SAYS HERRIOT PROOF AGAINST RUHR CHEESE

Lloyd George Thinks Allied Conference Will Be Safe on That Score

BUT BID SHOULD BE SENT BERLIN

All Want Dawes Report but Germany Must Have Voice

LONDON, July 5.—(By Cable.)—The coming conference is Europe's best chance since the armistice for establishing peace.

There are many reasons that contribute to this opportunity. The lapse of years since the war accounts for a good deal. The angry passions have had time to subside. They cooled down more rapidly in England than in France. That was to be expected. The French losses were heavier, and the devastation of the war was greater, and more visible, in France.

But the difference in the rate at which the process of cooling down took place in the two countries had much to do with their differences in recent years. Britain arrived at a stage of reasonable judgment long before French opinion had worked off its wartime heat. M. Poincare, by stirring up the hot cinders, exposed them to the air, and thus expedited the cooling process.

And this leads me to the second propitious condition for the London conference—the Ruhr fiasco.

At the last conference I ever had with M. Poincare, when the question of the Ruhr was mentioned, he was warned that, if he pursued the policy on which he subsequently launched, he would reap lots of trouble—and no cash. His answer was a confident smile. It was the gesture of a man who knows better.

All Premiers Sniffed the Cheese

All the French prime ministers have been tempted by the rich and savory cheese placed by nature at the very nostrils of France. They all had their sniff at it—Clemenceau, Millerand, Briand and lastly Poincare. M. Briand had a nibble, but went no further.

M. Poincare walked right into the trap, and, after vain efforts to carry away his prize, found to his astonishment, that coal mines are not portable property. He tugged away at his cheese for many perspiring months, but barely got some scrapings from the rind for his omelet.

The French electorate were disappointed with the dish, and dismissed the chef. M. Herriot is looking for a menu on which the Ruhr is not written. He is the first French premier to look away from that temptation.

It is a distinct advantage to hold a conference at a time when the eyes of the French delegates will not always be rambling from discussions of practical proposals, to the dazzling but dangerous allurements beyond the Rhine. At all previous conferences, the devil kept whispering into French ears, "Take Essen, and the untold riches of Westphalia will be yours." It was so easy to take—Germany had no troops, the Ruhr was without any defences, and in this unprotected valley lay the richest industrial area on the continent of Europe.

Robber Cave Idea Gone

All France had to do was, like Ali Baba, to fill her pockets with the treasure that lay at her feet, and convert it into reparations. This flattering fallacy has now been exploded.

The British and American delegates will therefore have, for the first time since the armistice, dissillusioned

CROW PACT WILL RESUME MONDAY

No Possibility of Legislation in Time to Further Suspend it

OTTAWA, July 4 (By Canadian Press).—There is a general expectation here tonight that the Crow's Nest Pass Agreement will go into full force Monday next.

This agreement, which was made with the Canadian Pacific railway in 1897, provides for special rates eastbound from the prairies on grain and grain products and westbound on a group of other articles including agricultural implements, apples, barbed wire, coal oil, etc.

In 1918, owing to the need of revenue for the railways, the agreement was suspended.

Two years ago it was brought into effect again as regards eastbound rates on on grain and flour, but the suspension of westbound rates has continued up till July 6 of this year.

A week ago the railway made an application to the cabinet to have the agreement abrogated or suspended, in fact at least, for a further period. No announcement of government action upon the matter is available tonight.

Further suspension can only be made by act of parliament, and as such action is not possible before Monday the agreement is expected to come into full force on that day.

HIGH-SALARIED BOARD CREATED UPON TAXATION

Meighen Protests it Is Unnecessary and Will Run Into Money

OTTAWA, July 4.—A resolution was introduced in the house of commons today preliminary to a bill concerning the administration of the income tax and business profits tax under the department of customs and excise by Hon. Jacques Bureau, minister of that department. The minister explained that the bill would also provide for constitution of an advisory board to investigate and study various systems of taxation, and advise the minister, with a view to simplifying and improving present systems of taxation and collecting with the least inconvenience to the citizens.

The bill would also change the title of commissioner of customs and excise to deputy minister.

Ten Thousand for Chairman

Answering questions, Mr. Jacques Bureau explained that his proposed board would consist of two or three men, the best he could find irrespective of their politics. The salary of the chairman would not be over $10,000 per annum, and the members $7500. He thought the total amount to be voted in the supplementary estimates was $28,000.

L. J. Ladner, Conservative, South Vancouver, remarked that this was not the time to present $10,000 when salaries of others were being cut with a view to economy.

Premier King remarked that the board would deal with modes of taxation and study methods with a view to arriving at the best one for Canada.

Useless, Says Meighen

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen asked why in the world a board was required to delve into taxation methods. He did not know of any country which had a board with $10,000 a year members advising its government how to tax. He warned the minister that the $28,000 which it was proposed to spend would be but a beginning, and the minister would find himself providing much larger sums in the years to come. A taxation board of this kind was totally unnecessary, Mr. Meighen said.

To adopt the proposal would be to create a board boasting tens of thousands of dollars, in order to do the work of parliament.

Robert Forke, Progressive, said he viewed with some suspicion the proposed inquiry into further taxation. He wished to know something about the personnel of the advisory board and how long their investigation would last.

After some further discussion, the resolution was adopted, and a bill based on it was given first reading.

Advisors on Tariff, Too

OTTAWA, July 4.—The government contemplates appointing advisors to the minister of finance with respect to tariff matters after the close of the session, according to Premier King.

Tolmie Declines to Accept Leadership; Too Much of Cinch

VANCOUVER, July 4.—Hon. S. F. Tolmie flatly refused to lead the British Columbia Conservatives.

"If I had intended to enter the provincial field the time to have taken the step was before the election, and I should have entered the fight. It would look too much like searching around for the tallest grass, if I went out there now, when success is within easy reach," was his answer to the delegation headed by Lieut-Col. Cy Peck.

VANCOUVER, July 4.—A bear cub rescued unharmed from the bush on Vancouver island becomes a mascot for the sailors of the Hood, sailing tomorrow.

DELEGATES BAR ANY ORATIONS BY CANDIDATES

Move From Smith Camp Defeated; Smith Men Later Refuse Favor

SIXTY-NINTH BALLOT SHOWS BOTH STRONG

Leaders of Other Factions Desperately Seek for Solution of Quandary

NEW YORK, July 4.—Two Fourth of July sessions of the Democratic convention failed to produce a nominee for the presidency, and tonight at the end of the 70 ballots, the party leaders began seriously to consider the administration of heroic measures to break the deadlock.

Two Favorite Sons Drop Out

During the day two favorite sons had been eliminated, McAdoo had reached a new high record, within 20 votes of a majority of the convention, Smith again touched his high watermark, and a series of manoeuvres on the convention floor had re-kindled the animosity of the warring groups and apparently made a compromise more difficult.

The floor skirmishing was started by the Smith forces, who first proposed, in a resolution, that all the candidates be invited to address the delegates in executive session before there was further balloting. The proposal failed of the two-thirds needed for adoption, with the McAdoo voting against it, and later a proposal to invite Governor Smith alone to speak from the convention platform, was similarly rejected.

Then, at the opening of the night session, a letter from Mr. McAdoo was produced, suggesting that the refusal to extend a speaking invitation to his principal rival be reconsidered, but when consent was asked for it, it was refused by the Smith men. And the tumult stirred up by the proposal, the Smith supporters shouted to the chairman that the convention had "insulted" their candidate once, and that it was too late now to smooth over the incident.

Nevertheless, the leaders of the groups which are outside the McAdoo and Smith camps believed they might succeed tomorrow in convincing the managers of both candidates that further balloting was futile under the present lineup, and that the only hope of a decision was an agreement upon a compromise nominee.

McAdoo Near Majority

When McAdoo ran his total to 530 votes in the sixty-ninth ballot, the results were greeted with cheers from his followers, and was made the occasion for another demonstration and march around the convention hall. Chairman Walsh finally halted it by the vigorous use of his gavel.

When the tally clerk announced that Governor Smith had received 335 on this ballot 3.5 below his maximum—the signal was given for a Smith demonstration, in which the gallery joined with continued cheers and roars.

Oklahoma and Michigan gave McAdoo the bulk of their votes which went to make up his gain on the 69th ballot.

Oklahoma has been voting almost continually for Senator Robert L. Owen, that state, while Michigan increased to 25 the 7½ votes it had been giving McAdoo.

Opens With Stormy Scene

MADISON SQUARE GARDENS, NEW YORK, July 4.—Once more the Democratic national convention began its proceedings with a stormy scene, this being over whether it should reconsider its decision not to hear Governor Smith address it.

At the opening of tonight's session, Chairman Walsh had read a letter from W. G. McAdoo suggesting that the convention hear Governor Smith, as it had declined to do at the conclusion of the afternoon session.

Gavin McNab, San Francisco, a McAdoo man, asked unanimous consent that the afternoon's action be reconsidered, and immediately precipitated one of those riotously stormy scenes which have been characterized by hundreds of men shouting at one time, and Chairman Walsh banging the heads off gavels as fast as they could be supplied.

The Smith people shouted down the suggestion with such cries as, "You've insulted the governor of this state once, and now you want to do it again," and "Who's running this convention anyway? The convention, or some outsider out in California?"

Finally, on demands for the regular order, Chairman Walsh ordered resumption of balloting.

On the sixty-seventh ballot they stood: McAdoo, 490; Smith, 336.5; Davis, 75,5; scattered, 196. Total, 1098. This was a loss of five for McAdoo; a loss of two for Smith, and a gain of one for Davis.

On the 68th ballot one vote went to Will Rogers, comedian. The vote was: McAdoo, 488.5; Smith, 336.5; Davis, 72.5; scattered, 200.5. Total, 1098.

Delegates Struck on Head

During the following balloting, Smith delegates in the Pennsylvania delegation became aroused when a delegate tore down two pictures of Governor Smith, and threw them on the floor. In a fight that followed over the state standard, Mrs. Maidee B. Renshaw, of Pittsburgh, was struck on top of the head by the standard. She was slightly wounded, and was removed from the hall after her wounds had been dressed.

The 69th ballot stood: McAdoo, 530; Smith, 335; Davis, 64; scattered, 169. Total, 1098.

TWO DROWN IN KETTLE RIVER WHILE BATHING

Youth Gets Out of Depth; Older Man Goes to Rescue; Bodies Recovered

Ernest Simpson, a single man of 37, and Frank Maida, single, 19 years old, were drowned while in bathing in the Kettle river, near James creek, on Monday, according to information just received by the provincial police here.

