English Girl Is Well on Way Over English Channel

CAPE GRIS NEZ, France, Sept. 30.—Miss Lorna Mariott, known in channel swimming circles as "Jane Darwin," to-night at 9 o'clock was nearly half way across the channel in a swim she started at 3:21 o'clock this afternoon from Cape Gris Nez. When Miss Darwin was lost to the view of the watchers on the shore she was in a good position, headed for South Goodwin, on the English shore.

The weather still was most favorable, but the swimmer was running into cross currents and it was expected that her progress would be less rapid than it had been previously during the swim.

The assumption here was that the English girl was still trying to get across as no word to the contrary had been received after 9 o'clock.

Mussolini 'Is Most Taciturn,' Declares His Regular Barber

ROME, Sept. 30.—Mussolini is the most taciturn man in Italy, according to his barber, Domenico Rossi.

"Four years ago," says Rossi, "I was working in my shop when my friend, Policeman Ambrosetti, rushed in and, in an excited voice told me to take my razor and follow him. 'Mussolini wants to be shaved,' he said.

"I had a hard job keeping my hand from trembling but I must have given his excellency a good shave for I have been his barber ever since. And during these four years, he has never said one word to me."

HUNTERS HURLED OVER PRECIPICE

Although Fall Is 1500 Feet, Both Live to Tell Tale; One Sustains Broken Arm

LUSCAR, Alta., Sept. 30.—Hurled 1500 feet down a mountainside and over a cliff when caught in a snow slide, M. Kerns, Seattle business man, and Tex Byers, Luscar guide, are alive today to tell the tale.

Byers has just arrived at Mountain Park with Mr. Kerns, who is suffering from a broken arm and minor injuries. Mr. Kerns, accompanied by E. Hahn, Seattle, left Luscar, September 17, for the Brazeau country with Tex Byers and John Haggblad as guides. They had been able to do but little hunting, owing to the treacherous condition of the mountainside, caused by continuous snowfalls and repeated thaws and it was while negotiating the side of a mountain, after having obtained a sheep, that Mr. Kerns, accompanied by Tex Byers, was caught in a heavy snowslide and hurled down the side of a mountain and over a cliff, a distance of 1500 feet. By a miracle Mr. Kerns escaped with his life, but sustained a broken arm, a cut several inches long on the left arm and several minor injuries. His gun could not be found.

Mr. Kerns was transported 43 miles over rough mountain trails by Byers.

Miners Resuming Work in England but Not on Large Scale Though

LONDON, Sept. 30.—While there has been an increased tendency by miners in some districts to resume work in the last few days, there has not been any general settlement and the long standing strike continues. The number of men now at work is estimated at 156,000 out of a normal total of 1,107,000.

At a delegate conference in London today it was decided to submit the latest proposals by the government to all the coal fields.

Family of Six Drowned Following Storm in Mexico

Saves Life of Silver Fox by Catching It Off Engine Cowcatcher

SAULT STE MARIE, Ont., Sept. 30.—Leaning out from the cowcatcher of his engine, Engineer Jack Goatbee grasped a valuable silver grey fox which had become panic-stricken and dashed up the track ahead of the train. Two weeks ago he captured a red fox in the same manner.

CITIZENS STOP WORK TO HUNT FOR ROBBERS

NEW ROCKFORD, N. D., Sept. 30.—Citizens deserted their business places and homes to join with officers in trailing four robbers who today held up and robbed the First National bank of New Rockford, escaping in a motor car with between $50,000 and $60,000. Part of the loot is in registered bonds. The posse formed and started in pursuit only a few minutes after the robbery.

VANCOUVER, Sept. 30.—Salmon pack on Fraser this year largest since 1917.

FERNIE MAN IS KILLED IN CAR AT CROWSNEST

Machine Drops Over 60-Foot Embankment; Wife and Son Injured

SPECIAL TRAIN RUSHES LADY TO HOSPITAL

Car Lands on Railway Track and Thomas Baybutt's Neck Is Broken

FERNIE, Sept. 30.—This afternoon, about a mile west of Crow's Nest, Thomas Baybutt, proprietor of the C. P. R. boarding house at that place, lost his life in a motor accident. He was driving to Natal, accompanied by his wife and 5-year-old son. The car went over a 50 to 60 foot embankment. The cause of the accident is attributed to a large bowlder rolling down the steep hillside above the highway just as Baybutt was driving by. In endeavoring to avoid being struck by the huge stone, he steered too near to the outer edge of the road and the car hurled down the almost perpendicular drop, coming to a stop on the railway track below.

A crew of sectionmen were working within a short distance of where the accident occurred and they witnessed the tragedy. In its descent, the automobile made three complete revolutions. During its headlong tumble, Mrs. Baybutt managed to throw the child clear of the car and, although he continued to roll down to the railway, he sustained but slight injuries.

Instantly Killed

Mr. Baybutt was instantly killed. As he was thrown from the car at the bottom his head came violently in contact with one of the rails. He sustained a broken neck and fractured skull.

Mrs. Baybutt was painfully injured, but doctors say she will recover. When the car came to rest she was pinned underneath it but the section gang immediately released her and rushed her to Crow's Nest, from where a special train consisting of an engine and caboose rushed her to Natal hospital.

Mr. Baybutt was well-known throughout the Crow's Nest pass, and before taking charge of the C. P. R. boarding house worked as a miner at Fernie, Michel and Hillcrest camps. He is 43 years of age.

'Find What's Wrong, Then Apply the Remedy,' Says Euler Regarding Customs

KITCHENER, Ont., Sept. 30.—"First find out as completely as possible what's wrong, then apply the remedy," is what W. D. Euler, newly appointed minister of customs in the King government is going to do when he takes up his duties in Ottawa, he said yesterday. "That's all that could be expected from a man in my position just now," he added. "This is not the time to talk but to act."

FATALLY INJURED

CONTRECOEUR, Quebec, Sept. 30.—Mrs. Jean Marie Renaud, was fatally injured and her husband, J. Renaud suffered serious injuries when a balcony on which they were making some repairs gave way, plunging both to the pavement below.

FIVE CHILDREN ARE ALL INSANE; GO TO ASYLUM

Natal Mother Loses Them to Asylum; Cases Found Incurable

FERNIE, B. C., Sept. 30.—A sad spectacle was presented in the departure from here of five Nagi children of Natal, under escort of Constable and Mrs. G. Sharpe, to the Essondale Mental hospital. The children were Maggie, age 19 years; Joseph, 14; Louis, 13; Aleck, 12, and Lizzie, 10, all of whom have been declared by medical examiners incurably mentally unsound.

These cases have been under observation and a very thorough investigation has been carried out by Sergeant Greenwood of the provincial police, with the result that the only satisfactory course to be adopted was committal to the provincial institution.

The mother, with two younger children, will continue to reside in Natal. The father, Louis Nagi, was killed in one of the Michel mines a few years ago.

AMERICANS SPENT MUCH IN CANADA

Hundred and Ninety Millions Changed Hands Owing to Tourist Trade, Says Official

EDMONTON, Sept. 30.—United States tourists spent in Canada in 1925, it was estimated, $190,000,000 and every basic industry was thereby stimulated, the tourist traffic being responsible for 11 per cent of the total business done by basic industries, stated J. M. Wardle, chief engineer, Canadian National parks, in an address here today to the Canadian Good Roads association convention on "Tourist Traffic."

In 1925, 333,400 people had visited Canada's various national parks and by August of this year that total had already been reached for the current year.

While many tourist and automobile bodies were disseminating a tremendous volume of information concerning Canada's attractions and while newspapers and magazines added largely to the total volume of publicity disseminated, there was, said Mr. Wardle, a growing need for some central tourist information bureau, which would corelate all this information, and have it ready at any time, for the informing of the tourist or the intending tourist.

All this huge traffic—a never-ending stream of money entering Canada and being spent in Canada for food, farm products, transportation accommodation and supplies—constituted a great argument for a continuation of the work being done by the Canadian Good Roads association, added Mr. Wardle.

A drive over the provincial highways around the city, as guests of the provincial government followed the interprovincial conference, which ended the deliberation of the 1926 convention.

WILLINGDONS REACH OTTAWA ON MONDAY

OTTAWA, Sept. 30.—Official program drawn up for reception of New governor-general, Viscount Willingdon, shows he will arrive at Quebec on liner Empress of Scotland on Saturday morning and reach Ottawa Monday morning.

BYNGS WIRE 'GRATITUDE FOR ALL THE WONDERFUL KINDNESSES RECEIVED IN LAST FIVE YEARS' WHILE IN CANADA

OTTAWA, Sept. 30.—"We cannot leave the Dominion without once more expressing our gratitude to the Canadian people for all the wonderful kindness we have received during the last five years, which will ever live in our memory."

Thus Byng of Vimy wires as he leaves Canada.

"We shall watch the progress of Canada," he added, "with the deepest affection and shall look forward to seeing our Canadian friends when they visit the old country."

His message is addressed to Premier King, who has replied as follows:

"On behalf of the people of Canada, I thank your excellency very heartily for the farewell message received from you today, and which, through the courtesy of the Canadian Press, I have communicated to all parts of the Dominion. I cannot too warmly reciprocate on behalf of all Canadians the kindly sentiments to which your message gives such generous expression, nor can I, as you leave Canadian waters, extend too cordially to her excellency and yourself the good wishes of all."

AIMEE'S HAIR IS NOT FALSE; SHOWS COURT

Takes Down Tresses in Answer to Question Regarding Her Wearing Switches

RED HAIR ENTERS INTO CASE DEEPER THAN EVER

Her Secretary Tells of Mysterious Disappearance From the Bathing Beach

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, whose identification as the woman who spent 10 days at a cottage in Carmel, Cal., has revolved more or less around the color of her hair, took down her mass of bronze-tinged tresses in court today and demonstrated that no part of it was false.

The demonstration was made voluntarily after Deputy Attorney Dennison had questioned Miss Emma Schaeffer, Mrs. McPherson's secretary, as to whether the evangelist wore switches.

Mrs. McPherson shook out her hair, which was surprisingly short, and quickly put it back upon her head in the big piles which have become famous in connection with the disappearance case.

Several witnesses have identified the evangelist as the woman who spent 10 days at the cottage in Carmel with Kenneth G. Ormiston, radio operator, immediately following Mrs. McPherson's disappearance, while others have been equally positive that Mrs. McPherson was not the woman. The color of the evangelist's hair has been one of the chief factors in the identifications.

Tells of Beach Trip

Miss Schaeffer told of the trip to the beach where Mrs. McPherson disappeared.

Mrs. McPherson wore a green bathing suit, the secretary said. She was with the evangelist only a few minutes at the beach, having left her on numerous occasions to run errands.

Miss Schaeffer said Mrs. McPherson sat on the beach for a time preparing a sermon on "light and darkness."

The secretary said she had the sermon notes at home, and she was ordered to produce them in court tomorrow.

Missed Her

After the evangelist had been swimming about for some time, Miss Schaeffer said she suddenly missed her about 3:15 or possibly 3:30 in the afternoon.

She went to the bath house to find a lifeguard. Returning to the hotel where Mrs. McPherson had changed her clothing, she told the manager that Mrs. McPherson was missing. Previously, she said, at the bathroom and on the beach she had not mentioned the evangelist's name. Miss Schaeffer then called Mrs. Kennedy in Los Angeles and told her, "Sister is drowned." She could not remember what Mrs. Kennedy said in reply. She then gathered up Mrs. McPherson's clothes at the hotel. Her wrist watch, she said, was not among the things.

Miss Schaeffer's testimony was practically the same story as that told immediately after the evangelist disappeared.

NEW SEAL AND MARK UPON VANCOUVER, SAYS

VANCOUVER, Sept. 30. — "The women's contribution of this center for the benefit of public welfare sets a seal and mark upon Vancouver," said Mrs. H. A. McGill, judge of the juvenile court, at the opening address here today of the Women's building, erected by various organizations of the city at a cost of about $50,000.

"It lends our city," said Judge McGill, "a distinction at once unequalled and beautiful."

Meighen Prepared to Retire Wholly From Political Warfare

WINNIPEG, Sept. 30.—The Ottawa correspondent of the Free Press says:

"Information obtained in Ottawa today is to the effect that Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen is not interested in proposals to accept the provincial leadership in British Columbia or elsewhere. He is determined to retire from public life and will not be deflected by any offers."

Two Doctors Called to Bedside of Jack Dempsey, Who Is Ill

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Two doctors were called to the apartments of Jack Dempsey this morning. The attendants maintained the strictest secrecy as to this illness.

Attaches of the training camp, however, volunteered information that the former champion has not been right since his fight.

SIX ARE KNOWN DEAD IN STORM VERA CRUZ AREA

Villages Wiped Out; Million-Dollar Bridge Destroyed; Other Casualties Expected

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 30.—Official reports thus far state that six persons were killed in Monday's tornado which struck Vera Cruz and Jalapa, but reports are trickling in, indicating that several villages in remote sections have suffered heavily.

Governor Jara of the state of Vesa Cruz has reported that the Hamlet of La Antigua has been wiped out but has made no mention of casualties. La Antigua has a population of 600. Governor Jara also reported that landslides occurred in the mountain districts cutting off railway communication on the Interoceanic and Teocelo line. In addition he reported the destruction of the San Francisco bridge which was erected at a cost of $1,000,000.

Of the six persons dead, two were killed at Vera Cruz and four at Jalapa. Twenty houses were destroyed in the latter place when the river overflowed. The exact number of victims in the district will not be known until communications have been restored.

