DEDICATION UNITED CHURCH IS FULFILLED

THOUSANDS AT SERVICES FOR OPENING DAY

"Greatest Day in History Canada and World," Says Endicott

SIGNATURES AFFIXED TO BASIS OF UNION

Local Congregations Retain Former Names; Committee Discuss Control

TORONTO, June 10.—Seven hundred thousand strong, Methodists, Presbyterians and Congregationalists today marched into the United Church of Canada and demonstrated their unity in three sessions of devotion and address, each of them attended by between 7000 and 8000 persons.

"This has been the greatest day in the history of Toronto and of Canada, and, in some respects, of the Christian world," said Rev. Dr. James Endicott, secretary for foreign missions of the Methodist church, in addressing the gathering this afternoon. The speakers were Dr. Endicott, Rev. Dr. D. L. Ritchie, principal of the Congregational college of Montreal, and Rev. Dr. Clarence MacKinnon, ex-moderator of the Presbyterian church in Canada.

New Church Dedicated

The morning saw the new church dedicated and constituted, a ceremony which was completed in the afternoon when the 350 delegates to the first general council filed on to the platform and affixed their signatures to the basis of union, which the heads of the denominations already had signed. The chairman during the afternoon was Rev. Dr. G. C. Pidgeon, Presbyterian moderator, and it was agreed that until permanent officials are elected, the moderator, the Methodist general superintendent and the Congregational general chairman should preside over the sessions. Secretaries and clerks of the denominations also are to carry on in the same way. Tonight, a third huge crowd gathered to hear representatives of the overseas churches with which the uniting denominations have had affiliations.

Gavel and Pen Presented

At the afternoon session, Rev. Dr. R. P. Mackay, Presbyterian foreign mission secretary, presented to the chairman a gavel made of pieces of wood from the foreign mission fields, with a handle of Canadian maple. The basis of union was signed on a table presented to the church by the publications boards, and the delegates signed with a pen presented by Mrs. Carman, widow of Rev. Dr. Albert Carman, for that purpose.

Dr. Endicott aroused great enthusiasm in his address when he referred to the leaders of the Presbyterian unionists, mentioning by name Rev. Dr. Pidgeon and Rev. Dr. Gandier, principal of Knox college.

"In the bitterest combat the church in Canada ever has known," he said, "the leaders stood together and pressed forward."

"That applause," he added a moment later, "should go across Canada."

Carry On in Unity

Dr. Endicott said he believed the United church could not do better than follow the principles which had brought about the union. There was the principle of Christian aspiration of strong purpose, of vision and unity. If unity were the great principle to bring them together, it also was the principle which would enable them to live in harmony. There were tremendous difficulties in denominationalism, and whatever might have been necessary in the past, man now needed a peculiar type of mind if he prayed for divisions. The call for unity transcended not merely denominationalism but nationalism. If it were right for Knox to organize his church for the sake of Scotland, it could not be wrong for them today to organize the United church for the sake of Canada, but at the same time he wished to point out the danger of overemphasis in nationalism.

Have Transcended the Creeds

"Today we have transcended the creeds," continued Dr. Endicott. "However good the old Westminster confession might have been, for instance, it was better today in the basis of union than ever before. They had not taken out a single thing which ought to be in. If they had to choose between the past and the future they always would choose the future. Their fathers were not a bit more important than their children.

"We have made a great beginning, but no more," concluded the speaker. "Let us see that the principles which brought us together shall keep us together and make this movement triumphant to the ends of the earth."

Membership Large One

Figures which will be presented to the general council give an approximate membership for the United church of 692,838, made up of 12,220

SALMON 'GURGLES' REVEALS BOTTLE

Clever Trick to Get Liquor Over Line Discovered; Was "Prewar" Scotch

BUFFALO, June 10.—The biblical characters of Jonah and the whale were impersonated today by a bottle of "pre-war" Scotch and a 23-pound salmon, respectively. The salmon was one of a shipment from New Brunswick and destined for Niagara Falls, N.Y., but customs officials put the finish to the "show" when they discerned that the fish betrayed a "gurgle." Investigation of the inside workings of the salmon revealed the bottle of liquor and the officials are now endeavoring to locate the New Brunswick shipper.

SONS OUTLINE POLICY MAKE CANADA NATION

Parliament Sovereign Rights; National Banks, Consular Service

KAMLOOPS, June 10.—Making public a national policy, the Native Sons of Canada, in convention here today issued a manifesto stating in part:

"It is imperative that the parliament of Canada shall have sovereign rights. Our Dominion must acquire the constitutional status of a nation, enjoying absolute equity with any other part of the British commonwealth. The rights hereby demanded should not rest on sentiment, nor assurances of statesmen, but should be enacted as law by proper parliaments. Generous safeguards and covenants protecting the vested rights of provinces, and civil and religious liberties should be preserved."

National Bank

The organization's aims set forth include the establishment of a national bank which alone would issue notes, and appointment of Canadian consular agents and trade commissioners.

"Canada should have its own ambassadors and consular service in all leading countries," states the manifesto.

Other heads deal with marketing transportation economy and taxation, immigration and the necessity of repatriating Canadians.

Food Supply Not Sufficient for Population Wants; Foreigners Leave

CANTON, June 10.—Fighting between Yunnanese and Cantonese troops for the possession of this city, which started Saturday afternoon and has been in progress night and day since, showed no signs of slackening this afternoon. Fear is now expressed that the food supply will not be sufficient for the wants of the population.

'CONTINUING' IS DROPPED BY THE PRESBYTERIANS

Presbyterian Church in Canada Is Title; Congress Concludes

WILKIE, DECLARES MISSIONARIES STICK

Mission Discussion Lengthy; Property Commission Appointed Tomorrow

TORONTO, June 10.—The presassembly congress of the continuing Presbyterians of Canada concluded tonight with two large meetings in New St. Andrews and Cooke's churches. Tomorrow morning the assembly starts. The continuing Presbyterians today dropped the word "continuing" and referred to themselves as the Presbyterian Church In Canada. They will refer also to their assembly starting tomorrow as the adjourned session of the Presbyterian general assembly as reconstituted by the continuing commissioners at 1 o'clock this morning when the assembly as previously constituted, passed out of existence. The meetings of the assembly will last until Saturday noon. The women's missionary society of the Presbyterian church will also meet during the next three days at Knox church.

Mission Work Talked

Tonight's sessions of the congress were devoted to the missionary enterprises of the Presbyterian church. There was also a challenge made of the statement of the unionists that 95 per cent of the foreign missionaries were entering freely into the United church. Rev. Dr. Wilkie, a missionary in China, who has announced himself as remaining Presbyterian, and who is at the congress, reported tonight that 44 foreign missionaries had declared their intention of remaining Presbyterian. Dr. Wilkie said many more missionaries would like to remain Presbyterian but had been informed that they could work along as they had been doing, but that if they went into the Presbyterian church they would be cut off at the end of June without remuneration or work. This explanation threatened for a time to raise a storm of protest particularly after Dr. Wilkie had stated that he had received a letter that he should not ask the foreign mission board for leave of absence when he had decided to remain with the Presbyterian church.

The indignation dwindled however, when Rev. Dr. J. Goforth, a missionary from Honan, who is also staying Presbyterian, stated that his treatment from the mission board had been courteous.

Would Recover in Ten Years

The missionary side was dealt with both from the home standpoint and the foreign, in the addresses in both churches. Rev. Dr. Robert Johnston, of Calgary, said that Presbyterianism was essentially a great instrument for missionary endeavor. Despite the great work of the missionaries, the heathen peoples of the world increased so rapidly that there were more who did not know God today than when the modern missionary movement began. Dr. Johnston declared that within 10 years the Presbyterian church in Canada would have recovered all that it had lost, and stand with the vanguard of Canada's mightiest forces for good.

"Possible?" he asked. "What is not possible with those who march with eternal purpose?" He warned the Presbyterians that they were on the mountain top during the congress, but they would be in the valleys, back in their own churches, and would need all the faith that was in them.

Commission Appointed Soon

Reports on the strength of continuing Presbyterians were received at the afternoon session. It was announced that a telegram had been received from the government at Ottawa that the federal commission for the division of the general property of the Presbyterian church would be appointed on June 12 instead of nine months hence as provided in the Church Union act. The government made the change by order-in-council at the request of the Presbyterians.

Rev. A. J. McGillivray, of Guelph, stated that 400 ministers in Canada had signified their intention of remaining with the Presbyterian church.

FISHERMAN ON NIAGARA RIVER IS INFORMER

United States Customs Men Tighten Up on Rum Running

BUFFALO, N.Y., June 10.—Recent statements by federal officials here that a "lenient attitude" on the part of Canadian customs men toward liquor smuggling prompted the United States to increase its guard along the Niagara frontier have aroused intense interest here in the steps which are being taken to prevent or decrease smuggling activities.

Newspapermen who have inspected the arrangements have found a scene almost bordering on guerilla warfare, with United States customs men, supported by coast guardsmen aboard their small submarine chasers, opposing an insignificant, but wily group of rum runners, skilled in navigation and familiar with every current of the Niagara river.

