UPHILL ASKS FOR ELEVEN BEER LICENCES

DIPHTHERIA HAS GRIP ON NOME; NO ANTITOXIN

Million Units From Seattle Will Take Fifty Days on Way

AIRPLANE MAY CUT TIME TO A WEEK

One Doctor; Many Dying; Cases Are Mostly of Eskimos

NOME, Alaska, Jan. 27. — Nome has a diphtheria epidemic and no antitoxin. The nearest known supply of antitoxin is at Anchorage, 600 miles away, and must come by dog team. Several deaths have occurred.

There is only one physician here, and new cases are appearing daily.

The United States public health service, in response to a request relaid by radio, cable and by land telegraph, has ordered 1,000,000 antitoxin units dispatched from Seattle.

This must come by way of Seward and the Alaskan railroad to Nenana, 400 miles away, and thence by dog team. This would take 50 days.

Dan Sutherland, a delegate in congress from Alaska, has sent word that he is trying to get an airplane to fly from Fairbanks, Alaska, and pick up the antitoxin at Nenana. By this means it would take about a week to bring the life-saving agent from Seattle.

The one physician has already shown signs of overwork, and George Maynard, mayor of Nome, has appointed a special health board and engaged, at public expense, all the available nurses.

The schools have been closed, and Nome has been quarantined.

A large percentage of those afflicted are Eskimos, who, in previous epidemics here, have proved very susceptible to diseases that have scourged the white race.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Jan. 27.—With thermometers registering from 30 to 54 degrees below zero, relays of the fastest dog teams will carry 300,000 units of diphtheria antitoxin over 400 miles of rugged terrain from Nenana to the diphtheria quarantined town of Nome.

SLAYER OF NIECES WITHOUT A FRIEND

Crown Rests Case; Divorced Wife of Accused to Testify

FREDERICKTON, N.B., Jan. 27. — The crown rested its case against Harry D. Williams on two murder indictments this afternoon, in which he is charged with killing his two half-nieces, Cynthia and Nieca Foster, aged 14 and 10, at Fosterville, on November 25 last.

Twenty witnesses were called, but they gave few new facts which had not already been brought out at the preliminary examination.

F. H. Peters, counsel for the defence, in briefly addressing the jury to open his case, referred to the situation which resulted in his being called in to defend the prisoner gratuitously. Never in his life had he heard of a case of a man being tried for murder who was so absolutely friendless and alone as was Williams, said Mr. Peters. This had made it doubly difficult to prepare a defence, and the mental state of the prisoner had been another feature.

Mr. Peters announced receipt of a telegram from Mrs. Ada Thornton, of Houlton, Me., divorced wife of the accused, who sent word that she was leaving this afternoon for Fredericton, and that she was expected to be here tomorrow morning to give evidence, when the defence would call its witnesses.

MUNN LOSES HIS INJUNCTION SUIT

Judge Advises Him to Go After Strangler With Damage Action

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Jan. 27.—Wayne "Big" Munn, who recently defeated Ed "Strangler" Lewis, former heavyweight wrestling champion, lost his first legal bout with Lewis today when Judge Hall declined to issue a temporary restraining order against Lewis.

Munn charged that Lewis had interferred with his wrestling contracts, had slandered his title as champion, and had adopted a policy of threats and intimidations. He asked a temporary restraining order pending application for an injunction.

Judge Hall explained that his refusal was not absolute, and asked Munn and his manager to show some authority for their action. The court advised Munn to bring a damage suit, based upon a specific act of interference and slander.

QUEBEC LIQUOR SURPLUS NEAR FIVE MILLIONS

Besides That, a Million Is Addedd to the Reserve Fund

QUEBEC, Jan. 27.—The annual report of the Quebec liquor commission, tabled in the legislature this afternoon by Hon. Jacob Nicol, provincial secretary, shows a surplus of $4,604,370, in addition to $1,000,000 applied to reserve for working capital, and $150,000 to reserve for insurance. The report covers the year ended April, 30, 1924.

Sales for the year totalled $19,812,781. Revenue from permits, duties, seizures and fines, less enforcement expenses, $1,337,273, which, with earnings amounting to $4,417,097, made a total of $5,754,370. Less the two amounts applied to reserve, this brought the figures to the total revealed by the surplus.

Beer manufactured and sold within the province totalled over 25,000,000 gallons, with a sales value of more than $14,500,000. Nearly half a million gallons of beer were imported from Ontario, with a sales value of $327,689, while 498,111 gallons were exported from the province.

FIVE DAYS' WORK DOLLAR SEVENTY

Coast Barber College Fined Under the Minimum Wage Act

VICTORIA, Jan. 27.—Testifying that she received only $1.76 as remuneration for five days' work, Mrs. Marless Wilson was the crown witness in court today in a charge laid by the provincial department of labor against James H. Temple, under the Minimum Wage act, believed the first prosecution of this nature in the city.

The witness stated that when she obtained employment at the Moler Barber college the agreement was that she was to receive 25 per cent of the receipts. The minimum wage for such employment was $14.25.

The minimum fine of $25 or 10 days was imposed upon Temple, who was absent.

BATHTUB INQUEST SET AT MONTREAL

Detective Davis Holds Boy's Brother; Orders Heads to Testify

MONTREAL, Jan. 27.—Acting under instructions from Chief Lorraine, of the provincial detective bureau, Detective Danis made an investigation at the College of the Brothers of Mercy at Huberdeau, Que., into the death of Hector Garlarneau, eight-year-old border, who died from scalds in a bathtub last Wednesday.

The detective made an exhaustive examination of the premises, measuring the depth of the bathtub, which he said did not exceed 20 inches.

From his observations he decided to have Phillipe Garlarneau, the brother of the bath victim, brought to Montreal, and have him placed at the disposal of the coroner tomorrow morning.

Brother Usman, of the college staff, and the director of the college, were ordered to put in an appearance at the inquest.

A son of Mrs. Garlarneau was drowned at Toronto about a year ago.

Church Union Bill in Quebec House

QUEBEC, Jan. 27.—The church union bill was given first reading in the legislative assembly today.

POLISH PIANIST DISAPPEARS AS AUDIENCE WAITS

Her Staff Profess to Be Mystified, but Paper Says at Friend's

CITY SCENTS JUST A PUBLICITY STUNT

"Disappeared" Once in London; Other Polish "Disappearances"

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Ethel Leginska, noted pianist, whose disappearance last night while an audience awaited her at Carnegie hall, mystified the police, is staying at the home of a friend in the city, the Brooklyn Dail Eagle says today.

The newspaper said a reporter had been assured by Mme. Tagione, whose guest Miss Leginska was, after a recent return from Europe, that the pianist-conductress was the "victim of temperament and not abductors."

However, the noted pianist was still officially missing tonight, while general public was busy speculating as to whether a clever "publicity stunt" had been engineered.

Starts Police on Search

Miss Lucille Oliver, her secretary, started the New York police on a city-wide search for her employers, who, she said, disappeared after leaving her apartment to go to Carnegie hall. Another pianist, Miecislaw Muentz, Polish, who was in the audience at Carnegie hall, gave a program similar to the one Miss Leginska had planned to play.

The New York newspapers all gave prominence to the reported disappearance of Miss Leginska in their editions today, and several devoted a large amount of space to the noted pianist and her career.

In connection with the disappearance of Miss Leginska, it was recalled by several of the papers that a similar report of her "disappearance" was reported from London three years ago.

Gowodsky Also "Disappeared"

It was also recalled that Leopold Gowdowsky, Polish pianist, disappeared from his summer home at Avon, N.J., in September, 1915. After a fruitless 10-day search by the police, the pianist reappeared and explained that he had gone to the home of a friend in a nearby town "to do some work."

Miss Leginska's former husband, R. Emerson Whithorne, of Cleveland, O., whom she divorced several years ago, was at one time associated with Gowdowsky.

Miecislaw Muentz, who substituted for Miss Leginska, was her fellow passenger when she sailed for Europe in March, 1922.

Woman Orders Reporters Away

When reporters appeared at Miss Leginska's apartment last night to inquire about certain aspects of the case they were met by her press agent, who said she had not returned home. He also said her secretary, Miss Oliver, was not there, and refused to answer any further questions.

While he was talking a woman appeared on the landing behind him and ordered the reporters away, threatening to call the police.

VANCOUVER ASKS LOWER BEER FEE

Thousand Too Much Says Taylor; Forty-five Want Them

VANCOUVER, Jan. 27.—According to the request of a representative delegation of hotel men who waited on him today, Mayor L. D. Taylor, after conferring with Chief of Police H. W. Long and J. B. Williams, city solicitor, made representations to Hugh Davidson, liquor commissioner, that the licence fee for the new beer parlors be fixed at $500 instead of $1000.

The mayor stated that his information was that approximately 45 beer licenses would be issued in Vancouver, in most cases to hotelmen.

Mayor Taylor explained that he felt the hotelmen were justified in asking for a smaller licence fee, particularly for the first year, when they would have to meet heavy expenses in fitting up their premises to conform with the requirements of the new system.

Got Fiancee's Savings for Buying Furniture; Nabbed on Flight Eve

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—Max Ross, an Austrian, aged 30, was last night arrested on a charge of obtaining $1000 by false pretences from Kate Liberman.

According to the woman's story to the police she had been keeping company with Ross, who, she charges, asked her to marry him.

Ross is alleged to have obtained the woman's life savings to purchase furniture for their home. Instead, it is charged, Ross was preparing to flee the city when the warrant was issued and executed.

Yankee Delegate Slurred Britain

STEPHEN G. PORTER

..Head of the United States delegation at the opium conference, asserted Britain's views differed from those of the United States in regard to the best method of reducing the narcotic menace, for financial reasons. This remark nearly broke up the conference, Lord Cecil at one time being bent on withdrawing, after declaring that there was more opium smoking per capita in the United States than in the British far eastern possessions. Lord Cecil later withdrew this retort. Britain has asked for a mixed commission to report on the opium question in the possessions in question.

KING'S PALACE, PARLIAMENT, MAY GO DARK

One Electrician Has Not Paid Dues; Many Are on Strike

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(By Canadian Press Cable)—Although they are subject to the call of the Electrical Trades union, which has declared a strike of electricians, engineers, stokers, fitters and elevator men employed by the office of works in public buildings because an electrician's helper had not paid his dues to the union, the staffs of Buckingham Palace and the British museum have not yet joined the strikers.

