GREAT COMMONER PASSES IN HIS SLEEP AT DAYTON

RADE SUBSIDY NOW TALK IN COAL TROUBLE

ight Tide Coal Supply Over Difficult Period, Say Authorities

REMIER AND KING WORKING HARD

age Conditions Termed "Disgrace and Infernal," by Former Minister

LONDON, July 26.—Premier Baldwin gave up his usual week-end at Chequers Court to devote himself to the solution of the coal problem. The King, equally concerned in the efforts to avert what is universally considered would be a national disaster, with his secretary, Lord Stamfordham, to Downing street today, where he had a conference of nearly an hour with the premier and W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the admiralty, who is acting as mediator in the controversy between the mine owners and miners.

Lord Stamfordham asked for and received the fullest details of all the aspects of the dispute for the information of the King, who on all occasions is ready to throw his influence into the scale in favor of industrial peace.

Premier Baldwin employed almost a whole day in consultation with his colleagues and experts in order to prepare himself for his meeting tomorrow with a committee from the trade union congress.

Nothing further has developed regarding the government's intentions. If the rumor has gained strength that a temporary government subsidy for the coal trade would be provided.

The idea of such trade subsidies is very popular in the country, but if the present case the governmental aid might be tacitly accepted as a temporary expedient in tiding the coal supply over a difficult period and assisting British coal to compete in foreign markets without the necessity of reducing the miners' wages, which that people readily admit could only be reduced at the cost of hardship to the miners and their families.

Owners' Proposals "Infernal"

Very plain speaking was indulged today by former ministers of the Labor government. Stephen Walsh, formerly secretary of war, speaking at Wigan, said that the coal owners, according to their own figures, made an average profit of more than £16,000,000 yearly since the 1921 lockout, yet they professed the impossibility of paying present wages. Walsh characterized the wage conditions of the miners as a "disgrace to civilization" and the mine owners' proposals as "infernal."

Emanuel Shinwool, former parliamentary secretary of the mines department, addressing a miners' demonstration near Durham today, declared that, whether the government liked it or not, economic pressure was forcing the country toward national ownership of mines.

Meeting on Wednesday

A conference of miners and mine owners has been called for Wednesday and unless this should prove successful there seems little hope of averting a stoppage on August 1. Apparently the miners will not countenance even the suggestion of continuing the present agreement from day to day, but the miners' federation will ask for one month's grace, failing which the men will lay down their tools next Saturday.

One aspect of the problem has caused great anxiety; this is whether, in the event of a coal strike, other industries might be involved. There have been mutterings of a wages storm in the railway world.

General Labor Upheaval

J. T. Cramp, secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, in a speech at Woodford, Hampshire, today, made reference to the decision of the railwaymen and transport workers to refuse to move blackleg coal. He said he wished to tell them frankly that the matter might not end there. If they were suspended or dismissed for refusing to handle coal, all of the railwaymen would be embroiled. It would be the nearest approach they have seen to a general industrial upheaval and no one man could say what it would be the ultimate outcome.

J. Cook, secretary of the miners, interviewed yesterday, said: "We are making all the necessary preparations for a stoppage, including arrangements to feed the miners, their wives and families. At the moment I can see no hope of averting the struggle unless the government insists upon the withdrawal of the owners' notices and proposals."

Frank Hodges, secretary of the National Miners' federation, when interviewed, expressed great relief that the mine owners and miners were again in joint consultation. "You ask me if a stoppage is inevitable. Most certainly not," he said. "If the parties meet Wednesday in a joint conference to consider a possible agreement, notices to terminate contracts should immediately be withdrawn by the owners for a reasonable period, and the workmen allowed to carry on, under the old terms, until an acceptable solution is found."

VANCOUVER, July 26.—Found unconscious in a room, Mrs. Jack McCarthy bookkeeper in the Dominion hotel admitted having taken eight opium tablets. Her condition is critical.

Who threatened to resign as first lord of the admiralty in England as a result of divergent opinions on the question of naval construction. He disapproved of Churchill's plans for cruiser construction, but a compromise was reached.

BANDITS FIRE AT SALESMAN FERNIE ROAD

Puts His Car Through Fusilade of Bullets Sixteen Miles From Fernie

FERNIE, B. C., July 26.—A. B. Steeves, travelling salesman of the Swift Canadian company, Edmonton, arrived safely at his headquarters here early this morning after having run the gauntlet in his roadster through a fusillade of bullets fired at him by a couple of bandits.

He had just completed his southern Alberta trip, and as usual was returning to this city for the week-end. While passing Sparwood, a railway siding about 16 miles east of Fernie, two armed men jumped into the road and commanded him to stop.

Stepped on the Gas

Instead of complying with this order, Steeves stepped on the gas and passed the would-be robbers at a very high speed, the men fired several shots at the car after it had passed them but without inflicting any damage. On arrival here Mr. Steeves reported the matter to the British Columbia provincial police, who now have a number of officers scouring the country surrounding the scene of the attempted hold up, in an effort to capture the bandits, but up to the present time no trace of them has been found.

Offices for Fruit Probe Opened in Vancouver

VANCOUVER, July 26.—Offices have been opened here by J. C. McRuer, appointed by the Dominion government to probe the fruit combine.

SECOND INTERVIEWS

J. A. Gilker, Nelson—The sandy stretch near China creek caused some grief to motorists Sunday. One car, in trying to pass another, got itself right across the road, tail to the bank, and unable to move, and other drivers had to shove it to one side to clear the passage.

A. G. Larson, manager, Lucky Jim mine—While it is true we are mining from the recent lead discovery, the interesting thing at present is the excellent performance of the Rosebery mill, which is turning out a 40 per cent zinc concentrate. Besides rearranging the processes of the mill to some extent, we added one table to the concentration battery, and one cell to the flotation plant.

Mrs. W. A. Ward, Outlet hotel, Procter—It is the consensus of opinion among Procter women readers of The Daily News that Elenore Meherin should not have killed off Katie in "The Road to Love." Such a sad ending has disappointed us all. She should have been cured.

A. G. Gallup, Procter—There is something uncanny the matter with the Procter light system served by the Nelson juice, at times. When the system went out Friday new fuses were put in. Later the lower portion of the system, from the transformer on, went out again, while the upper part stood up. Then, without anything further being done, and for no accountable reason, the lower portion came back again to normal operation, with the lights on as usual.

CROWE TAKES STATE'S CASE SCOTT TRIAL

Prosecuting Attorney Fresh From Vacation; Claims Plea a Trick

SCOTT'S MOTHER PAYS FIRST VISIT

Defence That Scott Developed Delusion That Everyone Prosecuting Him

CHICAGO, July 26.—A friend and an enemy came to Chicago yesterday to help and to fight Russell Scott, twice saved from the gallows within the past 10 days, almost at the last hour set for his executions.

Mrs. Rilla May Scott of Cleveland, mother of the former Canadian financier sentenced to hang for the murder of Joseph Maurer, 19-year-old drug clerk, came to add her help to that of Scott's wife and father who have worked unremittingly for months in his behalf.

At the same time Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, returned from a vacation to take charge of the state's case when Scott is brought into court on a sanity hearing, the latest move to save his life.

Defence attorneys spent the week-end in searching facts to uphold the contention that Scott has become insane while in jail, a plea that won him a stay of execution from Judge J. B. David.

Mother's First Visit

The opening clash will occur Monday when Judge David will convene a branch of the criminal court to consider a plea by Scott based on the petition filed by Attorney William Scott Stewart for the aged father, Thomas Scott.

Scott's mother tonight paid her first visit to her son since he entered the jail 15 months ago.

Accompanied by the condemned man's wife and father, the mother went to the county jail and Scott was taken to them in a visitor's room. Scott and his mother wept as they embraced while photographer's flashlights boomed. The quartette started to hold a private conference when Scott suddenly said: "I want to go back to the cell." and calling out "Good night mother" over his shoulder, hurried out ahead of his guards.

The mother, father and wife then then left the jail, after promising to send Scott clothing and food tomorrow.

Attempt "To Trick the Law"

State's Attorney Crowe tonight characterized the latest move of the defence "a deliberate attempt to trick the law," and issued the following statement:

"Scott is no more crazy than I am. We are going to fight this foolish claim of the defence and demand that the law be carried out."

William Scott Stewart, chief defence counsel for Scott and the man who saved him from hanging Friday morning, said tonight that Scott will be the principal witness for the defence in the insanity hearing.

The defence, he said, will not be so much a claim that Scott has developed "prison psychosis" as that the condemned man has developed the delusion that everyone is trying to prosecute him.

BATTLING SIKI FOUND STABBED

Sengalese Boxer Picked Up in New York "Hell's Kitchen"; Critical

NEW YORK, July 26. — Battling Siki, the Senegalese pugilist, who came into prominence two years ago by knocking out Georges Carpentier, was removed to a hospital today in a serious condition from a stab wound in his neck.

Siki was found by Detective J. Porter early this morning lying on the sidewalk at Ninth avenue and 41st street, a section known locally as "Hell's Kitchen." He was unconscious from loss of blood, and up to a late hour the police had been unable to obtain his story.

Joseph Hanahan, 25 years old, arrested by Detective Porter near the scene, was held in $10,000 bail on a charge of felonious assault.

JOCK O'HARA HURT WHEN THROWN RACES

SASKATOON, July 26.—Suffering from concussion of the brain, Jockey O'Hara is in hospital here as the result of being thrown from his horse No Chance, in a six-furlong event here Saturday, the last day of the racing held in connection with the Saskatoon fair. O'Hara was kicked in the head. His condition is not thought to be serious.

Bryan in Last Speech Declared Attacks at Trial Were by Enemies

WINCHESTER, Tenn., July 26.—William Jennings Bryan was derisive of evolutionists in an address here Saturday. He declared the attacks made on him at the Dayton trial of J. T. Scopes were the outcropping of a fight his enemies had been carrying on in the dark and said he was benefited by it. He spoke of the evolution controversy as a "crusade for the enlightenment of the people."

Asserting that Darwinism "has a chilling influence on students," Mr. Bryan said: "When a Christian wants to teach Christianity he has to build his own college, but the atheist expects to usurp public colleges and schools."

THUGS BREAK MAN'S BACK IN NIAGARA FALLS

Relieve Him of Valuables, Throw Him Down Bank; Cannot Recover

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 26.—Albert E. Dunk, 35, a Toronto man, was found this afternoon with his back broken. He was still alive, and was taken to a hospital, where he told of having been robbed by two men and then thrown over the steep banks of the Niagara river on Friday night. He told police he had dragged himself half a mile from the place where he fell on the side of the embankment to the spot where some Toronto tourists picked him up this afternoon. He had lost the use of his legs and had to pull himself along with his hands. It was indicated at the hospital tonight that his recovery is impossible.

Mr. Dunk told the police that, following a drinking party in a dive on the United States side, he returned late Friday night in a taxi with another man picked up by the driver. On the lonely road of the Niagara glen the car was stopped and all got out. The two men knocked him down, robbed him of $40 and his watch, then swung him over the cliff.

Dunk landed halfway down the steep incline, catching in the crotch of a tree. There he lay all Friday night until Saturday morning, when he became thirsty. He found he could use only his fingers. He dragged himself to where water was trickling, and scooped a hole in the ground so that he could get some. There he lay all day Saturday and this afternoon.

ELEVEN DEAD IN ACCIDENTS OF WEEK-END

Seven Drownings Reported From East; Lightning and Auto Crashes

OTTAWA, July 26.—Ten fatalities were reported in eastern Canada over the week-end. Of these seven were drowning. An unconfirmed report stated that a Toronto couple, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walsh, were drowned in Stoney lake, near Peterboro, when their motor launch took fire.

