciatively of the address. During the evening an enjoyable orchestral selection was rendered by Miss Ina Steed, Fred L. Irwin and J. R. Bartindale. R. Smillie, president of the West Kootenay Teachers' association, presided.

"The New Age"

In opening, Dean Coleman asserted that he was indeed glad to be addressing a Nelson audience. In education, as in all things spiritual, he stated, the people of the coast and of the interior must work together for the common good.

"It has become a matter of platitude with us," declared the dean, "that we are 'living in a new age.' Now it is a matter of question whether we are justified in using that term in any except a qualified sense. We who have some sense of the historic and of perspective and who recognize the continuity of the things that this world has been very long in making should hesitate to speak of ages as though there were periods separated by a chasm. Age has been defined as a matter of one's arteries growing old, though I believe that sometimes now it is said ta be a matter of glands. This world has become very much bigger in every respect. It has taken scholarship nearly a century to bring home to the ordinary man and woman the bigness of this universe. If we could understand the Einstein theory we would understand that this is an infinitely more complex world than we had thought.

Spectacle of Europe

"It takes hundreds of thousands of years in order that the story of mankind may be adequately and truthfully portrayed. With this new conception has come the realization that man can become a coworker with the God who rules the world, the God of love. It is thus, with the new age, complexities which press upon us and which are far from being resolved. These problems need hardly be mentioned.

"We have the spectacle of a world almost in chaos. The spectacle of a Europe in unrest and turmoil. That wave of unrest, too, washed to the very shores of our own continent. The interest of humanity demands that we give this situation more than a passing thought. We are bound to admit that unrest in any one sphere is bound to transmit itself to other spheres."

Passing on to more specific reference as to other changes in the world, Dean Coleman stated that there now were not only some bizarre forms of government, but there was also a new art, a new poetry and even a new music. The latter seemed to have as its marching song, "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

A New Education

"And, oh, yes," continued the speaker, "we also have a new education. Now perhaps some people are misrepresenting these new developments, and others, perhaps, through their love of change, are exaggerating them. Again it is inevitable that we should, looking from the youth of today, see our own youth in a somewhat distorted manner. The fact is that we are msled by certain characteristics that are largely superficial. Instances of that are seen in some of the remarks made to me regarding education. Some people seem to think that the youth of the high schools and the colleges seems to have a perverted sense of fitness. But if we look back I am sure that we shall see that on our day our elders looked upon much in the same spirit and thought that some disaster was most likely to overcome us.

Largely Imaginary

'It is an obvious fact that many of the dangers that adult life anticipates for youth are largely imaginary. This, perhaps, we can treat with these present-day children in the hope that perhaps they may not turn out too badly after all."

The new education recognizes the right of youth to experiment, and experiment of course meant mistakes. Some critics of education might interpret that as the right of youth not only to experiment, but to keep on making mistakes. That was hardly correct. There was within all humans an inner urge that in the child leads to explore, to experiment, to ask questions. It was manifest, therefore, that that inner urge would be bound to carry the individual in some directions which were unprofitable.

Not Blind Experiment

Thus the teacher's problem was to provide material and experimentation that this inner urge might exercise itself. "Blind, undirected, uncontrolled experimentation," cautioned the dean, "would place man back in that very beginning from which he had climbed. The old theory that teaching was taking something called knowledge and passing it over to the pupil is gone. Instead the function now is to provide experience for the child, to gain knowledge for itself. Now I know that the word 'freedom' is hailed as dangerous by some and I know that there are some dangers attached to freedom. But the new teacher in our midst is one who has new and more wholesome conceptions not only of his or her possibilities, but also of his or her limitations.

General Education

"That spirit will do a great deal to make the schools places of general education. We give the child freedom and at the same time supply it with discipline, which is far more fundamental than the old could hope to be. It is true, too, that there is a far better understanding on the part of educational administrators toward the teacher."

Old-Time Inspectors

Recalling some types of the old-time school inspector who sometimes appeared to have but one idea of progress—to throw a scare into the teacher—Dean Coleman declared that there was now the other kind who realized that, to succeed, the teacher must have scope. The new type of educational administrator was a coworker with the teacher.

