NTERNATIONAL SAYS MAINTENANCE IS RULE

RAYED WHILE CHILD DYING OF DIPHTHERIA

hristian Science Practioner in Winnipeg for Trial for Manslaughter

ATHER DEFENDS ANTITOXIN BAN

rayer Could Put Dismembered Body Together; Court Room Is Full

WINNIPEG, March 9.—Claiming at the pure blood stream of a ild of God should not be poisoned th the pus and filth from the od of one of the lower animals, s one of the reasons given this ernoon by Robert Watson as a ason why he had refused to alw antitoxin to be administered to daughter, Doreen, who died Nomber 22, 1924, from an attack of phtheria. He was being examined a crown witness in the trial of illiam Elder, Christian Science actitioner, charged with manaughter, rising out of the death of e 12-year-old Watson girl.

Three Men Jointly Accused

Watson, and David Robb, another actitioner, face similar charges.

During the trial this afternoon atson told of his long objection to ccination or the injection of serum o the human body. Even before became a member of the Christian ience church, he said, he had held s belief, which was strengthened d confirmed in reading Christian ience literature.

"We believe in prayer," he said, nd the power of Almighty God to store health, when properly enated."

"If a man lay down in front of a ilway train, and was run over, and t his leg, do you think prayer uld put the man together again?" ked J. Allen, crown prosecutor.

"I believe it could be done, under e proper conditions," Watson reed.

Elder, the witness said, had done thing but pray for the girl.

Obeyed on Everything But Antitoxin

He had never been told not to l a medical practitioner. When he s informed that the child had phtheria, he had followed his doc's instruction in all matters but e administration of antitoxin.

"I would have never have forgiven yself," he said, "had I allowed titoxin to be given and the child d died."

The trial has created great inest in the city, and the court om was packed to the doors toy, the audience being composed stly of women.

The trial continues to morrow.

UE TO ANNUL TEAPOT DOME

nited States Claims Let Without Bids; Also Result of a Conspiracy

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 9.—e government's suit to annul e lease of the Teapot Dome to e Mammoth Oil company, one of e Harry Sinclair group, opened federal court here before Judge ake Kennedy today. Atlee Pomene, associated with Owen J. Robts as special counsel for the govnment, opened the trial in a atement which reviewed briefly e transactions which led to the anting of the lease to the Mamoth Oil company.

Two Grounds for Action

Mr. Pomerene declared that the vernment would seek revocation the lease on two grounds, first, at it was without authority of w, because it was let to the Mamoth without competitive bidding nd without having been advertised. He charged, secondly, that the ase and contract was "entered into s a result of conspiracy on the art of Sinclair and the secretary of e interior."

This alleged conspiracy, Mr. Pomrene said, was against the interts of the government. He charged at through fraud and secrecy the tails were kept from the public nd government officials.

TEN THOUSAND GALLONS OF OIL SHOOT FLAMES

Fire at Everett, Mass., Is Fought by Brigades of Many Towns

EVERETT, Mass., March 9. — Fire starting in the refining plant of the Beacon Oil company here late tonight spread to five distilling vats containing 10,000 gallons of crude oil apiece. Aid from the fire departments of Chelsea, Malden and Boston was summoned after a general alarm had been sounded here.

At midnight the flames were shooting up into the air to a height of 200 feet, but a total absence of wind favored efforts of the firemen to prevent their spreading to adjacent buildings and to other tanks containing hundreds of thousands of gallons of manufactured products.

Fifteen families of workers, living in company houses near the plant, were forced from their homes, but firemen were able to prevent serious damage to the dwellings, although the fire was raging at midnight. It was expected that the blaze would be brought under control within two hours.

SAVED FROM NOOSE, SEEKS NEW TRIAL

Leo Davis, Whose Sentence Was Commuted; Asks a Rehearing

MONTREAL, March 9.—Leo Davis, erstwhile newsboy of Newark, N.J., now a "lifer" in St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary through commutation of the death sentence passed Henri Cleroux, bank of Hochelaga chauffeur, who was killed April 1, 1924, in the Ontario street subway when masked bandits held up the bank collection car and stole over $142,000, will, through his attorney, Oscar Gagnon tomorrow file, for the reopening of his appeal from a petition to the court of appeal the jury verdict which condemned him on June 23, 1924, or as an alternative he is asking that the court of appeal order a new trial for him before the court of King's bench.

New evidence is the basis of Davis' petition. He alleges that Adam Parrillo, the accomplice of the gang, and who pleaded guilty to manslaughter, serving life, is ready to show that Davis had nothing to do with the holdup and murder.

New Hampshire Has Earthquakes Now; Nobody Is Injured

MANCHESTER, N.H., March 9.—Several earthquake shocks were reported tonight at Goffes Falls, in the southern industrial district of Manchester. The shocks were not severe, it was said, and no injuries were reported. Several homes and blocks were said to have been shaken.

VANCOUVER, March 9.—The killing of their 7-year-old son by a hit-and-run motorist still at liberty reveals that the family of Manuel Nino, Spanish, is destitute, and the landlord is pressing for four months' rent. A public fund has been opened, the mayor leading.

TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND IS WHISPER COST

Stokes Claims Was Offered Deal by Club Official to "Get" Wife

PRODUCES NEGRO WHO COMPROMISES

Hand From Kentucky Farm Accuses Her of Indiscretions

CHICAGO, March 9.—W. E. D. Stokes, millionaire New York hotel owner, charged with conspiring to defame Mrs. Stokes, denied today, in finishing his testimony, that he broke with his wife as a result of his attentions to Mrs. Rita Acosta Lydig, his first wife. He admitted, however, that he had seen Mrs. Lydig after his second marriage, and that in 1923 he gave her $10,200 so that she might marry Rev. Stickney Grant.

The aged defendant also testified that within the last two weeks he had obtained an affidavit from a negro named Chase, formerly employed on his Lexington, Ky., stock farm, accusing Mrs. Stokes of indiscretions with Earl Hinshaw, the family chauffeur. He denied that he had paid the negro for the information.

The Whisper

A proposed "whisper" at a cost of $25,000 was described by Mr. Stokes.

Marie Rosenberg, former house physician at the Everleigh club, a former notorious Chicago night life resort, "said if I gave him $25,000 he would see Mrs. Stokes, whisper something in her ear, and she would disappear," Mr. Stokes testified.

"He had previously told me that Mrs. Stokes was the cause of the murder of Marshall Field Jr.," added Mr. Stokes.

Further remarks were lost in a maze of legal wrangling.

Mr. Stokes testified that after their marriage he allowed Mrs. Stokes $500 a month for pin money, and denied that he knew Mrs. Stokes had an income of $200 a month and expenses from her mother, Mrs. Scott Miller, who had an income of $1500 a month.

J. P. Burke of Chicago, sleeping car conductor, pointed out Mrs. Stokes in the court, and testified that she had traveled on a car of which he had charge, with a man she introduced to him as Hal Billig, her cousin.

CLAIM PEPALL GOT THIRD OF MILLION

Ontario's Attorneys at Los Angeles Outline Details of Alleged Bond Frauds

LOS ANGELES, March 9.—Attorneys for the province of Ontario today outlined before United States Commissioner Turney the details of an alleged great fraud scheme in connection with which they are seeking the removal of Andrew H. Pepall from Los Angeles to Toronto, for trial.

Pepall, they declared, reaped a harvest of $368,000 by juggling provincial bond sales. He, with Peter Smith, were the moving spirits in the deal, the attorneys agreed, which also included Aemelius Jarvis Sr., now serving a jail term in Ontario.

'Persecution' Protest Meeting in New York Dispersed by Police

NEW YORK, March 9.—A meeting to protest alleged "persecution for opinions" in various European countries, held under the auspices of the international committee for political prisoners, was broken up tonight by police, who drove the 1500 persons who attended into the streets, after the crowd had noisily divided up on the question of freedom of speech in Soviet Russia.

MEIGHEN SOUGHT A RATE CONTROL

When Premier He Had Case Prepared, the Correspondence Reveals

OTTAWA, March 9.—"The Canadian government has attached great importance to the desirability of securing, if feasible, some control of ocean freight rates," wrote the then premier of Canada, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, as long ago as Feb. 6, 1921, in a letter to Dr. Magill, secretary of the Winnipeg Grain exchange, asking the latter to prepare Canada's case for presentation to the Imperial shipping committee.

This is shown in a correspondence between the Meighen government and several persons prior to the meeting of the Imperial shipping conference. The file does not include any of the more recent correspondence from the present government.

The file was tabled on request by Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King today in the house.

BELIEVE A MADMAN HELD UP STATION

Armed With Shotgun Unknown Slays One Brakeman and Wounds One

MEDICINE HAT, March 9.—What is believed to have been an attempted holdup of the Canadian Pacific railway station at Walsh by a madman resulted in the death of one brakeman, and the serious wounding of another, by shotgun wounds this morning about 3:30. The dead man, whose body was brought into Medicine Hat, is J. H. Calkins, of this city, and the wounded man, who is now in hospital and progressing well, is Robert Sheils, also of this city.

Up to a late hour tonight no clue to the murderer had been found.

Inkeeper Slashes Throat With Razor; Alaskan Sourdough

VICTORIA, March 9.—John Morgan, aged 55, proprietor of the Coach and Horses Inn of Esquimalt, committed suicide Sunday night by slashing his throat with a razor. He had been despondent for some weeks.

Morgan was an old Klondyke sourdough, having served as mate on ships plying to Alaska during the gold rush.

He sustained the loss of a leg through being caught by a cable on one of the boats, and gave up seafaring life.

PUBLIC DEBT GREW OUT BILLIONS IN A DECADE

OTTAWA, March 9.—The public debt of Canada on March 31, 1914, was $335,996,850. On March 31, 1924, it amounted to $2,417,783,274, or an increase of $2,081,786,424 in 10 years. This information was given in the house of commons today.

SOLICITOR IS CONVICTED IN 'MR. A' CASE

Hobbs Found Guilty of Conspiracy and Also of Receiving Checks

GETS TWO YEARS AT HARD LABOR

Newton, Who Testified as Crown Witness, Assailed by Counsel

LONDON, March 9.—Another act in the Sir Hari Singh scandal was finished today when the trial of William Cooper Hobbs, a law clerk, charged with fraudulently obtaining money from the East Indian prince, ended in a verdict of guilty. Hobbs was sentenced by Judge Avery to two years' imprisonment at hard labor.

The jury found Hobbs guilty of charges of conspiracy with Montague Noel Newton, and James Charles Arthur, who was aide-de-camp to Sir Hari, to cheat and defraud the prince, and with unlawfully receiving checks for £150,000 obtained in pursuance of the conspiracy. The judge previously had withdrawn from the jury a count against Hobbs of actually stealing the checks.

The most striking features of the latest stage of the trial were the strictures passed on Newton, who at the trial of the suit of C. E. Robinson against the Midland bank for money deposited in the institution by the prince to his order, to hush up a scandal growing out of the prince's attentions to Mrs. Robinson, detailed his share in the conspiracy to extort money from the prince.

Sir Henry Curtiss Bennett, counsel for Hobbs, referring to Newton said:

Claim Newton the Pivot

"I venture to think that no bigger or more clever scoundrel ever stood in the witness box to give evidence on behalf of the crown than Newton—that perjurer, forger and blackmailer is the pivot upon which the whole case against Hobbs rests."

In summing up Judge Avery said: "Many hard things have been said against Newton. I am going to say they were too hard, but at least he has one merit—he does not pretend to be other than he is."

Newton sat in the court room unmoved while the judge made his comment.

WILL ACCOMPANY MAN TO GALLOWS

Mrs. Sutton, Spiritualist, Will Walk With Pirie to the Trap

OTTAWA, March 9.—Mrs. Molly Ranson Sutton of Toronto, psychic and spiritualist, who has been appointed spiritual adviser to John Buchanan Pirie, under sentence to hang on March 24 for the slaying of his wife and two daughters, will accompany him in his death march to the gallows, she intimated today.

Mrs. Sutton is the first woman in Canadian history to be appointed spiritual adviser to a man condemned to the gallows, and if she carries out her present plans, she will be the first woman known to accompany a murderer to the gallows in that capacity.

MORE IMPORTS FROM BRITAIN

OTTAWA, March 9.—Goods to the value of $152,654,466 entered Canada from the United Kingdom through Canadian ports during the fiscal year ended March 31, 1924, according to information furnished in the house of commons this afternoon.

Imports from the United Kingdom entering Canada via the United States during that year were valued at bot $932,224.

In the previous fiscal year imports from the United Kingdom via Canadian potts were valued at $138,415,262, while those coming through the United States amounted to $2,914,881.

Ottawa May Spring Rural Credit Bill

OTTAWA, March 9.—The government is considering presenting to parliament legislation providing for the establishment of a rural credit system.

In answer to a question by L. H. Jelliff, Progressive, Lethbridge, in the house of commons today, Premier King stated that the matter was under consideration.

The banking and commerce committee last session made a report recommending the introduction of such legislation.

BOYS ARE KILLED BY QUEBEC TRAIN

MONTREAL, March 9.—William McMath, aged 11, and Samuel Milligen, aged 12, both of St. Lambert, lost their lives this afternoon when they were struck by the locomotive of a southbound train to Rouses Point. McMath was instantly killed, and Milligan died on his way to a hospital in Montreal.

Civil Servant Guilty Upon Thirteen Counts

Former member of the Ontario provincial secretary's department, has been found guilty on 13 counts, after a trial lasting 30 days, in connection with the theft of $8000 of provincial funds.

MASKED DINERS BLUDGEON AND ROB A COUPLE

Three Men Rob a Wealthy Woman of Gems and Escort of Cash

NEW YORK, March 9.—Using methods which proved successful, albeit fatal, in the notorious Dot King and Lou Lawson robberies, three armed and masked men, in dinner dress, invaded a sumptuous studio apartment in the Plaza section of Fifth avenue before dawn today, and escaped with $25,000 worth of gems.