Ollie Goodale, Buffalo, was seized with cramps while swimming in Hamilton bay. Edwin Adams, 20, Hamilton, was drowned at Long Beach, Lake Erie. Edna Morley, 19, was drowned in the Detroit river. The bodies of an unknown man and woman have been washed ashore in Lake Ontario, near St. Catharines. Bruce Donald, 16, was struck and killed by lightning on his father's farm, near Forest, Ont. John Bogue, 18, died in hospital here from injuries received when he dived 25 feet into four feet of water.

WINNIPEG, July 27.—One automobile fatality was recorded here during the week-end. Milton McLean, 5 years, was killed while playing with a companion on a roadway near his house. The owner of the automobile, W. H. Stubbington, whose 14-year-old daughter, it is alleged, was driving the car, is held on a manslaughter charge.

VICTORIA, July 26.—All municipalities in the province are being asked to forward their views on town planning at once. A comprehensive bill is planned for next session.

DOUBTFUL IF ELECTION VOTE WILL BE FIXED

Special Cabinet Meeting Just for Exchange of Information

PREMIER STATES NO HASTE IN MATTER

Appointments Stand Over, However, Cabinet Changes Are Necessary

OTTAWA, July 26. — While the meeting of the cabinet, which has been called for tomorrow afternoon, derives a special interest from the rumors of impending dissolution and a special election, it is very improbable that it will result in any decision on these important matters. Premier King and the majority of members of his government, some of whom have been away from the capital, will attend. There will doubtless be an exchange of information which has been gathered during the interval since the prorogation of parliament, and views for and against an election this autumn will be presented. It is rumored that there is not unanimity among the members of the government as to the wisest course to pursue. In this event the final decision must be made by the premier, and he has said that it will not be made hastily.

Appointments to Stand Over

In the meantime the government is allowing a whole sheaf of appointments to stand over. But there is one question which must receive the attention of cabinet before very long. Sir Henry's three-year term as president of the Canadian National railways will expire in October. His contract must be renewed or his successor found. Although rumors that he has been reengaged at a largely increased salary have been declared foundationless, the present government will doubtless seek a renewal of the contract. Whether or not an increased salary will be one of the features of the new agreement, should one be made, remains to be seen.

Cabinet Changes Necessary

Whatever be the decision in regard to an election, Premier King is confronted with the necessity of making some changes in his cabinet before long. Right Hon. W. S. Fielding, finance minister, has been unable to attend to his duties, and he will probably retire. Hon. J. A. Robb, the acting finance minister, will relinquish the immigration portfolio and devote his attention to finance. Thus there will be one vacancy at least, and it is said that the premier is anxious to strengthen himself in the west by filling it from the prairies. One or two of the other ministers are quite willing to retire if they can be accommodated either in the senate or elsewhere, it is rumored. There are nine seats to fill in the upper chamber, as well as a vacancy on the railway commission, some in the judiciary, and a post at Washington.

The decision in regard to an election will probably not come for some weeks. The result in New Brunswick will doubtless have a bearing on it.

Woman Guilty of Murdering Her Son; Life Imprisonment

CROWN POINT, Ind., July 26.—Mrs. Anna Cunningham of Gary, Ind., yesterday was found guilty of murdering her 10-year-old son, Walter, and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Cunningham is under indictment in connection with the death of two other children. She was accused of poisoning the two.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, July 26.—The royal train arrived here today after a 10 weeks' tour of the Union. The Prince of Wales is proceeding by automobile today through the most picturesque district of the province. There will be a complete absence of ceremonial in Capetown during the prince's stay prior to his embarkation Wednesday for South America.

Envelope Trick Fails at Coast; Victim Hits Crook and Holds Him

VANCOUVER, July 26.—Alleged to have tried to work the money envelope game to defraud K. A. Ray, tailor, of $425, Jack Goodman was arrested here after an exciting battle. Goodman allegedly offered to sell some cloth cheap and after making the sale suggested that the money be left in an envelope in the clerk's control until the cloth was delivered.

Later he said the cloth could not be secured and handed back the envelope. Ray immediately opened it and finding no money knocked him down and held him for the police.

Heart Attack Kills Prominent Figure

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

Who died yesterday afternoon while asleep. Mr. Bryan obtained much publicity in the Scopes evolution trial. Mr. Bryan denounced the Darwinian theory as the greatest enemy of religion, and declared that in the schools it was undermining Christianity. "I don't object to scientific truth," he said, "for no truth disturbs religion. What we object to is for any scientist to put forth his guess and demand that we substitute it for the word of God. Evolution is an enemy of the Bible, and furnishes a respectable excuse for men to deny the Bible." Among his writings on the subject were "The Menace of Darwinism" and "The Bible and Its Enemies."

LAST TRIBUTE PAID MEMORY OF CARDINAL

Expressive Ceremonies Attended by Representatives Catholic Church

QUEBEC, July 26. — Expressive of great solemnity and dignity the ceremonies attendant upon the burial of the late Most Rev. Louis Nazaire Begin, the cardinal archbishop of Quebec, which took place in the crypt of the Basilica here yesterday, were carried out in the presence of one of the most distinguished assemblies that ever gathered in this city. Representatives of the hierarchy of the Roman Catholic church in North America, the personal delegate of the pope, quotas from the religious orders in the province of Quebec, the administrative and political life of the Dominion, province and city, were present to pay a last tribute to the memory of the deceased prelate, while, additional to them, the city was crowded with mourners who completely blocked the great square in front of the church while the funeral service was in progress.

The body of the cardinal had been solemnly conveyed from the palace, where it had lain in state for nearly a week, to the Basilica on Friday afternoon, and it rested there until Saturday morning when, following the final service, interment was made.

"Heart was broken" in Scopes trial, declares pastor.

Police captain declares threats were made on Bryan's life.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 26.—William Jennings Bryan died this afternoon.

He was found dead in his bed about 4:30 o'clock. He had partaken of a hearty dinner, and had stated that he was feeling well but would take a short rest. The Bryans were stopping at the residence of Richard Rogers, and it is understood that no one was in the home at the time of his death but Mrs. Bryan.

A. B. Andrews, a neighbor, was the first to view the body.

Chauffeur Finds Him

DAYTON, Tenn., July 26.—William Jennings Bryan, three times presidential nominee of the Democratic party, and known the world over for his eloquence, died here this afternoon.

The end came while the great commoner was asleep and was attributed by physicians to apoplexy. He had retired to his room shortly after eating a heavy dinner to take a short rest. Mrs. Bryan sent the family chauffeur, Jim McCartney, to awaken him about 4:30, and it was learned then that he was dead.

Dr. W. F. Thomason and Dr. A. C. Broyles, who examined the body, expressed the opinion that Mr. Bryan had been dead between 30 and 45 minutes before they arrived.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed late tonight, but Mrs. Bryan indicated interment would be in Arlington cemetery.

Mr. Bryan, who was a colonel of the Third Nebraska volunteers during the Spanish-American war, on several occasions had expressed a desire to be buried in Arlington.

On Eve of Crusade

Mr. Bryan's death came on the eve of another crusade he had planned to carry before the American people—a battle against modernism. He returned to Dayton this morning after having made addresses yesterday at Jasper and Winchester, Tenn., and after having finished arrangements for the early publication of the speech he was to have made in closing the trial of John T. Scopes, who recently was found guilty of violating Tennessee's anti-evolution law.

Despite the strenuous program Mr. Bryan had been following as a member of the prosecution staff in the Scopes case, and as leader of the fundamentalists, he appeared in excellent health.

Just before Mr. Bryan entered his room to rest, he told his wife he had never felt better in his life and was ready to go before the country to wage his fight in behalf of fundamentalism. About 4:30 o'clock Mrs. Bryan said she felt her husband had slept long enough, so she sent the chauffeur, who also was his personal attendant, to wake him. McCartney shook Mr. Bryan twice before he noticed the latter was not breathing. The physicians and A. B. Andrews, a neighbor, were summoned hurriedly.

Mrs. Bryan accepted the shock bravely and remained calm.

"I am happy that my husband died

Arms Limitation Growing Slowly

"The tendency among nations to limit armaments is growing very slowly," declared Gen. Sir Frederick Maurice, director of military operations for Great Britain in the Great War, who has just reached this continent via New York. "Before nations limit their military establishments," he said, "they will have to feel secure, and free from sudden attack. There is growing, however, a sense of disarmament, but I do not expect that the time will come when nations will completely disarm."

COMMONER DIED BROKEN HEART STATES PASTOR

without suffering and in peace," she said.

Acute Dilatation of Heart

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 26.—William Jennings Bryan died as the result of acute dilatation of the heart, in the opinion of Dr. Raymond Wallace, Chattanooga physician and surgeon, who was consulted by Mr. Bryan in Dayton during the Scopes trial and who made an examination of the commoner here Friday.

Many Threats at Life

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 26.—Capt. Marion Perkins, in charge of a squad of Chattanooga police on duty at Dayton during the Scopes trial, said tonight that many threats had been made on the life of William Jennings Bryan.

It was also reported here by the undertaker who handled the body at Dayton that an inquest is to be held.

Darrow Expresses Sorrow

ELKMONT, Tenn., July 26.—"I am pained to hear of the death of Hon. William Jennings Bryan," Clarence Darrow, Chicago attorney and cross-examiner of the commoner in the recent trial of John T. Scopes at Dayton, last Monday, declared this evening, when informed of the death of the notable American. "I differed with him on many occasions, but always respected his sincerity and devotion. I am very sorry for his family and his friends who loved him."

Testimony Broke His Heart

NEW YORK, July 26.—William Jennings Bryan's own testimony at the Dayton evolution trial resulted in "the breaking of his heart" the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Potter, retiring pastor of the West Side Unitarian church, who went to Dayton to testify as a modernist, but was not allowed to take the stand said tonight.

"Mr. Bryan was a great man who lived in a world of his own imagination, but that world had long since gone. The Scopes trial signed the death warrant for Mr. Bryan."

Washington Stunned

WASHINGTON, July 27.—News of the death of William Jennings Bryan came to Washington with stunning suddenness and at a time when his name was blazing in headlines much as it did at the height of his political career 20 years ago.

His efforts at Dayton, where he had fought with great spirit over the question of evolution, had given friends here the impression that he was in vigorous health, and it had been freely predicted that his voice would ring out when the next congress assembled in a movement to throw in senate and house debate the cause for which he had fought in Tennessee.

None would venture to predict the political effect of the death of the commoner.

On Eve of Crusade

DENVER, Colo., July 26.—William Jennings Bryan's death today in Dayton, Tenn., came almost on the eve of what the great commoner had looked forward to as the announcement of "the crowning glory of his life"—a trip with hundreds of followers to the holy land, there to follow as nearly as possible the exact footsteps of Christ.

This was revealed by Wayne C. Williams, former Colorado attorney-general and personal friend of Mr. Bryan, upon receipt of the news of Mr. Bryan's death.

President of the National Dry Federation

Mr. Bryan's leadership of the Democratic party definitely was broken at the national convention at San Francisco in 1920, when he was defeated in his efforts to have a dry plank included in the platform. Throughtout the campaign he remained silent and afterward said it was the first time in 40 years that he had made no speeches for a Democratic presidential candidate. The reason for his action, he said, was that he did not agree with James M. Cox, the party's candidate, who was defeated by Warren G. Harding, and that he did not want to debate with the candidate of his own party.