With the exception of those employed at Buckingham Palace and the museum, all the staffs of the buildings controlled by the office of works have ceased work.

The number of strikers is considerably less than 1000.

King and Queen Absent

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Canadian Press Cable)—Buckingham palace and the houses of parliament may yet be affected by the strike of electricians and engineers, but as the King and Queen are at Sandringham at present and parliament is not sitting, no serious results have been noted.

Want Nonpayer Fired

The cause of the strike is an electrician who has not paid his dues to the Electrical Trades union. Because of the nonpayment of the dues in question, many electricians engineers, fitters, stokers, elevator men and unskilled laborers employed by the works department, have gone on strike, with the result that the furnaces in the buildings covered by the strike are allowed to cool, and the elevators are not working.

Besides the royal palace and parliament buildings, the law courts, museums and other public buildings are affected by the strike.

The men threaten to remain out until the nonpaying member of the union is dismissed from his employment. Eight unions are involved.

Volunteers Man Posts

A sufficient number of volunteer stokers, elevator men and other workmen, however, were obtained today to minimize to some extent the inconvenience in Buckingham palace and the houses of parliament caused by the strike.

SOCIAL COUNCIL ASKS STOPPAGE TRACK BETTING

Owner of a Place Used Immorally Deemed Criminal

REPORT WHITE SLAVERY ENDED

But Convention Advises Modification of Its Terms

HAMILTON, Jan. 27.—Although Rev. Dr. Wilson, of Toronto, considered that the proposal to seek legislation to curb commercial race track betting "not a ghost of a chance" to get through pardliament, the sociol service council of Canada in the first session of its annual convention here today, unanimously adopted the recommendation.

Track Betting an Outrage

"Is it to go through the commons year after year, only to be killed by the senate?" Dr. Wilson asked. "It is an outrage so great that I have not words to describe it, that there should be the present discrimination against different classes of people in Canada, allowing some, just because they happen to be in a certain inclosure, to do things that bring those outside the inclosure under the law," he said.

The recommendation to curb race track betting proposed to do so by further reducing the number of exceptions to the law against gambling.

Figures were presented by Dr. J. G. Shearer to show the amounts wagered on horses racing in Canada were $80,000,000 in 1921; $88,000,000 in 1922; and $60,00,000 in 1923 and 1924.

Prohibit Publishing Odds

A second recommendation, asking for the prohibition of the publication of betting odds, tips, etc., that may be used by handbook men in their illegal business, was also carried.

The report of the executive that white slavery had been exterminated was referred back to a committee to decide an the advisability of modification, after objection had been raised on the grounds that the report would create a false sense of security.

A recommendation making it an indictable offence for the owners or occupants of any premises, vehicle or vessel, to allow the same to be used for immoral purposes, was passed. The recommendation would make such offence punishable by two years imprisonment.

Harsher Sentences

A resolution was passed asking that the law be changed so that inmates, frequenters and keepers of houses of ill-fame might be both fined and imprisoned.

At the evening session, Rev. T. A. Moore of Toronto, urged for strict observance of the laws.

"If they are wrong, we should correct them by amendment or repeal, and not by disobedience," he said.

Sir George Foster spoke on political patronage.

Registrations of all Canadians was suggested by Father Minehan, Toronto, who declared that human beings were the greatest assets of the Dominion. He thought the educational system should teach man a trade.

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 27.—Set adrift on an ice cake in the Detroit river, while crossing in a rum runner's boat late Sunday rum runner's boat late Sunday night, Joseph Drouillard, aged 26, of Riverside, Ont., was rescued by the crew of the James R. Elliott early Monday.

Drouillard was crossing the river in a rum-smuggling boat, when he lit a cigaret. Apparently fearing they would be captured, one of the rum runners covered him with a revolver and forced him over the side on to the ice cake, Drouillard said.

DEAD TWENTY YEARS SINCE, BUT HE VOTED

Witness After Witness in Quebec Swears Name Misused

QUEBEC, Jan. 27. — One more dead man was resurrected from the grave he had occupied for 20 years in order that he might vote in the referendum of last December, which called for borrowing powers to the extent of $300,000, bringing the list up to four. Another man, who thought he was in the state of Maine at the time the referendum loan was voted, discovered this morning that he was down as having voted on the referendum. These and other revelations were made at today's hearing of the referendum contestation cases before Mr. Justice Gibson in the superior court.

The testimony given was about on the same lines as that given yesterday. Witness after witness mounted the stand and swore that he had not voted, but his name was found in the poll books.

Others who had voted discovered this morning that they had voted twice in some cases, and in others that their votes had not been inscribed according to their wishes.

A. Morin of Auburn, Me., stated he was the owner of property on Fourth avenue, but that he remained in Maine during the referendum and had delegated no one to vote for him. Examination of the referendum revealed that Morin was shown as having cast an affirmative vote for $600.

QUEBEC, Jan. 27.—(By Canadian Press)—After barely two days of the actual hearing of evidence in the referendum investigation which proceeded before Judge Gibson in the superior court, the legal representatives of the city, when court opened for the afternoon session today, admitted the futility of continuing the investigation, so far as the city was concerned, in view of the evidence heard, and asked postponement of the case until next Monday. This was granted.

L. A. St. Laurent, counsel for the city, said that from the evidence already taken, it was quite apparent that the referendum had been voted illegally and by fraudulent methods.

SHOOTS STRANGER IN SELF-DEFENCE

French - Canadian Settler Befriends Wayfarer; Latter Threatens

COBALT, Ont., Jan. 27.—Peter French, a French-Canadian settler living a half mile from Connaught station on the Porcupine branch of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario railway, is under arrest at South Porcupine, pending the outcome of an inquest to be held, probably tomorrow, into the death of an unidentified Finnish straggler, who was shot to death in French's home last night.

According to the details received over the telephone by Inspector Moore, of the provincial police here, a man of Finnish nationality, name unknown, entered the French home, and asked for shelter. His clothing, according to the police, afforded little protection against the bitter weather, and he wanted to warm up.

About 8:30 he started to act in a threatening manner, the police reports state, and French shot him in self-defence.

Men Getting Dollar Fail to Report at Their Relief Jobs

VANCOUVER, Jan. 27. — That of 150 single men reporting for civic relief work and receiving $1 in advance, only 77 reported at the job, was revealed at a meeting of the city council. As a result, the council decided to stick to the decision that no man will receive relief unless he works.

EVERY FERNIE HOTEL EXPECTS TO SELL BEER

No Woman Can Be Employed in Beer Place Say Regulations

NOTHING ELSE SOLD; PATRONS MUST SIT

First Licences Are Expected Out About the Tenth of March

VANCOUVER, Jan. 27. — Unless changes are made at the last minute, the beer regulations to be gazetted Thursday will provide hours for sale as 10 a.m. to 11 p.m., save Sundays. Thirty days will be required for advertising, so the first licences are expected March 10, with sale five days later.

The draft regulations are very drastic. No woman shall be employed where beer is for sale, and there must be no bar. Purchasers must be seated at a table.

Nothing else shall be sold on the premises. This is taken to mean sandwiches, cheese, tobacco and other accompaniments. No restaurant or dining room dicences can accompany. The limit strength of beer is 4½ per cent alcohol by weight.

There must be only one entrance to the saloon, and that from the street. A full view of premises must be given from the street during closed hours.

One modification allows an entrance to the cellar directly off the beer parlor.

The licence fee is $1000 in Vancouver, less in smaller centers.

Uphill to See Manson

VICTORIA, Jan. 27.—The first demands from wet districts for adequate facilities for the sale of beer by the glass were heard here today, when Thomas Uphill, member for Fernie, announced that his city alone expected 11 licences. Mr. Uphill is waiting for the return of Hon. A. M. Manson so that he may ask him whether Fernie's requests are to be met.

"There are 11 hotels in Fernie, and they all will expect licences," Mr. Uphill stated. "On the face of it I would think that it would make administration easiest if all these licences were granted, and then if any hotel disobeyed the law, its licence could be cancelled."

Mr. Uphill said he had not heard anything about the government's beer plans, but he understood that no premises but hotels would be granted licence.

"In Alberta," he said, "the hotels have special rooms for beer sale. One sits at the table and is served with beer in glasses or in open bottles. A man in charge of the establishment opens the bottles even before the waiters are allowed to handle them, and in this way patrons are prevented from taking bottles out in their pockets. I was very much impressed with the Alberta system indeed."

Cabinet Waits for Manson

VICTORIA, Jan. 27. — The cabinet was called into session today to whip the new beer regulations into shape if possible for issuance in this week's Gazette. Final action, however, will be postponed until Hon. A. M. Manson returns from the mainland.

AUSTRALIAN SEAMEN GO BACK TO TASKS

Vote Is Sixty to One in Favor of Ending the Strike

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 27.—By a vote of 240 to 40, the striking seamen here decided to return to their duties.

Following a mass meeting, over 1000 of the men went to the Mercantile Marine offices to offer their services and vessels are now obtaining crews.

A Melbourne dispatch states that negotiations looking toward a settlement of the shipping disputes there are progressing, and the end of the trouble is in sight.

Knights' Immigration Plan New to Ottawa

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—"The department of immigration and colonization will not undertake to direct an immigration agency for any organization," W. J. Egan, deputy minister of the department, said today, in commenting on a proposal considered by the officials of the Knights of Columbus in conference at Winnipeg. "The department will examine any agency established by any society, and insist that immigration standards are maintained."

The department had no knowledge of any intention on the part of the Knights of Columbus to take part in Canadian immigration activities.

A BAD COLD DEVELOPED INTO BRONCHITIS

Mrs. Levi Ogden, Amherst Shore, N.S., writes: "My baby girl had a very bad cold which turned to bronchitis, and she could not sleep at night for the coughing. STATES INVITED TO HELP NAME NARCOTIC BOARD

League Officials See Way in Which States Can Link Up

SHOULD HAVE A PERMANENT ENVOY

Touches League Interests in Many Ways; Need a Liaison

GENEVA, Jan. 27.—The entire problem of adjusting official relations of the United States with the League of Nations has been opened up again in league circles by the decision of the leaders of the international opium conference today to make the league council, together with the United States, the official body which will appoint a central board of control to supervise international traffic in narcotics.

