NELSON JURY FINDS EXPLOSIVE DEATHS CAUSE

COOLIDGE WAVE IS SUSTAINED IN LATEST FIGURES

PRESIDENT LEADS IN FOUR STILL DOUBTFUL

Will Have Hundred Votes in Spare in Electoral College

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The full measure of the Republican victory at the polls could not yet be taken tonight, but the returns continued to show that President Coolidge would have at least 100 votes to spare in the electoral college and the largest popular plurality in history.

The showing made by J. W. Davis remained unchanged throughout today, and although Senator La Follette began to creep up a little in one or two western states there was no certainty tonight that he would receive the electoral vote of any state group except that of Wisconsin.

On the face of the day's congressional returns the Republicans made certain of a paper majority at least in both senate and house, but doubt remained whether the margin would be great enough to give the administration the whip hand over the combined opposition of the Democrats and La Follette blocs.

As the presidential figures stood tonight with only a handful of electoral votes still in doubt the indicated strength of the three candidates in the electoral college was as follows:

Coolidge Leads in All Doubtful

In three of the four states whose decisions remained in the balance—Montana, Nevada and North Dakota—Coolidge was maintaining his early lead.

New Mexico, the last doubtful state, began taking a trend toward the Coolidge column in the late returns tonight. With half the state reported, President Coolidge virtually had tied his vote with Mr. Davis, having gained 7000 in the day's counting, while his Democratic opponent was gaining approximately 5000.

Taken all in all, and considered in the light of the fate it dealt out to local as well as presidential candidates in the west and northwest, the whole situation represented a tremendous swing backward of the pendulum which two years ago turned the plans of the western country upside down, sent two Farmer-Labor senators to Washington, almost swept away the nominal Republican majority in the house, and gave La Follette a balance of power and a virtual veto over the Republican administration.

Now La Follette not only has failed to make an appreciable dent in the electoral strength of Coolidge, he has seen some of his ranking lieutenants go down before the overwhelming counter-offensive of the Republican administration, notably Senator Magnus Johnson of Minnesota and Senator Smith Brookhart of Iowa.

He may even have lost his hold on a sufficient group in the senate and house to force his recognition as an important factor in legislation. However, it is the belief of La Follette men that he will be able to hold together some semblance of a final party organization for use in future campaigns.

Democratic Future Doubtful

The future of the Democratic party, which now has suffered two crushing defeats in succession, also will become a subject of sober discussion among its titular leaders, when the full effect of yesterday's groundswell of Republican strength has been assessed. What steps may now be taken to reorganize the party will have to be determined only after long cogitation.

It is the manifest hope of the La

YALE SELECTS MEMBER TODAY

Interest Keen in Federal Byelection; Expect Close Vote

PENTICTON, B.C., Nov. 5.—Interest in the voting in the federal byelection in Yale tomorrow is very keen, and weather conditions give promise of a heavy vote. Both sides are confident, but belief is generally expressed that the vote will be closer than in the general election when J. A. MacKelvie was returned by 542 majority.

D. W. Sutherland, Liberal candidate, and Grote Stirling, Conservative, have waged a vigorous speaking campaign throughout the riding.

Rival Meetings at Vernon

VERNON, B.C., Nov. 5.—The Yale federal byelection campaign came to an end tonight with meetings addressed by Colonel Thompson and R. G. MacPherson of Vancouver, and that of the Conservatives by Senator Barnard, Grote Stirling, Conservative nominee, and others.

The polls will close tomorrow night at 7 o'clock, and with bright, frosty weather forecast a large vote is anticipated. There is every evidence that the contest will be close.

TWO WITNESSES IDENTIFY CHONG

Murder Charge Is at Once Laid Against Suspected Gunman

VANCOUVER, Nov. 5.—Lined up with a dozen other Chinamen at police headquarters, Chong Sing was this afternoon picked out by two of three witnesses of the slaying of David Lew, as the man who fired four shots into the broker as he emerged from a cafe six weeks ago.

The accused was arrested in Victoria on the strength of a clue given the police in Chinatown. At the time of the slaying a number of people had seen the gunman standing in a doorway of a cafe, awaiting the approach of Lew.

The third witness of the slaying was not sure of his identity, saying he had only seen the gunman's back as he fled.

A charge of murder was immediately laid against Chong.

The arrest was made under great difficulties, as the Chinese, even the witnesses called upon today, were reluctant to help the police through fear of reprisals from the tong to which the accused belongs.

FIVE RIDINGS IN QUEBEC GO THREE TO TWO

Liberals Hold Three, Conservatives Hold One, and Gain One

CONSERVATIVE GAIN IS QUEBEC COUNTY

St. Anne Contest Thrilling; a Recount May Be Demanded

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—Winners of the five byelections in the province of Quebec today to fill vacancies in the legislature were:

St. Anne, Montreal—J. H. Dillon, Liberal. No change.

St. Maurice—A. E. Guillemette, Liberal. No change.

Sherbrooke—A. Crepau, Conservative. No change.

Bonaventure—P. A. Cote, Liberal. No change.

Quebec County—L. Bastien, Conservative. Opposition gain.

The standing of the parties in the Quebec legislature as a result of today's byelection is:

Liberals	62
Conservatives	22
Vacant	1
Total	85

J. H. Dillon, with 1549 votes after the first count tonight, had a majority of 183 over Denis Tensey, Conservative; A. E. Guillemette's majority over C. E. Ladouceur, Conservative; while P. E. Cote had an approximate majority of 1500 over L. P. Decy, Conservative, A. Crepau had a majority of 244 over his Liberal opponent, C. E. Therrien, and L. Bastien, Conservative, defeated E. Bedard, Liberal, by 340 votes.

Recount in St Anne

A recount may be demanded in St. Anne by the Conservatives.

In Sherbrooke the Conservatives retained a seat won at the last election in which three candidates figured. The Labor vote on that occasion appears today to have split to about even between the Conservative and the Liberal candidates, both showing an increased poll.

In Bonaventure Mr. Cote apparently was never in danger, as the first reports which came in showed majorities for him.

The same can be said of St. Maurice, though the Conservative candidate made a stronger run than that at the last election.

Mr. Bastien's election in Quebec means that for the first time in its history the Quebec legislature will have a member of the Indian race. Mr. Bastien is a member of the Huron tribe at Lorette. His father was chief of the Hurons of all Canada for one term of office.

The successful candidate has wide and diversified business interests, among them being one of the largest silver fox farms in Canada, situated at Lorette.

Men who have been in many campaigns in St. Anne's division agreed that the battle that was waged from the very opening of the polls was the most excitable and roughest known.

The culmination came at noon, when a shooting took place on St. James street almost opposite the Liberal main committee room.

This came as a culmination of a score of fist fights, and the trouble continued during the afternoon with fears expressed that still worse was to come as the evening came on. Knots of men gathered at various corners and in front of the committee rooms while automobiles and taxicabs dashed through the district without cessation.

The automobile fleets would have been sufficient to have taken the entire electorate to the polls in two hours had it only been a matter of ordinary transportation, but it was far from that. At the various committee rooms reports were being constantly received that "telegraphing" was going on, and conditions were hectic throughout the day.

Trailing the Enemy

"Trailing the enemy" was one of the popular pastimes. No sooner would half a dozen men jump into a car and start off than an automobile in readiness across the street was immediately in action. It was much of the old game of "tag", now one party and then the other being "tag".

Cases were reported during the morning and early afternoon of workers being dragged out of automobiles and "beaten up" by a rival crowd.

Rescue Crews Jump Aboard

Rescue crews were rushed to the scene of action on such reports being received, as there appeared to be plenty of willing hands and even a surplus.

Under the provisions of the law the taverns and restaurants in the division were closed for the entire day, and a walk through the division between 3 and 4 o'clock revealed that there was very little indications of liquor about.

Many of the fights started around the polls, the claim being that voters were obstructed on their way to vote by workers of the opposition. Other fights commenced apparently for no reason whatever and away from the polls entirely.

CONCILIATION ACT UP BEFORE PRIVY COUNCIL

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—The constitutionality of the Industrial Disputes Investigation act—the Lemieux act—will be before the privy council in London Monday. Argument on the appeal in the Toronto Hydro case, which calls the constitutionality of the act into question, will then begin.

McCRIMMON TO HAVE NEW TRIAL

First Murder Jury Disagrees; New One Will Be Empannelled

MORDEN, Man., Nov. 5.—Peter McCrimmon, Elm Creek man, will face a second trial for the murder of his old time friend and neighbor, Edward Bailey, aged 68, at the latter's home at Manitou, on May 15 last.

Today an assize jury failed to agree and Mr. Justice Adamson ordered a new trial to commence tomorrow morning.

The shooting it is alleged, was the outcome of an old grudge which McCrimmon, who is 70 years of age, nursed against Bailey—a grudge which had its beginning 40 years ago, when the two were living on the same farm.

Gives Stenographer Big Money Verdict; Employer, One Cent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Manuel Herrick, former representative for Oklahoma, was awarded damages of 1 cent by a jury in circuit court today in his suit for $50,000 damages against Miss Ethelyn Chrane, his former stenographer, for alleged breach of promise to marry him.

A jury in the same court yesterday awarded Miss Chrane $7500 *damages against Herrick for al*leged libelous statements concerning her in a paper filed in court in support of his breach of promise case.

MacKenzie Objects to Introduction of Church Union Bill

VICTORIA, Nov. 5.—Legal objection to the introduction of the church *union bill was raised in the legis*lature today by Capt. Ian MacKenzie, Liberal, Vancouver, who stated that by a decision of the house of lords in 1904 it had been established that the Presbyterian general assembly had no power to commit the church to just such a proposal. Captain MacKenzie asked a ruling on the matter.

Speaker Buckham reserved his decision.

La Follette's First Lieutenant Is Out

SENATOR S. W. BROOKHART

Of Iowa, of the Republican "Progressive" bloc in the senate, who repudiated Coolidge and Dawes and followed La Follette, yesterday conceded his defeat by Daniel F. Steck, Democrat. Many Republicans voted for Steck, though Brookhart was the official Republican candidate. His nomination was won before he came out for La Follette.

REPUBLICANS HAVE MAJORITY IN THE HOUSE

Counting Insurgents, They Lead Democrats by About Forty

FORTY-FIVE SEATS NOT YET REPORTED

Gain Sixteen in House, Three in Senate; Farmer-Labor Out

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Belated returns gave the Republicans the best of it today in the upsets in both the house and senate. But it appeared that final reports from all districts would be necessary before there could be a determination whether President Coolidge could expect a real working majority in the next congress.