Officers on Island

The United States officers are stationed for the most part on a large island in the river—Grand Island—a short distance north of this city, where the narrowness of the river on each side and the sparsely settled district makes conditions quite to the liking of the rum runners.

At a vantage point in Grand Island, one of the men continually keeps watch on the creek mouth, using spy glasses. Along the banks of the creek, somewhere, there has loitered for several days a mysterious "fisherman" ostensibly intent on his pleasure, but whose real role is unknown to bootleggers and customs men alike to be that of "informer" for the United States coast guardsmen.

TORIES WILL ASK TEN NEW CRUISERS

Such Is Report by Liberal Naval Member; Will Lay Down Five

LONDON, June 10.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—The Daily News today prints an article by Lieut.-Commander J. M. Kenworthy, Liberal M.P., Central Hull, asserting that the die-hard Tories will demand that 10 new 100,000 ton-cruisers shall be built and that the Baldwin government probably will decide to lay down five such cruisers at a cost of £3,000,000 each.

The newspaper says the admiralty has become one of the most wasteful departments of the government and it still exercises such mysterious authority over the administration that it is able to get its own way with iniquitous ease in defiance of public necessities.

NEWS OF NOTE IS MISLEADING; CHAMBERLAIN

Accounts Published Alleged to Be One-Sided and Misleading

TEXT KNOWN IN DAY OR TWO

Pact Mutual in Operation Among Four Powers Is Rumor

GENEVA, June 10.—European security talk took a sensational angle today when Rt. Hon. Austen Chamberlain, British secretary for foreign affairs, made a diplomatic but stinging attack on the publication of misleading statements about the proposed allied note to Germany. It appears that M. Briand, French foreign minister, and Mr. Chamberlain agreed not to divulge the contents of the note until it was delivered to Germany. However, some accounts of its contents, alleged to be one-sided and misleading, have appeared in print in some countries.

Mr. Chamberlain's communique insisted that no advantage was to be gained in commenting on the communication before its delivery and announced that the text would be published in a day or two.

Pact Is Mutual

While the British have refused details, it is understood they object to articles failing to point out that the proposed pact of security would be mutual as to operation among all four powers, and to those neglecting to emphasize the importance of the role of arbitration in the peace arrangements which will be proposed by Germany.

Trouble Over Lithuania

The council of the league held a stormy session, which was eventually adjourned hurriedly by Count de Leon, the president. The trouble arose over the alleged confiscation by Lithuania of the lands of foreign residents. M. Unden, the Swedish foreign minister, questioned the veracity of the Lithuania representative's statements concerning the treatment of minorities.

This question was postponed until tomorrow, but the council later drew up a definite program for the protection of minorities in Europe. The council declared that it was satisfied with the way Greece was treating the Bulgarian minorities.

It was decided that any investigation of German armaments could be voted by a majority.

DOMINIONS KEPT INFORMED OF PACT

Progress of Negotiations Passed on; Approval Sought Before Agreement

LONDON, June 10.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—Following reports of criticism in the dominions in connection with the proposed security pact, it is understood here that the dominions have been kept fully informed as to the progress of the negotiations, and undoubtedly their approval and support will be sought before an agreement is reached. At present, however, there is no agreement which can be submitted to them. All that has been done so far is to indicate the responsibility which Great Britain is prepared to undertake.

LONDON, June 10.—Foreign police in Shanghai fired into crowds of students during the first outbreak of the present disturbances "at a moment when the mob was forcing entrance into the police station and shouting, 'Kill the foreigners,'" Ronald McNeill, undersecretary for foreign affairs, informed the house yesterday.

Mr. McNeill declared law and order must be preserved in China, and that British officials on the spot would receive all the support that might be necessary.

Meanwhile, he said, the British government wished to express its deep regret that lives should have been lost as a result of misguided agitation.

REBELS POUND ON FRONT OF SIXTY MILES

Moorish Offensive in Direction Ouezzan; Riffians Cross Outposts

PAINLEVE ARRIVES FOR CONFERENCE

Four Hundred Rebels Are Killed; Airplanes Fire Riffian Point

FEZ, June 10. — Abd-el-krim, the rebel chieftain, apparently desires to provide M. Painleve, the French premier, with an adequate reception on his arrival in the fighting zone in Morocco. The official communication issued by the French this evening, says Adb-el-krim is now attacking the French along a sixty-mile front. It adds that the enemy pressure "now extends to the extreme eastern part of our front."

While the communication announces that the attacks of the tribesmen have been repulsed, it admits that "several small posts had to be abandoned."

Continuing, the communication says that other enemy elements crossed the Ouergha river east of Kela Des Sless, and that another Moorish offensive was started in the direction of Ouezzan, in "which very important enemy contingents were engaged."

Riffians and Yebelas succeeded in crossing between French outposts into French territory. Many of them were disguised as harvesters.

Painleve Arrives in Plahe

RABAT, Morocco, June 10.—After an all day air flight, Premier Painleve, of France, reached Rabat at 5:40 this afternoon. He ascended at Toulouz at 6 o'clock in the morning, and made stops at Barcelona, Alicante, Malaga and Tangier.

After a dinner given in M. Painleve's honor tonight, the resident general and the premier conferred over the general situation in the French protectorate.

EL ARAISH, Spanish Morocco, June 10.—Tribesmen who have been considered friendly to France, are joining the rebels and attacking French posts. About 1000 Riffian warriors have been concentrated in the Beni Zerual country. The French forces occupying the Bibane plateau are said to have repulsed new enemy attacks. Artillery and airplanes were used. Hand to hand fighting developed on the left flank of the position.

Planes Fire Village

TETUAN, June 10.—It is reported here that Abd-el-krim, leader of the rebel tribesmen, has ordered a general mobilization of the men within his territory, but that his call to arms is not meeting with the approval of some of the tribes, which have become dismayed over the huge losses sustained by the rebels in recent fighting.

French airplanes have dropped bombs on a Riffian concentration at Minguela and set the village on fire.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

SUMMER COLD PREVENTION

One Mother Says:

Summer colds are extremely dangerous to babies. Very bad colds may be caught from a slight cold contracted by the mother. A mother may, however, nurse the baby safely if she makes a gauze, mask of four to six thicknesses to cover her nose and mouth. The mask should be boiled every day and should be worn when preparing baby's food if he is not being nursed. The hands, of course, should be thoroughly scrubbed before touching baby or anything that will come in contact with him.

Congregationalists, 414,047 Methodists and 266,111 Presbyterians. These are comprised in 174 Congregational churches, 4797 Methodist and 383 Presbyterian churches. Ministers entering the new church are given as 3819, being 85 Congregationalists, 2065 Methodists and 1669 Presbyterians. Adding 648 missionaries, there is a total ministerial force of 4467. The total Presbyterian membership was given as 374,951, of whom 108,840 had voted against union.

Will Plan Method of Control

The general council, which meets tomorrow for a business session, in the Metropolitan church, will be asked to appoint a special committee to recommend a method by which the various departments shall be carried on. These departments include home and foreign missions, womens' missionary societies, social service, Sunday school work and young people's societies, education and colleges, finance and publications. A recommendation also will be made that a commission be appointed to consider the permanent organization of the United church and its general council, their boards and committees to report at the first general council or at the second council, two years hence.

Will Retain Former Names

Local congregations of the uniting denominations may retain their local names, such as Metropolitan Methodist church, Bloor Street Presbyterian and Bond Street Congregational, in the opinion of the legal committee, of which N. W. Rowell, K.C., is chairman, which will go to the council.

"Your committee," says the report, "is of the opinion that local churches have the right to retain their existing names if they desire to do so. Your committee expresses no opinion on the question of policy involved in the continued use of such local names."

CANADIAN NATIONAL EARNINGS DECREASE

MONTREAL, June 10.—The gross earnings of the Canadian National railways for the week ending June 7, 1925, were $4,029,141, being a decrease of $273,062 over the corresponding week of 1924.

HEART WAS WEAK NERVES ALL GONE

Mrs. J. H. Hallenbeck, 117½ Welland Avenue, St. Catharines, Ont. writes:—"I was in a gas explosion; it left me with a weak heart, and my nerves were all gone. I suffered everything; couldn't sleep, or endure any excitement, and when left alone I felt as if I could scream. I took dizzy spells, often falling and bruising myself. My mother read about your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and bought me a box, but having taken so many different kinds of medicine it just seemed that I did not have any confidence in any of them. I took one box of H. & N. Pills, and felt so much better I continued with them until I had used five boxes, and after I had taken them I did not need any more. I cannot praise or recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills too highly after all they have done for me."

SCHOOL BOARD ADDS HUNDRED TO SCHEDULE

Decide to Grant the High School Teachers Higher Maximum Salary

At its meting last night, the school board amended its resolution setting the maximum for high school teachers' salaries from a maximum of $2200 for women and $2400 for men to $2300 a year for women and $2500 a year for men, and also told the teachers present that it would see that any new schedule adopted should not discriminate against teachers already on the staff. The teachers had already met the board on the subject last week.