The victims, who were bludgeoned, bound, gagged and left unconscious were Mrs. Fay Perkins, estranged wife of a restaurant owner, and Milton Abbott, reputedly wealthy cotton broker, whose home is in the most ultra stretch of fashionable west end avenue.

Mrs. Perkins' apartment was the scene of the affair. With the exception of a few dollars taken from Abbott's pocket, the $25,000 loot was her loss. It included five jeweled bracelets, three diamond rings, a diamond and sapphire ring and a diamond encrusted wrist watch.

She suffered such injuries that physicians tonight reported her condition grave.

MENNONITES WIN MILLIONS APPEAL

Lands Sales Company Must Pay Four Million to the Colony

REGINA, March 9.—The appeal of the Mennonite Land Sales company, limited, against the order of Mr. Justice MacDonald requiring them to pay the sum of $4,000,000 into court before January 31, 1925, or final order of cancellation of their agreement would be made in favor of Jacob Frieson, and his co-trustees of the Mennonite Colony at Swift Current, was dismissed by the court of appeal in a judgment delivered today.

Mr. Justice McKay reviewed the history of the case, stating that the appeal hinged on the question of whether a trial judge could impose a condition of this kind before the taking of accounts to ascertain the amount actually payable under the agreement of sale for the land and chattels.

The plaintiffs were in default of payments, Mr. Justice McKay stated, and therefore he would dismiss the appeal with costs.

This closes the famous case, which has run the gamut of the courts of Canada, and was appealed to the privy council of England for settlement.

Vendors of Ymir Mining Properties Retain Interest

VANCOUVER, March 1.—Regarding the sale of the Yankee Girl and Dundee mines at Ymir, reported from Nelson yesterday, R. S. Lennie, of the Dundee states plenty of capitol is available for British Columbia mining if gone after properly. LEWIS VIEWS IT AS STRIKE, NOT LOCKOUT

Tells Executive Practice Is to Maintain Mines While They Are Out

INTERNATIONAL'S STAND DOUBTFUL

McLurg Tells Press Reclamation of Mines Difficult if Once Left

SYDNEY, N. S., March 9.—President J. W. McLeod, head of District 26, United Mine Workers of America, which is idle, following an alleged lockout at some of the Cape Breton collieries of the British Empire Steel corporation, stated tonight he had received a telegram from John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, stating substantially that it was against the policy of the organization to withdraw maintenance men from the mines at the time of strike unless the members were asked to work with strike-breakers.

Mr. McLeod had no comment to make regarding the message from international headquarters, and did not express any concern over its contents. He said a reply would be sent to Mr. Lewis tomorrow, but would not indicate what it would be.

Rumor Resumption of Maintenance Ordered

It was rumored that Mr. Lewis had ordered the maintenance men to resume work in conformity with the policy of the international, but Mr. McLeod did not corroborate this. In that event it would be concluded that the international head did not recognize the suspension of hostilities as a lockout but a strike.

In a statement issued today by the district executive of the United Mine Workers, the gratitude of officials and workmen is expressed for numerous messages of sympathy for the suffering in the colliery district.

"Some communications signed by persons calling themselves shareholders," the statement says, "are of the same sympathetic tone, though deploring their personal loss. To these we can only say they are victims of unscrupulous stock market manipulations."

McLURG COMMENTS
(By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)

SYDNEY, N. S., March 9.—"Getting better every day they stay out," was the comment made by J. E. McLurg, vice-president of the British Empire Steel corporation, when asked tonight to express his opinion on the state of the tieup throughout the coal fields of Nova Scotia precipitated Friday by the refusal of the company to meet the demands of the United Mine Workers of America for the restoration of credit at the company's stores, and the operation on a four-day-per-week schedule of three idle mines.

Asked for the reasons upon which he based the statement, the president replied:

"They can't stand the gaff."

"Meaning by 'gaff,'" he was asked, "the distress prevalent throughout the collieries districts?"

"No; I mean that if the United

PASSENGERS CRAWLED ON THEIR KNEES

Montlaurier Had an Awful Shaking; People Helped Selves to Food

At One Time Liner Had List of Forty-five Degrees Passengers Say

MONTREAL, March 9.—A harrowing story of four sleepless nights and days on the Canadian Pacific Steamships' liner Montlaurier, with steering gear out of commission, which was pitched about off the Irish coast in the teeth of a gale of 86 miles an hour, and at one time was said to list 43 degrees, was told here today by persons who were transferred to the Montclare. There was little panic, and among the cabin passengers only two were injured. They suffered broken noses.

Carbolic acid got mixed up with the bread, and there were 760 tea cups broken, Percy Sills, of Vancouver, reported.

The Montlaurier left England on Feb. 23, he said, and after a day and a night at sea, passengers were informed that submerged wreckage had misplaced the rudder and jammed the cogs of the wheels.

Entrenched in Berths in Pillows

"Passengers gave up trying to walk, they propelled themselves on their hands and knees," said Mr. Sills. "The first day of the storm no attempt was made to serve meals. Everyone helped themselves. Things got so bad that the passengers forgot to be seasick, and those who went to bed had to entrench themselves in pillows or take some terrific thumps. The worst sufferers were the women with small children.

"The gale lasted three days.

"The Melita attempted to come to the rescue, but also was badly damaged. Other boats started out to help us, but nothing could be done in the terrific gale."

"The morals of the passengers was high. An insurance agent appeared on the scene when calls were made for one, and wrote applications for prodigious amounts. People were congratulating one another on the quick and easy death they would have. For the most part the passengers kept up their courage," he said.

UKRAINIANS TO MEET PATTULLO

Five Hundred Families, Mostly From Manitoba, Seek the Best Land

VANCOUVER, March 9.—With a view to reporting on suitable agricultural land for locating 500 Ukrainian families in British Columbia, Jacob Maydanyk and Theodore Boresky, of Winnipeg, members of St. Raphael Unitarian Immigrants Welfare Association of Canada, left here today for Victoria to interview Hon. T. D. Pattullo, minister of lands.

Those whom it is proposed to bring to British Columbia are experienced in mixed farming. The majority of them will come from Manitoba, where the Ukrainians have been settled for 20 years, and others will come here direct from Ukrainia. They will have the necessary means to purchase land and equipment to start work at once. The intention is to locate the newcomers early this summer.

The visitors will explore the province thoroughly in search of the best land. They will visit the Okanagan district, and also investigate the Terrace district along the Grand Trunk Pacific.

HOUSE FAVORS CONFERENCE ON SENATE REFORM

Shaw's Motion Doubly Amended; Most Progressives With Liberals

OTTAWA, March 9. — Senate reform, one of the matters mentioned in the speech from the throne, came before the house today on a private member's motion. J. T. Shaw, Independent, West Calgary, the mover of the resolution, asked merely that the house declare that "the senate as at present appointed and constituted is not of the greatest advantage to Canada."

Mr. Shaw's resolution was not long before the house when an amendment made its appearance.

Progressive Wants Plebiscite

Moved by J. W. Findlay, Progressive, South Bruce, it asked for an amendment to the Canadian constitution giving the Dominion power to make the senate an elective body, or to abolish it altogether, "as might be decided by the people in a plebiscite vote to be taken at the next Dominion general election."

No sooner had Mr. Findley taken his seat than J. J. Dennis, Liberal, Joliette, rose and moved a sub-amendment. He was opposed to the abolition of the senate as suggested by Mr. Findlay, he said. Therefore, he asked the house to approve the calling at an early date of a conference between the federal and provincial governments to consider the advisability of amending the British North America act with respect to the constitution and powers of the senate.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, opposition leader, on a point of order, questioned the validity of the sub-amendment on the ground of ambiguity, but Speaker Lemieux decided against him.

Then the house divided on the sub-amendment, and it was carried by 120 to 32. All the Liberals present voted for the sub-amendment, as did the Progressives with the exception of 11 who voted against. Only one Conservative, W. F. MacLean, of South York, subsequently approved the motion as amended by the sub-amendment.

LEWIS VIEWS IT AS STRIKE, NOT LOCKOUT

Mine Workers of America will not supply maintenance men, the government of Nova Scotia will be compelled to do so or else provide us with protection. Either that or the mines belonging to the province will drown."

"And if they drown, can they be pumped out again?"

"Yes, but the process is long and costly?"

Fiddling While Rome Burns

"We are doing our level best to maintain the collieries, and intend to do so to the limit of our endurance. But we cannot go on forever. If other people are going to sit about and fiddle while Rome burns, we certainly are not. The situation is now up to the United Mine Workers of America or the provincial government."

Reference to the telegram received by Premier Armstrong from J. L. Lewis, president of the union, with headquarters at Indianapolis, brought an equally vigorous statement from Mr. McLurg.

"Things have come to a pretty pass," he said, "when the premier of a Canadian province is compelled to do business with a labor official having his residence in the United States."

"On the whole, then, you are not unhappy over the situation?"

"I am certainly not happy," was the reply. "But at least I am worrying. Let them stay out two months, six months. It matters not. Eventually they will have to come to us."

RATTLESNAKE'S TONGUE FIRST RADIO ANTENNA

LOS ANGELES, March 9. — The original antenna for radio, according to Jack Allman, Los Angeles curio of reptiles, was the rattlesnake's tongue.

"When a rattlesnake is dormant or sleeping," Mr. Allman said recently, "its tongue is idle. But when aroused it starts shooting that forked tongue from its mouth and seems to feel and hear through it. I have seen rattlesnakes appear as though they performed of my approach when their tongues were not moving back and forth from their mouths, but the moment they became conscious of it their tongues started. Rattlesnakes have no ears, but those tentacles on the end of the tongue serve the purpose."

Troedrhiwfuroch Mountain in Wales Is Moving

BARGOED, South Wales, March 9. — The natives of Bargoed began a series of prayer services recently with the hope of bringing about the advent of dryer weather which it was believed would arrest the movements of Troedrhiwfuwch mountain near here which has done great property damage and become a menace to the community.

Fresh fissures have appeared at the foot of the moving mountain, and the nearby highways have been closed to traffic. Water mains supplying more than 100,000 persons in the Rhymney valley have been broken by the pressure of the moving earth. Six several hundred workmen have been employed to make repairs as rapidly as possible.

Several sections of a newly constructed main trunk sewer which cost more than $3,000,000, have already been destroyed and in some places the pipes were pushed 20 to 30 feet out of position.

Her Headaches Were So Bad She Couldn't Do Anything

Once the head starts to ache the pain you may rest assured that the cause comes from the stomach, liver or bowels, and the cause must be removed before permanent relief can be had.

There is no better remedy for headaches of every description than

as it removes the cause of the headaches in a way that no other remedy will do.

Mrs. Wm. Helpard, Lower Stewiacke, N.S., writes:—"I suffered for a long time with my head. It would ache and ache until it made me sick I could not do anything. I got after taking four bottles of B.B.B. I feel that I cannot recommend it too highly to all those suffering from headaches of any kind."

B.B.B. has been on the market for the past 46 years and is recognized by all who have used it to be without an equal as a remedy for headaches. Put up only by The T. Milburn Co. Limited, Toronto, Ont.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it has done so naturally and so evenly. Preparing this mixture at home, though, is tedious and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

Eastern States Has Improving Business Powell Tells Club

There are no signs of a boom in the eastern United States, but an improvement in business has occurred, and the prospects are for a continued and gradual improvement, W. W. Powell told the Nelson Rotary club in an address yesterday on his return from New York.

Short coatees made of tapestry, most quaintly colored in blues, greys and greens, or of brightly colored lace, were worn by numbers of smart women at the southern France resorts.

Outstanding at the Paris openings is the silhouette which molds the upper part of the figure smoothly but not tightly, curves ever so slightly in at as low a line as the normal waistline permits, and swells gently out again to a full hem; and it is a very short silhouette so that the brevity of the skirt keeps the waistline fairly low in effect, and the gentle flare of the skirt is frequently complemented by sleeves which are full below the elbow.

ONE EGG NUT BREAD

This recipe came all the way from Australia from Mrs. Goodson, who lived there for a time, several years ago.

Beat 1 egg, add ½ cup sugar and beat again, ½ cup Pacific Milk and ½ cup water, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2½ cups flour, 3 level teaspoons baking powder and ¾ cup chopped nut meats. Bake one hour.

"My first experience with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was about the time I was growing into womanhood," said Mrs. Hilda Hodgins of 504 Aylmer Avenue, Windsor, Ont., whose picture appears above. "I had become run down, my nerves were bad and I got very weak and trembly. My mother gave me Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it completely built me up in health, strengthened my nerves and made me feel well and strong. Since I married, whenever I have felt myself going down in health, or my nerves beginning to bother me, I have taken the 'Favorite Prescription,' and every time it has done for me just what I expected it would do—built me up in health and strength, quieted my nerves and made me feel fine. There isn't any medicine a woman can take for her ills that can compare with 'Favorite Prescription.'"

'ROAD TO LOVE'

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XIV

"What are we going to do, Denny?"

The glory of the dawn was over, all the brilliant colorss sombered. Far to the east, the bay a sheet of gray steel meeting a cold, leaden sky. For hours they had sat almost silent, Katy huddled in the blankets, Denny dozing at her feet.

"Does it seem like the end of the world to you?"

"No, it doesn't. More like the beginning."

"Are we going back to Aunt Josie?"

"You bet we're not! They put us out, didn't they?"

"Oh, she didn't mean it. You know she didn't Denny. The poor sing!" The letter slipped; Katy laughed. "Isn't it just terrible—I can't even talk, Denny. Do you think I'm orful stupid? Do you think you'll be sorry you let me come?"

"Maybe you'll be sorry I took you, Will you, Katy-kid?"

"Never—never—never! But I wish we could go and see Aunt Josie and say good-bye to Lizzie and little Martha. They'll be sorry. Where'll we go, Denny? Do you know?"