Returns of 390 of the 435 congressional districts gave the Republicans an actual majority—218—but in this total are included nearly a score of the La Follette insurgents.

Gain Sixteen House Seats

The Democrats, meantime, had made certain of 170 seats, and the Farmer-Labor party of two. On the basis of these returns the Republicans had made a gain of 16 over the Democrats, recapturing 20 seats, as against four now held by Republicans which were moved into the Democratic column.

At adjournment last June the house lineup was: Republicans 225, Democrats 207, and three scattered.

In the senatorial contests the most surprising result was in Iowa, where Smith W. Brookhart, Republican, who publicly repudiated his own national ticket, had conceded his defeat at the hands of Daniel F. Steck, a Democrat lawyer of Ottumwa. Mr. Steck was generally credited with receiving support from many regular Republicans.

Three Senate Gains

The Republicans, however, apparently had gained three senatorial seats on the basis of returns received early tonight. These were in Massachusetts, Kentucky and Oklahoma.

The Democrats had elected seven senators, while 17 Republicans had been chosen, or had such leads as to make their election practically certain. In the six remaining contests, all in western states where returns were still coming in slowly, the results were uncertain.

In Minnesota, Representative Thomas D. Schall, Republican, had what his supporters regarded as a commanding lead over Senator Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Labor. Johnson still insisted, however, that missing rural precincts would return him a winner.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat, prosecutor in the Teapot Dome investigation, was leading the field with a sufficient margin as to make him appear reasonably certain of election.

The result in both New Mexico and Wyoming was surrounded with much uncertainty because of the slowness in gathering the returns.

Double Lead in Colorado

In Colorado, where two seats were at stake, Senator Phipps, Republican, was leading Alva B. Adams, Democrat, and Rice W. Means, Republican, was ahead of Morris Shafroth, Democrat.

In gaining a seat in Massachusetts the Republicans elected Frederick H. Gillett, speaker of the house, over David I. Walsh, the Democratic incumbent.

Democrats elected are: Heflin, Alabama; Robinson, Arkansas; Harris Georgia; Ransdell, Louisiana; Harrison, *Mississippi; Simons, North Caro*lina; Blease, South Carolina; Tyson, Tennessee; Sheppard, Texas, and Carter Glass, Virginia.

Upsets Widely Scattered

The upsets in the house were widely scattered over the country. The Democrats lost the six seats they now

BURDE WON'T OBEY SPEAKER

Interrupts New Members and Is Repeatedly Told to Take His Seat

VICTORIA, Nov. 5.—Major Dick Burde, the irrepressible member for Albernie, was taken to task by C. F. Davie, Conservative member for Cowichan-Newcastle, in the legislature today for having, as he declared, "embarrased" the inexperienced member *for Kamloops, J. R. Colley, Lib*eral, the preceding day, by unseemingly interruptions.

Major Burde objected to imputation of motives, and proceeded to endeavor to rag the equally new island member, who, however, having generations of parliamentary traditions in his family, gave back as good as he received.

Major Burde became so obstreperous that R. H. Pooley, opposition leader, insisted that Mr. Speaker Buckham enforce the rule against interruptions.

The speaker repeatedly ordered Major Burde to take his seat, but nothing daunted, he came back with a heavy score at the end of the day's proceedings, when Premier Oliver and Mr. Pooley had a little tangle about who was responsible for wasting time in prolonged debates.

"The premier and the opposition leader waste more time arguing about wasting time than the honorable members do in their debating," he claimed.

Idaho Keeps Borah at Nation's Service

SENATOR W. E. BORAH

FOUR LIBERAL LEADERS MEET

Asquith, Lloyd George, MacLean and Runciman Talk Over Future

LONDON, Nov. 5.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—That the Liberal party in the United Kingdom is not dead by any means, though immediately after the general elections of last Wednesday sundry persons more or less prominent in politics declared it was dead, is seen in a conference of four Liberal leaders at Mr. Asquith's residence today. The conference was called for the purpose of considering the Liberal party's future.

The four in attendance were Mr. Asquith, Lloyd George, Sir Donald MacLean and Walter Runciman, a minister in the government of which Mr. Asquith was premier.

MAN IS SHOT IN THE BYELECTION

Nate Penny, Lacrosse Player, Wounded in Knee Near Liberal Rooms

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—Nate Penny, a well-known lacrosse player, was shot in the knee on Notre Dame street shortly before noon today, during a disturbance among a number of other men near one of the committee rooms of J. H. Dillon, Liberal candidate, in today's provincial byelection in the St. Anne's division of Montreal.

Samuel Flatzel is held by the police on a technical charge of "disturbing the peace," following the disturbance.

The police state that Flatzel had a permit to carry a gun, and at the time of the shooting was carrying $600.

Aged Cripple Gets Fifteen Years for Shooting Another

MELFORT, Sask., Nov. 5.—James Howard, aged 70, crippled Melfort farmer, who shot and instantly killed Thomas Halrio, aged 64, on October 25, was sentenced to serve 15 years in Prince Albert penitentiary, after conviction of manslaughter by a jury late last night.

Old Man Turns the Trick Again

GOV. AL SMITH

Popular Democrat, after having held the governor's chair and retired, took the field four years ago to keep W. R. Hearst from the Democratic nomination, and won the nomination and the governorship again. He intended retiring this year, but the party sent him into the field for the 'steenth time, hoping to check the Coolidge wave. Though the president carried New York by over 800,000, Smith also held the state handily in his personal fight.

EXPLOSIVE WAS DISASTER CAUSE SAYS THE JURY

Verdict of Powerful Explosion Caused by Person or Persons Unknown

REQUEST DILIGENT SEARCH INTO CAUSE

Was Placed in the Car With Intent or in Ignorance

"That in our opinion the said William J. Armstrong, Neil E. Murray, Mary Streloeff and Henry J. Bishop came to their death as the result of the disaster near Farron, B.C., on the morning of October 29, 1924, by a powerful explosive placed within Canadian Pacific railway car No. 1528, by some person or persons unknown, either with intent or through ignorance.

"We would earnestly request that the attorney-general's department of this province continue diligently their efforts to apprehend the person or persons responsible for this terrible accident."

The above is the verdict of the Nelson jury which has for the past five days been sitting on the inquiry into four deaths in the Kettle Valley train explosion of Wednesday last. The verdict as returned was signed by the following jurors: Denis StDenis (foreman), Russel Brown MacEwan, Walter M. Myers, George Benwell, John Bell, William Rutherford, and Henry Hector MacKenzie, coroner.

Compliments Jury

Following the presentation of the verdict, the jury was complimented by Coroner MacKenzie on its verdict. He also complimented them on the thorough manner in which they had gone into the evidence. Nothing in his opinion had been left undone which would have helped solve the mystery.

After five days' inquiry the jury has gone into every angle of the terrible explosion which cost the lives of nine persons and injured nine more. Every witness thought able to throw light on to the case was called. The jurors visited the scene of the accident by special train. They saw the remains of the coach. Expert witnesses were called. Pintsch gas was brought to the court house. It was released in the room, and its fumes smelled by the jurors. It was found to be lighter than air.

Yesterday's session was a short one. The jury arrived at its verdict after about a half-hour deliberation. The evidence of two Hindus at present in the Kootenay Lake General hospital was presented by Staff-Sergt. Ernest Gammon, from statements made by these persons at the hospital. Other witnesses heard before a verdict was returned were William Harkness and Charles Munroe, the engine crew on the train; Ernest Collinson, a watchmaker, and Nick Zebroff, one of the injured Doukhobors. Wilfred Marquis was also recalled to the stand.

Hindus' Statements Read

When the inquest opened for the fifth day at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, the question of adjourning to the hospital to examine the two injured Hindus who were in the explosion came up. Staff-Sergt. E. Gammon produced the original statements of Nando Singh and Bud Singh, sworn to soon after the accident, in the hospital, and after these had been read it was decided that, owing to their lack of English and the comprehensiveness of their statements, nothing could be gained by visiting them in the hospital.

According to the statement of Nando Singh, he was on his way from Wasso, where he had been working in a lumber camp, to Vancouver, accompanied by his brother. He was asleep when the explosion came, and later was told his brother had been killed by it. His brother had been carrying a clock in his grip, he said.

Bud Singh said that he was also coming from Wasso, and going to Vancouver. He had a large clock with a wooden frame and a small one with him. He had been asleep when the explosion came.

The two original statements were put in as exhibits by Staff-Sergt. Gammon.

In reply to a question from William Rutherford, Staff-Sergt. Gammon told of John Perrasso of Sargents' garage getting on the train the night of October 28 to go to Rossland. Near one end of the train he had accidentally kicked or touched

LANIGAN ASKS BOARD TO STOP RATE HEARING

Contends Rulings of Board and Privy Council Bar New One

McGEER CHARGES DATA WITHHELD

Commissioners Rule Case to Go On; Take Evidence

VANCOUVER, Nov. 5.—An attempt on the part of W. B. Lanigan, Canadian Pacific railway freight traffic manager, to halt the hearings of the railway board in Vancouver on a technical point; decision of Chairman H. A. McKeown, K.C., and Hon. Frank Oliver, commission, to carry on with the taking of evidence; presentation of testimony by grain and shipping men to show the discrimination under which the western route is laboring, and cross-examination of George Stevens, assistant freight traffic manager on western lines for the Canadian Pacific railway, by G. G. McGeer, K.C., counsel for British Columbia, featured this afternoon's session of the board here.

Repeatedly failing to secure from the representative of the Canadian Pacific railway and Canadian National railway statistical information which he considered should be available, Mr. McGeer lost patience, and charged the railways with a policy of coming to all such hearings without necessary data.

Addressing himself to Mr. Lanigan, when that official had informed him that the net returns of the Canadian Pacific railway on lines east and lines west per ton mile and per train mile in 1923 were not available and never had been available, Mr. McGeer said:

McGeer Is Pointed

"You come out here to meet an inquiry, and you can't give us any information. It is always the same at these hearings—you can never give us any information that is vital to the case. I think it is high time, Mr. Chairman, that a halt were called to it."

Chief Commissioner McKeown was not distinctly heard, but was understood to say, as he nodded, that a halt would be called, and that Mr. McGeer's application for the information requested was upheld.

It became evident at the outset of the hearings on grain rates equalization that George Stevens and Mr. Lanigan had resolved on a policy of placing all responsibility for the rates upon the railway commission, and of reminding the two commissioners of the orders of their colleagues in 1914, 1922 and 1923.