Rocco Maida, brother of Frank, told the police, when they arrived at the scene of the tragedy, that Simpson and his brother had been hauling ties to the Kettle Valley railway, and that after unloading the ties they decided to go into the river to bath, at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Frank Maida, he said, could not swim, and Simpson could not swim well. In a few minutes Frank got into deep water and shouted for help.

Rescuer Goes Down

Simpson started to his assistance, and got within a few feet of him when they both went down. Rocco then ran to the nearest ranch for help.

W. B. Stewart, constable in charge of the Midway detachment of the provincial police, had a telephone message from G. S. Walters of Rock Creek, shortly afterward, and, with Staff Sergeant Fraser, went out to James creek.

He states in his report that when he got there he found Arthur Mellor and his gang of river drivers had recovered the body of Simpson, but they had been unable to locate Maida's body, as the river at that point was about 30 feet deep.

No Inquest

At about 8 o'clock in the evening the missing body was located with grappling irons, and brought ashore to await, with the other, the arrival of the coroner, Dr. Wood. He stated, when he came, that it was not necessary to hold an inquest.

Ernest Simpson was employed as a teamster with Mike Maida of James Creek. Frank Maida, Mike's son, was working with him on a pole contract at the same place.

WINNIPEG, July 4.—The charges made by G. H. Van Allen with regard to irregularities in handling grain at Vancouver, investigated by the royal grain inquiry commission, in a general way are held to be not substantiated, according to Ottawa dispatches to local newspapers today. The commission, it is stated, has forwarded its report to the government.

Ottawa Denies

OTTAWA, July 4.—The Turgeon report is before the cabinet, and the government absolutely refuses to give it out. The ministers deny that anything has been given out here.

FOUR MORE OF PROGRESSIVES LEAVE CAUCUS

Good, Coote, Elliott, Ward Send a Letter to Leader Forke

SECEDERS' NUMBER INCREASES TO TEN

New Recruits Declare Progressive Group Needs Reorganization

OTTAWA, July 4.—(By Canadian Press)—Four more Progressive members of parliament have withdrawn from attendance at the Progressive caucus, at least for the present session. These are in addition to the six who notified Robert Forke, Progressive leader, of their intention two weeks ago.

In their letter to Mr. Forke, the latest group of seceders, besides announcing their withdrawal from caucus for the present, express the view

W. C. GOOD, M.P., BRANT

"that a proper reorganization of the group would result in increased harmony and efficiency, and might bring about reunion."

The four who signed the letter sent to Mr. Forke tonight are: W. C. Good, Brant; G. G. Coote, McLeod; P. Elliott, Dundas, and W. J. Ward, Dauphin.

The text of their letter to Mr. Forke is as follows:

"As our names have been associated in recent newspaper dispatches with those of the seceding members of the Progressive group, and as there has been a demand that we should define our position, we herewith make the following statement:

Agree With Seceding Six

"In the first place, we should like to say that we are in large measure in agreement with the statement of principles and viewpoint issued by the seceding members.

"In the second place, as regards the work of parliament, we have been for a long time in active and regular collaboration with most of the seceders, and believe it our duty to continue that collaboration. For the remainder of the session, therefore, we think it better to discontinue our attendance at the Progressive caucus.

We believe, further, that a proper reorganization of the group would result in increased harmony and efficiency, and might bring about reunion. We sincerely hope that such a desirable reorganization may take place before the work of another session begins."

Forke Has No Comment

Mr. Forke received the letter from the four new members of the ginger group this evening but had not comment to make on it.

SEIZE BOOZE AT SMUGGLER'S COVE

Seattle Gas Boat, Two of Crew, and Sixty Cases, Are Picked up

VICTORIA, July 4.—Liquor stocks valued at $3500 were taken by officers of the provincial police and customs services yesterday, in a raid on Smuggler's Cove, Chatham Island group. The M.332, a speedy gasoline craft registered at Seattle, was seized with two of her crew, and 60 cases of whisky.

Captain Salley and William McKee, found on the confiscated craft, were turned over to the immigration authorities.

One craft, thought to be the Columbia, an American cabin cruiser of Seattle register, made out to sea, and avoided the inspection of the raiding party.

The M.332 stayed at anchor alongside a Canadian craft, a small cabin cruiser. On board the American vessel the police found between 50 and 60 cases of whisky.

The Canadian launch had a beer cargo, but as her papers were in perfect order and the cargo unbroached, she was allowed to go free.

OTTAWA, July 4.—The superannuation bill for Civil servants was given third reading in the house of commons this afternoon. There was no debate.

CAR OVER BANK ON ELKO HILL; INFANT KILLED

Daughter Jumps, Mother Is Thrown, Baby Carried Down the Declivity

FERNIE, B.C., July 4.—A fatal accident occurred on the Crow's Nest Pass highway last evening when a Chevrolet car driven by Mrs. A. L. Alpaugh of Craigmyle, Alta., on a return trip from the Okanagan, via Nelson, crashed over the embankment at Mott's hill, just east of Elko, instantly killing her four-months-old baby daughter Joan.

It appears that when Mrs. Alpaugh was driving on the hill, the gears slipped, and she lost control of the car. Another daughter, who was in the front seat immediately jumped out, the mother was thrown clear of the car when it turned completely over.

The baby, who was asleep in an automobile baby cradle in the back seat, was carried down the embankment, and crushed beneath the wreckage.

Mr. Alpaugh, who was driving a truck about half a mile behind, reached the scene of the accident a few minutes later, and returned with his family to Elko, and brought them to Fernie on the evening train. Mrs. Alpaugh was examined at the local hospital and was found to have sustained no injuries beyond a severe shaking up and shock.

The baby was interred in the Hillside cemetery here this forenoon.

WHISKEY DEALER GAVE TO PARTY

Was Quarter Million Paid to Lloyd George, Estate Trustee Is Asked

LONDON, July 4 (By Canadian Press Cable).—Extraordinary statements concerning the alleged gift of £50,000 to party funds was made at a meeting of the creditors of Sir John Stewart, the Scottish whisky dealer who shot himself in February last.

The trustee of the estate said Stewart's affairs were in a state of extreme confusion, and from a source beyond question it had been learned that the deceased had contributed £50,000 to party funds. The amount, however, had been repaid and distributed among the creditors.

The trustee refused to state to whom the $50,000 had been paid by Stewart.

"What that £50,000 paid to Lloyd George?" he was asked.

The trustee replied that he had not the slightest idea.

A solicitor acting for a creditor said steps would be taken to make the trustee divulge where the money went.

Delegate Hit by Chairman's Gavel Gets Concussion

NEW YORK, July 4.—Herman Schornstein of New York suffered concussion of the brain tonight when he was struck on the head by Chairman Walsh's gavel as it fell out of his hand and bounced to the delegates' space in the convention hall. His condition was not serious, it is said.

Dispatches report that Chairman Walsh has broken many gavels in attempting to keep order in the unruly convention.

MADE OR LOST A MILLION IN BETS

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 4.—John J. O'Connor, aged 68, former chief of police for 20 years, died last night at his home at Glendale, Cal. He retired in 1920. O'Connor was a follower of horse racing, and was said to have won and lost more than $1,000,000 in bets.

LAFOLLETTE OUT FOR PRESIDENT AS INDEPENDENT

Advises Conference for "Progressive Political Action" of His Views

NO THIRD PARTY AT THE PRESENT

But People Will Create it by New Alignment; His Name Cheered

CLEVELAND, O., July 4.—Senator Robert M. Lafollette of Wisconsin formally announced today that he would be an independent candidate for president.

He disclosed this intention and opposition to immediate formation of a new party in a message to the conference for progressive political action in session here.

Move to Indorse Premature

Immediately after the senator's statement had been read to the convention by his son, Robert M. Lafollette Jr. a motion was offered by Herman Wills, a vice-president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, to indorse the candidacy.

With delegates yelling, "Let's go," opposition to this procedure developed from Socialist sources.

Amid confusion Judge Jacob Panken of the New York municipal court made a point of order that until the convention was organized it could not act. This was upheld by William Johnston, chairman of the gathering.

Friends of Lafollette were convinced by the demonstration that accompanied mention of his name throughout the day approval of his candidacy would be given tomorrow before adjournment.

The message was a lengthy exposition of the senator's view of domestic and international political issues. After a bitter arraignment of both the old parties, which he declared could not be trusted to carry out their promises, he said:

"My appeal will be addressed to every class of the people and to every section of the country. I am a candidate upon the basis of my public record. I shall stand upon that record exactly as it is written and shall give my support only to such progressive principles and policies as are in harmony with it.

Adopts Wisconsin Platform

"As a declaration of the program I intend to carry into effect if elected to the presidency by votes of the people I have adopted in substance the platform submitted in a recent primary and indorsed by an overwhelming majority by the people of Wisconsin."

The new presidential candidate, outlining his opposition to immediate formation of a new party, declared there was not sufficient time for the adequate organization of such a party before the autumn elections.

He added:

"I stand for an honest realignment in American politicis confident that the people in November will take such action as will insure the creation of a new party in which all Progressives may unite."

Start Organizing

The sudden switch from the height of La Follette enthusiasm to the cold business of perfecting convention organization turned the delegates' thoughts to the various committees selected today.

The committee on credentials, resolutions, rules and finance must report tomorrow.

The platform of the convention is to be adopted, Lafollette indorsed for the candidacy and a vice-presidential candidate selected as the nominee of this convention.

CHURCH UNION BILL IS FOUGHT TO LAST DITCH

Two Amendments Are "Lost on Division"; One for Court Reference

COMMONS GIVES THIRD READING

Nearly Three Months in House, Bill Now Goes to the Senate

OTTAWA, July 4.—(By Canadian Press)—The church union bill has passed the house of commons, and gone up to the senate. The final stage took place this evening, when, after the rejection of two amendments, the third reading was carried. No vote was recorded on either of the amendments, or on the third reading, but William Duff of Lunenburg asked that the minutes contain the statement that these decisions were reached only "on division."

This implies a formal recognition that apposition was continued to the end, though no division lists appeared in Hansard. A division was recorded Tuesday night on the Duff amendment to change the name of the new church to "The United Church in Canada" instead of "The United Church of Canada;" this amendment was defeated by 90 to 58.

Would Delay Application

When the bill was called this evening, Alfred Stork, Liberal, Skeena, moved, seconded by W. G. Raymond, Liberal, Brantford, that the bill be amended to provide that it should not apply to the Presbyterian church until all doubts of the powers of the general assembly to agree to union had been removed, and that this question be referred to the supreme court of Canada.