FIND PLACE FOR IMMIGRANT FIRST

Such Is Plan of Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, in King Cabinet

WINNIPEG, Sept. 30.—Hon. Robert Forke, federal minister of immigration, when interviewed here tonight, while on his return trip to Ottawa, said that the department of immigration would concentrate of finding a place for the immigrant before he is brought to Canadian shores rather than letting him come to Canada with his small savings to shift for himself.

Mr. Forke when asked to state his policy with regard to immigration, protested that there had hardly been time to get acquainted with the officials of his new department, much less to get his policy ready for publication.

He asserted that he had unbounded faith in the future of Canada if the right sort of immigration is maintained.

May Not Be Leader

When asked if he would particularly endeavor to get immigrants to place on the farms, Mr. Forke emphatically declared that he did not think any particular class would be favored so long as the immigrants were healthy in body and mind and willing to work.

The minister of immigration, who is also leader of the Progressive party in Manitoba, declined to make any statement regarding what support the Progressives of Manitoba would be willing to give Premier King.

"There is a byelection coming," he said, "and I may not be leader of the Progressives in this province after it is over."

Mussolini, Chamberlain Discuss the Intimate Relations Between Nations

ROME, Sept. 30.—Stefani, semi-official Italian news agency, today says that Premier Mussolini and Sir Austin Chamberlain, foreign secretary for Great Britain, discussed questions of importance during their conversation near Leghorn on the yachts Dolphin and Giuliana this morning.

Stefani says the two ministers had the satisfaction of confirming the intimate relations between Italy and Great Britain and in finding close similarity in the policies followed by the two governments for solution of most important European problems.

HUNDRED JUNKS WITH CHINESE CREWS MISSING

Only Known Foreign Casualty Is Drowning of Dutchman at Hongkong

BRITISH STEAMER MAKES GALLANT SEA RESCUES

Typhoon Passes Up Cities but Raises Commotion With the Shipping Near Canton

HONGKONG, Sept. 30.—Two thousand Chinese fishermen are believed to have perished in a typhoon which raged throughout Monday. More than 100 junks which were engaged in fishing in the Canton river estuary and off the coast have not made port and are believed to have been wrecked or sunk.

The only known foreign casualty was the drowning of a Dutch resident of Hongkong, who was blown into the water.

Shipping at Hongkong, British colony, and at Macao, a Portugese settlement, was badly battered by rough seas, but the wind did comparatively little damage to the cities. Ships at docks made fast with additional lines and those anchored in exposed places were towed to safety.

British Make Rescues

Thirty-five native fishermen clinging to wreckage were rescued by the crew of the British steamer Hydrangea, who drove life boats through plunging seas to their rescue.

Hongkong and Macao have frequently been damaged by typhoons. Located on promontories on opposite sides of the Canton river estuary, they are exposed to high winds.

Many lives were lost in Macao in 1923, when the city was badly damaged by three typhoons. Hongkong suffered severely with considerable loss of life. The whole south China coast is subject to devastating storms. The hurricane of August, 1922, was said to have killed 60,000 Chinese at Swatow.

Hon. Mr. Tolmie Turns Down Proposal to Lead in Province

VICTORIA, Sept. 30.—Efforts on the part of the leading Conservatives to persuade Hon. S. F. Tolmie to accept the Conservative leadership in British Columbia have collapsed, the Victoria Times says in a featured news story today.

The Times declares that Dr. Tolmie agreed to consider provincial offers before leaving for Ottawa but that he has decided not to enter provincial fields.

PRESENT JUNIOR FOOTBALL CUPS TO THE CHAMPS

Wolves, Champions of City and West Kootenay, at Supper

JUVENILE LEAGUE HERE NEXT YEAR

Rogers Presents Butorac Cup; Ward, Canada Drug Trophy

Grouped about a festive board, the Nelson Mountain Wolves, champions of the Nelson Junior Soccer league, and the Nelson representative junior soccer team, champions of West Kootenay, celebrated last night the conclusion of one of the best years junior soccer has ever had in Nelson.

The supper was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Wallach, and there was never a happier bunch of boys than the champions.

B. P. Rogers, president of the Nelson junior league; A. Wallach, the league secretary; Horace Ward, the league referee; and Finty Welsh, captain of the Wolves, were the speakers of the evening.

Rogers Compliments Boys

Mr. Rogers complimented the boys on their play during the year, and especially in the two games against Trail in the Butorac cup series. He did not cheer at the games because he "was not made that way," but he used a whole box of matches trying to keep his pipe alight at the game last Saturday.

No one was more sorry to see Nelson win the Butorac cup, said Mr. Rogers, than the Trail league officials were. They had determined to win the cup in the first year it was offered for competition, and they had devoted their efforts to coaching the Trail juniors to ner-perfection for the games. While they were the Trail juniors to near-perfection cup would come to Nelson.

Two Leagues Next Year

Next year, he announced, there would be a juvenile soccer league for boys of lesser years.

But the junior league limit was being raised to 20 instead of 17, as it had been this year. Mr. Rogers asserted there would be many more good players in the junior league next year, and each one would strive for a place on the representative team. It would not be easy to get a place on the team, and it would be still harder to keep it.

Mr. Ward presented the Canada Drug trophy to Finty Welsh, captain of the Wolves. He complimented the team on its record of not being beaten this year, and stated the boys had played well and had stayed together.

Cups Presented

In accepting the cup, Finty said he hoped the team would stick together and have as successful a season next year as it had this.

Mr. Wallach stated that from the very outset his heart had been set on possession of the Butorac cup. He thanked every one who was a member of the Nelson team, and asserted every boy had played "like a man."

The Butorac cup was presented to George Wallach, captain of the representative team, by Mr. Rogers. But Mr. Rogers, as one of the trustees of the cup, will keep it in his possession.

KILLED THROUGH ACCIDENT, FATE OF FRANK RISDON

Mrs. Risdon Wires Friend in Nelson; an Old-Timer of District

Frank C. Risdon, Nelson old-timer, later ranching at Harrop, and for the last four or five years growing apples at Cashmere, in the Wenatchee valley, Washington, was accidentally killed Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, a wire sent by Mrs. Risdon to a Nelson friend yesterday stated. No particulars of the occurrence were given in the wire.

Mr. Risdon was engaged in mining for many years in the Kootenay, chiefly in the Nelson district. Then he bought a ranch at Harrop, which he worked for a number of years before selling out to the late Victor J. Armstrong, and removing to Washington.

He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Miss Vivian, who is teaching at Okanogan, Wash.; and a son, Frank, who has been preparing for college.

LADY BALFOUR ON "FAMILY"

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Lady Frances Balfour refuses to let "scandal-mongers" alarm her with their prediction that the family will disappear as an institution in modern society.

"It is not the family that is disintegrating," says Lady Frances, "but the parochial life of the community, due to a great extent to the vast improvement of locomotion."

She declares the "helpless female dependents" have "disintegrated" to their own great advantage, as they have been given an education and are reckoned citizens on equality with their brothers.

Relationship of Minister and the Embassy Discussed

OTTAWA, Sept. 30.—The relationship of Canada's proposed minister plenipotentiary at Washington to the British ambassador there will probably be the subject of discussion between Premier King and the British government when Mr. King goes to London soon. As pointed out by Premier King some days ago, the appointment of Canada's representative at Washington will not be made until after a discussion of the position.

Mr. Massey does not go to England as a member of the Canadian delegation to the imperial conference, but he is arranging to be in London when the discussion takes place.

LOST NURSE IS FOUND ALIVE ON MOUNTAIN

Wandered for Month Without Food on Tulameen Mountain; Collapses When Found

Search Party Found Wanderer on Monday; She Stumbled Into Their Camp

PRINCETON, B.C., Sept. 30. — From her comfortable hospital bed, Mary Warburton, 57-year-old nurse, told the halting but coherent story of her wanderings without food, proper clothing or guidance for a month in the snow-covered Tulameen mountains, west of here, from which she was rescued last Monday by "Podunk" Davis, a guide, and Constable Daugherty of the provincial police, after hope that she would ever be found alive had been generally abandoned.

Clad only in a light khaki hiking costume, Miss Warburton said she left Hope, on the Fraser river, on August 25 with a four-day supply of food for a 66-mile tramp over the rough mountain trail to Princeton. On the second day out, after having covered about 25 miles, she continued, she took the wrong path. The following day she stumbled when crossing a mountain stream and lost all of her food with the exception of the remains of half a pound of butter with which she had started out. The butter she conserved as long as possible, taking only a small portion morning and night while it lasted. In a few days, however, she was absolutely without food, and obtained her only nourishment by chewing leaves and fungae, which she did not swallow. After the first week or so, she stated, she did not feel hungry.

Went Out Saturday

In a final effort to trace Miss Warburton, Davis and Constable Dougherty left here last Saturday. Shortly after pitching camp in the Paradise valley on Monday they heard a faint "hello" and after a search Davis came upon the nurse, who, supported by a stick, was tettering in the direction of the camp fire smoke. She was in an emaciated condition and her clothing was in tatters. All that was left of her shoes were the soles, which were bound to her feet with pieces of rope.

"You're an angel from heaven" was the woman's greeting as she collapsed at Davis' feet.

Charles Gossen was killed at a level crossing three miles east of Trenton, when a train struck his motor car.

One Mother Says:

Children who are learning addition will be fascinated by its possibilities if you start them on an example that will lead as far into infinity as they care to go. Take a long piece of paper about six inches wide. In the upper right-hand corner, set down the figure "1," and beneath it another "1." Draw a line and add. Beneath the answer, "2," set another "2" and add. And so continue—adding each answer to itself, indefinitely. Children become absorbed in watching this thing grow.

PUBLICITY MAIN FACTOR IN SCHEME

Amery Tells of Plans to Put Over Marketing Scheme the Dominions With Motherland

LONDON, Sept. 30.—With regard to the government grant of £1,000,000 a year for the encouragement of the marketing of Empire produce in lieu of tariff preferences which the government found it was inexpedient to proceed with, Lieut.-Col. L. C. Amery, secretary of state for Dominion affairs, stated today that it was proposed to spend the money mainly in publicity and research.

Colonel Amery made it clear that home products were to be equalled included with Dominion products in connection with the government grant and this arrangement, he said, had been entirely approved of by the governments of the various dominions.

Posters Prepared

Mammoth posters are being prepared as a part of the publicity scheme and the first view of them will be given to the premiers of the dominions when they are in London attending the Imperial conference. Moving pictures and broadcasting will swell the tide of advertising.

It is not proposed to advertise British products in the dominions, according to Colonel Amery, but it has been suggested that £40,000 a year should be devoted to creating better marketing methods here for homeland products.

CRESTON GETS TO WORK ON THE RECLAMATION

Meet American Interests and if Unsatisfactory Local Money Will Do Work

CRESTON, B.C., Sept. 30.—Shareholders of Creston Reclamation company, limited, met in special session Tuesday night, the purpose of the meeting was to get the shareholders' views as how they want the reclamation of the company's concession of 10,000 acres on Kootenay Flats proceeded with.

Representatives of a Spokane-Portland syndicate are due here Friday to confer with the directors as to terms on which these outside capitalists can associate themselves with the company in the dyking of the entire acreage.

Now that almost 15,000 acres of similar lands have been reclaimed and cropped on the Idaho side there is a strong sentiment that the work should be done by local capital in such sized units as can be financed, with the first one of 2000 acres to be gone on with immediately on the terms submitted by a Toronto firm of contractors and engineers.

Both propositions were threshed out thoroughly and the directors were given until the first of the month to make a satisfactory agreement with the American interests. If this is impossible then a drive will be made for the required capital to undertake the work locally. So as no time would be lost a committee of three was named to prepare a prospectus to be submitted to those who will be invited to join with the Reclamation company in developing the area by units.

The area chosen by the directors for local development was approved by the meeting. It fronts the village and judging by the luxuriance of the hay crop grown on it it is of exceptional fertility. If the outside interests lend a hand with the work the whole area from Goat river at Creston down to a point beyond Wynndel will be included in the dyked area.

Since word has got out that a unit of 2000 acres might be attempted locally there has been a healthy demand from local orchardists and others to be given opportunity to enter the company if an enlargement of capital is decided upon, one of the applicants registering for the right to purchase a 1000 acre block of the reclaimed areas.

Promises Correction of Erroneous Idea in Ireland of the Dominion

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 30.—When Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster, returns to Ireland after completing his holiday tour of Canada, he will do his utmost to eradicate the erroneous impressions which hold sway in the Emerald Isle regarding the Dominion. This was Sir James' promise to a gathering of 100 Sudbury and district business men and board of trade members, who gathered at a luncheon in his honor today when Ulster's premier, accompanied by Lady Craig and family, visited the nickel mines of Sudbury district.

'GRAY TERROR'

The Astonishing Adventures of the Gray Phantom

By HERMAN LANDON

(Copyright by Street & Smith Corp. Serialized by Ledger Syndicate.)