Thought Fair Schedule

When the discussion on salaries opened, Trustee Ross Fleming said that the board felt it had made up a fair schedule. He had gone over the 1924 school reports and found that Nelson high school led for the interior in the salaries for assistant teachers. He felt the board must consider the ratepayers, whom it represented, in any question of salaries.

Trustee StDenis agreed with Trustee Fleming that the ratepayers must be considered. Last year, he said, 55.6 per cent of the taxes had gone to the schools in Nelson.

"But that is not 55.6 per cent of the revenue. Think of the income from the public utilities here," said R. Smillie, a high school teacher present.

Staff Doing Good Work

Trustee StDenis emphasized the fact that the board considered the present staff were doing splendid work, but said that it was an impossibility to raise the salaries under the present circumstances.

L. V. Rogers, principal of the high school, said that the raising of the money was of no concern to the teachers. If Nelson was getting the same standard of teaching as New Westminster, Vancouver or Victoria, it should be prepared to pay for it, or do without a high school.

The board members agreed that Nelson wanted an efficient school, but said it must be an efficient as possible without burdening the ratepayers.

Mr. Rogers stated that it was evidently a question of efficiency, and that each individual teacher would have to decide whether he or she would stay next year.

Trustee Fleming said an alternative plan for the board would be to charge the pupils higher fees, to make up the salaries the teachers wanted.

A. E. Allison spoke on behalf of two lady teachers who had come to the school at a certain salary two years ago, and had not received raises. Under the new board schedule, he said, they would have to wait several years before they could hope for a $100 raise, though another teacher on the staff, coming to the school at the same time, had already had a $100 raise.

No Discrimination

Chairman John Notman said he was sure the board had no wish to discriminate against any teacher, and that he could promise the board would see any trouble of the sort straightened out.

Just how did Trustee Fleming know what the ratepayers thought about the increase in the teachers' salaries, asked Mr. Rogers. In sounding public opinion one got what one wanted, he thought, for he himself had talked to a number of people since last week's meeting who thought Nelson should pay for the service it was getting, and who were quite willing to pay their share.

Mr. Smillie pointed out that a number of families lived in Nelson because it was conceded the education facilities were good here. "If you lower the efficiency of the schools, you lose such people," he said.

"Most of those people are not permanent residents, and pay very little into the city," Trustee Fleming said.

It was decided that the board would write to the teachers enclosing the amended resolution, on which the teachers would take action.

CHURCH SHOULD BE TRUE; HOLD TO TRADITIONS

So States Rev. Perkins, Sacrist of Westminster Abbey at Synod Evensong

At the synod evensong, held in St. Saviour's Anglican church last night, Rev. Jocelyn Perkins, M.A., minor canon and sacrist of Westminster Abbey and secretary of the British Columbia and Yukon Church Aid society was the speaker. The church was packed for the occasion, and in an impressive talk the speaker stated that the Church of England must hold fast to the traditions and inclusiveness which had made her what she is today.

Taking as his text: "By one spirit all members were baptized into one body, and the body is not all one member. God has set every body as has pleased Him," the speaker said that the Anglo-Saxon race differed from the majority of other people of Europe, and that it was a strong and remarkable amalgam in which a number of powerful strands of nationalities had been woven and interwoven.

All Concentrated

The Jute, the Saxon, the Anglo, the Dane and Norman had each of them together with others, made their own distinct contribution to the common stock. During recent years the process had been repeated upon a statewide theater, for the great dominion of the British crown had forged into the front rank, and each of them had come already to display a strongly marked individuality of its own, making for the further enrichment of the original parent of the stock.

Thus the old country had come to be made up of a number of groups of people which had learned the art of living together in peace.

These characteristics were strongly marked in the sphere religion. The sense of brotherhood between the Anglican church and the non-confirmed body had been strengthened not a little during recent years.

But in the church, diver parties, intendancies, had existed for long generations. At times the strain had been conceivable, but these parties had remained firmly united on fundamentals, and was thus an almost inexplicable puzzle. It had come into being in the existence side by side in this same body of parties animated by the strongest convictions which to many a Roman and Eastern Christians were with sure amazement.

Church's Unlimited

English churches were unlimited. Toleration, liberty and inclusiveness had been so many watchwords to the best minds in the Anglican union. Men who differed so widely as the outlook as Dean Stanley, Mr. Donstron, Frederick Dennison Morice and Mr. Maconochie were all united in upholding this point of view. The great majority of people in the Church of England were devoted to these foundation principles of toleration and inclusiveness and principles which gave the character and the flavor to the whole cooperate life of the Church of England.

The Church of England had the great opportunity presented to her for the additional breadth of her sympathies, and enabled her to touch the life of many other bodies of Christians and to work hand in hand with them for the establishment of peace. She was saved on the one hand by the disintegrating character of much of the prevailing protestantism, and on the other from the blindness of Rome which had once silenced so many of her ablest scholars.

Task on Church

A task had been laid upon the historic Church of England which could only be accomplished by her. Neither Rome, nor Constantinople, nor Geneva could carry it out. The great essential was that she should be true throughout herself. While making this appeal to the Catholic faith, she must hold fast to the great traditions of liberty and inclusiveness which had made her what she is today.

'ROAD TO LOVE'

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XCIV.

"Solved—clear as day. This telegram makes it perfectly plain." Dunlap smoothed out the crumpled paper with his soft, flat palm.

The men pushed about the table, waited in a stillness so tight it drew like a cord. The lawyer nodded slowly, his eyes on the message, saying in a low reluctant whisper; "We have to sift this matter. We must. The good of all our people depends on it. We have to sift it no matter who it hurts. You understand, Mr. Brooks? Nothing personal in this—nothing at all."

Denny felt the cord of silence twisting about his neck, pressing against his mouth. He leaned down to Dunlap, intending to shout, but his voice came in a harsh gasp; "Sift it Dunlap, and be quick about it! Sift it!"

"You're willing to assist this investigation, Mr. Brooks? Naturally as the engineer in charge you can materially aid." The pale blue eyes opened frankly. Denny ignored them, turned to Melrose.

"That question is an insult to me, Melrose. And it shows prejudice. Why should I for one moment be unwilling to aid? What have I to fear by 10,000 investigations? This work of yours is my work. No one here feels more bitterly than I these mishaps. No one wishes more than I to find the cause.

"But I don't propose to stand here and be gibbeted by James Dunlap. I don't propose to take his insinuations? You made a charge against me today, Melrose! You accused me of trafficking with your rivals, the Consolidated. If I'm under suspicion I want to know it. If you're here to try me and not make an investigation, say so!"

Mutters grew to a rumble. Melrose stood up, swept out his great, powerful arm, answered Denny coldly: "This board wants an accounting from you, Mr. Brooks. Our attorney is here to conduct the investigation. If you don't wish to face it you're free to leave."

Denny thrust his hands in his pockets. They were shaking. Every pulse shook hotly. He knew that he was trapped. If he went, it would be cowardice; if he stayed they would do as they had done in the morning. They would push him to the wall, jam the thing on him. They had come to do this.

"If you don't wish to answer the questions, Mr. Brooks, you're free to go."

"I stay."

"A misunderstanding." Dunlap was saying: "I meant no offence by the question, Mr. Brooks. Mere form to ask you if you were willing. Naturally we want to go into the history of these accidents. Naturally that's the first thing to do. You had no trouble at all until the cement was watered, I understand. The work was going fine up to that moment.

"At that time you suspected a Mexican, Pedro Francita, whom you had fired?"

Denny nodded.

"I see. The man was dismissed, made a special plea to be reinstated, and when refused went away in a rage. A day or two later 5000 sacks of cement were ruined. You were certain then you had seen Francita escaping from the shed?"

"I believed Francita was the criminal then, but when the dam was blown—"

"Just a moment; we're coming to that. You believed Francita the criminal. You believed he stirred up discontent with the Mexican laborers. This trouble became acute, I believe, and you took the matter in hand. You challenged the men in the mess hall, did you not?"

A sudden boyish fury against Dunlap and his curling whispers; against the avid stillness of the forms thronged about the table lashed him. "Yes," he fired hotly, "and on that occasion I called the Mexicans greasers and if you're trying to trace the whole trouble to that—"

Dunlap stood up, threw aside his whisper, the pale eyes focused sharply. "I'm not trying to trace the trouble to any cause, Mr. Brooks But merely to find the cause, whatever or whoever it may be. You agreed to assist this investigation. This is a grave—a tragic matter—a matter of millions to our people. We've sustained a loss nearing $200,000. The farmers have lost heart. Two of their sons are killed. They want to know why. I'm trying to find out why."

The men pressed about him, their eyes fired with challenge. The big-boned fellow who had first disturbed the meeting shouted: "Yes—that's the stuff! Why! We want to know why!"

Dunlap waved his short, plump hand. "Up to the present time we have no cause. Why, at the rate these things are happening the dam may be blown every week, cables snapped, men killed, and we have no solution for the horrible mystery. A fiend?