Pinned down to the definite, Denny took refuge in a weighty:

"You'll see, Katy, I know!"

"I wish I was brave, Denny."

"You are; You wait—don't you be afraid."

The seven o'clock bells were ringing. From the tents women with their hair down their backs, water pitchers in their hands, began a procession to the faucets. They laughed yawned—their slippers shuffled. Babies were crying, dogs barking, mothers scolding—the park was going through the rasping ordeal of arising.

Suddenly, the flap of the tent whence the nocturnal duet had proceeded was pushed open. A rotund little woman with very round eyes, her hair frizzied in heavy bangs, and wearing a tight black sateen waist, stepped out, knelt briskly on the ground and laid sticks for a fire. When she had fanned and blown it to a good blaze she set a coffee pot at the side and a frying pan on top. Into this she dropped half a dozen small meat balls.

Katy, tickled by the prime, abrupt movements nudged Denny and began shooting her eyes east and west like the roly-poly woman in black sateen did. She stopped quickly; the woman had fixed her brick glance on the two of them ,announcing in a tight, decisive tone:

"New neighbors! Do tell! Come in on us in the night. New neighbors." She spoke in a sharp, exclamatory tone.

Immediately from the interior of the tent came a raucous echo—the voice that had ordered: "Stop that, stop." Now it said very indignantly:

"Hush, Louisa!"

"Hush yourself Delia! New nighbors—do tell."

Katy began to laugh—but Delia blushed, apologizing to Denny in a whisper: "Don't you mind, Louisa. My parrot, you know. Burned out, were you?"

"Well, just about?"

"Do tell! But where have you been all this time? Oh, I see—the little girl was hurt. Didn't you save a thing? Not a thing?"

Her tone intimated that the less they saved, the higher she would esteem them. Denny was non-committal:

"Lost everything else? Just like me. Oh, well—fewer burdens!" She stood up, resting her thumbs lightly on her soft, fat hips, went into the tent and came out with two slices of ham. "Bring the little girl over. Plenty here and welcome."

When Denny hesitated she bounced over to Katy, pushed her chair to the fire:

"The idea! Do tell!" Katy was overjoyed, warmed to the heart by the odd, explosive friendliness.

"This is very kind of you," she said politely; "Denny and I thank you."

"Oh—so his name is Denny is it? And what's yours? Katy? Wonder they didn't call you Bluebell. My name is Terkle—Mrs. Delia Terkle. Have a meat ball—" She dropped one on Katy's plate, two on Denny's. "So you're going to camp here, are you?"

Denny seized the suggestion: "Just for a while, Mrs. Terkle—until we can find rooms."

"Indeed! Rooms indeed! Oo tell—you'll have a search. As though Delia Terkle would be living in the park if rooms were to be had!"

The saucer-like eyes wagged this way and that and Mrs. Terkle chewed vigorously. Katy was a litte alarmed.

"Course, Denny doesn't know, Mis' Delia," she offered in a soothing, confidential tone. "We don't know a bit whatever in the world to do—"

"If we could get a tent here for a while—" Denny was bound it should appear that he did know what to do.

"Well, you can't!" Mrs. Terkle interrupted with an air of triumph. "Didn't the Conatys sleep on the grass for a week till strangers took them in? There's not a tent to the city!"

She waited for this announcement to sink in. Denny had the litte boy's impulse to wrinkle up his nose and say, "Pooh! Guess I'll scare up something. Guess I will, all right!"

But she had abruptly set down her coffee cup to pat Katy's hand: "Don't worry, Bluebell! I've arranged things before; I'll arrange them now!"

Like a tin soldier, exultant with authority she went hustling into the tent. Denny whispered hurriedly to Katy. There was much making of faces, frowning and giggling between them, but they decided to accept the odd Mrs. Terkle's hospitality for a day or two. When she came forth Katy announced with sweet formality:

"This is orful good in you, Mis' Delia—just orful nice, ain't it, Denny?"

"We're much obliged," Denny added, manfully, but Delia breezed away his grownup airs with an abrupt:

"Tut, lad, bring over the blankets." To the women who were passing she called familiarly: "New neighbors, folks, think if it—slept on the grass all night. Burned out? Well, I should say!"

Mrs. Delia moved Katy into the sun, gave her a strip of linen with holly berries stamped on it to embroider and told a vivid tale of Katy's misfortune, Denny's heroism to all who would listen. The purely imaginative yarn was soon carried from tent to tent. Katy found herself a person of delightful importance.

"Think it's all right to stay here for a while, Katy?" Denny asked the second morning.

"Oh-o-oh, it's like being a princess, Denny—living in the park. And ain't she just the funniest sing! I'm gonna laff right in her face. I can feel it coming on. But where you going, Denny?"

"To work, if you're not afraid. Think you're all right here?"

"With Delia?" Katy giggled, "with those orful round eyes? Course I am!"

The sun made the bright chestnut hair glint with red and gold; the pure joyous eyes like soft jewels. Yet Katy, for her fourteen years, seemed so little, childlike as the day Denny won the doll and put it in her arms. He looked at the sweet, winsome face and the tenderness that had astonished him in the morning rushed to his heart. He would have to take care of her. You bet he would!

And Denny had only 10 dollars. The rest, earned cleaning bricks, he had given Aunt Josie. He must make more. They couldn't live in a park forever.

Yet he was half afraid to leave Katy alone. He walked down the path—came back.

"Sure you're not afraid, Katy?"

Katy was sure.

The day was filled with excitement—young girls prancing in and out of the tents, their hair elaborately combed, babies toddling and falling; old men and women, wrapped in blankets, sitting on the ground, retelling in loudening voices, like ancient Homers, the lurid accounts of their experiences. Camp fires smoked, beans boiled, little boys kept running from the bread line proudly displaying innumerable cans of corned beef and mackerel. Katy felt as though she were at a show.

There was the young man across the road who sang, without ceasing, "Just Break the News to Mother." And the robust girl in the garish pink waist and high French heels who stepped out with the air of a duchess, greeted Katy with a light, "Say, dearie, would you mind holding the baby for a while? I have to go on an errand." Without more ado, she flopped the child into Katy's arms, walked off without a care in the world and didn't return till 7 o'clock that evening.

There was plenty to amuse and distract. Katy was happy as a bird. Denny no longer worried about her. He slept on a mattress outside the tent, feeling himself a man, the protector of Katy. Yet sensing no burdens in this fine, happy-go-lucky existence.

Life was much freer and gayer here than in the Borley kitchen. Denny had sneaked back the second day, eager for some word of Violet. Aunt Josie wiped the immense tears from her eyes, shook her head in her mute, piercing way. Matt was still on the rampage . She was afraid he might see Denny.

"She hasn't sent a word, Denny, not a single word. Oh, my poor girl! But I thought you'd see her, Denny I was sure you'd see her."

Denny had no idea where Violet might be. Aunt Josie kept looking fearfully to the hall where her husband might enter.

"Go, Denny. Don't let him see you. He's wild. I can't let you in. Go now—"

He was glad to be away—felt a bonny gladness rising at the thought of Mrs. Terkle with her skimpy black waist, her generous heart; and Katy laughing right in her face, saying: "Oh, you're so funny, Mis' Delia!" It was like a vacation in the country.

Katy was making friends with every one—why, she hardly needed Denny—

Toward the end of the week he came home jubilant. It was his duty to stand in the line every evening for provisions. This night the man in charge nodded mysteriously.

"Guess you can take care of this, young fellow," he said with a pleasant wink, and gave Denny a big ham. As no one else received one, Denny took it as a special tribute to his winning manner and thought how he'd boast of it to Katy.

He was a block from the park. Some one was running towards him. It was Mrs. Terkle. With a chill premonition Denny dashed toward her. She caught his arm, tried to speak, the frizzed hair bobbing.

"Wheeled away—Bluebell—wheeled away."

Denny grew faint with terror.

But that was it. Someone had wheeled Katy away. Only a little girl of 5 had seen it—had seen a woman talking to Katy, talking quite a while and then, suddenly turning, whisked her swiftly from the park.

CHINESE SOLD BOYS CIGARETS AND NOT BOOZE

So He Tells Magistrate in Answering Liquor Count; Decision Reserved

The case against Joe Kor Kook, a Chinese merchant on Front street, who is charged with unlawfully selling liquor, was adjourned for the magistrate's verdict, after yesterday's sitting in the police court. Evidence for the prosecution was taken on Saturday, and yesterday's sitting was taken up with evidence for the defence. Owing to the defendant being a Chinese, much time was taken in the interpretation of evidence.

The accused, a Chinese merchant, and three other celestials, gave evidence yesterday. Kook denied the sale of liquor to the minors in the case. He declared that they had appeared at his store on March 6 and had asked for whisky.

Sold Boxes Cigarets

He had, however, sold to one of them, three boxes of cigarets. He was handed a $5 bill in payment, and he returned $4.50 after deducting the cost of the "smokes."

Cheu Kee, who was in the store at the time the youths entered, stated that he stood by the counter. He heard the boys ask for whisky, and had heard Kook reply that he had none. The boys, he stated, received some cigarets and paid for them.

Joe Kun and Seto Foy two other Chinese who were in the store at the time, corroborated the evidence given by Kee.

E. G. Matthew appears for Kook. H. Clifford Irving, of O'shea & Irving, is prosecuting.

TWO YEARS AND DRUG CURE IS GIVEN ADDICT

Morrison Tells Judge Forin He Gashed His Wrists Unknowningly

SAW PEOPLE ALL OVER THE ROOM

Judge Gives Him Minimum Term With Parole When Cured

"You need protection from yourself. I am going to send you down to New Westminster to take the treatment for drug addicts under the warden there, and I am imposing the minimum sentence for New Westminster of two years, with a recommendation that you be liberated, on parole, when cured of the drub habit. It is evident that you did not cut yourself consciously," said Judge J. A. Forin to William Morrison, accused of attempting to commit suicide, in county court yesterday morning. Morrison, who stated he had been a drug addict for 20 years, was found in a room in the Madden hotel on February 15, with self-inflicted wounds, made by razors, in his wrists and arms. The accused said he had come out of an unconscious state, after an overdose of cocaine, and found himself in a corner of the room with a blanket over his head, cuts on his arms, and the razors on the bed.

Dr. H. H. MacKenzie told of being called to the hotel and finding Morrison with his wrists and arms cut, and of attending him at his office before sending him to the Kootenay Lake General hospital.

No Friends, No Money

D. A. McDonald said he had been in the room between 12 noon and 1 o'clock, and had asked Morrison when he had cut himself. The latter had answered: 'Sometime during the night." He asked the accused why he had done this, and Morrison said he had no money, no friends, and wished he had made a better job of it.

Chief of Police Thomas H. Long identified the two razors produced in court as those he had taken from Morrison's room on February 15, after being called by a telephone message. He stated he had known the accused for a number of years.

Morrison, who was undefended, asked the chief if he remembered the man who had been going about last June, without clothes, or in his underclothes, and said he had been a drug addict, too.

"If I had done what that man did, and run around with my underclothes on, I would have run the drug off, and not cut myself," he stated. "That day when I went into the room after taking cocaine I was scared. I saw people all over. I went to the window to jump out, and saw two men just outside. I lay on the bed and pulled the clothes over my head, because there seemed to be two men behind it. Then I went unconscious, and afterward found myself in the corner with a blanket over my head, and cuts in the arms, and the razors on the bed. I was weak and sick as a result of the drug."

He stated that he had served six months for having drugs in his possession, at one time, and that the chief had sent him down.

Life for Shot of Morphine

"When people jump out of windows, or when they are away from home for days, it is the result of an overdose of cocaine on a nervous disposition," he said. "But if I had wanted to commit suicide I would have cut some vital place, the jugular or something like that. I have been taking drugs for 20 years, as the chief knows, and after an overdose of cocaine I would give my life for a shot of morphine or heroin or A. C. C. tablets."

Judge Forin in sentencing Morrison, said he would get reports on him from time to time, and hoped he would come out a new man.

Wilson Alleges That Road Relief Work Is Not Fairly Allotted

To the Editor of The Daily News:

Sir—Would you kindly give me a little space in your paper? I am not a born kicker, but I like things to even up a little. There is the government road question. It was supposed to be relief work, and the men were supposed to get a week's work each on the job till it was through. But instead of that some got none, others a week, and some six weeks. There are married men in this town with families on the verge of starvation, yet they were laid off, and others kept on for six or seven weeks ever since the job started. It looks a little fishy. There should be no pets or favorites in such jobs, relief or any other job for that matter. Every man, woman and child has got to live.

They are government jobs, and the government is the people, so the people must be working for themselves, and the officials are the servants, so where does it come in that they can fire a man? Nothing doing. Things seem to be twisted around the wrong way. Men with families who are paying rates and taxes for the job to be done cannot get work on their own job. It is time the workers opened their eyes and began to think for themselves and to demand their rights and get fresh men to run the work.

YOUTHS WIN ON CASE DRINKING PUBLIC PLACE

Liquor Consumed in Wood Shed Not Public, Says Police Magistrate

A charge of drinking liquor in a public place, lodged by the city police against three minors, was yesterday afternoon dismissed by Magistrate William Brown. The charge arose out of the case, in which Joe Kor Kook was charged with selling liquor to the minors.

According to the evidence of the boys charged, they had two drinks from a bottle of rye whisky in an old woodshed in an alleyway off Josephine street.

The police contended that the woodshed, having three open windows and a door, and being open, and used by the public, was a public place. Chief of Police Long in his evidence admitted that the building was a public place but not with the owners consent.

Magistrate Brown dismissed the case, as the woodshed was located on private property. E. G. Matthew defended the minors.

FIFTY YARDS OF BOUGAINVILLEAS DELIGHT VISION

Hope Botanical Gardens in Kingston Give Pleasure to Archdeacon

SHIP AT LAST IS READY TO DEPART

After Prodigious Exertions He Gets Aboard for Voyage to the States

Spokane, Wash.
Feb. 23, 1925.