Synopsis of Preceding Installments

HELEN HARDWICK, sweetheart of the Gray Phantom and partner with him in numerous adventures, is lured by a fake phone call to the home of PAUL WARD, on 50th street, New York City, the night he is murdered. Through a series of carefully arranged bits of circumstantial evidence, it is clear to LIEUTENANT CULLIGORE, of the police, that she is guilty, and he is about to arrest her when she is spirited away under his nose and taken to a deserted house somewhere outside the city. Although her rescuer appears to be sent by the GRAY PHANTOM, hero of many miraculous escapades, Helen is soon disillusioned when she is locked in an upstairs room and threatened with violence by RED MAGEE, a brutal criminal. All this is part of a cleverly arranged scheme, planned by THE DUKE, a supercriminal of the basest type, who has been imprisoned through the Gray Phantom's efforts. Through MISS FAY WINTON, one of the Duke's emissaries, the Phantom learns that Helen is being held prisoner, her release being conditional upon his rescuing the Duke from prison within 10 days. Desperately seeking some solution to the situation, the Gray Phantom visits the Ward house to interview MRS. SLADE, the old housekeeper. Finding the front door open, he enters just in time to catch the words "Red Magee" from the lips of the housekeeper, who dies in his arms mortally wounded from a knife thrust. In the meantime, Helen is warned by TOPEKA JIMMIE, held prisoner in the room next to hers, of a mysterious MR. EMANON (which is "no name" spelled backward), who is the Duke's right-hand man, and who thinks out his plots while playing weird violin music. Before the Gray Phantom can escape from the Ward house he is confronted by Lieut. Culligore and escapes only after using a clever ventriloquist's trick. Hunted by the police, the Phantom decides to take refuge with AMBROSE MARR, eccentric acquaintance with whom he had shared past adventures. Hearing weird violin music within, he is astonished to find Miss Winton occupying the house. She directs him to Marr's new home, several doors away, and vehemently denies that there is a violin in the house. Marr tells the Gray Phantom that the only member of the Duke's gang who knows Helen's hiding place is Mr. Emanon.

In the Hidden Room

There could be no mistake. The sensation, at first vague and uncertain, was poignantly distinct now. It had left the Phantom an impression as clear as if the contours of the face were imprinted on the palm of his hand. His nerves had tingled to the touch of features that were smooth, firm and warm. Was it a woman's face? He wondered for a moment, and a picture of Fay Winton's glamorous personality flashed across his mind.

In an instant he brushed the thought aside. Miss Winton could never have found her way into this subterranean crypt which to all appearances was accessible only through the house above. Ambrose Marr? Marr's face was almost as smooth in outline as a woman's, presenting a sharp contrast to the dominant expression of hardness and force that characterized eyes and mouth, yet the lingering vibration in the Phantom's finger tips told him it was not Marr who had visited him in this dark chamber. Then who could it have been?

His mind was working in flashes, and only a few moments had passed since his abrupt awakening. It had all happened so quickly that it seemed as if the person whom his hand had touched must be still with him, perhaps standing only a few feet from where he lay. His rest, though brief, had strengthened him, and his mind was functioning with its usual alertness to impressions. Now a fresh apprehension swept upon him, one that caused him to spring from his crudely fashioned bed and peer sharply into the tomblike gloom.

If he could neither hear nor see anything, still he was conscious of a faint movement in the air. He might have noticed it sooner if his mind had not been occupied by other things, chiefly the startling sensation that had accompanied his precipitate awakening. He started forward, moving toward the point where he thought the hidden door should be by which he had entered the chamber, but his fumbling hands encountered nothing but a blank expanse of wall, and he recalled that the matches he had struck earlier in the night, while inspecting his hiding place, had revealed no sign of an opening.

Suddenly he turned, moved a few steps in another direction, and now the current he had previously noticed swept straight into his face. It was a gentle, cooling draft, affording a pleasant relief from the stale air he had breathed for hours, and he stood there inhaling it eagerly, while wondering how there could be an air current in a compartment that was closed as tightly as this one appeared to be. There seemed to be but one possible explanation, and that was that somewhere there must be an opening which he had so far failed to find.

Again he moved forward, trying to follow the course of the current and locate its source, but once more he came to an abrupt stop. Still another impression came to him, a subtler and more elusive one, and so faint that his senses had not registered it until now. He stood tense, listening, his nerves instantly responding to a familiar premonition of danger, a vague and yet impressive warning that suddenly intensified his alertness. He strained his ears, and now he heard it quite distinctly—the sound of some one's quick, nervous intakes of breath.

He turned, and then another sound, coming from the other direction, insinuated itself with teasing elusiveness into his consciousness. Some one's footsteps were gliding softly over the floor, approaching him from the corner opposite the one where he had heard the breathing a moment ago.

He waited a little longer, trying to clarify his impressions, quite certain now that he had two unseen companions in the darkness, and then he threw himself swiftly to one side, just as something darted past him. There came a faint scraping of feet against the floor, as if a hurried movement had been suddenly checked, and then followed a brief period in which all sounds seemed to be swallowed up in stillness and gloom.

The Phantom waited, holding his breath, while he strained his ears, and then the deathlike pause was interrupted by a movement close by. He had an impression that some one whose feet were scarcely touching the floor was gliding toward him with a softness that suggested the attack of a panther, and then he started sharply, as a hand swept his face. He struck out, but his fist hit only empty air, and in the next instant a form flung itself at his back, and he felt the pressure of two hands at his throat. There was something diabolical about the light, almost playful touch of the encircling fingers, as they tightened around his windpipe. They were smooth as velvet, yet their slow, deft twistings, as they gradually increased the pressure, indicated superhuman strength. Torn between horrible agony and an intense, nameless loathing, the Phantom felt as if every breath of air were being sucked out of his straining lungs by the strangling clutch at his throat.

A cold, sinking sensation assailed him, and then, by a supreme exertion of strength, he flung the monstrous shape from his back. He staggered, gulped for air, waited until the terrific pounding produced by the sudden rush of blood to his head ceased, then flexed his muscles in preparation for a fresh attack. He resolved he would not be caught off his guard again. Next time the strangler would find him ready to fight. He strained his ears to catch the faintest sound, wondering from which direction the next onslaught would come. He could hear nothing, but somehow he sensed a furtive movement at his back, and then a faint gasp of surprise fell from his lips.

A light had appeared of a sudden, a narrow streak of white light that slashed the gloom like a beacon. It lasted only a moment, long enough to enable him to realize that the light was trained directly on himself, making him a luminous target, and then it was blotted out. In the next instant a swishing sound went through the air, a hard metallic object crashed with savage force against his head, a laugh sounded somewhere in the darkness, and then, with a dull, distinct roar, the walls seemed to heave and swallow him up.

Under the Blanket

The window shade, lowered almost to the sill, admitted only a narrow shaft of sunlight into the room. It fell slantingly on a faded carpet of once gaudy hues, on a portion of frayed and tawdry wallpaper, on a few pieces of battered furniture showing signs of much boisterous usage, and, last of all, as it extended farther and farther across the floor, its glimmering rays touched the lower half of a crude board partition in the rear of the room.

As if by solemn intent, the light seemed to shun the long upholstered couch standing in the corner nearest the window. A blanket was spread over it, a bright-colored fabric that bulged and curved in places with curious suggestiveness.

The Phantom's eyelids fluttered open. There was a dull throb over his temples and in the back of his head, and his joints ached, as from hours of continuous jolting. He glanced dazedly about him, peering in turn at each object in the room until his roving glance paused on the couch in the opposite corner. He stared stupidly at the gayly colored blanket with its odd protuberances and depressions. It seemed to suggest to his mind, something that had a doleful and sinister significance, but as yet he could not quite grasp what it was.

He tried to raise a hand to his throbbing temple, but his muscles would not move. Looking downward he observed without emotion that he was sitting in a huge armchair, and that several layers of coarse cloth were wound tightly around his waist, pinning his arms to his sides. His feet, crossed at the ankles, were secured with stount twine. He felt too listless to make the effort, and he knew without trying that any attempt to release his limbs would be useless.

He inhaled eagerly, for the pine-scented air had a soothing effect on his aching head. The window was open a little at the bottom, and a sportive breeze swept into the room. Evidently he was somewhere out in the country, far from the din and flurry of city streets, where a few hours ago he had been a hunted outlaw, menaced by the Duke's cohorts on one hand and by the sleuth hounds of the police on the other. How he had come here he did not know, and the dull churning in his mind made it impossible to collect his thoughts.

A thin smile of bafflement came to his lips, but it faded quickly away, as, turning his head, he once more fixed his eyes on the conformations of the blanket. He gazed at them intently, while a pale gleam of comprehension began to penetrate the chaos in his mind.

Suddenly the door opened. A sturdily built man walked into the room. His face, despite the burly jaw, would not have been unpleasant save for the affected smile that twisted his lips. He crossed to the middle of the room and sat down in one of the rickety chairs, facing the Phantom.

"Too bad the Duke isn't here," he muttered ruefully. "It would do his sore eyes good to see the Gray Phantom like this."

"No doubt," said the Phantom dryly, his mind clearing still more under the stimulus of the other's taunt. "But, unfortunately for him, the Duke is in enforced retirement. I had something to do with the change in his mode of life. By the way, who the devil are you?"

"My name is Cram—Fred Cram," said the other, glowering darkly. "It's just as well that we know each other, for I've got several things to say to you."

"I hope you will begin by telling me where I am, and how I came here."

"I won't tell you where you are, except to say that you're a long way from home. You came most of the way in a truck."

"A truck? No wonder I feel as if I had been riding a porcupine."

"It was rough travel, but it was the only safe way. The cops had orders to stop all pleasure cars and give them the once-over, but nobody imagined the Gray Phantom would travel in a truck. They thought that kind of getaway was too slow for him."

"They were right. I never traveled in a truck before. It was a novel experience, but unfortunately I was in no condition to enjoy it. I seem to recall that some one slugged me on the head. After that I believe a needle was driven into my arm. I have certain queer sensations this morning which tell me I was given an injection of morphine."

Cram grinned. "It had to be done. You're a slick one, and we couldn't take any chances."

"Thanks for the compliment, but I still fail to see the point."

"You'll see it soon enough." Cram gave him a suspicious glance. "What were you doing in Ambrose Marr's house last night?"

"Chatting with an old acquaintance. Nothing objectionable in that, I hope? What puzzles me is how the Duke's amiable ruffins happened to find me."

KIMBERLEY WILL PLAY TRAIL TEAM

Accepts Offer for Game on October 6; Trail Making Preparations

TRAIL, Sept. 30.—Definite word that the Kimberley soccer eleven, champions of East Kootenay, will come to Trail on October 6 to play for the county championship was received today by E. Mason, president of the Trail football club.

Preparations for the big game, which, already under way, will be completed by the executive committee tomorrow. Financial matters are to be settled. It will cost about $150 to bring Kimberley here, and there is talk of a banquet to follow.

Meanwhile two teams have been drawn up for the last practice match. It will be held Saturday afternoon at 4:30. Trail's contenders will be selected during and after the game. Kitchen, perhaps the best left back in Trail, was accidentally kicked in Wednesday's game and was off today. He may not be in shape for the championship game, though he is regarded generally as one of the men sure to get a place on the team.

Saturday's teams are:

All-Stars—McVie, goal; Forbes and Stewart, backs; Dunlop, Barr and Williams, halves; Yule, Clapham, Morvay, Bains and Prosch, forwards.

Opposition—Seglio, goal; Hayes and Mitchell, backs; W. Laurie, A. Laurie and Thomson, halves; Rowlands, Gentles, Stiles, T. Laurie and Bowkett, forwards.

Trail-Tadanac Citizens Still Sign Petitions

TRAIL, Sept. 30.—Residents of Trail and of Tadanac are practically solidly behind the movement to secure a footbridge across the Columbia river to connect the city business section direct with East Trail, the most rapidly growing residential section.

Practically no one has refused to sign one of the six identical petitions being circulated by community workers. The lists will contain names going into thousands.

The drive will be continued on Saturday and intermission to be permitted to the several official bodies in the community for indorsation before being dispatched to the provincial minister of public works, Hon. J. D. MacLean.

Trail Social Notes in Brief

TRAIL, Sept. 30.—Returning from an early morning hunt about noon, Bernard Wadsworth created considerable stir with his bag. It was a large black tail deer with symmetrical eight-point antlers slung along the fender of his car.

Mrs. Carter, wife of T. G. Carter, principal of Trail public school, is expected to arrive with her family tomorrow to take permanent residence on Oak street.

G. R. Stanley of Nakusp, who has been visiting his father, A. B. S. Stanley, leaves today for Brandon, Sask., to take up his third year study in medicine at Brandon college.

J. H. Vestrup of Nakusp spent today in the city on business with his mining associates. With the outdoor sport season practically over, W. Laurie, caretaker of the ball park, today boarded up windows and gave a final inspection to see that everything was ship shape. He resumes his duties at the smelter tomorrow.

The city isolation hospital is again tenantless, according to Dr. F. S. Eyton, medical health officer, who lifted the quarantine from the last measles case today.

Trail's school athletics are due to commence their training for the indoor meet tomorrow night at the fair building, which has now being put into shape. Tonight John (Ice) Young sprayed the ground to lay the dust ready for the practices. Coaches will be on hand.

TWO PROPERTIES IN TRAIL TAX SALE

One Solid Rock, Not Purchased; Clear Title Granted in Other Case

TRAIL, Sept. 30.—If municipal tax sales are a barometer of prosperity, Trail has justifiable claims to rank with the most prosperous municipality in the world.

Two properties only came under the hammer of W. E. B. Monypenny, city clerk, at the annual sale of property for delinquent taxes today.

One of these was purely a matter of form and economy to clear title to lot 1, block 68, a lot 25 feet by 100 on Nelson avenue, bought by Louis Nizzero two years ago. He paid the $38.21 due and got clear title.