"Mr. Brooks says a fiend climbed the tower and poured nitric acid on the cable. This is his theory. But why is there a fiend? What produced the fiend for us?"

Dunlap took up the crumpled yellow paper and waved it: "Here's the answer. It confirms the engineer's own solution: There is a fiend and the fiend poured nitric acid on the cable. The fiend planted dynamite at the dam. Here are your fiends, Pedro Francita and Juan Hernandez."

Denny stood there with his hands pressed on the table, tongues of flame leaping at his throat, licking his eyes, twining in a raging heat from his heart up to his head. He wanted to speak, to say quietly: "Can this be true? Is it possible?" He knew the farmers were staring at him; waiting with a hostile expectance for his answer. He could drag no word from his tongue. Finally he said: "I don't believe it! I don't believe they sent the telegram. There wasn't enough provocation for all this—"

Dunlap smiled, folded the sheet. "Is it just barely possible that you don't wish to believe it, Mr. Brooks? Not wilfully, understand me, but you naturally hesitate to believe the trouble started with that speech?

"You think the provocation insufficient? You think the mere fact of dismissing the men and calling them greasers not enough to bring such results?

"But the results are here. After the speech Hernandez and 10 of his followers left. They left making threats. Hernandez is a cruel and treacherous enemy. He had this reputation. You had heard these men were dangerous. It was generally known. This irrigation district has learned in a tragic experience the truth of their reputation. The coffer dam was blown. Now this! The telegram puts the blame where it belongs."

Denny felt the tongues of fire reaching into his mouth. He wanted something to still the heavy thunder in his ears.

The air grew thick, hot. Through its oppressive heaviness, Dunlap's voice hissed "The facts are conclusive. Mr. Brooks made a speech inflaming racial passions and antagonisms. I am forced to the unpleasant necessity of stating as I did when the dam was blown—and when my advice was ignored—I am forced to state that an unfortunate handling of the labor situation has produced a fiend for us. This fiend will operate as long as the personal enemy remains on the job. We may expect more tragedies; more of our sons killed; more hundreds of thousands of dollars thrown away—

"Gentlemen, the choice is clear. Do you want your engineer or do you want your project?"

The oppressive heaviness was suddenly gashed with a shrill, furious "The project! That's it! That's what we want."

Still Denny leaned his weight on his hands. An anchor struck into his heart and dragged it like an iron weight to the ground. They wanted him! They wanted the job from him! Wanted him to give up. They were demanding it. They were crowding about him their eyes darting belligently. His job.

He flung out his arms — pushed them back, tore the collar from his neck. He found himself shouting. "You have a contract with me. I offered once before when your lawyer tried to discredit me, to surrender it."

Cries: "Surrender it now! We've had enough! Give it up!"

The youth and the fire in him flashed to the goad. "I don't surrender it! I'll not surrender it! This work is my work. It's done as well as any one can do it. I deny from start to finish the lies James Dunlap has told. I'll finish it without my pay—"

Melrose stood up, saying with a sharp violence, "It's you, Mr. Brooks. or the project. You give up the contract or we give up the work."

In that moment the warmth went out of his veins. His voice, as though it were the voice of a cold stranger, answered. "Take your contract. I can do nothing with all of you against me."

The room broke into a ghostly shout, a clapping of hands, chairs kicked aside, men slapping each other on the back, filing from the room.

Denny stood there, shaking, speechless, pressing his open hands on the rough pine table. Suddenly he went up to Melrose and pounded his fist on the board. "What about the Consolidated? If they've done these things, how did my speech do them?"

"Tell me first, Mr. Brooks, why our engineer should have trafficked with our rivals? If any compromise was to be considered it should have come through our attorney."

"They sent for me. I knew nothing until I arrived. I was against it from the start. Ask Dunlap. He came for a week urging me to recommend acceptance. Dunlap!" He looked about the room. The lawyer had filed out with the men.

"Strange," Melrose answered, "He should send this vigorous argument against it. Strange."

With a stab, Denny remembered the fiery letter he had written and then told Joan to destroy. He leaned down close to the big giant's rugged face. He knew his chin was shaking and there was a terrible stinging in his eyes. He spoke almost with a plea—almost with a sob.

"You're the biggest fellow here, Melrose. You've treated me damnably. Dunlap wrote that letter long after you had yourselves rejected the proposal. I was against it. You rfused'f etaoin shrdlu think I'm the traitor. But I'll get your man and let you have him."

Melrose sat grim, silent. Then he nodded, "Yes."

Denny stood there facing him. Presently he said, with his lips twitching: "It was my job."

FOR GOD'S SAKE STOP YOUR CAR, YELLED LARSON

Five Witnesses Testify That Wilkinson's Car Struck Larson's

ROUNDED CORNER AT HIGH SPEED

Within Two Feet of Edge of Road; Adjourn for More Evidence

Five witnesses for the defence were heard in county court yesterday before Judge J. A. Forin in the suit brought by Thomas Wilkinson for $710 damages against L. K. Larson following a collision between his car and that of Mr. Larson's on Front setree, in front of the hospital on June 16, 1924, and Mr. Larson's counter suit against Mr. Wilkinson for $415 as damages done to his car on that occasion.

Witnesses called were W. J. E. Biker who passed at the time of the accident; L. K. Larson, defendant; Miss N. Conley, head nurse at the Kootenay Lake General hospital, who was driving with Mr. Larson when the cars collided; George Lester, an employee of the hospital, who, on hearing the crash, immediately appeared on the scene; and Andrew Kraft, who on that date was motor mechanic at the Nelson Transfer, to which Mr. Larson's car was towed immediately after the collision and cashed in as a payment on a new car. The wrecked car, it was stated, was bought and repaired by Mr. Kraft, and he was called to state the damage done.

Biker Says Brakes Not Applied

The defence openid by calling W. J. E. Biker, who said that on his way down to the ferry on that date he passed both cars on the side of the road, and thinking there might have been an accident, he came to a stop. By the time he arrived, George Lester was also there. He stated Mr. Wilkinson's car was about 15 feet away from that of Mr. Larson, and Mr. Larson's car was only about five or six feet on the travel road. Judging from the marks on the street, there was no signs of brakes applied by Mr. Wilkinson. Both cars were headed toward Fairview, and he declared Mr. Wilkinson's car must have struck from a drive on point.

Mr. Biker had drawn a sketch of the accident just as he had seen it, and this he produced in court. He also described the damages done to Larson's car.

Larson Traveling Slowly

Mr. Larson, the defendant, said he was coming down the hospital road on the east side, heading toward Fairview, with Miss N. Conley of the hospital. He was traveling at the rate of about five miles an hour, and in low gear, and could see no one coming from town, unless he turned almost completely around. The road to Fairview was clear, there being neither person or car in sight. He had hardly got the front wheels on the driveway when he was struck. While his car was being pushed along, he reached out and tapped on the windshield of Mr. Wilkinson's car, at the same time calling:

"For God's sake, stop your car."

Mr. Larson's car had been pushed 10 or 12 feet before they came to a complete stop. Mr. Larson immediately got out of his car, and with the aid of George Lester, pushed Mr. Wilkinson's car back 10 or 12 feet. At the same time, he said, he called attention to the fact that Mr. Wilkinson's brakes had not been locked.

The defendant said Mr. Wilkinson hurriedly opened the door of his sedan and pulled back the emergency brake.

Mr. Larson stated the left front wheel of his car had been completely torn off, and gave particulars of other damage done. The car was a Chevrolet tourning special, which he had purchased in 1922.

She Heard Larson Shout

Miss N. Conley testified she was with Mr. Larson, and they were going to drive out toward Fairview. She had been looking along the road toward Fairview, and could not see a person or car in sight. They were just about to approach the driveway when they were struck by the car driven by Mr. Wilkinson. She was given a jolt forward, and as she was getting back on to the seat she heard Mr. Larson shout to Mr. Wilkinson to stop his car. She got out of the car just after Mr. Larson did.

After Mr. Larson with the aid of Mr. Lester had pushed back Mr. Wilkinson's car, Miss Conley testified, she heard Mr. Larson state the plaintiff had not applied his brakes. The only damage she had noticed was That the front wheel was broken and torn from the car.

Lester Observed Dangerous Speed

George Lester, the next witness, said he was just coming out of the boiler room with his wife when he passed Mr. Larson and Miss Conley in the car going down the hospital road, and had gone to the top of the hill when he noticel a car coming from town and going around the corner at a high rate of speed. He told the court that going around the hospital corner at 25 miles an hour was too fast for that curve.

A moment after seeing the car come around the corner, he heard a crash, and being at a point to overlook the scene, he at once saw that Mr. Larson's car had been struck by the car he had just seen go around the corner.

He left, his wife there, and hurriedly walked down to where the cars had collided. When he arrived both cars were facing Fairview, and it looked as if they had hit at a drive angle. Mr. Wilkinson's right front wheel had hit Mr. Larson's left front wheel, and taken it completely off. The front part of the car was lying on the ground, and the rim and tire of Mr. Larson's left front wheel were inserted in Mr. Wilkinson's right front wheel, a few spokes remaining on the car. He also noticed that the left fender was badly bent, and that the glass on the left front light had been broken.