The significance to today's action is that it has suggested to the officials generally a possible means of solving the problem of how to arrange and organize relations with the United States with the league, which seem to be steadily increasing. This suggested solution even goes so far as to advocate the appointment of a permanent representative of the United States government to the league, who would follow these league activities in which the United States was interested, and sit with the council and assembly when these matters, previously handled by commissions, were being further studied, and perhaps amended by these two bodies.

An Associate Member

In the opinion of the league officials, this would virtually mean that the United States will become a kind of associate member of the league, with the understanding that it undertake no obligations under the covenant, and would take no responsibility or pursue activity in international political problems handled by the league. The officials insisted tonight that the interests of the United States suggested the wisdom of such a course, because of the rapidly increasing number of questions which the league is taking up.

Today's decisions concerning the opium board are also cited as of possible value in finding ways and means for United States cooperation in the election of the judges of the world court of justice, in case the United States later decided to adhere to the court.

The wisdom of the United States in adopting some definite and organized procedure in league relations also will arise, according to league officials, in connection with the question of international traffic in arms. The United States has accepted an invitation to participate in the May conference for the elaboration of a convention for the control of traffic in arms, and a feature of this convention, like that on opium, will be the creating of a central board of control.

LOANS TO DALY NOT IN MINUTES DECLARES WOOD

Says Board Did Not Know of Their Existence at the Time

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—S. Casey Wood, Home bank director, was under cross-examination by D. L. McCarthy, K.C., special crown counsel, today. He was questioned about his actions and bank business during his term as director, and when adjournment was reached at 5 o'clock Mr. McCarthy had reached May, 1922, in the bank history.

It is thought that the cross-examination will be concluded tomorrow.

Certain loans to H. J. Daly which were in the minutes of the board meetings, Mr. Wood said, were never read. He said it was quite possible that they were written in the minutes and omitted when read to the board.

Other loans of which he declared the board knew nothing were matters of internal policy.

He admitted that Colonel Mason, as general manager, must have known that Daly was making loans from the bank, but could think of no consideration "Mason received."

Thought Deposits Real

Asked concerning the increased deposits shown in the annual statement, Wood said he had never questioned them, believing that they were legitimate deposits.

Mr. Wood said he never went behind the management or the auditor to find out anything about the condition of the bank.

CUTTER'S CREW SAVED AT SEA BY BRITISHER

Coast Guard Boat Driven to Sea and in a Sinking State

BOSTON, Jan. 27. — Captain Nils Thureson and seven members of the crew of coastguard cutter 175 were rescued Saturday morning by the British schooner Aurecania, 60 miles east of Boston light, after a three-day battle with a fierce northwest gale and giant seas that forced the craft out to sea in a helpless and sinking condition, it became known today, when the men were landed here by the fishing schooner Aerolous.

While patrolling rum row last Wednesday night, the cutter ran into a gale, accompanied by freezing weather that covered her with ice and forced her out to sea. Late that night the fuel supply was cut off, and the cutter rolled helplessly in the seas.

Thursday the boat sprang a leak from the terrific pounding of the waves.

Distress signels, flown constantly, were discovered Saturday by the Aurecania, which with difficulty rescued the coast guardsmen. They were later transferred to the Aerolous.

EMPLOYMENT FALLS WITH END OF YEAR

Fifty-seven Thousand Jobs Fewer Than Month Previous

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—Employment at the beginning of January, 1925, suffered the pronounced curtailment always shown at the first of the year, according to returns received by the Dominion bureau of statcs, from 5813 employers whose payrolls declined by 57,227 persons, to 690,538, on the first of the present month. The losses affected approximately the same number of workers as those reported on January 1, 1924.

The trend of employment in all industries, except coal mining, was generally unfavorable.

'ANNEXATION' TALK FUTILE FARMERS TOLD

Saskatchewan Minister Sees no Profit in Holding Out Threat

GRAIN GROWERS HAVE MEMBERSHIP SLUMP

Delegates Have Amalgamation With Farmers' Union on Minds

REGINA, Jan. 27.—With about 375 delegates present, the twenty-fourth annual convention of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' association was opened here this afternoon. Addresses were heard from George F. Edwards, president of the association, and from Mrs. Ida McNeal, head of the women's branch. Reports were given from the executive committee and the board of directors covering in detail the work of the past year, and the financial statement was received.

Year Has Deficit

The association spend during the year $22,592 and received $17,911, leaving a deficit of $4461. The revenue, $12,163, was in dues, some for previous years, and $5000 was a grant from the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator company. The membership showed a decline from 16,432 at the end of 1923 to 10,428 at the end of 1924. President Edwards explained that dues for last year were still being received in large numbers, and final figures would show a membership list of between 13,000 and 14,000. The loss of members was held by the officials to be due to the active part played by the association staff last year in the organization of the wheat pool, and to economic conditions generally. The association's own interests were neglected, it was explained, until late in the year, when a brief membership campaign had good results.

The trading department, it was explained, had made a profit during the year of $1433, reducing the impairment account, caused through heavy losses some years ago, to $110,498.

Says Tariff a Burden

"The tariff," declared Hon. C. M. Hamilton, provincial minister of agriculture. "weighs very heavily upon us, and has tended to build up a barrier between eastern and western Canada. In the question of transportation public opinion in the east and the west has been divided. These and other economic questions have threatened to undo the work that was done by the authors and drafters of Confederation. Although sometimes in our efforts to bring about a measure of relief we may be disposed to hold out the threat of separation, or annexation, I am of the opinion that little is to be gained by expending our time and energy in that way."

The tariff was a national problem to be attacked with a broad Canadian outlook and in a national way which surely could find some common ground between east and west. If the west, he said, as a matter of policy were to give the preference in purchasing goods to those made in Canada, they would be entitled to expect of the industrial east support in the building up of these newer areas.

President Edwards gave the wheat pools some credit for present wheat prices. The pools, he believed, evidently exerted a very beneficial effect on the stabilizing of the market.

Passing references were made by various delegates to the proposed amalgamation with the farmers' union, a subject which appears to have first place in the minds of many of them, and Mr. Edwards stated the convention would be given full information on all negotiations which had occurred with representatives of the other organization. The reports both of the executive committee and the board of directors mentioned that negotiations had taken place, and urged careful attention to the matter, but made no recommendations. There is likely to be a sharp division in the convention when the subject is taken up Thursday.

It was reported in the financial statement that an advance of $7571, made to the Western Producer, the weekly paper which was formerly the paper of the association, is still unpaid. Mr. Edwards said the money would be returned when members did their duty in the way of subscriptions.

James Lindsay, paymaster of the Inter-Layken dye works, Arkwright, R.I., and Harold Carr, his assistant, were held up by four masked men within a short distance of the plant and robbed of the payroll of $11,455. The bandits escaped in an auto.

PRIMATE WARS ON SUNDAY DANCING

He Understands It Follows Sunday Afternoon Teas in Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Jan. 27.—"It has been brought to my attention that there are afternoon teas held on Sunday in Winnipeg, followed by dancing," said His Grace Bishop Matheson, archbishop of Rupert's land, and primate of all Canada, in a sermon here tonight on the occasion of the women's auxiliary gathering.

His grace denounced the practice, stating that he was not a puritan, and was broadminded in the matter of dancing under the right auspices, but could not countenance such a practice as had grown up.

"Curb the destructive influence by religion in the home," was his earnest plea. "The proper observance of the Sabbath in the home serves to curb the unreligious influence."

NORA LEE

Elenore Meherin's Greatest Story

Revealing the Heart and Soul of the 1924 Flapper

CHAPTER XXIX.

NATALIE'S CHARM

Perhaps she imagined it, yet Nora Lee fancied Dane's eyes flushed and excited.

"I was just going down to seek you. Natalie has been showing me some porcelains she brought from Italy. You'll love them, Norry."

They entered a secluded room that had the dim, emotional aura of a chapel. The ceiling was domed and the walls a series of arches, with books in rich, old leathers lining the niches.

Natalie stood with her back turned, her head lowered. They could see her expressiv hands toying with a medallion of some sort. She looked far younger than her 37 years—far younger and more appealing.

Nora Lee thought: "A man could go mad over those hands of hers!"

Natalie turned: "Have you ever seen a thing like this, Mrs. Herrick?" She put in Nora Lee's palm the medal which she had been studying. It was done in gold—a madonna and child. The shawl of the mother was a thrilling mosaic of color—achieved by the use of rubies, emeralds and sapphires set with such minute perfection that it might have been one stone with these hundred flashing hues.

"It's an authentic Cellini. I suppose it's vain in me, but I gloat in the possession.

Nora Lee said with a rising throb of appreciation: "Do you mean Benvenuto Cellini himself fashioned it?"

"Why, yes! Are you a friend of his?" For the first time in their acquaintance Natalie's tone was touched with ardor.

Nora Lee could have blessed Godfrey Bell in that moment. It was he that had put in her hands the memoirs of the brilliant and roistering old artist. She had read the intimate and colorful life story in the day when she thought herself destined to write great masterpieces. But now its picturesque flash came back to her. She recalled a dramatic incident, adding: "And this may be the very medallion all the trouble was about!"

Natalie smiled: "You have the book? You must make Dane read it."

A little proud smile crept to Nora Lee's eyes. Max saw it and laughed jubilantly but silently. She seemed to him the very girl of 17 who had trooped out learned names for his edification that night in Belvedere; the night she had first attracted him, standing as she did on the crystal star-rim of her youth. Walking close at her side he twitted her about it. He teasted; "Well, little sis, how's friend Westermarck?"

She tilted her head with a capricious haughtiness, her mind peering back eagerly to Natalie and Dane. They stopped at a bookcase. Natalie said: "I want to talk with you about this idea of yours, Dane. I want to begin at once. I'll come and see you this week—please have an hour free."

"The whole afternoon or the whole day if you want it, Natalie."

The next sentence was swallowed up in a blare of music. Then they sauntered to the gallery and looked down into the 'sala' illumined goldenly with some 500 candles. Five couples swayed slowly in a dreamy one-step. The women seemed bored; the men dutifully gallant. On a divan in one corner was a girl nearing 30. She was painfully coquettish and was making Joven, the artist, excessively uncomfortable with her flattering eyes; her all too obvious intention to ensnare him.

In another corner Joven's wife drank from the same glass with the geologist. They were now tenderly beaming at each other.