After his defeat on the convention floor relative to the proposed dry plank, Mr. Bryan said: "My heart is in the grave with our cause. I must pause until it comes back to me."

Suggested Wilson Resign

Soon after the election of President Harding, Mr. Bryan suggested that President Wilson resign because the people had voted against the League of Nations, one of the dominant issues of the campaign, and in favor of an association of nations as proposed by Mr. Harding. The former secretary of state proposed that President Wilson immediately turn over the office to Vice-president Marshall with the understanding that the latter appoint Mr. Harding as secretary of state at the beginning of the new congress and then resign so that Mr. Harding immediately could become president, and put into effect his association of nations.

Having become a permanent legal resident of Miami, Fla., Mr. Bryan was elected from that state a delegate to the Democratic national convention at New York in 1924. He took a prominent part in the proceedings, but his influence was greatly curtailed as compared with that which he exerted at previous national conventions of the party. His advocacy of the nomination of William G. McAdoo had no effect in breaking the deadlock which continued for nearly two weeks between Mr. McAdoo and Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, the contest eventually being ended when the delegates switched to John W. Davis, who was nominated.

Urged Prayer

Mr. Bryan was a member of the resolutions committee and at one of the sessions when the Ku Klux Klan issue was being discussed he dropped to his knees and urged the other members of the committee to join with him in prayer that they might be guided in the right light. The former secretary took part in the campaign, but was not as active as he had been in some previous ones. His brother, Charles W. Bryan, then governor of Nebraska, was the Democratic nominee for vice-president.

Easing up on his political activities with the 1920 national campaign, Mr. Bryan took a greater interest in the affairs of the Presbyterian church, and devoted more of his time to lecturing. In 1923 he was defeated for moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church after an exciting contest. He was elected vice moderator at the general assembly of 1924.

Opposed Darwin Theory

An avowed opponent of the Darwin theory of evolution, Mr. Bryan made many addresses on the subject. Speaking in 1923 before the legislature of West Virginia, which was considering a bill to prohibit the teaching of the Darwin theory in the schools of that state, Mr. Bryan said:

"School teachers paid by taxation should not be permitted to teach under the guise of science or philosophy anything that undermines faith in God, impairs belief in the Bible or discredits the son of God and the saviour of the world. Evolutionists rob the saviour of the glory of the virgin birth, the majesty of his deity and the triumph of his resurrection. They weaken faith in the Bible by discrediting the miracles and the appernatural and by eliminating from the Bible all that conflicts with their theories. They render the book a scrap of paper."

Later in an address in New York Mr. Bryan denounced the Darwinian theory as the greatest enemy of religion, and declared that in the schools it was undermining Christianity. "I don't object to scientific truth," he said, "for no truth disturbs religion. What we object to is for any scientist to put forth his guess and demand that we substitute it for the word of God. Evolution is an enemy of the Bible and furnishes a respectable excuse for men to deny the Bible." Among his writings on the subject were, "The Menace of Darwinism," and "The Bible and Its Enemies."

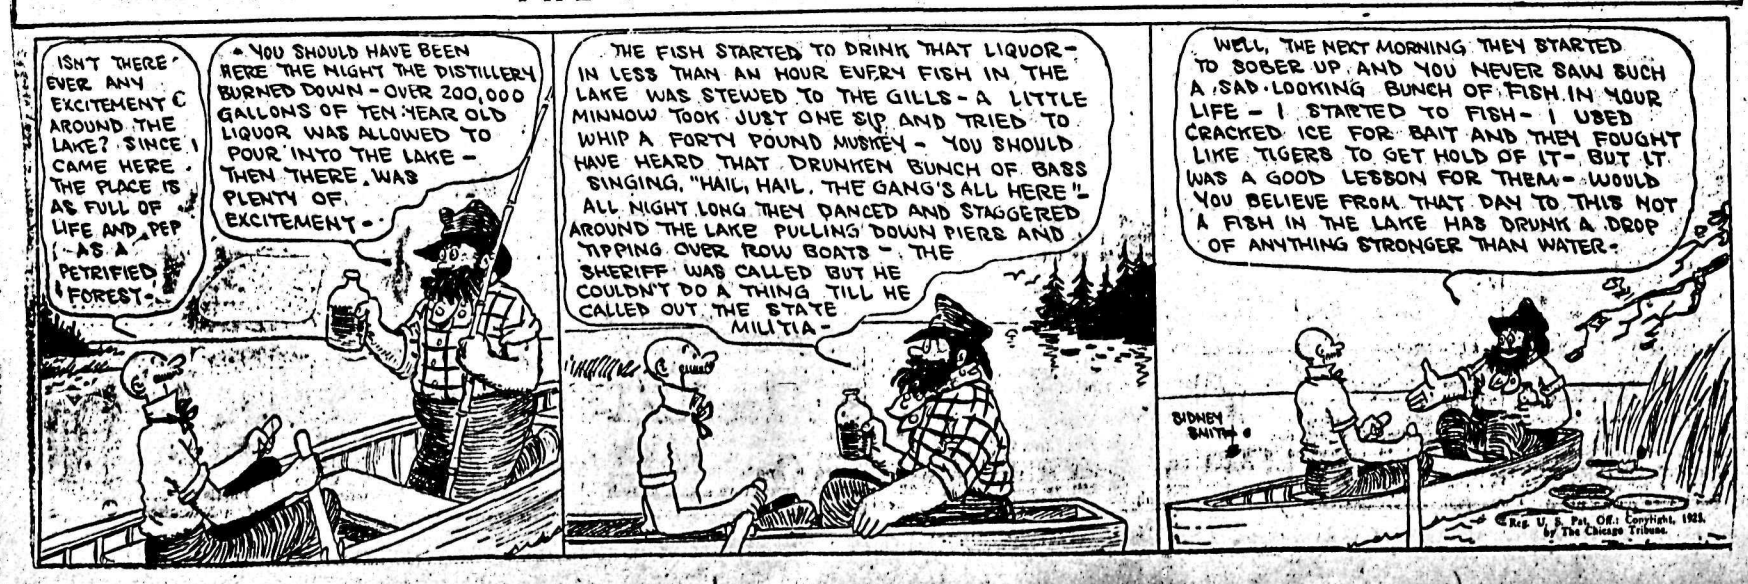
THE GUMPS—THE CURSE OF DRINK



'ROAD TO LOVE'

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Nearly noon—girls and men coming from the rooms. At the turn Denny stood. Dunlap's door opened—a momentary fire raging through every pulse, then an icy quiet. Dunlap, hat on the back of his head, coming toward him. Denny stepped out.

"I want to see you, Dunlap. Now."

Dunlap veered with a quick, side movement, raising the whispering voice loudly: "Excuse me, Mr. Brooks. I'm in a hurry. Come again."

"Now, Dunlap! I said now! Take your choice!" Denny jammed the pistol against Dunlap's stomach.

Dunlap's mouth opened — no sound came.

Denny pushed him with the pistol: "Walk back to your office, Dunlap. One outcry — it's your last."

Dunlap's face grew yellow—a ghastly yellow. The flesh of his double chin quivered. He could scarcely force himself along the corridor.

Denny walked next him, a step behind. "Go into your private office, Dunlap. Tell your stenographer to leave. Tell her not to return. Quick."

The soft hands, hanging limp, were shaking. In his efforts to turn the knob it rattled so, that the girl opened the door. She had her hat on. Dunlap stared at her saying in a gasp: "Oh, Miss Rudolph! Going to lunch?"

"Yes. Do you want me to wait?"

He hurried past her to the door of his private office, went in and slouched a moment at his desk. Denny said in a harsh, scarcely audible tone, "Tell her to leave, and not to return!"

Dunlap picked himself up and went to the door: "Go now, Miss Rudolph. You needn't return this afternoon."

"Why—oh—thank you!"

When the door closed on her Denny walked Dunlap to it. "Lock it. Now lock this one. If the phone rings don't answer it. Sit down there."

The yellow eyebrows cocked; perspiration oozed from the bald, head, ran down the temples. But Dunlap managed to say: "Amazing, Mr. Brooks! Amazing! I don't understand. Rather crude method—"

"Then understand, Dunlap, I've got the goods on you. One lie and it's your last. You're dealing with a man ready to shoot you if he has to hang a thousand times. There's not a power on earth can stop me. You might as well understand that.

"Now write down the communications that passed between you and Murray Anson about S. Macey."

Dunlap stared, fighting desperately to draw his breath without loud, chugging sounds: "Communications? Illegal methods, Mr. Brooks. I must warn you—"

Denny whipped out the pistol: "Is this legal, Dunlap? Maybe not! But it kills. Want to try it? Now be careful. Legal be damned, and you too, at the first lie. I mean it!"

The little color that had swept back to Dunlap's cheeks dropped away; he slumped in the chair as though his bones were crumpling. Denny pushed pen and paper before him: "Write, Dunlap. Pull yourself up. You can't save Anson now! I've got him. You've got one chance. Spill it all and be quick about it."

Dunlap took up the pen. "Well—well—amazing—" the point spattered over the page—

"Quick, Dunlap — I'll give you just ten seconds to get started on that. How many communications—what was their contents—where are they now?"

But the hand knocked with such violence the letters were illegible.

"How many, Dunlap?"

"I don't remember."

"About how many?"

"Five."

"Are they in this office?"

Dunlap's head wobbled.

"Where are they?"

"Home."

"All of them?"

"Lost one."

"S. Macey was sent up there by you and Anson to wreck the project? Answer!"

A throttled: "Yes."

"You sent the $3000 to Martin Loop. Who carried the money? Give me the real name, Dunlap, and the real address."

"Jake Bradford—Whitney building."

"Where are the papers about that?"

"No papers."

"Who poured nitric acid on the cable?"

"Not that, Mr. Brooks, I didn't do that! Not murder!" The pale blue eyes were bulging, Dunlap's jaw sagged.

"Who did it, Dunlap? Careful! I've got the goods here. The name—quick"—

"Nikoli Blumens—he did it, against orders—not then"—

"Against orders! When was he to pour the acid? Quick, Dunlap." Looking at the slumped, ashen face, the darting eyes, hearing that ghastly admission, a savagery burst in Denny's mind. He came nearer to Dunlap, shoved down to him, ready to kill him. They had poured the acid! They had murdered! "When? Who gave the orders?"

"Mistake—unfortunate, Mr. Brooks. Frightful mistake. Against orders."

"Whose orders?"

"Mine."

"What were your orders?"

"When no one was around—no one. Mistake—horrible mistake. Can't explain—unfortunate!"

"But you paid Blumens the money, didn't you?"

Dunlap gulped, twisting his hands like a maniac. His collar wilted with the heat of his neck.

"You paid the money, Dunlap. How—with check? Where is Blumens now?"

"Currency. Lives on Folsom Street."

"And the papers about this—letters from Anson."

"Only one. Lost it, too."

"Where?"

"Had them in black notebook."

"How much did you pay?"

"A thousand dollars."

"Don't move, Dunlap." Denny levelled the pistol. With his free hand, reached the phone, calling Joan, telling her to bring Stephen and Jerome Cummings with her, to knock twice and then slip a white card under the door that he might be sure it was she.

There was some one at the outer door now—knocking, twisting the knob. Dunlap made a move, gripped the chair: "Important—very important, Mr. Brooks."

"And Old Baldy — you gave him orders to warn me, Dunlap? You did this deliberately to make it appear I had blundered?"

Another nod.

"Look here, Dunlap. You've got more papers from Anson. Now I'll have a man here in a moment. He is going out for those papers. I'll give him half an hour to get them."

