POLICE TRAIL DRUG LANDINGS ON THE COAST

Ship With Million Dollar Cargo Narcotics Lost Track of

VANCOUVER, June 19. — With police, secret service and customs supervision so strict that it is now almost impossible to land illicit cargoes on the Atlantic coast, wholesale narcotic drug traffickers are turning their attention to the Pacific. Three weeks ago a ship, said to be carrying a narcotic cargo valued at $1,000,000, made its appearance off the west coast of Vancouver Island, according to information in the hands of Vancouver police and customs officers.

As suddenly as it appeared the suspected ship has vanished and it is not yet learned, officials say, whether it was successful in landing part or all of its cargo, so close watch is being kept over the coast line. Men believed to be agents of an eastern drug ring, but against whom no direct proof has been secured, are being kept under surveillance.

NO INDICATION OF LAND SEEN BY AMUNDSEN

Lead Cast of Far North Gives Huge Depth of Water

NORTHERN FLIGHT DEATH STRUGGLE

Plane Froze in Ice; Freed After Twenty-one Days' Work

LONDON, June 19.—A Reuter dispatch from Oslo says Roald Amundsen has sent a message to the Norwegian premier saying he surveyed 150,000 share kilometers during his flight toward the pole without discovering any indication of land.

"The cast of the lead in our most northern latitude," said the message, "gave 3750 meters, which leads to the safe supposition that no land exists in the Nerwegian sector of the Polar basin."

The dispatch from Oslo adds that the Norwegian government's expedition ship Heimdal left King's Bay, Spitzbergen, this evening for Lady Franklin's bay to bring back the airplane in which Amundsen and his party returned from the north.

Fight With Death

OSLO, June 19.—The Dagbladet in its noon edition today printed a noncopyright story outlining some of the experiences of the Amundsen north pole expedition. The newspaper said the story was based on messages from the expedition's journalist. "In narrating the story on arriving at King's Bay," says the Dagbladet, the flyers, all of whom looked worn and thin from suffering, said their work upon the ice was like a fight with death. Amundsen later will narrate this.

"Now he mentions that the members of the expedition were separated and that Lief Dietrichsen (Norwegian pilot of one of the planes) and Oskaw Omdahl (Norwegian mechanician) fell in the water and were just saved from drowning by Lincoln Ellsworth. Meanwhile Amundsen and Hjalmar Risser-Larsen (Norwegian plane pilot) were on the other side of the water they heard them scream, but were unable to help, as thin ice prevented using the canvas boat."

Regarding the picking up of the members of the expedition by the fishing boat Sjoeliv, which brought them to King's bay, the newspaper story says:

Crew Saw Plane

"The fishing boat Sjoeliv is a small cutter of 12 tons with a crew of nine men. Her captain is Nils Wollan. The vessel had a poor catch and was hunting a wounded walrus. When off Huggle bay, on the north side of Spitzbergen, the crew heard motors purring and discovered an airplane 10-kilometers away.

"They at first thought it was an airplane from the patrol expedition, but when it neared they immediately recognized Amundsen in spite of his long beard.

"The explorers all quickly got aboard the Ejoeliv and crowded into the small berths. There was not much food for so many—only seal beef, cider and eggs. The hawser towing the airplane broke once, but a new one held.

Decided to Hurry Back

"As Amundsen was told that the patrol expedition was ready to leave King's bay, he decided to make for King's bay as fast as possible and leave the plane"

The Dagbladet also prints the following account of the arrival of the expedition in King's bay, without claim of copyright:

"When it was rumored at King's bay that the Heimdall (the Norwegian government's Amundsen's relief ship) was to clear for Dane island, at 10 o'clock in the evening, many people went to the pier to watch her departure. The midnight's sun rays penetrated the light clouds.

"Out in the Fjord a small vessel was noticed making toward King's bay with many persons on deck. The onlookers waved to the occupants and yelled joshing remarks, while those on board the little craft waved in response.

Hailed With Hurrahs

"Suddenly someone on the Heimdall remarked: 'But it's Amundsen' and at once everyone knew it, and he was

SETTLEMENT IDEA GOES TO UNIONS

Tie Up in Nova Scotia Fields May End Shortly

SYDNEY, N.S., June 19.—The British Empire Steel corporation proposition for a settlement of the present tie-up in the Nova Scotia fields has been sent to International President J. L. Lewis, at Indianapolis by the district 26 executive of the United Mine Workers, and is going tonight to the various local unions of the province.

The corporation's proposals were given to Hon. James Murdock, minister of labor, by Vice-President J. E. McLurg, on Wednesday, and handed on by the minister to the miners yesterday. The minister then left for Ottawa today, leaving behind him the opinion that the strike "can and should be settled within 10 days."

Mr. Murdock offered that he or another representative of the labor department would come to Cape Breton whenever their services might be required.

There are various speculations here as to what the corporation offers. These concern possible abolition of the check off by which the company collects union dues, abolition of company stores, some decrease of wages and blacklist. However, there is no official announcement.

THREE MILLION REIMBURSEMENT FOR HOME BANK

Senate Makes Different Bill; Is Termed as a New One

NO INVESTIGATION IN SMALL DEPOSITS

Moral Responsibility of Government Denied; Read Third Time

OTTAWA, June 19. — (Canadian Press.)—The Home bank bill as it received third reading in the senate tonight, widely differs from the measure passed by the house. In fact, during senate discussion, it was termed a new bill.

The main changes are:

1. The total amount of reimbursement is reduced from $5,450,000 to $3,000,000.

2. Deposits not exceeding $500 are to be reimbursed outright to the extent of 35 per cent of the claim without investigation by the commissioner.

3. Claims for reimbursement on deposits of more than $500 will be heard by the president of the exchequer court who, as commissioner, will make awards not exceeding 35 per cent of the deposit, in cases where "special need" is proven.

4. The bill denies any moral responsibility on the part of the government.

Many Exclusions

5. The following are excluded entirely from the benefits of the bill: Directors of the Home bank; senators and members of the house of commons; the government of any province; city, town, county, municipality, parish, school board, educational institution, or other similar corporation or institution; any corporation association, society, partnership, club, friendly or mutual benefit society, religious or church corporation, labor association or similar organization or association.

6. Any creditor failing to take advantage of the act within 12 months of its passing will be barred from receiving any benefit under it.

7. The minister of finance must annually submit to parliament within 14 days of the opening of the session, a detailed statement showing the names of all persons who have received aid under the act, and the amount.

Many Five Hundred Deposits

Senator Beique, in reading the amendments, estimated that it would require slightly more than $1,000,000 to meet the deposits up to $500. It had been stated by the liquidator in evidence before the committee in the morning that there were some 47,000 depositors whose accounts were less than $500.

In reply to questions Senator Beique said that the liquidator had estimated that between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000 would be approximately required to meet the claims as stipulated in the amended bill.

Robertson Aids Cripple

Senator Robertson approved the clause which ruled out the recognition of deposits made by members of the senate and house of commons. "The information has come to me," he went on, "that, if this bill comes to a vote in the house, my vote will be protested because I have a small deposit in the Home bank. I want to announce that I have no personal interest in the bill whatever. A few days ago I read a pathetic letter from a crippled girl who had lost her savings. That I might have no personal interest in the bill whatever, I assigned all my interest as a depositor to that crippled girl."

Senator Robertson asked on what principle the sub-committee had ruled out the claims of such organizations as labor organizations. "The principle is," replied Senator Beique, "that the amount of the loss by each member of these organizations will be small." The principle of the amended bill, he added, will be as a matter of fact, to rule out such organizations without the specific clause. Because claimants in the case of deposits over $500 had to show "need."

Senator Dandurand stated that the principle of the bill had been altered by the senate. The senate had rejected the moral obligation assumed by the house of commons, and undertaken the reimbursement on the ground of compassion. While he had had no opportunity to consult his colleagues, he would allow the bill to go to the other chamber without protest, "in the hope that it will meet the approval of the cabinet and the house of commons." The bill was given third reading without division.

Subcommittee Asks Reduction Home Bank Bill

OTTAWA, June 19. — (Canadian Press.)—The sub-committee of the senate banking and commerce committee which has been considering the Home bank bill, recommends that the total obligation of the minimum be limited to $3,000,000. The bill as introduced provides a payment to depositors of $5,450,000. The senate sub-committee also recommends that the claims of a depositor be limited to $500 unless there is proof of actual want.

Strumpkins, who turned crown's evidence and was freed from a charge of murder. Owen Baker was caught in New York and brought to Victoria by Insp. W. R. Dunwoody of the Nelson provincial police force. Sowash or Myers was captured in New Orleans.