There was no discussion, and this amendment was declared "lost on division."

Mr. Duff then moved, seconded by Mr. Stork, to amend the bill to provide that the vote on union in the congregations should be taken by a circulated ballot, instead of at a meeting of the congregation. This amendment, like the previous one, was declared "lost on division."

Without further debate, third reading was then "carried on division," and the long struggle over the bill in the house of common, which began nearly three months ago, on April 10, was over.

Shantung University

When this measure had been disposed of another bill of a religious nature was taken up, in the proposal of E. B. Ryckman, Conservative, East Toronto, to incorporate the Shantung Christian university, which met with some opposition, and eventually had to be laid over.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, opened the discussion by asking whether the department of justice had passed upon the constitutionality of the bill ,and J. S. Woodsworth, Labor, Center Winnipeg, wanted to know whether the degree to be granted by this university would be good in Canada or in China.

Hon. A. B. Copp, secretary of state, said that he though the bill did not go beyond the powers of parliament, and Mr. Meighen agreed that it was not unusual for the Canadian parliament to incorporate institutions to carry on their operations in another country.

Mr. Woodsworth, however, pressed his objection, recalling that a charter had been refused to the Frontier college last session, and he was supported by A. W. Neill, Independent, Comox-Alberni.

In the absence of the sponsor, Mr. Ryckman, the bill was then allowed to stand over.

SAYE HERRIOT PROOF AGAINST RUHR CHEESE

French statesmanship to deal with. It is only those who have had for years to contend against the Ruhr obsession who can fully appreciate what a gain this is to negotiation.

But I am not sure that the greatest advantage enjoyed by this conference over all its predecessors will not be found to be the presence, for the first time since Versailles, of a participating American delegation. Since President Wilson left Paris, America has been represented at international conferences in Europe by men who occupied the humiliating position of mere note-takers. They were dumb, but not deaf. They took no part in discussions, as they were expressly forbidden to express any opinions on behalf of their government. Many a time have I seen a crucial decision, which would have been given the right turn had America weighed in with her mighty influence, either going wrong, or not going at all. I have on these occasions wished that the eyes of America could have been fixed for one brief hour on the confrence table, to view the gigantic issues that were trembling in the balance, and awaiting, were it but one grain of her authority, to settle down.

Europe has often besought, in the making of a real peace, that American aid which was such a decisive factor when thrown into the scales of war. Up till October last, America turned a deaf ear to all these plans. She has come in at last, and that fact in itself ought to ensure the success of this conference.

Coolidge Declared Peace

When President Coolidge decided to appoint an expert to join the commission set up to investigate the reparations difficulty, it was as momentous a decision as President Wilson's declaration of war. It was America's declaration of peace. It is much easier for both France and Germany to defer to the wishes of America than to the pressure exerted by Britain alone. France has no sense of rivalry with America to cloud her judgment, and Germany knows that the goodwill of America is essential to the restoration of her credit. Nothing but unimaginable blunderings can steer this conference into failure.

Every power concerned has accepted the Dawes report. What is more important, every power concerned needs the Dawes report, and wants the Dawes report. There is therefore no "arriere Pensee" in the general acceptance of this lucky report. It ought, therefore, to have a walk-over at the conference.

It will then have to walk through the lobbies of the reichstag, on to the statute book of Germany. The journey will be made easier if the London negotiators will always bear in mind that there is a dangerous opinion in Germany, as well as in France, to be conciliated.

Sane Germans Need Support

It is for that reason that I think the allies would have done well to have invited Germany to London to sit at the table on equal terms with the other conferring nations. The psychological effect would have been great in Germany itself. It would have made it easier for the wise men of Germany, who are laboring for peace, and facing much obliquity in insuring it, to persuade their countrymen not to listen to the counsels of despair and vengeance.

To treat Germany as a servile nation, on whose part it would be an impertinence to discuss the orders it receives, is to offend its decent and honorable national pride. There was an excuse, at the time of the Versailles treaty, for not calling her into the conference from the start. Time was pressing, and to have entered into prolonged negotiations with Germany on all the terms of that colossal document might have postponed the advent of peace. Millions of men would have had to be kept under arms, and the tension, as well as the burden of delay, would have been intolerable.

But there is no such justification in the present conditions. In the end, time will be saved by face-to-face discussion, and I sincerely hope that the Chequers decision in this respect will be reversed.

Two Influences

As far as I am able to judge, the action of Germany will be primarily determined by two considerations.

The first is the prospect held out by the allies of substantial loans to help her to reestablish her currency.

The second will be the attitude of France and Belgium toward the evacuation of the Ruhr. Here there may be trouble. M. Herriot's declarations are not, on the face of them, by any means satisfactory. Mr. MacDonald seems to have pleaded for an "invisible occupation." This is one of the vague phrases in which he is wont to indulge. It was too misty for M. Herriot either to reject or to accept. He is a business man. He therefore replied by stipulating for a free hand for France and Belgium.

If this only means that he is retaining the Ruhr occupation for the present as a negotiating pawn, all may yet be well. But if he meant his words in the Poincare sense, then there will be mischief.

Poincare Had Mental Reservation

As I have already said in the course of this article, I believe the Herriot government has accepted the Dawes report in good faith. The displaced reactionary government also accepted it, but it was clear that they had an "arriere pensee." They meant, by one excuse or another, to retain their military hold on the Ruhr, with a view to securing two objects. The first is deep in all French hearts, the second has sunk deep into many French pockets. The former is security for the French frontiers; the second is opportunity for French financiers.

Many Frenchmen honestly believe that France will never be safe unless the arsenals of Westphalia are under French control.

French financiers and forgemasters believe that the industries of France can only be made great and prosperous by economic control of the resources of the Ruhr.

The Poincare government could never get away from these influences. The mandate of the last election liberated French diplomacy. M. Herriot is a free man. The success of the conference will depend largely on his making full use of his freedom.

I am very hopeful of success—and that the Dawes report will, in a few weeks, be an essential part of the international system of Europe.

MOVIE MAD

By HAZEL DEYO BATCHELOR

Copyright, 1924, by Public Ledger Company.

Gloria King comes to Hollywood with the idea of making good in the movies. She marries Rolf Templeton, the great screen star, a man she despises, but one who can further her career, and later leaves him because she is unhappy. It is then that she makes good through talent alone, but she becomes spoiled and leads a life of false gayety. She is determined to regain her freedom, but just at this time Rolf is seized with pneumonia and during the [illegible] for his life Gloria discovers that [illegible] cares for him. In his delirium [illegible] tells her that he loves her, but he does not remember it afterward.

CHAPTER LI.

Vera's Little Game

TO SAY that Vera was angry at her obvious dismissal is to put it rather mildly, for she was furious. But she was also clever, and as it has been said before, possessed of unlimited nerve. Her ability to take punishment, as the phrase goes, had landed her in the movies, and kept her there in spite of the fact that she had little besides her looks to recommend her. She was afraid of nothing, and in her early days had been willing to double for several actresses when dangerous stunts were required. This training had made her very sure of herself, and it was with the utmost self-possession that she walked in upon Rolf the next afternoon. This time she found him alone, and when at teatime several other people arrived it was Vera who poured the tea and played the hostess.

After this she made a point of dropping in to see Rolf every day, and before the week was out she had accomplished her purpose. People were talking about her, coupling her name with Rolf's. It was the entering wedge.

Gloria was treated to an exaggerated account of the newest scandal and in her present state of mind she was easily convinced. Rolf and Vera! Well, it might as well be Vera as any one else in the colony, and yet it seemed incongruous to think of Rolf caring for a girl of Vera's type. Somehow she could not think of him as the conceited, arrogant man she had once known. His illness had changed her opinion of him. The fight for his life had brought them very close. And yet, he didn't really care in spite of what he had said. His feeling for her had been no more than thwarted desire. He had wanted her merely because he couldn't have her.

One morning before Gloria was dressed Vivyan burst in upon her.

"Gloria, I'm going to ask you a plain question," she began impetuously. "Are you going to hand Rolf over to Vera Vamp? She seems determined to get him, and I for one can't understand your attitude. I've kept still about matters between you and Rolf until I can't stand it any longer. Don't you love him? Is it true that you are going to get a divorce?"

"I'm not handing Rolf over to any one," Gloria said evenly, after a long moment. "He's perfectly free to do as he likes with his life, and if he wants Vera I suppose he'll have her."

"If he wants Vera!" Vivyan repeated scornfully. "That isn't the point. Vera wants him. She needs a boost with the public, and she thinks she can get it through Rolf, that's all."

"Well," Gloria returned impulsively, "that's why I married him. Poor Rolf, he seems fated to serve as a stepping stone, doesn't he?" Her tone was flippant.

"But you didn't need a stepping stone," Vivyan persisted. "You would have made good anyway; in fact, you did."

"But I didn't know that until it was too late," Gloria went on. "Now you know the truth, Vivyan, and you can see what a fool I have been."

"That's all right. You may not have loved Rolf when you married him, but you love him now, and he loves you."

Gloria shook her head. "You're all wrong, Vivyan, Rolf doesn't love me."

"Then you admit that you love him."

"I didn't say that."

"But you do love him, I know you do. Why, you were half frantic when no one thought he was going to live, and now you calmly propose handing him over to a girl like Vera Vamp. I'm surprised at you, Gloria. I thought you had more backbone than that. If I loved him, I'd fight for him, whether he loved me or not."

NO PLAYING IN NEW AUTO CAMP

Children Must Keep Out of New Building and Away From Tourists

Many complaints have been received of late from residents in the vicinity of the auto park at the officials ordering the children of that neighborhood from the auto park grounds. Residents in that locality state that the children have been accustomed to playing in the parks, and that it is impossible for the city to order them from a public place.

Of late the menace of children playing in the parks has become very bad; and the children, not content with playing about the grounds, have even entered the new up-to date camp home, playing on the verandahs and causing more or less trouble.

At last night's special counsel meeting this matter was thoroughly thrashed out, and it was decided to allow the children some space in the grounds, but that they must not cross over the road which runs through the camp.

A committee consisting of Alderman Ross Fleming and City Electrical Engineer Coates was chosen to look after the placing of posters in the camp building regarding the operating of the grills and wash basins.