Dunlap raised himself in the chair, dropped back.

"You write out an order telling your wife to deliver those papers to the messenger—to deliver every one of them."

"Away—my wife is away. No one home. I'll go. I'll get them. I give you my word — my word — Mr. Brooks."

"Give me your keys, Dunlap. Where are those papers? Exactly where in your home——"

Dunlap ran his hands over his neck—made no answer.

"The man I send is going to get those papers in half an hour, Dunlap. He's going to open them and make sure he has them all. I am holding you here. If he doesn't return in that time with them—with all of them—you're finished!"

Dunlap worked at his neck as though he were trying to strangle himself. Finally he gasped out: "In the safe deposit vault. There's the key." He leaned toward Denny, his mouth sagging horribly, the yellow eyebrows cocking.

"A mistake! I tell you it was a mistake! Against orders. Horrible—no one more shocked — unfortunate — awful——" He kept rubbing his hands, pulling at his collar, repeating and slumping down on his spine. "Horrible — unfortunate . . . Not murder — against orders."

Knocking at the door, the white card pushed under. Dunlap bounded as though a spring were suddenly released, grabbed Denny's arm.

"What! Who is it?"

Denny pushed him before him—opened it. Jerome Cummings, his shrewed eyes hard, puzzled, came in Joan followed and Stephen.

Denny gave him the keys to the vault.

"Get back in half an hour, Steve. Be sure you have every paper on that list. Make it half an hour at the longest. Bring a big automobile with you."

Dunlap turned to Cummings, a little reassured. "You understand, Mr. Cummings. Illegal. Forced confession has no value in the eyes of the law. Pistol jammed against a man——"

Denny stepped up to him and jammed it viciously. "Start that, Dunlap — start it now or later and see where you end! If you've lied about the papers—have you?"

"No—no——"

"Begin at your first dickering with Anson. Miss Lewis will take it down. Cummings will see that it's legal. Mind that! Who started the labor troubles? How much did Pedro Francita get for watering the cement and Hernandez for blowing the dam? How much did Old Baldy get? Why did you do it? Every word——"

The pale blue eyes, sticking out, ugly, terror-shot, were the one patch of color in the ghastly yellow face, and it grew heavily mottled as though ashes smudged in great blotches on the thick jowls. When Dunlap reached the snapping of the cable, he kept tossing his head back and taking frantic breaths, his hands knocking.

"Mistake, Miss Lewis — Blumens insane—you know — came into the office . . ."

Steve returned with the papers—the automobile. Dunlap hung, clinging to the chair, gasping: "What—what, are you going to do?"

Denny answered: "You're going to Merced, Dunlap. You're going to tell this to Berne Melrose and the rest of them——"

"No—my God — no — murder — they will kill me. . ."

"You're going——".

SNAKE HOOKED; SALMON CAPTIVE

West Arm Produces Two Up-to-Date Fish Stories

Among the latest West Arm fish stories is one told by William Brown, whose second son, Billy, while fly fishing at Nine-Mile, had a strong strike on a Wickham fancy fly, and after a hard struggle, landed in the boat a two-foot snake.

The snake had to be killed, in order to remove it from the hook.

The Procter contingent send down a story that centers about Gilbert Anderson jr., who was fishing recently from the Procter freight slip. The youth noticed that a salmon was swimming around under the slip, and when bait was thrown to him, would sometimes swallow it, but would only retreat so far.

After an investigation, the secret was discovered, it being apparent the salmon was anchored under the slip by a trailing line that had got wrapped around one of the piles. Eventually the fish was salvaged, and was found to weigh eight pounds. It, of course, had a spoon in its mouth, having broken some fisherman's line.

Mrs. E. M. Price of Brockville, recently celebrated her 90th birthday.

IS THIS 'MONKEY BUSINESS'?

People who read the dispatches from Dayton, Tenn., describing how Clarence Darrow, noted Chicago attorney, defending John T. Scopes, and William Jennings Bryan, had been trying to "make monkeys out of each other" will be surprised to see them as friendly as they are shown in the above photograph, taken in the court room. To paraphrase the old gag of Paddy and his pigs, Bryan is the one with the fan.

NEW LIGHTNING FIRES AT RENO AND AT GRANITE

West Kootenay Fires All in Good Shape at Present

LARDEAU SMOKE AFFECTS KASLO

Cut Down Crews in the Boundary; Windermere Under Control

All big fires in the district reported quiet, very few lightning strikes during Saturday's storm, and generally better conditions both Saturday and Sunday is the week-end summary of the fire situation by R. C. St. Clair, district forestery.

Several lightning strikes were reported from the Ymir district, in addition to those on Boulder creek reported Friday. One or two were in the vicinity of the Reno mine. The forestry department has men on guard at all these fires and with present weather conditions is hopeful that no big fires may result.

Strikes on Granite Road

Motorists on the Granite road report strikes just below the Granite-Poorman mine, and above Taghum on the summit of the hill. While smoke was seen rising from the shattered tree of the first strike Saturday afternoon, the heavy rainfall soon put out the fire. So far, no fire has been reported from the second strike.

Farron fire is said to be in good shape, with what are considered adequate fireguards for any emergency.

Summit lake fire is quiet, and the spot fire on the summit of Wilson creek is said to be a small one. Crews are now fighting this fire.

The Summit creek, on Kootenay lake, has burned very little merchantable timber, and has run into an old burn with very little second growth.

While the High Ball fire, in the Windermere country, has been responsible for a number of spot fires, both it and they are considered to be well under control now.

Cut Down Boundary Crews

The Grand Forks fire situation is so much better than it was that crews are being cut down.

Kaslo, where a heavy rain fell Saturday night, reports a great deal of smoke, presumably from the Lardeau fires.

ARM BROKEN WHEN CARS COLLIDE, ERIE

Mrs. Moore Fractures Arm When Wilson Meets Trail Car

When cars driven by Ferguson Wilson of Nelson and Jack Twaddle of Trail collided just this side of Erie yesterday morning, Mrs. William Moore, in Mr. Wilson's car, had her arm broken and Mrs. Wilson was thrown out of the car, sustaining a sprained hand. No one in the Trail car was hurt.

When the cars collided at a particularly sharp turn Mr. Wilson, accompanied by his wife and mother-in-law, Mrs. Moore, was on his way to Meadows. Mrs. Moore, who was in the back of the car, was thrown forward against the front seat, and the impact broke her arm below the elbow.

Mrs. Wilson was thrown out the car and sprained one hand slightly.

Dr. H. H. MacKenzie was wired for from Erie, and went out by car about noon, and later brought the occupants of the Wilson car back to town with him. He stated last night that Mrs. Moore's fracture was not a bad one, and that he had been able to set it on the spot.

While the Trail car was very slightly damaged, only having an axle bent, Mr. Wilson's car had its radiator broken, the left front wheel smashed, the body of the frame bent and the mudguard damaged.

Indian Graveyard Is Unearthed in California Garden

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., July 26.—An ancient Indian graveyard, believed to antedate the California mission period, was discovered recently near Purissima mission in the Santa Ynez valley near here, by Don Meadows and Ray Gruwell, Orange, Cal., research workers. A number of prehistoric specimens, including several Indian skeletons, skulls, beads and arrowheads were obtained.

The burial plot, once the "happy hunting grounds" of the bronzed warrior of the west, was situated in the center of what was a large bean patch, which, up to the time of the discovery, completely obliterated all trace of the important find.

According to Meadows, they dug through three different layers of graves, each from three to four feet in depth. It is possible that there are other graves below, he said.

The braves were buried in a sitting posture with the knees crooked beneath the chin. Of 46 skeletons which were unearthed, every one was found facing the west—toward the setting sun.

Above each grave, as a sort of partition between it and the one above, was found a limestone slab, several inches thick.

The Anti-British Farmer-Labor Advocate

It cannot be said that the Farmer-Labor party in this province, assuming the continuance to the present of that group, is well served by the publication at Vancouver named the Canadian Farmer-Labor Advocate.

Presumably the members of the Farmer-Labor party are good Canadians and good Britishers. Do they like to see flings at Britain from every corner of the editorial page of a publication using their name?

Do they indorse the statement, for instance, that Britain is involved in cooking up "another war of Imperialist aggression"?

How many British Columbia farmers, among whom native Britons are numerous and influential, who voted under the Farmer-Labor group name at the last Dominion election will care to be associated with the sentiment in the excerpt below, from the same editorial?

> "To the master class of Great Britain the slaughter of millions of British and colonial troops is of little moment when compared to safeguarding trade routes to the far east for the export of shoddy cotton and Sunlight soap."

"John Bull's Status in China" is the caption of another editorial, which contains, among other choice remarks, the following:

> "Britain has been shoved into the position of aggressor. Her traditional hypocritical mantle—'the champion of small nations'—has been torn from her shoulders, exposing the naked, gleaming sword of capitalist piracy."

The third editorial in the issue quoted from, dealing in this case with the British relations with Soviet Russia, has this calumny:

> "Another forged letter, similar to the one used during the last British general election, has made its appearance."

The fourth and last editorial begins:

> "Next war, into which we are being dragged by the Imperialistic designs of our rulers, will be the greatest carnage in history."

Presumably the phrase "Our rulers" is meant to refer to Britain; for the Canadian government is nowhere mentioned.

It is hard to see where the Canadian farmer finds any interest in the line of thought put forward to its readers by this coast publication. There is little farmer and little patriot in it.

The answer of course is that the Canadian farmer utterly repudiates any such sentiments put out in his name by the Canadian Farmer-Labor Advocate.

For that matter, there is little sane labor in the paper's attitude either, which would be more appropriately named if it used the names of the I. W. W. or O. B. U., organizations that seek the destruction of trades unionism.

Will the Farmer-Labor party, as represented in the British Columbia upper country, take steps to repudiate this campaign of villifying Britain?

What the Press Is Saying

Muskeg a Reservoir

We here can capitalize the rainfall. It is the rain that makes the water powers and the muskeg that makes the flow steady. That is why the rain of the north coast region is an asset, especially in conjunction with the mossy covering of the land. The moss holds the moisture through the warmest weather and is a factor in causing rain. In time to come we shall have a great industrial development here and this will be largely the result of the one thing to which many people object—the rather excessive rainfall.—Prince Rupert News.

Appropriate to Season, Anyway

The cutting off of the hair and beard of the Greek metropolitan by attackers in Constantinople has drawn a "friendly protest" from the Greek government to the Turkish government. The friendly tone of the Greek government was no doubt caused by the prevailing hot weather in a sympathetic feeling for a practice which helps out in the heat—Lethbridge Herald.

Mosul and Irak

The Mosul dispute is probably the strongest link that at present binds the Bagdad politicians to the British government, and if ever Mosul ceases to be a problem, these politicians will have a good deal more energy to devote to other grievances.—Times of India.

Clam Savory—Buy one pint of clams and after cleaning them and separating the hard and soft parts (chopping each rather coarsely) put the hard parts into a saucepan with two tablespoons of bacon drippings or butter, and cook for four minutes; now add two tablespoons of flour, a pinch each of salt and pepper, and one cup of sweet milk. Stir till smooth, then also add the chopped soft parts of the clams. Turn at once into a buttered baking dish, sprinkle the top with one cupful of uncooked minced celery, add a top layer of buttered bread crumbs, place slices of uncooked bacon over all, and slip the dish into a hot oven to bake for 20 minutes. It should be brown when done. Serve at once.