Natalie leaned against a column, her slender form etched in the severe black of her gown; her fingers toying with the feather of gold. She waved her hand toward her guests and became melancholy.

"Wealthy and leisure and money—all of us! But destitute of capacity to enjoy the one or the other. What a mournful thing it is to see humanity at play! How despondent is the realization that we have devised no glad ways to fill these living rooms. Existence could be made such a brilliant and satisfying experience, but here we are flinging it away in these flat and boring trivialities!"

She seemed not to care who heard the faint contempt in her tones. She went on dreamily: "Max, I sometimes wonder what would happen if the world had suddenly no longer any need to work; or if work became—what it should be—merely the means and not the end of life.

"Suppose electricity or radium or magic should abruptly free the human race of the necessity to toil. And we were all turned out to live and rejoice. Could we do it? Could we make life a miracle of happiness and ease? Invent heavens and, outgrowing these, invent still higher Edens?"

"Or, would all of us, freed of the ache of necessity, flop back to the sea—jellyfish and weeds? I fear it." Max answered whimsically; Dane mocked. Natalie was lost in her own reveries. She stood there murmuring, her voice taking on a note of eternal weariness, like the distant boom of waves. These waves seemed to Nora Lee tangible things and they rose, and were filled with hidden amber lights. They lured and engulfed them—all four together.

She was drawn and held by that slender figure; by that face of haunting sadness. She felt Natalie's charm exciting and then subduing her.

"No," the dreamy voice intoned, "tell them I'm right, Mrs. Herrick. We women know because they have robbed us of the need to work. And in doing this, they have poisoned the soult in us. We need the scourge of tyranny or persecution to make us grow. Where do you find the dreamers of the world and the revolutionists? The great poets and philosophers? In America?

"Ah, no! We are not hungry enough here—nor naked. Such minor itches as we have afford merely the pleasurable exercise of scratching."

"This is our tragedy, isn't it, Mrs. Herrick? They give us food and splendid raiment so that our brains no longer need to scheme nor our spirits to burn with the white fires of resentment and indignation.

"We women of America are called the petted darlings of the earth. But our glory is our ruin. All is handed to us; we're glutted with leisure we've not earned; we have no need to think; no urge to strive. Ours is the fatality that will come to all in heaven—stagnation. For heaven, fulfilling our dream, robs us of it.

"I think, Max, that we might come back in a million years and find the human tribe still battling with cruelty and oppression and merciless toil. And this battle is, perhaps, humanity's salvation."

Her voice trailed. She smiled at Nora Lee. With characteristic abruptness she went alone down the gallery to the stairs.

Her words, her thoughs, echoed in Nora Lee's mind. As she danced she felt again the compelling and vital magnetism of Natalie's tones, Natalie's face.

"She is uncanny," she said to Dane as they were driving home. He kept his glance directly on the white, moon-lighted road and was a long time answering.

"Yes—one does feel her force." He added, quitly, "And her tragedy."

"What do you mean?" she wondered if Natalie had confided to him the cruel breaking of her life.

He said: "She was about to be married. The man and a child of his were murdered. It was the mother of the child who did the thing. I heard it from Cardill. She mentioned a snatch of it once. It's a pity a thing like that happened to such a woman as she is."

"Oh, it would be pitiful happening to anyone."

"But she's superior. It's a shame for that type to be wasted."

"How is she wasted?"

"She feels that she is—that she's forced out of Life in a measure. She regards it as terrible for a woman to be childless."

Nora Lee swallowed a hot, clamorous breath. She said with a trembling: "Why doesn't she marry some one else? She could."

He answered with attempted lightness: "Perhaps she may * * * if she finds the man she can care for in that way."

Nora Lee stole a glance at Dane's face. It was white, or the moon made it seem deadly pale.

VOYAGEUR FROM KOOTENAY FINDS SELF IN CUBA

Archdeacon Beer's Journey Takes an Unexpected Turn

HE SYMPATHIZES WITH COLUMBUS

Dines on Flying Fish; Santiago Crowded With Autos

Santiago, Cuba, Dec. 24.

To the Editor of The Daily News:

I have little doubt that some of your readers will be surprised to read a letter from me, sent from Cuba, and from the Santiago which was the place where Dewey smashed the Spanish navy not very many years ago. I also am surprised to find myself here, for it did not form part of my trip.

The fact is the ship that was to have carried me to Jamaica was cancelled, and I had to take a smaller steamer a week later. This change had both an agreeable and o disagreeable aspect.

Since I am not traveling on business, and time is no object, I am well pleased to be on a ship taking me to Cuba. If it had not been for this change in the program I might never have seen this large island in the West Indies.

Small Steamer Disturbing Factor

On the other hand, travel by sea down the east coast of the United States, past Cape Hatteras, a notoriously stormy part of the Atlantic, i nthe smallest steamer that I ever traveled on, was not a very pleasant experience, and for one day I was gloriously seasick. I feel all the better, however, for the cleaning out my stomach received, and am feeling fine. As it happens we only have one day of bad weather, and on the whole a very successful passage.

There was only one thing worth mentioning, and that was the passing by the island of San Salvador on Tuesday last.

Of course we saw lots of flying fish, and the chief engineer brought me one that had dropped on the deck, and I had it for breakfast. Another of the officers picked up one. They sometimes are attracted by the ship's lights and come aboard after dark. A third one came on board the same night. We saw hundreds in the daytime.

Where Columbus Landed

San Salvador is the island where Columbus first landed on his historic voyage ending in the discovery of the West Indies. It happened that I was feeling seedy from sea sickness on that day, and I thought of the misery endured by Columbus and his crew in their three months' trip across the then unknown boundless ocean. Their ship, I suppose, was not much more than a hundred feet long, while mine was 255 feet. They had no deck to walk about on, being packed in as close as herrings in a barrel. I had three properly cooked meals a day, they had only salt meat and hard biscuits. As to sleeping accommodations, they could have had none at all, or have taken turns in using what little space there was, while I had a cabin eight feet square all to myself. I knew, also, where I was, and where I was going, while they were always fearing the hour when their ship would sail over the edge of the world and land them all in eternity.

It is wonderful that any persons ventured on a sea voyage, say only a hundred years ago or so, the discomforts were so terrible.

In Nelson's Day

I was on Nelson's flagship, the Victory, only last spring, and I was surprised to see how uncomfortable it must have been even in an admiral's flagship. The space between decks was such that a tall man could not stand upright, and the cockpit, or hospital, where Nelson died, was a dark pit not quite as large as my cabin.

Then, the surgery of those days was such that the man who was killed outright was the lucky man. There were no anathesthetics then, and the poor wreck lay there, wide awake, and saw them hack off his limb, and then cauterize the stump with boiling tar.

Then fancy going aloft with only a foot rope to stand on, and the swaying masts and swinging yards and flapping sails all doing their best to land you overboard.

All that is a thing of the past now. We have palatial steamships with the best of food served to the music of a band, instead of the music of the raging winds and roaring waves. It is quite a change, indeed. One could write a lot, contrasting the discomforts of the past with the comforts of the present, but I must come back to my text, the voyage of the Annetha.

Dark-Skinned Spaniards

We entered the Bay of Santiago at 8 this morning, and passed up the land-locked waterway for 10 or 20 miles, to the city of Santiago. We are now unloading by the side of the dock. The workmen all speak Spanish, so I am out of it. They are nearly all as dark-skinned as Indians, and as noisy and talkative as may be.

Tomorrow being Christmas day, we expect to be idle, so far as unloading is concerned, so it will, perhaps, be late on Friday before we get away.

Then we go to another place in Cuba called Guantanamo, with the accent on the syllable "tan."

I took a stroll this morning, accompanied by "Sparks," the wireless clerk. We went around town for two or three hours. My, it was hot, especially on the sunny side of the street. I have cast off all underclothes, and only the conventions make me wear collar, coat and vest.

Narrow Streets Populous

The streets are narrow, and a three-foot sidewalk is the rule. Open drains run down the sides of the streets, and these streets are crowded with autos. Some of them are very good ones and must cost a lot of money.

The population is dense and many of them are negroes. There are plenty of stores, selling all sorts of goods, and it seemed to me, prices were not exorbitant. We had difficulty in finding the post office and telegraph office, our Spanish being so limited. Everybody, however, was polite and some even went out of their way to help us.

There is a very large Roman Catholic church, and I saw some priests and nuns on the street, so I suppose the religious welfare is well attended to.

There is an ancient Spanish castle at the entrance of the harbor, and if the 12-mile trip is not too expensive I may go to see it.

But enough for this time, and I expect my next will be from my present intended destination.

Need of the Hour

Frenchmen are selling umbrellas that are equipped with radio receiving sets.

What is wanted here is an umbrella that will scream when it is picked up by someone other than the owner.

B. Leonard, Beaner, Retires

Benny Leonard, undefeated lightweight boxing champion of the world, has definitely retired from the prize ring, this being only the third instance in the history of the business in which a champion has voluntarily relinquished his title while standing up in full possession of his senses and his street clothes.

M. Leonard advances two reasons for his unusual decision, and the sport writers advance a third. The first is that he has no use for any more money than he now possesses. The second is that his mother objects to his profession. The third is that Mr. Leonard is no longer a lightweight, that he could not make the lightweight limit today and appear in the ring in condition to fight, and that if he wished to continue boxing it would necessarily be as a welterweight, a division of the industry in which a very tough young gentleman named Walker is now holding forth.

You are entitled to select any or all of these reasons as the explanation of Mr. Leonard's retirement from business. After serious consideration of the matter, most people will rather incline toward the third.

One-Brain-Power Puzzles

Some people declare it should be made a point of honor among crossword puzzle fiends to reach their solutions under their own power.

A puzzle ceases to be a puzzle when the whole neighborhood is enlisted in its solution. What has the poor little puzzle done that the whole family should go after it at once?

Also, why should mother disturb the old man at his supper by demanding the name of a four-letter word used by the Peruvian priests in making their morning prayer to the sun?

Let it be understood that these puzzles are for single consumption and not to be inflicted on the whole family.

What Do You Think?

The Daily News invites letters from readers upon matters of public interest. A nom-de-plume may, if desired, be employed, but every letter must be signed by the writer as a guarantee of good faith, though not necessarily for publication. Letters should be brief, and must avoid personalities. The Daily News does not hold itself, in any way, responsible for the views of correspondents. Letters which contain advertising matter, or propaganda which is classed as advertising, will not be accepted under any circumstances.