At the outset Mr. Lanigan sought to have the hearings on grain rates stopped, pointing out that the railway board had ruled on the export rates to Vancouver as late as October 19, 1923, and still had the domestic grain rates to Vancouver under consideration on instruction from the privy council. "I submit that under these circumstances, the situation is not open to further evidence, the privy council having sent the case back to the railway board to be dealt with on the evidence submitted."

Case Proceeds

Chairman McKeown did not concur in this view, and pointed out that neither he nor Mr. Oliver had been members of the board when previous evidence had been taken.

Mr. Oliver read an extract from the ruling of the privy council to the effect that when in the opinion of the railway board conditions had so changed as to warrant a reopening of the case, it might be done at the discretion of the commissioners.

The hearing proceeded.

COOLIDGE WAVE IS SUSTAINED IN LATEST FIGURES

Follette element to take a place as the recognized "opposition party" at the expense of the Democrats. This, however, will be opposed by many of the party in places of high titular command, or in position of potential leadership.

There is also talk of Democratic National Chairman Shaver resigning his position and giving someone else an opportunity to try a hand at a compromise that would cement again such a winning organization as the party had in the days of Cleveland and Wilson.

Nevada Looks Safe Now

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Virtually complete returns from Nevada seem to place the state in the Coolidge column with its three electoral votes.

Mrs. Ross to Rule Wyoming

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Nov. 5.—Eugene J. Sullivan, Republican candidate for governor, tonight conceded the election of Mrs. Nellie Taylos Ross, his Democratic opponent.

Announcement of Mr. Sullivan's action came in the form of a telegram to the widow of the late Gov. William B. Ross, extending his congratulations.

New Jersey Woman Congressman

JERSEY CITY, Nov. 5.—As "Ma" Ferguson picks up the gubernatorial reins in great Texas, Mrs. Mary T. Norton goes north from little New Jersey to claim her chair in the national house of representatives. A Democrat, the first woman of the party to reach congress, and the first of any part to be sent to Washington from the east, she declared today that she asks no quarter on account of her sex and will give none.

Approval of light wines and beer, the building of veterans' hospitals in every state, increases for the postal employees and enlargement of the immigration quotas stand out in her platform, which, however, may not be raised in the house at once. By her own words, she expects to "do very little the first year."

WINNIPEG, Nov. 5.—Modification of the restrictions on the loading of grain cars for the Pacific coast in view of the increased elevator facilities at Vancouver was announced as effective this morning. Seventy-five cars per day may now be loaded, E. D. Cottrell, superintendent of transportation, said, instead of 50, the previous limit. Further modifications would be made as conditions seemed to justify.

Do You Know?

THAT nine-tenths of the grouchy sour-faced people in the world are stomach sufferers? If these people would go to their Drug Store and get a package of Jo-To the world would be a brighter, happier place. Jo-To stops all stomach misery in two minutes. All Drug Stores.

FOOD MADE HIM MISERABLE

Victoria Man Could Not Enjoy His Meals and Was Weak and Run-Down for Lack of Nourishment. Tells How Dreco Put Him On His Feet.

"For several months my system was in a badly run-down condition," says Mr. W. Nicolet, of 911 Blanchard Street, Victoria, B.C. "I continually had a tired feeling and no energy to do my work. I suffered from indigestion and stomach trouble and my food would ferment and form a gas that made me miserable. My whole system was in bad shape and I couldn't get anything to build me up.

"One day I saw in the papers what Dreco was doing for others and got a bottle right away. I have now taken two bottles all told and feel like a different man. That tired feeling has gone entirely and I am no longer troubled with indigestion. I gladly recommend Dreco to anyone suffering as I did."

Dreco is Nature's own remedy for complaints that originate in faulty digestion. It soothes the stomach and induces its normal functions besides aiding the liver, kidneys and bowels to perform their work. Dreco is purely herbal and contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Nelson by The Poole Drug & Book Co. It is also sold as follows:

Trail—E. W. Hazlewood.

Kimberly—Kimberly Drug & Book Co.

Rossland—J. C. Urquhart.

Cranbrook—Scotts Cranbrook Drug & Book Company.

Dreco is sold by all good druggists everywhere.

WASHINGTON IS COOLIDGE STATE BY BIG MARGIN

La Follette Sixty Thousand Behind; Davis Is Nowhere

GOVERNORSHIP IS STILL REPUBLICAN

Four Republican Congressmen Safe; Democrat Leads in Fifth

Washington state gave Coolidge a lead of about 60,000 over La Follette for president, with Davis nowhere; chose another Republican governor, Hartley, to succeed Governor Louis Hart, by 75,000; chose Republican congressmen in four districts by large majorities, and in the fifth district, which is tributary to Spokane, probably returned Hill, the democrat, to succeed himself, in Tuesday's elections, according to the tabulation of the Spokesman-Review at midnight, obtained by The Daily News by long distance telephone. None of the counts are anything like complete yet.

Turn Down Initiative Measures

The state, in addition to voting on the offices named and on judicial and other offices, turned down all five intitiative measures submitted, including the "butter bill", the bill limiting tax levy to 40 mills, a bill on schools and two in reference to water power.

According to the Spokesman-Review's figures, Hill's lead over Ferguson in the fifth district is only 273 with 20 precincts to come, and the district may easily go Republican yet.

In the first district track has not been kept of the figures of Hirman, the Socialist; but, earlier in the count, when the other candidates had about two-thirds of their present totals, Hirman was credited with 4 votes, so he won't be missed.

The midnight standing in the state was thus as follows:

President

Coolidge, Republican	178,033
La Follette, Progressive	119,526
Davis, Democrat	35,443

Governor

Hartley, Republican	170,196

Feng Abolishes Titles in House of Old Dynasty

PEKING, Nov. 5.—A new agreement imposed today by the de facto military government of Peking provides that titles be abolished in the household of the deposed Manchu dynasty, and that the imperial allowance be reduced from $4,000,000 annually to $500,000, with certain additional sums for the establishment of factories for Manuchrians to work in.

HAVE KIDNEYS EXAMINED BY YOUR DOCTOR

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

RED PEPPER HEAT STOPS BACKACHE

The heat of red peppers take the "ouch" from a sore, lame back. It cannot hurt you, and it certainly ends the torture at once.

When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub, and you will have the quickest relief known. Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers.

Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

Ask any druggist for a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.

THE GUMPS—THE WOUNDED GLADIATOR

Nothing Upsets Him

Some people are faced by an annual Thanksgiving problem. Either they strictly deny themselves a share in the rich things of the table — and thus become killjoys at the feast; or they take the plunge — and for days afterwards suffer the pangs of an outraged liver.

But you who are wise are faced by no such problem. You know that turkeys and pumpkin pie are meant to be eaten and enjoyed; at the same time you realize that an extra strain is going to be placed upon your digestive system.

Therefore you take precautions. You take Kruschen Salts.

As a mild but efficient tonic for the liver and kidneys, assisting them in times of stress to do their work thoroughly and regularly, Kruschen is invaluable before, during and after all festive seasons. Start to-morrow morning, taking that "little daily dimeful" in your breakfast cup of coffee or tea — just as much of the powder as will cover a ten cent piece. Taken this easy way, Kruschen is tasteless. But the little dose is sufficient to enable the eliminating organs to perform their duties actively, thoroughly cleansing the system of all impurities. Clear, refreshed blood circulates all over the body, filling you with a tingling sense of health and high spirts. You are well and know it — fit for all the Thanksgiving celebrations.

Start now getting yourself into trim by forming the Kruschen habit of health. Get a 75c bottle of Kruschen at the first druggists' you pass, and form the habit of the "little daily dimeful" at less than half a cent a day.

CHAPTER XL.

Trouble Added to Nora Lee's Grief

She was bewildered as though Margaret, standing at the doorway, talking to her, had suddenly vanished. Her spirit went about seeking the dear lost one—baffled, yet expectant, as though certain that for a luminous moment there would come her laugh; there would be the sweet, familiar voice. And this mysterious phenomena—this dropping into the stillness and the quiet, would be explained. The terror must pass.

She went up to the attic room that had been Andrew's and sat there listening. She remained hours, almost motionless. Within her an uncanny, childish thought persisted. She would wait here so long that finally the strange, incredible visitant loitering now in the living room would leave. She would come down, as one emerged from a dream of overcharging fear. In a hysteria of relief she would find the tea table ready; find Margaret smiling, a little impatient. They would draw their chairs snugly together—and all the shiny plans for Nora Lee's future would be again outlined.

Her mind tricked her again and again with these cruel phantasies. She would come sharply to the bald and agonizing present. Miss Sanford, the nurse, would knock gently to tell her of friends that came with their comfort; of flowers that were sent; of business that only Nora Lee could transact.

She rose silently to these remote demands. She went into the living room and glanced distantly at the group of school friends who had come.

Once, seeing how young they were; how frightened and uneasy they seemed, her feeling rushed up in a bitter storm of pain and resentment. She went out quickly, overcome with the abrupt realization of the stark loneliness—the bitter injustice that had been heaped on Margaret.

She who was still young; who had such wealthy capacity to love and serve, had come and gone. And now there was not one; not a single one except her child to mourn. None who knew how rich and sainted all her days had been. She had passed, her royal quality unguessed—the very loneliest of pilgrims.

It was too sad. She said to Godfrey Bell when he came night after night to sit with her: "No one knew how beautiful my mother was. No one knows what grief she had. Oh—not a single compensation—'

He regarded her with an overwhelming sympathy as though he would gladly take her sorrow; make her a glad and fiery thing again. He said with a throttled vehemence: "You must be her compensation, then. My mother used to say her children were her monuments—the only ones she wanted. Perhaps your mother had a hope like that?"

She gave him a glance of grateful understanding: "How did you know? Yes, I think she did hope that—"

It was indeed what Margaret wished. He went on talking. But Nora Lee no longer heard.

The people coming and going were remote and unreal as shadows, suddenly gifted with speech. They hovered on the banks of this grotesque world that had suddenly closed about her. They were no part of it. She was alone here—she and the dear, quiet one who smiled and held a flower in her chill, white hands.

Virginia came. Her words were the first to pierce Nora Lee's blank, confused apathy. Virginia's dark, troubled eyes filled with tears. Her small teeth sank in the full, red under lip. She said: "I want to ask a favor, Nora Lee. Let me be that one to ride with you."