The other was a parcel of almost vertical rock 3 7-10 acres in extent, whose asset was an unobstructed view of the surrounding country. It was owned by Mrs. Edna Gilbert of Vancouver. There were no bidders on the $79.18 taxes delinquent. The parcel is now one of the city's most solid possessions.

TRAIL INFANT IS LAID AT REST

TRAIL, Sept. 30.—The funeral of Artelio Buno of Rossland avenue took place this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. Father F. X. Teck conducted the service in St. Francis Xavier church and at the graveside. The pallbearers were four young girls, Mary and Alice Maniago, Annie Priore and Yolanda Romano.

Kaslo Hospital Board Discusses Plans for an X-Ray

KASLO, Sept. 30. — On Friday the Kaslo hospital board met at the office of the president, James Anderson. Routine business was put through, showing the finances to be sound and the hospital in good condition generally.

A discussion over an X-ray machine was the main topic. The matter was left over till more definite information be secured.

Must Have More Exhibits; but Where'd We Put Them?

Nelson's fair has been put on its feet financially, but it will not fulfill its complete functions until it contains more exhibits.

The exhibits could be obtained. All that would be necessary would be to go after them early in the summer or late spring and arrange for them to be displayed in September. But if we got them, where would we put them? Not in the fair building. It's crowded now.

We need a new fair building, which could also be used as an auditorium and for big conventions and dances.

Mr. Ewart's Best 'Precedents'

It seems to be assumed in some quarters that the "constitutional" issue was pronounced upon in the late Dominion election, and the fact that Mackenzie King was returned is alleged to be a "rebuke" to Lord Byng. This does not seem to be good logic. If any one general cause was behind the gains the Liberals made, they would have been general over the country, instead of sectional.

As a matter of fact, the "constitutional" issue is no stronger now than it was when several leading Liberal papers, including the Vancouver Star, openly laughed at it. The Star said Mackenzie King's request for a dissolution was an attempt to avoid the customs vote.

Mr. Ewart's 100-year search yields four instances of what he is pleased to call "second" dissolution—by which is apparently suggested a second dissolution with the same object as the first, the first having been ineffective:

1. In 1900 Lord Salisbury obtained a dissolution with two years still to go, but that certainly proves he had five years of his term behind him. If that is a "second" dissolution, anything would be.

2. Mr. Asquith, succeeding Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman on the latter's death, was granted a dissolution, four years of the Campbell-Bannerman term having elapsed. Four years gone, and a new premier, ought to "alibi" that from being a "second" dissolution.

3. After the lords, under the pressure of the Asquith electoral victory as above, yielded, and passed the budget that revolutionized land taxation, Mr. Asquith within a year again went to the country, this time on a policy of annulment of the lord's power of veto, which duly carried the country. In this case the dissolution was a "second" one in the sense that the term was but partially expired. It was, however, an appeal on a specific policy on which the country was asked to pronounce, and it was granted to a successful prime minister, who overwhelmingly controlled the commons.

4. When Bonar Law died within a year of carrying the country, his successor, Mr. Baldwin, announced a protective policy, and obtained a dissolution to put this before the country. In this case also there was a change of prime minister, a highly successful party in power, and a new policy to be put by this responsible party before the country for adoption or rejection.

These "precedents" seem to be dealing with "a different animal" than a Mackenzie King second dissolution!

King's Position Was Slightly Different

Seriously, which of the qualifications in the above "precedents" could be pleaded in connection with Mackenzie King's obvious attempt to end parliament before the customs motion was voted on?

He was not a successful prime minister—having come out of his previous appeal to the country in a minority of 44 seats.

Nor was he a new prime minister, entitled to ask a mandate of his own from the country.

He was not, as a successful prime minister, putting a new policy before the country, on which specifically he desired a mandate.

He was merely a beaten prime minister, with a 50 per cent minority, losing his grip on a conglomerate house by which he essayed to govern, losing it because of the revelations of governmental shortcoming that a wing of his allies could not swallow, and, under the shadow of censure, appealing for an opportunity to snatch, if possible, a reversed verdict from the people who had rejected his exactly similar appeal eight months earlier.

There are many recipes for cucumber pickles — both the ripe and the small (gherkins). Here are two excellent ones:

Ripe Cucumber Pickles — Dissolve two and one-half teaspoons of powdered alum (level) in each quart of water used, heating the mixture to the boiling point with the cucumbers in it (sliced lengthwise) and then drawing to back of range for two and one-half hours. Now take the pickles from the alum water and chill them on ice. Over the firt put one quart of cider vinegar in which you have put six cups of granulated sugar (heaping), one-third can each of whole cloves and stick cinnamon, and one tablespoon of allspice berries. Bring this liquid to the boil, let simmer five minutes, then cook the halved cucumbers in it for 12 minutes. Remove cucumbers to a stone crock, turn the hot vinegar mixture over them, and let stand overnight. In the morning drain the vinegar syrup off the pickles, bring it to the boiling point, and once more pour it over the pickles in the jar. Repeat this process for two more mornings, each time scalding the syrup by itself and turning it over the halved cucumbers. Weight down the pickles and store till needed in a cool, dry place.

Gherkin Pickles—Merely wipe four quarts of the small, unripe cucumbers with clean cloths. Place them in a stone jar and over them pour eight cups of boiling water in which you have dissolved one and one-fourth cups of salt. Let stand three days without touching. Then drain off this brine, put brine over the fire by itself, bring it to the boiling point, and again pour it over the gherkins in the crock. Let stand again three days, then once more drain from pickles, bring to the boil, and turn it over the gherkins in the crock, to stand there for three more days. At the end of this period, drain gherkins from brine and wipe them with clean cloths. Over them pour one gallon of boiling water in which is dissolved one and one-fourth tablespoons of alum; let pickles stand in this alum-water five hours, before draining them and cooking them, a few at a time, for 10 minutes, in the following mixture:

To one gallon of cider vinegar add three red sweet peppers cut in small pieces (seeds discarded), three sticks cinnamon, two tablespoons allspice berries, and one tablespoon of whole cloves; let boil 10 minutes before putting pickles in it. When all pickles are cooked in this mixture, place them in a crock and strain the same mixture over them.

Tomorrow—Good Rugs.

St. Peter and St. Paul Fortress Will Be Turned Into Historical Museum

LENINGRAD, Russia, Sept. 30.—The notorious fortress of St. Peter and Paul will be turned into an historical museum. All the cells and dungeons in the grim edifice on the Neva, which for more than 200 years was both citadel and prison, will be restored as they were in the beginning of the eighteenth century when Peter the Great laid the foundation of St. Petersburg, as this town was then known, to give Russia "a window looking toward Europe."

The purpose of the restoration is to keep ever vivid in the minds of the people the manner in which the czars treated political offenders. Some of the most noted political characters of Russia spent their lives in the dark dungeons of this old fortress.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

Insuring Your Health

It is but a short time ago that, when you did not feel well, you consulted your physician and he put a thermometer in your mouth, or perhaps you used the thermometer yourself without consulting your doctor. If there was no temperature you figured that you were not sick, and you either felt better about it, or continued to feel miserable despite your normal temperature.

The fact that the temperature was slightly below normal did not enter into your considerations at all, despite its real importance.

Then came the blood pressure apparatus, and if the pressure was very low or very high, some abnormal condition existed and treatment given. Later came the apparatus for testing the amount of work the tissues of the body were performing, even when the body was at complete rest.

If for the weight, height and age of the individual the amount of work was more than normal, that is the tissues were using up more energy and creating more heat than was necessary to do their ordinary jobs in the system, then something had got into the system that was causing this. If the amount of work was less than normal for the individual, then some tissues were not functioning sufficiently.

And now a further step is being taken to test out the condition of the body. This consists in injecting a small quantity of glandular substance under the skin. Within one or two minutes, in a normal person, the blood pressure will gradually rise and be up 15 to 20 points within 10 minutes, returning to normal within an hour. However, in sickness one type of patient will have a lowering of the pressure whereas another type will have a greatly increased pressure. Low blood pressure being found in the majority of patients with diabetes, asthma, and stomach ulcers, whereas high pressure is found in the severe type of goitre, and grave kidney conditions where albumen shows in the urine.

Now what does all this mean?

That the day is coming when a complete physical examination will include all these tests. Not that a man who is feeling well will be frightened because these tests may suggest some underlying trouble, but that a man will be able to insure his health insofar as that is humanly possible, just as he now insures his life.

BASQUE COAST RESORTS ARE CHARLESTON MAD

ST. JEAN DE LUZ, France, Sept. 30.—The Basque coast resorts are Charleston mad. From Biarritz to San Sebastian every second dance in the casinos is a Charleston. It has displaced the tango, even with the Spanish and French pleasure-seekers, who do the Charleston with wild abandon.

Many hotels have posted notices asking visitaors not to practice the Charleston in their rooms because of the havoc it plays with lighting fixtures and plaster.

Five Brantford motorists will appear in court for driving with one hand and encircling ladies' waists with the other.

May Quit Cabinet

LORD EUSTACE PERCY

Minister of education in the Baldwin government, who, it is considered likely, will be chairman of the British Broadcasting commission. If he accepts the post he will resign from the cabinet and from parliament. The salary will be the same as a cabinet minister's, $25,000 a year.

MISS McPHAIL SAYS HAS MORE SELF-CONFIDENCE

DURHAM, Ont., Sept. 30.—Agnes McPhail, reelected for Grey Southeast, after the cheers and horn blowing were over, said to her admirers, speaking from a balcony:

'I have greater self-confidence, owing to the confidence you have reposed in me, and I am sure I will be able to serve you better in the parliament that is ahead than I did in the one just past." Practically all of the day she had spent at her father's house in Ceylon. She received returns by telephone. In her home poll at Ceylon, No. 4, Artemesia, Miss McPhail lost heavily. In this poll last year her majority was 93. Now there was a loss of 50. "I expected it," said Miss McPhail. "The turnout of old people, some of whom had not been in a booth for 15 years, may have been responsible for this."

NO DECORATIONS

RIO JANEIRO, Sept. 30.—Brazilian citizens, regardless of position or rank, are forbidden by a new constitutional amendment to accept foreign decorations. Citizens accepting such honors will lose their citizenship.

GOVERNOR REFUSES HIS SALARY FOR SIX YEARS

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 30.—Governor Alvan T. Fuller has not accepted his salary from the state for the past six years, allowing $33,500 to go back into the general funds of the commonwealth. As congressman he did not take salary from the United States; as lieutenant-governor for four years he did not take the salary of $4000 a year, and so far he has not collected the $17,500 which he has earned as governor at the rate of $10,000 a year.

A salary check sent him each month from the state treasurer's office has never been cashed. At the end of a year, all unpaid checks are outlawed and the banks instructed not to cash them.

NAKUSP PROTESTS ROAD SHUT-DOWN

NAKUSP, B.C., Sept. 30.—A special meeting of the board of trade is being held this evening to consider the stoppage of work on the Nakusp—Summit Lake road, leaving a strip of half a mile uncompleted right in the center of the undertaking.

Townspeople claim that to call off the workmen at this stage adds very considerable expense to the cost by the removing of outfits and replacing them later on instead of continuing the work this season. It is claimed that the appropriation is diminished, that the cost of the portion performed by day labor is excessive as compared to the cost by contract—the difference being about 40 per cent.

Thomas M. Marlowe has resigned as editor of the London Daily Mail, which office he has held since 1899.

RAILWAY PLANS INTRIGUE NAKUSP

Something Moving on Water Front Is Belief; Rumors Are Rife

NAKUSP, B.C., Sept. 30.—There is speculation locally as to the intentions of the Canadian Pacific railway, in regard to water front and yard leases. It is thought to be the outcome of the visit last week of half a dozen of its most prominent local officials, who were accompanied by the right-of-way agent from Vancouver. There are rumors that all leases, some of which have been in force for 33 years, are about to be cancelled and that some scheme is on foot for the development of the water frontage and an extension of the railway yards.

Certain it is, however, that a request of a transfer of a lease of ground, on which a cottage was built, within the yard, over 30 years ago, has been refused by the company—an indication that the ground will soon be required for some other purpose of the company.

The company has a large number of town lots, in the town proper, still for sale, and the populace is watching with interest any further movement by the company, in the hope it will be for the betterment of Nakusp.

Meantime, rumors are being spread—that a large pulp and sawmill concern will soon be established here—that owing to serious accidents occurring from time to time on the Kettle Valley line (for which the Arrow lakes have no love), a resumption of through traffic between Nelson and the main line, with tugs, barges and slips will again be effective, as in years before the construction of the Kettle Valley line.

Passmore Children Won Eight Prizes at the Nelson Fair

PASSMORE, Sept. 30.—The regular meeting of the Slocan Valley Women's institute was held Saturday, September 25, with Mrs. E. Jamieson, president, in the chair.

The committee in charge of the children's work exhibited at the Nelson fair made a very satisfactory report. The school children won eight prizes. A vote of thanks was rendered to Miss MacLean, their teacher, for her interest in the work. Also to Jack Houston, teacher, for the past two years. The sum of $20 was voted to the crippled children's fund.

RANCH DISPLAY IS FEATURE OF CRESTON FAIR

Sam Moon of Wynndel Wins Premier Honors in Home Products

SCHOOL PUPILS MAKE GOOD SHOWING

Camp Lister Man Leads in Vegetables; Women's Exhibits Excellent

CRESTON, B.C., Sept. 30.—Ideal weather prevails today for the opening of Creston's ninth annual fall fair. Due to the illness of W. K. Esling, M.P., for West Kootenay, and the unavoidable absence of Col. Fred Lister, M.P.P., the opening exercises were very brief, Major Mallandaine and President D. T. Scrimgeour giving short addresses.