Foreigners Do Not Build Up Country, Writes Cowley Man

To the Editor of The Daily News:

Sir—Please permit me a few lines in your valuable paper in regard to the foreign elements in British Columbia and elsewhere. Why is it that the Russians and Balkans do not want to become citizens, or bring their families out to Canada? All they want to do is to send their money back out of the country, and not 10 cents out of every dollar ever comes back to Canada. There are Russians and Scandinavians that have been here 17 and 18 years, with families over in the old countries, and never become citizens here. I have met dozens of them here in camps around Wardner and other places the same.

Do these classes ever build up any industries or give any employment to the citizens here How much employment do the Doukhobors give anyone? How many factories have they built? No other people can neighbor with them or live near them. The Mennonites the same.

And now you can hear them say that this country doesn't belong to the British flag, it belongs to foreigners anyway.

Who is it in those holdups and robberies?. Is it not some foreigners, or some not Canadian citizens, nine times out of 10? Also bootleggers.

Then, who is it again in the narcotic drug business? Is it not some Chinaman or Jap? I think it is high time that the Anglo-Saxon people were waking up. Do we want a nation like the United States—no nation at all, just a mongrel? How long will these classes be before they pull down the Union Jack if they dare?

Several of my readers have asked me how to make the old-fashioned Philadelphia scrapple. Here are two good recipes:

Scrapple from spareribs—Scrape and wash one pound of spareribs. Add to them one quart of cold water, two peeled and sliced onions, some fresh celery leaves and one-fourth teaspoon of sage. Let come slowly to the boiling point, then simmer till the bones will fall out of the meat. Now shred the meat from the gristle, and strain the liquor. There is no need to let it cool before you remove the fat. The presence of a little fat is never noticed.

The next step is to thicken the liquid with one-half cup of yellow cornmeal. If not as thick as mush, add one tablespoon of flour. Stir till it thickens and cook in a double boiler, and when like cooked mush add the shredded meat. Turn the mixture into oblong cake pans and let harden. To serve, slice it rather thickly, and fry the slices in a little hot bacon fat. In this frying be sure to have the pan hot before you put the slices into it, but after that keep but a moderate heat under it; for if the fire is too hot throughout the cooking, the brown crust will become brown too soon for the thorough heating of the slices, and is likely to peel off when touched with a fork on the plate. On the other hand, do not have too low a fire under the frying pan or the scrapple slices will be pallid. I cook mine about 10 minutes to a side with an even, moderate heat. A little experience will teach one how to get it "just right."

Scrapple from a pig's head—Boil a cleaned pig's head in water to cover, till the flesh slips easily from the bones. Take out all bones and chop the meat finely. Cool the liquor in which the head was boiled, then remove the cake of fat from its surface. Now reheat this liquor, season it to suit (sage and celery also if desired) and add to it the chopped cooked meat from the head. When boiling briskly, begin to thicken it with yellow cornmeal—just as if you were making cornmeal mush. When you have added enough to make a regular mush, let it simmer for one hour, then pour it into oblong bread pans and let cool and become hard. Cook as above described.

NOTE—Scrapple may be kept for several weeks in cold weather and sliced off as needed. Some housekeepers store it in their refrigerators.

Tomorrow—Keeping furniture clean.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in charge of "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Styles

BY LENORE

To the young woman who has to measure her clothes allowance carefully, who has to build up each season's wardrobe piece by piece, the outlay for an ensemble costume may seem rather burdensome. However, the enormous advantage in becomingness and smart appearance which the matching dress and coat have to offer, are altogether worth a little sacrifice in other directions. Besides the uniform or harmonizing color scheme of the coat and dress is the most economical in the long run since it saves the expense of extra accessories.

The costume in the sketch may be easily copied by a fairly good tailor, or even a dressmaker, provided the coat is tailor-pressed. It is made of gray juina cloth, with a lighter shade of gray crepe de Chine for the bodice, and the two shades of gray combined in the lining of the coat. Note the charming way in which skirt and bodice are joined. Black with coral or royal blue, navy blue with money, and terra cotta red with gray are other combinations worth considering for this type of suit.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

The Heart Muscle

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright act)

Perhaps some of my readers think I talk about the heart muscle too much, but when you stop to think about its job in your body, you must marvel at the magnitude of its work.

Just think that it pushes that blood stream — life stream — all through the body, so that every little individual cell in the remotest part of your body, will gets its nourishment, and be able to give out to the stream its waste, so that it can be removed from the body.

And yet a muscle—a muscle pump—not any larger than your fist is doing that job for you.

Now somewhere away off in the body, some little obstruction occurs to some of the blood vessels, perhaps some severe obstruction, such as a congestion in the lungs, pneumonia.

What happens to the heart?

Why, if the obstruction is slight, it simply pumps a little harder and a little faster, and so overcomes it. If the obstruction is severe it pumps even more strongly and faster, in its effort to overcome the obstruction, and maintain an even circulation to all parts.

And so if the heart is beating fast and hard, remember that it is only looking after you as a faithful organ, and drawing on its reserve force, whenever, but only whenever, it is necessary.

Now, what is the point for you and me?

That if you have a leaking valve or other organic trouble, and yet go about your regular work or recreation without any trouble or symptoms, it shows that your heart, your heart muscle, is so strong that it can overcome any trouble that is present.

This is certainly very comforting.

On the other hand, if you have no organic trouble, have passed an examination for insurance, and any physician who has examined you has said that your heart was sound.

But still you are beginning to find that you get out of breath, walking at a pace that formerly never caused you any embarrassment in breathing.

You find that a little exertion seems to make you breathe rapidly, and your heart likewise beats faster.

This need not cause any alarm, but at the same time, it is a straight warning to you that the heart muscle, as a muscle, is not as strong as it was, and needs toning up.

What causes this?

It may be due to an illness you've had that has damaged the muscle some, or it may be simply due to your own lack of work or exercise. The heart muscle needs it, just as your other muscles need it.

COMMITTEES AT CRANBROOK CUT TO THREE ONLY

Mayor Roberts Says They Are Enough, and Can Save Council

GENEST WOULD DROP ENGINEER

Committee Will Look Into the Reservoir at Slaterville

CRANBROOK, Jan. 27. — The first meeting of the new city council was held in the city hall last Thursday evening with Mayor Roberts presiding. Only four of the aldermen were present, Alderman MacPherson not having returned from the east yet, and Alderman Dunlop being out on his run.

Committees Named Provisionally

Mayor Roberts has already shown a desire to make a few changes in the working out of municipal matters that he feels will be beneficial. Among his proposals is to cut down the number of committees to prevent overlapping, the idea being to have only three, these to be named as follows:

Works, including streets, water and sewers—J. H. Cameron, J. P. Fink, J. A. Genest and F. M. MacPherson.

Light, fire and police—James Dunlop, W. J. Flowers and J. P. Fink.

Finance—James Dunlop, W. J. Flowers and F. M. MacPherson.

The committees are subject to confirmation, since by changing their constitution, it has to be put through the council. The committees will appoint their own chairman later on.

A special committee was appointed to look into the waterworks replacement at Slaterville, to consist of Aldermen Cameron, Genest and Fink.

The mayor is of the opinion that a great deal more work could be done by the committees, so that the council sessions need not be half as protracted as they have been. He has made it clear that he is out for economy, and he hopes to make a substantial reduction in the taxation.

He stated that he had already taken up the matter of the heavy deductions from the liquor profits charged against the city, and is pressing for further particulars. One of his points is that a vendor should not be allowed to sell more liquor to any person than is realized is for his own consumption.

Cheaper Engineering

A somewhat startling proposal was contained in a statement by Alderman Genest, which was to dispense with the services, forthwith, of the city engineer.

Alderman Genest claimed the city could not afford to employ high-salaried engineers, that the further employment of such a man was unnecessary. This drastic proposal did not seem to meet with general support.

Neither did a proposal by Alderman Flowers that the engineer's salary be reduced $600 a year, from the $3000 he now receives. Nothing came of this, but it is probable it will came up again when a full council is present.

At the suggestion of G. T. Moir, secretary of the Amateur Athletic association, the council agreed to make a further grant of $50, to go toward the expenses the association has been put to in putting permanent improvements at the Arena rink, which it rents from the city. Mr. Moir reported that the association had had an extremely successful season at the rink, taking in well over $1000, but that it had gone to a lot of expense on the improvements.

The council generally commended the work of the association.

Dr. Rutledge was reappointed dairy inspector, with the same salary as before.

Mayor Roberts made some reference to the waterworks which have been under way at Gold creek and Slaterville, which would have to be looked into.

FOURTH YEAR AT CRANBROOK UP BEFORE BOARD

Some Parents Ask High School Extension; Dezall Head

CRANBROOK, Jan. 26. — The first meeting of the new school board was held Friday evening, F. H. Dezall acting as chairman. He was reelected chairman for the coming year. One of the matters taken up was the appointment of an additional teacher at the Central school. Out of 10 or 12 applicants the position was offered to Miss Robertson of Nelson as the first choice. The addition of another teacher to the school staff makes 16 separate divisions, the new one being a beginners' class.

In regard to the location of the city tourist park, about which there has been some question, the school board decided to offer the property to the city on a two-year lease to continue as a tourist park.

The school board is considering adding the fourth year work to the high school, a number of parents having expressed the desire to see this established here. This would mean adding a fifth teacher to the high school staff and it is quite likely to be done for the coming year.

F. W. Burgess was reappointed secretary. Committees will be appointed at the next meeting.

Vancouver Council All Must Sit Upon Exhibition Board

Hodges Advises Both Sides to Drop Propaganda Six Months

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Owners of coal mines and representatives of the miners will meet Thursday to discuss the new wage agreement which the men have asked for, but it is not expected that much headway in the negotiations will be made for a while. There is evidence of a spirit of conciliation on both sides, despite the rather inflammatory attitude of the secretary of the Miners' federation, A. J. Cook.

Frank Hodges, a miner who was a minister in the late Labor government, and who incidentally is expected soon to become the first secretary of the International Miners' federation, tells his followers that propaganda will not fill the stomachs of the miners' wives and children. He suggests that it would be better for both the miners and the mine owners to drop their propaganda for six months, and sit down together and inquire into the working conditions of the miners.