JUNE HAS LESS RAIN THAN FOR 10 YEARS

More Hours of Sunshine Than Last Year in Same Month. Little Wind

June, 1924, had 245 hours and 42 minutes of sunshine; that is 51 hours and 10 minutes more than June, 1923, stated to J. S. Goulding, meteorologist, last night.

Rain fell on 17 days, on 5 of which there was only a trace; so little that it was not measurable, Mr. Goulding said. On the other 12 days the amount of precipitation was 1.99 of an inch. This was .45 of an inch less than general average for June for the last 10 years. The greatest fall of rain took place on June 16, when .45 of an inch came down.

There were 6 thunderstorms during the month, none of any particular violence. These occurred on June 4, 5, 12, 15, 18 and 22.

Mean Temperature Fifty-eight

The mean temperature of the month was 58 degrees, Mr. Goulding stated, which is 2 degrees less than the average for June. The maximum temperature was 92.9, on June 20, and the lowest maximum was 35 degrees, on the 23rd.

The highest barometer reading for June occurred on the 29, when 30.28 inches was registered, and lowest on the 16th and 17th, the reading on these two days being 29.63 inches.

The greatest wind velocity for the month was the windstorm of the 21st, when it blew 32 miles an hour, coming from a northeasterly direction.

An Indian known in Arizona as "The Ace of Spades" became so attached to the county jail at Yuma that when his sentence recently expired he had to be ejected forcibly. SPRINKLING REGULATIONS ENFORCED

Low Water Supply Brings About Regulation for the Garden Sprinkler

There was no change in the water situation in the city reservoir yesterday, neither for good nor for bad, according to city officials. The water level is still alarmingly low.

At a special meeting of the city council last night, called to deal with the water situation, it was decided to regulate the hours of sprinkling lawns and garden in the city, thus eliminating all-day and all-night sprinkling which is, it is thought, the cause of the water level being so low. It was stated that the water was entering the reservoir at the same rate as had been in the past few months.

After much discussion it was decided by the council members to regulate the hours of watering and impose a penalty on those violating the sprinkling law, which comes into force today.

Sprinkle at Night

As in previous years the hours for sprinkling of streets, alleys and sidewalks shall be between 6 and 9 o'clock in the morning. There shall be no sprinkling between the hours of 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sprinkling for gardens and lawns in the city below Innes street will be permissible between the hours of 6 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and above Innes street between 8:30 p.m. and 11 p.m.

It was pointed out by the councillors that much water was being wasted in the city owing to leaky taps and running water closets, and through other unnecessary causes.

For an infraction of the sprinkling regulations stated above and for allowing water to waste unnecessarily will mean the turning off of the water to the residence of the person causing the infraction of the regulation. One warning will, however, be given.

Once a person's water is turned off for not obeying the regulations it will be necessary that he pay to the city a sum of $2.50 before he can have his service resumed. Any subsequent infraction of the regulation will call for a payment of $5 for the resumption of the service.

TREE FELLED ON MOTORIST

Spokane Car Damaged Just This Side of Boundary Line; Police Investigate

Cutting down trees along highways in this district is daily becoming dangerous, and for the second time in a short while motorists have reported trees felled along the highways.

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Durham of Spokane were driving to this city via the Nelson-Spokane highway, and when just two miles across the international boundary line, on the Canadian side, a tree was felled on them. Fortunately it struck the engine hood, doing considerable damage. Had the tree fallen six inches further back, it would have killed or seriously injured the driver. The driver reported the accident to the provincial police, who are investigating.

NELSON, CRANBROOK SCORE NINETY-NINE

Make Their High Point of Season; Grand Forks Hundred and Two

Nelson and Cranbrook scored new high temperatures for the season, yesterday, with 99 degrees each at the top mark, but they were second to Grand Forks, which scored 102. That was Grand Forks' second best effort of the season, as early in the week it attained the sizzling figure of 109. Kaslo yesterday made 89, its second highest of the season.

All these Kootenay points were in the 50's during the night preceding, Kaslo 59, Grand Forks 58, Nelson 55 and Cranbrook 53.

The heat wave also maintained its hold elsewhere in the interior, Vernon scoring 92, Penticton 92, and Kamloops 94.

FIFTEEN TONS SOFT FRUIT IN THREE DAYS

Okanagan Fruit and Vegetables on Sale Now; Early Cherries Shipped

Strawberries, a few cherries, apricots, cantaloups, watermelons and tomatoes are pouring into Nelson at present, and in addition local vegetables are on sale in the grocery stores.

An indication of the rapid development of the fruit business in the Slocan valley is given by the amount of strawberries shipped into Nelson within the last week, nine tons for jamming, and other purposes having come in Monday, and six tons Wednesday, a total of 15 tons in three days. Raspberries are not coming in yet.

Good supplies of apricots and tomatoes are coming from the Okanagan district, and cantaloups and watermelons from across the line in large quantities.

Red, black and white currants and a few gooseberries, are coming in, but so far only in small quantities.

It is stated in town that cherries are an uncertain quality so far, as some growers report a record crop, and others say it is a very poor cherry year. So far 134 crates of early variety of cherry, ready some 10 days or two weeks earlier than most varieties grown in the district, have been shipped out of Nelson by local growers. It is expected that large shipments will be made in the next two weeks, if the optimistic growers are right about the quantities ripening now.

Local cabbages, beets, carrots, cucumbers tomatoes and new potatoes are being shown in the grocery stores this week.

Finnish Lutheran Synod Refuses the Missouri Overture

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., July 4.—By a decisive vote taken in a convention here today, the Finnish Evangelical Lutheran National Church of America declined the invitation of the Missouri synod of Lutheran churches to unite with them.

Objection was taken to the union for several reasons, it was stated, chiefly that the Finnish Evangelical National church wished to continue a national language institution. The churches in the Missouri synod are German Lutheran.

The vote this morning was unanimous, and followed considerable discussion in the Finnish language.

CONTRACTORS FAIL TO TAKE OUT A PERMIT

Assessed Costs After Being Found Guilty by Magistrate Brown

T. H. Waters & Company limited, a local woodworking firm and contractors, were on Tuhrsday morning in city police court before Magistrate W. Brown, assessed $6.35 for costs, after being found guilty of an infraction of bylaw 136 section 7, which deals with the matter of obtaining a permit to do alteration work within the fire limits.

Information was laid against the firm by M. H. Maloney, fire chief and building inspector for the city, when the firm did alteration work on the Hipperson Hardware company's store recently without having made formal application to the inspector of buildings of the city for a permit to do the work.

E. C. Wragge of Hamilton & Wragge appeared for the defendant company and H. C. Irving of O'Shea and Irving, for the city. Three witnesses were called by the prosecution, they being C. W. Appleyard, W. E. Wasson and M. H. Maloney.

The defendants pleaded not guilty to the charge as read. Mr. Appleyard, the first witness called, stated that he had arranged with Mr. Waters to get a permit but that he had got confused between the two permits, one from the city and one from his insurance company, consequently a city permit was not taken out.

Repairs Were Done

"Repairs were done to the building June," stated C. W. Appleyard, "I called for a tender for certain repairs from T. H. Waters & Co., earlier in the month, and accepted it, dealing with Fred and T. H. Waters, whom I understood represented the company. Repairs wanted were the lowering of the sash of a window to the level of an adjoining one."

Mr. Appleyard said that he had not applied to the city for a permit, and knew that one had not been applied for.

Under cross-examination he said that Fred Waters had spoken both to him and to a clerk in his office about a city permit for the repairs. He had intended to get one. He had a letter from the insurance company asking him to get a permit from the company to do the work. He had placed a plate glass insurance policy with his head office in Victoria, and asked them for a permit to do the work. The company, Mr. Appleyard said, had sent him a policy without the proper permit, and he had seen Fred Waters and told him to hold up the work until he got the proper permit. After receiving it he told Waters to go ahead.

"He probably misunderstood me, thinking I referred to the city permit, which I had forgotten," he concluded.

No Application Made

Murdock H. Maloney, fire chief and building inspector, in his testimony said that he knew the building in question, which was occupied by the Hipperson Hardware company, and on which repair work had been done on June 19. He stated no one had applied to him for a permit to do the work. He said he had been present when T. H. Waters was prosecuted under the charge, and the explanation given them was not sufficient to prevent this charge being laid. He had made no complaint to the city council about T. H. Waters, he said, but he had previously complained about the company dropping their sawdust on top of the city incinerator, just behind the city hall.

W. E. Wasson's testimony, was to the effect that, as city clerk, it had been his custom to keep a permit book in his officee, where persons about to make any alterations signed an application for a permit.

Should Have Permit

"At a time when neither Chief Maloney nor I knew who was doing the repair work to the Hipperson Hardware store, I called his attention to this alteration work, and asked him if any one had obtained a permit from him for that work," he stated, and went on to say: "I was not in court when T. H. Waters was prosecuted. I take responsibility for drawing Chief Maloney's attention. I do not take the responsibility of this information. The permit must be obtained from the building inspector. This bylaw is not lived up to in its entirety. We try to live up to it."

In conclusion he said: "I am satisfied that it was a mistake on the part of Mr. Appleyard and the defendant, but the defendant made a similar mistake about three months ago. I think the corporation doing the work must apply for a permit. The workmen do not need a permit.

DISCUSS PLANS FOR VICEROY'S VISIT

Council Names Special Program Committee; Affair Will Be Informal

No elaborate celebration will be planned for the visit of the governor-general of Canada, Lord Byng of Vimy, according to action taken at last night's special council meeting called to deal with this matter.

A communication from the governor-general was read which stated that he would be in this city for a few hours and that he would like to meet the people of Nelson.

A discussion ensued last night whether or not a special celebration, with a parade, etc., should be staged. It was finally settled that the governor, on his arrival, would be conducted by motor to Lakeside park, where a short address of welcome would be given, and the gathering then thrown open for the people to meet Byng of Vimy.

A special program committee, composed of Alderman R. Fleming and City Clerk W. E. Wasson, was named by the council to deal with the matter and to report.

A Tribute to Nelson Public Schools

For some years one of the criticisms directed against the educational system of this province was that pupils were not taught to write. It was declared that the penmanship of pupils grew worse and worse from year to year.

There was good ground for this criticism, in Nelson as well as elsewhere, up to a year or two ago.

Since that time great improvements have been made and the comment has often been heard that Nelson public school was at last teaching penmanship and teaching it well.

Striking tribute to the work which is being done at this time comes in the statement of H. B. MacLean, the originator of the system of writing which is in use in this province, to Miss Enid Etter, supervisor of penmanship at the Nelson public school, in which he says:

"I do not believe that in Canada or the United States there can be found a school of the size of yours in which such good penmanship is being produced in all grades. This reflected the highest credit upon yourself, as supervisor of writing, and upon the teachers and pupils of your school."