The show in many of the departments is lighter than usual. This was unavoidable in flowers and vegetables, due to the killing frosts encountered late last week, while the wet weather that has prevailed for most of the month has hampered operations in the orchards and there has not been the usual time at the disposal of the growers. And the same luck of time has militated against the ranchers' wives making the usual big entry list in the cooking and canned goods classes.

Ranch Display Is Feature

Judging started late on Wednesday afternoon, with E. C. Hunt of Nelson and M. A. Middleton of Vernon in the fruit and vegetables, and Mrs. Hugh Ross of Nelson, and Mrs. Rothwell of Wardner in the ladies' classes. The live stock and poultry will be judged by Angus Hay and Mrs. Hopkins of Cranbrook, the latter being the poultry specialist.

The outstanding feature of the fair is the ranch display, a new section at the Creston exhibition, in which first prize goes to Sam Moon of Wynndel, and second to George Cartwright of Erickson. Both had large and varied displays but Mr. Moon excelled in that he had gathered together a greater variety of ranch grown products. Mr. Cartwright had a more attractive showing of canned goods, butter, etc.

Wynndel School Wins

In the school districts competition Wynndel school carries off first prize for the second time and is now in undisputed possession of the F. H. Jackson shield. The win was well deserved as the show of fruit, vegetables and cereals necessitated no end of labor in assembling as well as staging in such attractive fashion. Creston school was second, and Erickson third.

The display of boxed apples is much better than might be looked for, season considered. In the five-box lot, that carries with it the S. A. Speers' cup, W. J. Truscott takes first with Delicious; T. Goodwin, second, with McIntosh Red; and P. R. Truscott, third, with Delicious.

In the three-box lot Delicious was featured by all the winners, T. Goodwin being first; P. R. Truscott, second; and W. J. Truscott, third. T. Goodwin took both prizes for two boxes of McIntosh Red, and divided the honors with Mrs. J. W. Hamilton, who scored second on two boxes of Wagener. Mrs. Hamilton also took quite a few of the red tickets in the single box class. In pears Sam Moon of Wynndel got both prizes, and the Mawson Brothers cup.

Shows Good Potatoes

Entries in nearly all the sections in the vegetable class were light, the most notable winner being John Huscroft, who farms near the Camp Lister area, whose potatoes were easily the pick of the four entries in the 25-pound lot.

A juvenile section was created for this year, out of a contribution by W. K. Esling, member-elect for West Kootenay, specializing in boys and girls cooking. In the former Misses Jean Henderson and Betty Speers were first and second in the prizes for collection of cooking, and Tom Crawford Jr., and Mavonn Moon in collection of home baking.

Ladies' Win Cookery Prizes

In the cooking class the premier award, for collection of 12 kinds, open to ladies' organizations, went to the Presbyterian Ladies' aid by a very narrow margin over Creston and District Women's institute, and Canyon Ladies' Community club third. At bread the champions are Mrs Goodwin and Mrs. Mallandaine. The pie champions are: Lemon, Mrs. J. H. Webster; apple and pumpkin, Mrs. George Cartwright.

In the needlework class outside exhibitors are more numerous than usual and a fair share of the honors have fallen to Mrs. Horswill and Mrs. Fleming, Nelson. Mrs. Tudor Eyton, Rossland; while locally Mrs. R Walters, Mrs. R. Stevens and Mrs. M. R. Joyce are prominent in the winnings.

Show Good Canned Stuff

In canned goods, Mrs. E. W. Payne, Mrs. George Johnson and Mrs. M. Young fare the best in a very attractive showing of pickles, preserves and jams and jellies.

Under none too encouraging circumstances the directors have, in creditable fashion, kept unbroken Creston's string of fall fairs reinaugurated, after a five-year lapse, in 1918, and much of the credit in this connection is due Mrs. M. R. Joyce, who took over the work of secretary rather late in the year. The other officers of the agricultural association are: President, D. T. Scrimgeour; vice-president, Sam Moon; directors, G. Cartwright, L. Littlejohn, W. S. McAlpine, C. W. Allan, C. O. Rodgers, P. R. Truscott, Major Mallandaine and Col. Fred Lister, M.P.P.

Fernie Man, on Court Order, Wins Return of Car, Booze

FERNIE, B.C., Sept. 30.—Before Robert Nelan, J.P., Tuesday an application made by S. Herchmer on behalf of J. Wilson of this city, common carrier, for the return of an automobile and load of 15 cases of whiskey was granted. In support of the application proper expert papers were produced showing everything in regular order insofar as transportation of the goods in question were concerned. The seizure was made by Provincial Constable Smith of Michel, recently near Crow's Nest, B.C. The constable stopped the car for the purpose of inspecting it, whereupon the driver, William Robertson, abruptly abandoned it, leaving the car and contents with the constable.

ROYAL ARCH MASONS GATHER AT FERNIE

FERNIE, Sept. 30.—T. H. Carey of Cumberland, B.C., Grand "Z" of the grand chapter of British Columbia Royal Arch Masons, accompanied by H. Giegerich of Kaslo, grand second principal, paid an official visit to Mount Moriah chapter No. 20 of Fernie on Tuesday and addressed a large gathering of R. A. Chapter Masons. W. Worden, district superintendent from Cranbrook was in attendance, and Charles Fossett, former principal of the Fernie chapter, but now stationed at Cranbrook, paid a friendly visit on this occasion.

TELLS TORONTO FAIR VISITORS ABOUT PROVINCE

Mrs. Rutherford Finds the Glorious Interior Is Unknown

HOLDS UP HER END IN THE PUBLICITY

Writes Chatty Letter on Work of Women's Institutes at Fair

By MRS. WILLIAM RUTHERFORD

It is a very rainy evening in Toronto, and I feel as if I'd like to tell my friends in the Kootenay something of my trip east, and a few of the wonderful sights of this great exhibition. It is a tremendously thrilling experience to come all the way from British Columbia, across sunny Alberta, smiling among her wheat fields, over the immense plains of Saskatchewan, and the beautiful rolling fields of Manitoba, and down the lakes to the western door of this, my home province of Ontario, and through this green and lovely land to a beautiful city set amid what looks like a forest of noble trees. I believe I had almost forgotten how lovely Ontario can be, but she took me to her heart again on a gorgeous day of sunshine and blue skies, and never so long as I live shall I forget the beauty of her fields trimmed about the edges with maples and elms, her straight hard roads, leading through mile-long avenues of trees, and above all, the cosy demure little villages nestling under her maples.

I had never been in western Ontario before, and was lucky enough to drive all the way from Sarnia to Toronto, an unforgettable experience. It was wonderful to see towns and villages one has known by name all one's life, looking so prosperous and contented, as well they might in such a pleasant land.

What a vision the pioneers of Ontario had, as evidenced by those same avenues of trees, both in the country and in this city! I look out from the high window of my hotel and cannot believe I am in a bustling city, for I can see nothing but a sea of leaves.

An Aisle of Wild Flowers

And the wild flowers, truly I might almost say that I have come all this distance through a flower garden. The golden rod has companioned me every mile of the way, I think, and the right-of-way from Kootenay Landing to Port Arthur was like a garden. In Calgary, which I visited for the first time, I found flowers everywhere; wild asters of the most vivid color, as well as a very feathery white one, and what is, I think, a yellow aster, of which I was able to get some seed. And then, the prairie rose! I had often heard that expression, but never realized it meant anything different from our own wild rose. Imagine my surprise when I found it to be a dwarf rose bush growing very profusely, and bearing close to the ground, myriads of sweet scented roses, bigger and far more brilliantly colored than ours. They tell me it is very hard to eradicate, but why try? It really is a beautiful thing, and should be used as a parent plant to breed a race of hardy roses suited to prairie conditions. No doubt this is being done, for surely some prairie dweller must see the possibilities in this plant for hybridizing. There is a dwarf sunflower that grows everywhere across the prairie provinces, and makes a brilliant show, and everywhere was wheat, wheat, wheat. I nearly wept when a friend told me an hour ago of the terrific rains which have fallen in Alberta, for I fear it means loss of what surely looked like a magnificent harvest.

Provincial Neighbors

In the women's wing, where the institutes have their home. I am just across the aisle from Alberta on one side and Manitoba on the other, which is quite as it should be. Indeed, when "Canada's Kitchen," which is in Ontario, needed some butter the other day for a cooking demonstration, one of the girls said, "I'll just run across to Alberta and get it." so you see we are not so widely separated after all.

This scheme of having a booth for each province of Canada, in which the institutes of that province can demonstrate their work and show for the glories of their particular part of our great Dominion is one of tremendous significance. Here are gathered together women from every province, who will not meet casually for a couple of days, as in a convention, but who will live together for two weeks, learning each other's problems and excellences, each other's viewpoints and ideals.

We of the west hang together a bit, though Alberta accused me the other day of trying to steal some of their national parks, but the woman who is most congenial is from New Brunswick, quite disproving Kipling's "East is east and west is west and never the twain shall meet."

What the Provinces Show

New Brunswick has a display of forest products, furs and Indian baskets, photographs of wild life, birch bark and paper.

Quebec has a display of girls' work in sewing, knitting, rug making, and a most arresting display of asbestos in various shapes, from the pure stuff, as it is mined, until it is pulverized. It is very queer looking stuff, and one can hardly believe it is a natural material dug out of the ground.

Manitoba has a fine show of grains, and rather "puts it over" the rest of us because they have a team of three pretty young girls who give splendid demonstrations in home nursing, and tell all about the resources of their country. They preface their talks with a little song which brings the crowd, so I have persuaded them to come over to my booth and start off my "stunts" with a verse of "Out Where the West Begins."

Alberta has her booth decorated with wheat and other grains, and demonstrates eggs in various guises, and has for her slogan, "You tell 'em Alberta."

Each province is entertained by the department of agriculture at luncheon, and Alberta on her day had for favors a tiny sack of beet sugar and a hard-boiled egg, with "You tell 'em Alberta" lettered on in green ink —a very clever scheme, don't you think?

British Columbia Forever

Our booth is decorated with everlasting flowers and British Columbia evergreens, with some fine handmade rugs for a background, and we are "telling 'em" every day about our wonderful climate, and magnificent scenery, and the possibilities in seed growing, fruit growing and gardening. Our slogan, which is printed in huge letters, is: "British Columbia Is the Horticultural Paradise of North America." Not exactly modest, is it, but quite true! For British Columbia's day, I decorated the tables with baskets of everlastings, and made small nosegays of the same for favors, and if I do say it who shouldn't, ours was the prettiest table of all.

Nova Scotia had a very striking booth, a fine sailing ship model set up on a "rolling sea" of canvas against a background painted to look like the ocean, and the sails lettered with the various activities of the institutes.

Ontario had a model kitchen beautifully arranged and furnished, and gave cooking demonstrations every day.

The other provinces chaffed me a lot because of my unbounded enthusiasm for British Columbia, and we had lots of fun, but I was very much in earnest just the same, and did my best to tell the glories of our western province. As I see it, the thing Canada needs most is unity, and an understanding of conditions, whether east or west, and certainly this Federation of Women's Institutes will be a tremendous help in that direction.

I was very proud that a British Columbia institute, that of Lumbly, won first prize in the poster competition, "What our institute has done for the community," and that 10 British Columbia posters held a place among the 50 adjudged the best of the hundreds sent in.

We gave away heaps of literature, and I was thankful to have some Kootenay folders sent me by the Nelson board of trade, because the average person seemed to know only two things about British Columbia, that it had mountains, and two cities, Vancouver and Victoria.

Knew Only Two Cities

A dozen times a day people would say to me: "You are from British Columbia?" "Yes." "From Vancouver? "No." "Oh, from Victoria?" 'No." and then they would look blank, and I would explain that while it was true that British Columbia had 7000 miles of coast, she also had 200,000 square miles of mountains, and that Nelson was the biggest city in the interior, and only 50 miles from Trail, etc., etc., etc.

It began to make me hostile, finally, but it really was funny, and at the end of the two weeks of the exhibition the other provinces were unanimous in saying that the British Columbia representative had certainly put Nelson on the map.

Destroyers in the Tuning Business

(Portion of an Address before the Convention of the National Association of Piano Manufacturers.)

By H. H. Abercrombie

A clever salesman will sell a piano that has seen its last days to a customer for a beginner to learn on, which is a crime. The beginner should have the best that money can buy. The musician can produce music of some sort on most any kind of a piano, but the child or beginner must have the ear trained as well as the fingers. Correct tone and regulation are the most essential things in a piano.

Another destroyer in the tuning business is the dealer that will hire any Tom, Dick or Harry that is cheap enough. Very often this class of tuner is given piece work on deadhead or free tuning. The price is perhaps so small that it is a case of get the money, and the only things that suffer are the pianos and the owners. This same class of dealers will boost the destroyer as being the finest that money can hire, will never entertain a complaint of poor work until the day comes when he sees a cheaper one coming his way, and then the customers pick another prize, and, after the piano has been tuned by several different tuners who have no interest in anything excepting the dollars, it's then the dealer submerges and fires a shot into the manufacturer. This is one of the causes that make the independent tuner.

Another type is the faker that claims that his great-grandfather was a piano maker and that he graduated from a mail order college; that it cost the large sum of $45 to learn the business; but, as he took a summer course at a reduction, he is willing that his customers get the benefit of same.

EFFICIENCY

It takes years of careful training, then more years of hard work satisfactorily performed, before the words "experience" and "ability" take on their full meaning.