Peach Custard—This is a most delicious dessert. To make it, you must have cake leftovers—preferably sponge cake. Or you may buy lady fingers to use, instead. Put alternate layers of this cake and fresh sliced peaches (pared) in a fancy dessert dish and pour the following boiled custard over all. It will sink into the layers of cake and fruit by the time it is chilled and ready to be eaten.

Boiled Custard—Beat three egg-yolks slightly and add to them one-quarter of a cup of granulated sugar and a pinch of salt. Stir into two cups of sweet milk which you have scalded (but not boiled). It is best to cook the milk in the top of a double boiler. Mix all together, then continue stirring till thickened. It is done when it will "coat a spoon." This does not mean that the spoon must be very thickly coated (if you wait too long, after the custard clings to the spoon, you may overcook it and it will curdle). Remove it from the fire at this stage, and turn it over the peach-cake layers. (To make an orange custard, add sliced oranges to it. Indeed, any fruit may be added to it.) If you should accidentally curdle it, you can restore it to a smooth consistency by beating with an egg-beater, but it will not be as thick.

Oatmeal Drop Cookies—Beat one egg light, then add one-half cup of granulated sugar, two-thirds of a tablespoon of melted butter and one cup of rolled oats. Flavor with one-fourth teaspoon of vanilla, add a pinch of salt, and drop this stiff mixture by teaspoonfuls onto the buttered bottom of an inverted dripping pan, one inch apart. Spread slightly on the pan with a knife dipped in cold water, and bake about eight or ten minutes in a moderate oven.

That Body of Yours

BY JAMES W. MANTON, M.D.

Nitrogen Balance

You will remember that you were taught at school that air contained two gases, oxygen and nitrogen. You will remember also that the percentage of nitrogen in the air going into the lungs was 79 per cent and the oxygen 21 per cent, and when the air came out of the lungs, impure air, the nitrogen was still 79 per cent and the oxygen was down to 16½ per cent, having lost 4½ per cent whilst in the body.

In other words, your nitrogen is just to dilute the oxygen and make it safe for the body to breathe. Thus the air coming out should always have the same proportion of nitrogen. The nitrogen balance of the body itself must be kept up by food, and it has been found that certain foods maintain it better than others.

For instance, we speak of meat and eggs as being valuable nitrogen foods, and the other foods, vegetables and fats, being weak nitrogen foods This is only a relative term, however, as actually all the foods have nitrogen in them, and without meat could keep the nitrogen at 79 per cent coming out of the lungs. However, meat being so much like the human tissue, can preserve the nitrogen balance more easily than other foods, and consequently a smaller amount of meat is necessary than of any other food.

For instance, peas and beans are rich in nitrogen or proteid material, but the digestive system does not get as good results as with meat. Wheat flour is also a rich proteid food, and yet two European scientists have discovered that it takes nearly 70 per cent more of wheat flour to get the same results as can be obtained with meat. We are all aware that less meat is now eaten on this continent than was eaten a few years ago In a general way this is wise, because we do less physical work as a nation than before. The motor cars, elevators and so forth have reduced our everyday exercise almost to a minimum.

Therefore most of our food is simply to maintain the animal heat and give the body energy. It is not needed for hard physical work. Hard physical work or exercise requires the nitrogen food for rebuilding worn-out tissue.

So where work is done by the body this kind of food is necessary, and this is where meat is so valuable. A little of it goes a long way in repair work.

Seventeen Were Hurt When Verandah Went Down in Melbourne

MELBOURNE, July 26.—First reports of collapse of the verandah of a theater in Burke street, where crowds were watching a parade of American sailors' Friday, proved exaggerated when a check of hospitals early today showed only 17 detained and only one person seriously injured. It had been believed at first that more than a dozen were killed and close to a hundred injured. Fortunately, however, most of the injuries were slight.

IRON MOUNTAIN CLAIMS ARE TO BE INSPECTED

Trails Opened Up, Claims Being Put Into Shape

CAPITALISTS MAY OPEN STEEL PLANT

Land in Section Suitable for Agriculture; California Man Visits

CRESTON, B.C., July 24.—Expected development of the claims on Iron Mountain, about 10 miles east of here, near Kitchener, is largely responsible for a visit this week from E. J. Hathaway of San Francisco, Cal., who is the owner of about 6000 acres in that section, and which land is admirably located and adapted for the production of agricultural or horticultural necessities of a prospective industrial centre.

Mr. Hathaway has owned the lands for at least 20 years, the area being part of the timber lands acquired by Paulson & Hathaway many years ago. He has held them intact, having in view a land development project, and in the past seasons has had soil and climatic experts studying the area, and from both sources he has favorable reports as to the adaptability of the lands for both horticultural and agricultural production, the Goat river being very nicely situated in case irrigation would be needed.

Opening Up Trails

Activity at Iron Mountain at present is in the direction of opening up trails and getting the group of about two dozen claims controlled by C. P. Hill and associates in shape for an inspection by W. R. Wilson of Fernie, president of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal company, who is to look them over on behalf of a British syndicate, who are prepared to invest money in a steel plant provided there is a sufficiency of iron ore available to keep such works going.

War Interfered

The same capitalists were active in 1914 and Mr. Wilson had things lined up for similar investigation, but with the outbreak of the war the plan was temporarily abandoned. As outlined, if anything develops the steel plant would be located in the Fernie district, where the coke and other raw materials necessary in such a plant are available. Mr. Wilson's interest being accounted for in the fact that with such works in operation there would be a greatly increased demand for the coke turned out at Fernie and Michel. At the former place only about one-third of the ovens available are busy now.

George Young of Creston is in charge of the crew that is busy getting things in shape for Mr. Wilson's visit, which is expected early in August. If he finds the outlook for ore satisfactory it is expected the drills will be brought in and the whole Iron Mountain area investigated. Assays of the ore already taken out show it to run very high to hematite.

It was also decided to form a water polo team, and a challenge was forwarded to Gray Creek for a game at the regatta to be held there shortly, also for a four-man relay race.

HOUSE BREAKER SENT UP TRIAL FERNIE COURT

Homer Hatton, Is Caught Near Calgary; Broke Into Section House

FERNIE, B.C., July 24.—Homer V. Hatten was committed to a higher court by Stipendiary Magistrate Cote here yesterday afternoon on a charge of breaking and entering, arising out of a robbery at the section house, Elko, B.C., on June 20.

James G. Regan, Hatten's partner in this robbery, was arrested by the British Columbia provincial police shortly after the crime, as he was attempting to cross the American border at Kingsgate, and is now serving time in Nelson jail.

Men Separated

The two men, after breaking into the house and stealing a sum of money amounting to $40 and some personal effects belonging to the section men, went to Cranbrook, where they separated, Regan attempting to cross the line, and Hatten heading for Alberta.

Sergeant Greenwood of the British Columbia police headquarters here, after making an investigation, got in touch with the Alberta provincial police at Calgary and upon information he was able to give them, Alberta Provincial Constable Balk located and arrested Hatten while he was working on a ranch near Calgary.

Hatten was brought back to Fernie for trial and following the preliminary hearing today he will be held until the next sitting of the county court, when he may elect for speedy trial.

Rasps and Cherries Now Going Out; Blackberries Started

BOSWELL, July 26. — Fruit shipments from Boswell are steadily maintained. Strawberries ran to nearly 900 crates. Raspberries, which are still going out, proved much better than was expected earlier in the year. Blackberries started to move on Wednesday.

Cherries of all varieties are going out daily, the bulk of the sweet varieties will be cleaned up by the end of the month, this is much earlier than usual. The apple crop will be heavier than last year, and all varieties are sizing up nicely.

Longbeach Ranchers Attend Church in Working Clothes

LONGBEACH, July 26.—Archdeacon Fred Graham was in this settlement yesterday and held a service of holy communion. This was quite a short and plain one, the congregation being invited to come in their working clothes in order not to stop the work on the ranches.

The service was well attended.

Spring department of Ontario Spring Products at Gananoque found it necessary lately to institute an overtime schedule.

DAINTY MODELS FOR THE AUTUMN

The Parisian designers have all but completed their models for the coming autumn season and will formally place them on display the first day of August. Above are two of the suggestions for the coming season. At the left is a new creation of the popular printed crepe in mauve and cream with collar, and a V-neck throat opening. The tie is of black ribbon and falls almost to the hem of the skirt, which is seen to be much longer than on current models. At the right is a straight-line coat of gray bolivia, trimmed with black fox on the narrow collar and cuffs.

BUSINESS COLLEGE IS IN NEW HOME

NEW STRUCTURE IS MODERN IN EVERY DETAIL

Is Situated at Corner of Vernon and Baker Streets

QUALITY OF WORK PLEASES TYLER

Students Attend From Various Points Throughout District

The new quarters of the Nelson Business college stand on two lots at the corner of Baker and Vernon streets. The one-story cement building with stucco finish is 49 feet wide on the Baker street side and 63 feet deep. Woodwork all through is of coast fir, hand-dressed, and the floors are hand-planed. The front door is a massive one, also of coast fir.

At each side of this are cloakrooms, one for girls and one for boys.

Capacious Classrooms

The main classroom is 36x24 feet, and contains six large windows, two glass-panelled doors and six observation windows and six blackboards. Every student attending the college has his or her individual desk in this room, which will accommodate 70 pupils.

The classroom at the rear, with accommodation for 25 students, is 19x24, with five windows, five blackboards and two observation windows. It is fitted with new desks.

Another classroom is 22x17, with three windows, five observation windows and three blackboards.

All the ceilings are 10 feet high, and the plastering is of white smooth finish. All blackboards throughout are cement and slag mixture, built on chicken wire in order to give resiliency, so that if the building settles they will not crack. They are modelled on those used in the London English county council schools.

The typing room is 21x17, with 16 latest model typewriters. It has four large windows with five observation windows.

Gramaphone Used

A gramaphone is used here as an aid to the teaching of rhythm and speed, a record with pronounced time being used, and only one beat being allowed to shift the carriage, the space bar or shift key or letter. C. W. Tyler, principal of the college, said this not only aided the students to acquire an even, unhurried touch, but meant a great increase in speed.

A passage running down the center of the building is four feet wide, and the observation windows in the classrooms look into this. At the end of the corridor is a small reception office, 7x14, and to the right is Mr. Tyler's private office, 12x14 feet.

All electric wiring is run through conduits, so that all danger of fire is greatly minimized.

The building, with its many windows, on which are lettered the subjects taught, is exceptionally well lit and ventilated.

Satisfactory Work Throughout

Mr. Tyler emphasized his satisfaction with the quality of work done by every contractor on the building. He said that in many cases they supplied improvements not called for by their contracts, and went on:

"There is no possible criticism in any shape or form that I could make of any of the work, and it was very pleasant to put up a building in which every workman showed such pride in his work."

In the last four years there have been no complaints from the parents of any pupil attending the school, Mr. Tyler said. His pupils come from Cranbrook, Fernie, Kitchener, Salmo, Ymir, Needles, Harrop, Rossland, Trail, Kimberley, Queen's Bay, Edgewood, Cascade, Grand Forks, Riondel, Granite, Yoder, Nakusp, Robson, Vancouver, New Denver, Taghum, West Grand Forks, Creston, Matsqui, Sheep Creek, Wycliffe, Moyie, Marysville, Greenwood, Fruitvale, Sirdar, all in British Columbia, and Landon, N. D., and Porthill, Idaho.

Records Kept

Records of shorthand kept for the last three years show the rate of progress lesson by lesson of each student. From these Mr. Tyler has been able to classify the students under "fast," "average" or "slow."