He helped Mr. Larson to move Mr. Wilkinson's car back a distance which he judged was about 15 feet.

Mr. Lester testified he also heard Mr. Larson comment that Mr. Wilkinson had not applied his brakes. After the accident he had studied the marks, and noted that Mr. Wilkinson had been about two feet away from the edge of the road.

The first witness in the afternoon was Andrew Kraft of the Nelson Transfer company, who testified as to the repairs he had done on the Larson car. He summarized the damage done as a broken frace, broken wheel, bent radiator cones, a blow on the back of the front left wheel beinding the engine hanger, front axle bent in a forward condition, light dented and glass broken, left apron bent, and a hole torn in the tire off the broken wheel. The tear was caused from the bumper of Mr. Wilkinson's car. From the bend in the frame he deduced that Mr. Larson's car had been struck from a side angle.

Thomas Wilkinson, the plaintiff, returned to the stand in rebuttal, was the next witness called and produced a sketch which he had made of the accident.

The court was adjourned to await further evidence. One necessity is to find out if the road coming from the hospital is private property. Another is to look over details in an accident at the ferry some time ago in which Mr. Wilkinson was connected.

E. P. Dawson is appearing for the plaintiff, and James O'Shea, K.C., for the defendant.

SYNOD MEMBERS RAISE THOUSAND IN TEN MINUTES

Sum Will Be Matched by English Society for Bishropic Fund

SECRETARIES AND TREASURER CHANGE

Larmonth Named Rural Dean; Crawford Lay Secretary

The oversubscription of $1000 in 10 or 15 minutes, after Rev. Jocelyn Perkins, secretary of the British Columbia and Yukon Church Aid society, had announced that for every $1000 up to $5000 contributed to the bishopric fund by the diocese of Kootenay, his society would give a matching $1000, was one of the features of yesterday's session of the synod of the diocese of Kootenay.

Rev. N. D. B. Larmonth, rector of the Church of the Redeemer, Fairview, was appointed rural dean of Nelson by Rt. Rev. A. J. Doull, D.D., bishop of Kootenay. The resignation of George Johnstone, for many years treasurer for the diocese, was accepted with regret, clerical and lay secretaries were elected, and various reports were considered.

Asks Kootenay to Help Itself

Mr. Perkins said the major portion of the bishopric endowment fund, interest on which paid the salaries of bishops, had been raised in England for the work in Canada, very willingly indeed. But he was going to put things bluntly and say it was time the diocese helped itself. He had been shocked to learn some years ago that the bishop of Kootenay's salary had dropped from $3600 to $3000.

"Suppose your bishop were to va*cate the see, do you think you will* get another bishop for $3000 a year?" he asked.

The missionary society of the church in Canada had decided not to give official recognition to any new diocese unless $4500 could be counted on for the bishop's salary, he said.

While the inadequate stipend of the bishop of Kootenay had been supplemented from England, there was no guarantee that the salary of any future bishop would be so supplemented. He spoke of the great liking felt in England for the bishop, and said the bishop of London never lost an opportunity in public or private to speak favorably of Bishop Doull. (Applause.)

When Mr. Perkins spoke of $1000 lying waiting in the bank until the diocese could match it with another $1000, this to be used to supplement the bishopric endowment fund, O. StP. Aitkens of Kelowna began subscriptions for the $1000 with $50, and within a quarter of an hour the amount was oversubscribed.

The bishop thanked the synod very warmly for the contribution, and Mr. Graham moved a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker for the generous aid of his society.

Mr. Perkins also spoke briefly on the building loan fund, and the fund for the buying of motors and launches, kept up by his society.

DOES EVERY MEAL CAUSE YOU DISTRESS?

If It Does You Should Take Burdock Blood Bitters

Mr. M. P. Eldridge, Beaver Harbor, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with my stomach for some time, and everything I ate seemed to distress me. I tried many different medicines, but without any results. Finally I was advised to try B.B.B., and after having taken several bottles I was completely relieved of my trouble. I can now eat anything I wish, thanks to B.B.B."

Burdock Blood Bitters puts the stomach into perfect shape by promoting proper digestion; and during the past 46 years it has been on the market has made a reputation, second to none, for relieving all stomach troubles.

The Coolnesses of Mr. Manson

The injection of dreams, and seventh-daughter-of-a-seventh-daughter hocus-pocus into the Janet Smith case, through the medium of Barbara Orford's revelations, can hardly be expected to assist greatly the cause of justice.

Having in his hands the woman's occult revelations sent to himself, the text of her signed article in a British publication regarding her dreams of the tragedy, the sensational story in a coast weekly that alleged a confession by an eyewitness of the killing, and finally her final statement under questioning by a police inspector in the presence of an alienist, Hon. A. M. Manson, attorney-general, rightly said that "under the circumstances, he found it impossible to get excited over her story."

This is not the dark ages, and all will agree with his serenity on this phase of the sensational case.

But there is a phase, a highly criminal phase, of the Janet Smith case, to which the worthy attorney-general should not extend his serenity or complacency. In spite of Mr. Manson's oft-repeated statements that his department does not know the identity of Wong Foon Sing's abductors and torturers—who were no fabric of a vision—he steadfastly refuses to take one of the best-known methods of obtaining clues in criminal cases, of offering a reward.

Rewards have brought results in the way of evidence to convict, in many British Columbia criminal cases, from murders and bank robberies down to far less important crimes, and have been offered when there was hardly a suspicion of a crime, as in the case of the Farron explosion. Yet in the case of this crime, the province stands aside, and leaves it to the compatriots of the young Chinese to offer the only inducement to persons with a knowledge of the facts to put their knowledge at the disposal of justice.

Wong's guilt or innocence in the Janet Smith case has nothing to do with the breach of the criminal law committed by those who abducted him and manhandled him, flouting Canadian justice, and staining the good name of this province. The fact that the victim of the outrage is a Chinese, does not diminish his right to the protection of the law—the law that the attorney-general has taken his oath to uphold.

No reward for the apprehension of persons alleged to have kidnaped Wong Foon Sing will be offered at present by the provincial government, the attorney-general stated today.

Has Mr. Manson also "found it impossible to get excited" over that?

Holmes, 315 Runs, Not Out

In the county cricket matches concluded today, Holmes, playing for Yorkshire against Middlesex, scored 315 runs, not out. This is the highest score by an Englishman since 1905, and broke the record for Lord's ground, established by William Ward, back in 1820, which has stood ever since.

For longer than any Englishman playing at Lord's in the last 115 years, Holmes, a county cricketer, "carried his bat" Tuesday, and was still undefeated when the retirement of his last partner automatically retired his side. Smashing a record that has withstood four generations of Englishmen is something of a feat.

The item is worthy of a longer mention by the cable. How many bowlers wore their arms out trying to take his wicket? How many overs were bowled? How many balls was he content with merely blocking? Not many, probably! How many times did he send the sphere soaring out of reach of the very last man in the field, so as to merit the acclaim, "Well hit, sir?" It must have been scores. The irreverent might ask, "How many days did it last?" for the length feature always impresses those not born in the British Isles.

What is cricket's greatest contribution to the British nation? Is it in providing a form of recreation? While universal in England, it does not today compare with association football for a popular audience.

We have been told that Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton and Rugby. That would be some contribution, could cricket claim all the credit.

But to do that would be the very opposite of the nature of cricket. Not only are its devotees supposed to have a punctilious regard for the rules, but a code that requires them to be utterly fair to opponents, even to the extent of construing all doubtful points in their opponents' favor.

A boy in a street car was overlooked by the conductor, and calling the man's attention to the omission, paid his fare. When an observer asked him why he had not taken advantage of the conductor's slackness, to save his fare, the lad replied simply and sufficiently: "I am a boy scout."

In similar circumstances, an Englishman might say: "It wouldn't be cricket."

The phrase, "It isn't cricket," known around the world, and the spirit it stands for, are perhaps the game's greatest contribution.

This is the hour of the neckscarf. We see them embroidered, dyed in mixed colors, and painted.

To paint one at home it is not necessary to have any previous knowledge of painting. Simply buy two yards of China silk 36 inches wide and have it hemstitched down the middle and at either edge and along the bottom at either end. Cut this hemstitching down the middle, to make a picot edging all around. The picot edging is particularly popular just now, although hand-hemming may be used instead, if desired.

Of course, the two yards of goods, divided in exact halves lengthwise, will make two scarfs. Buy a transfer pattern and put it on with a hot iron.

The next step is to assemble the painting materials. If you have no regular artists' palette, use a large plate—either glass or china. Buy artists' oil paints in tubes, of the desired colors. These colors may be made a lighter tint by being mixed with a little white oil paint. But instead of using an oil-paint brush, use a watercolor paintbrush which has a finer point. Pour a little gasoline into a cup and begin the work; for gasoline is needed to thin the oil paint.