PLAN VIGOROUS OFFENSIVE ON MOROCCAN LINE

Paul Painleve Will Abandon Defensive for Offensive; Government Favorable

PARIS, June 19. Premier Painleve, with the members of the chamber of deputies, excepting the Communists, solidly behind his government, intends to prosecute the Moroccan war with greater vigor. An offensive on a large scale against the Moors may be expected within a few days.

M. Painleve received a blanket indorsement from parliament today on his Moroccan policy. The vote was 525 to 32, and the French troops in Morocco are likely to abandon their defensive attitude, which they have been maintaining for the past five weeks and strike a blow to restore France's prestige.

Vote of Confidence

The vote of confidence was given after the chamber had shelved an interpellation by the Communist deputy, M. Doriot, regarding peace negotiations with Abd-el-krim. It was taken as giving the premier a free hand in the negotiations with Spain for joint action and in conducting the war against the rebel tribesmen.

PARIS, June 20.—The Matin this morning says that more than 120 arrests have been made in Paris and the provinces in connection with the government's measures to check Communists' propaganda against its Moroccan policy.

FAIMAN DID MIX UP HIS STATEMENTS

Admits It on Stand; Reputation for Truth Bad, Says Witness

CHICAGO, June 19 — The defence of William Darling Shepherd began presenting its case today with the expressed intention to climax it Monday with the testimony of the defendant himself.

The state rested its case shortly after noon with the finishing of cross-examination of Charles Faiman, his testimony that he gave Shepherd three test tubes with typhoid bacteria in them, wanted for the murder of William Nelson McClintock, Shepherd's millionaire foster son, relied upon to establish the corpus delicti.

Faiman, upon cross-examination, admitted he was mixed up in the numerous statements he had made involving Shepherd admitted, he had made numerous false statements, that he ran a "diploma mill," that he posed as a doctor in the management of the National University of Sciences, and was laughed at loudly by jury and spectators when the defence followed up its announced intention to make him appear too ludicrous for belief.

At the end, however, he had not retracted any of the incriminating statements involving Shepherd.

Unworthy of Relief

Because of that, the defence rushed ahead with the beginning of its testimony. One witness testified Faiman had associated with men convicted of violating the federal anti-narcotic law, and was unworthy of relief.

A. T. Conway, who admitted he had served a sentence in the federal penitentiary at Leavonworth, Kansas, testified that he was well acquainted with Faiman and had attended his university.

"During your association with Faiman, did you become familiar with his reputation for truth?" asked William Stewart, chief counsel for the defence.

"Yes, it was very bad," replied Conway.

The defence said tonight that its witnesses probably would not number more than 15, with the testimony of probably six being devoted to impeaching Faiman as to character and veracity.

Fifty Thousand Dollar Lethbridge Building Burned

LETHBRIDGE, June 20.—The Lethbridge exhibition board's magnificent $50,000 main building was destroyed in a spectacular fire Friday evening. The origin of the blaze is unknown, but it is thought an oil stove left burning in the dance pavilion which was to have been used by the Rotary club Friday night may have exploded.

The building was erected for the International Dry Farming congress in 1912 and was rated one of the handsomest exhibition buildings in western Canada.

GUILTY MURDER OF GILLIS AND SON; VERDICT

Hijackers of Beryl G. Go to Gallows Next September

JURY OUT MORE THAN AN HOUR

Will Await Death at Oakalla Prison; Result Stromkin's Evidence

VICTORIA, June 19.—One of the most sensational murder trials in the annals of British Columbia courts was concluded here shortly after noon today when Mr. Justice Morrison sentenced Owen B. Baker and "Si" Sowash, alias Harry Frederick Myers, to be hanged on September 4, following their conviction by a jury after slightly more than one hour's deliberation, on a charge of murdering Capt. W. J. Gillis on the deck of his own boat, the Beryl G, near Sidney Island on September 15 last.

Before sentence was passed Baker affirmed his innocence, and in response to the usual question, "Have you anything to say?" declared in even tones:

"All I have to say, sir, is the evidence I have given in this court was the absolute truth."

In response to the same question Sowash answered: "I have nothing to say, sir."

Throughout the four-day trial Baker and Sowash had steadily maintained their innocence. In the closing hours of the trial they turned against each other and told separate stories on the stand in their own defence. Both men will be taken to Vancouver and lodged in Oakalla prison to await carrying out of the sentence.

The case, known as the Beryl G case, was one of the most sensational in the history of British Columbia. Late last September the Canadian schooner Beryl G was found adrift in the waters between Vancouver Island and the state of Washington, deserted, waterlogged and with bloodstained decks.

Police made little headway with the case until, almost two months later, Paul Stromkins of Victoria, surrendered himself to the authorities and confessed that his boat had been used to hijack the Beryl G on the night of September 15. Disclaiming any share in the crime himself, he named Baker, Sowash and a third man named Charles Morris, all three Americans, as the murderers of Captain Gill's and his 17-year-old son, William, crew of the Beryl G.

Baker was subsequently apprehended in New York, and Sowash in New Orleans. Morris was arrested in Seattle, but is fighting extradition to British Columbia in the United States courts, and has yet to face a Canadian jury.

Stromkins, turning king's evidence, was the star witness for the crown against Baker and Sowash. He testified that Baker had killed the elder Gillis, and Sowash the younger.

STATEMENTS AGAINST CANDIDATE COSTLY

False Statements Regard to Stewart, Progressive Election Candidate, Costs Pachal Hundred Twenty-five

SASKATOON, June 19.—Michael Pachal, was today found guilty by Justices of the Peace White and Caldwell at Yorkton for making false statements with regard to A. C. Stewart, the Progressive candidate in the recent provincial elections with the purpose of affecting the return of the candidate, and was fined $100 and $25 costs and in default, distress to be levied and in the event of insufficient distress, to go to jail for one month. It is likely the case will be appealed. According to the evidence of several witnesses, Mr. Pachal told a number of Ruthenians and Germans in the electorial district that during the 1917 elections, Mr. Stewart attended a polling booth and prevented Ruthenians and Germans from voting by using a revolver; and also stated that Ruthenians and Germans were swine.

PLAN CHANGES IN DOMINION ELECTIONS ACT

Humphrey Claims Restrictions on Labor Bodies Unfair; Afternoon Holiday

OTTAWA, June 19. — The government bill to amend the Elections act occupied the house for the best part of the evening sitting and when progress was reported at 1:15 a.m., about half the bill had passed the committee stage. There were repeated divisions on suggested amendments.

OTTAWA, June 19.—The house of commons debated at length tonight proposed changes in the Dominion Election act and strong support developed for suggestions that various associations should be allowed to contribute to election funds. William Irvine, Labor, East Calgary, moved an amendment which would permit labor unions to contribute to election funds without being liable to an infraction of the act. As the act was drawn at present, he said, he practically compelled people to break the law. His amendment was rejected 52 to 44.

A subamendment providing repeal of the section of the act that provides that no company or association shall make contributions for political purposes was defeated 52 to 42.

Too Many Restrictions

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, opposition leader, agreed that there were too many restrictions in the act. "Nowadays is you wear a red ribbon or a blue ribbon—if you do anything but stand in an a mood of prayer you are likely to be sent to the penitentiary," he remarked.

Robert Forke, Progressive leader, and J. L. Brown, Progressive, Lisgar, both stated that they had no objection to organizations contributing to election funds. J. S. Woodsworth, Labor, Center Winnipeg, explained some of the difficulties which labor unions had in connection with elections. Contributions by unions did not interfere with the carrying on of elections in a fair an honest way. The farmers' organizations had been able to come within the act by being incorporated for political purposes but there were some 150 labor unions in Canada and they could not very well do this.

Humphrey Protests

L. W. Humphrey, Progressive, Kootenay West, said the restriction placed upon labor organizations was unfair; and practically every labor organization in Canada furthered the change.

The house voted down a proposed addition to the act which would have required newspaper to disclose who paid for cartoons, articles, etc., dealing with electioneering.

The clause which raises the population quota for urban polling divisions from 2500 to 5000 was adopted.

The afternoon of a federal general election day is declared a national holiday, under a clause proposed by A. W. Neill, independent, Comox-Alberni. Mr. Neill's amendment was adopted on a committee standing vote, 54 to 32. All the Conservative and Progressive members present and a few of the Liberals supported the Neill amendment.

J. J. Dennis, Liberal, Joliette, then moved an amendment to Section 12 of the act which would permit "the payment by a candidate or his election committee for the hire of vehicles at the usual rates current in the locality."

This amendment was declared lost without division.

TRIAL SHIPMENT OF COAL IS OFF

Canadian National Withdraws Arrangements, Account Rates Discussion

EDMONTON, June 19.—Word has been received by the Alberta government to the effect that the Canadian National railway had seen fit, in view of the pending freight rates investigation, to withdraw its arrangement for the trial support of 25,000 tons of Alberta coal to the Ontario market. The information came in a telegram from Premier Greenfield at Ottawa to acting Premier Hoadley on Thursday night.