"Ride where? Oh—to the cemetery? Never mind, Virginia. I'll ride alone. I have to."

"No—don't do that. Let me come because I know what grief is—what real grief is, and I want to come with you." She flung her arms about Nora Lee, repeating and sobbing: "Oh, please—I can understand—"

"Nora Lee said wondering: "Oh, can you?" And she clung to Virginia's and listened to her comfort.

But no one could understand. No one ever has. Yesterday the loved one smiled at us; yesterday the loved one spoke. Today we are alone. Call out—reach wild hands the earth yield back no soothing as we will, the wide limits of echo; give up no fluttering touch. Not anywhere the dear, beholding eyes; not anywhere the tones that moved us so.

Nora Lee stood at the gate, returning from that last, desolating service. She looked up at the house and turned from it with a beaten despair.

Gone. Laid away. Even the still face, with its charmed, mysterious smile, as though it gazed at last on unutterable beauty, was shut from her.

She could not enter that room. She walked blindly up the hill till she came to that barren plateau that she had often pictured as the wild heath where Eustacia Vye wandered. Margaret used to say: "How fortunate we are to live in the very midst of civilization and yet to have the moorlands at our door."

In the spring time they came here to pluck the purple flag lilies—and the poppies were splendid even through the mouth of July.

She sat here looking out to the ocean—a gray, bleak stretch of water. Even the Golden Gate had drawn about it a murky cloak that half shut out the brown slopes of the Marin hills. All the enchanting hues of blue and flame were dimmed. The last time she and Margaret stood here, Margaret said: "Oh, what uplifting things are colors in the sky—"

The house, the hills, the very sky thronged with the image of her. She would see it always—seek it everywhere—

She went back to the house and sat at the desk where her mother wrote; where she made out her accounts and would sometimes pause with the pencil, tapping in puzzlement at her lips. Nora Lee loved that capricious impatience in Margaret, though it so rarely showed.

She went through the drawers, opened books. This one here was the one Margaret read only four days ago in the garden. Nora Lee had brought it. She turned the pages sadly. There was a sheet of paper: lines written in pencil:

"My Darling Girl—You must not bow. That will only grieve me—only make complete the sorrow of my life. Go on as I would have you go. Dear gypsy child—"

The three words of the unfinished sentence faltered. Oh—dear mother had known and had not said a word—had pretended to be strong—had not kept her home—

And her strength had failed writing those farewell lines . . .

Nora Lee stared about the empty room. She pressed the paper between frightened palms. Sounds rushed through the house; the wind rattled a shade. She went up and pressed her arms against it—she whispered in a confused distraction, not knowing what she said.

But when she saw the nurse with her suit case, a panic of fright crossed her. She said a little wildly: "Please stay—stay a while—'

She kept the nurse with her in these gaunt, frightening days—But she scarcely noticed her. She fought against thinking—fought against effort.

Miss Sanford said: "You must straighten your affairs, Miss Meadows. There are bills."

She answered: "Yes—" But remained hour after hour at the breakfast table, her arms folded. Or she went out and walked with such furious haste that she returned exhausted and sat longer hours at Margaret's desk.

She was so lonely—she felt herself so completely abandoned that she dared not relax this obstinate blank apathy a single moment. She felt that her mind wandered here and would recover. But if she brought it back suddenly she would go mad.

At the end of five days two telegrams and letters came from Dane.

"No word from you. What is wrong? Wire."

Then came a letter, tender, vehement, full of remonstrance; full of engrossing, hot demands: "Nora Lee—you must come to me or if you can't, then I'll return. You must not be alone—darling, you have me. Don't I count at all? Come and let us be married now. I won't interfere with your plans for college. I have thought out everything—you poor, sweet dear—how terrible that you must stay a moment alone. Write the minute you get this, for I am half wild aching for you—"

She cried her heart out reading through the dozen pages. She saw his laughing eyes; his sweet young mouth, and they seemed strong and beautiful to her. There was someone—someone—

She wrote back: "I will come—"

She made plans for this.

She could talk to Dane. She could recount to him all her mother's lovely way. He had loved Margaret—had come and played for her.

In a forlorn, chill way she thought how comforting would be his arms; how overpowering the relief of weeping with another—to say: "Oh, Dane, she had such a smile—if you could but see it. Oh, Dane, she was the bravest thing—"

She decided to sell the house. She began to make ready. But it was a slow, torturing task. She must settle all these affairs.

The bills for all the recent expenses were somewhat staggering. Miss Sanford helped her to go over the accounts. There was owing $1137.

She went down to the bank and exchanged for cash a second of the fifteen $1000 Liberty bonds Andrew had given. She mailed checks covering all the items.

One morning two days later Miss Sanford said: "There is a man in the living room who must see you."

He was a plain, raw faced fellow with a scant lock of brown hair sticking up between his temples.

He said: "I'm Mr. Evans of the detective bureau. We find that you cashed a Liberty bond, Miss Meadows. This bond and fourteen others, numbered consecutively, have been reported to the police department as stolen. Can you explain?"

NORTH DAKOTA NON-PARTISAN

FARGO, N.D., Nov. 5.—Arthur G. Sorlie of Grand Forks, a Nonpartisan leader, was chosen governor of North Dakota in yesterday's election returns available tonight.

Belated returns from rural precincts, strongholds of the league, put Sorlie in the lead after Halvor L. Halvorson, Democratic "fusion" candidate, had led in the previous returns, largely from cities.

It was the first time Sorlie had taken the lead, and his majority in 1313 of the state's 2160 precincts was 1099 with the unreported precincts largely in territory previously proleague.

The victory gives this states its first league governor since Senator Lynn Frasier was recalled in 1921.

When 1464 precincts had reported tonight, President Coolidge was still in the lead over Senator La Follette. Coolidge had 76,096 and La Follette 61,638.

GETS CERTIFICATE FOR SEVEN CLAIMS

Sullivan and Others Are Granted Papers Recording Work Done

For every wash-day method

RINSO is ideal for any wash-day method you use. You do not have to change any of your usual steps—just use Rinso where you used to use ordinary soap.

If you like to boil your white cottons, Rinso will give you just the safe cleansing suds you need in the boiler. If you use a washing machine, follow the advice of the big washing machine manufacturers—use Rinso.

Just soaking with this new kind of soap loosens all the dirt until a single rinsing leaves the clothes clean and spotless.

However you do your wash, make it easy by using Rinso.

If you use a Washing Machine, soak your clothes in the Rinso suds as usual. In the morning add more Rinso solution and work the machine. Then rinse and dry—you will have a clean sweet snow-white wash.

Rinso is sold by all grocers and department stores

WHEN TWILIGHT YIELDS TO LAMPLIGHT

NO other part of the house is more cheerful than the living room when the mellow sunshine streams in through the windows, and adds its own rich pattern to colorful rays and hangings. And no room responds more happily to the glow of the evening lamp. When the daylight is gone, the flick of a silken cord releases this modern sunshine to scatter the night at your bidding.

Portable floor and table lamps, equipped with the correct Edison Mazda Lamps, can increase the cheerfulness of your living room many times over.

To obtain the best results, choose lamps with wide shades which throw the light upward and downward. See that they are equipped with 50 or 75-watt white or frosted Edison Mazda Lamps.

Near you is an Edison Mazda Lamp store, recognizable by the yellow and blue cartons. There you can obtain real information about good lighting.

Americans Don't Want Any Faddist La Follette Government

One of the striking features of the United States presidential election was the crushing defeat administered to Senator La Follette and his third party.

Decisively the American people have shown that they do not want any faddist government. They want neither class rule such as has bankrupted and disgraced the Dakotas, nor visionary experiments with public ownership. They have tried running the railroads as state enterprises, and they know also what is happening to their government merchant marine.

The senator carried his own state, but all the rest of the union is against him.

Enforcement of the Law in Canada

Illustrations of what law means in this country have been comprehensive of late.

Four murderers have been hanged in Montreal—after fair but not long-delayed trial.

Another murderer in Ontario, an alien, was recently executed despite all sorts of pressure to get him off.

A prominent public man, ex-cabinet minister, ex-provincial treasurer of Ontario, has been sent to penitentiary for graft.

One of that province's chief civil servants who went wrong was followed to California, brought back, and sent to penitentiary.

A prominent and wealthy Toronto business man has been sent to jail and fined $600,000 for defrauding the public.

The wealthy directors of a bank which collapsed are undergoing trial. Several officials of the bank have been convicted of failure of trust, and await sentence.

Suspicion arises of deficiencies or worse in a police force, investigation gets under way, and a chief of police is promptly found suspended from office.

In every case the law has been prompt, efficient and resolute. Political influence, wealth, position, have had no greater respect from the law and no more respite than suspects from other classes, minor officials, or the very underworld. There has not been even a suggestion in any responsible quarter that money or influence could protect against the courts.

It is well worth while for Canadians to be able to say this, knowing it to be true.

What the Press Is Saying

Government by Blackmail

We are indebted to Richard Washburn Child for this apt and accurate definition of the sort of government we are most likely to have in this country if political blocs and organized minorities, founded on self-interest, gain much wider influence in congress than they now exert. In a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post Mr. Child says:

"Today the greatest political issue before the country is the threatened breakdown of our republican form of government by the increase in the power and number of organized minorities. The greatest issue is whether we are to maintain a government for national administration or for special favors to those minorities which can threaten the hardest. * * *

"The issue in this campaign, though no political party has the courage to define it, is whether the government shall go back to being a government for all the people or slide further toward being a government by blackmail; a government not for the taxpayer but for the loot-hunter; a government not of authority requiring service, but a government of loose-jawed benevolence throwing up its feeble hands for all the stand-and-deliver organized minorities."

Mr. Child names as some acts of congress that have been forced by this sort of political blackmail rather than by the free will of the American people as a whole and in a genuine republican manner, the Adamson bill, prohibition, suffrage for women, the soldiers' bonus bill, and several special favors granted through the "influence" of the agricultural political group. He does not say that all of these were unworthy measures or devoid of merit. He says simply that they were passed not because congress believed in them but, "as all congressmen who are not hypocrites know very well, because of the fear of an organized minority." They were the outcome of "assaults to obtain something which the free will of the American people as a whole would never give."

Mr. Child touches the root of the evil in one word—fear. Because congressmen are afraid of what the organized self-interest minorities may say or do they also are afraid to quit themselves like men, to stand stanchly for the interests of the American people, to legislate broadly and wisely, to discharge their sworn duties faithfully, and to defend with courage and vigilance our constitutionally established institutions.