Have the scarf-end tautly thumbtacked to a board which is covered with white blotting paper. The blotting paper absorbs any superfluous paint, thus preventing it from spreading on the scarf. A very little experience will teach you what you may do, and may not do, to gain the proper effect. I would advise you to try painting a simple flower on a sample of the same silk before going ahead on the scarf itself.

Because you are using gasoline, you must not work near heat and flame. It is a good plan to apply one color wherever needed in the design—all over the scarf—then wash your brush in fresh gasoline and begin applying some other color in the same way. Take care not to let two different colors overlap.

I always like to see the home woman go ahead and try something new! We never know what talents we have until we have experimented, do we?

What the Press Is Saying

The Willow Point Bears

There is considerable talk at Nelson, B.C., about a man who shot three bears in three days and on the following day took his fish line and caught a 24-pound salmon. This is not really remarkable as a hunting and fishing yarn. Now, if the fellow had caught three bears with a fish hook, and then shot the 24-pound salmon, it would be worth talking about.—Manitoba Free Press.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

Medicine Not an Exact Science

A medical writer a few years ago pointed out to his colleagues that in their endeavor to get medicine down to an exact science, by getting it away from superstition, they had allowed the pendulum to swing too far in the other direction.

In other words, there does not always need to be a definite physical cause in the body itself to bring on certain symptoms; that the mind itself can react to certain outside influences, and the body will show the effect.

Our physiologists are ready to admit that the mind can wonderfully influence the body, and bring about definite changes in the circulation of the blood, in the stomach and intestine, by stimulating or depressing the sympathetic nervous system.

Hunger can bring on a flow of saliva and also of stomach juice. Fear can bring on an involuntary flow of urine, and so forth.

Some of our research men have been able to demonstrate that emotional states can also affect the secretion in the ductless glands; that is, in the thyroid in the neck, and the adrenal situated on top of the kidneys.

Also that fear and exhaustion "produce almost identical changes in the brain tissue."

It is just along these lines in the past five of 10 years that wonderful strides have been made.

Some of our older physicians were wont to make up their minds quickly on a diagnosis. They persuaded themselves often that as no organic condition appeared to be present, no more need be done about it, and nothing therefore need be said to the patient. This sometimes was of help in itself in certain types of nervous cases, but it would hardly be effective at present.

The thoughtful physician nowadays must make a complete study of his patient, and separate the actual trouble from the imaginary. The imaginary illness needs even more careful treatment than the real.

It is here that the "understanding" mind in the physician, with personality, will bring results that would have been impossible a few years ago.

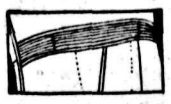
5 Reasons why you should wear Hatchway

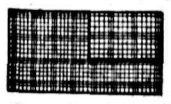
The skilfully cut shoulder-straps are carried over from the front to the back and when spread open allow you to slip the underwear quickly on or off your body.

These patented shoulder-straps stay well up on the shoulders, holding the garment in place. They cannot sag or curl, and help to make Hatchway more comfortable than any other underwear.

The back opening is generously cut and has a wide criss-cross flap which is held smoothly in place by the body and remains absolutely flat.



The effectiveness of this closed back flap is made possible by the support of a wide band of strong triple reinforced webbing, which keeps the opening tightly closed.



Our popular nainsook is a higher grade than that generally used. It contains 80 threads by 72 to the square inch instead of the customary 64, thus having a closer mesh and being more absorbent in hot weather.

WOODS HATCHWAY PATENTED 1916-1922 MADE IN CANADA SIZE 40

This label is on the front of every genuine Hatchway garment. Look for it.

To the man who doesn't wear Hatchway

IF you honestly believed that Hatchway was the coolest and most comfortable underwear you could wear—you'd wear it, wouldn't you? Well, it is—and over half a million of your brother Canadians will tell you so.

Read these five Hatchway facts—turn them over in your mind—let their simple logic sink right in. Then remember that beside all these advantages Hatchway has not a single button to lose or break.

Finally, remember we do not have to advertise to men who have once worn Hatchway—they stay sold—and once you wear it you will too.

Memory Alan Crawford, Who Perished, May Be Commemorated

COMMONS DISCUSS ILL-FATED TRIP

Government Assisted in Relief; Did Not Encourage Expedition

OTTAWA, June 10.—The ill-fated Wrangel expedition which involved the death of Alan Crawford, the 20-year-old commander, was discussed in the house of commons tonight, when Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior, made a statement to the house respecting the government's association with the expedition.

The minister first read a letter from Professor Crawford of the Ontario College of Education, Toronto, in which Professor Crawford asked the minister to make it clear in any statement that he might make to the house that his son, Alan Crawford, had been persuaded by Mr. Stefansson, organizer of the expedition, that the British government had a claim to Wrangel island and would back his expedition if they raised the British flag there. His son's patriotism had been appealed to, and he decided in the belief that he was dying for the Empire.

Government Did Not Encourage

Mr. Stewart then made a statement in which he reviewed the circumstances of Mr. Stefansson's endeavor to secure Wrangel island, according to his own statement, for the British crown. In 1921 the Canadian government took no part in the expedition nor did not give any encouragement to Mr. Stefansson.

In 1922, Mr. Stefansson appealed to the government for money to organize a relief expedition. The government advanced $3000 for this purpose, and in August, 1922, the ship went north, but was obliged to return on account of ice conditions. In 1923 the Harold Noice expedition went to Wrangel without government assistance and discovered that none of the party, except the Eskimo seamstress, had survived.

Could Live on Island

In 1924 the government advanced to Stefansson $700 travelling expenses in order that he might put his claim for Wrangel island for the Empire before the Imperial government. The British government did not accept the offer, and in July, 1924, the Canadian government declared that the view taken by the Imperial authorities as to the undesirability of establishing a claim to Wrangel island was shared by it. Mr. Stewart added to his statement that Mr. Stefansson had assured him several times that the party could live off the country at Wrangel.

Premier King said that the moment the government's attention was drawn to the fact that a young Canadian's life was in danger in the north country, there was no hesitation in granting money for the relief expedition. Alan Crawford's parents were convinced that the government did not neglect to act promptly.

Statement Denied

Mr. King read a letter from Mrs. Crawford stating that Mr. Stefansson had told her that the first relief expedition did not reach Wrangel because the government had delayed in granting the money, and the ship departed a month too late. This, however, said Mrs. Crawford in her letter, had been denied by Captain Bernard, in a signed statement.

Premier King said that there was no doubt that Alan Crawford had been actuated by the highest motives. He suggested that the heroism of this man and his companions should be commemorated by the placing of a tablet or something of that nature at some suitable place.

Mr. Meighen joined in the tribute to Alan Crawford. He must have been a young man of exceptional ability, he said, because no man of but 20 years could have commanded such an expedition unless he had extraordinary ability.

Robert Forke, Progressive leader, supported the idea of a memorial to Crawford.

REVISION OF RATES BILL UP TUESDAY

Progressives Ask Detention So Farmers Might Formulate Policy

OTTAWA, June 10. — The government's bill dealing with the revision of freight rates in Canada may not come up in the house until Tuesday. The Progressive group in the house tonight decided to ask the government not to bring on discussion of the bill this week, so as to give the farmer members more time to formulate a policy regarding the bill.

An informal caucus of Progressives tonight appointed a committee to present this request to the government. It is understood that the proposal to postpone revision of the rates until the board of railway commissioners has investigated the whole question does not meet with the approval of many of the Progressives.

Progressive members and a more extended caucus of the party is desired to discuss the whole question before debate on the bill comes up in the house.

DON'T CLAIM NORTH POLE; JUST TO IT

Minister of Interior Discusses Expeditions to Northern Islands

EXPEDITIONS SHOULD TAKE OUT PERMITS

Canada Claims Northern Islands; Boundary Runs to Pole

OTTAWA, June 10.—Canada's claim to the northern archipelago was again asserted in the house of commons today by Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior. Tabling a large map, Mr. Stewart said that the Canadian claim was to islands lying north of the Canadian mainland up to the north pole. The limits of Canada's claim, as indicated on the map formed a great triangle with the mainland as the base and the north pole as the apex. The western boundary was a continuation of the boundary between Canada and Alaska; the eastern took a line up Davis Straits between Canada and Greenland and then followed longitude 60, west to the pole. Mr. Stewart roughly defined the territory claimed by Canada as that lying north of Canada, west of Greenland, between 60 and 142.

Americans Claim North Pole

W. G. McQuarrie, Conservative, New Westminster, drew Mr. Stewart's attention to claims of the United States as set forth in news dispatches. "I see they claim the north pole," remarked Mr. McQuarrie, "are we going to let them have it?"

Mr. Stewart said he had no remark to make about claims of the United States. Canada claimed the islands north of the Canadian coast between 60 and 142. He presumed that the United States would claim any islands north of Alaska. "We don't claim the north pole. We claim up to it," said Mr. Stewart.

Mr. Stewart went on to say that he was anxious to extend the work in the north because he did not want to let the people from other countries go in and establish any claim. If expeditions from other countries wished to go to the northern islands the least they could do was to take out permits before crossing country which certainly belonged to Canada.