Toronto Disappointed

TORONTO, June 19.—News of the collapse of the arrangements to ship Alberta coal to Ontario during the coming session was received here today, with disappointment.

The experimental shipment of 25,000 tons of coal which the Canadian National railways had agreed to draw to this province was the result of long negotiation on the part of Premier Ferguson with the Canadian National railway in favor of the arrangement, the desirability of keeping in Canada money which usually went abroad for fuel, was stressed, as well as the desirability of building up interprovincial traffic which would be an important link between the east and west. Orders were taken for the shipment throughout the province and so freely were they tendered that many had to be refused. The government, without any trouble could have placed 100,000 tons in place of the 25,000 tons which it believed itself to have at its disposal.

PLACE FLAG OF MAINE ON LAND

Governor Brewster, Maine Urges MacMillan to Claim Discoveries

SOUTHPORT, Me., June 19.—Governor Ralph Brewster of Maine tonight authorized Donald B. MacMillan, who sails for the arctic tomorrow to claim any territory he may discover in the polar regions for the state of Maine.

He made this announcement at a dinner in honor of the explorer, which was attended by many persons prominent in state and national affairs. Governor Brewster himself arranged for the dinner and in view of recent press dispatches announcing Canada's attitude toward the United States in the matter of claiming any territory discovered by the MacMillan expedition, his announcement was heard with keen interest.

"By the well-settled principles of international law," said Governor Brewster, "discovery is the primary incident in a claim to any land. If question shall ever arise as to its title, amp'e constitutional provision is made for its determination by the constitution."

Up to Government

"There appears to be nothing in the constitution of either this state or nation in derogation of this inherent right of sovereignty of claimed land which it shall discover or explore.

"If question shall arise with foreign countries, their amicable adjustment in accordance with our constitution is assured by the peaceful experiences of a century with our neighbor on the north.

"The flag of the state of Maine may be planted on this territory which there is much to indicate may exist in that great space. It will then remain for the federal government to decide whether or not it will recognize and protect our rights."

Governor Brewster said that MacMillan had found oil oozing from the far hills in the north.

"This may account for the sudden interest in the discovery and of the expedition that tomorrow sets its sail," said Governor Brewster.

'ROAD TO LOVE'

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER CII.

Denny rested his arm on the counter, leaned on it. He felt as though the heart were shaking coldly out of him.

"Weren't you notified?" the clerk repeated.

"No. When was my account attached?"

"Last Friday."

He nodded. Stood there nodding, unable to speak; an icy and helpless sense of isolation closing about him.

"They should have served the summons," he said simply. And he went out and walked down the block in a forlorn, heaving dreariness that tapped at his feet, that rose and overwhelmed him.

His account was attached. They were bringing suit for damages in the death of Martin Loop.

He was conscious of no anger; of nothing whatever but his own effort to walk carelessly; to keep himself from stopping abruptly with the numb shock of it.

Before a window displaying all manner of sport equipment he stopped, examined carefully fishing tackle, a tennis outfit. Presently he said: "We won't have a cent." There came a warm upward rush, then a faintness. He walked on. "They're holding me for Martin's death."

Another store showing army goods attracted him. "Katy'll have to wait," he said here. It was like a knife turning within him. His eyes burned.

Half an hour later Denny was sitting in the office of Jerome Cummings, a lawyer, who had been in his class at college.

"You couldn't possibly get it settled up in a month, Den. First of all, if those fellows are all prejudiced against you, we'll want a change of venue. No chance at all to win down there. We may have to fight for this."

"It ties up everything I've got. I need that money like the devil."

Cummings was a tall, spare fellow with brown curly hair and penetrating gray eyes. He had a deep, rollicky laugh. "Most of us do need it, Den. Can't you get a bond? That'll release it."

"They've attached everything I own—everything. Why can't you push it through in a hurry?"

"Well, at the best, it will be two or three months. I can't make any prediction on the time."

Each time Cummings said "two or three months at best," Denny thought: "Gee, I'll have to tell Katy. She'll have to wait longer."

He was suddenly confronted with the gayety in Katy's clear blue eyes asking: "Do you think I'll be so very graceful, Denny? And remember, now, I want little buckles for my shoes."

He wanted to put out his fists and strike or to duck his head and run. And he kept saying to himself through shut teeth: "Good Lord, this is a hell of a note!"

Katy had been singing and dreaming and living on the glory of this hope for nearly twelve years. He had never dared to think what her fate might be if this were taken from her. What would she say now? The damage suit might drag on for a year—for two years——

Then he remembered he was to take Katy to the exposition in the afternoon. She had not seen it yet. "I'll wait," he thought. "I won't tell her for a day or so—wait a while." He was young enough to hope vaguely that the world might come to an end or there might be another great fire or some such kind of supernatural calamity visit the earth and relieve him of his tragic individual troubles.

Katy was ready—her hat very smartly pulled over her eye. She wished to appear dashing that Denny might be proud of her. "He'll be like a person freed when he doesn't have to carry me any more," she thought as he lifted her to the taxi.

But she said wistfully: "I've been thinking, Denny."

"As per usual Socrates, something that's never been thought of before?"

"About love—and it's this. Those who demand most from us are most beloved by us. Now, take me, for instance, when I'm as independent as a centipede and won't need your blessed feet any more, perhaps I'll lose as much as I gain. Think so?"

"Better make up your mind pretty quick, Stupe, before you forfeit my feet and feeling."

No—he'd not tell Katy today—nor tomorrow either. Never can tell what may turn up.

When they reached the fair grounds Katy would have poked her head from the window, but he leaned quickly in front of her. "Don't look till you get inside—get it all at once."

It was that summer year that came sauntering with a buoyant joy through the Golden Gate and tossed its scarfs woven of sunlight and warmth on the Jeweled Tower, laid its perfumed sandals in tulip beds and daffodils and fluttered through every sculptured court and fountain, the careless, happy breath of holiday.

Katy had read the papers and knew the names of every court and frieze and mural, but she forgot all her glib facts now to drink with a shock of delight, the stately harmonies of line, the mellow richness of color.

"Noble, Denny—it's noble."

It always made him laugh, for Katy used this word like a prayer, her eyes filled with an awed joy.

When he brought up the motor chair and sat beside her, spinning off gally past the palms and the flowers, she was beside herself with the thrill of it. She seemed as much a little kid as when she had ridden behind him on the coaster, clinging for dear life and shrieking as they bumped madly down the hills.

He forget the grimness of the morning. Might all blow over—never can tell—

For Katy wanted to see everything—to know everything—to go through all the buildings—to learn the where and the whyfore of every little mob scene around the counters. She wanted to sample the coffee and the jelly and the hot scones and the new brand of hot cakes Aunt Jamima was making.

And the chair they were riding in was a source of recurrent delight.

"I wished I owned it, Denny."

"But soon you won't need it."

"Isn't it odd that I always keep forgetting how soon it's going to be.

He didn't answer. They sat in the quiet temple about the lagoon and watched the day drift past in mantle of lavender, leaving a dream on the waters. The wistful sense of uncompleteness that is the soul of twilight, that is waiting for the star—

"I'm like this, Denny."

"Like what?"

"The water and the hush and the kneeling figure."

"All beautiful and holy, I suppose?"

She laughed. "No—all waiting for a miracle."

He grew afraid to meet her disappointment.

A few days later he went to Jerome Cummings. Cummings said: "They're going to fight any transfer of the case. They won't agree to it. You're in for a siege."

"It may take months to clear it up?" Denny asked.

"All of that."

Katy had made her plans as though she were going on some wonderful journey. She had set everything in boxes and labeled them, drawing sprigs of flowers on the white cards or funny little girls in pigtails.

Late that afternoon Denny came in. Her packing was finished. But as she heard his step she thrust a packet of letters under the pillow of her bed and glanced up, eyes vivid in the crimson tide of color running to her hair.

"Caught you reading them all over! How is old Andy?"

"Oh!" Relief in Katy's tone. She had not been reading letters from Clay Andrews. Those entreating, passionate things she never read. They were the gay, careless scratches she received two or three times a week from Stephen—dear Stephen, with his Angela, and his devil-may-care. His letters, every one of them, Katy loved and treasured and tucked away in the little dolls' trunk she had once offered Denny to bury Prince Jerry.

"Andy's fine, Denny," Katy volunteered glibly. "and Katy's ready and the grand march may begin."

He went over to the bureau and pretended to scrutinize his face, picked up her comb and ran it through his hair. She laughed "You're afraid, Mr. Denny. Now that the gong sounds you'd like to run away, wouldn't you?"