Coming strongly endorsed by the best authority in Canada—piano manufacturers who are positively particular where they put their signature, as follows:

Heintzman & Co.
Morris & Karn Co.
Gourlay Piano Co.
Newcombe Piano Co.
Fletcher Bros.
Gerhard Heintzman House, Vancouver
Mason & Risch Co., Vancouver
Prof. D. A. Tripp, Vancouver
David Ross, teacher of vocal, Vancouver

And others of highest authority.

The above fine letters and 16 years of success in this field mean the finest possible results on your piano in tuning and action regulating, cleaning and positively properly pitched.

I will have pleasure in calling on all some time during October.

Soliciting your kind consideration, I remain,

Your very truly,

Alvin E. Perkins

TOD MORGAN WINS OVER JOE GLICK

Defends Junior Lightweight Title in 15-Round Bout in New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Tod Morgan of Seattle successfully defended his junior lightweight championship against an onslaught by Joe Glick of Brooklyn, when he won by a decision in 15 rounds here tonight.

The champion was cautious, but grew less timid as the bout progressed and finally after the 10th round began to show aggressiveness lacking in the earlier stages.

Glick was floored for a count of five in the 11th but came back in impressive fashion and finished the round fighting. This was the only semblance of a knockout during the 15 rounds.

Morgan weighed 128½ and Glick one pound heavier.

In the preliminaries Teddy Baldock of England won from Arthur De Champlains, French Canadian, by a technical knockout in the first round.

MRS. TILLEY WINS IN TORONTO GOLF

TORONTO, Sept. 20.—With a score of 192 for the 36-hole medal competition, Mrs. H. R. Tilley, Toronto, captured the championship in the fourth annual tournament of the Canadian Women's Senior Golf association played here Wednesday and today.

BUSINESS STEADY ON MINING MARKET

TORONTO, Sept. 30.—Business was fairly steady on the Standard Mining exchange today, 331,983 shares being dealt in. Argonaut was the leader of the market with 40,550 shares changing hands the stock closing ¼ lower, at 35¾. Barry Holly was up ½ at 68. Dome Mines slumped and closed 1 point lower, at 123. The balance of the list was steady.

POOL DELEGATES MEET LATE OCTOBER

REGINA, Sept. 30. — The date for the annual meeting of the Saskatchewan pool delegates has been set for Wednesday, October 27, it was announced today following the close of the sessions of the board of directors who sat for 10 days transacting the business of the Saskatchewan Cooperative Wheat Producers limited, and the Saskatchewan pool elevators. The annual meeting will probably extend over three days, but definite arrangements have not yet been made.

OIL MERGER IS AGAIN RUMORED IN STATES

Reports that the Texas Company was seeking to acquire the Union Oil Company of California are reviving but were not confirmed.

The Union Oil Company announced that it had opened four marketing stations in Alaska. This is believed to foreshadow a vigorous sales campaign in that territory. The new stations are at Ketchikan, Craig, Petersburg and Wrangel in the southern part of Alaska.

Announcement was also made that the Union Oil Company of Canada, limited, a subsidiary corporation, had opened 11 marketing stations in British Columbia. These stations have been established to meet the requirements of the fishing fleets operating on the coast and rivers of the province.

United States Smelting Declares Its Dividend

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. — United States Smelting, Refining and Manufacturing declared a regular quarterly dividend of 87½c on the common and same on the preferred stocks. For the eight months ending August 31 the consolidated net profit was $2,480,866 after interest depreciation against $2,426,755 for eight months ending August 31.

MISS COLLETT IS DEFEATED IN GOLF PLAY

Virginia Wilson, Chicago Girl, Takes Game From Champion; Edith Cummings Beaten Too

HAVERFORD, Pa., Sept. 30. — Glenna Collett today entered the valhalla of conquered champions in the third round defence of the women's national golf crown.

Under skies that continued to drip a relentless rain, overflooded links that resisted her game, the defender went gamely down to defeat, 2 and 1, before Virginia Wilson, 20-year-old Chicago girl.

Fate completed the turn of the scales with the downfall of Edith Cummings, 1923 champion, before Mrs. G. H. Stetson of Philadelphia 6 and 5, to insre a new champion, as the outcome of the tournament.

Instead of Miss Collett and Miss Cummings facing each other in the semi-finals tomorrow, as they did a year ago, Miss Wilson will meet Mrs. Stetson in the semi-final round that is new to both of them. Mrs. Wright D. Goss jr. of Short Hills, who defeated Mrs. Norman Toerge of Glencove, will meet Mrs. Courtland Smith of Glen Ridge, victor over Mrs. J. L. Anderson of Garden City, to determine which of them will be the other finalist.

McGRAW BEATS ROCCO

WEST NEW YORK, Sept. 30. — Phil McGraw, 137, of Detroit, won the newspaper decision over Johnny Rocco, 136, of New Rochelle.

STRIBLING DEFEATS FRANKIE BUSCH

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 30.—W. L. (Young) Stribling, Atlanta light-heavyweight, defeated Frankie Busch of Norwich, Conn., here tonight, gaining a technical knockout in the sixth round of a scheduled eight-round bout.

DALLAS WINNER OF SOUTH BALL TITLE

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 30.—Dallas won the baseball championship of the south here today, chiefly because of stellar batting by "Hack" Miller, Dallas right fielder, who drove in enough runs to enable the Texans to gain a 3-to-1 decision over the New Orleans Pelicans. The Pelicans won the first two games of the series. The Steers then took four in a row, with the exception of a tie contest played in Dallas.

Over Seven Hundred Car Inspections on Canadian Pacific Lines

WINNIPEG, Sept. 30. — Grain inspections yesterday on Camadian Pacific lines totaled 737 cars with marketings in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta mounting to 1,890,797 bushels. Saskatchewan leading with 1,199,038 bushels. A total of 1118 cars were loaded on the prairies. In storage at country elevators are 9,021,324 bushels of grain. Yesterday 630 cars were delivered to Fort William, with 1009 cars unloaded at that point. At 8 o'clock this morning 19,921,000 bushels were in storage at the head of the lakes, and during 24 hours previous 1,180,000 bushels were shipped down Lake Superior by boat.

ORDER THOUSANDS NEW FREIGHT CARS

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—One of the leading equipment authorities estimates that orders for about 12,000 freight cars are now in sight with prospects of a still larger number in coming weeks. It is now understood that a prospective list from Missouri Pacific which may come out short will involve some 3000 to 4000 freight cars which will make it one of the largest inquiries that has made its appearance in a long time.

CHURCH BOARDS CEASE FUNCTION

One-Quarter as Many Boards Will Replace 32 Now Disbanded Over Canada

TORONTO, Sept. 30.—Formal existence of 32 boards, committees and other agencies of three former churches, Congregationalist, Methodist and Presbyterian, terminated today and these will be replaced by one-quarter as many boards in the United Church of Canada.

Some of these bodies passing out of existence have had historic significance and were movements which in former days furnished large sums for special missionary projects. Functions and traditions of the regular boards of the uniting churches are being carried over and contiuned under the new plan, and the largely increased financial response since union may lead some boards to consider taking up again work which had been dropped.

Six boards, one each for publications, home missions, foreign missions, evangelism and social service, religious education, and education; three interrelated committees on finance and the woman's missionary society emerge as the principal organs of the general activities required by a much larger church than the earlier organizations represented.

Owing to representation which under the new constitution a number of boards will leave at each other's council table, the number of special committees will in future be comparatively small.

EXPECT STEEL MILLS WILL CONTINUE BUSY

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Iron and Steel Age says: Continuance of the September rate of steel production and shipment into October is generally indicated, though in several products it will mean, as was the case last month, some reduction in the total of unfilled orders. In respect to prices and production, the maintenance of the record of the past quarter is the extent of the producers' hopes for the fourth quarter, whereas in the last three months of 1925 prices advanced and output increased.

EXCHEQUER RETURNS SHOW LARGER DEFICIT

LONDON, Sept. 30 — Exchequer returns for the first half of the financial year, which ended today, showed a deficit of £61,724,010 sterling as compared with a deficit during the same period last year of £35,972,025.

Expenditures for the first half of the fiscal year were £383,990,051, while receipts were £322,266,041.

Great Britain's floating debt was £766,181,000 compared with £775,121,000 last year.

JAPAN PLANS THROW SEALING TREATY OUT

VICTORIA, B.C., Sept. 30. — Japan is about to throw the whole Pacific sealing question into the melting pot again by denouncing the present treaty under which unrestricted sealing has been made a thing of the past, and the seal herds of the north Pacific are being restored to their old-time numbers, according to newspapers received here from Tokio today.

The papers give prominence to the statement that the Japanese authorities are determined to end the treaty.

This news caused surprise among provincial officials, who are inclined to believe that the report of Japan's intention of abrogating the treaty was exaggerated.

Keen is a native of Philadelphia and graduate of the University of Maryland, and a son of a Methodist minister now located in Balitmore. Both father and son are opposed to playing on the Sabbath.

WELSH GOLFERS DROP AMATEURS

Open Amateur Play Suspended Indefinitely Owing to Date and Course Conflict

The Welsh Golfing union has decided to suspend indefinitely the tournament for the Welsh open amateur championship, this decision having been reached at the annoal meeting of the union held at Portcawl recently. The delegates were informed that the multiplicity of meetings in England, the difficulty of choosing first class courses and of arranging dates militated against the success of the championship. It was decided to accept the invitation of the Tenby G. C. to hold the Welsh closed amateur championship next year. The union also elected the Earl of Plymouth president to succeed the late Lieut.-Col. Tenison Collins.

"It seems a deplorably weak-kneed way of succumbing in the face of a little adversity," says Golf Illustrated in commenting on the matter. "The truth is that last year's Welsh open amateur championship, held on the very excellent but inaccessible course of Harlech, did not prove a success in the sense that it attracted only a small entry. And because of this the Welsh officials have allowed themselves to be overwhelmed by the 'all is lost' feeling, and have resolved to stop trying. Verily, it is pathetic on the part of a country which produced such assertive personages as Mr. Lloyd George and Jimmy Wilde.

"Other big events have had their bad times. Take, for instance, the Irish open championship, which, in its heyday, was second in importance to the British championship in the program of amateur rivalry on the links. With its revival after the war it suffered heavily from the civil warfare in Ireland. The large number of leading English and Scottish players who had been in the habit of competing for the title—a title that Mr. John Ball and Mr. Harold Hilton made fashionable by winning it several times in its early days—ceased their attentions. They could not be induced to go to Ireland as the perfect place for a golfing holiday in the circumstances that prevailed.

"The Golfing union of Ireland might well have been forgiven if, in that distressing period, it had abandoned the tournament, which amounted to nothing more than a rehash of the native championship—and conducted even then under great difficulties, as, for example, on the occasion of a meeting at Portmarnock, where Sinn Fein ran up its flag over the clubhouse and proclaimed that the removal of the banner would be the signal for the stopping of the tournament.

VINI RICHARDS JOINS THE PROS

States Tennis Star Joins Pyle's Group of Tourists for Canada, States

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Vincent Richards, olympic champion and third rank tennis player in the United States, has joined the ranks of professionalism under the wing of C. C. Pyle. The announcement was made by Pyle tonight at a dinner in honor of Suzanne Lenglen aboard the steamer Paris of the French line here tonight.

The first to congratulate Richards were Mlle. Lenglen, Mary K. Browne and Mrs. Richards, who come into the gathering following the announcement. Richards' advent completes the array of tennis stars secured by Pyle for a professional tour of this country and Canada which starts October 9 at Madison Square Garden. With Richards will be Mlle. Lenglen, Miss Browne and Paul Feret, the fourth ranking player in France.

Is a Surprise

Richards' departure from the amateur fold came as a surprise to tennis followers in view of his decisions several weeks ago that he would not join the professional jolted the hopes of the United States as regards of nucleus for its Davis cup teams next year. Richards was the only American to survive to the semi-final in the recent national championships, finally being overcome by Jean Borotra of France.

Likelihood for the passing of the national doubles championships now held by Richards and R. N. Williams passing from the country also loomed.

A unique golf course is found in Tshikapa, in the Belgian Congo, where nude dusky caddies carry the clubs and old beef tins are used as holes.

TORONTO LEAFS WIN THIRD IN 'LITTLE SERIES'

Louisville Short on Ten-Inning Game; Third Straight Win for Leafs

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Toronto	3	0	1.000
Louisville	0	3	.000

TORONTO, Sept. 30.—Toronto made it three straight from Louisville by taking today's game, 2 to 1, in 10 innings, Miller driving Mullen across the plate with the deciding run when he singled past first with two out. Mullen opened the 10th with a hit to right, Lawry popped out to Cotter and Carlyle to Shanks. Layne single to left and Mullen was held at second. He scored from that bag on Miller's hit.

The "little world series" game was another pitcher's battle with Victor Sorrell, youthful college pitcher, opposing Ralph Dawson and the Toronto hurler had the best of the argument though not by much margin. He allowed but four hits and fanned seven batters.

Trouble in Fourth

A base on balls to Pittenger started trouble for him in the fourth. Guyon's bunt rolled safe but Pittenger was headed at third on Acost's bunt to the box. Webb, for his first hit of the series singled to center and Guyon scored. The Kentuckians were not dangerous after that. The Leafs evened the score in the fifth. Health, first man up, singled, O'Neill rolled out and Sorrell was safe on Pittenger's error on an easy chance, Health going to third. He scored when Gilhooley lined to right, Guyon making a sensational catch. Pittenger, the star of Wednesday's game bobbled twice today, only one of his errors figuring in the scoring. The Leafs played smartly in the field. Mullen was injured as he slid over the home plate with the winning run. The attendance was a little over 4000.