This declaration is rather notable, seeing that Mr. Hodges was civil lord of the admiralty in the MacDonald government, and formerly one of the greatest advocates for "direct action."

For the other side, Evan Williams, chairman of the Coal Mine Owners' organization, urges that time and calm discussion ought to solve the present difficulties. He willingly admits that the bulk of the miners are more reasonable than they are given credit for, while the discussions on the matters in question so far invariably have been conducted in good temper.

COAST TO WELCOME AUSTRALIAN LINER

Aorange to Inaugurate Direct Service to Australia

VANCOUVER, Jan. 27.—Arrangements are being made by Major L. D. Taylor, in cooperation with harbor authorities and civic organizations, to extend a welcome to the motorship Aorangi, which arrived here Friday to begin a regular service on the Canadian-Australian run next month.

Demonstrations have marked the visit of the Aorangi, one of the most up-to-date motor ships on the seas, at every port at which she has touched. The vessel sailed for Vancouver today from San Francisco, where she was inspected by thousands.

Among notable passengers on the Aorangi are Charles Holdsworth, managing director of the Union Steamship company; Sir Charles Vickers, Sir William Kennedy, head of the Fairfield shipbuilding company of Glasgow and Robert Sulzer, inventor of the special type Diesel engines with which the ship is powered. She carries 500 passengers.

According to Captain Robert Crawford, the average speed of the Aorangi for the trip from Southampton to San Francisco was 17 knots. She made 19 on her trials, and expects to average 18 when she gets on her regular run from Vancouver to Sydney. The Aorangi consumes 56 tons of fuel oil in a day's run, and the capacity of her tanks gives her a cruising radius of 20,000 miles.

SEES 'WINNIE' AS COMING PREMIER

Sir Richard Lodge Says He Will Head Liberalized Conservative Party

MONTREAL, Jan. 27.—Winston Churchill is destined to be the leading figure in English political life, in the opinion of Sir Richard Lodge, eminent English historian and educationist, and brother of Sir Oliver Lodge, the scientist, who arrived in Montreal today.

"I have great faith in Winston Churchill. He is the first man who has realized that the old political parties are obsolete, and he is the ablest man in the present government," Sir Richard said, in discussing the political outlook in Britain. "He will, I think, be the leader of a stabilized administration, which is what the country wants. He has a keener sense of national needs than almost any man.

"What is needed is that the Liberals shall liberalize the old Conservative party and form a national party. The other party would be the Lbor party, reinforced by the extreme Liberals who would not follow Churchill."

Sir Richard said that Lloyd George was an "incalculable person," and that Ramsay McDonald had done great good, but had gone to pieces at the end.

ACCUSER FACES MURDER CHARGE

Courville Proved Not to Have Been With the Hermit

HULL, Que., Jan. 27.—James E. Carey of Poltimore, Quebec, has been charged with the murder of Joseph Bouchard, aged hermit-farmer, in the latter's log cabin at Glenlivit, Quebec, on or about December 24 last. The charges were laid on the arrival of Carey and Euclide Courville, who is held as a material witness, from Montreal late this afternoon, police officials announced.

Carey will be arraigned in the Hull police court tomorrow morning.

Testified at Inquest

The prisoner testified at the inquest into Bouchard's death that when he left the lonely cabin on December 24, Courville was there under the influence of liquor. A search for Courville, an escaped prisoner from Burwash prison farm, was begun, and he was finally apprehended at Sudbury, where he signed an alibi, which according to detectives, has been estabilshed.

Carey, therefore, by his own admission, is the last man to have been with Bouchard, prior to the finding of the aged man's body, bullet-riddled, in a cellar which had been securely nailed down.

Courville, according to the established alibi, was working for a lumber company at Pickerel, Ont., when he was alleged to have been with Bouchard.

VICTORIA, Jan. 27.—Certain accounts between the government and contractors' who carried out the Sumas reclamation scheme are still outstanding, Premier Oliver declared today. There is no truth in the report that the government has agreed to pay the accounts, he said.

MANITOBA IS IN BLIZZARD'S GRIP

Trains From West Are Late; Wires Are Down; Roads Impassable

WINNIPEG, Jan. 27.—What is described by train passengers arriving here as the worst blizzard in their experience—and some of them are pioneers—raged today over Manitoba. In some instances trains from the west were delayed, telephone and electric power wires were snapped, and the snow was drifting into huge drifts, making the roads into many towns impassable.

Winnipeg got the full force of the blizzard early this afternoon, with a southeast wind, traveling at the rate of 30 miles an hour, piling high snow drifts along the principle thoroughfares.

The city's electric railway and power systems were seriously interrupted, and it was with great difficulty that car service was maintained to the suburban districts.

BEAR TRADERS UNSETTLE LIST

Take Advantage of Steel Uncertainty; Moves Irregular

NEW YORK, Jan. 27. — Stock prices again displayed considerable irregularity in today's market. Bear traders, taking advantage of the uncertainty regarding the United States Steel corporation's dividend action and earnings, succeeded in unsettling the general list in the early trading.

United States Steel common fluctuated within a range of about 1 point, closing ⅛ higher, at 129¾. Most of the independent steels showed small recessions. Pressed Steel Car dropped 1½ to 63½.

Further accumulation of the oils was stimulated by reports of another sharp drop in the output of the new Wortham Pool, and additional gasoline price advances. Pacific Oil led the advance, closing 2½ higher, at 62⅛. Pan-American issues each showed gains of 2 points with Texas company, Associated Oil, Houston and Standard Oil of California showing gains of a point or so.

American Woolen rallied 2 points to 52¾, the preferred closed 3 points higher at 89. Commercial Solvents each jumped about 5½ points and Nash Motors soared 9½ on a few sales.

A brisk demand in Norfolk and Western, which closed 2 points higher at 129, after selling as high as 129¾, featured the rails. Denver and Rio Grande, Western preferred dropped 2⅝ to 45¼, but most of the other issues in that group held relatively steady.

Call money opened at 4 per cent, the highest renewal rate since January 5, and then dropped to 3½, where it closed. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Total sales—1,371700 shares.

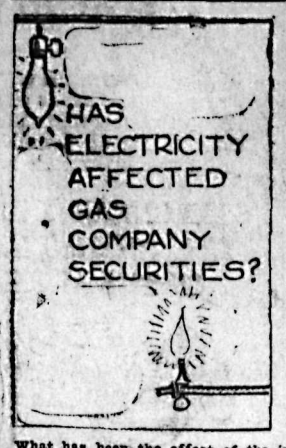
Business Facts

EVERYONE SHOULD KNOW



What has been the effect of the increasing use of electricity on the securities of the gas companies?

* * *

In general, the increasing use of electricity for lighting and power purposes has not hurt the business of the gas companies at all, and their securities have not taken any drop because of electrical competition.

There is one very decided reason for this. Although electricity has largely supplemented gas as a means of illumination, the consumption of gas for manufacturing purposes has increased 1000 per cent during the past decade.

Gas is an ideal fuel for industrial heating processes. As the executive of one gas company put it, "The electrical companies did the gas industry a great favor in taking over the illuminating business because this forced the gas companies to find the great and profitable business of industrial heating."

In cities where there is little use for industrial gas, the gas companies have been rather hard hit in many cases, but in the great centers of population and in the smaller industrial cities this has not been the case. In industrial communities the securities of gas companies still have an excellent rating.

NATIONAL WANTS A MAMMOTH LOAN

Is Contemplating Thirty-five Million Issue States Montreal Star

MONTREAL, Jan. 27. — The Star today reports that the Canadian National railways are about to enter the market with a heavy bond issue approximating $35,000,000. The issue is likely to be of 15 years at 5 per cent.

Both Canadian and New York markets are being felt out, and a dual *payment issue is possible. The gov*ernment is reported to be waiting the result of today's Bell issue before making any announcement.

It is generally understood that a part of the issue is needed for capital improvement, but the bulk will go to pay off certain short term notes which rumor has it represent advances made to the railroad by the treasury at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Jan. 27. — The federal government has no announcement to make at present about the bond issue which the Canadian National railways is said to be negotiating to the extent of $35,000,000. When shown a dispatch from Montreal to this effect, Hon. G. P. Graham, minister of railways and acting premier, stated tonight that he had nothing to say about it.

Preliminary negotiations for a loan are undertaken by headquarters of the C.N.R. Before the loan is consummated, such a loan would have to be approved by the federal government.

MONTREAL POWER MAKES BIG GAIN

Has Clear Rise of Nearly Seven points; Smelters Are Next

Smelters was second in activity, closing at 66½, a net loss of ½. Brazilian suffered a recession of ¾, to 28¾.

Twin City was the weak feature of the list, that issue closing at 60⅞, a net loss of 1⅛.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27. — New bond offerings in the local market today exceeded $58,000,000, led by $25,000,000 Bell Telephone company of Canada first mortgage 5 per cent gold bond series "A," of which $15,000,000 will be placed in Canada and the balance in the United States. The bonds are priced at 98, to yield more than 5.13 per cent.

Winnipeg Options Are Far Above the Two Dollar Mark

WINNIPEG, Jan. 27. — Winnipeg grain markets again led the world in strength today, May wheat climbing to the record price of $2.11¾, and July $2.09¾. Both futures closed at the high mark, which represented a gain of 6¼c for May and 7½c in July over Monday's close.

The opening gong was met by a rush of buying orders, but offerings were extremely limited, and came mostly from spreaders who were selling Winnipeg May against purchases in Chicago. Canadian millers, country speculators and exporters were all in the market.

The coarse grains were erratic, but all closed higher.

VANCOUVER EGGS

VANCOUVER, Jan. 27. — Prices remain steady in the local egg market. There is a fairly good supply coming in, but the firmness of the eastern market, and the fact that all storage stocks have been used up locally, create a better demand for fresh laid than is usual at this time of the year.

FRENCHMAN IS STILL EUROPE'S FEATHER CHAMP

Marscart Puts Out Frush, Englishman, in Second Round

PARIS, Jan. 27.—Edouard Mascart retained the featherweight championship if Europe tonight by knocking out Danny Frush in the second round of a 15-round bout. The end came after one minute and 20 seconds of battling in the second round.

The victory of Mascart is considered as giving him the right to challenge "Kid" Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., for the world's featherweight title.