"Would you like to wait, Katy? We could see the fair—we could go often."

She glanced up with swift question, a sudden throbbing faintness rushing over her. "No, Denny. I don't want to wait. I want to go soon—soon. Oh, I'm in the greatest kind of a hurry."

A shadow that was gray and cold passed from his lips to his heart. "What is it, Denny?"

As he spoke he saw her lips draw down, tremble. "Oh, don't feel like this, Katy-kid! It'll be all right soon. Don't feel like this." He stood there shaking.

She reached out her hand. "No—no I don't." Even as she tried to toss the tears back her head dropped like a white flower against her shoulder.

Mercury Soars to Eighty-six; Year's Record

Nelson's heat record for the season was shattered yesterday when the mercury climbed to 86 in the shade on the Dominion government thermometer under the charge of J. S. Goulding. On Baker street it was hotter of course than at Mr. Goulding's elevation up the hill, and some thermometers on the shady side of the street were around 90.

The hottest day was early in May, reaching 82. Twice this year it has been 80, once in the May hot spell and again Thursday.

Toronto Musical Examinations Here

The examination in theory for Toronto Conservatory of Music was held at the residence of Rev. J. H. Wright, 709 Josephine street, yesterday, at which Mr. Wright presided, being chosen by the conservatory, as Nelson had not a sufficient number of pupils to have the travelling examiner from the conservatory in Toronto.

MANY BUY FOR DEAR OLD DAD

Fathers day, according to indications, will be generally celebrated in Nelson tomorrow.

The merchants report many purchases, particularly the last couple of days, obviously for "dear old dad."

In addition to the gift idea, the picnic and family party one is coming to notice, and altogether it looks as if "dad" is going to have his day.

FAIRVIEW BLANKS THE CORINTHIANS

Wins by a Four-Goal Margin; Ringrose Is the Star

The Fairview football team last night defeated the Corinthians by a score of 4-0 in a scheduled game of the City Football league. Jimmy Ringrose, Fairview, new center forward, was the shining light on the field, having scored the only goals of the game.

The combination work of the Fairview team seemed to puzzle the Corinthians. In the first half Ringrose scored three goals for Fairview from the forward combination, giving the Corinthian goalie little chance to save. The Corinthians came back strong after each goal, but could not pass the opposing backs, although Desireau was called upon to save some very hot shots.

In the second half the Corinthians started out with a rush, only to be stopped by the Fairview backs. Both teams were pressing the other hard, most of the play being in the center of the field. Fairview broke loose and during a scuffle in front of the Corinthians' goal, Ringrose kicked an easy one which McVicar, the Corinthian goalie, miskicked, and the ball rolled in the net. The Corinthians again came back hard, and although they gave Desireau some hot shots they could not score.

During the last few minutes of the game Fairview outplayed the Corinthians, and when the final whistle blew the score stood 4-0 in favor of Fairview. C. W. Tyler refereed the game.

The teams were: Fairview—Desireux, Roynon, H. Ward, Simpson, Bradley, StDenis, Scott, Campbell, Ringrose, Evans, C. Ward; Corinthians — McVicar, Oliver, Andrews, Atkinson, Renwick, Bartholomew, Young, Speirs, Graves, Barwood, Ball.

TRAIL JUNIORS COMING IN PACK

Eight Cars Will Bring Boosters; to Play Wolves

This afternoon at 2:30 the Mountain Wolves, Nelson's snappy junior footballers, will clash with the Trail junior team. Two weeks ago the Wolves were defeated at Trail, and today will be out to reverse the score. According to a letter received from Secretary E. J. Minton of Trail, there will be eight carloads of boosters accompanying the team to Nelson, and they state that they are going home with a victory.

After the game the Wolves are staging a banquet for the Trail team and visitors.

The lineups will be: Trail—Baillie (goal), Forrest, Leckie (backs), Shaw, Balfour, Morris (halves), Fish, Broadhurst, Page, Young, Green, Thorndale, Furrows (forwards); Wolves — Gillette (goal), Wallach, R. McLeod (backs), J. McLeod, Wright, Richardson (halves), Rothery, Jeff, Acure, Walsh, Huddleston (forwards).

B. P. Rogers will referee the game.

Fairview Giants to Meet Unknowns

This afternoon at 5 o'clock the Fairview intermediate baseball team, the Giants, will play a secret team which took up their challenge of some time ago. Fairview have been the city champions for the last three years and a snappy team will be required to give them a defeat.

The Giants' lineup is: Chapman, Marquis, Ionnin, Roynon, Fawcett, St Denis, Chapman, Scott, Carlson, Houston and Horswill.

COLLEGE ASKS BOARD OPPOSE A COMMERCIAL

Council Hears Tyler for the College, StDenis for Schools

LATTER JUSTIFIES COMMERCIAL MOVE

Decision Eventually Is to Take No Action in Matter

Decision to take no action on a letter from C. W. Tyler, proprietor of the Nelson Business college, suggesting that the college's future was seriously prejudiced by the proposal of the school board to revive the three-year commercial course, was recorded by the council of the board of trade at a special session yesterday afternoon, after hearing Mr. Tyler, and D. St-Denis, of the school board, both present by invitation.

Investment Jeopardized

Mr. Tyler's letter, and his oral amplification of it, set forth that he had bought his business five years ago for $3000, and had just built an $11,000 college building, making his total investment $14,000; that students attended from all parts of the Kootenay, spending for board alone probably $300 a month; that the fees proposed for the high school course would so undercut the college's fees that it could not compete, though its fees were not the lowest of any institution of its class; and that, as proprietor of an industry of great value to the city, he sought the support of the board in asking protection from what he considered "unfair and totally unnecessary competition."

He said the high school's competition would be felt chiefly in the upper years.

Trustee StDenis, outlining presumably the school board's view, said the various letters published criticising the intended resumption of the commercial course, including Mr. Tyler's, all had their facts wrong. Instead of the cost of turning out capable graduates being exorbitant, the course would involve the board in no additional expense whatever.

No Expense, Says StDenis

On the application of 30 first year pupils, it was intended to transfer that number from the academic to the commercial side. Instead of three teachers being required for the first year academic, two would be sufficient under the new circumstances, and a commercial teacher would be engaged in place of the one permitted to go. The new scale adopted by the board set $1700 as the minimum for new high school teachers, $300 under the scale for the present staff. But even if the new teacher had to be paid $2200 there would be no increase in cost, as the provincial grant for a commercial teacher was larger than for an academic, and a Dominion grant would also be earned. The commercial pupils, he said, would pay the usual high school fee of $1 a month.

Mr. StDenis defended the character of the high school's graduates. He said even Mr. Tyler wanted his students grounded in the high school for the early years, and his students made their good showing under brief tuition because they had their high school grounding back of them. If it was desired to let Mr. Tyler have the finishing of them, what was to be done with these pupils in their earlier years when Mr. Tyler didn't want them?

Many Opinions Expressed

A highly animated discussion ensued, at least two schools of opinion on the subject of the advisability of the commercial course being revealed, with several other divisions when the topic was what to do with Mr. Tyler's letter.

W. B. Bamford said he had seen lots of school commercial graduates, and had never seen one yet worth a whoop. He said Mr. Tyler had shown his ability to develop competent commercial graduates, and to develop a business, too.

J. R. Gray said even if the commercial department would not increase the cost of the schools, it was a bad principle to unnecessarily compete with an established business.

Other members of the council argued warmly on the side of the commercial department.

R. W. Hinton expressed the view that the board ought not to consider a question of this sort, and fell foul of F. A. Starkey, and the chairman, Vice-President J. A. Irving, who held that all questions affecting the community were pertinent. The three of them agreed, however, in the view that the board could not usefully intervene in this case, which could be discussed direct with the school board.

Several Votes

A motion by Mr. Hinton that the board take no action was first declared tied. A recount showed it lost. After further discussion enough of the negatives changed their votes to the affirmative side to carry the motion.

The council put on record votes of thanks to Messrs. Tyler and StDenis for their attendance and expositions, the pair having withdrawn earlier.

Before leaving Mr. StDenis stated that the school board sessions were held at the city hall for the special purpose of convenience of the public, and that the board would welcome representatives at any time.

The members of the council present were Vice-President J. A. Irving, E. W. Widdowson, J. R. Hunter, J. A. McDonald, R. W. Hinton, J. B. Gray, F. A. Starkey, A. S. Horswill, W. B. Bamford, A. D. McLeod and E. F. Gigot.

Keep the Hood Out

Anyone who can read the account of the maltreatment of Wong Foon Sing, given by the unhappy Chinese himself, by hooded men, concluding with his "execution" on the scaffold, in his 41 days in chains, without his blood boiling at such an event happening in this province, is of a phlegmatic temperament.