If there were no cowards—political cowards—in congress, there would be no political blocs, no self-seeking organized minorities, no government by blackmail. Which brings us back to a former assertion of ours: What we need most of all today in every phase of government (the conduct of public business) is character.—The Valve World.

To knit a size 36 slip-over sweater buy five balls of either camels hair yarn or two-ply shetland floss and a pair of size seven celluloid needles. Body—Cast on 84 sts. for lower edge of back, K. 12 ridges in garter stitch (that is, knit every row). Then work 13 rows in stockinette stitch (that is, knit one row, purl one row).

Begin the openwork pattern as follows: Row One—With wrong side of work to you, knit across. Row Two—Knit. Row Three—(Wrong side of work) knit 1, * yarn over, K. 2 together; repeat from * across, ending row with yarn over, K. 2 together, K. 1. Row Four—Knit, using the "overs" as stitches. Row Five—(Wrong side) Knit. Now knit 13 rows in stockinette stitch and five rows of openwork pattern alternately, till you have six openwork stripes. End with fifth row of stripe.

Cast on 10 sts. at beginning of each of next four rows, then cast on 40 sts. in each of the following two rows (60 sts. in all, cast on for each sleeve). Work even in pattern till you have two openwork stripes and six rows in stockinette stitch after the last stripe. Next row, knit 90 sts. and slip them into a stitch holder; bind off 24 sts. for back of neck, knit remaining 90 sts., and purl back to neck. Increase one stitch at neck in each of the next two knitted rows, ending last row at neck, and break yarn.

Work the other side to correspond ending last row at armhole. Work back to neck, cast on 24 sts. for front of neck and work sts. from first side onto the same needle. Work even in pattern till you have four openwork stripes on sleeves at wrist and six rows in stockinette st. after the fourth stripe. Bind off 40 stitches at beginning of each of the next two rows, then bind off 10 sts at beginning of four rows; this finishes the sleeves. Work even in pattern till front is as long as the back before border, knit border as on the back of garment, and bind off loosely on wrong side in the last row.

Cuffs—Working from right side, pick up and knit 40 sts. across wrist; knit in ribbing of K. 2, P. 2, for three and one-half inches (counting about seven rows to an inch), and bind off loosely, knitting the knitted stitches and purling the purled ones. Sew up underarm and sleeve seams. Crochet a single-crochet edging loosely around neck to prevent rolling. Wear this sweater with white linen collar and cuffs.

That still important note in fashion, the tunic blouse, offers a splendid means of introducing individuality and variety in the winter wardrobe. It may, however, make you appear tall or stubby, depending on the nice precision with which you regulate its length in relation to your height and build.

In the first place, no figure should be divided exactly in the middle, as that is considered a very inartistic proportion. Of the lengths most fashionable, the three-quarters and knee-length tunics are the most harmoniously proportioned to the tall and medium height woman. They are also graceful for the short, slight figure.

A stockily built figure, however, whether medium height or short, cannot afford to break the silhouet more than a few inches above the hem of the slip. This type should give preference to the seven-eighths lengths, particularly if there is striking contrast in color between the tunic and the slip.

These principals are followed in the sketch above illustrating a tall and a short figure, and tunics appropriate for each. All the principal features of the more elaborate model, such as the shallow rounded neck, the indicated low waistline and the pleating detail below this point, are designed to balance height. This is made of gold brown crepe-de-chene over a black satin slip.

Bottle green faille silk is used for the simpler and longer model over velveteen in the same shade. Here all the details suggest height.

PUTTING OUT TWO MILLION POPPIES

Great War Veterans Predict Unprecedented Volume Will Be Worn

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—(By Canadian Press)—The distribution of vetcraft poppies as the "Flower of Remembrance" for Armistice day in Canada this year will reach an unprecedented total, according to officials of the Dominion command, G. W. V. A. Judging by the orders which have already been received, nearly 2,000,000 poppies will be worn. Last year's distribution was slightly in excess of 1,000,000.

The poppy replicas are being made by seriously disabled man in vetcraft and Red Cross workshops in the principal centers of the Dominion. Distribution is entirely in the hands of the G. W. V. A., which utilizes its provincial commands and more than 800 branches as distributing agents.

The Sergeant Cook

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright act.)

During the war I got acquainted with the sergeant in charge of the food supplies and cooking of a very large military hospital.

He secured his supplies from the army service corps, and they were of the same quantity per man, and quality, as the other hospitals.

But there was a rumor abroad that he secured more and better supplies, because men and patients of one institution will talk to men and patients of a similar institution.

Now as a matter of fact, as I said above, his supplies were identically the same.

Why the difference?

Because he actually looked upon his work as an art, and himself as an artist.

He arranged his meals a full week ahead varying the menu in every conceivable way, and endeavoring to take into account the season of the year.

In addition to this he would fix up the same kind of food three or four different ways, so that the patients were being continuously tempted to eat the regular hospital meals, and were out of hospital sooner, and the "help" sat down and ate their "rations" without the sign of a kick.

Now there is no question but that our dietitians have taught us a great deal about food. They have figured out well balanced menus and the number of calories per day of each food stuffs, along with the necessary vitamins to ensure the all round diet necessary to health. This to them is their art, their profession, and they are deservedly proud of their accomplishments.

But as I think of my friend, the sergeant cook, and remember that he took what was supplied him, prepared meals that were a delight to the eye, and enticed sick people to eat, I can't help but think that his "art" is just as important as that of the dietitian.

Because the big factor underneath all this is, that if you can make the hunger juices—in mouth and stomach—flow, by the appearance and tastiness of the food, you have gone a long way in getting people well.

Variety of food, and attractiveness in serving, means that you get the full value of the food.

KEPT DIARY TO AID SIR ADAM

Settell Foresaw Scrap With Engineer, Who Was "Getting Ammunition"

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—Although documentary denials of some of the charges of E. C. Settell, former secretary to Sir Adam Beck, in his confidential letter to his former chief, and an admission by Settell that in respect to one charge at least he had made an error, were among the most important developments at yesterday's continued sittings of the Snider commission. The most interesting feature was Settell's explanation as to how he had come to keep tab in his diary of all these alleged irregularities, dating from 15 years back.

Settell stated in answer to questions by Hon. I. B. Lucas, through W. S. Webster, K.C., that his original purpose in keeping a diary of alleged wrong doing on the part of former Chief Engineer Sotham was that he should be able to help Sir Adam Beck in the event of serious disagreement between the two, which Settell said he then foresaw.

Later, he said, in reply to Judge Snider, the continuation of the diary down to recent times, after the dismissal of Sotham, had become merely a habit.

Sotham Was Plotting

"When I first came to the commission," Settell said today, "P. W. Sotham was chief engineer. There had always been a little underground jealousy between Sotham and the chairman. A certain individual was making notes of Bell Telephone company accounts paid by the commission, in which probably there may have been some personal calls for Sir Adam. This man made notes, and Sotham picked them out. They were picking out what they presumed would be personal charges against Sir Adam, to provide ammunition for Sotham in case of a break which was liable to come—ammunition to hold up against the chairman."

POLICE TENDER TO THE CROOKS

Montreal Cases Excite Indignation of Investigating Judge

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—That too much tenderness was being shown to rogues was the opinion of Mr. Justice Coderre, investigating com*missioner, who is inquiring into the* affairs of the Montreal police, expressed at yesterday's hearing. The circumstances of the baggage of a man named Brooks, wanted in the United States, being handed over by a local hotel to his friends on the instruction of Detective Captain Forget, while Brooks himself was in the cells here pending extradition, evoked his lordship's expression.

Captain Forget admitted that he might have made an error, but advanced the opinion that he had no record of the baggage being wanted as evidence against Brooks.

Commenting further, Mr. Justice Coderre observed that it was said that Brooks' valise contained bonds which were stolen in the United States.

Goods Back If Pay Given

Evidence at the inquiry today turned up on the matter of payments made by victims of robberies in order to gain possession of their stolen goods. His lordship dealt with a case of a second-hand storekeeper, whose evidence was ordered sent to the crown prosecutor for action. Mendelson, the second-hand storekeeper, had testified with regard to some stolen furs, for the return of which the victim had paid $50.

A series of burglaries, in which the victims were informed by detectives that the goods could be returned upon payment if the complaints were withdrawn, featured the evidence of the earlier session.

LATE PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE DIES IN LONDON

Miss Corbett, Lately Acting in This District, Victim of Disease

HARROP, B.C., Nov. 5.—Mrs. W. J. McConnell received Friday a letter from Mrs. E. Ralph Jones, sister of Miss R. A. Corbett, telling of the death of Miss Corbett on August 17. Miss Corbett was taken very ill August 16 while in London, dying the following morning without regaining consciousness, death being due to diabetes.

Miss Corbett was public health nurse in this district at one time, and endeared herself to a great many through sacrifices she made in her efforts to alleviate suffering.

Miss Corbett was maintained in her position as public health nurse for Kootenay lake, West Arm and Kootenay river areas through the women's institutes of this section with aid from the Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire and other organizations in the territory. She had a a four-week schedule, taking four areas in turn for a week each, making her headquarters at Procter. Her work finally brought on a nervous breakdown. Before being sent here by the provincial department she was in health service on Vancouver island. She was an Englishwoman.

HARROP MAKES A PRESENTATION

Social Club Remembers the President on Departure for Old Country

HARROP, B.C., Nov. 5.—The dance in the packing shed Friday evening under the joint auspices of the Social club and the directors of the Harrop Cooperative Packers' union proved a success. Music was furnished by a Nelson orchestra. Visitors were here from Nelson, Crawford Bay and Procter.

A presentation was made to H. Fairbank, who is leaving to spend the winter in England and Scotland. Mr. Fairbank has been president of the Social club since its beginning, and the Social club was responsible for the gift.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Fairbank and children left Sunday morning on a trip to England and Scotland. En route they will stop in Spokane, Chicago and Pittsburgh, and will sail from New York on the Samaria on November 8.

Miss C. Douglas gave a delightful party to the school children Friday evening from 7 to 9. Parents and friends of the children attended and watched them duck for the apples and play numerous other games. The schoolroom was prettily decorated in black and orange streamers, and several jack o' lanterns were set about. After the "eats", the children went to their homes.