To the Editor of The Daily News:

On Thursday, February 15, I finally got away from Kingston in Jamaica, after waiting for the steamer for about two weeks. It seems easy to write this, but the delay was not so easy, for it became tiresome enough with nothing to do but wait. I soon exhausted the sight seeing of the neighborhood, and there was nothing to do but wait at an expense of $4 a day for board and lodging.

The city itself is interesting enough as a city, but does not differ very much from other towns of 50,000 or 60,000 people. The market I think drew my attention more than anything else. Beside the butcher's stalls, their were stalls for the sale of fish, strange to say, the display of fish was very small for a town situated right on the shore of the ocean. I do not know why, but the supply of fish did not begin to approach that in the market of Honolulu. There I saw tarpon, and sharks of enormous size, also octopus and many other kinds of fish of every hue and color.

Market Scene Interesting

There was very little, if any of this in Kingston, but the supply of fruits and vegetables outranked that of any other place I have seen. Coconuts, oranges, grape fruit, limes, yams, bananas, were placed in bunches on the floor before the vendors, and with an immense amount of chatter the business of selling and buying was carried on.

One day I spent in the Hope Botanical gardens. They are six or seven miles out of town, and are reached by street car. In these gardens they have trees from all over the tropical world, and since many of them bear labels, you learn their botanical name, and that of the country they come from. I saw a few orchids in blossom, but it was not yet the season for them, so there were only a few out, but what there were appeared beautiful and of singular form and growth. Oranges and grape fruit were there, of course, the bananas had been gathered.

But what I thought the most beautiful thing in the gardens was an arbor or arcade of, I suppose, 50 yards in length. It was built of trellis and supported on posts. It was about 12 feet wide. The whole of this wood work was covered with a dense growth of bougainvilleas. None of the trellis could be seen, so dense was the growth of the vine, and this vine was a solid mass of brick red bouganvillea blossoms. It was a wonderful sight to see 50 yards of flowers all of our bright red color. I sat for a while under the trellis and rested while my eyes feasted on the glorious scenes.

Beautiful Gardens Too Spacious

If I were to give any adverse criticism of the Hope gardens, it would be that they were too large, so that the trees and plants are rather scattered, but that, of course, is a matter of opinion. I know I got good and tired rambling around, and would have preferred to have things more concentrated.

There are other parks and public gardens, but what I have said of Hope gardens will probably satisfy my readers.

Among the guests at the hotel where I was boarding , there was two lady tourists from Wisconsin. They were Episcopalians, and expressed a wish to accompany me to church on Sunday. I took them in the morning to the parish church, a fine, large, stone building. There were perhaps 400 or 500 in the congregation. The ladies were delighted with the building itself, but what they noticed most was the very polite attention we met with. Some ladies vacated their seats in our favor, the verger saw that we had books, and considering that it was the Church of England, often accused of coldness and indifference to strangers, we had every reason to be pleased with our reception. The singing was good with a surpliced choir and the sermon was short, so the ladies were delighted with their introduction to a Church of England service, and, of course, I was correspondingly gateful.

Sailing Hour Suddenly Arrives

Of course there are a host of little things I might mention in connection with my long wait in Kingston, but none of them was of such startling nature as to be worth recording, so I will merely say that on the morning of the 15th I went to the shipping office once more to inquire about the boat, and was startled with the information that she would sail at noon, and I was then a mile from my hotel, and my things not packed up. It took quite a little time to fill out and pay for my ticket. There are many little things the port authorities find it necesary to bother one with. There is the passport trouble, and the doctor's certificate of health and vaccination, and so on. All this takes time, especially when one is in a hurry. Then I had to pay my hotel bill, and pack up my dunnage, and get a taxi to the boat, and then, after rushing all things in this way, it was evening before we got away. All my hurry and splutter did not get us away one minute sooner than when the ship was ready.

Load Bananas En Route

However, at last the captain gave the order to cast off the headline, and we were fairly away from Kingston.

But we were not yet done with Jamaica, for we had to go from the east end of the island to the west end, and call at three or four places for our cargo of bananas. Probably this letter is already long enough for the space you can spare Mr. Editor so I will close this with the intention of sending you a final letter in a few days, in which I will tell of my trip by sea and land back to the United States.

Canada's Border Fences

Most people, it is safe to say, have taken it for granted that the geographical bounds of Canada, except possibly in the still unexplored north, have by this time been fully determined. Every now and then, however, we are reminded that the boundary makers are still at work. In a country of Canada's proportions there is a lot of border-line fencing to be done, and it appears to be a steady job.

The work of mapping out the Alberta and British Columbia interprovincial boundary was concluded only last fall, and even yet the extreme northern end of the boundary remains for future delimitation, when the need of it arises.

A week ago two international agreements between Canada and the United States were signed, both having to do with the boundaries. There has been considerable uncertainty in respect to the Lake of the Woods, which separates Manitoba and western Ontario from the state of Minnesota, and one of the new treaties definitely establishes the boundary in that region. The 49th parallel between the Lake of the Woods and the summit of the Rocky mountains is dealt with in a second treaty, which more accurately defines the boundary following that line, and provision is made for maintaining the boundary marking system and for determining the relative position of any point on the line concerning which some question may arise in the future.

It is matter of satisfaction to both Canada and the United States that for so many years now there has been no fortified line along any part of the international front. That is no reason, however, why there should be laxity or uncertainty in respect to the boundary itself. More than once before it has happened that the preservation of good neighborliness has been a matter of keeping up the fences.

The Meaning of Thrift

Here is some good advice on how to get ahead, written and published by the United States government:

"What does thrift mean? It means good management; vigorous growth.

"Thrift means spending less than you earn; saving systematically. It does not mean that you stop spending.

"Thrift means securing interest on your savings. Money kept in hiding never earns anything. Put your money to work. You work for money; make it work for you.

"Learn to know values; the value of your work; the value of the fruits of your labor. Investigate and study merchandise values. Know what you buy before you buy it. Read advertising. Get acquainted with brands and trade marks, and their significance. Weigh expenditures. Put on your thinking cap and keep it on.

"The wise individual is he who so regulates his income and outgo that 'emergencies' are provided for automatically. He knows the meaning of 'peace of mind,' because he has money laid by. His chin is up, his step is brisk, he is master—not the slave—of circumstances."

What the Press Is Saying

The Two Sides of the Line

While some of the farmers of a certain part of Canada are longing for reciprocity with the United States, the farmers of every part of the United States are demanding complete protection against the products of the farms of Canada and the government of the United States is busy devising measures that will give its agricultural supporters everything they are demanding.—Victoria Colonist.

Government Too Expensive

There is a general impression that the province is paying too much for its legislation and has too many members, and the members have too high an indemnity. It is different to figure on the worth of a member or how much he should be paid. The wage should not be so low that good men will not offer their services. It should not be higher than members are worth. The fact remains that Alberta is spending too much money on civil government.—Calgary Albertan.

When with the change in fashion
The skirts went to the ground,
He swore, in raging passion,
"The hussies should be drowned!"

If such confounded kickers
Could regulate the earth,
Goodbye to girls in knickers,
And other sights of worth;
Goodbye to pretty stockings,
Goodbye to daring style,
Goodbye to all the shockings

Ross Pendleton amused Nelson Rotarians with the following story at the weekly luncheon yesterday:

Abe Cohen was very indignant with a customer who paid no attention to requests for payment of an account. So Abe told his stenographer to write a letter to the customer and to "make it strong." After wrestling with the subject for an hour or so, the stenographer returned with the letter. Abe read it. "Oh, that's no good. That isn't strong enough. Take this:

"Dear Sir:

"Who buys goods on 30 days' and then doesn't pay for them in six months?

"Who breaks his promise?

"Who is a liar and a thief?

Mrs. T. H.—I have splashed some white paint on my mahogany victrola. How can I get it off?

Answer—Apply either turpentine or kerosene if the paint stains are fairly new. If, however, they are old and hard, you must soften them with a commercial paint remover, then scrape off with a blunt-edged tool or with rags.

M. M.—Please publish a list of suitable articles to put in a hope chest.

Answer—Send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I shall take pleasure in mailing you my multigraphed article on "The Bride's Trousseau and Household Linen."

Mrs. C. C.—I bought a five-pound can of honey thinking that my family would enjoy it. But they do not like it, and I am wondering if there is any way in which I could use it to make cake?

Answer—Yes, indeed. Here is a delicious recipe: Honey Cakes—Cream one-third cup of butter with one-half cup of granulated sugar; add two well beaten eggs and the juice and rind of one-half lemon. Now sift together two and one-eighth cups of pastry flour, two teaspoons of baking powder and a tiny pinch of salt and add this dry mixture to the mixing bowl alternately with three-quarters of a cup of honey. When well mixed stir in three-quarters of a cup of broken walnut meats, and turn the batter into greased cup-cake pans to bake in a hot oven for 25 minutes. Or, if you prefer, bake the batter in a greased loaf-cake pan for 40 minutes in a moderate oven. (Note: Many housewives do not keep pastry flour on hand. But an excellent substitute for it can be made by adding two level tablespoons of dry cornstarch powder to every cupful of ordinary bread flour used).

E. W. O.—Tell me how to make a balsam pillow? I expect to be in a locality, next summer, where these trees are plentiful.

Answer—Simply strip the branches, using the needles and finely-cut tips of the twigs. First fill a plain white muslin case with the balsam, then use any kind of covering you please—cretonne, linen, silk, etcetra.

Tomorrow—A St. Patrick's Day Party.

That Body of Yours

Appendix Pain

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright act.)

A patient described his symptoms to a physician, who informed him that his pain seemed very much like appendicitis.

The patient felt that it must be something else, because he had had his appendix removed some years previously.

"In that case," said the doctor, "you of course remember what the pain was like. Is the pain the same?"

The patient admitted that the pain was the same, though not so intense. The physician told him that the beginning of the large intestine, just at the point where the appendix is located, was not doing its work properly and was allowing too much waste to accumulate at this point.

The X-ray showed this to be the case. The intestine at this point allowed itself to become greatly distended, and the pain was the result.

The condition was caused by a general weakness of the muscle tone of the intestine, which did not seem to have sufficient power to contract and thus empty itself properly.

Accordingly the treatment was directed toward strengthening up the entire body, and thus the muscles of the intestine.

One of the big factors in the treatment was massage, which can be done by the patient himself.

Simply rubbing upward and in a circular manner, with the fingers flat but firmly against the body, is all that is necessary. Start in the lower right-hand portion of the abdomen, work upward to lower ribs, then across to left side and down to lower left-hand portion of abdomen.

Bread, potatoes and vegetables in general should be cut down somewhat, because there is considerable residue, and the starchy residue ferments and later becomes actually harmful to the system.

A very interesting suggestion was that corsets should be worn for some time by both men and women.

What does that mean?

That this general lowering of muscle tone in the body affected every part, and so the muscles of the abdomen shared in this weakness. This meant that the abdominal organs were not held up in position, and the organs dropping forward would not be able to do their work properly, a delay being bound to occur.

And my thought?

That while a corset is all right at first, these abdominal muscles should be so developed by bending exercises that they would "tighten" up the whole front of the abdomen, the organs would go back to their proper positions and no corsets would be necessary.

A Milkman Who Takes Water Out!

One of the favorite themes of the jokesmith is the milkman who waters his milk.

Though the joke has little basis in fact, yet you have heard it many times.

But have you ever thought of the milkman who does exactly the opposite—the milkman who takes water out?

That's what the Carnation milkman does—and here's why he does it:

Millions of people, all over the world, use Carnation Milk regularly; it comes to them from some of the finest dairying sections of Canada.

It seems foolish to pay transportation on all the natural water in this milk, so most of the water is removed.

Such removal serves to concentrate and enhance the food values in the milk, making it richer and smoother.

It also explains the satisfaction with which so many people use Carnation Milk undiluted in place of costly cream, in coffee or on cereals and fruits.

Remember, Carnation is simply pure milk, evaporated, sterilized; nothing is added, no sugar or preservative of any kind.

You can restore it to its original strength and consistency merely by putting back the water that has been taken away.

Order with the groceries—several tall (16 oz.) cans or by the case of 48 cans.

TRAIL RESIDENT DIES AT COAST

Trail Funeral for Angus MacDonald, Foreman of Construction

TRAIL, March 9. — Angus MacDonald of this city died at Vancouver yesterday after an illness of lengthy duration. He had been in Vancouver for about four months, where he was undergoing treatment for a tumor which attacked the brain. The funeral will be held in Trail, Thursday, under the auspices of the Fidelity lodge No. 32, A.F. & A.M.

Mr. MacDonald was well known locally, and was born at South Dellness, Stornaway, Island of Lewis, 43 years ago. He came to Trail in 1915, and was employed by the Consolidated Mining & Smelting company as foreman of construction work. He had worked at Trail and at Elko, and was recently employed on the Bonnington construction of the West Kootenay Power & Light company.

The body is being brought to Trail for burial by a brother, Alexander MacDonald of Wartime, Sask. It was Mr. MacDonald's wish that he be interred in the Trail cemetery.

DRUMHELLER FED WILD HORSE RUSH

Late Pioneer Drove Herds of Beef Cattle Across Line by Old Pack Trail

INVERMERE, March 9.—With the death of Daniel L. Drumheller of Spokane, Wash., recently at Los Angeles, the last known survivor of the early days of the placer mining gold rush to Wild Horse creek, which took place in 1864, has gone. It is thought that Mrs. Harry Mather, who was also amongst the pioneers, still survives. Until a late date she was residing in the Okanagan country.

While not actively engaged in taking out gold in the Wild Horse rush, Mr. Drumheller was very directly and indirectly interested in the luck of that roaring camp. He supplied on the hoof most of the beef that was consumed by the several thousand husky beef eating miners who then called Wild Horse gulch their home. These cattle were driven up from the south by way of Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, crossing into Canada by way of Tobacco plains, on the old pack trail which follows the Kootenay river. For many years before the construction of the main line of the Canadian Pacific railway this trail was the only means of comfortable ingress to and egress from the valley of the Columbia and Kootenay rivers.