That is a tribute which is all the more gratifying because it is well earned.

The King and Labor

An interesting article has been contributed to the London Spectator by Mrs. Philip Snowden, wife of the chancellor of the exchequer in the Labor government, on the relation of the latter to the monarchy. She is most definite in proclaiming the loyalty of the party, of which both she and her husband are leading members, to the throne and its recognition of the usefulness of the latter as a part of the constitution.

Mrs. Snowden declared that unless it could be shown that the monarchy was responsible for the existence of poverty and was an obstacle to its removal, it would be a waste of time and effort to direct agitation toward the establishment of a republic.

"Indeed, I think," she wrote, "that in a country like our own, where the head of the state is a constitutional monarch who stands outside party and political controversies and acts only on the advice of his ministers, who in effect are chosen by the people, there is a greater safeguard of democratic ideals than in a country where the temporary head of the state is the creation of party politics. There is certainly greater security for purity in the national administration. The strength of the monarchy in Great Britain lies in its strict aloofness from political partisanship. . . . I have often heard it said in days gone by that a Labor government would never have fair play because it would be sabotaged by the court and the permanent civil service. These fears have been proved to be quite unfounded. From the King downward throughout the civil service the Labor government have had nothing but fair play. . . . The smoothness with which the Labor government was formed and with which its course has run so far is a wonderful example of the adaptability of the British constitution. That constitution, broadening down from precedent to precedent, has proved itself capable of entrusting the government of the country, with the cooperation of the King, to men who have no claims to high office on the ground of birth, class, or academic distinction but whose claims rest on personal merit, public service, and the free choice of a democratic people. It is a great constitution which provides for this association of the King and a Labor government in the administration of national affairs."

If there has been any departure from the way in which the crown usually acts it has been shown, according to Mrs. Snowden, in the punctilious care on the part of the King not to give the least ground for suspicion that the Labor government was regarded by him as in any way different from a Liberal or Conservative government. She adds that to the credit of the ministers it must be said that they have made the task of the King easy by accepting all the existing constitutional usages, in spite of the fact that in doing so they left themselves open to attacks by some of those whose votes placed them in power.

Whenever I hear a housekeeper say: "I hate to wash dishes," I know that that housekeeper is not a happy woman. Why, Because the housekeeper who has found contentment doesn't mind a pile of soiled dishes; she hurries through them a song on her lips.

I base this statement on my observation of a good many housekeepers. I have invariably found that the contented woman is the one who can perform her irksome duties philosophically. And I believe that every woman can find this contentment which resigns her to her daily burdens. I believe that this contentment comes through having a gripping interest of some sort outside of one's housework.

If you disagree with me in this contention, just watch the woman who is wrapped up in some big enterprise such as club work, church work or some particular way she has found to make money at home; she rushes through her dishwashing and cleaning with her mind fixed eagerly on the reward which lies ahead—the reward of getting, at last, to the interest which absorbs her. She hasn't time to grumble about "the grind of housework." She is too much absorbed in that bigger interest to let her thoughts dwell on the necessary housekeeping duty at hand.

"But suppose I can't become interested in anything?" I think I hear some of my reader friends replying. To which I answer: "Make yourself take an interest in something outside of your work! For instance, start making one of the old-fashioned hooked rugs. You'll soon find that you won't be able to keep away from that rug-frame. (I have just finished making one myself, so I know from experience!) You are bound to become absorbed in it, once you start. Or, if you prefer, start to knit or crochet some garment; it will grow more fascinating as it increases in size.

After all, we are all still children at heart. A child will master his school lessons twice as quickly if promised the reward of a picnic for so doing. And you and I, too, need some pleasure ahead if we would do our best work; the prospect of some interesting occupation awaiting us, lightens our more irksome tasks and keeps us from indulging in that most unworthy of all emotions: self-pity. We are tempted to feel sorry for ourselves only when we have no deep and absorbing interest in our lives; but when we once find such an interest we are only sorry for others who haven't one!

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in charge of "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use your full name, street number, and the name of your city and province.

Foster's Weekly Weather Bulletin

Temperature for Month of June, 1924

Center line of small stars represents normal temperature for the month, while round dots show the predicted variations.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—The moon and planets say that, for July, crop weather will favor the countries east of Meridian 90, east of the Mississippi and Red river of the north, and that the winds, coming from east ward, will continue to carry westward large amounts of moisture, causing that excessive humidity that makes both warm and cold weather very oppressive. As the United States weather bureau is at enmity with our friendly old moon I will be inclined to indorse that weather bureau's unfriendliness toward our orb of the night if the July humidity falls below normal southwest of Hudson bay, where our government and that of Canada have their record instruments at work. If that biting humidity east of Rockies' crest continues through July as understand the moon to say it will, and if the best crop weather continues to be on the east half of the continent, I will have a basis on which to ask Uncle Sam's weather boys to give that faithful old nocturnal visitor a long needed rest from their bitter onslaughts.

I am seriously thinking of publishing a complete explanation of my weather forecast system. Our race needs it, and one man working alone cannot bring out its best features. The crops in southeastern Russia are doomed to destruction. knew of that destruction before the seed was sown.

The Lighter Side

A man is as old as his wife's charge account.

Every citizen is entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of balls in the rough.

An old-timer is one who can remember when a girl blushed with delight when called "domestic."

The summer resorts are open—where the frost is on poor Father, and the chaperones are shocked.

Woman must have intuition. Nothing less could enable her to select the particular insult best designed to make you froth at the mouth.

There's little to do about a boil on the neck except to kill friendly people who slap you on the back.

Generally there are no grouchy-looking men about a newspaper office except the one who writes the funny stuff.

Once men were hairy all over, but nobody knows what hair tonic was used to make the hair fall off.

Some of the motorists we know could possibly keep on the road if they were driving through a tunnel.

A good reporter gets all the facts of the accident except the name of the owner of the ankle the driver was staring at.

For that matter, farm labor could organize and get an eight-hour day if people would be willing to buy beans at three for a nickel.

After all, was it really worth it? King Tut waited 3,000 years and didn't get any more publicity than the ukulele and the pogo stick.

A dentist says most men are more efficient with their teeth out. And yet one would naturally expect them to gum things up.

Correct this sentence: "It's more the heat than the humidity that bothers me."

Sidelights on a Great Industry

770,000 MILES OF SHINGLES

B. C.'S ANNUAL OUTPUT WOULD GIRDLE THE EARTH THIRTY TIMES

The Red Cedar Shingle-Roof Excells All Other in Desirable Qualities

THE manufacture of red cedar shingles is a branch of the Forest Industries of British Columbia of outstanding importance.

There are 95 shingle mills in this province and in 1923 these plants manufactured 2,500,000,000 shingles to the approximate value of $10,000,000.

If laid end to end this yearly cut of shingles would reach over 770,000 miles, or more than 30 times around the earth!

Approximately 1,000 feet of lumber is required to make 8,000 shingles.

B. C.'s annual shingle cut would also provide roofs for 125,000 modern residences.

Red cedar grows to the best advantage in British Columbia, which possesses 60% of the world's supply of this wonderful timber. In 1923 the red cedar cut was 573,000,000 ft. Considerably more than half of this amount was used in the manufacture of shingles.

The B. C. shingle industry has an annual payroll of $3,000,000 and employs about 2,600 men, irrespective of those engaged in logging the red cedar for shingle manufacture.

The British Columbia edge grain shingle makes the most artistic and least expensive roofing there is. Recent independent official fire tests have also established its remarkable freedom from fire risks.

A red cedar roof well laid with the proper zinc-coated or pure iron nails, will last half a century. In her red cedar shingle industry British Columbia possesses a wonderful industrial inheritance.

This series of articles communicated by the Timber Industries Council of British Columbia.

Styles BY LENORE

WORTH KNOWING

Simultaneously with hints of a rising waistline in fall clothes, comes a fashion for wide leather belts to be worn, not merely at a lowered waistline, but actually around the hips! Already they are being exploited on summer sport dresses, but an advance fall frock of navy blue reps has also adopted the idea.

Of the two belt illustrated above the one on the figure is made of brown leather, with a hand-toole l pocket for a bright handkerchief.

A stunning dress worn at a smart roof garden restaurant the other evening was made of coarse white lace over black chiffon. A large red rose with very long stem was the only decoration.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Your Hundred Per Cent

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright act.)

You have seen a strong man give an exhibition of his strength and agility, and have likely considered him as a hundred per cent man. His muscles stood out on his entire body like the "village blacksmith's arm." You have then beheld a strong, lithe, rangy boxer, like Dempsey or Carpentier, with less muscle and perhaps a light covering of flesh over some of the muscular parts.

You say to yourself, "Well, Dempsey and Carpentier are hundred per cent,, and yet there's a difference."

Then, again, you see a light, wiry chap of one hundred and fifty pounds who can do an all-around hard day's labor without fatigue, and you feel that he must be a hundred per cent man.

As a matter of fact, you are right in all these cases, because you can only compare the present condition of each of these types of men with what their body can do when it is at its best.

Now, what about you?

Are you one hundred per cent?

You may have a strong body and be capable of a hard day's work, but you have a kink in your shoulder or a pain in a joint.

Perhaps you have to be extremely careful about your diet.

An aching tooth or a throat that gives you trouble may be your portion. It may be that toward evening you find yourself more tired than you think you should be for your age, or for the amount of work you have done.

Now, you are in pretty good shape physically and yet you know in your heart you are not your one hundred per cent.

The optimist who thinks nothing can ever be seriously wrong with him, or the pessimist who imagines all sorts of ailments, can both be wrong in their estimate of the percentage of health they possess.

So, take a look into your own condition. If you are not really your hundred per cent why not go after it? Living to be a great age may be all right, but having your hundred per cent now is what counts.

Next year a million square miles of North America must bear the same kind of calamity. These sufferings can largely be avoided by the use of my discoveries, and as the world has been good to me I begin to feel that I should do its people a great favor.

The cause of our strange weather since middle of April has complete control of the world's crop weather for this crop season. It melted the icebergs, caused the warm arctic winter and our backward spring. Strange as it may seem it sent the Pacific slope a great winter drouth, caused the fish of the eastern Pacific ocean to congregate near the eastern Pacific coast, and, of course, the northern whales went there to get the little fish. Orthodox scientists say the Japan earthquake drove the whales there. Such philosophy is the curse of orthodox science.