Outboxed at First

In the first round Mascart attempted to box with the English-and was outpointed by a wide margin. Frush pumped his left into the little Frenchman's face throughout making good use of his longer reach.

Immediately the gong rang for the second round, Mascart, who evidently had realized the error in his tactics in the first round, rushed out of his corner and began slugging furiously, unmindful of Frush's straight left.

Stomach Blow Enough

Finally the Frenchman got Frush into a neutral corner, and sent a heavy left swing to the pit of the Englishman's stomach, and crossed a short right to the jaw. The last blow was unnecessary as Frush's legs already were quivvering, and he was sinking to the floor when the blow to the jaw landed. No count by the referee was necessary. Frush was out several minutes.

Mascart will send a challenge to Kaplan through the International Boxing union. "Sparrow" Robertson, who is now in the United States, has the authority to arrange the match.

Ringside experts expressed the belief that Mascart tonight proved beyond doubt that he is the best featherweight in Europe.

Paul Fritzch defeated Fred Bretonnel on points after 12 hard rounds. Bretonnel had been booked to meet Johnny Dundee at 138 pounds in the main bout tonight, but Dundee returned to the United States.

Bretonnel had difficulty in making the weight tonight, and announced that hereafter he will fight in the welterweight class.

Junior Hockey Team Plays in Trail Tonight

Nelson's junior hockey aggregation will accompany the seniors to Trail tonight and following the senior match will meet the Trail juniors. The juniors have defeated the Trail boys once this winter on local ice.

CANADIENS SHUT OUT THE BRUINS

Team Plays Practically Without Subs; Kill Much Time

BOSTON, Jan. 27.—The Canadiens added two more points for a total of 22 in their league standing tonight at the expense of the Boston Bruins, defeating the locals before the largest audience of the season, 4 to 0. Hampered by the absence of Coutu and Sprague Cleghorn, the champions had to do the iron man stuff, almost every member of the team playing the full sixty minutes. In consequence they were content for the most part to hold their advantage gained in the first period, and aroused the ire of the spectators by playing a time-killing defencive game in the later stages.

The play was all in the first period, when Canadiens rolled up a lead of three goals. Joliat and Morenz were in their best form, and their speed and stick work brought the fans to their feet. The Bruins, as usual, worked hard, and had little luck as they lost their sixteenth game of the year.

Summary

First period—1, Canadiens, Boucher, 2:56; 2, Canadiens, Mantha, 9:56; 3, Canadiens, Morenz, 1:12.

Second period—No score.

Seek Dempsey Trainer on Fight Film Charge

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 27.—United States deputy marshal today started a search here for Teddy Hayes, trainer of Jack Dempsey, on a New York warrant charging Hayes with being a fugitive from justice in connection with an alleged conspiracy to transport Dempsey-Carpentier fight films on July 5, 1921.

TRAIL WINS FROM CUBS IN OVERTIME

Score Three to Two on Stickey Ice; Game Was Fast

TRAIL, Jan. 27. — Playing 10 minutes overtime to break a 2-all tie, Trail's intermediate hockey team and West Kootenay intermediate champions won from the Nelson Cubs tonight, 3 goals to 2. De Pasquale, Trail's hustling defence man, broke up the game in overtime when he grabbed a loose puck and beat all the Nelson players. Sticky ice was a handicap to the visitors, whose team was much lighter than that of the locals. As a result, most of the Nelson rushes were lone afairs, while Trail worked combination plays to good advantage.

In the first period play opened with Trail bombarding the Nelson nets, Pitts proving equal to all occasions. Ross made a beautiful rush through the whole Nelson team, only to be robbed of a goal by Pitts, who played in fine form. Trail scored first in 19 minutes of play, when Patton, Matovich and Demidoff worked a three-man rush, the rubber being passed six times before it landed behind the Nelson goal tender.

The second period opened with a series of penalties. Play was about evenly divided, and Nelson evened up matters when Ogenski and Benwell went down together, Ogenski flipping the rubber to Benwell, who scored. Trail shortly after scored a second goal, but it was disallowed owing to the bell having rung before the puck was in the net.

In the third period Kavic, for the locals, scored from a face-off in front of the Nelson net. Annable shortly after evened matters for Nelson when he received a pass from Madden. In the overtime period Madden lost a good chance when he missed Ogenski's pass. De Pasquale, picking up the rubber, went through for the winning goal in 4½ minutes of play.

NURMI BREAKS THIRTEENTH AT MILLROSE MEET

Ritola, His Fellow Finn, Hangs Up Four New Marks Also

FRIGERIO, ITALIAN, WALKS TO VICTORY

Goulding Gives Handicaps and Spills Hold Him to Second

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, Jan. 27.—Paavo Nurmi demonstrated his ability tonight to vanquish America's greatest runners over any distance he chooses, when he raced the heart out of Joie Ray, and three other stars, in world's record time in a spectacular three-quarter mile event, featuring the first half of the two night Millrose A. A. track and field carnival.

The "Phantom Finn" not only beat Ray by 10 yards in a brilliant finish after trailing the latter's pace for seven laps of the eight-lap journey, but shattered the world's record for the distance.

Nurmi, whose time of 3:03 4-5 represented his 13th world's record in eight races, supplied the biggest thrill of one of the most sensational meets ever held in New York, but he was pressed for chief laurels by his sturdy countryman, Willie Ritola, who hung up four world's indoor marks in a three-mile race.

Ritola's Great Work

Ritola eclipsed four of the five records he put on the books only three days ago in the Brooklyn college games. His new marks and former records were: Two and one quarter miles, 10:33 2-5; former mark 10:36; Two and one-half miles, 11:45 4-5, former mark 11:48; two and three-quarter miles, 12:57 4-5, former mark 13:01; three miles, 14:04, former mark 14:11 3-5.

Six world's indoor marks were toppled in a sensational exhibition of speed and stamina.

Harold Osborn, famous all-round star of the Illinois A. C., hung up the other mark when he leaped to a new high record if 6 feet, 6¼ inches. Osborn broke the old record by an inch.

Italian the Hero

These performances thrilled the crowd of 12,000 that jammed the Garden, but the hero of the night, in view of popular fancy, was Frigerio, the Italian walking ace, who holds the Olympic championship.

Making his American debut, Frigerio, a lithe, colorful personality, who stirred the crowd to unusual enthusiasm, walked easily to victory in a three-mile race, in which he conceded handicaps up to 30 seconds to his opponents.

He faces George Goulding, Canadian veteran and Olympic champion of 1922, and William Plant, American star, tomorrow night.

Goulding in a two-mile handicap race tonight, found time allowance and a couple of bad spills on slippery turns too much, and finished second to Charles Eschenbach of the Pastime A. C., who had a 30 second start on the Canadian.

ENGLISH EDITOR HAS VANCOUVER BRIDE

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR BEVERLEY BAXTER

On the last lap of his 12,000-mile journey and voyage for a Canadian bride, Arthur Beverley Baxter, native-born Torontonian, now managing editor of the London Sunday Express, is shown above with his bride of a week. She was formerly Miss Edith Christiana Letson, eldest daughter of Mrs. J. M. K. Letson of Vancouver.

effects of his long absence from indoor competition were apparent. The long-limbed Canadian was making good headway until his first fall, which cost him 10 yards. He recovered, and passed three of his four rivals, but was unable to catch Eschenbach, who showed surprising speed.

Goulding's time was 14:36 2-5, indicating that he recovered about half of the advantage conceded to Eschenbach, but it was nearly a minute slower than the Canadian's own world's record for the distance, of 13:38 3-5, made in 1912.

Ninety-six Rinks in Regina Spiel

REGINA, Jan. 27. — Racing against time, in full knowledge that the record entry will make it difficult to finish by the end of the week, the officials of the twenty-first annual bonspiel of the Saskatchewan Curling association kept the curlers hard at it all day today. Even when three of the entrants failed to show up, they were left with 96 rinks to handle, and the task of running off five main events and a consolation is going to prove no easy problem.

Favored by keen ice and the promise of a continuance of ideal conditions, every sheet was occupied for the first four draws of the day.

BOSTON, Jan. 27.—The boxing bout between Tiger Flowers, negro middleweight, and Tommy Robson of Malden, scheduled for tonight, has been postponed until tomorrow because of the heavy snow storm.

The serious nature of the ice jam in the Niagara river is illustrated by the above photograph of conditions at Queenston. PHILLY BASEMAN GIVES EVIDENCE

Ford Testifies Sand Told Him of Bribe Offer After Game

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The district attorney's investigation into the Dolan-O'Connell bribery scandal was continued today when Horace Ford, second baseman of the Philadelphia Nationals, was questioned as to his knowledge of the $500 bribe offered to Heinie Sand, Philadelphia Shortstop, by Jimmy O'Connell, New York outfielder, in a game here near the close of last season.

Ford, it was mentioned, told assistant District Attorney Brothers, in charge of the probe, that his first knowledge of the affair came when Sand took him into his confidence after the game. According to the testimony taken before Commissioner Landis, Ford advised Sand to "use his own judgment."

Subsequently, Sand related his story to Arthur Fletcher, manager of the Phillies.

The examination of Ford followed interrogation yesterday of two other figures in the scandal, Frank Frisch, captain of the Giants, and Sand.

Others will be interviewed during the next few days in an effort to uncover any basis for grand jury action and indictments.

GOULDING SMOOTH BUT LOSES RACE

Makes Up Part of Handicap but Fall Sets Him Back

NEW YORK, Jan. 27. — George Goulding, veteran Canadian walker, who is attempting a comeback, was defeated in a two-mile handicap race at the Millrose A.A. games tonight when he failed to overcome the 30-seconds advantage given Charles Eschenbach of the Pastime club. Goulding lost further time when he slipped making the turns, and finished in second place about 60 yards behind the winner.

Passes Three Rivals

Goulding, who held the olympic title in 1912, was making his first appearance here in eight years. His style seemed as smooth as ever, but the

COLD PREVENTED COMPLETION OF PLUMBING WORK

Trafalgar School Situation Is Explained by Carrie, Brant

BRANT SAYS CITY MISLED ON MAP

Water in Excavation Prevented Work at South End

That it had practically been impossible for the contractors to carry on the work of completing the Trafalgar school after it became apparent there would be a shortage of money with which to do it, was the opinion expressed by Chairman John Notman, and confirmed by the architect, Alex Carrie, at last night's meeting of the school board, held in the city hall. Discussion on the school followed the appearance of the architect at the meeting, in response to an invitation to do so contained ina resolution made by Trustee D. StDenis, at last week's meeting of the board.