The name of Mr. Drumheller stands connected with the famous coal mines of Alberta and the thriving town which bears that name, it being carried there by a son and a nephew of the pioneer.

Girls in Training at Grand Forks Banquet Mothers

GRAND FORKS, March 9.—The local troop of Canadian Girls in Training, under the command of Mrs. F. E. Runnalls, were responsible for a very successful "mothers and daughters" banquet given in the basement of the United church, when nearly 100 were present and had a delightful evening. It was presided over by Mrs. Runnalls. Miss Lizzie Otterbine proposed the toast to the mothers, which was replied to by Mrs. C. M. Kingston.

Miss Fountain of Vancouver then gave an address on the four-fold nature of the work of the C.G.I.T.

Grand Forks Club Bids Farewell to Dalton McArthur

GRAND FORKS, March 9.—Members of the A.W.C.A. club on Thursday night held a farewell for Dalton MacArthur, who is going to Rossland, and presented him with an address and a souvenir of his active connection with the organization, of which he has been president.

Mr. MacArthur is assistant cubmaster, and perhaps the outstanding member of the boy scouts locally. He is a member of the official board of the United church, as well as assistant Sunday school superintendent, and member of the choir. He has also been a moving spirit in the literary society of the high school, which recently put on excellent variety concerts locally.

TRIM DOWN FORKS SCHOOL ESTIMATES

Total Asked Twenty-four Thousand; Board Adopts Salary Schedule

GRAND FORKS, March 9. — Estimates of the school board for school purposes have been trimmed down to about $24,000 in spite of additional expenditures through the building of the new high school. This indicates a tax rate for school purposes of about 14 mills, one mill higher than was the case last year.

The school board has also adopted a graded schedule for school teachers as follows: Principal, $1800 to $2000 maximum; vice-principal, male, $1300 to $1500; female, $1100 to $1300; other teachers, $900 to $1100 by arrangement that first year will be on probation; second year, $925; third year, $950, fourth year, $1000; fifth year, $1050; sixth year and thereafter, $1100.

Conservative Ladies of Grand Forks Are Off on a New Year

GRAND FORKS, March 9.—At the annual meeting of the Women's Conservative association, Mrs. C. M. Kingston was again chosen as president, other officers being: First vice-president, Mrs. John McKie; second vice-president, Mrs. R. Gaw; third vice-president, Mrs. Forbes M. Kerby; secretary, Mrs. William Gowans; treasurer, Mrs. Alexander Buchan; executive—Mrs. F. E. Cooper, Mrs. Jefferson Davis, Mrs. C. Manly, Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. W. Euerby.

The association has more than 80 active members and is giving a card party this week.

Soft neck frills of real Valenciennes are being worn again, and numbers of frocks were adorned with them at the Grand Prix races at the Riveria.

CRANBROOK SEES A TAX REDUCTION

Council Expected to Make Rate Forty Mills or Even Lower

CRANBROOK, March 9.—A considerably lower tax rate appears to be in sight for this city, when the tax rate is finally struck at a special meeting of the city council to be held this week. Mayor Roberts has been aiming at 40 mills, which would be a reduction of seven mills from last year, but the final result may even be lower than that.

By the aid of a substantial surplus from the light department, a reduction in the school board estimates, keeping down other city estimates to the minimum, and taking other factors into account, the goal will be reached, and the city will enjoy the lowest tax rate it has had for many years past.

Fourth Year Possible

While the school board is able to reduce its estimates this year on account of not having to provide any further extension for a year or two, there is a demand being made for the establishment of a fourth year high school course next year, which, even with the usual assistance from the government, would entail some expense on the city, though it is the belief of some that the parents of the pupils who would be attending should bear the cost of the extra class.

The board is to have a public meeting with those interested in this question, shortly, when it will go into the probable cost of putting on the extra year.

BOSWELL HEARS MRS. APPLEWHAITE

President of Diocesan Board of Women's Auxiliary Is on Tour

BOSWELL, March 9.—There was a special meeting of the woman's auxiliary Friday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. A. Hepher, which was very well attended, when Mrs. E. Applewhaite of Willow Point, the president of the diocesan board, who has been visiting various branches since the meeting at Revelstoke, came in on her way from Cranbrook and addressed the meeting. Mrs. C. Reed of Procter also attending. The hostess served afternoon tea to those attending the meeting.

Mrs. Applewhaite and Mrs. C. Reed were the guests of the president, Mrs. K. Wallace, Mrs. Reed staying over the week-end and returning with Rev. C. Reed Sunday evening following the afternoon service.

Plant Pathologist Looks Over Damage to Boswell Orchards

BOSWELL, March 9.—Capt. F. J. Oatts left yesterday for Spokane en route to the coast.

W. J. Eastham, plant pathologist of Vancouver, called at Boswell Saturday evening on his way from Creston, to look over the orchards in connection with the winter injury resulting from the severe storm of last December.

Brantford Applies for Relief From Crow Rate Discrimination by Lines

OTTAWA, March 9.—Application has been filed by the city of Brantford with the board of railway commissioners alleging unjust discrimination by the Canadian Pacific railway and the Canadan National railway companies by the putting into effect of the tariffs restoring Crow's Nest Pass agreement freight rates under the act of 1897.

The railway companies have 15 days within which to file a reply, after which the board will decide on the question of appointing a date for the hearing of the application.

Boy Following Parents Upon His Bicycle Is Run Down by Truck

NEW YORK, March 9.—(By Canadian Press)—"There's no room for me," protested James Seymour, aged 15, as his family started from Stamford, Conn., a few days ago in their automobile. His grandmother, Mrs. Granville Card, of No. 779 Elm street, Stamford, explained they were only going on a business trip to Greenwich and that he wouldn't enjoy it. James couldn't see it that way.

"Gee," he mourned, "I changed my clothes and washed my hands and face an' everything because Ithought I was going."

The boy decided to follow the automobile anyhow, got his bicycle and started out. It was foggy. The Boston Post road was slippery. At Sound Beach a heavy truck ran over James. He died instantly.

Centenarian Believed She Was Ten Years Younger; Shock Fatal

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 9.—Discovery that she was 103 years old instead of 93, as she thought, is believed to have hastened the death of Mrs. Maria Hynes, one of Cleveland's few centarians. Mrs. Hynes was wealthy and spry until a few months ago, when a grandson, examining her birth certificate, issued in London, England, called attention to the fact it was dated July 28, 1822.

FEET FROZEN BUT CHILD MAKES NO COMPLAINT

FREMONT, Neb., March 9.—While on a trip to South Dakota where she was called to testify against the men who had murdered her grandmother and wounded her father, one of the feet of little Emma Jessup, aged 12, Fremont school pupil, was frozen. Her plight was not discovered until six weeks later, when she began crying in the class room and her teacher questioned her.

During the six weeks the girl had gone without medical attention, never uttering a word nor showing pain.

A serious condition had developed from lack of attention, but with the proper care, physicians said, the foot could be saved.

Winnipeg Mother Finds Ideal Remedy for Colds of Children

A Vaporizing Salve which Relieves Colds Over Night and Croup in Fifteen Minutes. Nothing to Take—Just Rub It Over Throat and Chest.

Mothers everywhere will be interested in the experience of Mrs. W. Butterfield, 627 Carydon Ave., Winnipeg, Man., Mrs. Butterfield tried the new external remedy for colds, Vicks VapoRub, when it was first introduced in Winnipeg and writes:

"My three-year-old boy, William, became very sick with what seemed to me like a pneumonia cold accompanied with indigestion. He was a very sick boy for two weeks. One night I grew alarmed—he breathed so quickly and was so restless. I rubbed him with Vicks VapoRub and the result was quite gratifying. He breathed more easily and I was able to get a little sleep myself. The next two nights I again rubbed him with Vicks with still better results and he became as bonny as ever. I surely appreciate Vicks VapoRub and shall use and recommend it at all times."

Vicks is just as good for adults. It is the direct treatment for sore throat tonsilitis, bronchitis, catarrh, head or chest colds. When rubbed over throat or chest, Vicks has a two-fold action. Internally it is inhaled as a vapor and at the same time, externally, absorbed like a liniment. This double action seldom fails to give immediate relief.

IS YOUR PRIDE AS AN ANCESTOR OR DESCENDANT

Every Royal or Noble House Goes Back to Upstart, Writes Sabatini

PRIDE OF ANCESTRY MAY BE GOOD FORCE

But Many Times More Important Is Making One's Own Place

EDITOR'S NOTE—For one of such distinguished talent for casting a glamor upon history as Rafael Sabatini, the cool, corrective reasoning of this article would present the author in a new light to those who were not already familiar with him as a serious historian. However, Mr. Sabatini's romances are based upon a remarkable foundation of authentic research, and that is why anything which he has to say in this field, either in or out of fiction, is especially significant.

By RAFAEL SABATINI

Ancestor worship as practiced in China may be tolerable; as practiced among the white races it has been rendered by modern conditions of life slightly ridiculous, and it begins to stand revealed as a pretext for self-magnification on the part of persons who, too often, are otherwise of no importance. It is little more than a lingering vestige of things that have already passed away, because no longer necessary to the evolution of civilization in the phase which it has now reached.

Where evolution is resisted, revolution is the usual alternative.

This has been witnessed in many places and in many ages. Within modern historical times it was witnessed signally in England in the middle of the seventeenth century, when the theory of divine right had become a stumbling-block to progress, and still more signally—because more violently—in France at the close of the eighteenth.

Yet, when the storm of the French revolution had abated, when order had been resolved out of chaos, and an impartial throne erected upon the ruins of the monarchy, surviving members of the old regime regarded Bonaparte with undisguised and rashly outspoken contempt as a parvenu. His stupendous genius as a soldier, administrator and law-giver commanded no respect in the eyes of men who could remember only that by birth he was undistinguished.

An Illuminating Answer

These men had failed to grasp the great lesson of the cataclysm they had survived; that an enlightened and progressive community could no longer suffer itself to be governed by those whose only right to govern rested upon their ancestry; but demanded, instead, to be governed by men who possessed the necessary qualities in themselves.

> THE DUTY OF THE STATE
> "The world today does not require the supremacy of any one class over the others, but the extinction of all privileges and distinctions that are not earned by personal worth. Equality may be an empty dream in a world into which men, physically and mentally, are not born equal. But equality of opportunity is already universally recognized as the state's duty to the individual, just as it is universally recognized — although certain groups may still be reluctant to admit it—that a man's value to society and claim to esteem lie in his own ability to be an ancestor, and not in the appearance he makes in the cold, reflected light of a glorious ancestry."

Out of this lack of understanding sprang that suggestion made to Napoleon by a well-meaning dullard, that to fortify his right to the imperial throne to which he had climbed, he should establish his ancestry.

It was a suggestion to which Napoleon returned the illuminating answer: "Ancestry? I am, myself, an ancestor."

That phrase, charged with hard common sense and the acute perception of realities, which underlies all genius, was probably entirely misunderstood by the prejudice-ridden minds to which it was addressed. Yet very plainly it asks a question to which there would appear to be one only possible answer: Does true greatness belong to him who achieves it, or only to him who succeeds, generations later, to the fruits of that achievement?

It also draws attention to the grotesque circumstance that those who from the standpoint of illustrious lineage permit themselves to despise a self-made man, are really despising the roots of their own family tree, absurdly blind to the fact that their own chief claim to distinction—often their only claim—lies in the accident of birth by which they, themselves, descend from just such another parvenu. For there is no great, or even royal house that in its beginnings does not owe its existence to an upstart who by ability, enterprise and the favor of fortune raised himself above the common level of the humanity of his day.

Self-Made Men of History

Was the Norman bastard who conquered England and founded the line of Norman kings anything more than a high-flying adventurer or first-class brigand?

Yet among the many foreign critics who despised Bonaparte for an upstart, there would be some who took pride in, and had been at pains to establish, descent, not indeed from King William himself, but from one or another of those who merely followed in his Norman train.

Oliver Cromwell, who from humble circumstances rose to be supreme in England, as lord protector, and could, had he so willed it, have assumed the crown and founded a dynasty, might equally have been condemned for a self-made man.

Still more heavily might this contempt have fallen upon the Florentine trader, Cosimo d' Medici—whose armorial device in the shape of the three balls may to this day be seen adorning the portals of many a pawnshop—who rose to be the greatest man in the state, and whose trader's blood within 200 years ran in the veins of almost every royal family in Europe.

Lineage and Inspiration

Muzio Attendolo, who, from the great physical strength that was one of his least endowments, was surnamed Sforza, was a Romanga peasant who abandoned the plow to follow a company of free lances, and raised himself by his talents and energy to the command of armies and finally to the throne of Milan.

If, continuing this review, we ignore the utterly ignoble origins of certain great houses—and there is no lack of them—whose titles and honors have their roots in harlotry, usury and violence, and we consider only those whose nobility is legitimately based upon worthy service to the state, we invariably find that such families spring from some man of humble, or comparatively humble, origin, who, surmounting difficulties in an age which denied opportunity to his class, rendered himself conspicuous as a soldier or a statesman, and by his services in either capacity earned the gratitude of his country, concretely expressed by a tide of nobility and a grant of lands or money.

Pride of nobility may have its justifications. It can be, indeed, and no doubt often has been and still is, a source of noble inspiration. The old French formula noblesse oblige was not by any means an empty phrase.

A great house has its traditions, and in many great houses of Europe we see to this day an earnest endeavor on the part of some of its members worthily to maintain those traditions by a continuance of service akin to that which originally ennobled them.

An able, ambitious and handsome young guardsman at the court of Charles II, who combined great military talents with considerable ability as a politician, thrust himself forward until, later in life, he reached the supreme command, and so distinguished himself in this that from a simple esquire, as he had been when first he came to court, he ended by being created a duke. If the direct followers in the ducal line he founded have done little that is remarkable, at least the young branches of that house have more than once conspicuously upheld the name which he rendered great and the traditions of service which he established.