M. Wigen of Wynndel was in Harrop Friday evening, and attended the dance.

CRANBROOK LADIES RAISE LARGE SUM

Methodist Aid at Annual Bazaar Realizes Three Hundred Fifty Dollars

CRANBROOK, B.C., Nov. 5.—The Knights of Pythias' hall was the scene of much activity Saturday, when the Methodist ladies' aid held its annual bazaar and sale of work. There were all the usual booths loaded down with every kind of needlework and fancy goods, and booths as well loaded with candy and home cooking, toys and fancy articles. Refreshments were also served. The proceeds are understood to amount to about $350.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thompson are removing from this city to Lethbridge, where they will be making their home. Mr. Thompson left Saturday last, and Mrs. Thompson and family will be leaving as soon as a home is arranged for them. Mr. Thompson has been on the Kootenay Central run of the Canadian Pacific railway for some time past, but at Lethbridge can take his regular standing as a conductor. Mrs. Thompson has been a valued member of the Presbyterian ladies' aid and with her vocal talent has been of assistance at many public gatherings of all kinds in the city.

A 10½-pound son was welcomed into the family circle of Fire Chief and Mrs. Percy Adams Saturday last.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Warren, formerly of Rimbey, Alta., who have come to the city to spend the winter, will shortly be occupying the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Moorhouse on Lumsden avenue, who will be leaving about the middle of the month for southern California, where they expect to remain till March of next year. Mr. Warren is a brother of Mrs. J. M. Clark and W. Warren of the fox farm. Mrs. J. Warren is a musician of considerable accomplishment, and she will take charge of the Methodist choir for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Adlard arrived in the city Sunday from Fernie, where they have resided for the last 18 months or so. They are now going to reside in Vancouver. Mr. Adlard having acquired business interests there. He was formerly connected with the Western Canada Wholesale company here and later with the company at Fernie, but has now severed his connection with that firm. During their residence here of some 10 or 12 years they made many friends, especially in Methodist circles, of which church they were valued members. Mr. Adlard was also a prominent Odd Fellow. They left again today for Vancouver.

They gained a district in Maryland, one in Kansas, and elected their candidate in the eighth Ohio district over the Republican incumbent.

Return to the house of both the floor leaders—Longworth, Ohio, of the Republicans, and Garret, Tennessee, of the Democrats—was assured, while it appears that there would be no upsets in New York's delegation, the largest in the house, despite the heavy Coolidge plurality in the empire state.

Whether there would again be one Socialist in the house remained in doubt pending complete returns on a close contest in which Victor Berger of Wisconsin first was behind and then was leading.

CROSSEN GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Ontario Game Keeper Who Shot Business Man Gets Six-Year Term

COBOURG, Ont., Nov. 5.—William John Crossen, gamekeeper at a fishing reserve at Baltimore, was to-night found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of Byron A. McCrodan of Toronto, last May, and sentenced by Mr. Justice Wright to imprisonment for a term of six years.

The prisoner broke down and wept as sentence was pronounced.

Criticizing the present-day attitude that values human life at a low price, his lordship said that zeal for an employer, admirable though it may be, does not authorize a man to shoot others.

Swindled Woman Turns on the Gas; Had Love Affair

VANCOUVER, Nov. 5.—Swindled out of $3000, Mrs. Hattie Miller, proprietress of a massage parlor, was found unconscious in bed in her room with the gas stove jets on.

She had also worried over a love affair. A note on the table declared she was tired of fighting, and said farewell to "Sweetheart, Daughter and Mother."

Hospital authorities say she will live.

COAST DEMANDS LOW RATES ON CLEANED RICE

Lanigan Tells Board That Change Is Made for the Montreal Mills

VANCOUVER, Nov. 5.—Objections to the recent increase of the rates on cleaned rice from Vancouver to prairie points was made at the session of the railway commission here today. The commissioners announced that the data submitted would be referred to the commissioners who heard evidence here last June on the question of rice rates.

A. E. Mason, manager of the Imperial Milling & Grain company, stated the rice milling industry originally started in Montreal, and that for years the companies there practically controlled the business. The construction of continental railways, the opening of the Panama canal and the milling of rice in Vancouver had hurt Montreal's business.

Montreal Feels Competition Most

Montreal and Vancouver millers both suffered from the competition of southern millers, but Montreal felt the competition most because of that harbor being closed in the winter. He submitted much data in support of objections to the increase in rates from Vancouver to the prairies.

D. Garvin, manager of Martin & Robertson, stated the Vancouver millers of rice were slowly eliminating competition of southern mills in the Canadian middle west.

W. B. Lanigan, chief traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific railway, stated the railway company had been willing to leave the rates undisturbed but that the Montreal millers had made an application to have the rates changed. The Canadian Pacific railway naturally wanted to encourage the business of milling rice here and shipping it east.

COOLIDGE MAY SHUFFLE DECK

President Expected to Make Changes in Cabinet; Slemp to Retire

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Several changes are expected in the administration personnel when President Coolidge takes the official oath of office next March 4.

There have been definite indica*tions that certain officers high up* in the government desired, for various reasons, to retire to private life, including some cabinet members.

About the first break expected in the official family is the resignation of C. Slemp, secretary to the president.

Mr. Slemp has played an important part in the campaign, as well as handling the duties of his office, and he is said to want a rest. It is understood that he is planning a vacation which will keep him in the south for the winter.

Mr. Coolidge, naturally, will be free to select his own cabinet for his full term. Those members who desire to leave are expected to communicate their wishes formally to him before next March.

SERAFINI'S WIDOW IS UP TOMORROW

With Her Parillo Will Face Charge of Murder in Hochelaga Case

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—Mary Serafini, widow of Guiseppe Serafini, the hanged Banque d'Hochelaga bandit, will appear in court of king's bench on November 7, her case having been put forward to that date. She faces two charges of murder, and one of receiving in connection with the holdup for which her husband was sentenced to death.

R. L. Calder, K.C., crown prosecutor, will make a statement on her case on that date, and also in that of Adam Parillo, who is faced with the same charges as Mrs. Serafini.

The widow of the hanged bandit is pale and worn, a shadow of her former self.

SENATOR LODGE IS UNCONSCIOUS

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, who was operated on October at the Charlesgate hospital, suffered a shock at noon today and has been unconscious since, his secretary said tonight.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 5.—Mayor S. J. Farmer will appeal to the civic electorate for the third term as candidate of the Independent Labor party.

He was nominated by acclamation at a convention of the party last night. The election will be held on November 28.

Col. R. R. Webb is the opposing candidate.

BUY STOCKS ON COOLIDGE WIN

Million and Three-quarter Shares Change Hands; Many New Peaks

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—One of the most impressive buying demonstrations of recent years, which carried nearly two score stocks to new peak prices for the year on a turnover of nearly 1,750,000 share, was Wall street's response to the sweeping Republic victory in yesterday's presidential election. Net gains in many active issues ranged from 1 to 3½ points despite the unusually heavy volume of profit-taking which the market was called upon to absorb.

Fifteen Rails Through Ceiling

Fifteen rails attained new 1924 peak prices, including New York Central, Atchison, Atlantic Coast Line, Missouri Pacific common and preferred, Katy common and preferred, Rock Island 7 per cent preferred, Wabash A and Seaboard Air Line. Big Four soared 10 points to 142; Nickel Plate and Jersey Central each showed net gains of 5½ points, and many others closed 1 to 3½ higher on the day.

In the industrials, United States Steel common closed unchanged at 109⅝ after having sold as high as 110⅝. Baldwin, which touched 123 around the middle of the session, later fell back to 121⅝ for a net gain of ⅝. American Can established the high price in its history at 141⅜ and then eased to 140, up 2⅜. American Smelting & Refining, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, United States Cast Iron Pipe, United States Industrial Alcohol and Central Leather preferred were among the many stocks that closed 2 to 4 points higher.

H. R. Mallinson reached a new 1924 peak price at 31⅞. Among the other industrials to break through their previous highs were Associated Dry Goods, American Radiator, Savage Arms, Postum Cereal, International Nickel and Goodyear preferred.

Call money renewed at 2½ per cent and then advanced to 3. Time money firm; commercial paper unchanged.

Total sales, 1,718,700 shares.

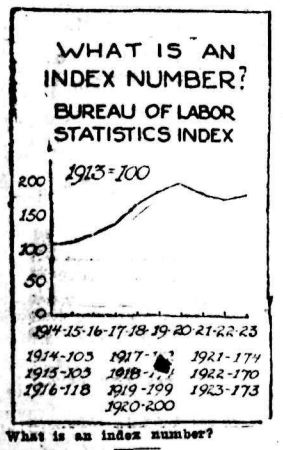
Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.



What is an index number?

An index is a series of figures showing changes from time to time in prices or other economic movements usually expressed in terms of some base or normal period. The purpose is to portray simply and clearly changes in price levels and other movements of economic importance.

One of the best-known indexes is that of the cost of living published by the bureau of labor statistics of the United States department of labor. This is derived by taking prices of goods which are purchased for family consumption. These prices are given the importance to which they are entitled and then combined into one figure representing the cost of living compared with the base period, 1913.

GREAT RACE HORSE SAILS FOR FRANCE

Epinard Is Accompanied by Three American Mares; His Racing Is Over

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Epinard, the French 4-year-old which came to this country in July to test the greatness of America's thoroughbreds, sailed today for home in the Berengaria, to be retired to the stud after losing four races and suffering a foot in the last.

The chestnut, acknowledged greatest and popular favorite in this country despite his defeats, was accompanied by three American mares which will be mated with him next season. They were Satin Slippers, 2-year-old filly owned by the Hamilton farm, and the brood mares Hour Hand and Quelle Chance owned by Maj. August Belmont. The stud fee will be $1500.

Eugene Leigh, trainer of the French star, said he had not regrets, and still believed Epinard to be the greatest horse in the world.

FIVE WEEKS' RACES MacKENZIE'S INTENT

VICTORIA, Nov. 5.—That the intent of legislation he was introducing with regard to horse racing in the province was to cut down the racing season by half, limiting Vancouver to three weeks and Victoria to two, was the statement made by Captain Ian MacKenzie, M.P.P., today. This would mean one week on each of the five existing tracks, and no new tracks would spring up.

Captain MacKenzie pointed out that the appeal court had ruled that the legislature has power to delegate to municipalities the right to prohibit racing, and, even should this decision be upset, the same results could be achieved by increased taxation or licence.

EXPLOSIVE WAS DISASTER CAUSE SAYS THE JURY

a suit case, and a man had told him to be careful, as it was full of dynamite. Later he had told Mr. Perrasso that he had three bottles of Scotch whisky in it. Chief Gammon stated that Perrasso was out on a hunting trip at present, and for that reason had not been called as a witness at the inquest.