Architect Explains Plumbing Work

This discussion followed the reading of a letter on the plumbing from Mr. Carrie to the board, which said:

"I beg to report as follows on the Trafalgar school plumbing. The roughing in is about half completed, the only sections of work that have been completed and inspected by the city inspector are three 4-inch iron drains, which are shown on the rough sketch submitted.

"The roof water down pipes are in place, but have not been tested or finally completed.

"The balance of the work in place has not been fully completed and tested. Whether and damage has been done by the freeze-up can only be decided when the work is tested.

"The 2-inch water supply pipe has been laid in to the south end of basement only. No water supply pipes or stand pipes have been put in place yet in the interior of the building.

"Practically all the material and fixtures are delivered in the building, except the drinking fountains, urinals, and the fire hose and fittings. Attached is a total list of material and fixtures delivered at the building, and part of which is already incorporated in the works."

ALEX CARRIE

Brant Also Explains

When the letter had been read, of Eperson & Brant, who have the plumbing contract who was present, why the contract had not been completed. Mr. Brant said it could hardly be explained at the meeting, but could easily on the Trafalgar grounds. He had not been able to start the work at the south end of the building as had been planned, because it was under water, as Chairman Notman knew. Therefore, he had started at the north end, which was high and dry, in order to get on with the work, and as soon as the city had put in catch basins outside, he had had the drains ready to drain the water from outside of the building.

Mr. Carrie told the board that he had protested to Eperson & Brant that they were doing work for which they had taken contracts after they had taken the Trafalgar one, and were neglecting the school board work. He had spoken to Fred L. Irwin, school board secretary, of this, and suggested that the board write the plumbers and ask them to hurry the work.

Mr. Notman said that at that time he and George Horstead, then trustee, had inspected the school, and agreed it was too late in the season to do much more plumbing work.

City Had Mislead Him

Mr. Brant also said that it had been impossible to carry the work further until the main sewer was put in and drain connections made. He also stated the city had misled him as to the position of the city main, with which his pipes were to connect, and claimed no delay had been caused by the plumbing, because it had been too cold for the other contractors to work at the school without heating of some kind.

Trustee StDenis asked Mr. Carrie if it would not have been better, in his opinion, to have given one general contract for the school, instead of a number of contracts, and Mr. Carrie said he had always maintained the one contract system would be a better one.

It was at this point that Chairman Notman said it had been practically impossible for the contractors to carry on the work after it became apparent there would be a shortage of money, and that the shortage had been the real cause of delay, with which Mr. Carrie agreed.

The meeting concluded with a general discussion on the various contracts and the work done under them.

TWO THOUSAND FEET MACADAM WAS PUT DOWN

Annual Report of City Engineer Heard by the Council Members

GRAVEL WALKS PROVE SATISFACTORY

Fifty-six Sewer Connections; Water Connections Twenty-one

At the council meeting Monday night a lengthy report of the public works of the city was given by J. A. Ferguson, city engineer. It dealt with every phase of work done in the city under his supervision.

Work done in the city on streets, stated the report, has been classified by the department under three heads: First, claining; second, repairs and maintenance; third, construction. Cleaning included sweeping and clearing of catch basins and gutters. Repairs and maintenance included oiling, regrading and crowning of streets that had become weatherworn, repairs to crossings and bridges and minor repairs to the present macadamized roads. Construction included new macadam, opening of new streets and construction of new bridges.

During the year one man had been employed on continual cleaning work on the city streets. During the summer mud, etc., had been removed from macadam streets by the entire city crew of street employees.

Streets Graded

Early last spring all streets were gone over with a grader and given as much crown as possible. Special jobs of regrading were given Victoria street from Josephine to Cedar, Cedar street, Stanley, Carbonate, Ward, Silver King road and Edgewood avenue. Silica street bridge was renewed and Rosemont bridge redecked.

During the year 2056 feet of macadam road was put down. This included 1206 on Vernon street with an average width of 25 feet, and 750 feet in Victoria street having an average width of 26 feet. In connection with the Victoria street work 1800 feet of curbing was constructed.

Lakeside park, reported the engineer, was being gradually improved and during the year one man had been employed as a caretaker. He paid tribute to the excellent work of the caretaker for the condition in which he had kept the parks. During the year the dressing rooms had been moved and plans arranged for a new pavilion with dressing rooms on the first floor. The engineer recommended this construction this year. A drinking fountain was installed at Lakeside part, a camp stove built, new benches and seats were constructed and during the summer months a swimming and play instructor was oppointed. The report suggested the removal of a lot of thorn trees at present in the park and the planting of maple trees in their place.

Park Shelter Built

At the Tourists' park a tourist shelter had been constructed with toilets, hot and cold water, and electrical cooking arrangements. A new entrance was cut and graded out to the park during the fall. Recreation park received much attention during the year. Fences and grandstand were repaired and the grounds graded. A new dressing room with toilets and shower baths was constructed and was a great advantage to the park.

At the cemetery a new fence had been constructed and several roadways improved. Total interments at the cemetery for the year were 82.

During the year the department had built several sidewalks, which had proven very successful. The engineer recommended the purchase of a small roller for the work if the gravel walk program was to be carried out. Catch basis would have to be installed in the spring if the work was to be completed. Several hundred feet of cement walks were constructed during the year, the city paying one-third the cost and the property owners two-thirds. These walks were built on the final street grade.

Trunk sewer connection for the year was limited to 200 feet on Fall street. The existing sewers were flushed early in the spring and no trouble had been experienced with blockage. Two cases of flooding on Kootenay street had been caused by overloading. Total number of connections were 56, of which 20 were in the city and 32 in Fairview.

The scavenger department was carrying out its work as in past years, but was becoming overburdened, due to the amount of ground to be covered since Fairview was added to the city.

New water services installed during the year totalled 21. Of these, 14 were in the city and 7 in Fairview. Several extensions of small pipes were made during the year, but no large extensions were called for. There were no serious breaks in the mains and house services were in good shape until the cold weather set in, when a considerable number of freezeups occurred. The city has on hand a carload of four-inch pipe which will be needed this year.

*Last year plans for a new stor*age shed and stable on the old fire hall site were drawn up. The work was, however, held over and the engineer recommended that this work be carried out.

The city rock crusher had been supplied with new jaws and screens, and a new chain of buckets was necessary.

The steam roller was fitted with new wheels and a new front axle installed. With a few minor repairs it will be in first-class condition. The city truck was in need of repairs, new rear wheels were needed, and the engineer requested that the repair work on this be done as soon as possible. He also recommended the replacing of the light truck used by the department.

In conclusion the report reads:

"The most noteworthy innovation of the year in the streets department was the substitution of a light oil as a dust preventive in place of water. This proved a great success, although costing slightly more than the watering cart used previously. With a single application of oil the dust nuisance was removed for the remainder of the year and practically all the streets in the city were covered. The watering cart on the old system served only Vernon, Baker, Victoria and a part of Stanley streets."

ST DENIS IS INQUISITIVE MANY POINTS

Wants to See Showdown on School Expenses, He States

JANITORS TO HAVE NO MORE SICK LEAVE

Questions the Requisitions Made by Manual Training and Hume

An objection to the school board allowing the janitors seven days a year sick leave, in addition to two weeks' holiday; criticism of the fact that the board's telephone bill contained the charge for janitors' telephones; an inquiry as to whether the high school really needed the services of a steno*grapher; a question as to whether the* manual training teacher really needed 300 feet of white pine for the year's work; and whether G. E. Sparkes, principal of the Hume school, really needed 2000 more sheets of foolscap for the year; and finally, an inquiry as to whether the school districts couldn't be rearranged so that the four vacant rooms at the Hume could be used for pupils now in the Central school; these were the contributions of Trustee D. StDenis to the discussion at the school board meeting in the city hall last night.

No Need for Sick Leave

Trustee StDenis said he was very much opposed to the school board allowing seven days' sick leave to the janitors, as the present arrangement allowed them a certain sum for assistance when it was necessary, and he thought that if a janitor were ill he should arrange to pay for his own substitute. He argued that no other city employee would get sick leave.

"It is school affairs we are talking," said Chairman John Notman, and added that sick leave was allowed to school board employees under the School act.

Trustee Ross Fleming thought that as the janitors had two weeks' holiday every year the sick leave should be cancelled.

It was resolved, on motion of Trustee StDenis, that the board notify the janitors of the schools that the seven days' allowance of sick leave would be discontinued.

"The people of Nelson want to see the school costs lowered, and all these things make a difference. I would like to see a showdown right now on them all," Trustee StDenis said.

Telephone Fire Protection

In reply to a question from Mr. StDenis, Secretary Fred L. Irwin said that the idea of having telephones in the janitors' quarters, for which the board paid, was that they constituted a certain amount of fire protection. He said that the janitors could use the phones in the principals' offices if it were necessary.

Chairman Notman and Principal L. V. Rogers of the high school explained, in reply to other questions of Mr. StDenis, that the stenographer on the salary list of the school was really a supervisor who did work at all three schools, as well as a certain amount of stenography, and that her time was fully occupied.

When the requistions for the year's supplies for the manual training school were being considered by the board, Mr. StDenis said that 300 feet of white pine or any other kind of lumber, seemed a lot for the pupils to work up in one year, and that if it were not all going to be used, he saw no point in buying it.

Paper Costs Less Than Scribblers

Mr. Sparkes' requisition for 2000 sheets more foolscap this year also provoked criticism from Mr. StDenis on the ground that as there were fewer pupils there this year he could not see why more paper should be needed. Mr. Sparkes pointed out that he was requisitioning 200 fewer scribblers, and the additional paper would cost the board less than the scribblers would have.

A resolution that the board ask the principals of Central and Hume schools to take a census of the pupils and recommend to the board a proper dividing line in Nelson, so that pupils now attending Central school might be in the Hume district, and thus eligible to fill the four vacant rooms at the Hume school, was passed on motion of Trustee StDenis, after a long discussion, in which A. McArthur of the Central school and Mr. Sparkes, principal of the Hume, took part.