Feeding on Ancestral Fruit

There is no lack of instances to show the power for good that may lie in the consciousness of the obligations which descent imposes. Unfortunately, instances are infinitely more abundant of houses which down the ages have remained undistinguished in all but the name of their founder, and of useless men who, living like parasites upon the fruits of an ancestor's labors, may, paradoxically, indulge a pride of ancestry such as was denied to the able and enterprising upstart from whom they spring.

Whether you contemplate one or the other of these classes, the conclusion you must inevitably reach is that it is surely better to be in a position to take pride in your own actions, and to be esteemed for your own worth, than to be respected for the sake of the memory of someone who died, perhaps, 200 years ago. And you may well ask yourself by what grotesque exercise of the intelligence is it that the more remote is the distinguished ancestor who has raised the family from the common level, the greater is the pride of the descent and the esteem of the descendant.

Humanity's most elementary sense of justice would be shocked and outraged if the descendants of a criminal deservedly hanged, say, 300 years ago, should still lie under the burden of the infamy earned by that ancestor. Why, then, should glory attach to the possibly worthless descendant of a hero, if infamy may not brand the possibly worthy descendant of a felon?

A Hamperer of Progress

No answer is possible that would not be at war with all reason. For we are dealing with something that at heart is no better than a stupid superstition which has become woven into the warp of civilization, and which, like all superstitions, has hampered progress. If in the past it has not rendered impossible, at least it has greatly curtailed, the expressions of individual worth by which alone humanity advances.

This was fully realized in the eighteenth century by the men of comparatively humble origin who composed what was known as the Third Estate in France. When, in consequence, they put forward their revolutionary proposals that the country should be given a constitution under which all men might enjoy equal rights at law and equal opportunities for self-expression, the best argument that aristocracy could oppose to it was that nobility was an order consecrated by antiquity, and that its rights and privileges were supported by the authority of centuries. Which was to say that if a wrong had been a wrong for a sufficient number of centuries it becomes in consequence an established right.

It was not an argument likely to prevail with men determined to sweep away shams so that realities might be given a chance to bloom.

They had seen how, a century earlier Cromwell had broken the shackles of divine right which fettered England as they were still fettering France. They had witnessed more recently the revolution in North America, whereby a free people had refused to submit to the yoke of a system of government already anachronistic and futile. And they were resolved upon winning for themselves a similar emancipation from the chains of feudalism and privilege, imposed upon them by an arrogant and in the main effete minority.

> IGNOBLE NOBLE ORIGINS
> "If we ignore the utterly ignoble origins of certain great houses—and there is no lack of them—and consider only those whose nobility is legitimately based upon worthy service to the state, we invariably find that such families spring from some man of humble, or comparatively humble, origin, who, surmounting difficulties in an age which denied opportunity to his class, rendered himself conspicuous as a soldier or a statesman, and by his services in either capacity earned the gratitude of his country, concretely expressed by a title or nobility and a grant of lands and money.
> "Unfortunately, instances are abundant of houses which down the ages have remained undistinguished in all but the name of their founder."

They realized that America, which offered itself so conspicuously then as an example, had originally been called into existence largely by just such a condition of things in Europe as that against which the bourgeoisie of France was then in revolt.

The New World

It was largely because in Seventeenth Century Europe there was so little opportunity for a man to express himself, to achieve liberty of action, to enjoy even freedom of worship, that the stream of emigration had set strongly towards the New World. And it was well-named the New World. For it was new spiritually as well as physically. It was not only in the sense of being newly discovered, but also because it held out the prospect of new life, under new conditions, with equal opportunities for all. It was a land in which the only obstacles to advancement were weakness, stupidity and sloth; a land where only realities counted; where every man was his neighbor's peer; where energy and ability might enjoy free scope with the certainty of reward; where, in short, individual worth was the only claim to respect and credit.

To the great spirits cramped in the Old World by class distinctions and class and other prejudices it was Utopia.

Slowly, because still trammeled by old prejudices, but surely and unfalteringly nevertheless, the whole world today is coming to this same point of view, and America may take credit for having given this sane movement its strongest impetus.

The Old World may be accounted in a period of social transition. The old gods are not yet entirely cast out; preconceptions and a veneration of old established customs still keep them in their niches. But side by side with them the new ones are beginning to appear in strength.

Mere Living Monuments

A reflection of this may be observed in the European illustrated papers. In these you will find weekly, side by side, the photographs of men and women of two worlds; the world of titled nobodies, of persons who are just names, mere living monuments to the illustrious dead from whom they descend; and the world of those whose claim to distinction rests upon their own personal achievements in the fields of science, art, literature or commerce, by which humanity is served and civilization advanced.

Gradually the entire world is coming to understand the truths that have been plain to America from the beginnings, the truths upon which she has built up her greatness and in many ways outstripped an Old World that has been staggering under the handicap of anachronistic ideas.

Because the Old World has been slow in reaching this understanding, it has suffered unrest and even convulsions, which, fortunately, have been in the main of a minor character. In these the pendulum has swung too far in the opposite direction, and thus the ideal social evolution has been retarded. For if the old tyrants from palace and castle have been cast out, it is not so that tyrants from the gutter may take their place.

The world today does not require the supremacy of any one class over the others, but the extinction of all privileges and distinctions that are not earned by personal worth.

Equality may be an empty dream in a world into which men, physically and mentally, are not born equal. But equality of opportunity is already universally recognized—although certain groups may still be reluctant to admit it—that a man's value to society and claim to esteem lie in his own ability to be an ancestor, and not in the appearance he makes in the cold, reflected light of a glorious ancestry.

Quebec Man Absolutely Relieved of Backache

Mr. Alfred Ganon recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills to all who suffer.

MOULIN BERSIMIS, Que., March 9 (Special.)—"A few words about your Dodd's Kidney Pills. They have done me much good," states Mr. Gagnon, a well-known and highly respected resident of this place.

"For pains in the back and kidneys, I have taken Dodd's Kidney Pills and they have done me good immediately. I always keep a box in the house. Today, thanks to your pills, I am quite relieved of my trouble, and recommend them to all who suffer. Kindly send me one of your almanacs."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a kidney remedy. They act directly on the kidneys, strengthening them and putting them in condition to do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills have been in use in Canada for more than thirty years. They demonstrated their worth in the most serious forms of kidney disease, such as rheumatism, dropsy, diabetes, neuralgia and sciatica.

The Guarantee that Banishes All Worry

THE Snyder Sani-Bilt Guarantee against moths is a document of real value. It means something. It means something right now. It means something for the future.

Right now it means that you may buy Snyder's Sani-Bilt Living Room Furniture with every confidence; that the furniture to which the Snyder Sani-Bilt Guarantee is attached is the genuine Sani-Bilt Furniture, the only furniture which is treated in the Sani-Bilt way.

For the future the Sani-Bilt Guarantee means that you will never be troubled by moths in this furniture so long as it lasts—and it is built to last many years. The Sani-Bilt process removes all temptation for moths. Moth grubs starve to death if hatched on fabrics treated by this process. The experiment has been demonstrated not once but hundreds of times.

Consequently in the Sani-Bilt Guarantee you have a document worth preserving. It is the guarantee that banishes all worry. There is no other guarantee like it. It covers all points needing guarantee—construction, as well as moths. From moths Sani-Bilt is guaranteed absolutely immune, inside and out.

If moths should get into your suite and do any damage, produce the Sani-Bilt Guarantee. Your dealer has our authority to replace the suite without cost to you. We make this offer with every suite that leaves the factory.

COLEMAN TAKES TWO STRAIGHT

ALBERTA TEAM AGAIN DEFEATS ROSSLAND MEN

Beat the British Columbia Champs Eight to Four in the Second Game

TAKE CUP ROUND BY EIGHT GOALS

Kootenay Boys Even for Two Periods; Outclassed in the Last One

VANCOUVER, March 9.—Being forced to play only six players, owing to the ruling of the Alberta Hockey union in debarring four of the regulars, did not make any difference to the young Coleman Tigers in the final game of their Allan cup elimination series with Rossland Miners here tonight. The Tigers uncorked the smoothest combination seen here in amateur ranks in many a day, and by a last period finish, when they ran in five goals, emerged victorious, 8 to 4 which gave them a lead of 13 to 5 on the round.

Johnson and Singer Brilliant

The Rossland team fought hard for two periods, and through the brilliant playing of Johnson in goal, and Singer on the firing line, kept the speedy youngsters hustling. The first period ended 1-1, and Coleman had the edge, 3 to 1, at the conclusion of the second period.

But the last frame found the Coleman kids skating rings around their heavier opponents, and it was a regular procession. The neat work of Wasna, Sheppard and Thorsteinson on the forward line of the winners was even more brilliant than in the first game.

The Coleman team left for Winnipeg after the game, to compete in the next round of the Allen cup series.

George Irvine refereed a very clean game, only two penalties being inflicted, Wasna and Morris being the recipients.

Summary

First period—1, Rossland, Singer, 6:05; 2, Coleman, Sheppard, from Thorsteinson, 2:45.

Second period—3, Rossland, North, 2:05; 4, Coleman, Thorsteinson, from Sheppard, 7:00; 5, Coleman, Sheppard, from Wasna, 10:35.

Third period — 6, Coleman, Wasna, 4:01; 7, Coleman, Thorsteinson,, :48; 8, Rossland, Marsters, 2:46; 9, Coleman, Sheppard, 1:05; 10, Coleman, Thorsteinson, :25; 11, Rossland, Singer, 8:20; 12, Coleman, Wasna, 1:10.

Final—Coleman, 8; Rossland, 4.

CANADIENS MAKE PLAYOFF BERTH BEATING TIGERS

Trim League Leaders Four to One in a Necessary Victory

MONTREAL, March 9.—The Canadiens qualified for a position in the National Hockey league eliminations for the championship when they won their final scheduled game here tonight, defeating the league-leading Hamilton Tigers, 4 to 1.

Howie Morenz and Orie Cleghorn were responsible for the Canadiens' goals, after brilliant efforts, Morenz, in particular being, brilliant as he flashed about the ice to bring his tally for the evening to three goals.

Hamiltons were downed by a team which was superior at all stages. The Tigers started out in real earnest, but after the first period were very little in the picture. And, as they saw the game slipping away, substitutes were sent in to replace the regulars.

The game ended in an uproar, as play became strenuous in the last five minutes. Coutu and Langlois both had to retire limping after a collision. Morenz was benched for roughing Langlois previously, and Randall was the target for abuse from spectators. He was also slapped on the head by a woman spectator during a scuffle with Morenz alongside the boards.

By virtue of their win, Canadiens will play St. Pats in the opening game of the league eliminations here Wednesday. They play the return game in Toronto Friday night.

Summary

First period—1, Hamilton, Red Green, 6:00; 2, Canadiens, Morenz, 3:30.

Second period—3, Canadiens, Cleghorn, 10:05.

Third period—4, Canadiens, Morenz, 8:00; 5, Canadiens, Morenz, :30.

FISTS FLAIL AIR WHEN SENATORS DEFEAT BRUINS

Final Minute of Play in the Final Game Produces a Near Riot

BOSTON, March 9. — The Ottawa Senators outclassed the Boston Bruins in the final game of the National Hockey league season here tonight, trimming the locals 4 to 1, with plenty to spare.

It was an uninteresting game for the most part, but there were possibilities of trouble throughout. By means of strict rulings Referee Laflamme kept things in order almost to the end. The crowd of 5000 was the largest of the Boston season.

In the last minute of the game the bad blood that had been apparent from the outset, resulted in a near riot. Hitchman and "Hooly" Smith dropped their sticks after a collision near the Bruins' goal, and went at it with their fists. The two teams joined in, and Referee Laflamme was surrounded by a seething mob of players.

It looked for a time as if the spectators would take a hand, but peace was restored without serious trouble.

Ottawa's defence was working at its best, and the Bruins had little chance to score. The single tally was on a triple attack by Herberts, Mitchell and Cooper, the best piece of work of the game. Ottawa took things easy after it had a lead rolled up. Denenny scored two goals and Clancy two, but "Hooly" Smith had a part in most of them.

Summary

First period — 1, Ottawa, Clancy, 3:18; 2, Ottawa, Denenny, 9:26.

Second period—No score.

Third period — 3, Ottawa, Clancy, 7:25; 4, Ottawa, Denenny, 9:21; 5, Boston, Cooper, 12:32.

Calgary Canadians on Tour for Title

CALGARY, March 9.—George McTeer, 175 pounds defence star, was unable to accompany the Calgary Canadians when they left this afternoon in quest of Canadian junior hockey honors. Otherwise the Abbott Cup holders are at full strength. The team has developed three newcomers this winter. With Ripley in center and Mitchell, right wing, back again, Calgary has a much stronger lineup than a year ago, despite the loss of Herbie Lewis and Johnny Doucks who are with Duluth.

It is known that Ripley, Adams and Irving will be with the Calgary Tigers of the western Canada professional league next winter.

MONTREAL, March 9.—The Young Sons of Ireland captured the junior hockey championship of Quebec by defeating Westmount high school 4 to 1 here this afternoon. The game was a replay of Saturday's three-all overtime game here, and the winners will now meet the Ottawa junior title holders for the right to enter the eastern Canada final against Aura Lee of Toronto.

ST. PATRICKS LAND SECOND WITH MARGIN

Blank Montreals in Final Game of the National Schedule

TORONTO, March 9.—St. Patricks closed the regular National Hockey league season here tonight with a 3 to 0 victory over Montreal, which gave the Irishmen undisputed possession of second place, two points ahead of Canadiens. Practically nothing was at stake, and the game was played in good humor all the way.