That two of the alleged chief actors are in jail, another one served, and a large number of men and one woman, some prominent in Scotch society affairs, others elected or administrative officials of Point Grey, are sought by warrants, is a matter of satisfaction, though of shame, assuming there are colorable grounds for the move made by the crown in their respective cases.

Someone planned this shameful affair. Someone put Wong through the torture chamber. The story by a thrill weekly that a private detective was hired to extort a confession from the youth is followed by the coincidence of the arrest of the head of a private detective agency and of his son. Its statement that those offering an alleged $2000 for the job did not intend the method he employed, but only that a confession should be obtained, therefore wears an air of credibility. But if some persons met and engaged to pay a large sum of money for something that each one of them must have known in his heart could only be obtained by violence, disclaimers of responsibility cannot be accepted too readily. The inclusion in the list of those for whom warrants have been issued, of the thrill editor who at various stages has allowed the inference that he had an inside knowledge of the case, will not cause extended sorrow at this stage.

It is to be hoped that the perpetrators of this outrageous crime will be caught, convicted and punished.

It is to be hoped that the prominent Scottish society members, and the Point Grey municipal fathers, now caught in the toils, may be found not to have been those who brought disgrace on the fair name of Canada is this matter.

If this thuggery were a speculation on the part of underworld characters who sought to sell any information obtained, at least the stain on British Columbia would not be so deep.

But if it is found that people of prominence were the instigators of the hooded inquisition, it is to be hoped that nothing will come between them and condign punishment.

'All Safe'

A gallant adventurer is back from his venture of just under a month, in quest of the north pole.

Limping a bit, that is to say, with one plane, instead of the two with which he started out, Roald Amundsen, famous Norwegian explorer, is back at Spitzbergen, safe, and with his party intact. He left on his polar flight May 21, and he made his base again apparently June 18. A fishing boat gave the plane and party a further lift to King's Bay.

Owing to having used up his gasoline supply faster than intended, he turned back 100 miles or so from his objective, to retain his margin of safety.

That is the prudent as well as valorous Amundsen. Those who feared the worst had happened to him were assured, during the days of waiting, by those who knew him intimately, that he was one of the most competent of men. He has further proved it.

The cables intimate he is planning another dash, in the light of the experience gained in the one that just failed to reach the objective, and it is altogether likely that the next time, the tough old adventurer and scientist of the icy wastes will locate, camp on, and map thoroughly the justly famous pole.

Originality is the most valuable asset in the housekeeper's hands, just as it is in the hands of the artist, the writer and the composer. For housekeeping is a creative profession. And originality is at the root of all really successful creative work.

I enjoy studying the various housewives of my acquaintance and noting how they differ — how some of them have applied originality to one branch of their work, and others to another branch.

Mrs. X, for instance, has developed a reputation for creating unusual little luncheon dishes. Mrs. Y, on the other hand, is noted for her cleverness in making up new knitting stitches. And Mrs. Z's "knack" for interior decoration is the property of the entire community.

What is the result of the unusual efforts which these women have made toward perfecting some particular branch of their work—toward improving it through individual inspiration? The result is: Popularity. Popularity with other housekeepers who long for help among the same lines; popularity with women who have not the ambition to follow a brilliant example, but who nevertheless admire such an example.

So housekeepers who wish to make the most of their lives and who wish to be a potent element in their locality, should specialize in some particular angle of their profession — just as doctors and dentists specialize in certain fields of their work. We cannot hope to master all branches of housekeeping, home-making and the arts and crafts; at least not master these numerous branches to a point of creating cleverly in each field. But at least we can all master one branch, and build our local reputation on that one.

Whenever I see a home woman with dull eyes, a listless manner and a sort of it-doesn't-matter air, I say to myself that that woman has missed the real joy of her housekeeping; the joy of creating with the simple tools of work at hand. Without this joy, this gripping interest, housework is but drudgery. So, if you have not already found the particular branch of your work which your talents are fitted to improve, search for it. For it is close beside you somewhere.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

The Sun Again

In one of the European cities a most interesting discovery has been made. During the cooler weather it is only to be expected that the hospitals and outpatient departments of the hospitals will have a great many cases of bronchitis, influenza, pleurisy and pneumonia, and in the warm weather there will be more cases of intestinal trouble, diarrhea, dysentery and so forth.

However, in the above city it was found that 98 per cent of the babies born in the fall, who lived throughout the winter and died in the spring, were found to have suffered with rickets—that is, a softening of the bones—whereas the babies born in the spring were for the most part free from this trouble.

This is explained by a Harvard professor by the fact that the spring babies were exposed during the entire summer to the sun's rays, while the fall babies were kept inside during the winter and did not get the benefits of the sun.

Now, this all seems very remarkable to us, and yet experiments on animals, pigs, chickens and white rats, have all told the same story, that some animals from the same family, exposed to the sun's rays, and others not so exposed, showed that the sun was a real builder of the animal body.

Experiments on food have shown the same thing.

Two lots of the same food, one exposed to the sun and the other not exposed, gave different results on analysis. It would seem that the sun actually developed within the food the vitamins that are so essential in making food give its full value when it is digested. Thus animals fed with the sun-bathed food did not have this softening of the bones, whereas the ones without the sun's rays did.

It should be unnecessary to talk about the sun so much and so often, but when these facts are brought to our attention it seems only commonsense to make note of them and act upon them.

So let us get out in the sun; we can't get its rays indoors. I know that we will all welcome the day when our glass windows will admit the beneficial rays of the sun. At present these windows would cost hundreds of dollars each. But it will not be long. Great production decreases cost.

Foster's Weekly Weather Bulletin

WASHINGTON, June 20. — June 22 and 23 are expected to be the central dates of two storm waves of much importance to agriculture, especially in south-central and southwestern United States. A storm wave of moderate force is expected to cross continent during week centering on June 22, gaining force in its eastward march, becoming moderately severe as it nears vicinity of Great Lakes and causing general precipitation over northern, central and western grain sections. This storm wave, in connection with that of June 17, will cause decidedly lower temperatures during period of June 18 to 25, which is expected to be the coolest period of the month. A storm wave of moderately severe force is expected to enter southwest near June 23 and produce the most important period of the present season in the south-central and southwestern parts of the United States, causing severe storms and general precipitation over this area. Central and western parts of cotton belt are expected to receive considerable moisture during this period; probably not the great amount that is needed at present, but sufficient to be a decided benefit to their present condition. The combined force of the low barometers of this period, like that of June 17, will be sufficient to overcome other atmospheric conditions, relieve any undue high pressure areas that may be left by the preceding storm wave and push the Bermuda high back home where it belongs, should it be extending itself over the country like at present writing.

Storms, caused by such positions as govern the above period, when occurring within a drouth period or area, culminate in very severe and dangerous storms and torrential rains in small localities when storm force is of sufficient force to overcome the magnetic force that has caused and is controlling drouth area. I am of the opinion that storms of June 15 to 25 will be of sufficient force. The situation can be compared to the present heat wave of long duration. The Bermuda high barometer, which usually keeps well away from our coast on the south Atlantic, had extended itself inland almost to the Mississippi river, preventing the low barometers of the period from equalizing the pressure by drawing pressure from the high. This condition forced the low barometers and their companion highs to turn north at the great central valleys, leaving the entire eastern half of the continent under high pressure and higher temperatures until a low of sufficient force is organized to break into the condition set up by the Bermuda high, absorbing its pressure and sending it back home. When an area has been so magnetized as to become an evaporation center, causing drouth, storms are unable to break into this magnetized area unless their force is sufficient to temporarily overcome the magnetization that has previously taken place.

Calgary Scout Writer Tells of Nelson's Beauty

(By F. Leslie Sara)

Imagine a winding woodland trail passing through dim dewy aisles of murmuring pine and cedar, the ground decked with the lovely white of the mountain lily thrusting up through the carpet of moss and pine needles; picture the fairy loveliness of silver birch and vine maple and in fancy call back the delicious perfume of the woods, the myriad sounds of insects, the call of birds, and your mind will be attuned to the scene that I can inadequately picture.

The path deploys onto a rocky bluff overlooking the lake stretching below in a sheen of purple and grey and green; mountains rise on all sides, and fleecy clouds float in the azure dome above. A brilliant humming birds dart too and fro, poising on droning wings as if motionless; a mocking bird in an alder thicket pours out his song of thanksgiving, and over all hangs the quiet and peace of a Sunday morning.

Setting for Nelson Scouts

In such a spot one could have none but noble thoughts; the nearness of God in the wonders of his works is very present; it is a veritable temple not made by hands. Such is the setting in which the scouts of the St. Saviour's troop at Nelson hold their "scouts' own" service each Sunday morning at 9:30.