"But the term 'slow' is no reflection on the mental rating of a pupil," Mr. Tyler said. "A pupil may be very brilliant in high school and slow at typing, shorthand or bookkeeping.

"After classifying the students under one of these heads, within two weeks of the beginning of a new term a class is split up, and those able to proceed at the average rate of progress are formed into one class, and the others into a lower grade. In possibly another two weeks another division is made, those in the higher grade who have ceased to work at full pressure automatically descending to the lower grade and those in the lower grade whose ambition has spurred them on put into the higher one.

Teaching Methods

"By these means we ensure that no student is held back by slower students, and that the slower students are given every opportunity to raise themselves to the standard of the normally superior student."

Great care is taken that the students in the lower grade should not feel they are in a delinquent class. The principle Mr. Tyler works on is that it is not fair to keep brilliant students back for slower ones, or to force the slower ones on at a pace faster than they can keep up with mentally. If possible more care is given to the slower students.

Cater to Individual Capacity

"It is by these means that we cater to the individual capacity of each student," Mr. Tyler said.

In bookkeeping each student keeps his or her own set of books, so that with this individual tuition the rate of progress depends absolutely on his or her own initiative.

The students discipline themselves. It is taken for granted that they are in business college as a final step between school and business, and that their training is altogether for business purposes.

"In business as elsewhere what we do affects everybody around us, and all our rules are based on this principle," said Mr. Tyler. "Therefore if any pupil is late the whole school is kept in 15 minutes. The result was that for nine months no pupil was late for either the morning or afternoon sessions.

Governed by Committee

"We have created in the college a spirit of esprit de corps, and the college is disciplined by a students' committee. They elect two members to this, and the staff elects one. After sufficient warning a delinquent student is taken before the students' committee, and judgment is passed, which he is bound to respect.

"The wisdom of this rule is apparent from the fact that in the last 12 months the students' committee was only called in session on one occasion. All the students are in honor bound never to question a member of the committee, and do not know its decision until it is posted up in the school."

Students once graduated are honorary members for life, and many come back to the college at any time to brush up their work. The college makes a point of keeping in touch with every student.

Investigate Report Rum Disappearing From Seized Ship

SAN FRANCISCO, July 26.—United States District Attorney Stirling Carr yesterday ordered an investigation of reports that 1200 cases of liquor, valued at about $70,000, had disappeared from the Canadian rum runner, Coalharbor, seized several months ago by the coast guard with her cargo of some 9600 cases of contraband. The vessel has been tied up here and under constant guard by custom officials since her seizure, February 18, awaiting the outcome of libel proceedings now pending in federal court. Her crew of 14 was indicted on conspiracy charges by a federal grand jury.

Mrs. Peter Portsmouth of Mount Brydges lately celebrated her 90th birthday.

PAYNE PAINTS CHILD COURT OF TORONTO

Writes Rotary Club of Speech at Montreal Luncheon

BOY IS RECLAIMED BY GIFT OF DOG

Thirty-one Visitors Welcomed by Montreal Rotarians

Work of the Children's court of Toronto, as described at a Montreal Rotary luncheon recently, is the subject of a letter to George Horstead, secretary of the Nelson Rotary club, from F. F. Payne, written aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Melita a week or so ago.

It says:

"Nelson Rotarians, and especially our boys' work committee, would have enjoyed a remarkably interesting address by Judge Mott of the Toronto Children's court which I heard at the Montreal Rotary club luncheon yesterday.

"He has been very successful in his work. Three years ago when he was appointed 40 per cent of the cases before the court were "repeaters." He has reduced the repeaters to 13 per cent by the application of his method of getting to the bottom of every case before reaching a decision.

Ran Away From Home

"For example, one little fellow of 12 years of age, came before him four times for running away from home. Each time the judge endeavored to get at the reason, but three times without success. When the boy came before him the fourth time he questioned him again. The same answers were given; the boy said his mother was good to him, ('though she isn't my real mother'), and his father never ill-treated him. That was as far as the judge could get.

Would Have Him Spanked

He told the boy he would let him go once more but if he were brought before him again he would have him spanked. The probation officer led the kid away. Outside the court the boy said 'If the judge really knew he would not say what he did,' and the probation officer persuaded him to return to the judge and tell him the story.

"It is a touching little human document.

"The boy's mother was dead. His father remarried a woman of nearly 40. She had a child and had rather a hard time and for a couple of years was in poor health. The family could not afford domestic help and little Joe had to do the housework. He did most of the cooking, washed all the dishes, did the washing and cleaned the house. He didn't mind the work, he said, but he was redheaded, and the boys of the neighborhood called him "Bridget." That was more than he could stand. It was a case of an inferiority complex, the boy writhing under a sense of inferiority that was too much for human flesh and blood. So he ran away and when brought back, ran away again.

Judge Holt visited the home and talked to the mother and she said she realized she had not been fair to the boy.

Had Biggest Dog on Street

"A couple of weeks later the judge visited Joe's home again. Joe was still doing most of the housework, but he was a different boy. He was sitting in the kitchen with his arm around a big collie dog, smiling and happy. Instead of being 'Bridget' to the other boys of the neighborhood he became the owner of the biggest dog on the street. His playmates instead of laughing at him, treated him with respect. He owned the dog, he could say who could pet it, he could prohibit any other boy feeding it, the dog followed Joe, sat at Joe's feet, licked Joe's hand.

"The inferiority complex had disappeared, Joe was as contented as any other normal boy to stay at home.

"'Don't confine your efforts to telling a boy what he must not do; tell him what he can do; don't repress his energies and impulses by a negative policy, but find an outlet for their development along right lines by showing him in a positive way how to keep healthfully occupied' was the substance of the judge's advice to parents who find difficulties in dealing with their boys. Repression of unhealthy tendences seldom was necessary if parental direction were such as to bring about full expression of healthy tendencies, he said."

Mr. Payne went on to say that in 90 minutes the Montreal club welcomed 31 visitors, from as far south as Florida to as far north as Alaska, and including Joe Thomas of Vancouver; heard a report of a golf tourney with an American club; elected by ballot two committees; joshed a happy grandfather; pinned the white flower of a blameless life on a member who offered to be regarded as the club's official reprobate; listened to a description of Alaska from the Alaska visitor, and gave 30 minutes to Judge Mott.

IRRIGATION MEET SET FOR KELOWNA

Convention Commences on Wednesday; Many Prominent Speakers Attend

VERNON, B.C., July 26.—Situated in the center of a district which was changed from a comparatively barren cattle ranging country to a productive fruit raising area by irrigation, Kelowna, south of Vernon, on Okanagan lake, is to be the scene of the three-day nineteenth annual convention of the Western Canada Irrigation association, which begins next Wednesday. Delegates from the governments of the four western provinces, various irrigation companies, and agricultural and forestry associations are expected to attend the convention, which will be opened with an address by his Honor, Walter C. Nichol, lieutenant-governor of British Columbia.

Among those scheduled to address the meetings are T. O. F. Herzer, manager of the Canadian Colonization association, Winnipeg; W. H. Snelson and Don. H. Bark, both of Brooks, Alta; Major Jennings Mice, assistant commissioner of irrigation, Calgary; Prof. P. H. Boving of the University of B. C.; R. C. Palmer, assistant superintendent of the Dominion experimental farm at Summerland; and R. H. Helmer, Nicola, B.C.

PROVINCE PREPARES RATES ARGUMENTS

Parliament Actually Ordered Low Crow Rate Is Oliver and McGeer Stand

VICTORIA, July 26.—That parliament actually has ordered by statute that British Columbia's grain movement be given low Crow's Nest Pass rates will be the argument advanced by the province when the railway board commences its nation-wide freight rate revision. This is the policy decided upon by Premier John Oliver and G. G. McGeer, K.C., government counsel, at their conference Tsursday, it was made known Friday officially.

British Columbia's claim will be that in ordering equalization of the freight rates parliament provided for the same rates on westbound grain as on eastbound grain. As the eastbound grain rates were specifically fixed on the level of the Crow's Nest Pass agreement the westbound rates must be put on a similar basis, British Columbia will argue.

George E. Leach was reelected mayor of Minneapolis.

Johnny Mostil Now Carries On for Eddie Collins

By AL DEMAREE

There are several reasons why Johnny Mostil of the Chicago White Sox, who only pilfered bases last season, is leading the American league on stolen bases this year. In past campaigns he was told when to run and when not to run. In other words, his managers ran and stole bases for him. This year, Eddie Collins is letting him run on his own volition, whenever he secures a good lead from the pitcher, and from a base runner's instinct, knows when he has a good chance to steal.

Aside from his mental alertness in studying different little mannerisms in pitchers' deliveries to the plate and to first base, he has the physical advantages that make him a great base stealer. He is not only fast, but his legs are the strong, powerful type that give him a quick jump and getaway from the base, and put him under full speed in a few strides.

In past seasons he never realized how good a base stealer he really was. His success this year has given him the added confidence to make him a star in this branch, and he ought to lead his league by a wide margin.

CONNAUGHT CUP GAME ENDS IN SCORELESS DRAW

Neither Nanaimo Nor Toronto Reach Nets; Coast Team Is Lucky

WINNIPEG, July 26.—Will the Connaught cup, emblematic of the Dominion football championship, take another sojourn in the west, or will it go back to its old resting place in the east. This question is a hard one to answer as Nanaimo, representing the west, and Toronto, Ulster United, the pick of the east, failed to come to a decision in the first of a two-game series for the coveted trophy here Saturday evening, battling to a scoreless draw. The second and final game will be played here Monday evening.

While the match was rather disappointing from a spectators' standpoint for a final, this in all probability can be blamed on the importance of the contest and what was at stake. It was rather a tame affair, and both teams failed to open and play the football that they are capable of. Taking it all around, there was little to choose between either of the teams.

Although there was very little between the teams, Toronto Ulsters was by far more dangerous than their opponents from the west. On two or three occasions the pride of the east had hard luck in not finding the net, hitting the bar no less than three times and then having their efforts balked off by some fine net guarding on the part of Routledge in the Nanaimo citadel.

Play Swinging Game

For the greater part of the game, Ulster played a swinging game which boys. The easterners, presented a nippy attack, while their defence is proved effective against the Nanaimo all that can be desired. However, the halves did not impress very favorably by their work.

Nanaimo at times opened up and played some methodical and scientific football in midfield, but it failed to get them anywhere. The British Columbia eleven had their share of the play but lacked the qualities to penetrate the easterners' defence and not once throughout the entire game did they look like scoring.

Pepper Nanaimo Goal

On two occasions, it seemed that only a miracle would prevent Ulster from finding the net, but the inevitable happened on both occasions. After Nanaimo had slightly the better of the exchanges in the initial half, Toronto pressed in the last minute of play and how the Nanaimo nets escaped will forever remain a mystery. Grant drove in a shot which hit the bar, the rebound went to Bob Lavery, who sent a rocket shot toward goal but Routledge made a brilliant save at full length. Moir sent the ball back again but the bar came to the rescue of Nanaimo and finally Phil Lavery shot past. It was a close call for Nanaimo. Again, in the final session Ulster threatened when midway through the half, Bob Lavery broke through and crashed in a hot shot which hit the bar. The rebound fell at the feet of Grant who shot over the goal. Both teams sent hard shots goalward, but very few were directed on the net.

Williams Is Star

While not as polished a team as Nanaimo, Toronto displayed that they will be right in the fight for the trophy to the finish. Smith had only a few shots to stop and on one or two of these he had difficulty in clearing. Williams, a lanky fellow, was the bright star of the easterns. He was easily the best back and cleared many situations when danger threatened.