*D. StDenis, foreman, then an*nounced the jury had no more witnesses to call, and Coroner Dr. H. H. MacKenzie cleared the court in order that the jury might consider its verdict, about 11:30. The verdict was returned shortly after 12.

Wire No Design

Ernest Collinson, a watchmaker by trade, gave evidence. The cogwheel to which the wire was attached, he stated, was the wheel which turned the hour hand. It was attached to the wheel and was resting between the teeth. On the next tooth was another piece of wire. It may have been soldered on, but witness did not think so. He believed that it was a brass wire, and could not say what metal was holding the wire and did not think that it was soldered. It looked as if the wire was forced in place. Asked if it was an actual piece of wire or a strip off the cogwheel, Mr. Collinson stated that it was a piece of wire. Wire was used in several places in a clock. It was used to keep the dial in place. The wire might possibly be a piece of that. If it was copper wire, it must have either been blown in or put in the clock. In its present position it was out of place.

The clock was not a common one, and there were not many sold in this city. It was of an Italian manufacture, and the alarm spring was tight. The wire might have been put there by the force of the explosion. The heat might have melted the metal off so that the wire would stay there. There were many ways in which a wire could get there.

If the wire were put on for a purpose it was awfully loose, declared the witness. The wire was not in position to trip anything, and he was of the opinion that a clock could be insulated, but just how he couldn't say. It did not look to him that there was any design in the wire being on the cog. A man would not take that method to set off a clock. While in the stand, witness picked up the clock and the wire dropped off.

Engineer Saw Hole in Coach

William Harkness, engineer on the train which left here on Tuesday night last, told of the explosion being heard and of the brakes automatically setting themselves. He reversed the engine and put on the independent brakes. The coach was on fire when he looked back. The fourth car from the engine was burning.

He went back and was inside the coach. After the passengers had been removed the car had to be separated from the train. He saw a hole in the floor of the coach. He had examined the gas tanks in the floor of the car and had found them uninjured, shortly after the explosion.

The hole in the coach, he explained, was to the center and right of the car. Fire was burning all about it.

He had seen the hole in the floor when he went to examine the gas tanks. The steam pipe under the car had been blown to a bending position by the explosion. The walls of the coach were practically blown out. The roof was blown away. He noticed an unusual odor in the east end of the coach, where the smok*ing compartment was. He saw no* jet of flame from the gas tanks.

William Rutherford—Why did you go to inspect the gas tanks?

Harkness—Someone said that the gas tank had exploded. I went to look; I naturally thought that the gas did explode.

It appeared to the witness that if the car was full of gas someone would have detected it. The only manner in which it could get into the car was through the lights. He was convinced that the tanks were all right, and the hole in the coach, he stated, was on the opposite side to where the gas tanks were located.

Fireman Thought It Gas

C. G. Munroe, fireman on the train, was called, and told of hearing the explosion and seeing flames from the coach. He had helped to get the wounded out. He had gone inside the day coach. There were no seats left in the center and debris was scattered about. He had seen the hole in the floor; it was four or five feet round. The hole was near to the air cylinders, and the steam heat pipe was bent down by the force of the explosion.

He, like Harkness, had thought that the gas had caused the explosion. Seats were piled in the day coach in every direction. He heard a lot of pops like cartridges going off at intervals. There were quite a few of them, and they sounded as if they had been detonating caps.

The impression that the gas tanks had exploded, he stated, was a first thought. He had never seen such a thing occur.

Doukhobor Victim Heard

George Zehroff, one of the Doukhobor travelers on the train, who left the hospital on Sunday last, was *brought back from Brilliant on Tues*day to appear as a witness.

He had been at Birchbank, where he had been packing apples. He boarded the train at Castlegar. He was sitting at the second seat from the end of the coach, and on the same side as Peter Verigin. One Hindu sat behind him, and another opposite to him. Some other Doukhobors got on at Tunnel and sat ahead of him three or four seats.

After he left Tunnel, witness stated that he went to sleep. He did not know what happened. He was thrown on top of some farmer. A farmer was an independent Doukhobor, in his thinking. He hurt his chest, and heard and saw the fire.

With him he had a suit case, coat and cap and some baggage. The baggage was in the baggage car. In his baggage was a change of clothes and his blankets. In his suit case were a pair of pruning shears.

A pair of pruning shears badly burned and picked up in the remains of the car by Staff-Sergt. Gammon was displayed in court. Zebroff identified them as his own. He had had them for six or seven years, and they had been imported by the community. He did not have pliers or scissors in his grip. He noticed no holes in the coach.

Witness stated that he had never told anyone he had seen a hole in the coach. He had jumped up as the coach started to burn. It came to his mind that he had to go away or be killed. He tried to get out of the door, but couldn't open it. He saw a window open, or with the glass blown out of it, and he jumped through it. The only person he had seen in the burning coach was George Kasakoff, who was also rescued. He had not told Edward Graf, at Brilliant, that he had seen a hole in the coach.

Wilfred Marquis was recalled on the stand and asked by Mr. Hamilton if he carried a light with him when going through the coach. Witness stated that when he shut off the evaporating system under the seat nearby Peter Verigin, some few seconds before the explosion, he held an ordinary coal oil switchman's lamp in his right hand. He had not smelled gas.

This, stated Mr. Hamilton, did away with the gas theory, as it would have exploded when the fire was present from the lamp.

Max Baskin was a witness during the day, and he testified that two coats produced in court were those belonging to Peter Verigin, dead Doukhobor leader. He had himself helped Mr. Verigin to choose the overcoat in a Spokane store.

Mr. Campbell, one of the dead in the explosion, was known well by Mr. Baskin. He carried with him a suit case and a pack sack. He carried no explosives with him. Outside of his baggage, he carried only a tape measure and marking hammer.

BANDITS ROB AN ILLINOIS BANK

Employees and Six Patrons Forced to Elevate Hands at Bunkerhill

BUNKERHILL, Ill., Nov. 5.—Six heavily armed bandits held up the First National bank here this afternoon, forced the bank employees and six patrons to elevate their hands, and escaped with $3500, while groups of citizens were standing on the street near the bank.

More than $7500 said to have been in the vault was saved, due to the fact that vault experts were repairing the locks and had dismantled the locking mechanism so that the door could not be opened.

OPPOSITION HAS FLOOR IN HOUSE FOR WHOLE DAY

Lister and Davie Plead Cause of Interior Industries

PUT SOLDIER LOANS ON PRESENT VALUE

Wallinger Says Capital Shut Out; Bruhn on Timber Tax

VICTORIA, Nov. 5.—Lieut.-Col. Fred Lister, Creston, N. A. Wallinger, Cranbrook, R. N. Bruhn, Salmon Arm, and C. F. Davie, Cowichan-Newcastle, all Conservative members, held the floor of the legislature throughout today's session, consisting chiefly of continuance of the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne.

All four oppositionists complained that the king's speech was an exceedingly barren document, which failed, according to Mr. Davie, to satisfy the constitutional requirement of revealing to the members why they had been summoned together. The only suggestion in the speech that met with the approval of all four members was that which promised revision of the timber royalties. They agreed that the industry needed re*lief in this direction.*

Creston Fruit Shaken

Colonel Lister and Mr. Davie criticised spending millions on motor roads when, according to them, the settler's roads were so poor that in the case of Creston, fruit was badly damaged in transit between the ranches and the railways by reason of the jostling of the trucks on uneven roads.

Mr. Davie was taken to task by Premier Oliver and Ian MacKenzie, Vancouver, for arguing that the freight case was not the government's business, but should have been left to the individuals directly affected. He argued that Premier Oliver could have saved money and done more effective work by pleading the case with his political friends in power at Ottawa, than by engaging council at high prices to argue before the railway commission.

An interruption by Attorney-General Manson gave R. H. Pooley opportunity to claim that the old Conservative government had started the fight, which sentiment received Conservative applause, and Mr. Davie explained he was expressing only his personal views.

Prospector Almost Obsolete

Colonel Lister devoted most of his time to pleading for greater consideration for the mining, argicultural and lumbering industries. The old type of prospector was becoming obsolete, he declared, because capitalists would not look at his properties on account of failure of the government to provide trails.

Substitution of advance pools for legitimate absentee voters at election time, instead of the present absentee vote system, was urged, on the ground that 80 per cent of those voting as absentees at the last election had plenty of time to change *their registration if they had so de*sired.

To J. R. Colley's approval of the policy of the land settlement board in issuing loans to farmers only for new development, Colonel Lister replied that this might be all right, only the board was not issuing any loans. He said it was more important to keep the old-timers on the ground, than to advance money to newcomers of unproven worth as agriculturists.

Soldier Settler Plea

Colonel Lister made another of his eloquent pleas in behalf of the soldier settlers at Creston, urging the government to write down the loans charged against their lands, to the actual present day value of the properties, forgetting the actual cost, which, he said in a considerable proportion savored of "water stock" by reducing the loans to a business basis, it could be possible for the remaining settlers to develop their properties, and stay in the country as productive citizens.

He also urged amendment of the School act to enable the government to combine several local school districts into one high school district, so that the cost of the high schools would be evenly distributed. The present voluntary provision was ineffective, he said, and poor settlers had to pay $50 a year to have their children attend high school.

Develop Mines Says Wallinger

Mr. Wallinger said he failed to see the prosperity about which Dr. Wrinch and Mr. Colley had spoken so much.

He urged a strong constructive development policy for the mining industry, pointing out that in Cranbrook, a rich silver-lead district, not a new discovery had been made in 12 years.

The member for Salmon Arm, Mr. Bruhn, urged strongly that the lumber industry be saved from the ruinous increase in royalties which would become effective next year unless the act was changed this session.

Mr Davie lamented the absence of allusion to the government's intention in regard to the beer plebiscite, the P.G.E., aid to farmers, provision for improving the road system, any steps to prevent further depletion of fishery resources, and other public issues.

"It is all mere assertion, and looks more like election propaganda than a speech from the throne," he said.

Mr. Davie said that he refrained from congratulating the government on the appointment of the new liquor commissioner, until after it became apparent what had became of the other three commissioners.

"Have they been discharged," he asked, "or have we now four, instead of three, commissioners?"

VANCOUVER, Nov. 5.—Returning from a tour of the interior, H. T. Lockyer, general manager of the Hudson's Bay company, states conditions in Nelson are good.

The West Kootenay, he says, give *extenssior endication of generally im*proved conditions in mining.