The beautiful simplicity of the scout service, the cheery hymns, the passage of scripture read by one of the patrol leaders, and the short manly talk by the scouter have a wonderful appeal in such a setting, and it is little wonder that the service is beloved by the scouts attending. Just a brief forty-five minutes that seen all too short before the scouts hike back to town down the rocky path to their grey stone church for the regular service.

I can most heartily commend such a "scouts' own" to you rovers and patrol leaders.

Troop From Bushes

It was in the same spot that I had the pleasure of meeting the scouts of all the Nelson troops last Friday. As is my practice when away, I had dropped in to see the local scouters earlier in the day, and was invited to one of the troop meetings that evening, and a rendezvous arranged, for their out-of-doors gathering, whither my host guided me that night. Arriving there after a delightful ramble through the woods, and on remarking that we were the first there, a long-drawn-out "coo-ee" told me that I was mistaken, for immediately some hundred scouts of the various Nelson troops emerged from the bushes and gathered round the council ring for an evening's entertainment that will long linger in my memory.

As a spot to spend a delightful and scouty holiday, I cannot too strongly recommend Nelson; it is a dream spot that brings refreshment to body and soul.

And as I close this yarn, I would like to record my appreciation of this all too short visit, and to thank the good scouts of Nelson for all their kindness; for the motor launch and auto trips, and for the loan of a canoe to cruise along the shores of the lovely Kootenay lake. To one and all of you, thanks!

HER NERVES BETTER NOW

Received Much Benefit by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ont.—"I started to get weak after my second child was born, and kept on getting worse until I could not do my own housework, and was so bad with my nerves that I was afraid to stay alone at any time. I had a girl working for me a whole year before I was able to do my washing again. Through a friend I learned of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took four bottles of it. I gave birth to a baby boy the 4th day of September, 1922. I am still doing my own work and washing. Of course, I don't feel well every day because I don't get my rest as the baby is so cross. But when I get my rest I feel fine. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and am going to keep on with it until cured. My nerves are a lot better since taking it. I can stay alone day or night and not be the least frightened. You can use this letter as a testimonial and I will answer letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. CHAS. TEAPOT DOME IS SINCLAIR'S STATES JUDGE

Concession of Wyoming Field Granted Mammoth Oil Company

FRAUD CHARGE NOT SUSTAINED

Navy Men Absolved of Faults; All Government's Allegations Fail

CHEYENNE, Wyo., June 19.—Teapot Dome rightfully belongs to Harry F. Sinclair, Mammoth Oil company, T. B. Kennedy, United States district judge, decided here today.

Government charges of collusion, scandal and fraud in the leasing of the Dome by the former secretary of the interior, Alberta B. Fall to the Mammoth Oil company were buried deep under a big legal decision, when udge Kennedy completely upheld every act in the process which resulted in the granting of the big Wyoming Oil field concession to Sinclair.

Counsel for the government, A. D. Walton, United States district attorney announced after the decision that an appeal would be taken.

Judge's Rulings

Judge Kennedy's decision contained the following rulings:

That the executive order signed May 31, 1921, by President Harding transferring the naval oil reserves from the jurisdiction of the navy department to that of the interior department was legal and not obtained from the chief executive by fraud.

That an act of congress of June 4, 1920, under which the lease and other negotiations were consummated clothed the secretary of the navy with full power to do everything that was done in negotiating the naval oil leases.

Loan Suspicions

That the "loan" of $25,000 by Sinclair to Fall in June, 1923, was "a suspicious circumstance," but that it had been given the badge of a legitimate transaction.

That the government's allegation of fraud had not been sustained.

That the "collateral transaction" involved in the case—the mysterious high financing carried on by the Continental Trading company of Toronto, headed by H. S. Osler, with certain American Oil Purchasing company, the Prairie Oil company, the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company, the Prairie Oil company and A. E. Humphreys, Independent operator, could not from the evidence, be stamped judicially as evidence of conspiracy involving Fall.

Naval Men Not Blamed

That former Secretary Denby, former assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt,, Rear Admiral J. K. Robinson, chief of naval engineering, who acted as Denby's agents, E. C. Finney, former assistant secretary of the interior, and H. Foster Bain and A. W. Ambrose, of the federal bureau of mines. "Must be considered as absolved from any incriminating faults as to fraudulent motive," in their actions in connection with the negotiations."

That there was no undue secrecy in concealing the fact that a lease had been granted to Sinclair and that the government's charge that opportunities were not given persons other than Sinclair to negotiate leases were not borne out by the evidence."

Every major allegation made by the government was crushed under the decision.

Tempest Three Years Ago

CHEYENNE, Wyo., June 19.—The tempest of Teapot Dome had its inception in Washington early in April, 1922, when reports became current that the then secretary of the interior, Albert B. Fall, had leased the big Wyoming naval oil reserve to Harry E. Sinclair's Mammoth Oil company. Reports of the leasing were confined by Mr. Fall himself after the senate, at the instance of Senator J. B. Kendrick of Wyoming, had demanded of the interior secretary the facts in the case.

It was April 21, of that year when Mr. Fall reported the lease had been given Mr. Sinclair. The next step of consequence was the creation of the Senate Oil committee, headed by Senator Walsh, of Montana, which probed long and deep into the transaction, giving the government information upon which it based its suit for annulment on the ground of fraud and illegality.

The suit was prepared by Owen J. Roberts, Philadelphia lawyer, and Atlee Pomerene, former Ohio senator, who were appointed by President Coolidge as special government counsel. It was filed in March, 1924, just a year before being brought to trial.

Toronto Evidence

In the year intervening between the filing of the suit and the trial Mr. Roberts and Mr. Pomerene obtained information which they said indicated an exchange of liberty bonds between Mr. Sinclair and Mr. Fall shortly after the lease was executed, and their hunt for evidence led them to Toronto, Canada, to the threshold of the Continental Trading company, which they later charged was an organization fostered by Mr. Sinclair and other oil men.

One of the functions of this company, the government charged, was the passing of securities to Mr. Fall from Mr. Sinclair. The government attempted to prove that $230,500 in bonds bought by the trading company were given to Mr Fall H. S. Osler, head of the company, refused to answer questions in Toronto when asked for a deposition by a representative of the American state department.

Negotiations Secret

E. C. Finney, assistant secretary of the interior, was the first witness called by the government in its attempt to prove that the negotiation and execution of the lease were carried out in secrecy and that it had been granted without competitive bidding. Mr. Finney testified that he had not been informed of the signing of the lease until some time after it had been executed.

Senator Kendrick also was called to testify as to a flood of inquiries by his constituents as to prospects for leasing the oil reserve, and of his unsuccessful attempts to get definite information from the interior department. Then the government plunged into its attempt to establish that Mr. Fall had received liberty bonds from Mr. Sinclair. It called to the stand bank officials and employees from Pueblo, Col., Ell Paso Texas, and Carrizozo, N.M., where Mr. Fall had banking connections, and produced records of Mr. Fall's bank accounts.

Call Bank Clerks

The defence objected vigorously to the introduction of these records on the ground that no evidence had bee introduced to connect either Mr. Sinclair or Mr. Fall or the Mammoth Oil company with the transactions. Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy took the objection under advisement over the week-end and on the following Monday upheld the objection on the ground that the government had established no connection between Mr. Sinclair and the bank accounts. The government then reversed its order of testimony and called bank clerks from New York, who testified as to bonds bought there by the trading company. Then through witnesses and records the government traced the bonds by their serial numbers to M. T. Everhart, of Pueblo, a son-in-law of Mr Fall, who was called to the stands Mr Everhart refused to answer questions regarding the bonds and the deposits he was alleged to have made in behalf of Mr. Fall on the ground that such might incriminate him. Again the case was tied up pending a ruling by Judge Kennedy, and the judge finally held that Mr. Everhart must answer certain questions, but that the court would guide him if the questions obviously were of a nature that would implicate him. He was promptly upheld by the court and excused from testifying when government counsel quizzed him as to whether he was in the eastern part of the United States in 1922. The government had attempted to prove that Mr. Everhart carried the bonds from the trading company to Pueblo and had deposited them there for Mr. Fall.

After that the government's case was short and the defence launched into its side of the fight

The deposition of Rear Admiral J. K. Robinson, chief of the navy bureau of engineering, which required almost two days for reading, was put before the court. Admiral Robison's testimony was to the effect that Mr. Sinclair's offer was the best that could have been obtained by the government; that Teapot Dome was in imminent danger of drainage from the wells in the adjacent Salt Creek field, and that the national defence situation in 1920 and 1921 was such that the navy was badly in need of oil.