World Series Games Just Like Others

By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

The white light of publicity beating on the world series games magnifies them all out of proportion and the ball players themselves are often affected by this complex.

In order to combat this psychology which often interferes with the work of the players on the field, managers of pennant-winning clubs try to impress upon their players that a world series game is just like any other ball game and differs in no way from the past 154 games of the championship season.

John McGraw, Fred Clark, Bill McKechnie, Bucky Harris, George Stallings, Tris Speaker and, in fact, every pennant winning manager, with hardly any exception, tries to put the players into a frame of mind where they look upon a world series game as "just a ball game," and go about their playing just as they would in any ordinary ball game.

HUDDERSFIELD TO MEET LEICESTER

Real Opposition for All Leading Teams in British Soccer Race Saturday

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Saturday's games in the first division of the English Soccer league constitute a real menace for those clubs whose fortunes have so far brought them to the top of the table, and it is anticipated that not a few changes may be found in the constitution of the divisional "form chart" at the week-end. Leicester City, the leaders, are confronted with a powerful opposition on Saturday, when they travel to Huddersfield and meet the league titleholders on their own ground.

Birmingham are also engaged away from home, their opponents being Bolton Wanderers. The Wanderers have not yet dropped a game on their own ground this season. Newcastle United blanking them last Saturday.

The Blades have lost their last two games, Derby County taking the points from them on Monday last and Arsenal are the only metropolitan team to be engaged at home, Newcastle United visiting them at Highbury. The "Spurs" travel to Bury and West Ham to West Bromwich.

Other scheduled games:

Everton at Blackburn, Cardiff City at Derby, Leeds United at Liverpool, Aston Villa at Manchester United, Wednesday at Sunderland.

HOCKEY BOYS WAITING ONLY FOR THE ICE

Tommy Madden Says Have Men and Equipment; Want Cold Winter

HE WON'T DIVULGE NAMES DARK HORSES

Team Has Credit of $1178; Trail, Rossland Have New Men

"Are we going to have a hockey team? Say, we've got the boys, and we've got the equipment. All we need is a good cold winter now."

These somewhat cryptic remarks may be attributed to Tommy Madden, who piloted the Nelson senior hockey team to the championship of the interior and who has every intention of doing the same this season. "Tommy" has assumed too much avoirdupois to play real fast Kootenay hockey any more, but he is as active as he ever was on the ice, when it comes to handling a hockey team. He is to senior hockey in Nelson what A. Wallach is to junior soccer.

Everything But Sweaters

And he whispered:

"We've got four or five dark horses, too."

He would not say who they were, but he states they have lived in Nelson long enough to be eligible for the Nelson team, and just as soon as the first ice here is ready, they will be called out with the regular boys to show what they have.

The team will have every bit of equipment it had last season, with the exception of sweaters. It has a cash balance in the bank of $1178.

There are a number of young fellows who have not quite enough experience yet but who wil, in a year or two, develop into real hockey men, said Tommy.

A meeting of all last winter's players and the team executive, will be held early this month to get the boys organized.

Trail is reported to have a number of horses, though no one seems to know whether they are blonds of brunettes.

Both Trail and Rossland have a number of players from East Kootenay and the Crow, and real fast hockey is expected this season in the race for league leadership.

Jap Davis Cup Pair Beaten in Doubles, Coast

VANCOUVER, Sept. 30.—In three exhibition tennis matches between Takeichi Harada and Tsumeo Tawara and a number of British Columbia players, the Japanese stars were defeated in the doubles, but won their two singles encounters at the Vancouver Lawn Tennis club yesterday.

Geoff Peers and A. S. Milne vanquished the Japanese by a score of 6-3, 6-4. Harada defeated Jack McGill, 6-4, 9-7, and T. McMasters lost to Tawara, 6-1, 6-2.

KOOTENAY BOYS LEAD IN SPORT IN CALIFORNIA

Gallagher Writes Los Angeles Hockey Wants More Huffmans

THREE EX-NELSONITES ON LACROSSE ELEVEN

Former Local Boy Stars in Nets for Los Angeles Soccer Squad

Tom Madden has received a letter from R. G. Gallagher, a former Nelson boy, who is now manager of the Los Angeles Athletic club ice hockey team, and a member of the Los Angeles lacrosse team. Accompanying the letter are two pictures of the team in fighting togs, one of the hockey team, and the other of the lacrosse team.

Managers on Look-Out

In his letter he states that hockey managers in and around Los Angeles are looking for hockey players of the caliber of "Buster" Huffman, who played, Gallagher said, "a wonderful season," there last year. He gives addresses of a number of men who are looking for material. Huffman played with Trail, Rossland and Nelson before going south.

Gallagher also states that Don Wilson, who played with one of Nelson's first junior soccer league teams, is making a big hit as goalie for the Los Angeles Athletic club soccer team, champions of southern California.

Three former Nelson boys played with the lacrosse team during the summer.

Lacrosse Champions

The lacrosse team is present champion of California, and three former Nelson boys helped in putting it at the head of the league. They were Harris Manhart, G. R. Gallagher and Frank Ronan. Ronan captained the team.

Gallagher states the hockey team was second in the California league.

YANKS LEAD ON BASIS OF SERIES

Only Three Cards to Ten Yanks Have Played in World Series Before

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—On the basis of world series experience, the New York Yankees have an overwhelmingly advantage over their rivals, the St. Louis Cardinals, in the approaching baseball contest.

Rogers Hornsby, pilot of the Cards, and himself innocent of world series participation, can offer only three ragulars and a noncombatant who have been under the critical fire of a world's championship series.

The Yanks, however, leading off with Babe Ruth, who has six supreme tests under his belt, boast 10 regulars seasoned in championship fire and an 11th who may play if no one else volunteers.

Alexander, Southworth and O'Farrell are the Cardinals who have made the baseball roll of honor, each with one series. William Killefer, assistant manager, has played in two, but is not on the active list now.

Ruth in Eleventh

The Yankees' series veterans are Ruth, Meusel, Dugan, Ward, Hoyt, Jones, Pennock, Shawkeye, Ruether, Severid and Merkle the last named a caach, who can still play if any emergency arises.

Ruth, setting a new record by appearing in his eleventh series, leads all the rest. He played with Boston in 1915, 1916 and 1918, and was in a New York uniform in 1921, 1922 and 1923.

Merkle has played in five series with three clubs. He was with the Giants in 1911, 1912 and 1913, with Brooklyn in 1916 and the Cubs in 1918.

Dugan played in 1922 and 1923 and Pennock in 1923. Jones was with Boston in 1918 and the Yanks in 1922 and 1923. Severid won his world series letter with Washington last year and Ruether got a "numeral" at the same time by appearing only as a pinch hitter.

The star Cardinal catcher, Bob O'Farrell, caught some games for the Chicago Cubs in 1918 series, and Alexander pitched for the Phillies in 1915. Southworth was part of the Giant crew in 1924. Killifer was in the lineup of the Cubs in 1918, after catching for the Phillies in 1915.

Solario Noses Out Foxlaw and Is Then Disqualified, Newmarket

NEWMARKET, Sept. 30.—Solario, Sir John Rutherford's brown colt, and the red-hot favorite, was nosed out by Sir Abe Bailey's Foxlaw in the Jockey Club stakes here today and then disqualified. Objections for bumping and boring were lodged and sustained. Foliation, owned by S. Tattersall, which finished third, was placed second by the judges, and Frank Curzon's Comedy King, third. The betting odds against Foxlaw were 20 to 1 against; Foliation, 7 to 1 against; and Comedy King, 100 to 12.

SEVEN BIDDERS ACQUIRE LOTS AT CIVIC SALE

Out of 48 Lots Offered, 10 Are Bought; the Rest Revert

OPERA HOUSE IS BID IN FOR TAXES

Of Reverting Properties, Largest on Victoria, Next Stanley

Seven bidders "bought in" 10 Nelson lots at the annual city tax sale, held yesterday forenoon at the city hall. The balance of the delinquent lots offered at auction by Tax Collector W. E. Wasson, 38 in number, were not bid upon, and automatically reverted to the city in lieu of the unpaid taxes.

The city thus realized $1,437.26—tax arrears paid in by bidders—and the title in 38 assorted lots. Title cannot actually pass until the statutory redemption period is over. There was no competition among the few bidders, and the lots actually sold were "knocked down" at the amount of taxes and costs due.

Chief in interest was the "knocking down" of the opera house property, the north 78 feet of lots 1 and 2, block 15, subdivision 95, to J. E. Annable for $901.86, half of which was against each lot. The taxes were charged to James Allen.

Church Gets Lot

The Church of the Redeemer obtained the Ingrid Campbell lot, lot 3, block 33, subdivision 58A, adjoining its property, for $48.43.

E. W. Widdowson bought the south 90 feet of lot 22, block 10, subdivision 95, on Stanley street, the site of the late G. W. V. A. "dugout," known to early Nelson as the "Bucket of Blood," from its then red color, for $198.41. It stood in the name of Josiah Pugh and W. Livingstone.

Two properties belonging to the William Gosnell estate, lots 11 and 12, block 18, subdivision 58A, were bid in by C. B. Garland, solicitor, for $85.97 and $94.57 respectively.

C. W. Appleyard obtained two P. N. Thompson lots, lots 1 and 2, block 41, subdivision 150, for $39.37 and $30.78.

Capt. William Seaman bought a Barbara Robertson lot, lot 3, block 87, subdivision 95, for $51.30.

The remaining purchase was a P. N. Thompson lot, lot 1, block 13, subdivision 150, which William Irvine got for $26.77.

Reverting to City

Properties not bid upon, and in consequence reverting to the city, were as follows:

Josiah Pugh and W. Livingstone—All in block 10, subdivision 95; east 10 feet of lot 19, $76.58; south 90 feet of west 15 feet of lot 19, $99.99; south 90 feet of lot 20, $198.41; south 90 feet of lot 21, $198.41; comprising property on north side of Victoria street next Stanley corner.

H. and M. Bird—Lot 2, block 11, subdivision 95, $306.30.

Barbara Robertson—Lots 4, 5 and 6, block 87, subdivision 95, $51.30 each.

J. E. Annable—Lot 12, block 12, subdivision 150, $16.35.

Emil Fletcher—Lots 19 and 20, block 23, subdivision 150, $36.40 each.

P. N. Thompson—All in subdivision 150; lots 6 and 7, block 30, $39.37 each; lot 7, block 34, $16.33; lots 6 and 7, block 39, $39.37; lot 10, block 46, $19.92; lot 1, $37.33, and lot 2, $30.79, in block 48.

N. D. Stewart—Lot 8, block 40, subdivision 150, $34.58.

Mary A. Walker—Lots 9 and 10, block 50, subdivision 150, $30.78 each.

Estate of Peter Verigin—Lot 11, block 62, subdivision 150, $13.32.

Angus Campbell—All in subdivision 58A: Lot 12, block 21, $20.92; lot 20, block 36, $45.73; lot 9, block 40, $26.87.

Ruth A. Hancock—All in block 21, subdivision 58A: Lot 14, $33.23; lots 17, 18 and 21, $30.95 each; lots 19 and 20, $30.96 each; lot 22, $30.94.

Marion H. Crow-Baker—Lot 2, block 44, subdivision 58A, $26.87.

A. S. Innes—Lot 19, block 47, subdivision 58A, $44.63.

Angus Campbell and James Hutchison—Lot 1, block 49, subdivision 58A, $48.44.

W. W. Ferguson—Lot 9, $25.64, and lot 10, $27.02, in block 10, subdivision 96.

HOFF MAKES GRAVE CHARGES ON UNION

Claims Amateur Body Fell Down on Contract and Forced Him to Turn Professional

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—The ruling of immigration authorities that Charles Hoff, Norwegian pole vaulter, must leave this country, October 15, at the expiration of temporary admission, had nothing whatever to do with the suit Hoff filed here yesterday against the Amateur Athletic union for $100,000, the athlete said today.

"I filed this suit simply because the Amateur Athletic union failed to pay my expenses as they promised and forced me into professionalism to support myself," he said, "also because they suspended me without reason."

Hoff declared that the officials of the A. A. U., had brought up the immigration subject to keep the public from knowing the real reason he is filing suit, the alleged failure to live up to their contract.

WOMEN CAN HAVE HILLS IN HEART, SAYS MR. SYKES

From Threshold of Home They May Link Lives With Heaven

Basing his remarks on the expression of the psalmist, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from which cometh my strength," Rev. Tom Sykes, the English "Christian campaigner," addressed a large gathering of women yesterday afternoon in St. Paul's church, on "The Double Threshold of Life."

His talk was chiefly of the confinement of women by their homes duties, but of the possibilities also within their reach of making the threshold of their home the threshold also of a life linked with heaven.

Life today, he said, was carved up by the time-pieces, and ordered according to timetables, but it was possible to have a hilltop in the heart, and to have the home filled by a spiritual presence. One day was like another, according to the clock, but in reality each day was what its possessor made it.

A Life of Penury

Mr. Sykes made touching references to his early life, to his father, who could not write his name, raising nine children on 15 shillings a week, to his own acquisition of the art of reading at 17, and to the penury that brought on his mother the affliction that led eventually to her death. In her last days she said to him: "Love, my life has been a very hard one, but yours has made it worth while." All the wealth of America, he said, could not buy that legacy from him if it were possible.