Nanaimo held their own but at that they were fortunate in not having a goal scored against them. Routledge made a couple of saves of shots that were ticketed for the net and was safe as a bank in goal. He was given a splendid support by Edmonds and Dickenson, who were strong offenders. It was the half line that was the mainstay of the team and a player that stood out brightly on the intermediate division was Nellie McFarlane.

The forwards at times played some pretty football but fell down dismally when around the nets. Billy Hetherington, of Regina, handled the game satisfactorily.

Lineup

Nanaimo — Routledge, Dickenson, Edmonds, McDougall, McFarlane, Kenny, Wilson, Clark, Knight, Stobbart and Harris.

Ulster—Smith, Williams, Rankin, Bisset, Cluclow, Watt, Gervan, P. Lavery, R. Lavery, Grant and Moir.

JOINT CHAMPS DECLARED FOR CRICKET TITLE

Alberta and British Columbia Win Saturday's Games and Tie for First

REGINA, July 26.—Alberta and British Columbia were declared joint champions of the Western Canada Cricket association tournament here Saturday when both won their final matches, Alberta defeating Saskatchewan 296 to 90, and British Columbia winning from Manitoba 175 to 122.

With Saskatchewan beaten early in the afternoon, chief interest centered in the Manitoba-British Columbia game, and Manitoba did not disappoint the crowd. After British Columbia had run up a score of 175 for seven wickets and declared, it would have been easy for the Winnipeg boys to play for a draw, but Bingham, in the real sporting spirit, decided to go after the runs and run a chance of finishing in second place.

Unfortunately for Manitoba, the earlier batsmen failed, and when six wickets were down for 30 the game seemed over. From then on, however, there was some exceedingly lively crickt. Bingham and R. Wright had a splendid partnerphip, the Manitoba captain hitting Rivers for two sixes. Later, Charlesworth and Liter also did some fine hitting, and beautiful catches on the part of the British Columbia pitchers ultimately finished the careers and Manitoba were 52 runs short of victory when their last wicket fell.

British Columbia again demonstrated the all round strength of their side when they recovered from a bad start and pulled the game round in their favor. Bullen was high scorer with 71 not out. It was his fourth successive good inning.

Any hope that the Saskatchewan team would rally and register one win soon disappeared on Saturday. Barnett won the toss and sent Saskatchewan to bat, no doubt hoping thereby to avoid the possibility of a draw. Once again the home batsmen failed, and the total score of 90 was useless against a side of Alberta's batting strength. Foster played a fine innings and was not out at the close. O'Hara played a typical innings, his 30 including five fours. Outside of these two, however, no one got going at all, and Johnson improved his bowling figures with six wickets for 26.

Weaver and Falck opened for Alberta, and, going right after the Saskatchewan bowling from the outset, they knocked off the runs before being separated. Thomson, Parker and Barnett followed with good scores, and when time was called, Alberta with two wickets in hand, were within four runs of the third century.

REGINA, July 26.—Individual prize winners were:

Batting—E. S. Bullen, British Columbia, averaged 47.25; P. P. Barnett, Alberta, highest individual score, 73.

Bowling—P. W. Johnson, Alberta, 15 wickets for 64, average 4.2; W. L. Rivers, British Columbia, best individual performance, 9 wickets for 30 runs.

Fairview Ball Nine Defeats Castlegar Crew

CASTLEGAR, July 26.—The Fairview intermediates yesterday defeated the Castlegar Tigers to the tune of 13-12 at the park in an interesting game. In the first inning the local team got away with three runs and held Fairview to a 3-0 until the third inning when Fairview brought two runs across the home plate. At the end of the eighth inning the score stood 12-12, Fairview starting a merry-go-round in the ninth scoring six runs, and holding Castlegar.

Crawford Young, left-hander and former twirler of the Fairview team, slammed a home run in the fourth.

A return game has been arranged with the managers of the team to play on the Nelson diamond next Sunday morning, Castlegar claiming to reverse the score.

The teams were:

Fairview—Ringrose, Carlson, C. St. Denis, Haines, Marquis, Gillette, Ionian, Lester, Chapman, Battery, Chapman, Carlson.

Castlegar — Anthony, Jackson, Pratt, Patterson, Jones, Defoe, Johnson, Young, Osborne. Battery, Pratt, Jones.

Umpire—Patterson.

O'Hara Predicted His Injury in Race Saskatoon on Saturday

SASKATOON, July 26. — Although he had expressed the presentiment to his sister that he would be injured in the race, Tom O'Hara, jockey, mounted No Chance for the second race at the exhibition grounds, Saturday, and rode out of the paddock. A few minutes later he was thrown on the track in front of the grandstand. In another minute he was being rushed to hospital suffering from concussion of the brain. His condition Sunday night was reported as slightly improved.

Almost four years ago to the day, O'Hara, according to his sister, turned to her and said he would be injured in the next race that day. He was thrown and hurt.

STOCK PRICES HOLD UP FIRM

Dozen Industrials Lifted to New High Levels on Wall Street

NEW YORK, July 26. — Stock prices maintained a firm tone today although burdened by the weight of the customary week-end realizing sales and heavy liquidation of a few individual issues. Forward movements proceeded in many sections of the list under the vigorous leadership of the motor shares, many of which made an impressive showing.

As in recent market sessions, the slight recessions which prevailed at the close did not give an accurate picture of trading conditions. Throughout most of the two-hour period aggressive buying operations lifted a dozen representative industrials to new high levels, although many of the gains were reduced or canceled by the routine lightening of commitments for over the week-end.

Motor stocks, which as a group had been jagging during the week, were galvanized into activity when the appearance of strong buying support for General Motors caused a rush for shorts to cover.

Your Insurance Policy Contains Good Reading

YOUR POLICY

Contains Clauses

YOU Should Know

READ IT TONIGHT

Have you ever read your insurance policy? You'll find it interesting reading.

Your modern insurance policy is a good deal more interesting than the average novel because your insurance policy is so full of benefits for you. Because of competition in the insurance field there are now literally dozens of features in life insurance policies which work to the advantage of the policy holder. Read your policy over tonight.

One thing to watch when taking out insurance is the beneficiary clause. Decide whether you wish to reserve the right to change the beneficiary or whether your choice of this beneficiary is irrevocable. If you ever wish to borrow on the policy, reserve the right to change beneficiaries.

It is a wise measure to name the beneficiary specifically, such as, wife, mother, etc. By doing this, the policy will be paid to the person named, immediately after your death. If the policy is made payable to "estate" it will be necessary for the will of the insured to be offered for probate before settlement can be made. If no will exists, letters of administration must be applied for. These formalities take time.

Furthermore, insurance made payable to "estate" is subject to inheritance taxation. Insurance payable to a specific person is not, in most localities.

LONDON, July 26.—G. M. Bosworth, chairman of the Canadian Pacific Steamship lines, died here today. Death followed an operation for appendicitis.

George Morris Bosworth was born at Ogdensburg, N. Y., in 1858, and entered the service of the Canadian Pacific railway as assistant general freight agent for Ontario and Quebec lines in 1882.

In 1910 Mr. Bosworth was appointed vice-president at Montreal in charge of the company's traffic and in connection with the Canadian Pacific Ocean Steamship lines. September 1 1918, he was appointed chairman of Canadian Pacific Steamships, a position he held to date. Mr. Bosworth sailed from Montreal on June 3 for England on company business.

COAL STRIKE IN CANADA AFFECTS COKE SUPPLY

OTTAWA, July 26.—The strike of coal miners in Nova Scotia is having a marked effect on the production of coke in Canada. According to a bulletin issued by the Dominion bureau of statistics, the difficulty of obtaining coal in Nova Scotia has resulted in the consumption of but 1122 tons of the Canadian product in the manufacture of coke during June. The total consumption during that month was 56,772 tons. Production of coke in Canada during June receded to 109,694 tons from 130,068 tons in May and 131,484 tons in April.

Six Thousand Men Needed for Harvesting; Fare From Coast Cheap

VANCOUVER, July 26.—Following an announcement from the labor bureau department that 6000 men will be needed from British Columbia for the harvest, and that a $10 fare to Calgary will be granted, it is announced that the cut rate will apply from Victoria, Prince Rupert, Vernon, Kamloops, Prince George and Penticton. Thus it is surmised rail prices from Nelson for harvesters will be less than the above.

M'MILLAN TO EXPERIMENT WITH RADIO

Uses New Low Wave Transmitter; Length Is Forty Meters

CHICAGO, July 26. — As broad as the field for scientific discovery on the present MacMillan-Navy Arctic expedition is the field for radio experiments. Of outstanding importance to the radio world will be the results of new low wave transmitting and receiving.

The latest engineering design in low wave apparatus is represented in the radio equipment carried by the Peary, installed by John L. Reinartz, radio operator and chief engineer of the Zenith Radio corporation. Its work has been proven in laboratory and was developed exclusively for Arctic use as the result of experiences gained on MacMillan's last trip, when radio was first introduced in that region.

The radio layout includes four transmitters, three of which are set up on the boat. They are of 20, 40, 80 and 180 meters. The 180-meter transmitter was taken chiefly to prove that it will not operate in daylight, Reinartz said, although it works successfully by night. A single transmitter of four k.w., capable of sending on 20, 40, 80 and up to 600 meters, is one of the Peary's mouthpieces.

Length of Forty Meters

When this country is in darkness, the transmitting will be done on 40 meters. While in daylight, 20-meter wave length will be used. The 80-meter transmitter has been set up especially for experimental purposes. Eugene F. McDonald, radio chief, felt certain that communication would be established in all zones of the expedition, as his Chicago station had been able to hear code from Glasgow, Scotland, and New Zealand in the daytime with this equipment.

Messages and news to and from families of members of the party will be sent every Wednesday night from the Zenith station. Reinartz pointed out that the public will be unable to hear the messages, however, because no standard instrument is able to pick up the low wave length upon which the messages will be broadcast.

As the expedition proceeds up the coast, the sending time from the ships will be as follows:

12 to 3 a.m., E. S. T.
6 to 9 a.m., E. S. T.
12 to 3 p.m., E. S. T.
6 to 9 p.m., E. S. T.

The schedule which gives the best response will then be used, probably 6 to 9 p.m.

Fur Traders Live in Hole in Ground Because of High Wind

EDMONTON, July 26.—Delayed word received here this summer from Jack Hornby, Malcolm and Allan Stewart and Capt. Critchell Bullock, who journeyed last year into MacKenzie, a district in the Northwest Territories of Canada, to buy furs and explore, said the party was forced to live in a hole dug in the ground during the winter, because high winds prevented the erection of a tent or any other structure.

Fish caught below the ice and caribou hunted far out on the barrens, a region northwest of Hudson bay, formed the winter diet of the explorers. Fuel was hauled 30 miles to the dugout.

An intensive campaign against the European corn borer is being planned for Oxford county.

Jack Campbell, well-known Sarnia railway man, was superannuated lately after more than 50 years' service with the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific railway.

OVER FORTY-FIVE THOUSAND JOBS FILLED IN YEAR

Employment Service Did Large Work, McVety Reports

PRAIRIE HARVEST; OKANAGAN PICKING

Some Hundred or More Handicapped Vets Placed

That 45,061 men and women in the province were placed in employment by the government employment service sums up the report for 1924, on the work of that branch of the department of labor, which the general superintendent, J. H. McVety, has presented through the deputy minister of labor, J. D. McNiven, to Hon. A. M. Manson, minister of labor.