The marriage of Miss Amy Choquette, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Choquette, Stanley street, to Eugene Poulin, third son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Poulin, also of Nelson, was solemnized in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends, yesterday morning at 8:30 in the Church of Mary Immaculate. Very Rev. J. Althoff, V.G., performed the ceremony, the wedding music being rendered by a choir of pupils of St. Joseph's academy, of which the bride is a graduate. The bride, who was attended by her younger sister, Miss Adeline Choquette, was charming in a smart ensemble costume in rosewood shade, with hat to match, and wore a corsage bouquet of sweet peas and roses. The groom was attended by his brother, Jules Poulin. Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, immediately after which Mr. and Mrs. Poulin left by the Crow boat for Sirdar, whence they will proceed by motor to Lake Louise, Banff and Calgary, to be gone two or three weeks. Upon their return they will reside in their new home at the corner of Stanley and Innes streets. A great many beautiful gifts from friends in the vicinity and in eastern Canada attest to the popularity of the young couple, who are well known in the city.

LITTLE INTEREST AT WALL STREET

Prices in Narrow and Irregular Limits; Oils Continue Strong

NEW YORK, June 10.—Relatively little interest was manifested in today's stock market, the quietest full session in six weeks. Prices, with few exceptions, drifted within rather narrow and irregular limits. Oils continued to give one of the best exhibitions of group strength with buying influenced by the announcement of an increase in crude prices.

United States Steel common held relatively firm. The independent steels showed mixed changed, Crucible closing 1⅛ higher at 66¼; while Gulf States Steel dropped to 78 5-8, off 1 5-8, on the day.

Tobacco Responds

Tobacco issues continued to respond to reports of large current earnings. Renewal of selling pressure against the northwestern rails sent Union Pacific down a point to 133⅝, and brought about a similar recession in Chicago & Northwestern.

Call money opened at 4 per cent and then dropped to 3¾. Commercial rates ruled unchanged.

Total sales, 1,069,700 shares.

WHEAT PRICES ARE DOWN AT CHICAGO

Seven and Half Cents Drop After Gain of Four Cents

CHICAGO, June 10.—Wheat prices underwent a sudden fall of 7½c a bushel today from an earlier gain of 4c.

The bulge, due chiefly to a rush of buying that resulted from the U. S. government crop report, was more than offset later through heavy selling to realize profits and to prepare for the first Canadian government report of the season. It was expected the Canadian report would show a probable Canadian wheat yield of more than 100,000,000 bushels in excess of last year's harvest. Closing quotations on wheat were weak, 2¾c to 4¾c net lower, July $1.62½ and September $1.60 to $1.60¼, with corn ⅝c to 1⅜c down, oats 2c to 2⅞c off, and provisions at 10c to 12c to 27c decline.

RESTRICTIONS ON RUBBER IS PROBLEM

Editor Forecasts Strained Commercial Relations Britain and States

VANCOUVER, June 10. — Strained commercial relations between the United States and Great Britain over the latter's restriction of rubber export are forecast by Edward B. Babcox, editor of India Rubber Review, who is here with Shriners from Akron, Ohio.

Due to restricted export from Singapore during the past three years, the price of rubber has been run up from 11c a pound to 78c, and he predicts that the price will go to $1 before long. This, declares Mr. Babcox, is a situation which eventually will call for international correspondence. While Great Britain controls the rubber supply, it is the opinion of Mr. Babcox that it should not continue, beyond the exigencies of market absorption, a restriction which was placed upon rubber export at a time when the condition of the market demanded government action and regulation.

"The result of this is going to be," declared Mr. Babcox, "that United States interests will be forced into the rubber production business."

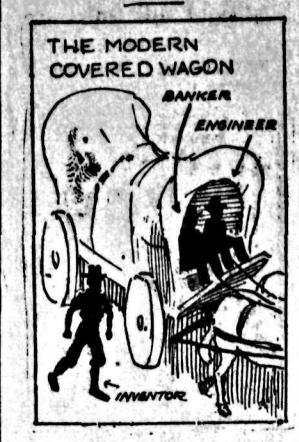
Famous Pioneers—Inventor, Banker and the Engineer



There are three famous pioneers of today—the inventor, the engineer and the banker.

• • •

Pioneer — that word is associated with romance; the desert made into fertile fields, railroads spanning continents, revolutionary inventions.

Yet back of all the romance is the practical execution; the engineer thinking in terms of steel, the inventor occupied with mechanics, and finally the banker steeped in finance.

The pioneer banker, represented by Wall street, or in Canada by either Canadian or foreign capital, provides the cash to carry out the plans of the engineer and inventor. Without the banker the plans would remain only dreams, and of course without the other two there would be no plans. They are all necessary for progress, and all three must have trained minds in order to look ahead into the future and weigh its possibilities. They are the true modern pioneers.

What's Wrong With That 'O'? Plenty, Plenty

By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher, New York Giants.)

The Yankees used to have a clever way of tipping the batter off to what the pitcher was throwing him. Eddie Murphy, former White Sox outfielder, told me about it not long ago.

"We were playing the Yankees in New York," said Eddie. "The Sox knew something was wrong, the way the Yankee hitters stepped into curve balls or laid off spitters, but they couldn't discover how the Yankee hitters were being tipped off.

"It took the dumbest guy on the ball club—a cuckoo who had his eyes and mind on everytaing except the game—to discover the secret. One day he chirped up, "Gosh, that's the funniest sign I ever saw, out there in center field. Sometimes there's a white line running through the "O" in "SMOKE" and sometimes it is vacant. I wonder what's the big idea?"

"We watched the sign, and sure enough, the operator was guessing right every time. We afterwards found out they were getting our catcher's sign with field glasses and cut out the inside of the letter 'O' and were running a white stick through it for the fast balls, and leaving it blank for curves or spitters."

REDDICK'S BROTHER IN FRAUD CHARGE

Swift Current, Reddick-Miske Battle Characterized As Fraud

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask., June 10.—Bob Runner, brother of Jack Reddick, and promoter of the Reddick-Miske bout at Swift Current, last week, tonight was committed to stand trial on a charge of conspiring with G. Bennie to defraud the public. Bennie, who gave evidence against Runner was taken into custody immediately after the preliminary hearing of Runner, and will be given a hearing at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. Runner is held without bail, and will be taken before a judge of the district court here or at Regina if he wishes to secure bail.

The hearing and committal for trial is the result of a protest by a number of sport followers of Swift Current who gave evidence in the charge against Runner, that the bout in their opinion was a swindle and that the public was made to pay a high price of admission for a fight which was not a fight. They characterized it as a fraud.

EXPEDITIONS INTO NORTH ARE OPPOSED

Eskimos Here First, Declares Yukon Member Opposing Grant

OTTAWA, June 10.—Further consideration of a vote of $352,000 for the government of the Northwest Territories was given in the house tonight. George Black, Conservative, Yukon, protested against expenditures in connection with bringing G. P. McKenzie, former gold commissioner for the Yukon, to Ottawa in connection with the appointment which he now holds.

Mr. Black said that Mr. McKenzie had stated that he was to be placed in charge of the organization and operation of expeditions by both land and sea in northern areas in Canada. Canada had decided to establish her jurisdiction in order to prevent possibly misunderstanding in future with other countries.

Expeditions Unnecessary

Mr. Black asked what the necessity for these arctic expeditions was. If their object was to look into the condition of the Eskimos and wild life in the northern sections of the Dominion, he advised the minister to leave the former "politely alone." The Eskimos had been in Canada possibly longer than the white people and had got on very well.

Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior, said that one important purpose of the expedition was to study Eskimo life. It was also considered desirable to establish Canada's claim to certain territories. He believed that the claim was valid, be established. Canada was merely but, if a dispute arose the claim must trying to establish the claim.

The vote carried.

Veenstra's victory is extremely popular here.

HERRIOT WITHDRAWS RESIGNATION AS MAYOR

LYONS, France, June 10.—Former Premier Herriot, under pressure from his friends, has withdrawn his resignation as mayor of Lyons, which he tendered yesterday.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CASE IS NOW CLOSED

Stay in Proceedings Against Robert Watson Entered at Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, June 10.—The now famous Christian Science case which followed the death here last November of 13-year-old Doreen Watson was closed today, when it was announced by John Allen, K.C., deputy attorney-general, that a stay of proceedings had been entered against Robert Watson, the girl's father, on a charge of manslaughter.

This action followed a decision of the Manitoba court of appeal in setting aside the sentence of William Elder, a Christian Science practitioner, Monday last. Elder had been sentenced to serve four months in the provincial jail, but the appeal court decided that there was no evidence on which the case should have gone to the jury.

The youngster died of diphtheria, and it was brought out at the preliminary hearing that physicians had been refused permission to administer antitoxin, while it was also stated that Christian Science practitioners had been called upon by the parents to give "absent treatment," which consisted of prayer.