Another high spot in the defence was the calling to the stand of Rear Admiral Julian L. Latimer, judge advocate general of the navy, who appeared as the representative of Secretary of the Navy Wilbur. The defence had subpoenaed certain records of the navy department in support of its contention that the international situation demanded that oil be made ready for naval use.

Contained Secrets

Admiral Latimer brought certificates from Secretary Wilbur and from Secretary of State Kellogg, in which they made known their refusal to produce certain of the records subpoenaed on the ground that they contained naval secrets, and that to put them before the public would be inimical to the interests of the United States. The certificates requested Judge Kennedy to excuse their refusal, which he did.

From that point the defence made quick work of its side of the case and rested after three days. The government used seven days in the presentation of testimony. Two days of argument, in which the validity of the executive order signed by President Harding in May, 1921, transferring the oil reserves from the navy department to the interior department, was argued. This phase of the argument constituted one of the main issues in the government's case.

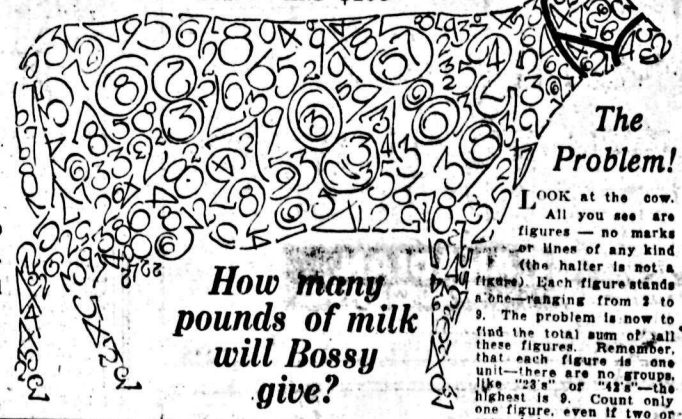
SOLVE THIS PROBLEM

WIN "BOSSY" AND $100

Extra Charts Sent Free Send Self-Addressed Envelope



How many pounds of milk will Bossy give?

The Problem!

LOOK at the cow. All you see are figures — no marks or lines of any kind (the halter is not a figure). Each figure stands alone—ranging from 2 to 9. The problem is now to find the total sum of all these figures. Remember, that each figure is one unit—there are no groups, like "23's" or "42's"—the highest is 9. Count only one figure, even if two or several happen to stand together. The tops of the SIXES are curved and the bottoms of the NINES are all perfectly straight. Don't feel doubtful—there is absolutely no trick or illusion, but don't fool yourself into thinking it is as easy as it looks. Get busy and see.

$50.00 EXTRA FOR PROMPTNESS!

If you mail your entry slips with remittance of $2.00 within 10 days of this announcement and you win first prize, we will add $50 to it. This is offered to avoid last-minute rush of entrants. Don't delay—qualify for highest award.

YALE WINNER OVER HARVARD ROWING CREW

Lead Overtaken and Blues Forge Ahead and Win by Sprint

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19.—Yale's varsity crew defeated Harvard's first eight over the four-mile course on the Thames river today by a boat length and one-half and for the fifth successive year the blue triumphed over its traditional foe from Cambridge. The victory in the feature event of the day after Blue Freshmen and junior crews had won their races easily, in the morning, gave Yale a clean sweep of the 58th dual regatta in the history of the series which began in 1852. The tally of that classic series now stands: Yale, 31; Harvard, 27. The time today was the best in the history of up-stream racing on the Thames, was Yale 20: 26; Harvard, 20:32 2-5.

Handed Big Lead

The crimson senior eight, after the start, was delayed an hour, got off to a fine start. With a high stroke, smoothly carried, out, the Harvard boat shot to the front and at the half mile was a full two lengths in the lead. Yale coxswain never allowed the stroke of his boat to go above 32.

Harvard supporters cheered madly as they saw their crew hold its lead to the half mile flags, but there the Yale stroke began to tell. The crimson men let down on the stroke as they entered on the long grind and the blue crept up. At the mile the lead had been cut somewhat. Half a mile further on Yale had picked up three-quarters of a length. On the way to the two mile flags, the blue shell overtook the Harvard boat and gained a 12-foot advantage. Harvard had shot its bolt too early and the blue gained with ease, until at the fifth half mile the lead had grown to a full length. On the next stretch to the three mile flags open water began to show between the rival boats. The Harvard men still had fight in them and a sprint on the next half mile picked up some of the loss. In the final half mile Yale raised its stroke and sprinted home, winner by about a length and a half.

Philly Champs Failed to Get These Signs

By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher, N. Y. Giants)

The champion Phillies of 1915 had the signs of every catcher in the league except Brooklyn. Against the other clubs, they could tip off signs from second base to the hitter all day long, but Brooklyn's battery signs had them crossed. They couldn't make heads nor tails of them.

"Moony" Miller and Lew McCarthy, Brooklyn catchers, were simply giving the old three signs in succession, but were using them in relation to the order in which the batter appeared. For example, the first sign alone counted for the first hitter, the second and third signs being ignored by the pitcher. The second sign applied only to the second batter, the first and third not counting. And so on. Simple enough, but it baffled major league sign grabbers for years.

BOB SAGE BEATS WELTER CHAMP

Wins Decision at Vancouver; Floored Reddick With Right

VANCOUVER, June 19. — Bob Sage of Detroit won the decision over Jack Reddick of Moose Jaw, Canadian middleweight champion, in a 10-round bout here tonight.

It was the most thrilling bout ever staged in the arena, and there wasn't a slow moment during the 10 rounds. Sage was given the unanimous call by the referee and judges. Reddick appeared to have a slight edge in the first four rounds, but the fifth, sixth and seventh were easily Sage's, who used a right-hand punch with telling effect on the champion. In the seventh Sage floored Reddick with one of his punches. Reddick was groggy when the eighth opened, but came back with something to spare. In the ninth and tenth Sage maintained his advantage.

Health restored by "Fruit-a-tives".

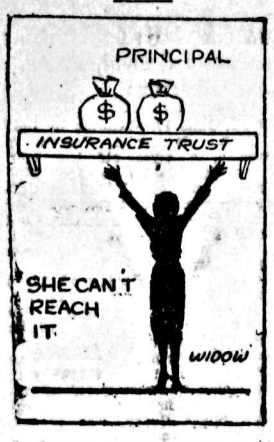
Insurance Trust Protects Widow From Herself



An insurance trust prevents a widow from sacrificing her estate in a generous attempt to help her relatives.

The average widow knows very little about her husband's business. When he passes away his life insurance money is likely to be her sole support.

If she receives a lump sum of money her relatives are coming to her for financial help, sooner or later. Perhaps Jimmy wants to go away to school, or Sarah would like a trip to the coast. Being decidedly human, the widow probably would not turn down every request, and gradually her principal would begin to melt away.

The insurance trust protects her from herself. She can't give her principal away. The trustee takes care of it, and gives her only the income, except in cases of emergency. If a relative can convince the trustee that a loan would be a sound and business-like proposition, he might get it, too. However, in that case the loan would not be in the so-called gift class which never returns. It would be paid at maturity like any other high-class loan, and there would be no sacrifices of the widow's principal. In short, she would be protected against giving away her own money.

ATLANTIC SUGAR LEADS AT TORONTO

Brazilian Tractor Takes Second Place; Atlantic Sugar Stock Scarce

TORONTO, June 19. — Atlantic Sugar common gave strong leadership on today's stock market, and Brazilian Traction occupied second place. A high mark for the day was reached by Atlantic Sugar in the final minutes of trading when 3¼ was touched and the market closed strong at 31 to 31⅛.

The net gain for the day amounted to 3¼ points.

Atlantic Sugar preferred was scarce and only 200 shares came out on the 6½ point advance to 73.

Brazilian closed strong at 57⅛ to 57¼. Twin City closed at 64 to 64½.

Other changes: B. C. Fishing, up ½; Canada Bread common, off ½ and the new common, off ½; C. P. R., up 1⅝; Canners preferred, up 1⅞; Winnipeg Electric common, off ⅝.

SPECULATORS BUY; WHEAT PRICES UP

CHICAGO, June 19.—Big speculative buying and higher prices in wheat today followed a report from a leading crop expert that chances are fully four to one for serious damage from black rust in North Dakota and the eastern half of the Canadian spring wheat belt. Closing quotations on wheat were strong, ¾c to 2¾c higher, July $1.56⅛ to $1.56½, and September $1.55¼ to $1.55⅜, corn unchanged to ¼c up, oats ½c to 1⅛c gain, and provisions showing 12c to 27c advance.

HOME RAILS ARE STRONG AT LONDON

Gilt Edged Stocks in Contrast; Proposed Loans Off for Time

LONDON, June 19.—(Canadian Press Cable)—The most interesting feature about the stock markets this week has been the moderate but unmistakable renewal of strength in all varieties of home rails. The revival is traceable to several causes.