That fish story will be repeated a little east of our New England coasts beginning next May. The sharks will be there as they were a little farther southwest a few years ago. The great drouths on land are twins to the great salt water fish congregatings.

I am in my 85th year, as young as the average man of 50, owe no man a dollar, own one of the best $10,000 homes in Washington, have a good bank account and, if I should meet with financial disaster because of giving away the basis of my income, the doors of two homes, the G.A.R. and the Masonic, will be open for me. I have asked the advice of my most intimate friends on this proposition.

Geranium red is a favorite evening shade this present season abroad.

The dropping of the water level in the lake, which commenced more then a week ago, has improved the fishing immensely. Good baskets were made locally, and at the outside points the fishing was unusually good. Messrs. O'Shea, Payne, McLeod and Reid spent Saturday and Sunday on Midge creek, and caught so many fish that they tired of the sport.

Putting the "Jell" into Jelly

New method of making jelly entirely eliminates all failures.

By ANN PROCTOR

Jelly making used to be a gamble. Brides have cried over soft, runny jelly almost as often as their first pies. Even experienced home makers found at the end of a blistering day that the coquettish juice absolutely refused to become clear and of the right consistency. Stiff, rubbery jelly was also a discredit to the prestige of the good cook.

Ripe fruit that would give the best flavor was not suitable for jelly making because it did not contain that mysterious substance called Pectin, which made jelly "jell." Certain fruits, such as peaches, pears, cherries, rhubarb, strawberries and blackberries absolutely refused to turn into jelly.

Along came science in the laboratory to aid the thousands of jelly makers who have faced disappointment in past seasons, and the result is bottled pectin, a real jelly making insurance, sold under the name of Certo.

Certo is pure—contains no gelatine or preservative. Jams and jellies made the Certo way will keep perfectly. Certo saves time and guesswork and you get 50 per cent. more jam or jelly from the same amount of fruit. It is highly endorsed by cooking experts everywhere. Ask your friends about it.

To make Raspberry Jelly by the simple Certo process:

Crush thoroughly 2½ to 3 quarts berries. Place fruit in cheesecloth bag and squeeze out juice. Then drip juice through cotton-flannel bag if a sparkling jelly is desired. Measure 3 cups of juice and 6½ level cups sugar into large kettle. Stir and bring to a boil. At once add 1 bottle Certo, stirring constantly and bring again to a FULL BOIL for ONE HALF minute. Remove from fire, let stand 1 minute, skim and pour quickly. Use same recipe for strawberry, blackberry or loganberry jelly.

Cherry Jelly is something which the housewife has never been able to make before. It is most delicious and is so easily made by the following recipe:

Stem and crush well about 3 lbs. ripe sour cherries. Add ½ cup water. Stir until boiling, cover pan and simmer 10 minutes. Strain juice through a jelly bag. Measure 3 cups juice and 6½ level cups sugar into large kettle, stir and bring to a boil. At once add 1 bottle Certo, stirring constantly and bring again to a FULL BOIL for ONE HALF MINUTE. Remove from fire, let stand 1 minute, skim and pour quickly.

The making of Grape Jelly has always been uncertain but it can be made so easily if you follow these simple instructions:—

Stem and crush thoroughly about 3 lbs. grapes. Add ½ cup water, stir until boiling and simmer 10 minutes in covered saucepan. Place in jelly bag and strain out juice. Measure 4 cups juice and 8 level cups sugar into a large kettle, stir and bring to a boil. At once add 1 bottle Certo, stirring constantly and bring again to a FULL BOIL for ONE HALF MINUTE. Remove from fire, let stand 1 minute, skim and pour quickly.

If you write to the Douglas Packing Company, Limited, Cobourg, they will send you a free recipe booklet of 73 recipes for making jams and jellies. 104

RATEPAYERS OF TRAIL INDORSE STREET BYLAW

Association Gets Behind Mulligan Ordinance for Ten Thousand Dollars

TRAIL, B.C., July 4.—The ratepayers association held a meeting in the city hall Monday evening, with a fair attendance.

The resolution of the city council fathered by Alderman Millyan, who explained the system to the meeting in detail, was indorsed. This means that the representative ratepayers present were of the opinion that $10,000 should be raised by bylaws for the purpose of the big street improvement, enhancing the whole of Rossland avenue, the Gulch, and the contract arranged between the council and another party with reference to any amount which, in the opinion of the city council, may be necessary to complete the whole scheme.

When complete, the roadway from the city boundary in the west, on the Rossland road, to the bridge in the south, will be one continuous paved highway.

Grader Separate

As to the council is buying a grader for use of the whole city, the cost, $2300 or thereabout, is not included in this $100,000.

This amount, $2300, it is understood, falls to be taken from general revenue account.

United Church of Rossland Holds Its Midsummer Outing

ROSSLAND, B.C., July 4.—The Sunday school of the United Church of Rossland held its annual picnic in the Spitzee ground Saturday afternoon. Races of various sorts occupied the first few hours for the older scholars, while the babies found plenty of greensward on which they could play under the watchful eye of the mothers. A bountiful supper was served at 5 o'clock, after which baseball and other sports took up the time until darkness fell.

The Berean class of the United church Sunday school held a meeting Saturday afternoon and elected the following officers. President, Miss Marion Bisson; vice-president, Miss Grace Newman; secretary-treasurer, Miss Esther Berg; social committee, Miss Edna Johnson, Miss Isabella Scuffham; membership committee, Miss Jessie Stevens, Miss Josephine Roscorla and Miss Dorothy Bisson.

The class motto is Excelsior, and the class colors blue and silver.

Numerous social activities are being planned for the summer months, the first one to be a weiner roast.

Consolidated's Men Resent Suit Over Zinc Ore Process

TRAIL, B.C., July 4.—The action brought by the French Complex Ore Reduction company has caused considerable comment among the workers. The old-timers rather resent the claim that the conquest of the Complex zinc ore of this district was made elsewhere than in Trail, knowing well how difficult has been the task of the scientists who have directed and still administer the affairs of the big industry which means so much to the interior of British Columbia.

The question of the legality of the claim is not, of course, commented on.

There are 1500 men employed at the Tadanac reduction works of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting company. Now this intails many unusual situations, accommodation being at a premium.

WELLS SEES A FRESH INDIAN RIFT BREAKING

O'Dwyer Libel Suit Has Brought up Amritser "Massacre" Again

INCOMPATIBILITY AGAIN IS PROVEN

Breaking Point in India Reached; No Room for More Negotiation

By H. G. WELLS

LONDON, July 4 (By Cable).—Is the Anglo-Saxon fit to govern any other race? He sprawls across the earth. He rules hundreds of millions of brown, black and buff peoples; he dominates and "protects" an even larger number than he actually governs.

And there are moments when one is struck by a sense of his immense ineptitude. In many respects he is unquestionably a fine figure, but with regard to other races he is overbearing, he is unsympathetic, he is obtuse. Possibly he is exceptionally so. But it is more probable that no race is fit to have the upper hand over any other race.

A Few Bright Alien Rulers

The possession of the upper hand leads at best to an inconsiderate self-righteousness, at worst to an extreme contempt, injustice, cruelty. There are very few instances in the world of an even moderately satisfactory alien rule. The Jesuits in South America seem to have done well in a kindly unprogressive way. British rule in Nigeria and some of the West Indies is a comparatively bright spot in the history of racial interaction, and the Dutch are credited with a fairly happy, prosperous Java. These are outstanding exceptions. The general rule for peace between two races seems to be to mix or get away; the darkest tragedy comes when, as in the southern United States, they can neither mix nor disentangle.

In the great, elaborately educated state of the future, to which human affairs are moving, every one, every community, will be most sedulously educated and trained in interracial good manners. Our world at present has scarcely such a thing yet as good manners in anyone, or a fully educated man. All the more reason, then, for maintaining separation of peoples unfit to associate generously and peaceably with others, for releasing those who are not already separated.

Britain's Tremendous Failure

A recent libel case brought by Sir Michael O'Dwyer against Sir Sankaran Nair has brought out very vividly the tremendous failure of the British Imperial system after a century of opportunity to produce any working tradition of interaction between the British people, the British garrison, and the Indian population. It has demonstrated the impossibility of any very long continuation of British rule in that peninsula. After one has looked into the particulars of the case one has just the same depressing realization of hopeless incompatibility that one has in some matrimonial cases. It is not so much that this or that has been done or not done; it is that two peoples are unequally yoked in temperament and intelligence, that they do no not get on together, that they never will get on together while they are closely associated. The British are not good enough nor wise enough for the job; the Indian is not great enough nor patient enough. It is a case for separation, as friendly, speedy a separation as possible, if there is not presently to be a tragic divorce.

I must confess that I cannot conjure any very profound indignation against General Dwyer. He was, I think, stupid, spasmodically violent, unnecessarily bloody. I do not believe that the shooting at Amritsar was inevitable; he certainly went on shooting too long.

But the sort of stupid, spasmodic, violence he displayed is very characteristic of many English, many Americans. I find it in myself. I have not, luckily for myself, had General Dyer's opportunities; but it is not necessary to kill people to discover that one may be harsh and cruel when one is thwarted by mental processes one does not understand. In the Dyer case, for example, is the young, eager, untrained schoolmaster whipping in the difficult stragglers for class work against which they rebelled.

Progressive Pin-Pricks

The whole story of the Punjab troubles is really a very pitiful story, not only for the native population but for the British administrators. It is a story of conflict, of resentments.

One begins with an officialdom eager for "volunteers" for a great war, unable to understand that a great war meant nothing, should have meant nothing, to any reasonable Indian person. How could it matter to them?

One goes on to a story of "pressure" increasing in its ugly details until we come to thrashings and deep indignities and tortures to stimulate the cheerful "volunteer."

Pressure passes from the chief to the subordinate, degenerates toward cruelty at every transition; it is hard to fix responsibility at any point. It rouses resistance. A pestered, tormented populace begins to hold meetings, to make vague gestures of a counter violence. The irritable ass in the Anglo-Saxon makeup responds with "firmness." Firmness loads rifles, prepares airplane bombs to disperse "dangerous assemblies."

Nipped "Second Mutiny"

There is a mood of scared obstinacy in which the Anglo-Saxon becomes capable of almost any swift atrocity; he is rarely deliberately cruel, but he is easily, clumsily, hotly cruel. In the twilight a highly strung creature will shoot or lynch at very slight provocation, indeed. Confronted with a dead body his self-respect demands an adequate reason for the murder he has done. So soon as the Amristar gardens were littered with dead and dying people it became clear to General Dyer that a very dangerous rebellion, a second Indian mutiny, had heroically nipped in the bud.