Of the total number placed in employment, 26,498 were sent to "regular" positions, where the duration of employment ranges from a minimum of two weeks, to permanence. The balance, 18,560, filled "casual" vacancies, where the period of employment did not exceed two weeks. The number of women placed was 7805, of which number approximately 4000 were for casual employment.

Congregated in Coast Cities

The report gives an interesting survey of employment conditions in the province during 1924. Unemployment was not so prevalent during the early part of the year as during the corresponding months in preceding years. A large number of unemployed men congregated in the cities of Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster, and the surrounding municipalities, owing to the attraction of the milder climate of the coast area, and the closing of seasonal industries. The condition was further accentuated by a continued depression in the lumber industry, resulting in many of the companies reducing their staff, and by a large flow to the Pacific coast of new arrivals. While there was some distress as a result of unemployment, conditions were not such as to necessitate any extensive relief measures.

In March and April approximately 500 men were sent to the prairie provinces for spring plowing and seeding, and in August and September 5380 persons were sent to Alberta and Saskatchewan for harvest labor, but owing to unfavorable weather conditions, and also to a shorter crop, harvesters did not do so well financially as in previous years.

The arrangement for the transfer of harvesters in previous years applied only to Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster, and the territory adjacent to these cities. In 1924 the rates were made applicable to Prince Rupert, Prince George and intermediate points, and Kamloops, Vernon and Penticton. The result was an unqualified success, 1063 settlers from 193 different rural communities taking advantage of the reduced rates. A total of 3913 of the men sent to the prairie were in possession of letters from farmers by whom they were previously employed, offering an engagement for the current season. The number of employers who are satisfied to reengage workers from this province year after year is a tribute, says Mr. McVety, to the ability of the help sent through the employment service during the initial period.

Fruit Picking a Problem

Referring to the employment service and the fruit industry, the report says that where the acreage under cultivation increases faster than the population in the several districts, the task of securing the necessary labor to handle the crops becomes a serious problem. The low prices obtained by the growers for their products has compelled a correspondingly low rate for fruit pickers. Where the work is located close to centers of population and the pickers can return to their homes at night, the problem has not been so great, but pickers who must camp or board expect a much greater return than the industry has been able to pay.

The number of girls who are prepared to accept this work is diminishing yearly, owing to their inability to earn what they consider an adequate return for the work required, though no difficulty is experienced in securing women for cannery work where the remuneration is fixed under orders passed by the minimum wage board. Had it not been for men and boys who were sent out by the employment offices, many of the growers would have suffered heavy loss through their crops rotting on the bushes.

The labor requirements for the tree fruit crop in the Okanagan valley are much more easily met. A large percentage of the help required is resident in the valley, and unless the crop is above the average in quantity very little outside assistance is necessary.

The report speaks of the negotiations between the Dominion and provincial ministers of labor, as a result of which an agreement was signed whereby the placing in employment of disabled ex-service men would be handled by the employment service under the control of provincial officials, the Dominion government providing some additional staff in Vancouver and Victoria without additional expense to the province. In the first month after the new arrangement was entered into, 115 handicapped men were placed in employment, some of it being of a casual nature, but all of assistance to the handicapped ex-service men.

Plan to Establish Telegraph School for Pacific Board

OTTAWA, July 26. — (Canadian Press) — Announcement is made by Hon. Charles Murphy, postmaster-general, that as the result of the representations to the Pacific cable board a training school for Canadians who desire to qualify as telegraphists in the service of the Pacific cable board will be established in British Columbia.

It is the intention of the board to erect a suitable building in which to conduct the training school, but the exact location has not yet been determined upon. It will, however, be located in British Columbia, and presumably at some point convenient to the Pacific coast.

COWIE ORDAINED AT IMPRESSIVE KASLO SERVICE

Bishop and Clergy Take a part in Evening Induction Service

KASLO, July 26. — Rev. David Foster Cowie was ordained in St. Mark's church this morning at the 11 o'clock service by Rt. Rev. A. J. Doull, D.D., Bishop of Kootenay, assisted by Rev. F. A. Ramsay of Nakusp, Rev. P. C. Hayman of Grand Forks, and Rev. R. V. Harrison of Cranbrook. The service, which was a beautiful and impressive one, was fully choral.

The bishop, who preached on the text "As My Father hath sent Me even so send I you," said that it was one of the few times he had ordained a rector in his own church, the ceremony usually taking place in a cathedral.

In the evening at 7:30 a second ceremony, that of institution and induction, was conducted by the bishop, when he and the visiting clergy led Mr. Cowie to the pulpit, reading desk and lectern, with instruction on his duties at each.

Mr. Cowie was presented with the keys of the church by the church wardens—R. Hewat and W. H. Burgess.

Early in the morning a choral communion service was held.

NELSON LOSES ROSSLAND GAME TEN TO THREE

Scott Is Batted Out of Box; Kraft Replaces Him; Game Good

ROSSLAND, July 26.—Nelson was for the second time this season defeated by the Rossland nine on the local diamond yesterday afternoon before a large crowd of fans. The local team took the game by a score of 10 runs to 3. Scott, the visitors' new twirler, was batted out of the box in the fourth, and was replaced by Kraft, who allowed only five hits.

The game was declared to be a good one, there being only one real argument when a woman spectator "jumped" the umpire.

McKenzie pitched his usual good game, and retired nine of the visitors' batters by the strikeout route.

The only spectacular hit of the game was made in the fifth, when Johnson slammed a homer over the left field fence.

Edgewood Fires Are Reported Bad; Smoke Cloud Heavy; Men Fight

EDGEWOOD, July 26.—Electrical storms in the mountains are keeping the forestry department busy in this section, new fires are starting up and the air is still thick with the smoke from the old ones.

Twelve men reached Sherwood from Nelson on Tuesday and are at work at a fire behind Apple Grove, more than three miles back.

MOTHER OF CHILD FAILS TO APPEAR

Mrs. Cooke in Reno States Husband Should Fight Case in Reno

SAN FRANCISCO, July 26.—The legal battle of J. Henry Cooke, Canadian barrister, to regain possession of his 5-year-old daughter, Shirley, from his estranged wife, Hilda Betty Cooke, took a sensational turn on Saturday when Mrs. Cooke and the child failed to appear at a superior court hearing on Cooke's habeas corpus petition.

Attorneys for Cooke openly charged that Mrs. Cooke had unlawfully abducted the child, and fled to Reno, Nev., where, they said, she was with her mother. They asked that Mrs. Cooke be adjudged in contempt, but the court continued the case until next Tuesday and directed counsel for Mrs. Cooke to produce their client and the child at that time. Mrs. Cooke's counsel contended the su*perior court was without jurisdiction* to proceed with the habeas corpus action until the state court of appeals acted on their petition for a writ of prohibition restraining the lower court from going ahead with the case. Attorneys for Cooke resisted this contention.

Mrs. Cooke fled Ontario several months ago with the child following a court decree awarding the child to Cooke but denying Cooke the divorce which he sought. They were apprehended recently at Reno, where Cooke instituted deportation proceedings on the ground that their passports were not properly vised.

Recommendation that the child be deported was forwarded to Washington a few days ago by government officials here.

"Why Doesn't He Come to Reno"

RENO, Nev., July 26.—Mrs. Hilda Betty Cooke and her daughter Shirley were located here tonight at their apartment. Mrs. Cooke asserted she had not been informed of a hearing to be held in San Francisco on July 25 and, "besides," she said, "I don't see why we should have to go to San Francisco to fight for the custody of my child when she already has been placed in my care.

"If Mr. Cooke wants my baby, why doesn't he come to Reno and fight in the courts here for her?"

Thomas Burgess of Seattle, engineer of the ferry Mount Vernon, which plies between Anacortes and Sidney, B.C., was instantly killed when an auto he was driving plunged off a bridge near Mount Vernon, Washington. When the car was salvaged a partly-filled bottle of liquor was found.

WEAKENING OF NAVY IS FOLLY

So Says Davidson, Denying Charges of Ignoring Need of Economy

LONDON, July 26.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Constituting himself spokesman for the lords of the admiralty in a speech at Kings Lynn Saturday, John Colin Campbell Davidson, parliamentary and financial secretary of the admiralty, stoutly denied the charges against his department of ignoring the need of economy in connection with the program for the building of cruisers.

Mr. Davidson said that while economy was absolutely vital it would be the greatest folly to weaken the navy, which was the guardian of the Empire.

While Mr. Davidson was speaking merely as a member of the house of commons, Charles G. Ammon, who was parliamentary secretary to the admiralty in the labor government, addressed a meeting at Tiverton under the auspices of the League of Nations union, and declared that the security pact and the naval program showed the present administration consisted mostly of men whose outlook and mentality regarding war is unchanged since 1914. The proposed naval program, he said, was all the more reprehensible because there never was a time during the last century and a half that there was less need. Of course the admiralty was not to blame. One might as well expect a deputation of shoemakers to urge the folly of wearing boots and shoes as for the admiralty to urge retrenchment in ships.

OHIO TORNADO INJURES MANY

Chautauqua Tent Downed; Injured Were in Tent; Damage Heavy

SIDNEY, Ohio, July 25.—Twenty-five persons were injured and damage estimated at $200,000 was caused when a tornado swept over this city at 3:30 p.m. today. The injured were in the audience at an afternoon chautauqua program being given in a tent in Gramercy park.

The tent collapsed during the 75-mile gale, burying 1000 to 1200 persons under it. Those injured were caught by the falling side and center poles.

A number of factory buildings were unroofed, crops were destroyed in a path four miles wide extending north and south of the city, and several farm homes were destroyed.

James Anderson, aged 14, a boy scout on duty at the tent, suffered a compound fracture of the skull and may die.

Score Injured

A score of other persons were injured and are under the care of physicians. A short period of nearly total darkness preceded the blow, which came with such suddenness as to prevent escape from the canvas auditorium. Hundreds were pinned under the tent. A hurry call to the fire department brought a rescue force, which succeeded in averting a panic.

Telegraph and telephone communication was paralyzed by the storm. After the first blow the gale raged in milder degree for about 35 minutes. A heavy hailstorm, which accompanied the wind, played havoc with the crops, leveling fields of corn and oats. Scores of farm buildings were blown down. The business section of the city escaped damage.

Durham Miners Give Temperance Man Rough Time

LONDON, July 26.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Rt. Rev. J. E. C. Welldon, dean of Durham, was handled roughly by a crowd at a meeting of Durham miners on their gala day. He was noticed approaching the platform to give a temperance address. The crowd jostled him and rushed him to the water's edge. The dean was rescued by the police who commandeered a passing motor boat and conveyed him to safety.

Ramsay MacDonald, former premier, who addressed the meeting, condemned the government for belated action during the coal crisis, and declared that the coal trade must be organized nationally and thus secure unification of production, wages and conditions.

GLASSES AFFECT YOUR HEALTH, YOUR LIFE

The eye—due to its closeness to the brain, and that the act of seeing is a muscular exertion—has, and does demand, a large portion of the energy or nerve force of the body. Now, you have a certain amount of nerve force: if you spend too much of this in seeing, you either rob another organ, or the rest of the body, of its necessary amount, and your nerve vitality is lowered or exhausted. Errors in eyesight demand constantly some of your reserve energy, depending on the amount of error. This squanders your nerve force—the very energy of your life. Life is shortened by nervous debility and the diseases it entails. It impairs the general health in many ways, and renders the individual more liable to diseases than when in full vigor. So correct glasses conserves this nerve force, and allows for more nerve energy to the rest of the body, tending to increase health, vigor, better and longer lives.