BISHOP THROWS OPEN DOORS TO NONCONCURRING

Urges Putting Churches and Halls at Their Disposal

DEPLORES SUNDAY LOSING SANCTITY

Reaffirms Opposition to Cooperation in the Colleges

A plea to the parishes of the Kootenay diocese to show the greatest kindliness toward the non-concurring Presbyterians, to the extent of placing churches and halls at their disposal; a proposal for a system of voluntary unpaid clergy in sparsely settled parts, and a reaffirmation of his attitude that cooperation in theological education, arranged between the Anglican, Presbyterian and Methodist colleges at the coast was a mistake, featured the charge of Rt. Rev. A. J. Doull, D.D., bishop of Kootenay, to the diocesan synod yesterday forenoon.

Block Assessment Behind

The bishop also went at great length into the financial position of the diocese, resulting from the block assessment for 1924, for which $8594.25 had been pledged for the maintenance of the diocesan work, yielding only $5335.65. He declared the situation called for a drastic remedy, and that the only alternative to raising the full amount of the assessment, was to cut down the mission work in the parishes to the "barest minimum."

In this connection, the bishop welcomed Rev. Jocelyn Perkins, minor canon and sacrist of Westminster Abbey, and secretary of the British Columbia and Yukon Church Aid society, stating much of the work of the diocese could never have been undertaken but for the help of the society, and that without the supplemental grant voted year by year to eke out the proceeds of the episcopal endowment, he, as bishop, would "long ago have been compelled to accept one of the positions offered to me during the past eight years."

On the subject of church union, Bishop Doull said, in part:

Church Union and Its Cost

"Today is a day of marked importance in the religious life of Canada. Today the Methodist church of Canada and the Congregational church in Canada pass out of existence. Today these bodies, together with a very large number of Presbyterian churches, unite to form that which will be known in the future as the United church of Canada.

"It is impossible for us to be silent, unsympathetic witnesses of such an event. We must express our recognition of the tremendous issues involved and pray that the divine blessing may rest upon this great united body of Christian people who will of necessity exert such a widespread influence upon our national life and character. We are not called upon to express any opinion of agreement on this agreement with their doctrine, polity, ecclesiastical status, or ritual, but we cannot be indifferent to the welfare of a great body of Christian people in our own country who hold in their keeping potential power beyond that of any other religious communion, the Roman alone excepted.

"The one matter for deep regret in connection with the formation of the United church of Canada is the fact that it has only been accomplished at the terrific cost of splitting in twain the great Presbyterian church. In British Columbia and the rest of western Canada this deep, widespread cleavage is not so apparent, but in Canada taken as a whole the result has been to split the Presbyterian church into two sections almost equal numerically. Indeed, those who are opposed to union are in an actual majority so far as membership is concerned, and as regards congregations, about equal when we exclude congregations reckoned as Presbyterian by the union committee, but in reality union churches of many years' standing. It is impossible for us not to feel intense sympathy with that section of the Presbyterian church, which has decided to continue the existence in our country of the Presbyterian church, and with those individual Presbyterians who are deprived of the church buildings in which they have hitherto worshipped. They are deeply attached to the church of their forefathers, surely not a fault; they are standing out to maintain principles which in large measure they hold in common with ourselves. I do honestly trust that we as a church may show very real and practical sympathy with the non-concurring Presbyterians within our province. Kindness and sympathy shown today may have far-reaching results, and be productive of much fruit in years to come.

"It is my hope and desire that wherever possible we shall gladly place our churches or our parochial halls at their disposal until such time as they are able to build again churches for themselves. We can forge a link of real value between the Presbyterians and ourselves at the present moment, and I do sincerely hope that we shall not allow the opportunity to pass without an earnest endeavor to avail ourselves of it."

Cannot Sanction College Appeal

Dealing with the Anglican theological college, the bishop said:

"Nothing has taken place since the last meeting of this synod to cause me to change my mind upon the subject of cooperation in theological education between the Anglican theological college and the colleges of the Presbyterians and Methodists, now I suppose the college of the United church of Canada.

"I feel that a profound mistake was made, and I have had to make provision elsewhere for the training of the very few men in whose ministerial future the diocese is interested. But nothing has taken place during the period since I withdrew from all connection with the college to interfere with my friendship for the principal. We are as close friends as ever, agreeing to differ upon a question which, of necessity, we view from very different standpoints.

"I welcome him very cordially to our synod, and shall ask him to present to you his report in due course, for I have no desire to deprive those in this synod who disagree with my attitude of hearing the official report of an institution in which they take an interest. I regret that the financial position of the diocese forbids me to sanction any appeal at the present time for funds on behalf of the new college building."

Sunday Sport

Pleading for "a vigorous effort to preserve the Lord's Day from total destruction as a holy day," his lordship said, in part:

"Physical recreation has its place in the Lord's Day, but it must not usurp the whole of the day, leaving the spiritual nature of man unrefreshed and unstrengthened. It is a question of getting a right sense of proportion. The objection to Sunday games, baseball, football, golf, tennis and the like, is not that these things are wrong, sinful in themselves, but that those who engage in them are neglecting the higher part of their being, starving their spiritual nature.

"I am disturbed when I read in the Vernon News of recent date that on Sunday afternoon, June 4, being Whitsunday, the Elks gave a picnic in honor of the visit of their grand exalted ruler, and that on the same afternoon the court officials, together with the judge on assize, and local and visiting lawyers, also held a picnic, because the example is a very bad one on the part of those who ought to set a good example. I am more than doubtful, knowing the localities where these picnics were held, whether any of these persons went to church. In England the judge on assize always goes officially to church, attended by all his court officials, to ask God's assistance in his duties, and to be reminded of the law of the Lord. In British Columbia a picnic is substituted for the worship of God. Can you wonder that in Canada we have lost the high traditions of British justice?

"It is useless for grand exalted rulers to come from the east and talk to us about the brotherhood of man, and patriotism, when their actions tend to weaken respect for the Great Father of all, apart from whom there can be no brotherhood of man. It is useless for judges to expect men and women to respect law and order when they themselves are found leanding assistance to those forces which are breaking down respect for the law of God."

SYNOD MEMBERS RAISE THOUSAND

bishop as dean of Nelson, one of the six deaneries in the diocese of Kootenay, followed the resignation of Rev. Field Yolland, rector at Trail, from the office.

Warm thinks to Ven. Archdeacon Fred H. Graham for his work as clerical secretary, and sympathy in his present illness, were expressed to Mr. Graham by the bishop, on behalf of the synod. After accepting Mr. Graham's resignation as secretary, the bishop expressed the hope that his successor would be an Okanagan man, in order to make it easy for the bishop to consult him. Rev. H. A. Solly, rural dean of the Okanagan, and Rev. F. Yolland of Trail were nominated for the position, and Mr. Yolland was elected.

Leslie Crawford, acting lay secretary last year, was elected lay secretary, following the resignation of Fred Irvine, who has held the office for many years.

During the morning session Rural Dean Solly, Rev. H. G. B. Gibson of Vernon, A. G. McCosh and T. L. Bloomer were appointed as a committee to examine the credentials of the lay delegates, and reported them in order, after the roll of clergy had been called.

Block Assessment Discussed

When the afternoon session opened at 2 o'clock, C. R. Hamilton, K.C., chancellor and registrar, made a short address on the block assessment. This had been on trial only three years, and at first there had been plenty of evidence that many to the parishes thought it was only another tax on already overburdened shoulders. Now there was a change of view, and the parishes were beginning to realize that it was a matter of agreement, he could almost say a matter of honor, to pay these assessments in full. He instanced the parish of Fernie, struggling through fires and strikes, but paying the block assessment allotted to it. He felt that what was needed was a campaign of education, and this sentiment was heartily applauded.

Many clergy present took part in the following discussion, the general opinion being that more and more parishes were beginning to see the necessity and wisdom of the system.

In reporting on the fourth block assessment, Mr. Graham said all the necessary work had been done, and the parishes, with few exceptions, had paid the whole or a part of what they had been asked to pay.

Ask Condensed Report

After the financial report had been read by Mr. Johnson, retiring secretary, the bishop appointed a committee of three, consisting of A. G. McCosh of Kelowna, A. Waring Giles of Vernon, and L. B. DeVeber of Nelson, to go over the financial report, and bring in a condensed report at the session today.

The committee on the bishop's charge, who will report to the synod today, consists of Rev. E. St. G. Smythe, Major Turner Lee of Bonnington, and T. L. Bloomer of Rossland.

Sectional Feeling

The bishop asked that no sectional feeling should be allowed to creep in, when the synod should elect a treasurer this morning. There had been, he was sorry to say, a trace of it during the first session, and he hoped it would not influence anyone in making such an important decision.

Canon George Thompson rose to ask in what way sectional feeling had been shown during the morning. He had been aware of none, he said.

"Will you kindly sit down?" said his lordship.

Morning and afternoon sessions were opened and closed by a procession of the chancellor, Mr. Hamilton, followed by Rev. H. C. B. Gibson, acting as the bishop's chaplain, and carrying the pastoral staff, and the bishop, in his robes of black and red.