His military superiors did not think so. He was rebuked and punished very properly, very successfully. Some amends were made to smitten outraged India in that treatment of General Dyer; the wretched incident of Amristar would have passed into the receding perspectives of history if it had not been for the litigious enterprise of Sir Michael O'Dwyer. Sir C. Sankaran Nair in a book that is extensively used by the British government for propaganda purposes in India wrote phrases that certainly put unjustifiable blame upon Sir Michael O'Dwyer for the Punjab outrages. Sir Michael brought his action and reopened the question.

Judge Spouts

Now the alarming and disconcerting thing is that the court of king's bench showed itself far less intelligent, far less alive to the realties of the Indian situation than General Dyer's military superiors in India.

It is impossible to read reports of the case without realizing that in the mutual irritation of the English and Indian a profound temperamental incompatibility of the two worlds was manifested in that court in an exaggerated degree. The case transcended its proper limits and became a wrangle on the whole Punjab question.

Mr. Justice McCardie took it upon himself to inform the world at large and the people of India in particular with all the weight and prestige of the high court upon him," speaking with due deliberation," that in his view General Dyer had been wrongly punished by the secretary of state for India. The case of General Dyer was not before the court. This announcement was a lawless outbreak on the part of Justice McCardie.

How much due deliberation in Justice McCardie's utterance, how much instinctive passion was there, may be judged by the fact that General Dyer does not seem to have been punished by the secretary of state for India at all, as the case did not come up to the secretary of state for India; he was punished for his hasty excessive violence by his own proper military superiors in India.

Verdict Does Irreparable Damage

Internal dissentions restrained the jury from inflicting excessive exemplary damages upon Sir C. Sankaran Nair for his careless libel. Damages awarded amounted to £500, but it will be very difficult, it will be impossible, to persuade the sore, sensitive, quick, resentful mind of India that Britain has not gone back upon even such clumsy, insufficient apologies and atonements as she had made for Amristar and its associated sins.

There comes a time in the relationships of nations and peoples, as in the relationships of partners, lovers and married couples, when offences become irrevocable. The breaking point seems to have been reached by the British in India; the argument is practically over, the negotiation is at an end.

When, in the opening stages of the great war, Ireland was bilked of home rule, there remained nothing for it between Britain and Ireland but practical separation. Englishmen, like myself, who regard the present detachment of Ireland as excessive and regrettable, were entangled in spite of themselves in that offence; we were helpless to avert its just, logical consequences.

So, now with India, it is a sort of treachery to the Indians to go on talking liberally to them, to seek their friendship, to attempt cooperations, with Dyer's impenient rifles reloaded and our Justice McCardies ready and eager to tear up our poor attempts to make amends.

ROAD GANG LAID OFF AT FRUITVALE

Work Just Started Already Discontinued; "Election Dodge" Is Cry Heard

FRUITVALE, B.C., July 3.—Many complaints are being made as the result of all the men being laid off work on the road just started, and the old cry of it being an election dodge is being heard on all sides, apparently with some reason, for in its present state the road is of no use to anyone. Pressure is being brought to bear on the powers that be to at least make the road passable for the heavy traffic between here and Trail, Fruitvale's only satisfactory market.

The pupils of Fruitvale school were all medically examined by Dr. J. B. Thom of Trail; and, judging by the majority of the reports, a clinic here should be seriously considered.

Miss Hazel Nelson, who has had charge of the senior room at the school here has returned to her home in Nelson.

Mr. and Mrs. Castle and family arrived recently from England and are making their home at the Aldersmith ranch recently purchased by Miss Castle.

Several auto loads of young people drove down to Park Siding to the farewell party given for the teacher, Miss Houston.

The Protestant bishop of Clogher, Dr. MacManaway, has struck a note of alarm in referring to the growing shortage of clergymen in the Church of Ireland. He has five vacant parishes in his diocese, and "not a single suitable man in view for any of them." In his university days in Trinity college, he says, there were about 150 men preparing for the ministry. Now there are only from 20 to 30.

Ten registered Red Poll cattle were burned to death when fire of unknown origin destroyed a big barn on William Darnborough's farm near Laura, Sask. A sheep and a lamb and 10,000 oat sheaves were also destroyed. Only a few hours before, 200 sheep housed in the barn had been removed to another building on the farm, and Mr. Darnborough and his son William had left for the Brandon exhibition with 70 other pure-bred sheep to exhibit there. The loss is largely covered by insurance.

COAST CREW IS WELL THOUGHT OF AT PARIS

Vancouver Fours "Put Their Competitors' Wind Up"; Canucks Register

PARIS, July 4.—After seeing the senior four-oared crew of the Vancouver Rowing club, Pacific coast champions, in practice, the sporting paper L'Auto, today said that the Canadians "are putting the wind up their competitors."

The crew had some difficulty in getting their 42-foot shell through the customs at Cherbourg for transportation to Paris, and the Asnieres Rowing club of Paris loaned them a shell for practice Wednesday. When the Vancouver shell arrived for Thursday's training stunt, it was found to have two cracks above the water line, but it has been repaired, and is used by the crew in the practice daily.

The crew confine their efforts to easy paddling, and Captain Black reports that they are very fit. They are living outside Paris, in a boat club house on the Seine.

Somerville and Thompson Meet in Golf Finals

TORONTO, July 4.—C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville of London, Ont., varsity boy and famed in both cricket and hockey, tomorrow meets Frank Thompson of Toronto for the amateur golf championship of Canada, to be played over the Rosedale course. Today in the semi-finals he defeated Lauren Upson of Sacramento 4 and 3, after being down 3 at the end of the forenoon round.

Frank Thompson (Mississuaga), who was champion in 1921, goes into the final as a result of his victory over Seymour Lyon (Lambton), 6 and 4.

The Somerville-Upson match was considered the most important of the day owing to its international aspect.

Starting 3 down in the afternoon, Somerville took the first three holes, squaring the match. At the fifth Somerville took the lead and never relinquished it. The cards for the afternoon rounds were:

Somerville—Out, 444, 343, 563—36; in, 444, 354.

Upson—Out, 555, 354, 563—41; in, 554, 644.

The Thompson-Lyon match was a close affair in the morning.

In the afternoon round Thompson struck the top of his form, making the outward journey in 34, two under par. The game ended when Thompson won the fourteenth in par, 6 and 4.

This is the time of year when the boulevards are covered with nice little runabout mortgages on the old homestead.

BRITISH GIRL HOLDS WORLD SINGLES TITLE

Kathleen McKane Gives Great Exhibition Downing Helen Wills of States

WIMBLEDON, July 4.—The tennis title that Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the French star, has held against all the world since the close af the war, passed this afternoon to a British champion, Miss Kathleen McKane, when in a magnificent, thrilling match, she triumphed by a narrow margin over the champion woman player of the United States, Miss Helen Wills. The score was 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Mlle. Lenglen had reached the semi-finals in the Wimbledon tournament, but was forbidden by her doctors to continue further play, and thus was unable to defend her title.

Miss McKane, to win the championship today, had to make an uphill struggle, as Miss Wills, after taking the first set, led in the second at four games to one.

American Led Most of Way

When her cause became desperate, Miss McKane was wise enough to throw aside the conservative methods and caution that usually characterized her play. Venturing everything she abandoned the back court, and rushed to the net at every opportunity, gaining her end for five games in succession, and with them won the second set.

Miss Wills fought doggedly for every point, but she fought cautiously, and caution could not avail against Miss McKane when she was taking brave risks, and succeeding with them.

In the final set the United States champion won what seemed to be the critical fifth game, and led at three games to two, but the British woman would not be denied her victory. Once more she evened the score, passed her rival, and then won out.

Passing shots of rare beauty and fine nicety of execution were frequent off the racquets of both players.

Both players called upon their best strokes, and used all their speed in keeping the battle one of real championship caliber. Miss McKane today was Miss McKane at her very best, and Miss Wills much better than she had ever been before in her six weeks on British courts. At times she was close to the very height of her best game.

INFIELDERS!

LEARN TO JUDGE SPEED OF BATTED BALLS AND BASE-RUNNERS

Why must an infielder be a judge of speed and pace?

Answered by
CHARLIE HOLLOCHER
Shortstop, Chicago Cubs; batted .342 with the Cubs last year, when he was taken ill and forced to retire for the season. Has the fastest peg to first base of any shortstop.

* * *

It is to the advantage of the infielder in handling a batted ball not to hurry his throw to first base any more than he has to. This means that he must be a good judge of the running speed of the batter and a good judge of the speed of the ground ball. Such judgment will allow the infielder to give the proper timing to his throw so that the throw will get to the base just ahead of the runner and not be a wild heave save in very rare instances.

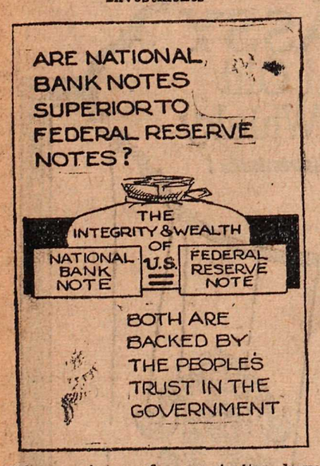
AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments



What points of superiority have United States National bank notes over federal government paper money-
Answered by
BARNET NOVAR
Lecturer and writer on practical economics.

United States National bank notes are issued by national banks and federal reserve notes and federal reserve bank notes are issued under authority vested with the federal reserve board. The government issues other paper money—yellow-backed gold certificates, greenbacks, silver certificates.

There are important differences in the way in which these different kinds of paper money are backed up. The yellow-backs actually represent deposits of gold in the United States treasury. The greenbacks are backed by a specie reserve; the federal reserve and the national bank notes by United States bonds, the federal reserve bank notes by gold and commercial paper.

But all are obligations of the United States government to pay gold on demand, and all are interchangeable. They rest on the people's trust in the government. For this reason national bank notes are in no way superior to federal paper money.

BRITISH STOCKS SHOW ADVANCE

Appreciation Follows Pricking of Bank Rate Rumor; Hungarian Loan

LONDON, July 4 (By Canadian Press).—When rumors of a rise in the bank rate proved unfounded there was a moderate rise this week on the British stock markets of British gilt-edged stocks which had been maintained although business remains as small in bulk in this as in other sections. Home rails show a slight recovery from their long-existent and extreme stagnation.