To Adams went the honor of scoring the first goal to the evening. He circled the net, and after brief duel with Benedict, who came out of goal, slipped the puck in the net. Adams scored the second counter. A third one in this period was disallowed by the referee.

While McCaffery and Adams were visiting the penalty box in the third period the visitors tried hard to score, but Roach was invincible. The rest of the period was altogether in St. Pats favor.

Summary

First period—No score.

Second period—1, St. Pats, Adams, 3:30; 2, St. Pats, Adams, 10:30.

Third period—3, St. Pats, McCaffery, 10:00.

SHEIKS EXPECT TO BE STRONG TONIGHT

Cougars Reach Saskatoon This Morning; Take Two-Goal Lead Into Game

SASKATOON, March 9.—The Victoria team will arrive in Saskatoon tomorrow morning, and in the evening meet Saskatoon Sheiks in the second game of the semifinals for the Western Canada Hockey league championship.

By virtue of their win at the coast last week, 3 to 1, Victoria takes a two-goal lead into the game. The team making the most number of goals meets Calgary for the championship.

The Sheiks expect to be at full strength for the game. Cameron and Reise, defence, were both injured at the coast, but will be on the ice. Cameron suffered a leg injury, and Reise was cut on the head.

Interest is running high here, and the teams will perform for a packed rink.

FLY MASK TAKES THE MANCHESTER

Having Wen Trial Steeplechase He Is Favorite for Grand National

LONDON, March 9.—(Canadian Press Cable) — The situation surrounding the running of the Grand National steeplechase at Liverpool Friday, March 27, grows more interesting daily. Several candidate for the "chasing blue ribbon" were given public trials last week, and the favorite, Fly Mask, gave a great deal of satisfaction to his supporters in the Aintree feature by winning the Lancashire trial steeplechase over the three-mile course at Manchester, Saturday, although conceding weights to all opponents.

The last of the French candidates for the chasing derby has been eliminated, Maurice Tillemont announcing today that his entry, Gorey, would not run.

Odds quoted today on grand national candidates were: Fly Mask, 100 to 9 against, taken and offered; Silvo, 100 to 9 offered; Winnall and Double Chance, 100 to 7 against offered; Alcazar, 20 to 1 against; Gracious Gift, 25 to 1 against offered, 33 to 1 against taken.

Ed Walsh's Cap Moved Whenever He Oiled Spitter

By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher, N.Y. Giants)

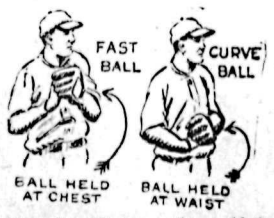
Batters in the American league used to know when Ed Walsh, the famous spitball pitcher of the White Sox, was going to throw his "spitter," by watching the bill of his cap. The exertion he used in applying the saliva to the ball caused the bill of his cap to move up and down. If the bill remained stationary they knew a fast ball was coming. However, Ed had so much stuff that even when the hitters knew what was coming it seldom did them any good.

"Rosy" Ryan of the Giants had a habit for years of holding the ball on his chest before throwing a fast ball and at his waist for a curve with men on bases. Some friend finally tipped him off to his weakness. "Ferdy" Shupp, the old Giant southpaw, had this peculiarity for a long time and had great difficulty in getting rid of it.



"Larry" Chaney, the old-time "spitter" of the Chicago Cubs, used to "advertise" his spitter and fast ball. Whenever he apparently took great pains to show the batter that he was applying saliva to the ball, it was invariably a fast ball—but, if he brought the ball up and down from his mouth quickly, apparently apply no moisture, it was a spitball.

Why should women fade at forty?

They shouldn't. Women at forty should be in the prime of mental alertness and physical charm.

They shouldn't be worried about wrinkles. They shouldn't be sallow, or suffer with headaches and backache, or be fussy about what they eat.

Ninety-nine times out of a hundred, fading at forty can be prevented and corrected with ABBEY'S.

ABBEY'S overcomes the troubles that make sagged cheeks, puffy eyelids, sallow skin, liver spots, poor blood, weak stomachs, lack of appetite, nervousness, sleeplessness and a general run-down condition of the system.

Make up your mind you will be more charming mentally and more attractive physically at 40 than at 20 or 30.

You can, you know, by correcting the little ailments now—the irregular bowels, the first pimple, the touch of indigestion, the headaches and backaches that come from constipation.

At these first symptoms of bad health, take ABBEY'S. Not one dose alone—but take ABBEY'S regularly until mind and body are perfectly attuned to normal, vigorous health again.

ABBEY'S is the perfect treatment for young and old—it means health for the whole family; it has brought health and protected health for more than half a century.

Your druggist knows the value of ABBEY'S — ask him for a bottle today.

STOCKS SOLD ON MONEY SITUATION

Speculative Uneasiness Leads to Unloading When Money Rates Jump

NEW YORK, March 9. — Speculative uneasiness over the money situation was generally held responsible for the heavy selling of stocks in today's market. Call money opened unchanged at 3½ per cent, but soon jumped to 4 and 4½ and 5, closing at the top.

United States Steel common closed 1⅛ lower, at 123⅞, after having sold at 123¼. American Can fluctuated between 178⅝ and 182½, closing at 180¾, a net loss of 1 point. Baldwin opened at 140⅛, yielded to 137⅝, and then rallied to 139⅛, off 1⅝ on the day. Studebaker closed fractionally higher at 44⅜.

Wilson & Company preferred broke to 30½, and then rallied to 36, off 7½ on the day. Atlantic Gulf and West Indies was heavily sold, being quoted as low as 29¾, and then rallied to 32⅝, off 2¾ on the day. Miami Copper broke more than 3 points, to 11½, the lowest price in 15 years. United States Distributing preferred broke 10 points on one sale.

Many industrials showed net losses of 2½ to 8½ points.

National Enamelling advanced 3½ points, to 35, slipping back later to 34 on profit taking. Maxwell Motors "A" and "B" attained new peak prices for the year at 89½ and 59¼ respectively. Butte and Superior advanced a point, at 20½. Good buying also was noted in American Hide and Leather preferred, Manhattan Electrical Supply and Republican Steel.

Money rates held firm with 4 per cent quoted for the 60 to 90-day maturities and 4½ for the longer rates. Commercial paper ranged from 3¾ to 4¼.

Total sales—1,326,700 shares.

BURT COMMON UP SIX POINTS

After Climbing on Heavy Buying Shares Recede Some; Smelters Strong

TORONTO, March 9. — Fairly extensive buying of F. N. Burt common shares occurred on the Toronto exchange today and the price moved up 6 points, to 171. The Burt shares receded from the high point attained in the morning, and finished with a net gain of 3¾, at 168¾. Pacific Burt common was up 2, to 96.

The common shares of the Rogers company closed a point lower, at 61.

Dominion Canners common moved up 5½ to 92¾ and finished ½ below the peak, at 92¼.

Smelters was stronger. Transactions were made at 69 to 70, and the close was at the latter. Twin City sold at 64 to 65.

Other changes: Brazilian Traction, up ¼; Duluth Superior, off ¼; Winnipeg Electric common, off ¼; B. C. Fishing, up ⅝; Cement common, up ¾; Car preferred, off 1½; Canadian General Electric preferred, up ¾; Mackey, off ½, to 114½, ex-dividend.

EXPORT BUYING RAISES WHEAT

Sharp Advances Result Also From the Smaller Farm Stocks

CHICAGO, March 9. — Sharp advances in the price of wheat resulted today from big export buying, and from correct belief that government figures on farm stocks of wheat would prove to be lower than the average private estimates. The wheat market closed nervous, ½c to 3⅝c net higher, with May $1.83¾ to $1.83⅞, and July $1.63 to $1.63¼, with corn varying from ¼c decline to ½c gain; oats, ¾c to 1¼c off; and provisions showing 12c to 50c gain.

VANCOUVER WHEAT

VANCOUVER, March 9. — No. 1 northern wheat, bid $1.89⅝; $1.90⅝ asked.

Many a Strong Business Built By Small Ads

Just because a man cannot afford to buy a whole bond issue doesn't keep him from purchasing bonds periodically and getting excellent return. This also works in advertising.

If you can possibly afford large ads, it is usually sound business policy to use them, but do not fail to advertise because you can afford only small ads. Many very substantial businesses have been built through the use of small ads.

One Philadelphia newspaper makes a specialty of getting to the small advertiser and helping him prepare copy and layouts which bring enormous returns. If you are not an advertiser, get an advertising man to talk things over with you and point out how you can profitably invest small or large sums of money in advertising.

REGINA PATS AND WINNIPEG END WITH TIE

Saskatchewan Boys Overcome Varsity Lead; Overtime Fails to Break

REGINA, March 9.—In the most sensational game seen here for many years, Regina Pats and Varsity battled 90 minutes here tonight to a tie for the right to meet Calgary Canadiens in the western junior hockey championship. Regina, who went into the game down three goals as the result of Winnipeg's 5 to 2 victory Saturday night, emerged from tonight's game winners, 7 to 4. With 10 minutes to play in the regular time, the local team were leading the round by one goal, but Gray tied it up with a few minutes to go.

In the first overtime period, with one minute to play, Cunning, who was weak in the nets all during the game, let through a long shot from Blair, Manitoba looked like sure winners, but within 10 minutes of time Acaster ran through the entire Winnipeg team.

Winnipeg had the bulge in the first overtime period, but Regina were easily the best for the two remaining periods, although neither team could score.

During the entire game Regina had the edge, but Foster's phenomenal work in goal saved the day for Varsity. With Acaster he was the star of the game. No better goaltending has been seen in this city this year than the exhibition of the Winnipeg youth.

The date for the third game necessary to break the tie has not been decided.

If Dempsey Chooses Gibbons, Gibbons Will Take Wills On First

CHICAGO, March 9. — If Jack Dempsey chooses to box Tommy Gibbons instead of Harry Wills, negro challenger, in the first bout of his summer campaign, Gibbons stands ready to box Wills before meeting the heavyweight champion, Eddie Kane, Gibbons' manager, said tonight on his return from New York.

During Shrine Week

LOS ANGELES, March 9.—Jack Dempsey will defend his heavyweight title against Tommy Gibbons in the Los Angeles coliseum next June, during the 1925 Shrine convention, if negotiations now under way with certain Los Angeles promoters are successful, it was announced tonight by the champion's manager, Jack Kearns.

Charles Rigoulat, aged 20, olympic lightheavyweight champion at weight lifting, recently broke two world's records for all categories of weight lifting. He shouldered and lifted 155.5 kilos (342.1 pounds) and in a two-hand snatch and raise, he lifted 120.5 kilos (265.1 pounds). The former records were 336.2 and 258.5 pounds respectively.

PARTH BECOMES THE FAVORITE

Displaces Grand Joy for Lincolnshire; Carries the Top Weight

LONDON, March 9.—(Canadian Press Cable)—A. K. McComber's 5-year-old colt, Parth, which since the publication of the weights for the Lincolnshire handicap, the first of the spring handicaps, which will be run Wednesday, March 25, the opening week of the flat racing season in England, has occupied second place in the public's choice for the Carholm feature, today displaced Lord Glanely's 4-year-old Grand Joy as the favorite. Parth is the top weight, with an allotment of 132 pounds.

Odds quoted today on the more prominent candidates for honors in the Lincolnshire are as follows:

Parth, 100 to 12 against, taken and offered; Grand Joy, 100 to 9 against, offered; Tapin, 100 to 8 against, offered, 14 to 1 against taken and wanted; Mignault, 100 to 6 against offered; Great Barrier, 20 to 1 against, taken and offered; Irish Eagle, 20 to 1 against offered, 22 to 1 against taken; Spun, 20 to 1 against offered, 25 to 1 against taken; Page Three, 25 to 1 against offered, 33 to 1 against taken; All Green, Browside, Dorsay and L.S.D., 33 to 1 against taken and offered.

GOODRICH, VALGAR AND SEEMAN WIN

Second Round of Lightweight Eliminations Produces Some Fine Bouts

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, March 9.—Jimmy Goodrich, Buffalo lightweight, won a judges' verdict over "K. O." Jeakel, Toledo, in the first of tonight's bouts in the second round of the lightweight elimination tournament at Madison Square garden. Jeakel weighed 134 and his opponent one pound more.

Benny Valgar, New York, won a verdict on points from Basil Galiano of New Orleans, in a tame 12-round exhibition. Valgar showed boxing supremacy over his opponent, while Galiano had the better punch but could not land it.

Galiano weighed 134½ and Valgar 131½.

Solly Seeman, New York, was given a judges' verdict over Charlie O'Connell of Cleveland, in a 15-round bout. Originally scheduled for 12 rounds, the contest was carried three more rounds when the judges decided it a draw at the end of the 12th.

Boston Man Breaks Nurmi's Own Record

NEW YORK, March 9.—Lloyd Hahn of the Boston Athletic association clipped 2-5 of a second of Paavo Nurmi's record for the three-quarter-mile run at the Manhattan college games here tonight, when he covered the distance in 3:3 3-5.

CAST OFF HUBBY AIDS HIS RIVAL IN QUEER CASE

Divorces Wife So Friend Can Wed Her; Friend's Wife Obstructs

CHICAGO, March 9. — Richard Tompkinson, a wealthy advertising man who agreed to divorce his wife so that she might marry the man she loved, has added to the eccentricity of his position by coming to the defence of his victorious rival.

The martial tangle started at the Tompkinson breakfast table on New Year's morning, when Bradford Whiting, a guest, turned to Tompkinson and said:

"Dick, I'm in love with your wife. I want to marry her."

At first, startled by the confession and request, Tompkinson agreed to the proposal, promising to divorce his wife, Peggy, provided Whiting got a divorce from his wife, Mrs. Paulette Picard Whiting.

The affair was about to be settled when Mrs. Whiting changed her mind, and instead of suing her husband for divorce, asked only for a separate maintenance. That made it impossible for Whiting to marry Peggy, already divorced from Tompkinson.