Here in beautiful Nelson, where the dawn was heralded by sunglearns on the hills, where he yesterday morning said his prayers "at Nature's altar," there was the same opportunity as elsewhere for the humblest woman to lift her eyes to the spiritual hills.

SHEEP CREEK LOST PROMINENT FIGURE

Al Garvin Followed Mining in the Kootenay for 30 Years

Al Garvin, the well-known Salmo mining man, who died in Kootenay Lake General hospital just after the Dominion election, was one of the genuine old-timers of the Kootenay district, Dr. H. B. Morrison remarked yesterday.

He followed mining all over the Kootenay for going on to 30 years, but was principally identified with the Salmo-Ymir section, and the Sheep Creek camp. For the last few years he had a big gold property adjacent to Salmo, on Lost or Hidden creek. In the days when Sheep creek had numerous large operating properties, he had the Pipe-Dream group on Mount Vernon.

Mr. Garvin's occupation was responsible for his death at the age of 57, the disease took him off being described as miners' consumption.

HE SAW HOUSTON WEARING FIRST NELSON TOPPER

Laurie, Eagle Head, Also on the Rossland Miner in Early Days

While to the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Walter J. S. Laurie, who addressed the Nelson aerie Wednesday night, is the deputy grand president for British Columbia and Washington, to non-Eagles he is a Kootenay old-timer, and a very old one at that.

Twenty-six years ago he was on the Rossland Miner, and in the thick of things in the golden city in its boom times. He reached Rossland by way of Nelson.

"I landed in Nelson the day the city was incorporated," relating Mr. Laurie, yesterday. At the ceremony attendant on incorporation, John Houston, the city's first mayor, wore the first top hat in Nelson.

Excavated Old Club Cellar

"One of my first jobs in Nelson was excavating the cellar for the Nelson club building on Victoria street, now only a memory."

Mr. Laurie will visit various Kootenay cities, including Nelson again, before returning to the coast.

NELSON BOWLERS BEGIN WINTER'S WAR UPON PINS

Alleys Used Nightly; Call Organization Meet Next Week

Whether it was last week's snow, or whether the colder weather has done it, is a disputed point, but it is a fact that the hint of winter sport ahead has set Nelson bowlers tingling with anticipation.

The Semaphore alleys are in almost nightly use now by the more ardent bowlers. Trail has named its teams, and the schedule of games will be started soon.

To Form Association

A meeting of Nelson bowlers is to be called next week. At present there is no bowling association, and it is expected one will be formed at the meeting. At least some organization work will be done.

As A. G. Gelinas said yesterday, there is no reason why the Nelson bowlers could not make a trip or two to Trail before the snow flies, going by auto.

TO SAVE RACE COURSE

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Assurance has come from the Earl of Sefton that the historic Aintree race course will not be demolished as a result of the proposed industrialization of adjoining property. Grave concern was felt over the threatened extinction of the course which has seen many stirring contests.

M'INTOSH APPLES ARE NOW BEING SHIPPED TO EAST

Crop Is Beyond Consuming Power of Prairie, Says Vance

"McIntosh Red apples are now being shipped to eastern Canada and the eastern United States. There is a bigger crop of McIntosh Reds in British Columbia than the prairie provinces can consume," stated W. M. Vance, manager of the Nelson subcentral of the Associated Growers of British Columbia, yesterday.

Six Cars For Montreal

McIntosh Reds are now at their best, he said. The Sunshine Bay packing house shipped two cars of fancy pack to Montreal on Wednesday and the Creston local has loaded four cars of the same variety this week.

Winter varieties are now being packed throughout the district, but as yet there is not a sufficient tonnage to warrant shipping.

Gravenstein and Wealthy apples are nearly over.

Prices on the prairie are improving, due to the better weather and resumption of threshing operations, although they are not up to average yet.

FALLING DRILL TEARS HIS FACE, BREAKING JAWS

Peter Liscuk of Yankee Girl Mine Has a Painful Accident

While looking up a shaft in the Yankee Girl mine at Ymir, Sunday afternoon, watching the hoist raise to the surface a number of drills, Peter Liscuk was struck in the face by a falling drill, the piece of steel, which struck on the left side of his face, tearing his face open and fracturing both jaws.

After being in a very serious way from the shock and the loss of blood accompanying his injuries, Mr. Liscuk is now making good progress in Kootenay Lake General hospital.

He is under the care of Dr. D. W. McKay, who brought him in in his car Sunday.

ULLS TAKE OVER MARKET CONTROL

l Money Up to High Point; S. Steel Up; Famous Players Advances Two Points

EW YORK, Sept. 30.—Speculators the advance regained control of the e movement in today's stock mar- after bear traders had failed to ettle the general list by selling k on the marking up of the call ney rate to 6 per cent, the highest are of the year. Operators for the felt convinced that the high rate day-to-day loans was only tempor- due largely to the shifting of ds incidental to the payment of 0,000,000 in third quarter dividend interest payments and that there nothing to justify an increase in New York federal reserve redis- nt rate, which was announced as hanged at 4 per cent after the ket closed.

Inited States Steel common closed rly 2 points higher, at 150. Gen- Motors recorded a similar gain 161¼. Baldwin crossed 123 for a gain of 1⅝.

Famous Players Leads

ne of the outstanding individual tures of the session was the heavy ing of Famous Players, which ad- ced 2 points, to 120, on reports that company was negotiating for rner Brothers Pictures, the "A" k of which showed a net gain of Commercial Solvents "B" con- ued its sensational advance by soar- nearly 9 points to a new record h at 202¾.

Coppers had a temporary sinking ll in response to another drop in er prices.

Establishment of the highest price over 15 years by Union Pacific at ¼ was one of the new features of railroad list which closed higher. Call money renewed at 5½, and then anced to 6 per cent.

Time money and commercial paper es were unchanged.

Total sales—1,412,100 shares.

Business Facts

YOUR BANKER WILL HELP DETERMINE WHAT FEATURES WILL SUIT YOUR NEEDS

When buying bonds, do not pay for features not needed.

* * *

Practically no bond issue has all the desirable features which might be said to belong to the ideal investment, and even if such securities were commonly obtainable, they would sell at such a high price that the interest yield would be very low.

The ordinary investor does not need all of these features, and it is foolish for him to sacrifice his interest rate to get them. For example, he may not need complete tax exemption, high marketability, listing on stock exchanges, or convertibility into stock.

Consultation with your banker or a good investment house will help you determine just what features you need in the securities you buy. The advice of financial experts will make your investments do just what you want them to do, and nothing more.

COMPROMISE IS REACHED IN THE UTICA DISPUTE

New Offer Accepted by Caldwell, Who Agrees to End Suit Over Kaslo Property

SPOKANE, Sept. 30.—A compromise of the financial differences over the purchase of the Utica mine near Kaslo, B.C., has been effected with C. F. Caldwell, liquidator, it was announced yesterday by Col. H. H. Armstead, purchaser. Under the terms, Armstead is willing to proceed with the exploration.

The colonel said he had offered to retire the former Utica Mines capitalization of 2,000,000 shares at 9c a share from the 15 per cent net smelter returns. He had offered to put the question squarely up to the shareholders in a letter to be issued in advance of the call for meetings and in the question to ask each shareholder whether he desired to remain in the venture with him and receive 9c a share on the old Utica basis or $1 a share on first preferred Canadian Mines Merger basis from 15 per cent of the net smelter returns, or to option his shares at a less speculative value on payment of 10 per cent cash 40 per cent a year from the time work is resumed in the camp, and 50 per cent in two years.

Caldwell has accepted Armstead's offer to present the question to the shareholders and on his side has agreed to at once withdraw the suit he entered recently at Nelson, B.C. to bring about the dismissal of the Utica Mines from liquidation, if the shareholders approve Armstead's offer, said Armstead.

No Ore In Sight

At the time the Utica went into liquidation there was no ore in sight, the company was in debt without cash or shares in the treasury and tied up in a five-year lease to O. C. Thompson, according to the colonel. Armstead paid Thompson $20,000 for cancellation of his lease. Also, he paid all of the creditors and put $25,000 into the treasury of the company.

The colonel believes there is a sporting chance of making a producer of the old mine by finding ore on lower levels, but says a 25 per cent net smelter sinking fund with 7 per cent cumulative interest is a burden too great for new capital to carry. He says it would be like expecting a packhorse to carry 500 pounds. The load must be lightened, and if lightened he will undertake to salvage $180,000 for the old Utica shareholders, he states. When the Utica went into liquidation the shares were offered at 1c each on the Spokane stock exchange with no bidder.

The speculative value of the shares is about the same today as then, for there is still no ore in sight, and the entire venture is still a gamble, its success dependent on whether ore is cut on lower levels and, if cut, dependent on the quantity and quality, he holds.

New Money Must See a Chance

Armstead states that, to give new capital a run for its investment, there must be a chance of retiring it as well as retiring the $180,000 to old shareholders, and if an equitable plan is not acceptable to old shareholders he will drop out.

In case his final offer, detailed in the foregoing paragraphs, is not accepted by the former Utica shareholders, the colonel has offered to sell his interest to them at a 50 per cent loss and take a 50 per cent salvage from net smelter returns himself, so that he will not prevent or delay the liquidator in making a new deal elsewhere.

New capital will not join in the gamble until Utica Mines has been dismissed from liquidation, nor will new capital come in unless the net smelting fund is reduced to 15 per cent without interest he states. So far, all of the money has been furnished by him, and he declares he does not see why the shareholders are not willing to continue to get a free ride with all to win and nothing to lose, when all he is asking from them is to lighten the burden to make financing possible.

CALGARY, Sept. 30. — With the barometer rising again continued fine weather was forecast tonight by officials at the bureau. The weather throughout the day was sunny and warm, and farmers were continuing harvest operations for the longest time this year, not interspersed with rain.

GRANBY COMPANY RAISES OUTPUT

Two-Year Construction Ends Soon; Fifty-five Million Pounds Copper Capacity

*SPOKANE, Sept. 30. — The con*struction and rehabilitation campaign quietly carried on by the Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting & Power company during the last two or three years will be fully completed within the next three months, as a result of which the properties are showing a substantial increase in earning power and appreciably lower costs, says the Wall Street Journal. This improvement has attracted the attention of a Boston group of mining men who have recently bought a large block of stock and will soon be given representation on the board.

Granby, with its 99.88 per cent owned subsidiary, the Allenby Copper company, has an annual production capacity of 55,000,000 to 60,000,000 pounds of copper, without unduly crowding operations. Compared with other mining companies, Granby has an extraordinary high poundage of annual production per share of stock outstanding, of which there are at present 344,803 shares.

On this basis, there is an annual producing capacity of between 160 to 170 pounds of copper a share, a poundage believed to be equaled by only one other producer in North and South America.

Assuming all of the $2,500,000 1 per cent debentures were converted, there would then be outstanding 444,803 shares, on which basis the annual producing capacity per share would be between 120 and 130 pounds of copper.

MELBOURNE, Sept. 30.—Australian wheat harvest will be 140,000,000 bushels, an increase over last year of 31,552,063 bushels.

TIMES TO SECURE CANADIAN PAPER

New York Publishers Will Spend $25,000,000 on Canadian Plant in Ontario

TORONTO, Sept. 30.—The Telegram today says:

"The presence in Canada of Adolph Ochs, proprietor of the New York Times, is explained in the fact that his interests are on the eve of staging a *total expenditure of $25,000,000 in Can*ada as a result of which the Times will procure its entire usage of newsprint from one Canadian source, owned by Ochs interests.

"It was explained this evening by the secretary of Mrs. Ochs that the proprietor of the New York Times has just concluded a business trip into northern Ontario, in connection with the proposed large newsprint project. The site selected for the paper plant is at Kakuskasing, where already there is a small sulphite mill in operation.

"A new mammoth plant for newsprint production will be built. The water power necessary to energize the mill will come from Smoky Falls, where 75,000 horse power will be generated."

MORE CUTS MADE IN GASOLINE PRICES

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Concessions of ½c a gallon on 64.66 gravity gasoline for export have been made by two large refiners, which cuts coupled with a reduction by Standard Oil of California in the price war in that state and an adjustment in the New England territory by the Atlantic Refg. Co., furnished additional evidence of a large amount of distress gasoline in the market.

Such reductions at the close of the season are not unusual. Oil men point out that last year similar reductions were made a month earlier.

A private dispatch from Tulsa states that refineries there are offering gasoline at 10c a gallon in tank car lots, which compares with 10½c and 10¾c, previously.

WHEAT SHOWS AN ADVANCE IN PRICE

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. — Except during belated month-end liquidation just at the last, wheat showed an advance in price most of the time today.

New export sales of North American wheat totaled more than 1,000,000 bushels and France was also buying future deliveries.

Closing quotations on wheat however, were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1⅝c lower, the latter for September contracts, with corn ¼c to 1¼c down, oats ½c decline to ¼c advance, and provisions from 12c off to 30c to 32c up.

BROMPTON LEADS TORONTO TRADING

Abitibi Strong and Active Issue; McKinnon Leads Industrials

TORONTO, Sept. 30. — Brompton was quite prominent on today's stock exchange. The price held between 35½ and 37½, finishing at the latter figure. Abitibi was strong and inactive between 93¾ and 94⅞, closing at the high mark.

McKinnon Industries Voting Trust was the most active industrial. All the day's transactions were made at 29, a net advance of ½. Brazilian Traction sold off to 117½ for the current movement before firming up to 119.