The instant success of the Hungarian loan of nearly £8,000,000 in 7½ per cent bonds at 88 was hardly surprising. The result is considered as a striking example of the condition which was endangered when international assistance was brought into play, and probably the slight speculation apparent in German bonds even in this country is due to the idea. Russia may be likewise assisted sooner than is commonly expected.

Underwriters took 89 per cent of the issue of £2,800,000 6½ per cent bonds of the Barcelona, Traction, Light & Power company.

WIFE SPLITS HUBBY'S HEAD PLANS BLAZE

His Body Found Bound After Her's Is Fished Out of Northern River

TIMMINS, Ont., July 4.—Almost simultaneously with the discovery of the dead body of Mike Lashuk in the house at Moneta, Mrs. Mike Lashuk was found to have committed suicide by throwing herself into the river. Mrs. Lashuk is believed to have killed her husband Wednesday night.

About 10 o'clock last night she was seen on the high bridge at Mattagami river landing by two men. Shortly afterward they noticed the woman's hat in the water, but Mrs. Lashuk had disappeared. They notified the police, and this morning the body was found in the river.

On going to Lashuk's house to investigate, the police found the body of Lashuk lying across a pile of blankets, his legs tied together with a rope, and his head split open in a dozen places, his skull being crushed.

Saturated With Oil

His clothing and the blankets were saturated with coal oil, and a lighted candle had been placed between his knees. This had less than two inches to burn when found by the police.

Alex Topalo, a boarder at the Lashuk house, stated that on Wednesday evening Lashuk came home intoxicated, and had a violent quarrel with his wife. No motive is advanced for the crime.

SQUADRON WILL HOIST ANCHOR

Admiral Field Declares Visit to Province Has Been Most Enjoyable

VANCOUVER, July 4.—The three cruisers of the special service squadron which will pull up anchor and leave for San Francisco early on tomorrow morning, have entertained 70,000 visitors during their 10-day stay in Vancouver harbor. On this, the last day, close to 3300 children alone were taken over the ships.

Interviewed today, Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick Field said:

"We have all immensely enjoyed our visit to British Columbia. Both officers and men have been absolutely overcome with the kindness and hospitality of the people, and have been tremendously impressed with the resources and prospects of the country."

Two hundred of the visiting sailors were entertained today in New Westminster and Cloverdale, the day's program including the inspection of logging camps.

MURPHY CAPTURES SPEED CAR TITLE

Kansas City Race Is Hundred Miles Short Because Track Gets Bad

KANSAS CITY, July 4.—Jimmy Murphy raced away with the national championship auto race here today. The race, scheduled for 250 miles, was called by officials at the end of the 150th mile because of bad holes that appeared in the track earlier in the race.

Tommy Milton was second, Bennett Hill third and Harlan Fongler fourth.

The fastest time made in the race was 117.8 miles an hour, averaged by Ansterg at the 25-mile mark.

SASKATCHEWAN IS ANGRY AT SENATE

Language Fails Local Politicians; Bitter at Western Solons

REGINA, July 4.—The action of the senate in killing four Canadian National railways branch lines in Saskatchewan has aroused a storm of protest.

"Language fails me when I think of the action of certain western senators, who, well knowing conditions, voted against the bills providing for the construction of badly needed Canadian National railways lines," declared Hon. A. P. McNab, acting premier, in an interview tonight.

"I question if they would care to visit any of the districts affected by their action. Senator Lougheed's action surprises me more than that of any of the other senators.

"I am disappointed beyond words," said Hon. C. M. Hamilton, minister of agriculture. "The majority of the senate evidently are incapable of appreciating the very great hardship imposed upon people who are required to haul their wheat and other farm produce from 20 to 40 miles."

"Saskatchewan senators voted for the branch lines, but those other western senators who voted against them should be tarred and feathered," declared A. D. Pickel, M.L.A. for Battleford.

The present Sir Henry Temple Blackwood, who is a bachelor, was born in 1896 in England, and was overseas with the Canadian Expeditionary forces for four years.

FIVE COUNTRIES IN THE EMPIRE CAN AID PEACE

Ambassador Howard Tells Ottawa Canadian Club the Opportunity Great

OTTAWA, July 4. — (Canadian Press.)—No countries in the world today were in a better position to carry on the spade work in promoting world peace than the five nations of the British commonwealth, with the free cooperation of the United States of America, Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador to the United States, told the Canadian club here today, in his first address before a Canadian audience.

"I have been asked," continued Sir Esme, "since I have been in Ottawa, whether I should consider the appointment of a Canadian envoy to Washington as an indication of separation coming in the future. Emphatically I do not. If the Canadian government think it better for their interests to have a representative of their own, no one will gainsay them, and there is no one who will venture to say they have not a perfect right to an appointment."

Sir Esme said that by working together in a true spirit of cooperation and calm judgment, the Empire might achieve what the world had hitherto believed impossible—a great political structure held together by goodwill and affection, a temple of peace, not only for the parts of the Empire but for the world at large.

GRAIN CAPACITY OF PORT TREBLES

Storage Capacity at Vancouver Will Be Six Millions Soon

VANCOUVER, July 4.—Shipping and grain interests need not worry over the handling of the 1924 to 1925 grain crop through Vancouver, according to officials of the railways, and of the Vancouver harbor board. The 1923 to 1924 season, now closing, has had one elevator of 2,000,000 bushels capacity, nine unloading pits, nine cleaning machines, four belts, of which but three could be used at a time, and two shipping berths.

According to Lieut.-Col. G. H. Kirkpatrick, chairman of the harbor board, Vancouver will have, on October 1, 25 unloading pits, 33 cleaning machines, nine belts, five shipping berths, and a storage capacity of 4,250,000 bushels.

On November 1, this capacity will be increased by four more belts and three more shipping berths.

By February 1, 1925, the capacity of the port will be 6,250,000 bushels storage, 34 unloading pits, 47 cleaning machines, seventeen shipping belts and nine berths.

Finlay Against the "Life Sentence" in Penalizing Athletes

MONTREAL, July 4.—W. E. Finlay, president of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, in a letter addressed to the various branches of the union throughout Canada, states that at the next annual meeting he will submit amendments to the constitution which would allow the union leeway in dealing with athletes who infringe the amateur rules. He states that the life sentence should not be applied "indiscriminately, as now required by our rules."

MANY COMING TO CELEBRATE

Orangemen From All Portions of the District Planning to Attend Picnic

Preparations are continuing for a big time in this city on July 12, when the Orangemen from all through the district and as far south as Spokane will gather for a monster celebration in this city.

W. T. Jago, provincial field secretary, has been in the city and district during the past few days and during the week, in company with J. J. Boyd and H. D. Lea of Slocan, master of the lodge there, paid a visit to the Trail lodge. There the local celebration was talked up strong and a large number is expected from Trail; in fact, a special train may be chartered for the occasion to bring in the Trail Orangemen. While at Trail the local representatives were loyally entertained, and following the meeting there, most excellent refreshments were served by the ladies of the Trail Orange Benevolent association. Mr. Jago was in Rossland on Thursday, and yesterday was in the city. According to his reports, a large crowd can be counted upon from Trail and Rossland. The celebration here will constitute a banner picnic at Lakeside park, together with other entertaining features.

YOUTHS HAVE CLOSE SHAVE

Car Turns Over Near Crescent Valley; Occupants Crawl Out

Two Nelson youths, Bert Wallach and Bert Peebles, had narrow escapes from death during the early portion of the week when, near Crescent Valley, their car skidded and went down the bank, overturning twice before the occupants were able to extricate themselves.

The pair were in an enclosed car, and approaching a curve the car, which was a light one, skidded, and becoming uncontrollable it went over a steep embankment. It made two complete turns, and on the second turn the top broke through, and the driver and passenger scrambled out. The car continued its downward journey, making six complete turns before coming to a stop. The two youths walked to Crescent Valley, where they spent the night. Neither were seriously injured, though they received a bad shaking up.

NAKUSP ACTS AS HOST UPON DOMINION DAY

Receipts of Day Will Give Clear Title to the Recreation Grounds

NAKUSP, B.C., July 4.—The Dominion day sports were a huge success in Nakusp. The weather was ideal but rather on the hot side, and a large number of visitors from down-river points were present, coming by steamer and cars.

From early morning to late evening the day was one great event of fun and enthusiasm, winding up with the ball in the opera house.

The town in great part was suitably decorated with flags, bunting and evergreens, but there were a few business and private houses unmarked, which roused considerable criticism.

In the early morning the children's sports were held on Broadway.

Parade Makes Circuit

At 11 o'clock, while the steamer lay at the dock and the passengers were afforded an opportunity to walk up town, the big parade of cars, vehicles, horses and pedestrians started from the monument, making a circuit of Broadway, Lake avenue, Bay street and Nelson avenue led by Nakusp's pioneer farmer and Imperial army veteran, Sergt C. B. Hamling of Box Lake, in uniform, on horseback. He was followed by a float on which were members of the orchestra, who rendered music en route. In the middle of the parade was Horseley's Comic Blackbird orchestra, whose music of five pieces called forth thundering applause all along the lines.

At 1 o'clock the real games began at the Recreation grounds, to which for the first time an entrance fee was charged to meet the payments accruing to the Canadian Pacific Railway company for the property. From this source, without any gate entrance, the eagle eyes of Thomas Abriel and L. J. Edwards extracted $130 from visitors for the sports committee.

The baseball game between Nakusp and a scratch team from Burton was the chief event, Nakusp winning by 15 to 4.

Five or six sideshows on the midway gave further revenue for concessions and attracted a great deal of attention.

"I Am Dry—So Is Nakusp!"

The hot weather drove the people to the booths and ice cream parlors, cleaning them out of refreshments of all kinds. The appearance of a beer keg in the parade, wheeled by a little boy, under the circumstances and mindful of the recent plebiscite added insult to injury. It was tagged, "I Am Dry—and So Is Nakusp."

Aquatic sports, consisting of swimming, diving, log rolling and greasy pole, were fine, and gave lots of amusement.

From all sources the receipts for the Recreation committee will amount to nearly $500, which will procure a clear title to the grounds purchased 12 years ago.

Willow Point Tennis Dance Is a Success; Cakes Are "Borrowed"

Music was supplied by R. Waldie, piano; J. Annable, drums, and W. Blanchard, saxophone. L. L. Bartindale and E. Brasch assisting with the extras.

The ladies of the club committee attended to the refreshments and were also responsible for the decorations.