"My wife has violated her promise," Whiting asserted. "She promised faithfully to divorce me so that I might marry Peggy."

Protected by Fund

But Peggy is protected by a "trust fund" which Tompkinson insisted Whiting set aside for her in the event he failed to win his own divorce. And now comes Tompkinson to the defence of Whiting.

"He was always a good friend of mine," Tompkinson declared. "We used to go yachting together. I admired his frankness in putting the matter squarely up to me. That's the reason I agreed to his proposal. While I did not really love Peggy any more, I was interested in her enough to see to it that she was taken care of. I will help Bradford get an out and out divorce from his wife."

The Whitings are wealthy members of exclusive north shore society.

Mrs. Whiting, who is now obstructing the marriage, is a beautiful young woman from another prominent family. She charges her husband with "heavy drinking" and accused him of being a "dope addict."

"Her charges are lies," Tompkinson declared emphatically.

"He's a clean chap and I'm perfectly satisfied to have him marry Peggy."

Since the Walker law went into effect nearly four and a half years ago, the state of New York has realized a net profit of $783,048.70 from professional boxing. This represents amounts paid as tax on admission tickets to matches, licence fees for boxers, managers, clubs, seconds, referees and other ring officials.

REGINA SIGNS ON BRANDON PLAYER

"Doc." Townsend, Recent Recruit From Souris, for Capitals Defence

BRANDON, March 9.—Arthur (Dr.) Townsend, Brandon defence player, is reported to have been signed up by Wes Champ, who is already building up the Regina Capitals for next year's western Canada professional hockey race. Townsend Saturday was in Regina, and is reported to have affixed his signature to a contract. No price has been mentioned but he is said to have been offered a good proposition, considering he has only been in senior company one year.

The wheat city defence man played with the champion Souris team last year, and joined Brandon as a forward this season. He failed to make an impression on the attacking line, but developed into one of the best defence players in the Manitoba circuit. He weighs 186 pounds and is only 22 years of age.

Retired Military Men May Come to Model Farms in the Dominion

LONDON, March 9.—To facilitate cooperation in emigration among retired professional classes with small fixed incomes, the Empire Community settlement has been organized here to care for retired military officers, civil servants, engineers and other professional men unfitted to go to the dominions as agricultural settlers in the ordinary way.

It is proposed to establish them overseas on model farms, something like garden cities, with two to five acres, dwelling, stable and outhouse sites, and club houses where meals may be obtained at a low rate. After five years of this life the settlers would be expected to find a permanent place in the dominion.

Birth Rate Decline Predicted as Peril to British Nation

MANCHESTER, March 9.—Decline of the birth rate in England has become a national peril in the opinion of Sir Robert Blair, former chief education officer of the London county council, who, speaking at a Manchester educational conference estimated that within the next eight years there would be 2,000,000 fewer workers in this country.

"Within the last few years, the birth rate has fallen off tremendously," he said, "and appears even yet to be going down. We are losing 100,000 children a year from each age group in the schools and on this basis from calculations I have made, by 1932 there will be some 2,000,000 less workers in England."

Taking this year as an example, asserted Sir Robert, the board of education is budgeting for a million less children than in its budget of 14 years ago.

Decrease of the birth rate during the years of the war in some measure accounts for the reduction in the number of children who are now attaining school age, according to ministry of health officials.

PINK-HEADED DUCK AT LAST

Two Hundred Men, Scores of Elephants Sought It Two Years

NEW YORK, March 9.—The American Museum of Natural History has succeeded, after a three-year search with men and elephants, in getting a pink-headed duck.

Nearly 200 men and scores of elephants have swarmed through northern India's jungles in search of this almost extinct species. Posters offering large rewards for a specimen, dead or alive, were displayed in scores of villages in the swamp country just south of the Himalayas, where this distinguished bird had last been seen. By arrangement between British and American diplomatic officials and the native princes of Assam and Nepal, native soldiers and hunters were directed to keep a sharp eye out.

In 1922 and 1923 the museum was represented by the Vernay-Faunthorpe expedition, the most elaborate scientific expedition ever sent to India. They used more elephants than Hannibal had to invade Italy, but failed to get a pink-headed duck. They brought back, however, the greatest collections of specimens any museum ever had received from India, including tigers, a white rhinoceros, a deer whose call reminds one of a bell, and another that makes sounds like those of a flute.

A little more than a year ago Colonel Faunthorpe and Mr. Vernay received this cablegram from India: "Pinkhead reported in Assam." Orders were cabled back to resume the chase. The two hunters, who had planned extensive exploring in Burma and Siam, arranged for a special duck-hunting expedition.

The second direct attack on the pink-head duck failed, but a native enlisted in the search was successful.

In a letter to President Henry Fairfield Osborn of the museum, Mr. Vernay reported that a fine specimen of the pink-headed duck had been shot by a "shikari," or native hunter, who for two years had been working up the duck lakes in Nepal. He finally got the pink-head near the Nepal border in North Kheri. It had a salmon-colored head, instead of the hoped-for coral pink, however.

Vernay and Faunthorpe on their most recent expedition killed for the American Museum the smallest mammal ever known, a pigmy shrew, which measures half an inch across the shoulder, and a bird hitherto unknown to science called the Siamese swift.

One-third of Land in Scotland Changes Hands in Six Years

LONDON, March 9.—During the past six years one-third of Scotland has changed hands through the real estate market. Last year was the poorest since the war; only 300,000 acres were sold as compared with 900,000 acres in 1923.

Since the wholesale disposal of Scottish lands began immediately after the armistice, about 6,500,000 acres have passed into new ownership.

Women Students in Germany Are Greatly Increased

LEIPSIC, March 9.—Educational statistics for German universities covering a period of ten years show an increase of women students; a falling off in total enrollments, and a neglect of the ministry.

The women today are about twice as numerous as they were in 1914; 7467 as against 4056. After the war a large number of young people rushed blindly to the schools, many of them unfitted for university work; these have now departed, and attendance is becoming normal. Medical and theological schools report great declines, the attendance today being less than half what it was ten years ago.

Systematic Teaching of Safety in Schools Reduces Child Fatalities

LOS ANGELES, March 9.— A reduction of 21 per cent in child fatalities due to motor vehicles has been made through systematic teaching of safety in the public schools of Los Angeles, it has been revealed in a check made by the Automobile club of Southern California.

The safety curriculum in Los Angeles public schools was inaugurated about three years ago through the cooperation of the board of education and the public safety department of the automobile club. Children are given practical instruction and in addition they compete in designing posters and verses for bulletins used in the safety movement. Diplomas are issued to students completing the course.

WILL REDECORATE WITH ANTIQUE WALLPAPER

LONDON, March 9.—Antique wall paper, 200 years old, will be used on the walls of a room being built in the English furniture galleries at South Kensington museum. The room will be a copy of an 18th century apartment and will contain furniture made at or about the time when Queen Anne died. The wall paper has been taken from a room in an old house in Gloucester, where it has hung for two centuries.

Violine which is a combination of magenta and purple will be very smart, and pale greens bordering on lettuce will also be good.

EXAMINATION FOR THE POSITION OF ASSISTANT FOREST RANGER

Object

These examinations are for the purpose of filling present vacancies and to enable candidates to qualify for future vacancies and increases in staff.

Assistant Forest Rangers

Assistant Forest Rangers are employed during the fire season of each year, and this period is extended where possible by work on improvements such as trails, etc. Re-appointment is made each year as long as satisfactory service is given. Promotion to the permanent staff is made by merit and examination as occasion offers. The salary is $100 per month the first year and $110 per month the second year, and $120 the third year. Travelling expenses are also paid.

Qualifications for Candidates

Candidates must be British Subjects residents in British Columbia for at least one year, of good character, good physical condition and with woods experience.

They should have experience in fire fighting; possess the ability to organize work and handle men; and have knowledge of the Forest Act.

The examinations are partly written, partly oral, and are designed to test the candidates' ability along the above lines. All statements made by applicants as to experience, education and fitness are subject to verification by the examining board.

Preference is given to returned soldiers with the necessary qualifications.

The Examinations

The examinations will be held at the places and on the dates named below. Each intending candidate should apply to the District Forester of his district for application forms and for information regarding the hour of the examination, and the building in which it will be held. Application forms should, in each case, be filled out and mailed to the District Forester in time to reach him at least six days before the examination.

INCOME TAX RETURNS DUE THIS MONTH

Provincial Personal Property Tax Also Due Soon, Says Ferguson

MANY EXEMPTIONS FOR INCOME TAX

Assessments for Land Were All Made Out During January

That all income tax and personal property blanks, sent out from his office to every person taxable, should be returned to him, filled in, by March 31, was stated by E. Ferguson, provincial assessor, yesterday.

Mr. Ferguson's department has been sending out these forms for over a month, asking for a return of incomes for the year 1924. One type of form, for salaried persons, should be returned to the assessor not later than March 31, Mr. Ferguson said. Those for business firms are to be returned within three months of the end of their fiscal year. When the forms are turned in they are checked by the assessor, who sends out notices of the amount due the government to all persons liable to the tax.

When the notice of his tax has been sent to him, the taxpayer has the balance of the month in which the notice was posted, and two months thereafter, to pay the tax. After that time it becomes delinquent, and a penalty of 1 per cent per month was added. Severe penalties are exacted in the case of a refusal to make returns or for false returns. For a first offence, the person is liable to a fine not exceeding $500, and for a second or subsequent offence to a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1000.

No Tax Under Twelve Hundred

Coming to the question of exemptions, Mr. Ferguson said that single persons whose income was not $1200 a year were exempt, but were required to fill in their forms and return them to him.

The exemption for married men is $1500. Also, the provincial act allows an exemption of $200 for each dependent, these being children under 18 years of age, or over if suffering from mental or physical disabilities, and parents, brothers, sisters, stepfathers and stepmothers, when supported by the taxpayer.

There is also an exemption for income derived from companies or partnerships, where the company or partnership has already made a return. Income from provincial and municipal debentures, from agricultural operations, full or half pay of His Majesty's forces, all pensions and superannuation allowances out of the public monies of the Imperial, or Dominion or provincial governments are also exempted. There are also exemptions to public schools, hospitals, public libraries and religious and charitable institutions.

Income is taxable at the rate of 1 per cent for the first $2500 net income, 2 per cent on the next $1000, 3 per cent on the next $1000, and so on up to 12½ per cent. The net income is the gross income after deducting exemptions, $1500 for married men, $1200 for single persons, and $200 for each dependent, as well as insurance premiums actually paid and the amount of income tax paid to the Dominion government.

All Liable for Personal Property Tax

In discussing personal property tax, Mr. Ferguson said that under the term "personal property" would come such property as a tenant would remove from premises which he was vacating, including cattle, horses, furniture used in business, machinery, and any movables not attached to the buildings or the land.

House furniture and wearing apparel are exempt from this tax, to which everyone in the province was liable, Mr. Ferguson said.

The tax on personal property having been reduced last year, it is now one-half of 1 per cent, in place of 1 per cent, Mr. Ferguson said, and added that the government had been strongly urged to abolish it altogether as an unfair tax.

Assessments for Land Made

Assessments for land were sent out early in January. The tax on wild land is 5 per cent, and on real property (improved) 1 per cent. On fruit lands where the owner lives on and cultivates the land, it is one-half of 1 per cent.

The Nelson district assessor, who must look after the returns of around 5000 people, finds that an early return of these filled-in blanks lessens his work and does away with much unnecessary correspondence. His district extends from the height of land east of Christina lake to Yahk, and south to the boundary line, while on the north it is bounded by the Kootenay and Columbia rivers. It takes in the land to the west of the Lower Arrow lake, and includes Renata.

MACDONALD IS TRANSFERRED TO VICTORIA

District Forester Is Sorry to Leave Post; St. Clair Here This Week

F. A. MacDonald, district forester, has been transferred to forestry headquarters at Victoria, and will leave for the coast about the middle of April. His transfer is due to the reorganization of the forestry branch in the southern interior, with headquarters at Nelson, announced recently from Victoria.

"I have enjoyed every bit of my time here, and shall be sorry to go away," Mr. MacDonald said yesterday, in discussing the changes in his department.

Hope Also Leaving

He stated that L. Sawyer Hope, forester of the local branch, was also being transferred to another point, and would leave for Penticton at the end of the month.

R. C. St. Clair, assistant chief forester, who is to have charge of the newly organized subprovincial headquarters of the southern interior, with headquarters at Nelson, will arrive in the city toward the end of the week.

Mr. MacDonald said that the system to be used here had been used successfully in the Vancouver district for the last seven years, both for forest protection and timber demonstration.

The little town of Vise, near the border line between Belgium and Germany, the first scene of German operations in August, 1914, has just completed its restoration program. Vise was very badly scarred by fire, but its historic edifices have been rebuilt in the old style. Principal among these are a 16th century church and town hall, and a famous ancient convent school.

BONNINGTON PEOPLE COME FOR FUNERAL

BOY SCOUTS HAVE OBSERVATION TEST

Maintain High Average in Remembering Many Articles

The first of a series of observation tests for troop No. 2, St. Saviour's boy scouts, was held Saturday afternoon by Scouter Nelson Ball, before the window of a local merchant, who cooperated in the test and presented prizes to the boys showing the best observation powers.

The patrols were formed up in front of the window, on which blinds were down. At a signal the blinds were run up, and the boys allowed one minute and a half to see the goods in the window, with their price tickets, before the blinds were put down again.

Then the boys went back to the old parish hall on Silica street, where they made out lists of what they had seen.

The scouts maintained a high percentage for the test by recognizing, on an average, 16 out of the 24 articles in the window, but did not achieve as high an average on the prices.

Edwin Cartmel and Penrod Baskin tied for first place, both remembering 21 out of the 24 articles, while Bob Hawthorne came next with 19 out of 24. Prizes presented by the merchant whose window had been used were given to these three.

The scouts spent the rest of the afternoon in outdoor scouting games.