DOUKHOBORS LOSE STORE THROUGH FIRE

Castlegar Independents' Store and Rooming House Destroyed

FLAMES BROKE OUT NEAR THREE O'CLOCK

One Doukhobor Cut by Glass as He Escapes From Flames

Fire originating from causes unknown totally destroyed a store operated by independent Doukhobors at Castlegar, yesterday morning. A Doukhobor rooming house adjacent to the store and occupied at the time by several Doukhobors, was also consumed in the flames, which for a time threatened Castlegar. The estimated total loss is about $9000, partly covered by insurance.

Stock in the store was valued at $5000. One Doukhobor in jumping from a window in the burning rooming house, was injured and was attended by Dr. T. J. Norman of East Robson.

The flames were first noticed at about 2:45 o'clock. The fire started in the store belonging to Vanjoff & Maloff. The high wind which was blowing at the time fanned the flames, which jumped to an oil house closely adjoining the store.

On the next lot to the store was a Doukhobor rooming house conducted by Marazoff & Zannello, in which were two Doukhobors. They had been attending the funeral services of Peter Lordly Verigin on Sunday.

Cut by Glass

Both being very much excited they were unable to unlock the door at the foot of the stairs, and one in his hurry to get out, jumped through a window in the door. The glass in the door cut him seriously about the right leg. The fall shook him up a great deal. His wounds were attended to by the doctor and he was able today to proceed to Crescent Valley.

Several residences to the rear of the store were saved. In these houses were sleeping several independent Doukhobors, who seemed dazed at the fire, and who failed to render much assistance.

TRAIL PIONEER PASSES AWAY

Patrick Cunningham Resident and Smelterman Since Twenty-six

Trail yesterday morning lost another of its old-time residents in the person of Patrick Cunningham, more commonly termed "Pat" by his Trail friends. Mr. Cunningham, who was 74 years of age, had been ailing for some time.

He is survived by his wife, who resides in Trail, a son in Portland, and another son and daughter. He has been a resident of Trail since 1876 and has worked continuously with the Consolidated Mining & Smelting company, limited. He was held with much esteem in Trail by his many friends.

HOLD DEBATE AND HEAR GOOD MUSIC

Skookum Tillicums Also Hear Talk on Group Cooperation

A debate on moving pictures, selections both from the Skookum-Tillicum orchestra and the Skookum-Tillicum band, and a talk on group cooperation from Hi-Yas Skookum Man Jack Morris, were parts of the evening's entertainment at last night's weekly meeting of the Skookum-Tillicum club held in the church parlors of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

In the debate, in which the negative won, on "Resolved, That Moving Pictures Do More Harm Than Good," the affirmative was taken by Dan Jones (leader), Miss Ethel Richards and Miss Margaret McLeod while the negative was upheld by Vic Duncan (leader), Miss Doreen StDenis and Miss Floss McVicar. The judges were A. McArthur, R. Smillie and Rev. F. R. G. Dredge. Following this Mr. Smillie gave a short talk on debating.

Selections were played during the course of the evening by the Skookum-Tillicum orchestra as well as the band. The latter was made up of Jack Morris, leader; Miss Hazel Maundrell, piccolo; Miss May Brake, banjo; Miss Doreen StDenis, drums; Miss Ethel Richards, violin; Tony StDenis, trombone, and Charlie Driscoll, music holder.

Mr. Morris then gave an address on group cooperation, as Hi-Yas Skookum Man. The evening closed with the serving of refreshments and "Good Night, Ladies."

MRS. BALCOM DIES VERY SUDDENLY

She Leaves Husband, Four Children, Mother and Two Brothers

The death occurred suddenly early yesterday afternoon of Mrs. Hattie Louise Balcom at her home on Oak street. The late Mrs. Balcom leaves her husband, Andrew Balcom, four children; her mother, and two brothers.

The children are Alvine, aged 15; Elas Henry, aged 12; Edna May, aged 10, and an infant son, 3 weeks old. Her mother is Mrs. John Nabbott of Seattle, and her brothers are Joseph and John, both of Seattle.

The late Mrs. Balcom was born in Hamilton, Ont., 38 years ago.

CHINESE IS SHIPPED HOME

Cranbrook Celestial Serves Year; Deported on Dope Charge

Kwong Sing, a Celestial, of Cranbrook, left on the coast train last night in custody of an officer. He will be deported to China, and sails from Vancouver Saturday.

Sing was a year ago sentenced to a year in jail by Magistrate John Leask of Cranbrook. He was found guilty of having opium in his possession. According to law, Chinese found guilty of having opium in their possession, must at the expiration of their sentence be deported to China.

JUDGE FORIN ADDRESSES SIX ORGANIZATIONS

Tells of World Sunday School Convention Held at Glasgow

About 150 teachers, officers and other workers of six of the city's Sunday schools gathered in the Presbyterian church parlors last night to hear an address by Judge J. A. Forin on the World's Sunday school convention held at Glasgow, Scotland, during the past summer. The Sunday schools represented were St. Saviour's, The Church of the Redeemer, St. Paul's Presbyterian, Trinity Methodist, the Baptist, and the Salvation Army.

Judge Forin, who, with his daughter, Miss Jean Forin, had been a delegate, spoke of the great gathering of Sunday school workers from all over the world, made up of representatives from 40 different nations, and totalling over 4000 delegates. He told his hearers that all the delegates spoke in English, even if very broken English, with the exception of the Japanese, who had interpreters for their own language.

A Great Debate

The judge told of a debate in which delegates from Norway, India, Japan and the United States took part, as well as of several others in which different nations exchanged viewpoints.

He emphasized the inspiration of the meetings to the great army of workers, and told of the hospitality of the people of Scotland and of Glasgow in particular.

Mrs. J. S. Hooking, Church of the Redeemer, Fairview, gave an address on primary work, and Mrs. H. Forsberg, Salvation Army, also spoke on the same subject.

Several short addresses of three or four minutes followed and some discussion of Sunday school work in Nelson, those taking part being W. J. Miles, Rev. J. E. Tyner of the Baptist church, R. Smillie, Fred L. Irwin, Rev. F. R. G. Dredge of St. Paul's Presbyterian, Rev. N. D. B. Larmonth of the Church of the Redeemer, and others.

A Training Class for Teachers

Rev. J. E. Tyner suggested that a teachers' training class be held for the Sunday schools in the city and that Judge Forin be asked to lead this.

His honor said that he was willing to do all he could to help along these lines.

Mr. Irvine of St. Saviour's Sunday school read a lesson and Mr. Miles of the Baptist gave the opening prayer.

After the meeting a committee composed of members of the different Sunday schools, under the convenorship of Mrs. Tait, served refreshments.

Trail Orangemen Are Celebrating Guy Fawkes Day

J. J. Boyd and several other Orangement left Nelson for Trail on the noon train yesterday, to attend the two days' celebration of November 5, Guy Fawkes' day, which is being held by the lodge there.

The arrangements made include plans for a banquet each night of the celebration, a motor trip to Rossland, and an inspection of the Trail smelter.

FORKS DOUKHOBORS LEAVE BRILLIANT

Five Hundred Go by Special Train; Others Leave for Prairies

A special train carried 500 Doukhobors back to their homes at Grand Forks from Brilliant yesterday, stated Larion Verigin, nephew of the late Peter Lordly (Verigin), last night. The majority of these were members of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, limited, but a number were independents.

In addition, between 40 and 50 Doukhobors left Brilliant for prairie points last night.

ALSO SENT FLOWERS TO BISHOP FUNERAL

Among those sending flowers to the funeral of Harry J. Bishop, whose names were omitted from the list published yesterday morning were Mr. and Mrs. C. Stark, Mr. and Mrs. W. Ramsay and Mr. and Mrs. R. Wallace.

REBEKAHS STAGE ENJOYABLE WHIST

Members of the Rebekah lodge gave an interesting whist drive last night in the Odd Fellows' hall. About 22 tables took part. The affair was convened by Mrs. D. C. Fraser, Mrs. J. Draper and Mrs. Joseph Bradshaw.

The prize winners were: Ladies' first, Mrs. Taylor; ladies, consolation, Mrs. H. Bush; gents' first, J. Armshaw; gents' consolation, A. W. Nagle.

The coat dress is seen in every guise and is perhaps the most conspicuous type on Fifth avenue, and it is noted with molded bodice and flared skirt, as well as in the straight effect buttoned straight down the front.

HEAVEN CZAR FILLS CELL IN NELSON JAIL

Kamenchikoff, Who Wears Oranges on Head, Is Held

Sam Kamenchikoff, self-styled "Czar of Heaven," and known locally as the "Orange Man," from his habit of carrying oranges on his head, is spending a few days in the Nelson city jail, having been taken into custody at Brilliant Saturday evening by Staff Sergt. E. Gammon and Corporal Johnstone of Trail.

Orders for his detention came from Inspector W. R. Dunwoody of the provincial police, from Grand Forks, Saturday, and Staff Sergeant Gammon and Corporal Johnstone at once went to Brilliant and brought him into Nelson.

So far the police have assigned no reason for his detention, but it is reported from Grand Forks that he was seen at Farron near the time of the late train disaster.

Kamenchikoff is a man of about 42, and a native of Bessarabia. He joined the Doukhobors at Grand Forks in 1917, and about two years ago left them to go to California. In company with two Doukhobors he was turned back by the immigration authorities, and the three retaliated by stripping themselves of their clothing in the C.P.R. depot in Vancouver. They were judged to be unbalanced, and sent to the asylum at New Westminster.

At the end of nine months Kamenchikoff was adjudged sane and released, coming back to Grand Forks. For some time he has been regarded as one of the fanatic group of Doukhobors.

He claims to have spent three days in heaven, and for this reason speaks and writes of himself as the Czar of Heaven. The oranges he is noted for carrying on his head, he says, is for the nourishment of Christ on his second coming.

MIKE POPOFF WAS NOT DETAINED

Taghum Man Left City; Similar Names Cause Confusion

Mike Popoff of Taghum was not the man held up at the Boundary line last week by customs officials. A report was circulated that Mike Popoff was detained.

It was a man by the name of Popoff who was held and later released by authorities.

According to Mike Popoff, he had intended going to California and had obtained passports. He boarded the Crow boat and when he heard of Verigin's death he got off the boat, and had not left Nelson.

The Saddle lake Indian reserve, just west of St. Paul des Metis, is now beng surveyed and apprased by a party of Dominion government engineers, who are paving the way for a large colony of French and British immigrants to whom this land will be sold next spring by the federal authorities.