Viscount Churchill, chairman of the Great Western Railway company, while alluding frankly to the unsatisfactory conditions with regard to the coal traffic, makes decidedly more favorable comment on the chances of the passenger and general merchandise receipts making a better showing.

Again, remarks made by Charles Cramp, secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, have probably tended to reduce shareholders in railways. "You cannot force your shipping and general products on other countries by means merely of a strike," he says. "As a nation we live by our exports, and we are too prone as trades unionists to think business begins and ends between our employers and ourselves."

Gilt-Edged Stocks Down.

While home rails are stronger, gilt-edged stocks present a striking contrast, being weak under the influence of the talk of a new loan with the stringency of short term credit provoking fears of a rise in the bank rate.

Three proposed loans for South Africa, West Africa and East Africa, have been postponed indefinitely, doubtless on official prompting from London.

CANADA WEST INDIES TRADE MEET IS OPEN

Premier King Welcomes Delegates From the West Indies

PLAN FOR NEW TRADE AGREEMENT

Possibility of Considerable Trade Between Two Countries, Say Speakers

OTTAWA, June 19.—(Canadian Press.)—The Canada-West Indies conference organized for the purpose of promoting a new trade agreement between the two countries, opened in the parliament this afternoon when Premier King delivered an address of welcome to delegates representing British Guiana, Barbados, Trinidad, Winward Islands; Bahams, British Honduras, Jamaica, Bermuda and Leeward Islands. The premier expressed his belief that it should be possible as a result of the conference to develop a very considerable trade between Canada and the British West Indies, two countries under the British flag.

"I sincerely hope that your visit to Canada," declared Premier King, "will be fraught with the greatest advantage to both parts of the empire, which we represent and that you will have a profitable time not only from the point of view of business matters, but also that you will have a pleasant visit." He hoped also that the conference would result in a friendship that would be enduring. Sir Alfred Shirlock, representing British Guiana, believed that the result of gathering "will be to bring trade relations closer together and that they will benefit both of us."

Volume Trade Increase

Hon. W. M. Morrison, Jamaica, felt that a vast increase in the volume of trade would be brought about, by approaching the subject, as was intended from a broad imperial viewpoint and in the interests of part of the British empire.

Hon. J. A. Robb, acting minister of finance, was chosen as chairman of the conference.

At the opening, Premier King expressed the appreciation of the government for the reception given to Hance J. Logan, M.P., when he visited the British West Indies last fall.

Flour and Sugar Trade

As a result of the treaty entered into in 1920, a large increase in the amount of flour exported to the islands had occurred, and now Canada enjoyes two-thirds of the total trade of the West Indies in that country. On the other hand, while Canada only imported 55,000 tons of sugar from the West Indies in 1920, she now imported 190,000 tons annually. He expressed the hope, furthermore, that a larger part of our imports, which entered the country from the islands and through the United States, would be imported directly, rather than indirectly.

Sir Alfred Sherlock stated that it was true that the treaty of 1913 had practically saved the West Indies from disaster. There was good will on the part of Canada and friendship and gratitude on the part of the West Indies.

Hon. W. M. Morrison stated that a frank exchange of views relative to trade matters would have a beneficial effect on friendships.

Hon. J. A. Robb agreed that there were many items in respect to which increased trade could be developed between the two countries.

NO INDICATION OF LAND SEEN BY AMUNDSEN

spontaneously hailed with hurra'is. The six men on the Sjoeliv waved their hands. Soon, the Sjoeliv was alongside the Hobby and then men disembarked.

"The whole pier was quickly black with people who enthusiastically cheered.

"The departure of the Heimdall for Wellman's bay was set as 2 o'clock in the morning and as the members of the patrol expedition began to return to the ship, a man suddenly came running up, yelling: 'The Amundsen boys are here.'

"The members of the patrol called it a poor joke, but then they heard the cheering on the pier and discovered the newly-arrived little vessel. They jumped aboard the Sjoeliv where the six polar fliers, dirty and bearded, but living and safe, were nearly mobbed by sailors and laborers who cheered and shouted.

The patrol expedition's members embraced the returned fliers; all were laughing or crying with joy. All chatted incoherently. They were only able to say: 'It cannot be true, we must be dreaming.'

"Then all went together to the house of the director of the coal company where the national anthem was sung by the crowd."

ASKS LEGISLATION STOP RUM RUNNING

Reverend Gentlemen Wait Upon Premier for Prohibitionists; Matter Will Be Considered

OTTAWA, June 19.—The enactment of effective legislation that would put an "end to the national disgrace of rum running upon our international border," and the prohibition in any province of the manufacture of such liquor, the sale of which is prohibited by provincial law, were urged upon Premier King this afternoon by a delegation headed by Rev. Dr. T. Albert Moore and Rev. Ben Spence Toronto. The premier informed the delegation that he would give the matter sympathetic consideration.

It was declared by the delegates as representing the prohibitionists of Canada that the solution of problems arising out of the evils of alcoholism, was only to be found in complete, nation-wide prohibition and that there should be progressive development of legislation, provincial and federal toward that goal.

EIGHT NURSES GET DIPLOMAS ON GRADUATING

Class Presents Hospital Board With Union Jack

ARCHDEACON GIVES ANNUAL ADDRESS

Mayor Presents Special Prizes; Dance Winds Up Evening

Eight fair young nurses, becomingly bearing large bouquets of roses, last night received their diplomas, having completed their three years' training in the Kootenay Lake General hospital. The graduation took place last night in the Memorial hall in the presence of many friends.

The program opened with the entrance of the training class, followed by the graduation class, consisting of Misses Hilda Minton, Nora Smith, Gertrude Erickson, Florence Whalley, Marion Yonge, Helena Codd, Nellie Mills and Doris Bailley.

Rev. J. E. Tyner then gave the invocation, and in an interesting talk wished the girls every success.

George F. Motion, president of the hospital board, made a brief introductory speech, and called on Ven. Archdeacon Graham to address.

Archdeacon Addresses Class

Mr. Graham emphasized the perseverence necessary in the nursing profession, the one long way of toil and training effort required to fit a nurse to occupy a position, a higher one than which could not be occupied by a woman. Nursing was a position indicating service to mankind, and he wished the class well in filling their obligations in the profession.

After seeing their apprenticeship, they were now entering a new relationship, that of stewardship, and a greater responsibility of service. It was a field of opportunity.

He spoke of the disciplinary training during a nurse's first three years, and emphasized the necessity of truth and secrecy in their work, and urged the cultivation of self-discipline. The whole profession was honored by faithfulness in stewardship, and he urged the young graduates to be true to the ideal of the profession, the welfare of the patients and of others.

In closing, he asked God's blessing on them.

Miss Hilda Minton here rendered a solo, and responded to an enthusiastic encore.

Mr. Motion then presented the eight graduates with diplomas, after which he presented them with graduation medals.

Miss Ford gave a solo which was loudly applauded.

Repeat Nurses' Pledge

Then followed a very interesting ceremony, the Florence Nightingale pledge being read by Rev. J. H. Wright, and repeated in unison by the graduating class.

Mayor John Bell then presented the girls with the special medals and prizes of the year. The prize for practical nursing was won by Helena Codd and Marion Yonge. The L. E. Borden prize for materia medica was won by Florence May Whalley. The J. H. Bennett prize for obstetrics was won by Marion Yonge. The Wilson Herald medal for ears, nose and throat was won by Helena Codd.

Flag is Presented

Miss Nellie Mills rendered a pleasing song.

Dr. L. E. Borden was next on to speak on behalf of the graduating class. He said that the young ladies had done honor and were loyal to their fathers and mothers in winning the highest position that any woman could hold. They had decided to show loyalty to the hospital by presenting the board with a gift, a Union Jack.

At the moment of the presentation the national anthem was sung, after which Mr. Motion, on behalf of the board, thanked the class for the gift.

Dr. Borden then wished the young women the best of success, and hoped that they would live long and live loyal to the flag.

The remainder of the evening wound up with a very pleasant dance.

MEDIUM-DUTY vs. HIGH-SPEED MOTORS

A medium-duty motor does a great deal less work—i.e., a lesser number of revolutions per mile—with much less wear and tear on your motor. In other words, the high-speed motor does many more revolutions in covering the same mileage.

Dodge and Nash Cars

Are equipped with medium-duty motors and you can thus be assured of longer life and more permanent satisfaction than with a car equipped with a high-speed motor—and you are guaranteed all the reserve power you require.

We are distributors in Nelson district for DODGE and NASH Cars, and will be pleased to demonstrate them to you at any time.