"As to the dangers of youth, like, say, the sometimes-asserted decay of respect for elders—sometimes it is referred to as cigarets or dancing—if I condemned the youth of today, therefore, I should be doing just exactly as my elders did in regard to myself. Probably the defects of youth, then, were just as outstanding as they are now. But the judgment of seasoned schoolmasters is that the youth of today is just as serious minded and thoughtful as the youth of other days.

"And probably the reason that we bring a charge of selfishness against him may be that we are selfish ourselves. Undoubtedly one of the defects of our schools is that we do not emphasize those little things like courtesy and graciousness of behavior which mean so much. But we must agree that these virtues are not of compulsory but are of natural origin. The young man and the young woman of today are much finer and much better behaved than is generally understood. I am not holding them up as models of proprietry, but compared to the college people of my day, as I knew them, they are paragons of virtue. Making due allowance for even cigarets and dancing our boys and girls are just as well behaved as those of the earlier generations."

No "Ingrained Coarseness"

They were also, remarked the speaker, "cleaner" than those of 25 years ago. He knew that there was too much profanity, yet there was not today that "ingrained coarseness that he could recall, with a shudder, from the days of his boyhood."

"What is the cause of all this?" asked the dean, and he answered, "That the world is getting better. There is a growing sense of decency. And I must pay due regard in this connection to the work of the church. Youth today must not only bear the same burdens as the youth of old, but must also bear some burdens that were due to their elders in the past. It was, in fact, for age to apologize to youth for those blind things it had done in the past."

Play, Learning, Work, Love

In conclusion Dean Coleman defined, discussed and extolled:

Play, in which the great superiority of the youth of today, who was demonstrating that he knew how to play, was a most hopeful sign.

Work, which developed into a proper understanding of our place in the universe.

Learning, which sprang from innocence; the desire to know; a wonderful manifestation of the intelligence of man.

Love, which gave promise of an ordered life in this world and which, it was regretted, was not always fairly treated on the stage or in the film.

"Love is," was the final declaration of the speaker, "an inextinguishahble flame in which resides the warmth that shall eventually warm the heart of all mankind and the light that shall eventually penetrate into all the dark places of the world."

Is Heartily Thanked

In moving a vote of thanks to Dean Coleman Dr. E. C. Arthur termed the address entertaining and highly profitable. Recalling the days of early education in Ontario he agreed that the old inspectors were not all that they might have been. Any lack of courtesy in the youth of today he considered due to the fact that the elders failed to be courteous.

Rev. F. R. G. Dredge, seconding the motion, remarked that he had once been a teacher and believed that he was yet. He spoke in appeciative terms of the address of the evening.

VICTORIA ASKS THAT PROVINCE PAY TAXES

City Council Waits on Oliver and Hart; Also Asks Part of Income and Amusement Taxes

VICTORIA, Oct. 28.—Representatives of the Victoria city council waited upon Hon. John Oliver, premier, and Hon. John Hart, minister of finance, to urge that the provincial government relieve the city's financial burdens by important finincial concessions.

The city's proposals, in brief, were:

That the provincial government pay taxes on its land in Victoria or make a flat grant to the city instead.

That the government surrender the amusement tax to the cities of the province.

That the cities be given a share of the provincial income tax.

That the government allow the cities a substantial proportion of a tax of 3 cents a gallon on gasoline.

Premier Oliver promised consideration.

NELSON VISITOR LOSES STEAM CAR

Fire Almost Totally Destroys Much-Talked-of Car Which Visited City Last Week

U. S. Anderson, justice of peace of Ione, Wash., who visited Nelson last week in a large steam automobile which was greatly admired by local residents, lost the machine through fire just after crossing the international boundary line.

An overheated engine was thought to be the cause of the destruction of the car, which burned so fast that the occupant, Wallace Knight, lost his overcoat and cap. The mishap occurred in the vicinity of Crescent lake.
